Rodney Cathey Installed Band Mothers Officers

Rodney Cathey, principal of Winters High School, installed the new officers for the Band Mothers Club at their annual installation tea Tuesday afternoon at the home-making cottage. Members of the social committee served as hostesses.

The tea table, laid with white cut work linen, was centered with the sweepstakes trophy, won recently by the Blizzard Band. An arrangement of blue and white flowers in a crystal container was used at one end of the table. "Blizzard Band Mothers Club," inscribed in silver, was featured on the streamers extending from the floral arrangement. Mrs. Homer Stoecker ladeled punch from a crystal punch bowl and other appointments were of crystal.

Mr. Cathey stated that the band mothers should be commended for their work with the band and a club as good as the Band Mothers Club deserves a first division organization.

Officers installed were Mrs. J. W. Bahlman, president; Mrs. Weldon Middleton, Vice-President; Mrs. E. Z. Moore, secretary; Mrs. Frank Brown, treasurer; Mrs. Robert Gans, reporter, and Mrs. Roy Young, stand chairman.

Preceding the installation, a short business meeting was conducted and the club decided to sponsor a band picnic at the end of school.

The club presented Mrs. J. W. Bahlman, who also served as president of the club last year, a football blanket. Mrs. Gans was presented a gift certificate.

Approximately twenty-five attended the tea.

Campaign Starts Sunday

Walking Blood Bank To Be Established Here

The first step in the establishment of a "walking blood bank" in Winters will begin Sunday. Ministers of the churches will hand out cards to everyone in church Sunday, and will urge them to participate in this venture to create a live blood bank for this community.

After receiving the cards, volunteer donors are asked to go to the office of the hospital technician at the Winters Municipal Hospital to have the proper information entered on the cards. At the hospital laboratory, they will give a small sample of blood and the type and all other needed information will be recorded. Then the completely filled-out card will go on file to be ready when blood is needed.

John Townsend, hospital technician, said that all who call during office hours will be taken care of. He further said that anyone who wants to be included on the list of available blood donors but who cannot come to the hospital during office hours may have the complete work down after hours, by appointment.

Those who are sponsoring the drive for the "walking blood bank" have pointed out that no blood will be taken until needed. There are no facilities to store the whole blood, and stored blood must be used within a certain time period or will become unusable, they said. The blood will be stored in the best place, they said, "in the bodies of the donors," until needed.

The "blood bank" will consist only of a set of file cards containing all the necessary information. When blood is needed in an emergency, the file is studied and the person whose card indicates has the right type of blood will be notified. After the donor has given blood, his card will be returned to the file, but he will not be called until a certain time has elapsed.

The whole system of a "walking blood bank" for Winters and community will be operated on an entirely voluntary basis, it was pointed out.

The necessity for such a blood bank in Winters has been made more prominent by the fact that out-of-town blood banks make a charge for all blood they forward for use in Winters. And, in repaying such blood loans, the out-of-town sources ask for two pints for every pint given. It can be readily seen, blood bank sponsors said, that local sources of blood could be rapidly diminished in the event of an emergency. With such a system as is planned for Winters, the available blood would go approximately twice as far, it was said. There would be no call to repay blood at two pints for every pint used.

In addition to the file at the hospital, a duplicate file will be located at Spill Funeral Home.

In offering to take the responsibility of handing out the cards to their congregations, the ministers of Winters have wholeheartedly endorsed the proposed live blood bank.

According to a spokesman for the Winters Ministerial Alliance, "aside from the many other features making this program a necessity, we feel that any citizen who has recognized the love of God in their own personal life will also seek to convey that same type of love of his fellowman. Love of God and love of neighbor are basic to religious faith and action. Being concerned about meeting the needs of those in distress is fundamental to our religious heritage. We therefore urge every citizen who qualifies to be a blood donor to participate in this program, by being in church this Sunday and filling out a Winters Community Blood Bank card. As one of the ministers stated at a recent meeting, "This is something that every person should be proud to take part in."

