HOME TOWN Talk

Christmas shopping out of town has its advantages. One of them is the feeling of relief when one returns home and shoes can be kicked off. That wonderful feeling of non-confinement for corned-fee made sore by all the walking, the being stamped on, the scuffing—this relieving goodness is almost enough to make one want to return to the battle of the discount counters, just to be able to experience it again returning home.

There is the thrill that comes with meeting other hog-wild shoppers in the battle, the grabbing, snatching, the waiting in long lines, the chance to vent a little spleen toward those other sneering, snarling shoppers who elbow your ribs and step on your toes. (You can do this safely, because you'll probably never see them again.)

Then if you return home with a package or two less than what you bought, there is the imagination-taxing game of trying to figure out just where the lost boxes went. . . did someone take them from the car did the checkout clerk knock it off the counter? did some other shopper pick it up when you weren't looking? It's a nice endless game to play.

Oh yes, there's another quite thrilling probability. . . that sweater you bought for Aunt Mame—the sleeve has a rip in it; that little electric appliance you bought for an in-law, it just won't work now. These are fine excuses—just the ones you've been waiting for—to get back in the car, and join the darting, dashing traffic, back to that big town store where you got them.

(Of course you know before you leave on the second trip it will be useless, because you've already left the checkout counter, you've lost the sales slip—if any—and if the purchases are made good, it probably will take two or three more trips. You can always send a note to Aunt Mame that her gift will be in the mails sometime after New Year's. But that's all right—another trip will give you a chance to figuratively spit in the eye of that unconcerned clerk who got your dander up by ignoring you in that milling crowd. It'll be a fine chance to really show them how you feel—and nobody at home will ever be the wiser.)

You don't have to get your kicks that way, though. You can do your Christmas shopping at home, patronizing your neighbors who patronize you. Then if you get elbowed a little, it'll probably be by someone you know and you both can drop down to the drug store for a cup of coffee and have a big laugh over it.

If that radio you bought won't work properly when you get it home, all you have to do is call the home town merchant who sold it, or drop it by his place when you go after a loaf of bread—he'll make it good, and smile while he's doing it. You won't have to battle the traffic, either. And if those whatchamacallits you bought are not just what you had in mind, your hometown merchant will be glad to exchange.

Then come next spring, or next summer, or next fall—when you're put on that committee to raise a little money for your special project, you won't have to slip into that merchant's store wearing the exchange.

Community residents who have repairable toys they would like to give for this party may do so by leaving them at the City Hall, the Chamber of Commerce office, the Industrial Arts Building at the high school, the Home Economics Cottage, or call Pan American Industries, 754-2082.

High school boys will make necessary repairs on toys to be given at the Christmas party.

Gas Company Asks Council For Okay To Increase Rates

Lone Star Gas Company Monday night formally requested the Winters City Council to consider passage of an ordinance authorizing the company to make adjustments in their present rates and to make increases in rates presently used in Winters.

The Council took no action on the request at the regular meeting, but will study the proposal and meet with representatives of the gas company at a later date for further discussion.

The gas company proposes an increase in the cost for the first 1,000 cubic feet of gas used, with additional gas used over the first 1,000 cubic feet to be billed at the existing rate of 75.9 cents per thousand.

Also, the gas company requested a "cost adjustment clause" to be included in the ordinance which would permit them to make future adjustments in the general service rate dependent upon changes in certain specific operating costs. This would mean, it was explained, the service rate would be tied to the government's cost-of-living index.

Announcement was made at the regular meeting of the Council Monday night that the planning engineers employed by the City some years ago to prepare and present a "Comprehensive Planning" program for the city will make their final report to the Council on December 15. The final report will include an analysis of the water distribution system and recommendations, along with maps and other reports.

Gov. Connally Releases Budget for Public Health, and Youth Council

By VERN SANFORD
Texas Press Association

Governor John Connally has released his budget proposals for public health agencies, mental health and retardation and for the Youth Council.

Recommendations for public health and tuberculosis control include salary adjustments so that top-flight personnel might be attracted; funds to raise salaries to conform with the general pay raise for state employees, money to assure enforcement of food and drug laws; funds to implement the Air Pollution Control Board program; funds to expand the State Health Department building in Austin; and a fund to train personnel to staff public health facilities and tuberculosis control and treatment centers.

