HOME TOWN Talk

By R. C. THOMAS

A touch of progress is evidenced on Main Street these days. For instance, the front of the building housing Spill Bros. Co., Winters oldest continuous business, is being remodeled, from the ground up. An old awning which has shaded the front of the building for a good many years has been torn down; old plate glass show windows will be removed; inset doors will be moved to the front; aluminum paneling will be installed on the top part of the building front, and new sidewalk-to-ceiling glass show windows will be put in, along with new doors. The remodeling will add much to the block of business houses on South Main which is constantly undergoing a change in appearance.

Across the street, on the east side, an old awning on the front of The Surplus Store has been removed, and the front is being remodeled. And a few doors north of The Surplus Store, the recently-opened branch office of the First Savings & Loan Association lends an attractiveness to downtown Winters, with their big lighted sign and plush-type office lobby.

All of this is evidence that many people have a great faith in the future of the town—and are doing their bit to keep the wheels turning.

Our old friend who exists on what he makes farming on Bluff Creek picked up a throw-away red-water soaked newspaper which floated down the creek the other day and noticed an item which has convinced him that he is wasting his time trying to fend for himself. Says the item was all about how the federal government is going to furnish bus transportation for people in the Los Angeles, Calif., area who have to go a few blocks to pick up their welfare checks. Our friend says he believes he'll take up the fad of starting riots to draw attention to himself, and perhaps some bureaucrat will take pity on him and pay for the gasoline he uses on the trips he makes to pay the taxes which are being used to pay bus fares in California.

Have read where some home economist has suggested that the following methods be used to keep peace and harmony in the home: When the wife washes the dishes, the husband should wash the dishes with his wife. When the wife mops up the floor, the husband should mop up the floor with her.

AND: Don't resign yourself to fate; your resignation might be accepted. AND: One of the hardest jobs in the world is to find an easier one. AND: One of the greatest labor-saving inventions of today is tomorrow.

Taxes have been described as the price we pay for civilization. By the looks of things, we may be getting too civilized for our own good. Somebody has said that some government economists look upon us taxpayers as sheep, figuring we can be sheared and sheared again. But, as the saying goes, you can skin a sheep only once.

If any of the voters are worrying about this, they might look in the mirror to find the cause of their concern. When we ask for federal handouts we get them for votes—but we pay for them in taxes, and then some. When we send a tax dollar to Washington, the "free lunch" we get back may only be worth fifty cents, with political overhead, carrying charges and inflation taken out. If we want to give our wool for civilization, but keep our hides for ourselves, we must make our wishes known, and not sit complacently by the roadside and refuse to recognize the "skinning crews" when they approach.

In appreciation of his service Local Manager F. R. Anderson presented to him an engraved bronze plaque which was a gift from his fellow employees in the Ballinger District. The employees of the Winters office presented him a gift certificate. Presentation was made by David Dobbins. Attending the dinner were employees in the Winters office, from the district office in Ballinger and representatives from the Personnel Department in Abilene.

A VETERAN OF 22 YEARS

Darlene Sneed Wins First In State Shorthand

Darlene Sneed, senior student at Winters High School, won first place in shorthand at the state interscholastic league meet held last weekend at Austin. Miss Sneed is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. J. T. Sneed.

A big water settling basin will be built for the City's water plant within the next two or three months, it was announced this week by City officials.

Following a meeting of the City Council Monday night of this week, it was announced that contracts probably will be signed sometime this week with Anderson Construction Co. of Abilene for construction of a clarifier (settling basin) for the plant. A representative of the construction company met with the Council and with engineers to complete final plans, and it was expected that construction equipment will be moved to the site next week.

Anderson Construction Co. was low bidder on the clarifier unit of a complete new water plant when bids were opened April 25. At that time, bids for the complete structure were termed "too high," and Council immediately began a re-study of the project. Plans for the clarifier were "stripped to the bone," to eliminate many items which can be done without at the present time and added later. A new filtering system was eliminated, as was a chemical mixing house and system. Then the Council decided to go ahead with the clarifier part of the system.

ADDED CAPACITY
The new clarifier will be 90 feet in diameter, and approximately 18 feet deep at the deepest part. It will have a capacity of 900,000 gallons of water.

W. D. Waggoner, water superintendent, said that with the new clarifier in operation, raw water will have a chance to settle for 12 hours before it is put through the filtering and purifying system. This means, he said, it will be possible to properly settle out raw water at the rate of 1.5 million gallons in a 24-hour period. Present settling time, during the periods of peak demand, is less than two hours, he said. Demand reaches 1.2 million gallons per day at peak periods.

Although a new filtering system will not be included in the building at the present time, officials said that with the added settling time afforded by the new clarifier the filtering system now in use would be adequate. New construction will be so designed as to enable addition of new filters at a later date, it was pointed out.

The new construction will be of concrete and steel, and will be fed by 16-inch pipes. Cost of the clarifier will be $64,850.00. Original bid for the clarifier alone was $68,800, but after many items were removed from the plans the cost was lowered. Officials said that the money to pay for the new clarifier is on hand, having been saved in a special fund over a period of a few years. No extra money will have to be raised by bonds or warrants to underwrite the project, it was stated.

The present clarifier has a capacity of only 135,000 gallons. This means, the water superintendent said, that during the summer months when demand is high water does not settle satisfactorily before being pumped into the distribution system.

