HOME TOWN Talk

By R. C. THOMAS

Good-neighborship too often is associated with the fine art of posed-for-camera handshake greetings between individuals or groups from separate areas, countries or towns, pledging more and continued cooperation; staged pats-on-the-back affairs; and preplanned mutual admiration banquets, designed primarily for the publicity afforded by the resultant white-tooth photography which goes hand-in-hand with such turn-outs. Strong language this, perhaps, but we all know there is an element of truth there. Even though such do deserve notice and do serve an important purpose of drawing persons and areas closer together for the common good, the fact remains that there is always a perhaps unnatural phyness in the undercurrent.

As important as we all have come to accept such as the above, the basic fact remains that good-neighborship is not that at all. Good-neighborship is a conscientiousness of the existence of other individuals and communities and the acceptance of the truth that they are as important and necessary as ourselves and our own communities; good-neighborship is the interest we have in our neighbor; good-neighborship is the act of coming to the assistance of persons and communities and towns because of the need for the act itself and the natural tendency of humankind to lend a helping hand, without thought to resultant good publicity or making a name for oneself or community. Too often this basic reason is overlooked.

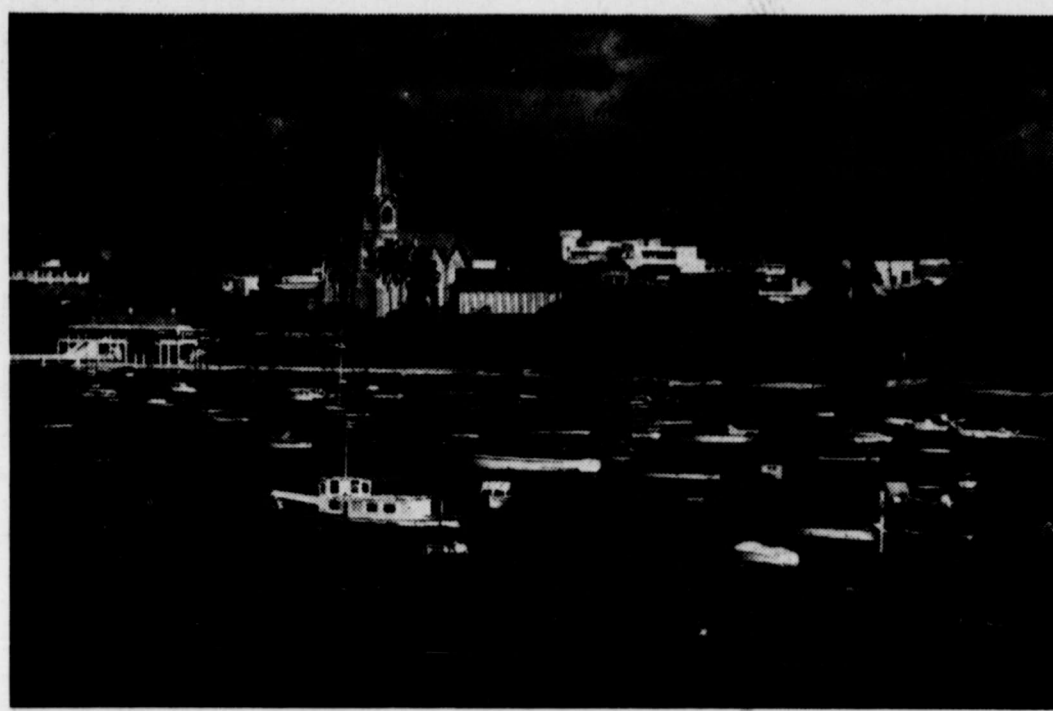

We say this in order to come to a point, to point up an act of good-neighborship which has received little publicity, in spite of the deluge of publicity accompanying the precipitation of the act—an "unseen tree in a forest" sort of happening. If we unconsciously "point with pride" in the accounting it is not with a thought toward accumulating favorable publicity for any individual or group—although they deserve it—but only to uphold the idea that good-neighborship is more than superficial.

Recently a person was reported lost and presumably drowned in Oak Creek Lake. The word went out, and volunteers from towns and communities from all over this area assembled at the lake to assist in a search. Little fanfare accompanied their going—in fact, few knew anything about it until after it was over—but a group from the Winters Volunteer Fire Department reported to the scene to offer their assistance. These men left their jobs, their places of business, their everyday chores, to lend a helping hand. How many and who, we don't know. This was duplicated in about every town and city in the area.