Mental health and retardation recommendations include funds to expand the state's efforts to assist local communities through grants in aid and contract treatment services; $700,000 to set up a training fund to be used for in-service training and short courses; and $134,000 to establish and staff new community half-way houses.

Connally's budget also calls for an additional facility for girls for the Texas Youth Council, a director of research to make program evaluations and six additional parole officers.

Total budget figures are: Health Department, $19,989,468 in 1968 and $16,139,826 in 1969; Mental Health and Mental Retardation, $85,193,947 and $69,796,746; Texas Youth Council, $14,438,640 and $9,182,718.

Connally's combined budget for the three agencies from the general revenue fund calls for expenditures of $119,632,055 in 1968 and $95,119,290 in 1969, compared with expenditures of $64,298,815 in 1965 and $71,823,195 in 1966.

ENROLLMENTS UP

Texas' 55 state-supported colleges and universities enrolled 248,711 regular students this fall, representing an increase of 22,300 students—or about 10 per cent—over last fall.

Biggest gainers, percentage-wise, were Stephen F. Austin, Nacogdoches (18.7 percent); Southwest Texas State, San Marcos (17.3 percent); and West Texas State, Canyon (15.6 percent).

Big growth in junior colleges was noted at Henderson County, Athens; Texas Southmost, Brownsville; Panola, Carthage; and South Plains, Levelland.

The 1966 enrollment figure approximately doubles the number of students in the college and university system 10 years ago.

SEGREGATION DECLINING

Segregation in Texas schools is on the way out.

All but four of Texas' 1,303 school districts have filed intentions to comply with the 1964 Civil Rights Act with the U. S. Office of Education, says the Texas Education Agency.

Out of 283,426 Negro students enrolled in state schools, a total of 84,575 are in substantially integrated schools.

Of the 1,875,352 white pupils tabulated, 718,537 were on integrated campuses, and an additional 401,497 were on campuses having a small percentage of Negroes. There were 504 on campuses having a predominant Negro enrollment.

"Of the 754,814 white pupils on campuses without Negro pupils, 285,231 resided in school districts having no Negro pupils," the report said.

Major sanction against a district failing to comply with the Civil Rights Act is the loss of funds under the Elementary and Secondary Education Act, which this year totals a little more than $66,000,000 for Texas schools.

RETAIL SALES UP

Texas' retail sales surged upward five percent during October, mainly because of a 16 percent increase in the durable-goods sales, according to a report by the University of Texas Bureau of Business Research.

October durable-goods sales totaled $514,000,000, up $71,000,000 over September. Strongest increase was in the area of new car sales, showing a 25 percent increase, but still two percent short of the October, 1965, gain.

SCREW WORM ERADICATION

Airplanes dropped 263,425,250 sterile screw worm flies during October to fight Texas' screw worm infestation. So says a joint report by the U. S. Department of Agriculture's Animal Health Division and the Texas Animal Health Commission.

This includes drops over Mexico of 199,724,000; Arizona, 74,646,000; New Mexico, 20,790,000; and California, 7,680,000 during the same period.

Mexico was the leader in the number of laboratory-confirmed cases, with 2,135. But Texas' epidemic put it far ahead within the Southwestern U. S. with 715 cases. Arizona had 120, New Mexico 36 and California 9.

Texas' epidemic seems to be tapering off, as a spokesman for the commission said the number of cases is now down to four or five per day. Before the infestation, the number was normally three or four per week, and during the epidemic's height, that jumped to over 190 cases one week.

MED-FLY ERADICATION

First infestation of the Mediterranean Fruit fly has been officially eradicated, according to Agriculture Commissioner John

By Vern Sanford

Hunters talk of deer season and shooting fatalities like the two are synonymous. Most believe that the novice is largely to blame for the hunting accidents.

But, many a careless veteran hunter has been involved in a needless mishap simply because he failed to realize that hunting accidents are not the select happenings of a few beginners.

In the typical hunting accident it is not the tyro who is to blame. It is the veteran hunter! Usually the beginner is wary of his weapon and treats it with respect. On the other hand the veteran has hunted too long to be concerned. Familiarity often breeds carelessness.

It also is ironic to know that most shooting accidents do not occur during the deer season. In fact a great majority happen while hunting birds or other small game.