The blood bank will become a part of the Civil Defense Organization in Winters, it was reported.

Catholic Church To Hold Special Mass Sunday Morn

Mt. Carmel Catholic Church will hold a special Mass for its "First Communion" Class in the church Sunday, May 14. The Rev. Father Julian Johnson will say the Mass at 10:00 a. m.

Those making their "First Communion" will be Tony Ortiz, Elisa Arispe, Ruben Martinez, Roy Flores, Timmy Meyer, Alvin Beimer, Douglas Graham, Tony Sanchez, Abel Flores, Eddie Martinez, Johnny Martinez, Ida Martinez, Sara Arispe, Mary Sanchez, Isabel Torres and Alicia Arispe.

Theresa Meyer and Susan White will act as Angels.

Robert Gans Again Named To McMurry Summer Band Staff

Robert Gans, director of the Winters High School Band, has been named again this year to the faculty of the McMurry College Summer Band and Twirling School, scheduled July 16-29 on the Abilene campus.

Rodney Cathey Installed Band Mothers Officers

This brings dial telephone service to the people in that area who until this installation, had never had any telephone communications.

John Hardesty, manager, said this brings to 13 the number of automatic unattended dial telephone exchanges operated by Taylor Telephone Cooperative in the seven counties in this area.

Riding Club Barbecue Slated Monday Night

Soil Stewardship Week Being Observed In County

"Soil Stewardship Week," May 7 to 12, is being observed by the Runnels Soil Conservation District and farmers and ranchers who are cooperators.

The Runnels Soil Conservation District is in its twelfth year of operations. The original governing body took office on September 13, 1949. This group called together and appointed a committee to develop a District Soil and Water Conservation Program and Work Plan that would meet the needs of the land and people of the district.

This committee made a careful study of the agricultural and economic conditions along with the conservation needs of the district. Then subjects were assigned members of the committee for history, Mrs. W. E. Little and the late County Judge Trimmer; transportation, petroleum and wildlife, W. H. Rappy, H. E. Speer and J. F. Brown; agricultural credit, Walter J. Presson; social conditions, Home Demonstration Clubs of Runnels County, represented by Miss Ollie Chenoweth, Home Demonstration Agent, and club women, Mrs. Claud Simmons, Mrs. Thomas Eagan, Mrs. Eugene Baker, Mrs. H. E. White and Mrs. Elliot Kemp; plant diseases and livestock, Joe C. Johnson, assistant county agent; work of the extension service, the late John Barton, county agent, and the work of the Production Marketing Administration (now ASC) S. E. Cloninger.

Cooperators who desire to apply a complete conservation program to their farms and ranches may receive cost-share assistance from the Great Plains Conservation Program. This program supplements existing activities and does not replace any of them. Cost-share help for applying certain needed conservation practices will be furnished as long as it is reasonably needed. However, it cannot be less than three years nor more than ten years contract. This program is developed by the Runnels County GPCP Development Committee. Cooperators may get a soil and water conservation loan from the Farmers Home Administration. This loan program, along with others, is administered by the FFA County Committee. Informational assistance is furnished the district by the three county newspapers and one radio station. This information media usually carries about 42 articles a year on happenings about soil and water conservation activities within the district. There are about 22 conservation contractors who make all or part of their living by rendering services to district cooperators and others. They construct such measures as terraces, ponds for livestock water, diversion terraces and carry out brush control on people's places who hire them. The Runnels County Commissioners Court furnishes the District and the SCS free office space in Ballinger. The Runnels County Farm Bureau directors lend their support and assistance to the District and its program. They provided assistance by gathering flood damage information on the various creeks in the district. This information has been used in making an application for assistance under the Watershed Protection and Flood (Continued on last page)

Men May Register May 15 In Beard Growing Contest

Men of Winters and community may register beginning May 15 for the beard growing contest sponsored by the Western committee of the Winters Round-Up Association. This is one phase of publicity for the annual rodeo to be held in Winters June 22, 23 and 24.