This is what we mean by good-neighborship—and it is repeated time after time—people helping people. Presentation of plaques, public handshakes and pats-on-the-back are unnecessary, and really meaningless in such instances. (Although many people deserve much more recognition than they get—but do not seek it). A "thanks" is much more important; and an even silent acceptance that love and a helping-hand attitude are a natural instinct of humankind.

William H. Shridan, mayor of the City of Sweetwater, said just that in so many words in a letter to the Winters Fire Department this week—not a flowery flamboyant publicity-oriented thanks, but an honest word of appreciation. His letter, in part, "It is most gratifying to know that men such as you can be depended upon to give of their time and effort, and we wish to commend each of you. We feel that you have gained the praise and admiration of the citizens of Winters as well as Sweetwater and we are deeply indebted to you."

Mrs. R. W. Balke of Winters bought a doll for her granddaughter, Tiffany, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. C. R. Davidson of Bastrop, La., back in October. Then came the word that many imported dolls sold in the U. S. were made of combustible materials and were dangerous. She checked, and, that's right, the doll was one of those and was left with the fire department in Bastrop. We imagine, though, that Tiffany got another doll from Santa Claus.

"Dateline: Tanzania"

Many Nations Are Represented In Population of Tanzania

By BILL PUMPHREY

Dar es Salaam, the "Haven of Peace," is the capital of Tanzania. The city was started in 1886 by Sultan Majid of Zanzibar and today retains much of its exotic past. The African Swahili (coast people) wearing white robes and red fez caps, the Indian men with their turbans and the Indian women with their flowing saris and the British and other foreigners in their tropical wear (white shirts, shirts and knee socks) emphasize the diversity of the people in this interesting city.

Mosques are well situated throughout the city and in the early morning and evening you can hear men in the minarets calling the faithful to prayer. Likewise there is St. Joseph's Cathedral on the harbor front and churches of almost all other faiths about the city. I found the Presbyterian Church to be the Church of Scotland here but only the name differs. At the Christmas morning service there were natives in their brightly colored robes, Scotchmen in kilts, young men in khaki shorts and various other kinds of dress in the congregation.

The Indians and Asians run the hundreds of shops throughout the city. Custom-made clothes, ebony and ivory carvings, leopard and zebra skin purses and shoes, antique chests from Zanzibar—the variety of goods to be found here is endless.

The architecture of the city is varied too. The Lutheran Church is reminiscent of the German period; many buildings have an Arabic style, possibly from Zanzibar; and the many banks and new hotels are as being home.

Winters' Comprehensive Plan

Engineers Lay Out Suggested Plan; The Rest Is Up To Winters' Citizens

Some years ago City officials and other civic-minded citizens, accepting the probability that the population of Winters would continue to increase within the next few years, thru natural increases and growth brought about by possible additional industrial and retail activity—recognized that steps should be taken in advance to accommodate this increase. They also realized that to wait until the increase became reality would hamper attempts to provide adequate services and utilities and accommodations which would be demanded by the increase.

Under advisement of many of the town's leading citizens, the City Council employed an engineering-planning firm, Bryant-Curington, Inc., of Austin, to make thorough studies of present-day Winters and community and to project, insofar as possible, the probabilities of the future. This the engineers-planners accomplished, and this month have presented the final in a series of reports and recommendations to the City Council.

In their final report, the engineers-planners pointed out that the success of the whole comprehensive plan is dependent on the attitude of the public and their response. They said that the suggested plans they have submitted should not be considered as absolute solutions to the problems which will face a growing Winters, but were so compiled as to provide flexibility in operation. They are meant only to be a guide, it has been noted.

Engineers-planners suggested modern as you would expect to find in any American city. The streets are narrow, wall-ed-in by two and three-story buildings. Cars travel in the left lanes and roundabouts (traffic circles) substitute for traffic lights. Coconut palms and "flame" trees are to be found wherever there is a little vacant ground. Flowers grow year round here and every traffic circle is a flower garden of many colors.

Oyster Bay is the main beach in Dar es Salaam. Here beneath palm trees on a coral sand beach I spent Christmas afternoon swimming in the warm, turquoise waters of the Indian Ocean. Christmas day was extremely hot in Dar es Salaam and the ocean breezes and surf were most welcome.

Dar es Salaam, like any national capital, has many ambassadors and representatives of other countries. Their residences are scattered throughout the city and can be distinguished by the flags to be found in front of each one. On the streets or in the shops can be heard many foreign languages. In addition to diplomats, tourists from all over the world visit Tanzania.