Plans Being Made For Little League Summer Baseball

Plans are being completed for Little League baseball activity in the Winters area for this summer, with the first game scheduled to be played May 23.

According to Little League Association leaders, the association plans to have a fund drive to be held next week to raise money for equipment for this summer's play. All games will be played on Briley Field, it was understood. The baseball park which has been used by the teenagers in the past, located in the southeast part of town, will no longer be available because the City maintenance barn is being built on the site.

David Livingston Did Much For Africa; Helped Stamp Out Slavery

BY BILLY M. PUMPHREY

"Dr. Livingston, I presume," Henry Stanley's famous greeting when he found David Livingston at Ujiji, Tanganyika, in 1871, is probably the best known quote ever to come out of Africa. But most people do not know of the great discoveries and missionary work of this remarkable man Livingston.

Although not even one century ago, Africa was still the Dark Continent and little was known about its interior when Livingston was making his trips inland from the East African coast. He was clearing the way for future missionaries with his explorations and as a medical missionary. Livingston's books, he had spent 20 years in Africa and knew the Africans better than any other man, had made him famous but he refused the fame—due him—as an author to return to Africa. His experiences with the slave traders had made him determined to do what he could to suppress the slave trade.

He had discovered Victoria Falls on the Zambia-Southern Rhodesia border. The 343 foot high falls was called "the thunder that smokes" by the natives because of the loud noise and mist created by the 60-100 million gallons of water which tumbled over the falls every minute. He had also discovered Lake Nyasa (now Lake Malawi) the third largest lake in Africa. Not forgetting his missionary goals, he commented on his discovery of Victoria Falls. "I view the end of the geographical feat as the beginning of the missionary enterprise."

In 1866 Livingston arrived at Zanzibar to start the search for the source of the Nile. He thought that the Nile started in Lake Tanganyika, not Lake Victoria (its real source). He started inland from Lindi on the Tanganyikan coast, following the Ruvuma River towards Lake Nyasa. A porter stole his box of medicines not long after they had started and Livingston, 53 at the time and sick, needed medicine regularly. To go on without medicine was to ask for death but he wouldn't turn back. He discovered Lake Bangweulu in Zambia and crossed the River Lukuga which flows out of Lake Tanganyika into the River Congo. He thought this was part of the Nile and he crossed Lake Tanganyika to Ujiji where he hoped to find stores and medicine sent from Zanzibar. There was nothing for him, however, and he spent the next two years traveling with the Arab slave traders who, despite his anti-slavery views, befriended him. At one village he saw the traders shoot 400 natives just for sport. This made him more determined than ever that slavery had to be stopped.

After this massacre, Livingston struggled back to Ujiji where five months later he was found by Henry Stanley. Stanley brought him needed food and medicine. Livingston became well but refused to return to Europe with Stanley, saying his work was not finished.

Stanley went off alone and Livingston turned back to the heart of Africa. With fifty-seven new porters sent by Stanley he headed for Lake Banweolo which he had discovered four years earlier. He had made up his mind that the source of the Nile would prove to be a stream running into the lake.

At a village near the lake, Livingston became so weak he had to be carried in a litter. On the morning of May 1, 1873, his men found him dead in his litter, kneeling across his bed in prayer. The simplest thing to do would have been to bury him there. It was more than a thousand miles to the coast and many tribes were out to harass every traveler who came by. The extraordinary Livingston, however, had inspired an extraordinary devotion among his men. It was a devotion seldom found among such primitive and uneducated men.

They cut out his heart and viscera and dried the body in the sun for a fortnight. Then they wrapped it in calico and placed it in a hollow log, and this was sewn in a sheet of sailcloth and lashed to a pole so it could be carried by two men. In the middle of May, Susi and Chuma, his two faithful servants, and sixty other men who had remained faithful set out on the long trip to Zanzibar. Despite high odds that such an unusual burden could be carried so far in unfriendly territory, the trip was made in eleven months. The trip is often retold yet it never loses its beauty. It is an excellent example of the love and devotion which the Africans felt for him.

The body was placed at the British Consulate in Zanzibar for a short while, then it was sent, with one of the faithful servants, to England for burial in Westminster Abbey. Today the grave is marked with the epitaph: "Brought by faithful hands over land and sea here rests David Livingston, missionary, traveler, philanthropist. . . . For 30 years his life was spent in an unwearied effort to enlighten the native races, to explore the undiscovered secrets, to abolish the desolating slave trade, of Central Africa, where with his last words he wrote: "All I can add in my

LaRoss Sheppard Receives Award For Writing

LaRoss Sheppard, Winters junior, was one of 11 Southwest Texas State students receiving awards at the Texas Intercollegiate Press Association convention held in Odessa last week end.

Miss Sheppard, the daughter of Mrs. Carl Hancock of 406 W. Lamar, was awarded second place for her critical review. The review, published earlier this year in the student newspaper The College Star, critiqued a Southwest Texas production of Jean Paul-Sartre's "The Flies."

The Winters coed is features editor on The College Star and a member of the Press Club. She has been a nominee for both Who's Who and All-College Beauty and is in Delta Zeta national sorority.

Miss Sheppard is a member of Alpha Chi, national scholastic honorary organization and of Sigma Tau Delta, professional English fraternity.

Southwest Texas totaled 32 points in TIPA competition, more than any other single school at the convention.

Mr. and Mrs. John Black of the Victory Community have received word that their son, George, has arrived in Germany recently.

solitude is may Heaven's rich blessings come down on everyone, American, English or Turk, who will help to heal this open sore of the world (Slavery)."