In accordance with the rules set up by the committee, each person wishing to take part in the contest must be clean-shaven at the time of registration, James West, committee chairman, said. "This will give everyone an even start," he said.

Cash prizes of $15 and $10 will be offered at the judging during the rodeo.

Contestants may register at the Main Drug, Heidenheimer's, West Texaco Station, or Enterprise office.

Also, the western committee is sponsoring a contest to name the most typically western man and woman during the rodeo. A cash prize of $25 will be divided between two contestants. This contest will be open to citizens of Winters.

West said the Jaycees will operate a "jail" during the week of the rodeo, to imprison residents who do not take part in publicizing the rodeo. Shave permits will be issued by the Jaycees, he said.

The first step in the establishment of a "walking blood bank" in Winters will begin Sunday. Ministers of the churches will hand out cards to everyone in church Sunday, and will urge them to participate in this venture to create a live blood bank for this community.

After receiving the cards, volunteer donors are asked to go to the office of the hospital technician at the Winters Municipal Hospital to have the proper information entered on the cards. At the hospital laboratory, they will give a small sample of blood and the type and all other needed information will be recorded. Then the completely filled-out card will go on file to be ready when blood is needed.

John Townsend, hospital technician, said that all who call during office hours will be taken care of. He further said that anyone who wants to be included on the list of available blood donors but who cannot come to the hospital during office hours may have the complete work down after hours, by appointment.

Those who are sponsoring the drive for the "walking blood bank" have pointed out that no blood will be taken until needed. There are no facilities to store the whole blood, and stored blood must be used within a certain time period or will become unusable, they said. The blood will be stored in the best place, they said, "in the bodies of the donors," until needed.

The "blood bank" will consist only of a set of file cards containing all the necessary information. When blood is needed in an emergency, the file is studied and the person whose card indicates has the right type of blood will be notified. After the donor has given blood, his card will be returned to the file, but he will not be called until a certain time has elapsed.

The whole system of a "walking blood bank" for Winters and community will be operated on an entirely voluntary basis, it was pointed out.

The necessity for such a blood bank in Winters has been made more prominent by the fact that out-of-town blood banks make a charge for all blood they forward for use in Winters. And, in repaying such blood loans, the out-of-town sources ask for two pints for every pint given. It can be readily seen, blood bank sponsors said, that local sources of blood could be rapidly diminished in the event of an emergency. With such a system as is planned for Winters, the available blood would go approximately twice as far, it was said. There would be no call to repay blood at two pints for every pint used.

Diversion Terraces Widely Used In Runnels County

"Diversion terraces are widely used by cooperators of the Runnels Soil Conservation District," announces Kirby Robinson, chairman of the board of supervisors. He said records revealed that 533,280 linear feet of earthen diversions have been constructed by cooperators of the district since July 1951.

According to James Glynn, local Soil Conservation Service Technician, these diversions are used for the safe handling and diverting of excess water without erosion. He says many of these diversions are used to protect cropland fields from damage by outside water. Others are used to divert water into ponds, waterways or into a system of water spreading terraces on cultivated land.

Long considered a woman's disease, cancer took the lives of more men than women last year. This has been true since 1949. The American Cancer Society needs your help to prevent this disease from killing men or women—or children.

Why, out of half a billion women on this planet, one poor man should get inextricably involved with the wrong one is a deep mystery.

Sediment damage like this can be controlled on Valley Creek with the proposed watershed project.

Flooding of farmsteads on Valley Creek as shown here can be controlled when proposed watershed protection and flood prevention program is carried out.

3,539 Miles Of Terraces Complete

Bill Minzenmayer, vice chairman says that cooperators of the Runnels Soil Conservation District have completed 3,539 miles of terraces. This has been accomplished since the Soil Conservation Service began assisting the District in 1951.

Many more miles are yet to be constructed before all cropland of the district is properly protected. Some systems built before 1951 were constructed with a grade, spaced too far apart, or for other reasons are unsatisfactory.

