Texas Film To Be Shown Elite Group

The newest deer management film produced by the Parks and Wildlife Department has been named for showing before the North American Wildlife Conference in Las Vegas, Mar. 8. It was announced by Thero D. Carroll, information and education coordinator for the Department.

The color-sound film, "Trail of the Whitetail", was chosen at a special screening to be presented under the auspices of the Outdoor Writers' Association of America. Only four films were selected.

Carroll said the production explains the reasons for controlling deer herds by harvesting animals of both sexes, in order to keep the food supply in balance with the total deer population.

He said the film, with its graphic educational impact, has been a factor in overcoming a traditional impasse in the harvesting of antlerless deer.

Carroll said the selection "is a definite compliment to the many Texans who cooperated to make the film as well as to our progress in applying modern techniques to big game management."

The mockingbird was designated the state bird of Texas by the Texas Legislature on January 31, 1927.

The starting six have been forwards, Nicki Eoff, Elaine Beard and Jan Byrd; and guards, Ann Bean, Judy Williams and Barbara Belitz.

Social Standard In Deer Herds

There is a definite social "peck order" in whitetail deer herds. This is especially pronounced when it comes to table manners, according to a recent report by Jack W. Thomas and Rod Marburger of the Parks and Wildlife Department, and R. M. Robinson, D.V.M., of the Department of Veterinary Pathology, Texas A. and M. University.

Biologists have been observing "normal" and "abnormal" deer on feeding grounds as a part of their efforts to learn why the antlers of some bucks remain in the velvet and fail to harden.

Male deer often assemble on the feed grounds in small numbers and are apparently a congenial "live and let live" group, except during the mating season. Then it is entirely a problem of winning the fights or running and keeping out of reach of a more aggressive adversary.

Other groups, usually larger, are composed of adult does, yearlings and fawns dominated by an adult doe.

The deer on the lower rungs of the social order seem to be content to let the aggressive buck or doe leader command. Leaders take the choice places at feeding grounds, remain there by using various threatening actions, culminating in actual combat when necessary.

The subordinates take the next choice places, depending on their position in the peck order. The more dominant deer sometimes tolerate those of less social order, but for brief periods only.

At the bottom of the social order are the lowly "velvet-horns," males which have for some reason failed to develop normal antlers. They are non-breeders and turn tail at the slightest provocation—even respecting the more aggressive fawns. And when other danger shows, they usually leave the area without the stamping, snorting or whistling of normal deer warning of danger.

What does this mean? Biologists explain that supplemental feeding of deer isn't usually recommended. But when feeding is necessary, the feed should be scattered widely providing a feeding station for each group. Then, each deer has a chance to get a bite or two regardless of their position in the peck order.

Make Plans Now For Quail Crop

"This is the time of year to begin making plans for producing quail food for the fall season," suggests Joe Davidson, quail specialist for the Parks and Wildlife Department.

Davidson advises that a population of quail will depend in many instances on the careful planning and soil management practices of the landowner.

One method of supplying food is the disking and plowing of pasture land strips near brushy areas and fence rows. By disking now, weed seeds will be turned under for the fall weed crop so vital to wildlife.

Good stands of ragweed, cotton or goatweed, and partridge pea often will mean a supply of quail for hunters and landowners.

Many 4H and FFA groups are cooperating with the Parks and Wildlife Department in a bobwhite quail restoration program. Habitat improvement studies are being conducted on many farms in Texas. Persons connected with these groups may secure additional information by writing the Department in Austin.

Supreme Court Making Grab For Power

By Congressman O. C. Fisher

Although the constitution says nothing about 'one man, one vote', which Mr. Justice Black now holds to be the criterion for apportionment in Congressional districts, the Supreme Court now makes that the law of the land. It is another grab for power by the Court and an invasion of the rights of the Congress and of the several states.

Article I of the Constitution provides that "The House of Representatives shall be composed of Members chosen every second year by the people of the several States..." The 14th Amendment provides that "Representatives shall be apportioned among the several States according to their respective numbers."

These two provisions form the sole basis for the ruling.

But Section 4 of Article I states: "The times, places, and manner of holding elections for Senators and Representatives, shall be prescribed by the Legislature thereof; but the Congress may at any time by law make or alter such regulations."

These are the three provisions in the Constitution which relate to the subject of apportionment.

It would seem clear, therefore, that it was the intention of those who wrote the Constitution that the legislatures of the several states, and the Congress, would determine apportionment. But Black's decision completely ignores Section 4, then proceeds to take away from the State legislatures and make their own decisions on apportionment and lodges that right and authority in the Supreme Court.