He missed the source of the Nile but his descriptions of the horrors of the slave trade had caused the slave market in Zanzibar to be closed and it caused people everywhere to reconsider the slavery issue. All this, less than 100 years ago.

Writer's Note: This article was suggested by Joe Baker. David Livingston, Africa's greatest explorer and missionary, may be known by many of you because of his great missionary work. Lake Nyasa and Lake Tanganyika around which he did much exploration are not far from my home. I hope to be able to visit Ujiji where he was found by Stanley. It is strange to realize that so little was known about Africa only a century ago.

Wise outdoorsmen read the weather reports regularly.

They know that sudden weather changes have a great influence on our outdoor creatures. And they put these to their advantage.

A sudden drop in the barometer, for instance, often prods fish into biting.

Some of my most memorable fishing has occurred just before a front hits. Usually, fishing also is good just afterwards, when conditions are settling back to normal and the barometer starts its rise again.

Getting in on the fast action often calls for timing things just right. There is a flurry of activity before the front hits. But once it arrives you may as well stop fishing. However the situation will change within a day or two after the front has passed through.

A striking example of this came during Texas eliminations for the World Series of Fishing, held on Granite Shoals Lake (now Lake LBJ) in 1963.

On Friday and Saturday the contestants had fairly good fishing, but on Saturday night a cold front moved in and fishing was all but dead on Sunday.

Many outdoorsmen realize this about fishing. What they fail to understand is that it often works equally well with wildlife.

I remember the opening of deer season a few years back. It was a warm, still day. But, despite the high temperatures, deer were up and about all day. Even toward mid-afternoon, when the temperature was pushing the high 80's, many deer were feeding out in the open.

Next day a severe norther hit. Deer kill was nowhere as good as it was opening day. But a few days later, when things started warming up again, the deer came out en masse as they had just before the front hit.

Our wild creatures, both fish and fowl, have some sort of built-in weather predicting device. They know when nasty weather is coming and they get ready for it. If it looks like a severe front that will drop the temperature or perhaps bring heavy rain, they'll start feeding to store up for the lean days ahead.

Once on a fishing trip on the Llano River, I noticed hundreds of wasp nests scattered along a rocky overhang on a bluff. Black and red insects were swarming everywhere. Next morning, when I walked down to the river, I noticed the wasps were inactive. They were bunched on the nests. Not a single one was flying about.

At the time I wondered if maybe this meant the weather was to change.

Sure enough, late that evening a front moved in, bringing severe thundershowers. These wasps knew the change was coming. And they were ready for it.

A few years back, on a warm October morning, I went squir-

Funeral Service Here Thursday For Mrs. T. E. McAdoo

Funeral for Mrs. T. E. McAdoo was held Thursday afternoon at 2 from the First Baptist Church with the Rev. B. T. Shoemaker, pastor, officiating. Burial was in Fairview Cemetery under direction of Spill Funeral Home.

Mrs. McAdoo died in Winters Municipal Hospital at 5:10 Wednesday following a stroke which she suffered a short time before her death.

Born Libbe Viola Fisher in Burnet County, she came to Runnels County in 1906 with her parents, the late Mr. and Mrs. T. E. Fisher. They lived on a farm near Winters.

On Nov. 11, 1924, she was married to Thomas E. McAdoo at Winters. She and her husband operated a grocery store on North Main for several years. Mr. McAdoo preceded her in death in 1960.

Mrs. McAdoo was a member of the First Baptist Church.

Survivors are a son, John McAdoo of Winters; a grandson, David McAdoo of Winters; a sister, Mrs. Katie Belle Adair of Winters; and two brothers, V. E. Fisher and R. E. Fisher, both of Winters.

Pallbearers were M. L. Dobbins, Horace Fry, A. T. Williams, Travis Downing, J. B. Guy, Bill Craven, Marvin Bedford and J. S. Bourn.

Janeria Kay Parker Inducted Into Nat'l Junior Honor Society

Janeria Kay Parker, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Jack Parker of Abilene and granddaughter of Mr. and Mrs. J. A. Templeton, 303 Willis Street, Winters, was inducted into the Franklin Junior High School's National Honor Society.

The induction took place at 2:15 p. m. on Thursday May 5th, in the high school gym. A reception was held following the induction for the inductees and their parents in the school cafeteria.

Kay is also a member of the library club and has been chosen to serve on the scrap book committee.

rel hunting. On the way out I heard on my car radio that a front was moving in. It was not a bad front, but it was enough to drop the temperature somewhat and bring light rain.

By the time I reached the woods, there was a lead-gray overcast from horizon to horizon and a light mist was falling. But instead of driving the squirrels into hiding, it has just the opposite effect. They were everywhere in the treetops. I've never had better squirrel hunting, any time, anywhere.

My deer hunting friends who make regular annual trips into Colorado tell me that one of the best times to hunt mule deer is just before a cold front moves in, triggering snowfall. Cold weather prompts the annual migration into the lower country. Hence, the deer are on the move and consequently more vulnerable to hunters.

Then there was the time on the famous YO Ranch near Kerrville when a sudden front had dropped temperatures and brought rain. It wasn't a severe storm. Just enough to plummet the temperature into the lower 40's and really start the deer moving.

As we drove through the pasture that day we counted numerous bucks. Yet on the previous day we'd driven the same route and spotted very few.