Properly constructed terrace systems control erosion by holding the water on the land. By preventing run-off we are conserving rainfall and making it available to our crops. Lack of moisture is the greatest cause of crop failure in our locality, so let us be sure that our cropland is protected with a good terrace system.

PREDICTS "SWEATING" WALLS

Homes of the future may have aluminum walls held together by super-glue which "like human skin, sweat a little to cool the building in the summer," according to architect Philip Will, Jr. He spoke at a meeting of The Aluminum Association in Oberlin, Ohio, which signaled the start of Aluminum's 75th Anniversary Year. It marks the anniversary of the discovery by Charles Martin Hall of the electrolytic process which first made the light metal plentifully available.

Kleta Gerhart and Wesley Sanders Red Wedding Vows Saturday

At eight o'clock Saturday, Kleta Gerhart and Wesley Eli Sanders repeated wedding vows in the presence of the bride's parents, Mrs. Hans Gerhart, 207 W. 10th St., and the groom's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Ellis Sanders of Winters.

Mrs. Sanders is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. J. E. Bagley, a retired minister of Abilene, officiating at the double ring ceremony.

The bride wore a street length white embroidered linen fashioned with a fitted bodice, short fitted sleeves and boat neckline. A gathered overskirt of organza was fastened at the waist with a bow. Her shoulder length veil of illusion fell from a crown of horse hair braid and pearls. She carried a colonial bouquet of white feathered carnations showered with white satin ribbon and stephanotis atop a white Bible, a gift of the bridegroom.

Following the ceremony, a reception was held in the home of the bride's parents. The table, laid with white cutwork linen, was centered with an arrangement of daisies and yellow pom poms.

The groom wore a white tuxedo with a white embroidered linen jacket and white trousers. He carried a white boutonniere and a white pocket square.

Given in marriage by her father, the bride wore a street length white embroidered linen fashioned with a fitted bodice, short fitted sleeves and boat neckline. A gathered overskirt of organza was fastened at the waist with a bow. Her shoulder length veil of illusion fell from a crown of horse hair braid and pearls. She carried a colonial bouquet of white feathered carnations showered with white satin ribbon and stephanotis atop a white Bible, a gift of the bridegroom.

Other members of the house party were Ginger and Janel Gerhart, both sisters of the bride. For a wedding trip to San Antonio, the bride wore a flowered sheath with a brown jacket and white accessories. Her corsage was the carnations from the bridal bouquet.

The bride, a 1960 graduate of Winters High School, is a graduate of Glen and Lottie's School of Beauty and is employed at Kelly's Beauty Salon in Elmwood West Shopping Center in Abilene. The bridegroom, a 1957 graduate of Abilene High School, attends Hardin-Simmons University and is employed by the City of Abilene Water Department. The couple will reside at 932 Poplar in Abilene.

Range Reseeding Important Practice In Runnels SCD

Range reseeding is an important practice in the Runnels Soil Conservation District, states H. Giesecke Jr., board member. He says that many acres of rangeland, in poor condition and with high percentage of weeds, are being reseeded.

James Glynn, local Soil Conservation Service Technician, mentioned that most of the seeding is done following some type of seedbed preparation. Soil disturbance following rootplowing, treedoing and hand grubbing on areas needing brush control, is often used as a seedbed. Other methods used for seedbed preparation include pitting, discing and chopping.

Best results have been obtained from range seeding in the district during the period from January to May. This area usually receives the highest amount of rainfall during this time.

Glynn stated the best results had been obtained from range seeding when followed with a full growing season deferment.

Discipline in the home is the subject for next Sunday's Sunday School Lesson. The meditation is by Tom A. Whiting. Discipline is one of the accepted principles of life. Although we may be only unconsciously aware of this fact, it gives stability to all that we are and do; it keeps us within the set boundaries of our existence.