Nationwide statistics reveal that the typical person who causes a hunting accident is a male over 20 years of age with more than three years of hunting experience. At the time of the mishap he was not under the influence of either drugs or alcohol.

Most such incidents happen between the hours of 1:30 p. m. and 4:30 p. m.—and in clear weather. Typical weapon is a shotgun. Victim was standing between 11 and 50 yards from the shooter and discharge of the gun was accidental. Only one out of five victims survive.

These statistics debunk a lot of the popular theories about shooting accidents.

Very few accidents happened because the victim was mistaken for game. Most of them were the direct result of careless gun handling.

Often when a veteran hunter brings a weapon into camp or enters a vehicle, the gun is loaded. It shouldn't be! Or he throws it around haphazardly as he slips under a fence—never bothering to check the safety device. Or he props it idly against a tree or stump or fence post. . . . where it can easily fall. . . . and the jar set off the primed cartridge.

Carelessness is easy to come by. A few years back some Texas nimrods were winding up a dove hunt. A veteran hunter pumped the cartridges from his shotgun. Then he casually pointed the muzzle skyward and pulled the trigger. "BOOM!" went the gun—scaring the daylight out of his buddies.

Sheepishly the guilty one remarked, "Guess I didn't get 'em all out."

He could have been pointing the weapon toward one of his companions. . . instead of the sky. In that case, someone would have become another statistic and there would be one more needless shooting fatality in the books.

Far too few people realize that no gun ever caused an accident. A gun is merely a tool. Blame rests with the human who guides the destiny of the bullet.

Every hunter owes it to himself and to his friends to acquire safety discipline. He must be on the alert and never guilty of gun mismanagement. Good gun manners are acquired through discipline and determination—plus consideration of the safety of others.

Most hunting accidents can not be blamed on the young and inexperienced. Statistics prove that the accident levels among shooters usually reach their

C. White. Lifting of quarantine ended the six-months' fight which saw 12,000 acres of land sprayed with pesticides 16 times in the Rio Grande Valley.

Fly traps will be maintained in the citrus growing area as a precaution, but U. S. Department of Agriculture and Mexican quarantine authorities removed other restrictions simultaneously with Texas. Quarantine had restricted movement of unfumigated fruit from Brownsville area.

HOSPITAL GRANTS
State Board of Health will meet on December 11-12 to decide how to allocate the $17,300,000 in federal Hill-Burton grants among the 80 Texas health facilities which applied for over $43,000,000.

This federal appropriation is slightly above the $16,900,000 allocated to Texas for 1966 grants. These federal grants will be matched with local money for health modernization and expansion programs. Total cost of the improvements sought in the applications is $104,917,000. Since the amount requested is so much more than the amount available, the health board will have to sift through the applications and recommend the most pressing ones for acceptance.

(But if you did then try to get him out of town, and then try to get him to help finance your project—he's liable to blow a gasket. After all, if someone kicked YOU in the teeth, you wouldn't be happy if they asked you to help them buy a new pair of shoes, would you?)

To boil it all down, Winters merchants can provide most anything you want. If they don't have the exact item you desire, they probably can get it for you within a day or two. There is a good chance, too, they can even get you something even better—and what's more, they'll stand behind it. And . . . they want your friendship as well as your dollar. MRS. DOUGLAS WAYNE HART

Nora Jean Crawford And Douglas Wayne Hart Repeat Marriage Vows

Nora Jean Crawford, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. O. C. Crawford, became the bride of Douglas Wayne Hart, Thursday December 1, at 7:30 o'clock in the evening at the home of the bridegroom's parents, 500 South Melwood. He is the son of Mr. and Mrs. J. D. Hart.

The Rev. Allen, pastor of the Bethel Baptist Church, officiated for the single ring ceremony. Lizzie Childers, cousin of the bride, was flower girl. The bride's only attendant was her sister, Helen Crawford.

She wore a floor-length gown of pink brocade lace and carried a bouquet of white carnations with pink ribbon streamers.

Presented in marriage by her father the bride wore a white taffeta gown with an over-jacket of lace, fastened down the back with tiny white covered buttons. The skirt was designed with gathered fullness in the back to form a train. Her shoulder-length veil of illusion fell from a pill box and she carried a bouquet of white carnations with long ribbon streamers tied in love knots atop a white lace-covered Bible.