The shoe shine boys, so evident in Mexico, are not to be found here. Instead, there are vendors selling mangoes, plums, oranges, ebony carvings, fresh flowers, pineapples, paintings and even oriental rugs. As in Mexico, however, I had to bargain for my purchases, never paying the "asking" price.

Dar es Salaam with its perfect harbor, intriguing shops and interesting inhabitants is a splendid place to spend the holidays. It was almost as nice as being home.

that "most of the work in the plan was done to determine what the needs of the city will be in the future and to conceive a plan by which these needs can be met. A continuous program of improvements is an important asset to a city. The citizens will be aware of the work and their interest will be stimulated by frequent project completion.

"The Comprehensive Plan Programs have included studies of the past, present, and anticipated future, but the future is never certain; thus, each year the planned program should be reviewed to see what has been accomplished, reappraised in the light of the developments and trends of the present, and revised or rescheduled to meet future requirements. Quite often, a definite plan will stimulate the growth of a community to such an extent that most of the work planned will be completed many years ahead of the anticipated schedule.

"The forecasts are considered conservative, revenues may be available much sooner than anticipated for constructing improvements. The very fact that a plan exists will be a stimulant to industry and development."

WATER SYSTEM

Previous reports have covered recommendations regarding a water supply. To transport this water to the consumer, the engineers-planners suggested that transmission facilities, treatment plant, ground storage, booster pumps, elevated tanks, distribution system pipe lines and fire hydrants must be considered. The present distribution system would be entirely inadequate to meet future demand.

Committee To Study Plan For Runnels County Water

The job of finding a possible answer to the water supply problem faced by both Winters and Ballinger was handed to the Runnels County Water Authority, and from that board will be handed to a special steering committee to make a thorough study of the situation.

This action was taken at a meeting called by the RCWA last Thursday night in Ballinger to discuss the problem of a dwindling water supply and an ever-increasing demand for water by the two Runnels county towns.

Possible construction of a twin-city, or county, dam at the confluence of Elm and Bluff Creeks between Winters and Ballinger was foremost in the minds of some 75 Runnels countyans who attended the meeting Thursday night. Along with this suggestion came the recommendation that possibility of creation of a water control district in the eastern half of the county, similar to the Valley Creek Water Control District which embraces a large part of western Runnels.

The group handed the responsibility of appointing a committee to study the project to the RCWA, which was created by the State legislature. Chairman of the Authority, Tom Caudle, who presided for the meeting, said a steering committee would be appointed as soon as possible to study all angles of all propositions which were submitted at the meeting, with the special committee to report back with their recommendations on some future date.

Much interest was shown in a suggestion made at the meeting that a dam be constructed below the confluence of Bluff and Elm Creeks, almost due east three or four miles east of Hatchel. It was estimated that such a dam would impound as much or more water as both the municipal lakes of Ballinger, perhaps in the neighborhood of 10,000 acre feet.

No estimate of the cost of such a project was even broached at the meeting, but it was suggested that part of the financing probably would come through Public Law 566 which makes federal money available for flood prevention and municipal water supply structures. The rest perhaps through a bond issue.

Such a dam on Elm and Bluff would back up water to near the Winters Country Club, it was said.

County Agricultural Agent C. T. Parker pointed out during the meeting, however, that the site as suggested was only an "office survey." He said that from a contour map and a visit to the proposed site by interested persons, including himself, the site suggested itself as a good spot for such a dam.

Woodrow Hoffman, Soil Conservation Service representative, called Elm Creek "one of the better resources of water we have in this county."

Ballinger's mayor, Charles Clifton, said an engineer recently told him 35,000 acre-feet of water annually travels down Elm Creek through Ballinger and on into the Colorado River.

Along with suggestions to build a dam, it also was suggested that a Water Control District be organized to build floodwater retention dams on the tributary creeks and streams which flow into Elm and Bluff Creeks. These structures, in addition to restricting flood damage and erosion of valuable land, would return the two creeks to "live stream" status, with water running even during the dry months of the year in most years, it was suggested.

Such retention dams would be of great benefit to Winters' present lake, it was pointed out, because of the amount of silt which would be retained and prevented from settling in the lake. Since the completion of several such structures on Valley Creek in the western section of the county, it was said, water has been running over the spillway of Ballinger's lake most of the time during the past several months.

The suggestion that a dam be constructed to impound water from Elm and Bluff Creeks will not go without criticism, however, the group was warned. County Auditor Price Middleton, who heads the Ballinger Chamber of Commerce water committee, said, "There are people working to take the water that falls in your area, and use it somewhere else." He said his "good neighbor policy" was to provide for yourself first and let the other people take care of themselves.