Under wise Christian discipline certain results will be inevitable in families: There will be reverence for God and others, love for the church, respect for industry and thrift, sacred views of love and marriage, happy family life, restraint and self-control in matters of morals, strength of personality in the face of social pressures, and wholesome self-respect.

Stubble, Residues Give Protection Against Erosion

"Stubble or other residues give valuable protection against wind and water erosion when properly managed," states James Glynn, local Soil Conservation Service Technician. He says research and field experience points out that crop residues are more beneficial when mulched on the surface of the soil.

The use of chisel and sweep type implements for preparing land are being widely practiced in the Runnels Soil Conservation District. This type of tillage operation keeps the residues on the soil surface where it is needed. Management of residues in this manner will develop a soil condition that will take water faster and keep it longer.

Glynn stated that most soils in the district require a minimum of 1,500 pounds of residue per acre on row plantings to provide adequate protection through the critical wind erosion periods, fall, winter and spring.

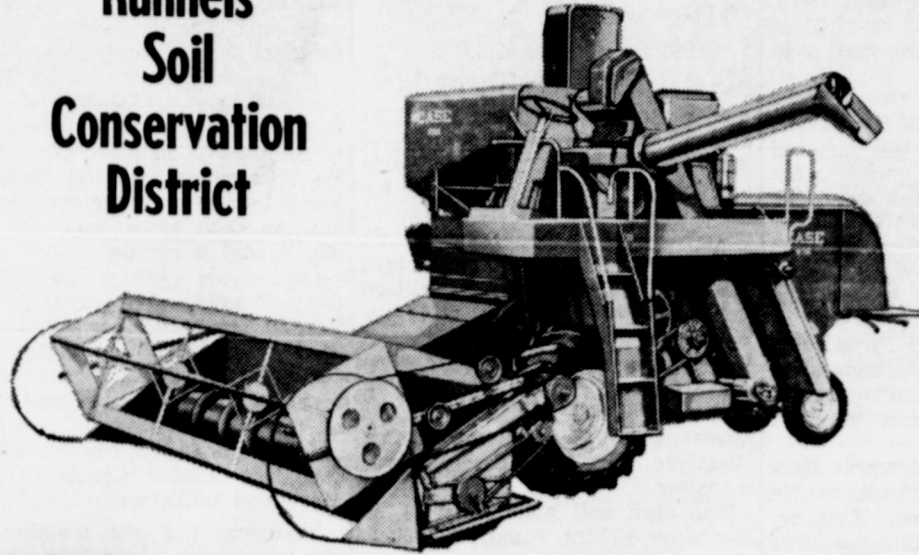

Old men are fond of giving good advice, to console themselves for being no longer in a position to give bad examples. —La Rochefoucauld.

How things get done as well as they do is one of the great mysteries, and also one of the great tributes to our system of government and private enterprise.

Important Livestock SCD

are an important stock water in Runnels Conservation District," Minzenmayer, vice president of the Soil Conservation District here Saturday said. "They should improve grazed areas. In general, the water should be rough terrain and smooth rolling should not serve as a basis to prevent drainage near the pond. It should be sufficient to supply 20 gallons per acre in addition to losses from evaporation."

"When selecting a pond, there are several things to consider. To prevent evaporation loss in a pond should have a spillway in relation to the pond should be at least 25 percent above the normal water level. The drainage area should be properly designed to protect the dam. It should be of non-erosive material or be protected with a good grass cover."

Side view of hydraulic soil auger mounted on pickup. This equipment is used to take soil samples to depths of four feet. It is used by James Barnhill, soil scientist of the SCS, to aid in classifying soils.

And to make standard soil surveys. He reports that 307,000 acres of one-half of the Runnels SCD has had this survey made. These soil surveys have many uses. The main use is by farmers who use them to learn the extent and location of different kinds of soil they have, and the ability of these soils to grow plants and their response to use and management.