The reception was held immediately after the ceremony in the Hart Home.

The table was laid with white lace and the wedding cake was decorated with pink rosebuds and topped with a miniature bride and groom. Mrs. Roy Childers and sister ladeled punch.

For traveling to Carlsbad Caverns, New Mexico, the bride changed to a pink knit suit and wore the corsage from her wedding bouquet. Her accessories were black.

The bride is a junior student in Winters High School and plans to continue her education.

Mr. Hart is a graduate of Winters High School with the class of 1966. He was a member of the Blizzard football team, track and Authors Anonymous. At present he is employed at Winters Welding Service.

Mr. and Mrs. Hart are making their home in the Bishop apartment on West Parsonage Street.

Strangers in Our Midst

"And if a stranger sojourn with thee in your land," says the Bible, "ye shall not vex him."

More than 3,000,000 resident aliens sojourn with us in our land. Inevitably, they are subject to various rules pertaining to their special status—rules about immigration, registration, naturalization, and deportation.

But what about their everyday activities? Legally, how do resident aliens stand in comparison with citizens? How much do we "vex" them?

In most respects, they have the same status as citizens. They have the same right to live in physical safety, to win redress in our courts, to exercise freedom of speech, press, and religion.

They have the same guarantee against double jeopardy, self-incrimination, cruel or unusual punishment, the taking of their property without due process of law.

And they have the same duty to obey traffic laws, to live up to their contracts, to pay income taxes.

Nevertheless, they may lawfully be set apart in ways logically related to their lack of citizenship.

Thus, aliens are denied the right to vote. For, traditionally, the power of the ballot belongs only to those who, by birth or naturalization, are members of the nation's political partnership.

What about earning a living? Here, too, discrimination based on racial grounds is lawful. For example:

A law banning aliens from the liquor trade was held valid, because that occupation has a potential relationship to crime. The court said lawmakers might reasonably expect less regard for our laws from aliens, who do not share in the governing process, than from citizens, who do.

On the other hand, an effort to keep aliens out of the laundry business was held unconstitutional. The court could not see any peril to the public welfare in the mere doing of laundry by aliens. Pointing to the "equal protection" clause of the Constitution, the court said:

"The Fourteenth Amendment is not confined to the protection of citizens."

Roger Babson Says—

Expect Rough and Tumble Fights Between Labor, Management in '67

Babson Park, Mass. Things will be rough and tumble with management and labor during the coming year. On this, both antagonists agree. . . what with growing worry, on the one hand, about a mounting squeeze on profit margins and determination, on the other, to keep pay rates pushing constantly higher.

More Fact Openings Coming Up
There were fireworks aplenty during 1966, but there will be considerably more over the twelve months ahead. For one thing, upwards of 2,000,000 employees in firms having 5,000 or more workers will be involved in contract negotiations in 1967. This compares with less than half that number for 1966. Looming head and shoulders above the rest are next September's auto agreements, covering more than 614,000 employees of the Big Three. Negotiations will begin by mid-year.

While autos will doubtless catch the limelight, plenty of bigscale confrontations will be seen in other industries too. In March, contracts covering some 336,400 regional teamsters are due to expire, so that sparring in this line can be expected to become brisk soon after New Year's. There will be wage negotiations also during 1967 in telephone service, women's clothing, processed foods, hotel service, rubber (the Big Four), building, electronics (RCA), meat packing, office equipment, farm equipment, and machinery.

No Productivity Holds Barred
The productivity guidepost sanctioning wage increases of 3.2 per cent a year has long since been scrapped by both unions and employers. Perhaps the most convincing funeral dirge for the guidepost was sung when the airlines accepted a settlement providing a 6.5 per cent annual pay boost earlier this year, —just about twice the guidepost percentage, and there have been lots of other big annual pay increases that will spur unionists to go for all that the market will bear in both wages and fringes during 1967.

It should not be forgotten, either, that the federal minimum wage faces a hike from $1.25 to $1.40 an hour next February. This will not only give fresh encouragement to union negotiators seeking new concessions for low-pay workers in general, but will also start a whole new upsurge of wage adjustments to maintain differentials at all higher-pay levels. Rising living costs have already acted as a lever to hoist union demands, and they will continue to do so as long as the fundamental trend is toward higher ground. Unions will not hesitate to call strikes where they do not get what they consider a fair share of the profits pie. Nor will employers always give in easily during 1967, especially since the boom is showing signs of flagging. Stiffening on both sides when employment is at such high levels could mean quite a rash of strikes. . . despite indications that workers dislike to take the income losses caused by walkouts.

