Talk

By R. C. THOMAS

Many of us, when the term "school" is mentioned, immediately let our minds draw us a picture of a complex of concrete and brick; auditoriums, gymnasiums and stadiums. We also allow our minds to paint into the picture special school activities in which we are interested at the moment, or which are brought into the public focus, depending upon the season of the year.

Too many times the hundreds of children swarming about the schools become merely a blur of faces. If we have children in school at the moment, the picture is clear only in their immediate surroundings, the activities in which they are engaged, and perhaps a particular teacher or two directly concerned with the handling of our children at the time. The rest of the time the balance of the picture becomes only a surrealistic image of something we admit affects our lives, but to which we pay attention only on special occasions. This is not always true—there are exceptions.

Our schools are more than special occasions and activities and buildings. Our schools are "people"—and in this rapidly-shrinking and demanding world, the sooner we recognize this the sooner we will begin to give them more of our thoughts and attention.

Our schools are the children—all the children—the only reason for their existence. But, more important perhaps, our schools are the teachers and administrators—they are the means, and the only means, to the goal which we seek for our youngsters. We forget that importance too many times, and think abstractly of our teachers as only implements to be used to help guide and raise our children. These teachers are people the same as you and I, even though we sometimes forget that, and take them for granted. They are people who have a job to do, and who have prepared themselves to do the work handed them.

"Dedicated people" is perhaps an overworked phrase, because in any profession or calling, if a person is to attain any degree of success, he must have some amount of "dedication" to his work. But in the teaching profession, the phrase comes closer to hitting the mark than perhaps any other profession. How many of us, really, would accept the challenge facing any teacher? to take a young life and attempt to guide it? how many of us would stand still long before the onslaught of criticism so many times directed toward teachers? how many of us really understand, or even try to understand, the many problems with which these teachers are confronted each day? Our problems with rearing our own children seem mountainous, but consider those of the teachers who face the same problems magnified 20 to 30 to 40 times.

In many localities there are annual "Teacher Appreciation Days" or "weeks" at which times teachers are singled out by their particular communities to receive a little applause and recognition, and then too many times to be taken for granted the rest of the year.

Why can't we have "Teacher Appreciation Day" every day? They've accepted most of the problems the rest of us do not have the inclination nor the training nor the time, to attempt to solve.

A Congressman from Wisconsin tells the story of two brothers in his home district. One brother was valedictorian of his graduating class. He is serving in Viet Nam for $78 a month. The other brother is a dropout who once beat up his mother and his teacher. He is serving in the War on Poverty's Neighborhood Youth Corps and is getting $200 a month.

After studying auto accidents that killed 177 persons not wearing seat belts, a U. S. Public Health Service study reported that 40 percent would have lived if they had been wearing belts. In addition, 60 percent would have been saved if they had also worn shoulder harnesses.

ON VACATION

Mr. and Mrs. John Q. McAdams left Monday for Colorado where they will spend several days on vacation.

MISS SALLY SPILL

Winters Girl Is Summer Volunteer Worker At Travis State School

Sally Spill, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Walter Spill of Winters, is one of 30 young people from the Southern and Central district of The American Lutheran Church who are devoting ten weeks of service this summer in homes for the mentally retarded.

The Youth Service Corps was organized by the Rev. Wilfred Sager, youth director of the South-Central region, in conjunction with the Youth Department of the American Lutheran Church. Twelve of the young people are working at Wheat Ridge, Colo., and 18 girls are serving at Austin State School and Travis State School in Austin.

Miss Spill, member of Winters St. John's Lutheran Church was chosen to work at Travis State School and has been in Austin since June 11. Before working with the mentally retarded, the girls received 40 hours of intensive training by professional persons of the staff of the school. The corps members wear uniforms and volunteer badges, earned after ten hours of work, and work a 40-hour week, Monday through Friday.