While reasonably equal apportionment of Congressional districts is admittedly desirable, the vice in the Supreme Court action is the take-over by that court of a right and responsibility that belongs to the States and to the Congress.

This is but another example of how ruthless and arbitrary the Supreme Court can be. Both George Washington and Thomas Jefferson warned that the court could abuse its power, to the detriment of the people and to our system of checks and balances.

The issue of apportionment is relatively unimportant. It is the assumption of power never intended by the framers of the Constitution that gives us pause.

What will the Supreme Court do next?

As Long As You Pay Them, Deduct Them

When you start adding up the deductions on page 2 of your 1040 federal income tax form, don't forget state gasoline taxes. Do a little adding up and you'll be surprised at how much you paid during the past year. State gasoline taxes range from 5 cents a gallon in Texas, Kansas, Missouri, Illinois and Hawaii up to 8 cents in Alaska. These, of course, are added on to the 4-cents-a-gallon federal tax which is not deductible.

A motorist who drives 10,000 miles in a year and who gets 15 miles to the gallon on his car, pays between $60 to $80 in gasoline taxes. More than half of this is paid in state taxes which are deductible. As long as you pay them, you might as well deduct them.

Roger Babson Says—

Reaching Time Of Retirement Brings Up Many Questions

Babson Park, Mass. Each year more people reach the time for retirement, either because of age or because they have accumulated enough funds to ensure a living income. This always brings up anew the questions of where to go, what to do with spare time, whether to buy or rent, etc.

Climate Should Be Considered

Certainly, climate is one of the main considerations in choosing a place to retire to. First thought is usually that the warm states like Florida, California, and Arizona offer the best opportunities. For older couples this may well be true. Of course, no state, county, or community offers all the advantages. Places that may have attractive and lively business in the summer may be quite the opposite in winter, —and vice versa. So, time and care must be taken if you are to make a move for which you will not be sorry.

While I know that an even, warm climate is often fine for those who are no longer young or for those with respiratory troubles, there is something wearing about weather that is hot for too long a time. Studies have indicated that the most dynamic and intelligent people are likely to develop in climates with marked contrasts. Younger couples — especially those who still have their children with them—should consider either a section of the country with a wide temperature range or else two homes in areas with entirely different weather patterns.

Income Is A "Must"

Rapid population growth in states with the most inviting weather has not come as a result of new babies or thriving agriculture and industry so much as from newcomers moving in to retire and bask in the sun. Such people must, of course, be able to depend upon regular checks, such as those coming from pensions, insurance, rents on properties in other localities, and dividends on stocks, interest or bonds or mortgages. Social security payments are a great help, but they will not pay all the bills in the states on which people are now converging.

Some seem to think that places with delightful winter climates offer very cheap living conditions. This is frequently an illusion, often created by publicity agencies. You may not spend so much for fuel, electricity, and clothing in sunny areas, but food and rents usually cost just about as much, for comparable accommodation. So do medical and dental services, entertainment, and transportation. Also, states and cities throughout the country have varying ways of collecting taxes; but even if some of these look more inviting, they turn out about the same.

Some Want To Work

Most men and even many women get restless after they loiter around for a while. If you want a job, be sure to go into something for which you are trained. If you want a business

TIPS FOR OUTDOORSMEN

by Vern Sanford

By Vern Sanford

Every outdoorsman is interested in the pollution problem. That is the reason the recently released 1962 report of the Department of Health, Education and Welfare, covering fish kills, should bring us to our feet.

Texas with a total of 68 reports last year was exceeded only by Pennsylvania, which had 86 fish kills reported. Oil well and industrial waste was responsible for most of the cases reported in Texas. Agricultural and domestic pollution also was blamed in several of the reports.

Some of these cases were accidental, where bad situations got out of control. Others were from careless management.

As cities grow larger and more complex, pollution problems increase. Excessive uses of detergents through the sewer systems also are adding to the problem. Some locations now are banning the use of certain detergents, used for cleaning clothes.

Fortunately health agencies are working hard to prevent pollution, but it takes closest cooperation on the part of industries and even municipalities.

Oil operators, paper mills and other large industries, such as chemical plants, are facing the constant problem. Now most of them care. There was a time when the majority didn't.

According to the report more than 7,000,000 fish were killed last year by water pollution. This does not take into consideration the massive kill of 37,800,000 which took place in the San Diego harbor in August, 1962. Nor does it include several states which made no reports.