Weather changes influence animals in different ways, depending mostly on whether it is a severe, moderate or mild front.

A severe front might prompt active feeding before it hits. But poor hunting results after it arrives. Then animal activity picks up again as the temperature starts to warm.

A moderate front might keep wildlife more active for a longer time in the day. Normally, deer are up early in the day, bed down during mid-day, then come out again in late evening.

A moderate front may keep the deer moving all day, even after it has arrived.

A mild front may only serve to keep the animals up for perhaps an hour longer in the morning, then bring them out again an hour early in the afternoon.

But despite what it may do, weather can be the outdoorsman's best friend or worst enemy, depending on what he does with it. By observing weather changes and watching what changes they bring in the outdoors scheme, you can use such future changes to your advantage.

Rain is bemoaned by most fishermen. But not by those dedicated to the sport. They know that it may bring some discomfort, but often the very best fishing is to be had during a rain storm.

Skilled outdoorsmen learned long ago that they must cater to the whims of fish and wildlife. . . not vice-versa.

Runnels County Oil Production for '65 About $12 Million

The 1965 output for crude oil and natural gas in Runnels County approximates the production for the previous year, according to an announcement by the Texas Mid-Continent Oil & Gas Association. The latest U. S. Bureau of Mines figures (1964) show Runnels County produced more than 4.1 million barrels of crude oil valued at $12.1 million; and 3.4 billion cubic feet of natural gas worth about $417,000.

Runnels County ranks 79th among the Texas counties producing oil and gas.

Payrolls, distribution of royalty checks to local landowners, new drilling ventures and tax payments are some of the ways by which oil and gas revenues are injected into the Runnels County economy.

One of the most important "crops" harvested by Texas ranchers, farmers and other landowners is the royalty interest from oil and gas operations. These payments are at a rate of approximately $1.6 million a year in Runnels County. Many more thousands a year are paid in lease rentals and bonuses on acreage which operators hope will some day yield oil or gas.

In addition to sharing the tax load for local schools and levels of government, oil and gas producers and royalty owners send some $586,000 a year to the State Treasury in severance taxes. Oil taxes account for $356,000; gas $29,000. Several schools in this county depend on the oil and gas property taxes for a sizable part of the annual locally-raised budgets. Some examples: Wingate, 87 percent; Winters, 59 percent.

Triggered by the first discovery in 1927, the search for oil in Runnels County is still underway. The Oil and Gas Journal reported 97 wells were drilled in the county last year. Forty five of these were "wildcats" seeking new fields or production from new strata. Results: 45 oil wells; 4 gas wells; 48 dry holes. Oil men and other investors risked an estimated $7.3 million in Runnels County to drill 412,000 feet of hole. Some $3.3 million disappeared forever in dry holes.

The Texas Employment Commission reports an industry payroll of about $754,000 a year for Runnels Countians who are directly employed by oil and gas firms. This, of course, is only part of the total employment created by petroleum operations for many others work in related service and supply jobs.

One of the most significant technological developments of the last two decades has been the high recovery of liquids like butane and propane from natural gas. Two plants operating in the county process approximately 51 million cubic feet of gas a day, which gives added value to gas production here.

Fight Over Voter Registration Procedures Continuing in Texas

By—Vern Sanford
Texas Press Association

Although the poll tax now is officially dead, as a voting requirement, the fight over registration procedures continues. U. S. Supreme Court, as expected, agreed with a three-judge federal court here that the 74-year-old levy is unconstitutional. Court already had stated in a Virginia case that a state is prohibited from placing a charge on the right to vote.

Action, however, was necessary to place in full effect the voter registration law passed by the Texas Legislature in special session last February.

Texas voters still will cast ballots next November on a proposed state constitutional amendment to "repeal" the poll tax. Same amendment provides that an annual registration system will replace the levy.

Some groups are urging defeat of the November amendment. This so that annual registration will not be built into the state constitution. They will continue their drive for a permanent registration plan, whereby a voter once registered remains eligible simply by voting regularly in elections.

New Election Law Study Committee indicated it will devote much of its effort to improving the system enacted under emergency circumstances. Committee has requested that suggestions in general for amending Texas election laws be submitted to the Texas Legislative Council before June 30.

Opponents said Texas Constitution provides that precincts will be created "for the convenience of the people." High Court also agreed to review a May 25 suit to void Jefferson County contracts for replacement of Pleasure Island Bridge at Port Arthur.

After a 13-week trial, a Travis County District court jury held that more than $1,000,000 was "misappropriated" from Lumberman's Insurance Corporation of Dallas as the result of a scheme involving bankers and an insurance agency owner.

AG RULES
Texas State Library and Historical Commission may make direct monetary grants to local public library units under federal act, subject to approval of state plan, Atty. Gen. Waggoner Carr held.