Plains Conservation Program Operating In County 3 Years

"The Great Plains Conservation Program has been in operation in Runnels County about three years and four months," reports Jake Presley, secretary of the Runnels Soil Conservation District. He said that during this period 95 farmers and ranchers have made application for assistance under this program, covering 54,821 acres of land.

James Glynn of the Soil Conservation Service, states that the purpose of the program is to help farmers and ranchers apply a conservation plan of operations that will help to minimize climatic hazards and protect the land from erosion and deterioration by natural causes.

Since the program has been in operation in Runnels County, 25 farmers and ranchers have developed conservation plans on 9,653 acres. He said that $74,159.98 of Great Plains Conservation funds have been set aside for cost shared practices in these plans.

"As ye sow, so shall ye reap," is directly applicable, and it is well for the young man, and the older one, seeking success and happiness, to cultivate the stimulating influence of liking the other fellow.

"ROAMING" SOILS GROW NO CROPS

Each year, wind and water erosion are making thousands of acres of once-productive farm land unfit for producing vital food and fiber. These roaming topsoils leave only trouble behind—wasteland . . . fewer productive acres . . . less farm income. Today, as never before, planned conservation practices must be used to insure the continued productive capacity of your farm. It means reclaiming wastelands . . . carrying out scientifically planned soil and water conservation measures that will maintain high productivity for greatest returns from your acres.

No matter what your farm topography may be, you must be constantly alert to the needs of soil maintenance by putting a scientific plan of soil conservation to work on your farm. Rely on local soil conservation services or see us; we'll be glad to assist you in securing necessary information and guidance. Stop in, anytime.

CONSERVING SOIL IS EFFICIENT FARMING

Excellent Range Will Produce Excellent Stock

After a rancher learns his grass and classifies his range into condition classes, he has a better knowledge of his resources. Four condition classes are recognized: Excellent condition which has from 75 to 100 percent climax cover. Good condition, will have from 50 to 75 percent of climax cover, the balance being undesirable plants which have replaced some of the climax plants. Fair condition indicates a cover of from 25 to 50 percent vegetation, and poor condition indicates less than 25 percent of the desirable climax plants.

In addition to being an indicator of the kind of vegetation growing on a site, range condition is a measure of actual production in relation to the potential production.

An excellent range is a block of land that is in balance with nature. Covered with a dense stand of good grass, it produces an abundance of high quality feed.

The bluestems, little, big, silver and cane are present in amounts of from 25 to 50 percent. Sideoats grama is always present in appreciable amounts. Indiangrass and green sprangletop, and Canada wildrye are frequently present, depending on the site. Limited amounts of buffalo grass, curly mesquite, and Texas wintergrass are usually found. In this condition, a large amount of grassland litter is present preventing extremes of temperature and reducing evaporation. This soil is capable of absorbing four inches of rain per hour without runoff. Yields on our deeper sites easily reach 6,000 pounds per acre.

In contrast, a range in poor condition has low production, often less than 1,000 pounds per acre. The cover has deteriorated to the point that it is difficult to find any of the better grasses. They have been replaced by such low producing plants as red grama, hairy tridens, needlegrass, broomweed, ragweed, and poisonous plants such as threadleaf groundsel and bitterweed. Mesquite, lote, cactus and other brush find this condition favorable for their growth and rapidly invade.

Poor condition ranges have small amounts of litter, much of the soil being bare. The soil reaches very high temperatures, baking and crusting. Evaporation losses are high and most of the rainfall runs off instead of soaking into the soil. This type of range seems to be suffering from lack of moisture yearlong.

The rancher can have either of these conditions or variations between them. By careful management the rancher can improve his pastures and increase his income by harvesting a good crop of livestock products.

There are many things he should know about the management of these plants and the soils on which they grow. If he needs help, he should contact his Soil Conservation Service office.

Thousands of Acres Of Brushland Controlled In SCD

"Several thousand acres of brush have been controlled in the Runnels Soil Conservation District since the first of the year," says Bill Minzenmayer, vice chairman of the district.