At Travis State School, the residents are boys and men between the ages of six and ninety and are the more severely retarded. Corps members assist in physical therapy, occupational therapy and recreational therapy.

The ALC host congregations in Austin provide housing and transportation for the girls, and the schools furnish meals. The young people were treated to a week at Camp Chrysalis, in Kerrville, between their fifth and sixth weeks of service. The girls are from Texas and six other states.

Miss Spill and her roommate, Carolyn Diercks of Agra, Kans., were recent visitors in Winters. She will complete her work August 19 and will return home that weekend.

Cotton Insect Situation Looks "Much Brighter"

The outlook of the cotton situation in Runnels County is a little brighter this week than it was last week, said a report from the Agricultural Extension Service.

Percentage of bollworm eggs per plant has decreased slightly during the past few days, it was reported. This is evidently caused by beneficial bugs, they said.

Extension Service representatives said there seems to be no dangerous build-up of bollworms at this time, though the count is slightly high. They are "keeping their fingers crossed," the agents said, and keeping a close watch on cotton fields.

PRIMARY SCHOOL

Robert Simpson, principal of the Primary School, has announced that all pupils who will be in the first grade for the first time this year will receive post cards stating time for enrollment and a conference scheduled in the principal's office.

Parents of all pupils entering the first grade for the first time are reminded that school policy requires each pupil to have a birth certificate and evidence of a smallpox vaccination at the time of enrollment.

All pupils attending Winters schools last year in grades 1, 2 and 3 will not report to school until Wednesday, August 31, and at that time they will find their names listed on room doors for room assignment.

All pupils in Grades 1, 2, and 3 who did not attend Winters schools last year, and those not receiving post cards, are asked to report to the primary principal's office on any morning from August 22 until August 24 from 9 a. m. until 3 p. m.

Phone Company To Make EAS Feasibility Survey In North Runnels

Southwestern States Telephone Co., a General Telephone company, will make a survey of several communities in the North Runnels County to determine the feasibility of establishing "Extended Area Service," Mayor W. M. Hays said Tuesday.

The mayor reported to the City Council at the regular meeting Monday night that the telephone company will begin the survey soon, and will report to the Council in December with their recommendations regarding establishing EAS in the area.

Communities to be surveyed will include Bradshaw, Crews and Wingate, and other outlying areas.

Soil Conservationist Says Everyone Should Be Concerned With Water, Soil

Harvey Kahlden, Soil Conservationist with the local Soil Conservation Service, stated everyone should be concerned with conserving soil and water. He said it does not matter if you live in a drought-plagued area or in an area where water is plentiful; these critical resources should not be misused.

When rains fail, the combination of high temperatures and low humidity causes plants to give off high quantities of water creating a drain on deep moisture in the soil. He said we can conserve our water and improve the soil by having a cover on the soil surface. This can be any form of organic matter. The crop stubble will conserve water because it acts like a sponge. He said any crop material on the surface of the soil provides an insulation between the soil, hot sun, and drying winds. Kahlden said it will also eliminate rain-compacted conditions, which keep oxygen from penetrating into the soil that benefits plant growth.

According to Kahlden, a mulch can actually cause water to be added to the soil. He said where there is moisture in the air and it gets inside of the

ELEMENTARY SCHOOL

These schedules were prepared from pre-registration information furnished last spring.

Students who did not pre-register and all students who did not attend Winters or Wingate schools last year, who will be in grades 9 through 12, are asked to report to the High School principal's office Monday, August 22.

Students in grades 9 through 12 who desire a change in their schedule should report to the high school principal's offices as follows:

Extended Area Service for Winters and North Runnels County would make it possible for telephone subscribers to place calls to other communities in the area without toll charges for each call, it was explained. Under the system, a telephone user in Winters would be able to call a person in Wingate without paying extra toll charges, or a subscriber in the Bradshaw community would be able to call to Crews, toll-free.

Because of high telephone usage in the area, both for personal and business reasons, City officials have for some time recognized the need for such a service.