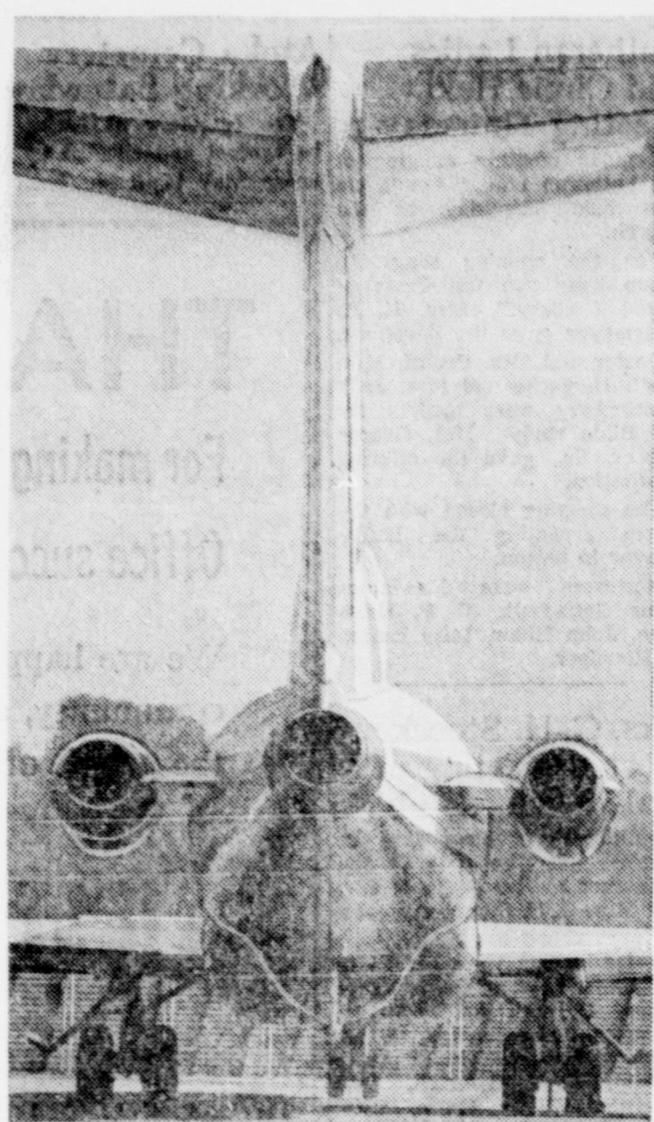

In other opinions, the attorney general has ruled that: Cigarette vending machines operated on a military reservation are subject to the regular permit fees.

Residence in which the Cameron Independent School District superintendent lives is tax exempt, since it is owned and maintained by the district to encourage qualified personnel, and therefore serves a "public purpose."

Acquittal of the charge of driving while intoxicated, second offense, would bar a subsequent prosecution for driving while intoxicated, first offense.

COURTS SPEAK
Should federal court-ordered principle of equal population for congressional and legislative districts apply to county commissioners precincts as well?

State Supreme Court heard arguments on the question in a suit filed by Midland Mayor H. C. (Hank) Avery to bring the one-man-one-vote theory to precinct level. If court agrees, mayor changes could result in county government throughout Texas.

DPS NEEDS RECRUITS
Col. Homer Garrison, director for the Department of Public Safety, is looking for applications for the next DPS training school for patrolmen. Application deadline is June 6.

Garrison said training pay has been increased from $375 to $400 a month. Pay will be $468 to $484 upon graduation. Men between 21 and 35 are accepted for the 16-week training program. They pick their branch of service and are assigned to posts throughout the state.

FLOOD AID SOUGHT
Gov. John Connally has requested the President to declare 19 northeast Texas counties as part of a major disaster area as a result of heavy rains and floods.

His initial request for federal emergency relief funds for rehabilitation of public facilities total $1,500,000.

The 19 counties included are Bowie, Camp, Cass, Collin, Fannin, Freestone, Gregg, Harrison, Lamar, Marion, Morris, Navarro, Rains, Red River, Rock, Shelby, Titus and Upshur. Others may be added in a supplemental request when damage estimates are complete. At least 13 other counties suffered flood damage.

Connally pointed out that rains and flooding in the lower Rio Grande and along the Texas coast may require assistance to that area. Allocation of funds is made on the basis of surveys conducted jointly by local, state and federal agencies.

WATER
Texas Water Development Board decided to enter a master agreement with the Sulphur River Municipal Water District, North Texas Municipal Water District, the City of Irving and the U. S. Corps of Engineers to pay part of the cost of construction of Cooper Dam Reservoir and Texarkana Reservoir.

Board of Engineers for Rivers and Harbors, Army Corps of Engineers, has approved the Aquilla Creek.

The Board recommended construction of a $23,600,000 dam and reservoir for flood control, water supply, recreation and fish and wildlife enhancement between Hillsboro and Waco.

Texas Water Rights Commission announced plans and specifications for Livingston Dam and Reservoir in Polk and San Jacinto Counties. Design calls for construction of an earthen embankment on an over-consolidated, low-strength clay. Project would be major water source for Houston.

TEXTBOOK COMMITTEE
Texas' 15-member State Textbook Committee has been appointed by the State Board of Education. Committee has the job of evaluating more than 225 textbook offerings and deciding which five in each subject should be offered for school board adoption.

Members of the Committee are: H. G. Adams, Marfa; Mrs. Hulian Armstrong, Menard; Dr. C. E. Ellison, Killeen; Dr. Morgan E. Evans, Galveston; Dr. Frances Freese, Dallas; Miss Helen L. Fulton, Spring Branch; Gerald Gafford, Snyder; Mrs. Ethel D. Greenwood, Corpus Christi.

Also, Billy H. Guinn, Jacksonville; Mrs. Betty B. Johnson, San Antonio; Dan Lea, Fort Worth; Dr. James F. Malone, Kilgore; Mrs. Emma Lue Mohle, Lockhart; Mack W. Mullins, Corsicana; and Mrs. Alma Perkins, Canyon.