"If we can control these two streams in Runnels County as much as 85 percent, we'll have plenty of water," Middleton said.

Winters' Mayor W. M. Hays told the group that "Winters, like Ballinger, needs more water. We have no acute problem but that doesn't mean we're not going to. If we can nail down water in Runnels County, we need to get at it. That's what we came down here from Winters for—to nail down water."

Mayor Hays promised that Winters would give every bit of cooperation possible in trying to settle the water problem.

Neal R. Oakes, president of the Winters Chamber of Commerce, said his organization and the town of Winters as a whole would offer and give cooperation to any feasible suggestion to the solution of the water problem facing Runnels countyans.

Dale King, representing U. S. Rep. Omar Burleson of Abilene, offered help in a study of the problem. He pointed out that under old laws of federal assistance a time-lapse of more than 10 years could be expected in reaching such a goal, from beginning of study to project completion. This time has been cut to about three years under present laws, it was explained.

Entered in the "B" team tournament will be squads from Ballinger, Sweetwater and Coleman, in addition to the host team.

An "outlaw" game, featuring the Winters Independents versus the Sunset Stage team of Abilene will climax the day's basketball. This game will begin at 8:30 p. m. in the WHS gym.

State Capital Highlights—
Cooling-Off Period In Effect In Controversial Rule Change Fight

By—Vern Sanford
Texas Press Association

Texas House of Representatives is operating under far-reaching new rules. And a cooling-off period has been called in a controversy over whether both houses should revise joint procedures.

House of Representatives voted 145-0 for a modernized rulebook.

Key changes reduce the number of House committees from 43 to 25, after this session; inaugurate a modified seniority system; and set up a calendar system to determine the priority rights of bills ready for consideration.

Three days deep in the 60th Legislative session the House also approved 145-0 a proposed set of joint rules to govern matters involving both houses. This included Speaker Ben Barnes' proposal to limit conference committees to adjusting differences in bills passed by the two houses, rather than writing new legislation.

Another major provision calls for joint committees to hear budget requests and perform some housekeeping functions.

Still another would require that a conference committee meetings be open to the press and the public.

Lt. Gov. Preston Smith turned a cold shoulder to the conference committee restriction, long advocated by Barnes. Smith said the Legislature has too many more important things to do than squabble over rules.

According to some House tenants, Barnes feels that a majority of the Senators favor his proposals. Smith pointed out that rules can be approved or amended only by a two-thirds vote.

So, the House version on joint rules is expected to spend an extended cooling-off period in a Senate committee.

If the House recommendations are not accepted, Barnes made it clear that he will regard his own conference committee appointees as duty bound to adjust differences only. If Senate conferees are not so restricted, he readily admitted an impasse may be reached when the first controversial piece of legislation goes to a conference committee.

LEGISLATIVE MEASURES READY

Major legislation now in the hopper includes:

A constitutional amendment by Rep. Travis Peeler of Corpus Christi to permit revision of the state constitution by sections, on submission by the Legislature.

Authority for cities to levy local option one-per-cent sales taxes by Rep. John Traeger of Seguin.

A minimum wage bill ($1.25 an hour) with Sen. Joe Bernal of San Antonio and Rep. Lauro Cruz of Houston as main sponsors.

Legalization of mixed drinks by Rep. Jake Johnson of San Antonio.

Abolishing the death penalty for crimes by Rep. Ronald Bridges of Corpus Christi.

SENATE TERMS DECIDED

In a drawing to determine the length of terms of members of the Texas senate, required by the legislative reapportionment, these Senators will serve four-year terms:

Joe Bernal and V. E. (Red) Berry of San Antonio; Wayne Connally of Floresville; H. J. Blanchard of Lubbock; Chet Brooks and Criss Cole of Houston; Tom Creighton of Mineral Wells; Roy Harrington of Port Arthur; Grady Hazelwood of Amarillo; Jack Hightower of Vernon; Don Kennard of Fort Worth; Oscar Maury of Dallas; Dave Ratliff of Stamford; Jack Strong of Longview; Murray Watson of Waco; and J. P. Word of Meridian.

Those drawing two-year terms include:

A. M. Aikin of Paris, Jim Bates of Edinburg; Joe Christie of El Paso; Hank Grover (Republican) and Barbara Jordan of Houston; Ralph Hall of Rockwall; Dorsey Hardeman of San Angelo; Charles Herring of Austin; Bill Moore of Bryan; George Parkhouse (who says he won't run again) and Jim Wade of Dallas; Bill Patman of Ganado; Bruce Reagan of Corpus Christi; A. R. Schwartz of Galveston; and Charles Wilson of bdx botl.