By Vern Sanford
 Some fads remain fads. They are here today and gone tomorrow like the hula hoop. Just fads—that's all. Other fads, however, outwear the "fad-dish" tags and become true sports.

Surfing started as a fad on the Texas coast a little over a year ago. It has since shed the fad tag and become an honest to goodness outdoor sport.

Although most surfers are teen-agers, the sport isn't strictly reserved for the young. It appears a teen-ager sport since wherever big crowds of surfers gather, the young outnumber the older folks about 10 to one.

But get away from the crowd, or as they say "where the action is," and you'll find a lot of older folks riding the boards. They're all up and down Texas beaches.

You even see a certain amount of surfing on inland lakes in the form of "riding the waves." This is nothing more than riding the wave created by a large slow moving powerboat. As long as the hull remains displacement a n.d. throws up a wake, you can ride the board. However, such a wake vanishes if the boat operator speeds up the craft enough to get it on plane.

But back to surfing on Gulf of Mexico waves. It doesn't compare with the surfing you'll find in Hawaii or on the Pacific Coast where breaking waves are of huge size.

You won't get quarter mile long rides on Gulf waves as do the folks in Hawaii and the Pacific Coast. Gulf Coast breakers will run three to four feet in size as compared with Hawaii's eight to 12 feeters.

Even so the Gulf waves are big enough to sustain exciting rides of about 100 yards.

On summer days it's common to see several thousand surfers riding the waves in front of the Seawall at Galveston. Dead of winter doesn't stop them either. If the waves are there, you'll find several hundred hardy souls out riding the boards.

In the News

NEWLY APPOINTED AMBASSADOR TO JAPAN is old hand Alexis Johnson, 57, currently Deputy Undersecretary of State. Johnson was recently deputy ambassador to Saigon and is a respected diplomatic pro who started his Foreign Service career as a Japanese-language officer 31 years ago.

Their protection against the weather and cold will be wet suits.

This sport has blossomed to the extent that surfboards now are standard items in sporting goods stores. One Houston concern—Neil's Products, Co.—had turned to making boards specifically designed to give maximum rides on the small waves typical of the Texas coast.

Called the Gulf-Flite board and due to a change in materials used, it averages about 15 pounds less than other boards. Cutting down the weight has in no way sacrificed any strength.

Surfing on the Texas coast is also leading to competition. Most of the competition today has been between clubs from various cities. But there's already talk about state and regional meets.

Since its advent on the Texas coast, the surfboard has found an additional use other than surfing. Some fishermen are using them to get to out of the way places on placid water.

They straddle the board horseback style and propel themselves about by treading water with their feet. Unless a fellow is a guard or tackle on a pro football team, the board's support them nicely. Good boards will sustain about 180 pounds.

So, the field of surfing is fairly wide open. And the thrill is great! Try it sometime.

Low Water Proves No Problem To WesTex Game Fish

San Angelo lakes, like most West Texas fishing spots, are dwindling daily to 100 degree dry weather, but the Texas Parks and Wildlife Department reports game fish continue to spawn.

Game fish generally have best spawning success when lakes are rising, or at least stable. However, West Texas game fish are accustomed to prolonged drought and typically rear young in spite of dropping water levels that continually expose their nests to the hot West Texas sun.

Fishery crews recently verified the hardness of West Texas game fish when they hauled in seine samples including baby catfish and bass in good numbers in spite of adverse spawning conditions.

The fellow who has a good opinion of himself is likely a poor judge of human nature.