HIGHWAYS DAMAGED
An estimated $961,000 worth of damage was done to Texas highways in April by the floods which hit many parts of the state.

Dallas, Tyler and Atlanta districts were hurt the most. State Highway Department estimated flood damage to highways and roads in the Atlanta and Tyler areas at $250,000 each in April, and Dallas' district (May figures not included), $200,000. In other districts, damage was estimated at $25,000, Paris; $75,000, Fort Worth; $37,000, Waco; $25,000, Houston; $2,500, Yoakum; $10,000, Austin; $11,000, Beaumont; and $75,000, Del Rio. In the 11 months prior to May, highway damage from floods had totaled only $360,000 for all 25 districts.

SHORT SNORTS
Attorney General Carr reported a decrease in Texas juvenile crime in 1965 for the first time since statistics were compiled in 1959. . . June Hearings are set by Railroad Commission for oil and gas operators to show why they should not stop using earthen pits for disposal of salt water in Callahan, Concho, Runnels, Knox, Harris and Jackson Counties. . . Governor Connally has approved new war on poverty grants for Austin, Uvalde, Bowie County, San Saba, Mason, Llano and Mills Counties, Robertson County, Williamson-Burnet Counties, Amarrillo and Borger, Laredo and Webb County and Robstown.

Government Figures Reveal That 5.2% of Workers Hold Two Jobs

"Moonlighting" In The Job Picture

Babson Park, Mass. According to government figures for the most recent years of record, some 5.2 percent of all employed workers have been holding more than one job. This is known in labor circles as "moonlighting," a word that may perhaps still hold unpleasant implications such as taking jobs on the sly at sub-union rates, robbing the needy jobless of a chance to work.

Moonlighting Now More Respectable

Today, however, multiple jobholding seems often more a necessity than a sign of greed. Almost half of the moonlighters are family men between the ages of 25 and 44 in need of additional income to raise their living standards. There are clear indications that the typical moonlighter either does not make enough money at his regular employment to take care of his family as he wishes, or else he has only a parttime job as his chief source of income. An extra position is sometimes the only way out.

There is another interesting angle that shows up in the government figures. Very few of the dual jobholders do their moonlighting in their base-job field. They are much more likely to reach for a parttime berth, say, in the services, retail trade, or agriculture. Few employed in manufacturing seem interested in taking their second job in the same line. In some instances, young men use their moonlighting experience to learn a new trade, — one that they intend to make their regular career when they are ready for it.

Where Dual Jobs Are Most Common

About 8 percent of agricultural workers hold extra jobs, compared with only 5 percent of the labor force in other pursuits. The high rate of moonlighting in the farm areas is due in large measure to the seasonal aspect of most of the occupations. The same thing applies in the construction industry, where pay rates may be high but projects often last for irregular periods.

On the nonagricultural side, the greatest rate of multiple jobholding occurs in public administration, with special emphasis on the post office department. Education services and transportation are also high on the list. It is, of course, easy to see why teachers frequently seek outside employment. Not only do they have considerable spans of vacation time, but in many localities annual salaries in education are well below those in other lines.

Women Low On Two-Job List

Almost six times as many men go in for moonlighting as women. This is not surprising in view of the fact that most housewives have their homes and children to care for, and many husbands would prefer that their wives not take any outside work at all, — let alone two separate jobs. Actually, a busy wife and mother might be said to be moonlighting if she takes even one part-time job outside the home, since she already has a full-time house-keeping stint.

Where multiple jobholding shows up most commonly among women is in the case of widows, divorcees, and those separated from their husbands. Just about one-third of all female moonlighters are in these categories. This is natural, since they have often had to assume the type of responsibility that usually falls to the husband. Household bills must be paid, children must be reared and educated. It should be noted, too, that about 50 percent of all women holding more than one job work only part of the time on each.

Higher Living Costs Mean More Moonlighting

It is our opinion that there is probably considerably more dual jobholding than appears in the government tables. The steady climb in consumer prices has undoubtedly caused a lot of people to latch on to outside work that would be difficult to catch in a survey sampling. With creeping price inflation showing no signs of slowing down and with taxes also looking upward, living standards for many families will be less easy to maintain. More multiple jobholding is almost inevitable. And it may well spread to groups who have never before engaged in moonlighting on any regular scale.

"Gunmen of the Rio Grande"
Guy Madison portrays the role of Wyatt Earp, the star of "Gunmen of the Rio Grande." the new Allied Artists release produced by Ike Zingermann in Eastmancolor and Techniscope and scheduled to show Friday and Saturday at the State Theatre.

"Die! Die! My Darling!"
"Die! Die! My Darling" co-starring Tallulah Bankhead and lovely Stefanie Power as the darling, shows Friday and Saturday at the State Theatre in color. A Columbia Pictures release. "Die Die! My Darling!" was produced by Anthony Hinds and directed by Silvio Narizzano. Richard Matheson penned the screenplay, based on the novel "Nightmare" by Anne Blaisdell. The film is a Hammer production.