Nationwide domestic sewage was the principal killer, accounting for nearly half the total amount.

The big kill in San Diego was the result of the dumping of a large quantity of oil in the coastal waters. Oil is toxic to fish.

Another big kill was reported in the Anacostia river near Washington, D. C. last September, where 3,100,000 fish were killed by the dumping of raw sewage.

The river mileage involved last year was 1500, with 25 miles of shoreline and 2600 acres of lakes.

Many Texas municipalities, particularly the smaller ones, face a problem in private dumping of waste. It is pathetic to cross many of the smaller streams of Texas in the vicinity of small towns and take a look at the creek beds. Many of them are filled with old automobile tires and bodies, refrigerators or just plain garbage refuse.

Perhaps city officials could pay more attention to such disposal. Or the individual himself can be more careful where he dumps his refuse.

Beef And Pork In Good Supply

Liberal supplies of both beef and pork offer continued good buys at meat counters this week says Mrs. Gwendolyn Clyatt, Extension Service consumer marketing specialist.

Smoked pork cuts are featured at many stores, and ham is a good choice. Prices of smoked ham do not fluctuate as much as prices of fresh pork cuts, so compare before buying, the specialist says.

Hams offered in most retail stores today are the fully-cooked type and the cook-before-eating hams. The cooked hams can be served cold or may be reheated. Canned hams are cooked and may be reheated or served cold according to taste preference.

There is no great change in supermarket vegetable supplies from a week ago. Cooking greens—including mustard, turnip greens and collards—are moderately plentiful. Make good use of the turnip as well as the tops, the specialist reminds.

Plentiful vegetable choices this week also include carrots, cauliflower, celery, acorn squash, sweet potatoes, and red potatoes. Supplies of canned corn remain at record levels, and canned tomato products also are plentiful. It's a good time to stock the pantry shelves with these two items.

Quality varies on a decreased but adequate supply of bananas, apples, and medium size oranges. Fresh dates are available, and pecans continue plentiful. Avocados are featured in some stores.

Some towns solve this problem with a public dump ground. Here individuals may dispose of their litter, where it is later covered over with dozers.

Sportsmen can give a big assist in stopping this pollution in a fight against litter and by giving support to their city and county government.

But the greatest good can be done by individuals who persist in littering the highways and open spots with beverage bottles and cans.

The state spends many millions of dollars each year on the care and development of roadside parks. Yet many people will drive into these parks, make use of them and leave litter scattered around.

A landowner who has a nice stream on his place told me he would be glad to take the lock off his gate.

"But I can't stand the litter," he says. "Everytime someone uses the picnic grounds I have to go down there and do a clean-up job."

This same attitude is found on the part of many individuals fishing off T-heads on the coast or around the jetties. They'll leave their old waste fish around to rot and stink.

As outdoorsmen, we must do our part to stop this pollution that is costing us millions of fish each year. It is important both at a local and national level.

More Uses Seen For Stretch Cotton

By spring, men will be wearing stretch cotton shirts and slacks, fabric industry leaders predict.

There should be a variety of men's clothing made from the new all-cotton stretch fabrics by fall. The fabrics, developed by U. S. Department of Agriculture utilization research, were used initially for women's and children's wear, says Rhea Merle Boyles, Extension clothing specialist.

The stretch-cotton invasion of the men's wear field is just beginning, however, leaders say. Two companies will market dress shirts made of cotton oxford cloth this spring, and a third manufacturer will market men's slacks in cotton stretch fabrics.

Dozens of other firms are testing fabrics for use in men's socks, sport shirts, sport jackets and hunting jackets, as well as shirts and slacks.

In 1793 the southern states of the U. S. produced two-thirds of the world's cotton.

"The Brass Bottle"
With a puff of blue smoke, a genuine Arabian Nights genie materializes from the just opened brass vessel, and with it start a series of hilarious incidents that make Universal's "The Brass Bottle" one of the funniest comedies of the year. Starring Tony Randall, Burl Ives and Barbara Eden, the color movie at the State Theatre showing Friday and Saturday.

Ives as the genie who is released from captivity by Randall, a young architect in love with Miss Eden, insists on showing his gratitude. And, when a contemporary of Solomon operates in the Modern Civilization, many humorous situations evolve.