State Capital Highlights—

Governor Recommends Changes In Texas' Criminal Laws After Killings

By—Vern Sanford
Texas Press Association
Heinous, inhuman, unthinkable crimes—such as those that have left a trail of blood across Texas—must be stopped, say state officials.
Gov. John Connally and Atty. Gen. Waggoner Carr both have strongly recommended changes in Texas' criminal laws.
Their proposals are the result of three terrible incidents—all committed over a period of two weeks. First, the sniping episode on the University of Texas campus during which Charles J. Whitman deliberately killed 16 innocent persons and wounded three dozen more; then the malicious murder of a night watchman in Roscoe, Texas, by a West Texas teenager; and finally, the grotesque murder of three youngsters in Fort Worth.
Connally said he would ask the Legislature for a law requiring a compulsory life sentence for anyone who commits murder, then is found not guilty because of insanity.
Carr concurred—adding that he plans to appear personally before the Texas House committee on revisions of the code of criminal procedure in January.
Meanwhile, the attorney general has asked the governor to appoint a blue ribbon citizens committee to draft legislation for tougher laws and stronger penalties.
Up for study are:
Stiffer penalties for crimes of violence.
Stiffer penalties for sex crimes.
Clarification of laws dealing with carrying arms in public.
More effective methods of confining those who use insanity as a defense for crimes.
Both Connally and Carr made it clear they are firmly opposed to stringent laws regulating the sale of firearms.

DRAFT CALL INCREASES

Texas' draft call for October is the largest since May, 1953, when the Korean war ended. State quota for October is 2,671, compared to 3,823 at close of the fighting in Korea, according to State Selective Service Director Col. Morris S. Schwartz.
September quota also is up—from 1,585 to 1,890. National call is for 46,200.

ATTORNEY GENERAL RULES

State Supreme Court chief justice may assign retired appellate court judges to duty on courts of civil appeals in case of vacancy or disqualification. Attorney General Carr has ruled. Assignment would be terminated by return to duty of regular judge.
In other opinions, Carr concluded that:
Alien employees of Texas colleges, their husbands, wives and children, are entitled to resident tuition rates in all state institutions of higher education.

WATER SPORT RECORDS

The 1966 summer vacation season seems destined to go into the records as setting a new high for water recreational deaths and for establishing an amazing boating-skiing safety mark.

In a two-week study by the Parks and Wildlife Department, it was pointed out that during that period, 14 persons drowned in Texas, but none was a result of boating or skiing. Nine of the deaths were attributed to bathing accidents, and four were blamed on fishing.
Death toll for the season was increased to 181 and the total for the entire summer of 1965 was 200. So, with a month of vacation time left, the department figures this year's death count will surpass last year's by a substantial margin.

A spokesman for the department said that the new law passed by the last Legislature had cut boating-skiing accidents.
Measures to enforce life-preserver requirement and other phases of the safety law helped out the accident rate.

COTTON DEADLINE EXTENDED

Cotton farmers in Cameron, Willacy and southern portions of Hidalgo and Starr Counties have been given another 30 days—until September 30, midnight—to gather crops under the Pink Bollworm Control Program.

State Agriculture Commissioner John C. White extended the deadline after conferences with the U. S. and Mexican Departments of Agriculture and Pink Bollworm Advisory Committee concerning late and slow harvest.
White pointed out that only 26,858 bales had been ginned in the Zone 1 control area by August 7, compared with 177,426 by that same date last year.
Delayed spring plantings due to bad weather and adverse growing prompted the extension.

ELECTION LAW CHANGES

An election law committee, headed by Sen. Tom Creighton of Mineral Wells, has named a subcommittee to meet September 29 and October 13 to study recommendations made to date. Afterwards the full committee will hold public hearings.
Texans will have an opportunity to vote on one election law change in November. Already on the November ballot is a constitutional amendment calling for annual voter registration to replace the poll tax voting requirement.

SENATE GOP LEADER Everett Dirksen is shown as he met with reporters recently in the Senate Press Gallery. Dirksen said the Nuremberg Trials "may have been a ghastly mistake" in light of North Viet Nam's threat to try captured American fliers as war criminals.

AFL-CIO is opposing this amendment, seeking instead permanent registration.
The Committee's recommendations will be made after the November 8 election.