Labor Could Be Hurt
It is not safe to ignore the possibility of new legislation that would involve forced arbitration if deadlocks are prolonged. England tried such tactics, and the lid was clamped on by a Labor government. It could conceivably happen here. Meanwhile, neither management nor labor is going to act as though it might happen. Every possible wage hike will be sought during forthcoming bargaining, and at least part of the ensuing rise in product and service costs will be passed along in higher prices.

It is possible that rising costs and tight money will hold back capital expenditures over coming months enough to dampen the inflationary fires a bit. And there is still the possibility of tax increases, both personal and corporate, that could bring some deflationary influence. In any event, the coming battle will be a big one; and this time, labor—as well as the public—could be the loser.

More People Working Longer Hours

Babson Park, Mass. Most people take it for granted that more and more of the regularly employed are enjoying a steadily shorter workweek. They assume this from the fact that the Fair Labor Standards Act has set a 40-hour week for so many millions of the nation's workers. The feeling is that most people prefer leisure time to a higher income from working longer.

Actual Facts A Big Surprise
Studies made by the Labor Department, however, indicate that a significant and growing portion of our working force actually works more than 48 hours a week. Measuring the trend from 1948 to 1965, the total of men and women employed in nonfarm occupations for more than 48 hours a week has nearly doubled.

While these people do not make up a majority of the nation's workers, they are important. In 1948 some 4.8 million nonfarm employees were putting in more than 48 hours a week, and by 1965 this number had jumped to 9.4 million. This was an impressive jump from 12.9 per cent of the entire full-time nonfarm work force to 19.7 per cent.

Comparison With Other Labor Groups

For the same time period, there was a fair increase in the number of full-time nonfarm employees working between 35 and 40 hours, mostly the result of the Fair Labor statute. This proportion of the total non-agricultural labor reservoir moved ahead from 4.8 per cent to 8.2 per cent. The gain here was chiefly a result of the slide-off in the number working from 41 to 48 hours a week. Evidently many companies preferred to take on more workers or cut back personnel rather than pay time and a half.

The total of those working over 48 hours a week has increased sufficiently, however, since 1948 to offset the statistical changes in the other categories. Surprising result: Average weekly hours for the full-time nonfarm labor force have held at about 45, roughly the same in 1965 as in 1948. This is surely counter to the general impression.

Why This Strong Unexpected Tendency?

Why are between 9 and 10 million people, almost one-fifth of the full-time nonagricultural working force, at their jobs 49 hours or more every week? Why is the number climbing steadily? Who are these employees? Studies suggest that extraordinarily long hours prevail among employees in the trade and service industries, and in managerial, professional, sales, and private-house-

MOVIES

"Viva Maria"

The big news of the current cinematic year is the co-starring of the two great French fireballs Brigitte Bardot and Jeanne Moreau in the same picture.

"It couldn't be done," the experts cried. "There will be fearful fights. There will be jealousies. Hair will be pulled! Eyes will be scratched out!"

But it was done. No hair was pulled out. No eyes were scratched. And so another production achievement was chalked up for France's amazing young Louis Malle who is said to have pointed more new directions in pictures in the brief five years or so in which he has been in them, than have been pointed in two decades before him.

The result is the new super comedy "Viva Maria," which also co-stars George Hamilton, and shows Thursday, Friday and Saturday afternoon at the State Theatre through United Artists release. It is in Panavision and Eastman color.

"The Group"

Mary McCarthy's outspoken, provocative and certainly explicit best-seller "The Group," hold fields. In government and manufacturing, these are seldom opportunities for working longer than 48 hours a week, so frequently second or "moonlighting" jobs serve to raise the average of weekly hours worked.

There appear to be a good many, also, who are so interested in their work that they put in long hours consistently. This doubtless accounts for the sizable proportion of professional and technical employees, whose hours often range to 70-a-week and more. Many men and women in especially required or expected to be on the job most of their waking hours. This would explain the high incidence of particularly long workweeks among managerial employees.