"The job is large as there is an estimated 125,000 acres of rangeland in the district needing some type of brush control. Most mechanical control measures provide a good seedbed for range seeding, when controlled during the late winter and spring," he said. If re-seeding is needed it should be done before May 15, it was pointed out.

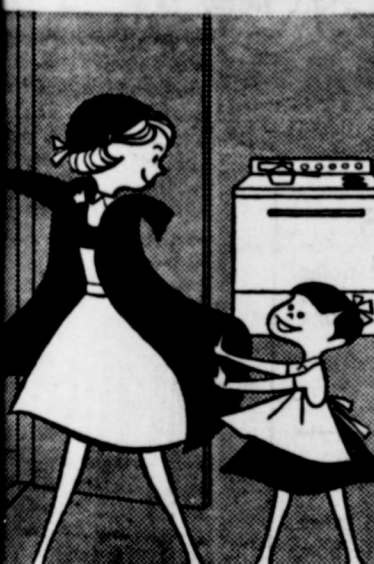

He who highly regards his fellows is in turn similarly regarded by others.

Manuel L. Arispe Killed In Fall At Atlas Missile Site

Manuel Louis Arispe, 23, of Abilene, formerly a resident of Winters, was killed in a 96-foot fall at the Albany Atlas missile site about 10:30 a. m. Tuesday. He reportedly lost his footing on the fourth level and fell, striking a beam before landing at the bottom of the silo.

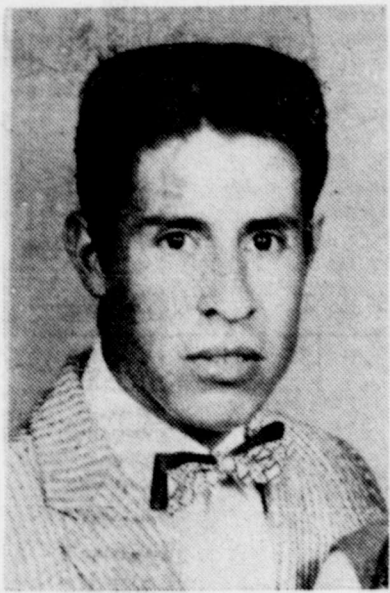

Born October 11, 1937 at Seguin, he came to the Winters area with his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Cruz Arispe in 1946 and lived with the family on a farm northeast of Winters until they moved to town. He was married to Beatrice Lugano of Winters, May 7, 1958. The couple moved to Abilene last week.

Arispe had worked for several firms in Winters until about eight months ago when he went to work at the missile site. He was engaged in installing an air conditioning duct when he fell. This was the second death from falls at missile sites in the Abilene area.

A singer and composer, Arispe was well-known throughout the Winters and Abilene area. At the time of his death he was organizing a band in Abilene.

Rosary was said Wednesday evening at 8 o'clock in Spill Memorial Chapel. Funeral was held at Mount Carmel Catholic Church at 10:30 a. m. Thursday and funeral mass, also at the church, will be said Friday morning at 9 o'clock. The Rev. Julius Johnson, pastor, will officiate for each service. Burial will be in Lakeview Cemetery.

Survivors include his wife, two sons, Manuel L. Jr., 2, and Jerry Davis, 9 months; his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Cruz Arispe of Winters; six sisters, Mrs. Adam Flores, Mrs. David Flores, both of Abilene, Mrs. Jimmy Esquivel, Mrs. Ray P. Cortez Jr., Susie and Mary Ellen Arispe, all of Winters; two brothers, Joe and David Arispe, both of Winters.

County To Buy Dirt Loading Equipment Soon

County Judge Henry Rampe said this week that the County Commissioners will purchase four front end loaders for use on county road work.

Requests for bids will be published in the near future for four loaders of the crawler tractor type. Time warrants not to exceed $80,000 will be issued to purchase the extra road equipment, the county judge said.

The Commissioners also granted the request made by the Valley Creek Water Control District to levy and collect taxes in the District. The county will collect such taxes, and remit them to the District.