INTERSTATE SAFETY

A program to make Texas' safest highways—the interstate system — even safer has been launched by the Texas Highway Commission.
Commission approved a $3,200,000 plan which includes replacement of conventional sign supports and illumination pole bases with new units incorporating "breakaway" safety features.
New bases and supports already are in place along newer sections of interstate highways in Texas. Program involves putting them in place of conventional equipment on older sections.
Instead of rigid, unyielding hazards, breakaway sign supports and pole bases shear on impact, pivoting up and away from an out-of-control vehicle. The vehicle then rolls to a more controlled stop.

Safety Code Gets Rush By Wardens

The Texas Parks and Wildlife Department announced the major educational phase of the water safety program is being continued but that water sports enthusiasts will be expected to conform to the standards prescribed by the last Legislature.
A spokesman said game wardens, many of whom are equipped with fast motor boats, will begin issuing tickets along with safety literature.
Many thousands of educational material have been distributed throughout the state by field personnel and from district and regional headquarters.
The Department noted that the response has been encouraging and that most of the water recreational fans have cooperated. However, it observed that "too many" have not complied with the safety code and are creating a lethal hazard "that needs correcting."

The most common violation, according to field men, is in failing to equip boats with proper life preservers for each occupant.

Dams Now Under Construction On Valley Creek Mark Half-Way Point

Woodrow Hoffman, Work Unit Conservationist for the Soil Conservation Service, said when the two floodwater retarding dams now under construction on the Valley Creek Watershed are completed, the structural works of improvement for the project will reach the half way point.

He said these two structures will bring a total of ten of the proposed twenty dams built at a cost of $580,007 in Federal funds. Contracts are scheduled to be awarded on three more floodwater detention dams this fiscal year at an estimated Federal cost of $227,110.

In reviewing the project, Hoffman stated the Valley Creek Watershed covers an area of 150,164 acres. The project was authorized for operations under the Watershed Protection and Flood Prevention Act on Oct. 2, 1962 by the Soil Conservation Service. It is scheduled to be completed in the fiscal year of 1968.

The project is sponsored by these dams. They have obtained easements to clear 14 of the 20 planned structures. Of the 31 easements needed to clear the remaining six structures, the directors have obtained 15.

With only eight of the dams completed and two nearing completion, Hoffman said residents along Valley Creek are reporting benefits from the project. He said they are beginning to call the creek "live" — revived by this watershed project. Only a few of the old timers can remember when some of the springs flowed that are now flowing. One farmer below site No. 6 reported the dam saved his cotton crop last fall when a 5-inch rainstorm fell above the structures. Some landowners, whose places the dams are on, report offers of leases by business firms for a place for fishing, hunting, and boating for their employees.

The U. S. Treasury Department sells about $4 1/2 billion worth of Savings Bonds every year.

Yet no one ever tries to sell you Bonds on the phone. Though you rarely see them, there are about 1/2 million patriotic Americans who will help you buy Bonds. Have been, since the first Series E Savings Bond was issued 25 years ago.

Your banker, for instance. He'll give you folders and facts, issue your Bonds, make certain they're properly registered, cash them when the time comes.

Your employer and thousands of other employers who have set up the Payroll Savings Plan are also on the team. So are the officials of your union who have endorsed Bonds.

There are many others. Like your neighbor, the advertising man, and the radio, TV, poster, magazine and newspaper people he works with.

All of these volunteers work for the Bond program without pay.

Children's Story Program Set At Library August 24

Mrs. Edward Bredemeyer will tell the story, "When Homer Honked," at the Winters Public Library Wednesday morning, August 24.

All children in the Winters area are invited to the 30-minute program which begins at 9:30. Several adults and teenage girls will be at the library to care for the children during the story.

The book, "When Homer Honked," is a tell-together story where the children help Mrs. Bredemeyer by making the sounds throughout the story. The children's book is about a gander who made too much noise until one day he did a very good deed.