One Feature: Rising Living Standards
There is one classification, mostly married men between 25 and 44, who work all possible extra hours because they need more income. In this category are many in low-pay industries and occupations, especially services and trades, who take more than one job to support a wife and children.

As long as living costs and living standards continue to climb, there is reason to look for further increases in the proportion of our labor force working above-average hours each week. Reducing permissible hours of work for more people is bound to mean more "overtime" and more "moonlighting." So the trend will continue toward longer hours a week for a large part of the work force.

is a "non-novel novel!"

So says screen veteran Sidney Buchman who produced Charles K. Feldman's motion picture treatment of the controversial tale, which shows Saturday night, Sunday and Monday at the State Theatre in Color by DeLuxe through United Artists release, and who adapted Miss McCarthy's No. 1 best-seller for the screen. It was made in its entirety in and around New York City by Famous Artists Productions and is said to be the most ambitious motion picture ever produced in the east.

Hard Work, But Worth It

These past five days have truly been a drain on the Gale staff with members working on several float committees for the parade Saturday.

Not only has the Gale staff felt these pressures, but many other functioning organizations have also been affected. Yet, this once-a-year rush more than compensates for the trouble it causes, for each organization that has enough time and manpower has a wonderful opportunity to represent the organization, and in a sense, the school in a very worthwhile project, giving joy to so many younger children and adding to the spirit of Christmas.

The time and energy needed to make an attractive and successful float is very enormous, but those who are now "slaving" will look back upon their work as some of the best memories ever made.

Blizzardettes Win
 By Donna Benson
 The Winters Blizzardettes defeated the Menard Yellowjackets at Menard Thursday night 43-31. Dora Snell was high point for Winters scoring 20 points. The "B" team also won their game 53-29. Joy Awalt and Debra Carroll tied for high point with 13 points.

The "A" team guards, Mary Lynn Pritchard, Babs Tatum, and Judy McNeill, did an outstanding job for the Blizzardette defense.

Entertaining, Informative Assembly

Atomic music and space music, combined with the common ukulele and guitar were the topics of entertainment during an assembly Thursday, December 1. Mr. Charles Ramsden, scientist, professional musician, inventor, traveler, and entertainer presented the program, which was sponsored by Southern School Assembly of Hollywood, California. During the program, Mr. Ramsden introduced new techniques of playing the two well-known instruments and demonstrated his own invention, the electronic novatar, the only instrument of its kind in the world. Assisting him during several of his demonstrations was a WHS student, Jan Johnson.

One of his most astounding demonstrations was one in which he used an ukulele and electronic equipment to produce a fourth dimensional sound.

An Editorial

Students of Winters High School have, for the most part, a school system in which they can truly be proud.

The records of previous students and ratings this school has obtained clearly point out that academic life in Winters is far, far superior to the average.

The presence of the new science labs, the shop, home economics, and band buildings, a well filled library, and the FFA systems remove any doubt of WHS lacking in opportunities, especially through equipment.

The athletic department needs only to point to the several show cases filled with trophies and citations of fine works to prove its excellence.

This and more WHS students can take pride in.

In one area, however, it is most evident, especially to students, that our school is definitely lacking. The fact is social life at Winters High is null.

Such becomes evident several times each year when organizations attend conventions, such as most recently been true of the Student Council.

In discussion group, the activity generally centers on the organization's responsibility in promoting school spirit and pride. Each school is asked to tell an activity that other schools could possibly use in promoting such good feeling.

Winters invariably finds it difficult to join in these discussions. Ideas range from dress-up weeks to all-school picnics to proms to faculty-student talent shows. Many, many successful ideas are discussed by many, many schools. Winters cannot contribute as much as most junior highs.

Opponents of extra curricular activities should realize that without development of sound social characters, all learnings made available to young persons will have been useless. Has the name Lee H. Oswald not proven this? Extra curricular activities promote better social adaptation as well as providing entertainment and memories.

We, members of the Gale staff, (as well as members of other clubs, organizations, and the student body) certainly do not think school should be one big party in any way. We must go along with the vast majority of students, however, and express our opinion that more activities would be in the best interest of Winters High School.

When your match goes out, be sure it can't come back. Be careful with fire and smoking materials when in or near wooded areas.