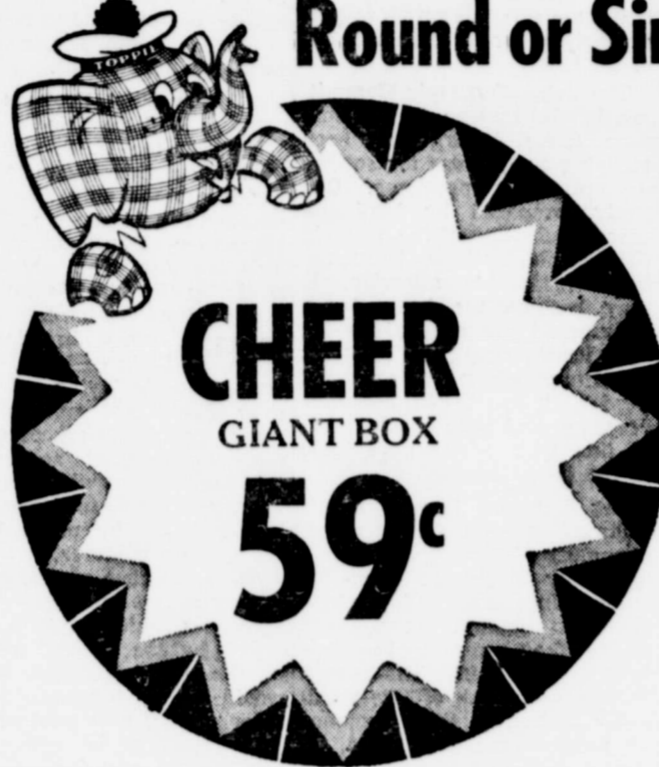

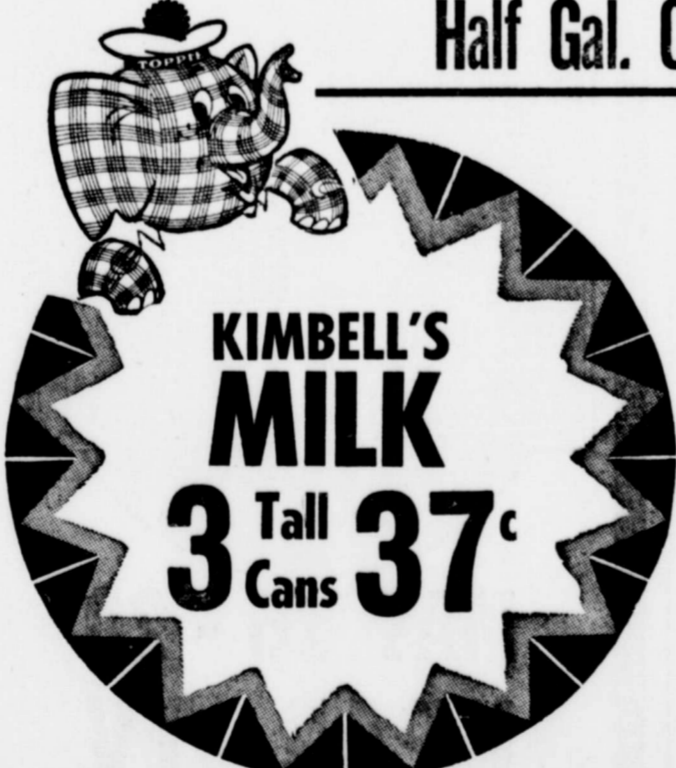

"It's A Mad, Mad, Mad, Mad, World!"
No glittering cities of ancient civilizations had to be rebuilt and destroyed for it; no crucial battles in which thousands of men and horses engaged in mortal combat in it, and no volcanoes were touched off to bury whole nations, but Stanley Kramer's hilarious comedy success "It's A Mad, Mad, Mad, Mad, Mad World," which makes its continuous performance - popular price showing Sunday, Monday and Tuesday at the State Theatre, required some of the greatest production logistics in motion picture history.

This, it was explained, was because this Ultra-Panavision-Technicolor United Artists release, which will be seen locally exactly as it was shown at advanced prices in record-breaking reserved seat showings, is just about the ultimate in everything.

"The Family Jewels"
Jerry Lewis is involved in so many aspects of movie making: producing, directing, writing and starring in his own films—he sometimes literally meets himself coming and going in the course of a day's work. While filming "The Family Jewels," a Paramount release in Technicolor showing Sunday night only at the Fiesta Drive-In Theatre; a picture in which he plays seven character parts, he took his directorial post behind the camera, looked blankly for a moment at cameraman Wally Kelley, and asked, "Isn't someone missing out there?"

Roger Babson Says

American Farmers Had Record Income During Past Year

Babson Park, Mass. American farmers last year grossed almost $45 billion. This was a record income and marked a 50 percent increase over 1949. Will the luck of the growers hold out in 1966?

Modest Planting Intentions

Neither Vietnam nor the specter of hunger abroad appears to have had much influence on farmers as they made their 1966 crop plans. If their March plantings intentions can be taken as a measure, their course is set in much the same direction as in 1965.

Highlighting the official government report is an estimated increase of nearly 5 percent in soybean acreage and a probable boost of about 2 1/2 percent in land to be sown to corn. Apparently, expanding markets for soybean and soybean products—here in the U. S. and in foreign markets—have convinced growers that it would be smart to plant more acres to this crop. Not so clearly evident is the reasoning behind the increase in corn acreage. Perhaps farmers figure this move will be profitable because hog farmings are expected to be substantially higher later this year. Oddly enough, despite broadening demand for wheat on a worldwide basis, U. S. farmers intend to plant slightly more durum wheat than last year, and plan to cut other spring wheat seedings 5 percent below the 1965 level.