This story-program will end summer activities at the library, Miss Myra Glover, librarian, said. Children who joined the summer reading club must return their reading logs to the library on or before August 24, she said.

The librarian said this summer's program has been one of the most interesting to be conducted in Winters. Gregg Colburn, son of Mr. and Mrs. James C. Colburn, was the first to read twelve books, becoming eligible for a certificate from the Texas State Library. Kathy Wolford, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Thomas L. Wolford, read 72 books, the highest number of books. Kathy will be a 7th grade student this year. Gregg will be in the fifth grade.

Wolves Last Stand

The wolf or coyote, many farmers in the Paris area have told the Texas Parks and Wildlife Department, are losing nothing in population, nor in their taste for watermelons.

A farmer in that area ended the melon-stealing career of 27 of the wild canines this year, all animals with a taste for choice, juicy watermelons, ripened by sun, but stolen by moonlight.

Scientists estimate that the planet Earth had insects for at least 200 million years before man appeared.

Trees In Fisher Co. Lure 'Kites' To Roby

Field men for the Texas Parks and Wildlife Department report Mississippi Kites have lately moved into the western part of Fisher County.

The birds were only temporary visitors, or migrants, in this section until about two years ago. They were known to nest in the eastern part of the county during the 1940s and were rarely seen farther west.

Mississippi Kites nest in colonies spread out over areas containing large trees. In Throckmorton, Shackelford, Baylor, Jones, Haskell, and other counties to the north and west they seem to prefer large mesquite trees for nest sites.

Roger Babson Says
People Over 65 Represent Huge Market For Retailers, Servicers

Babson Park, Mass. They are a minority, but quite a massive one. They are not heard from very often as a group, but they represent a huge and stable market for retailers and service dispensers of all kinds. Distributors, ad men, clothiers, food marketers, TV programmers, and a host of other commercial entrepreneurs would do well to give them more attention. We refer to the approximately 19 million men and women over 65 now living in the U. S.

Retired People No Longer "Old"
In days gone by, it was popularly assumed that those over 65 were about ready for pasture. But healthier living, medical break-throughs, and more intelligent over-all personal care have laid that myth away. The retired population is to an amazing degree lively, mobile, and interested in everything that is going on. It is tomfoolery to ignore this responsible, responsive group and act as though only the young were worth soliciting in selling, entertainment, recreation, and promoting our wares.

Only one TV station, for example, has come to our attention as directing a program series beamed toward the older viewers, catering specifically to their interests and needs. This New York channel has joined forces with the N.Y. State University to bring retired men and women a wealth of seasoned suggestions on such widely diversified topics as keeping trim by exercise, selective purchasing, drawing up wills to avoid exaggerated probate costs, tips on home repair, saving money on staples, and part-time jobs.

Social Security Bolstering Buying Power

While many folk are able to retire with at least a moderate nest egg to smooth their later years, many are not. It is here that social security and other forms of public assistance contribute importantly to the economic stability of this group. During 1966 alone, just about $20 billion will be paid out under the Old-Age, Survivors' and Disability Insurance System, the core of the federal social security program. Much of this money will go to about 11 million retired workers. The rest will help support our economy through its distribution to 8.7 million dependents of retired, disabled, or deceased workers, and to one million disabled who are under 65.

Added Effects Of Medicare

Even though many fear Medicare as a first step toward total socialized medicine, its effects will be favorable in terms of maintaining the purchasing power of retirees. As of this last July, most persons over 65 came under the protection of hospital-cost provisions. And it is estimated that some 95 percent of these have signed up for the additional coverage of doctors' bills and services under the voluntary insurance plan. This means, of course, that our over-65 big minority will feel less reluctant to spend money for travel, pleasant extras, and even occasional "luxuries" than they did before.