Walton, head of the Department of Agricultural Education at Texas A. and M. who coordinates the program for the college.

"This cooperative program," he said, "is designed to make the services of specialists available to conduct short courses under the supervision of public schools. Such a program will enable teachers of vocational agriculture to provide improved educational services to farm people.

"Specialists are now available in the fields of insect control, farm management, farm electrification, farm welding, tractor maintenance, beef production and swine production."

Prevention Act for Valley Creek. Since the application was approved, the Valley Creek Water Control District has been formed. The directors of the Valley Creek district are now starting to get their work plan prepared with the assistance of the SCS Planning Party.

The custodian of the district's conservation equipment is Harley Hillard, at Norton; Ben Frerick at Rowena and Ernest Thormeyer of Winters. These men have rendered the district a great service by keeping this equipment in working order. This machinery can be used by farmers who need it by paying a nominal fee. This rent is used for maintenance of the equipment.

Since the district began to receive technical assistance from the SCS, 13 farmers and ranchers as of Jan. 1, 1961, had developed a conservation plan and submitted them to the Board of Supervisors for their review and approval. As of this same date co-operators had applied 3,539 miles of terraces, constructed 30 ponds for livestock water, re-seeded 5,214 acres of rangeland, constructed 101 miles of diversion terraces, counted 200,000 acres, and each year manage 100,000 acres of crop stubble, plant 75,000 acres of cover crops, defer 55,000 acres of rangeland, and properly use 125,000 acres of pasture land.

The present Board of Supervisors of the District are Kirby Robinson, chairman; Bill Minzenmayer, vice chairman; Jake Presley, secretary, and members, H. Giesecke Jr. and Arthur Eggenmeyer. The board meets the second Friday of each month. They plan and run their own program by deciding what work is to be done and when.

Minimum Wage Bill Will Cause Unemployment

By Congressman O. C. Fisher
By a margin of 26 votes, a liberal Democrat - Republican coalition last week pushed through the House a new minimum wage bill, boosting the minimum to $1.25 an hour and extending coverage to nearly 4 million.

A pressure drive by the leadership saw some 15 southern Democrats switch over and support the bill after having previously voted against it.

The 15 Texans voting against were: Fisher, Alger, Burleson, Dowdy, Ikard, Kilday, Kilgore, Mahon, Poage, Rogers, Rutherford, Teague, Thompson, Young. Supporting the bill were Wright, Beckworth, Patman, Thomas, Brooks and Thornberry.

From the start to finish it was essentially a conservative - liberal battle, with the chief pressures coming from politicians and labor union leaders. Thirty-three House GOP members switched over to join in a coalition with the Democratic liberals to cinch the victory.

Union leaders have insisted that to increase the wage levels by Federal law would tend to retard the exodus of so much industry from the high-wage north and east to the lower-rate south, where the cost of living is lower than in the metropolitan areas.

The increase in unemployment expected from the legislation will not be felt much for a year or so, since the law will not be fully effective for two years. Small businesses will suffer the most, and the handicapped and other less active workers will be the most to lose jobs. But a special unemployment relief program is planned to take care of such cases.

All, the chief adverse effect will probably result from the wage increases caused by the expected rise in the lower bracket of wages. The tight competition for jobs with products imported from countries that have no minimums, is sure to be increased. Labor unions are known to support this legislation as a major step for them in their drive for higher wages across the board.

Tommy Mayhew To Receive Degree At NTSC In June

Tommy B. Mayhew of Winters is one of 525 seniors who have applied for bachelor's degrees this semester at North Texas State College.

Spring baccalaureate services are scheduled for 11 a. m. in the Main Auditorium at NTSC. Commencement exercises will be held 8 p. m. June 2 in Fouts Field.

Mayhew, son of Mr. and Mrs. Mayhew, route 4, is a candidate for the bachelor of music degree. He is a member of the Alpha Sinfonia of America and is a major.