Typical are: the sudden change of his garret apartment into a sultan's palace complete with dancing girls when Tony invites his fiancée and her family to dinner; a camel caravan that arrives at Tony's home in a residential area, replete with Arab attendants, carrying chests filled with uncut jewels, gold bullion, and American currency; a finished housing development that arises out of vacant land overnight. These and many more shenanigans, treated to wring out every laugh, make for rollicking entertainment.

"Last Train From Gun Hill"
Fans of quality Western movies are in for a treat when "Last Train From Gun Hill" starring Kirk Douglas and Anthony Quinn shows Friday and Saturday at the State Theatre.

pits Douglas and Quinn against each other as former friends who become locked in a life-and-death struggle when Douglas comes after Quinn's son to avenge the rape and murder of his beautiful Indian wife. Quinn is the strong man of Gun Hill and he is determined that Douglas shall not take his son out of it to stand trial elsewhere. Earl Holliman is cast as the son, and attractive Carolyn Jones plays Quinn's woman, who backs Douglas in the climactic showdown.

"Take Her, She's Mine,"
James Stewart is back on the screen with another of those comedies which have made him famous and popular. It's 20th Century-Fox's CinemaScope, De Luxe color attraction, "Take Her, She's Mine," which is set to show Sunday, Monday and Tuesday at the State Theatre. The equally popular Sandra Dee shares starring honors with Stewart, appearing as the teenage daughter who gets him into any number of embarrassing, but comical, situations.

These two are abetted by a cast which includes Audrey Meadows, well known for her television appearances with Jackie Gleason, Sid Caesar and Red Skelton, among others; the veteran British star Robert Morley; a handsome newcomer from France, Philippe Forquet and the dead-panned John McGiver.

"Take Her, She's Mine" deals lightly with the problem of raising and disciplining teen-age youngsters. Or, perhaps, it's about papa's growing up with two teen-age daughters.

Ladies' Golf Assn. Formed At Meet At Country Club

Organization of a Ladies' Golf Association, with affiliation with the Ladies' West Texas Golf Association, was completed at a meeting at the Winters Country Club Tuesday morning.

Membership of the newly formed organization will be drawn from the Ladies' Division of the Country Club.

Nineteen members of the Ladies' Division were present, and officers of the new organization were elected. They include Mrs. Jack Harrison, president; Mrs. H. L. Speer, vice president; Mrs. E. T. Patterson, secretary-treasurer; Mrs. Morris Robinson, golf chairman; and Mrs. K. K. Knapp, reporter.

A telephone committee was appointed, including Mrs. Wade White, chairman, and Mrs. George R. Hill, Mrs. Ed Roller, Mrs. Jewel Wade and Mrs. B. E. Baldwin.

It was pointed out that the formation of the new organization will give local lady golfers an official status with the Ladies' West Texas Golf Association. It was also stated that the organization of the new association locally was largely through the efforts of Mrs. E. T. Patterson.

Members of the new organization will meet at the Winters Country Club each Tuesday, to play golf and hold business meetings. Dues in the local Association will be $2.00 per year, which includes membership in the West Texas Association.

There are approximately 30 ladies of the Ladies Division of the Country Club who play golf, it was reported. Following the business meeting Tuesday, a luncheon was served to the officers elected, and to Mes. Russell Mote, John Davis, Kathryn Dunn, Jim Williams, Bill Bean, H. H. McCreight, Roy Austin, W. L. Pettus and Clarence Shade.

JNO. W. NORMAN The Insurance MAN

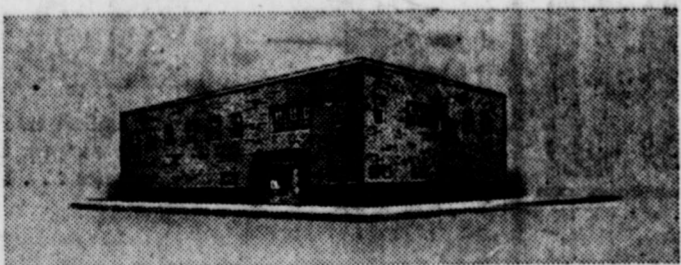

T-E-X-A-S INDEPENDENCE DAY!

Battles are great, not because of the number of men who participated, but because of their significance and because brave men fought for some cause or principle for which they were ready to give their lives.

This year on the 128th anniversary of the battle of The Alamo we call to mind the courageous deeds of those who stood almost to the last man in one of the most epic battles of history. They were few in number, and they fought against great odds, but they won eternal fame.

The fight for independence never ends. Today, and always, we must guard against the forces from within and from without which imperil our liberty and our right to live as free men in a land of free institutions.