The impact of this radical innovation may not be especially spectacular at any given time, but it will add to the fundamental purchasing strength of our older citizens. As long as consumer prices take a continually larger chunk out of personal income, the buying psychology of those no longer working is inclined to become steadily more cautious. This will still be true to a considerable extent, but the knowledge that health costs will be taken care of in case of trouble will make many more willing to spend for other purposes.

Built-In Stabilizers

There are other significant cushions for the economy brought about under the broad coverage of the Social Security Act of 1935. Joint federal-states Public Assistance programs are giving benefits to better than 8 million persons at the present time. Even with unemployment low as it is, it is thought that some 3 million or more people will have received jobless payments in the course of 1966. When you also take into consideration the enormous number of federal, state, municipal, and industrial pensions now functioning, it is not surprising that consumer sales hold so well even when the stock market and international events advise "caution."

AS IT LOOKS FROM HERE

"Upon what meat doth this our Caesar feed. That he is grown so great?" —Shakespeare.

Caesar's meat was power. The Romans whom he governed were too busy enjoying their leisure, supported from the Treasury, to take notice. Their enjoyment at entertainment at the circuses in the afternoons gave them the illusion of well being.

Charles Ponzi is described by William Leavitt Stoddard in his book, "Financial Racketeering..." published in 1931, as one of the greatest "get rich quick" artists of all time. At the time of his operations he managed to create, for a short period of time, an illusion among thousands of people. He managed to convince investors that there is an attainable pot of gold at the rainbow's end, that sea water could be converted into precious metal and that dollars can be made to multiply by the pronunciation of correct and mysterious formula.

Ponzi promised to pay depositors a much higher rate of return than established institutions could or would pay. He kept up the illusion from 1919 through 1920 by using new deposits to pay withdrawals and interest. His transactions grew larger and larger, but there came a point at which he could not take in money from the "suckers" fast enough to keep up with the apparent solvency of earlier deposits. His paper empire crumbled all at once. Had not his swindles been discovered, it is estimated that by the end of the year 1920 he would have recorded receipts of between $4 and $5 billion.

Strange as it may seem, after five years in Federal prison under the Mail Fraud Act, he was released to start another swindle in 1926. During the Florida land boom of the middle 1920's Ponzi again amassed a fortune by first selling swamp-land lots, and then selling land that did not exist. The strange thing in this latter transaction is that he swindled some of the people who were his suckers in the earlier deal.

Can there be an essential difference between Caesar's Rome and the usurpation of power by any central government, regardless of the age or time? Is there any essential difference between the Ponzi economy of an individual and the same practices of a great nation, except that the illusion can last longer in the case of the latter?

Americans are rich compared with other countries, although we may not be nearly as rich as we think we are.

From the time of the Civil War Americans have been gaining on the rest of the world. Following World War I our economy took a long stride forth and we enjoyed the automobile boom, suburban houses, paved roads, recreation, radios, public laundries, store-bought clothes and all kinds of things we now take for granted.

Since World War II our level of living has risen even higher and the gap has increased between our Nation's and the rest of the world.

Nearly everyone now has more income than he had a few years ago. Most people have more real estate, better cars, better houses, better kitchens and bathrooms, more boats and holiday trips, more schooling, more books, T. V., more vitamins and more tranquilizers. Is this conclusive evidence of greater wealth and a stronger economy?

Those who oppose our present economic course have to admit the existence of these great advances. At the same time, to support their position they must prove the direction we are traveling can eventually bring down our economic structure like Ponzi's house of paper.

The key, of course, is the promise of a Federal Government to give more and more benefits to everyone, which reduces the real earning assets of the economy, replacing them with paper assets and promises to pay, covering the loss by ever growing inflation.

There has definitely come a time when we must look beneath the shimmering surface of these good times to check our real worth.

The cure is obvious if we have the moral courage to face it—stop deficit spending by cutting expenditures. In the last 11 years defense costs have risen by only $20.5 billion; non-defense spending by $52 billion.