Bumper Outturn A Decided Possibility

Although acreage to be seeded to the 17 major crops is almost the same as that of last year, Land to be planted to all 59 crops in 1966 may lag the 1965 total by about 2,000,000 acres. Even with this overall cutback, there is a very good chance that the U. S. 1966 crop outturn will be of bumper size. It could very well set a new record!

In addition to the prospective increase in corn and soybean acreage, more land will be sown this year than last to barley, rice, potatoes, tobacco, dry beans, dry peas, and sugar beets, as well as to durum wheat. On the other hand, besides the promised curtailment in spring wheat plantings (other than durum), growers currently intend to cut back on the amount of land they will sow to oats, flaxseed, sorghum, hay, peanuts and sweet potatoes.

Our own Babson survey of crop prospects suggests a corn outturn this year that will approach 4 1/2 billion bushels—about 5 percent above the 1965 record. We forecast that soybean output may exceed the government prediction of 882 million bushels, though perhaps by only a small margin. And it appears now that oats output may be down some 5 percent from last year, and that all wheat production may slide off 6 percent.

What About Prices?

Farm prices—which had been in the doldrums for some years—showed considerable improvement in 1965. They should make additional good gains this year in view of broadening demand which reflects record employment and record personal income. Another very favorable factor is the restraint of farmers with respect to crop plantings. Burdensome surpluses are not expected to be a problem during the 1966-67 season.

Of course, much will depend on the export trend. In very recent years, there have been exceptionally good gains in U. S. exports of farm products. While exports should reach good totals again this year, shipments of some items to Europe may be smaller if European crops make the good progress currently being forecast for them. But downward pressures on U. S. farm prices resulting from cutbacks in foreign demand will likely be offset by bullish pressures here at home.

1966 Should Be A Good Farm Year

With employment and wages scheduled to hold high and with military food needs likely to be mounting, U. S. demand for foods and feeds is almost certain to be larger than a year ago. This, plus a continued heavy flow of government payments to farmers under price support and related programs, should improve the economic position of farmers—on balance. There are, of course, some clouds on the horizon. The draft is cutting into farm manpower; taxes are rising, most items farmers need in their operations will cost more this year, and soaring land prices will postpone some farm expansion programs. All in all, however, it will be a relatively good year for farmers. They may tighten their purse strings this spring and summer, but they'll be good spenders again when the 1966 crops are in.

Paying Jobless To Go Where Jobs Are
Babson Park, Mass. A big part of our Anti-poverty Program involves bringing jobs to parts of the country that are suffering from chronic unemployment. But there is another concept that may well become a key part of the fight against joblessness. This is paying unemployed men and women to move to areas where labor is

Velma Jewel Broadstreet, Walton Neil Brown Announce Wedding Date

Mr. and Mrs. A. K. Broadstreet of Route 1, Wingate, are announcing the engagement and approaching marriage of their daughter, Velma Jewel, to Walton Neil Brown. He is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Frank Brown of Cross Plains.

The wedding date has been set for Friday, June 10.

Miss Broadstreet is a student in Winters High School and Mr. Brown is an employee at a Shamrock station in Cross Plains.

The couple will live in Cross Plains.

Relocation Plans Being Studied

Even though national unemployment has been pushed back to 3.7 per cent — 3.8 per cent, the lowest level since November 1953, there are still pockets of manpower surpluses that stubbornly resist improvement. Appalachia and northern New England are two current examples, with others scattered here and there across the country. Since there are definite manpower shortages in many sections, the Administration is particularly eager to make full use of all labor.

The Joint Economic Committee, headed by Rep. Wright Patman (Dem.-Texas), has been studying suggestions for solving unemployment problems. One study, prepared by Professor Martin Schmitzer of the Virginia Polytechnic Institute, is receiving considerable attention. It made the basis for a widespread program of paying the unemployed in different areas to go where they are most needed. Interest has been increasing, and such a scheme is in line with others acceptable to the government.

Many Countries Have Tried It

Strange though it may seem, a number of foreign countries—especially in Europe—have for a long time been giving allowances to unemployed workers so that they can move to where jobs are available. The reason for the outgrowth of this particular system is the reluctance of people to move, often, of course—bringing jobs to the unemployment centers—stubbornly refused to work out in Great Britain, Sweden, and Belgium; unemployment totals have remained high regardless of such efforts.

Hence, Britain plans to extend her policy of paying workers to move to where the jobs are. Sweden permits industry to settle where resources dictate. Then the government pays labor to move to where the industry has located, at least in sufficient volume to man the plants. In Europe generally, this system is not necessarily limited to areas of extreme manpower shortages, —but wherever the need for men arises.

New Pilot Projects Will Be Tried

Here in the U. S. relocation experimentation began in 1963, but it covered only about 1,200 employees in 14 states under the Manpower Development and Training Act. The suggestions made by the Virginia Polytechnic Institute authorities would be on a much broader—and more realistic—basis. They would include laying out whatever funds are necessary to move workers to places of definite employment service. In this way, many who have previously refused to leave their homes might be persuaded to try greener pastures.

As in the case of many other job programs, the cost would be considerable, but it is fondly hoped by the money spenders of the Administration that it would be worth while. The development of new pilot projects is reported to be under way, and careful examination of the results will determine just how far the procedure will be allowed to spread. Businessmen in general should be interested in such a government system, since it could bring additional supplies of labor to those who find manpower hard to come by.