COMMITTEES NAMED

House veterans were selected by Speaker Barnes to head major standing committees.

Reps. Bill Healy of Paducah and Maurice Pipkin of Brownsville again will be chairman and vice-chairman of the budget-writing appropriations committee.

Reps. Ben Atwell of Dallas and Huson Moyer of Amarillo will serve another term as chairman of the tax-drafting revenue and taxation committee.

Reps R. H. (Dick) Cory of Victoria and Charles H. Jungmichel of La Grange are No. 1 and No. 2 on the workhorse state affairs committee.

Head of the powerful new House rules committee, which determines the order in which bills will be brought to the floor for consideration, is Rep. Randy Pendleton of Andrews. Vice-Chairman is Rep. Honore Ligarde of Laredo.

AMENDMENT VOIDED

Austin District Judge Herman Jones has held invalid the November 8 vote on a constitutional amendment to require annual voter registration.

Jones said the amendment's purpose was not properly described on the ballot which carried only the proposition to or not to "repeal the poll tax as a voting requirement." It was misleading, according to Judge Jones, because it failed to say that approval of the amendment would institute annual registration.

CURIOSITY CALLS and little Jonathan Hinchliffe nuzzles with a full-grown puma. Danger is minimal, however. The animal is stuffed.

He pointed out that bills are unconstitutional if the Legislature does not give a clear statement in the title indicating what the bill does rule and this also applies to constitutional amendments.

Opponents of the amendment, the AFL-CIO, wanted to replace the poll tax with permanent voter registration.

Jones' ruling will be appealed to a higher court, says Atty. Gen. Crawford Martin.

INSPECTION DEADLINE

Col. Homer Garrison Jr., director of the Department of Public Safety, has warned Texas motorists that the 1967 vehicle inspection period is two-thirds over and only about one-third of the vehicles have been inspected.

"This means that during the 12 weeks remaining before the April 15 deadline for inspections, more than twice as many persons each week must have their car inspected to avoid long lines forming at the end of the period," Garrison said.

Garrison also got in a recruiting plug for the department, pointing out that accepted applicants for the Highway Patrol may enter employment immediately without waiting until the next patrol-training school begins, as has been the practice. There are jobs available immediately for men 20 to 25 years old. Applicants may sign up for written exams at any of the regional, district or sub-district DPS offices.

APPOINTMENTS ANNOUNCED

Trueman O'Quinn of Austin and Fred V. Klingeman of Kames City have been named by Gov. John Connally to vacancies on the Third and Fourth Courts of Civil Appeals at Austin and San Antonio.

Other appointments include: Anees A. Seman of San Antonio as judge of the 175th District Court in Bexar County, succeeding Judge John F. Onion, now a member of the Court of Criminal Appeals;

Edward R. Paynter of Abilene as 42nd district attorney, to fill the unexpired term of Bradley C. Miles;

Former State Rep. John Mobley of Kilgore as an administrative assistant to the governor; and

Henry Lauderdale of Mercedes to succeed the late Lewis Boggus of Harlingen on the Tuberculosis Advisory Committee.

ATTORNEY GENERAL
RULES

Texas Water Development Fund can be used to help finance recreational facilities connected with the municipal dam and reservoir at Clyde (Callahan County), says Attorney General Martin.

In another opinion Martin ruled that tank bottom oil chargeable back to a lease as part of the producers' allowable is taxable under the crude oil production tax.

GOVERNMENT CATALOG

A Catalog of State Services to Local Governments has been printed and is ready for distribution, says Governor Connally.

Book is being sent to all state legislators, all Texas mayors and all county judges in the state.

Catalog lists 148 programs of services to city and county governments, 86 of which the state finances entirely with state funds. Twenty-seven of them are federal-state programs administered by the state with dual funding, and 35 of them are substantially or wholly financed by the federal government through the state.

SHORT SNORTS

Governor John Connally, lambasting William Manchester's "Death of A President" as a propaganda instrument, announced he will compile his own version of President Kennedy's tragic 1963 visit to Texas. . . . Col. Homer Garrison, veteran Department of Public Safety Director, has been named to the national motor vehicle safety advisory council formed by President Johnson. . . . if we had a responsible individual who would take care of our money, pay our bills on demand, sending a part of our money to a distant state in payment of bills, keep accurate records and account to us for the amount left after each settlement and at the same time would lend us money at reasonable rates? But, is there an individual anywhere who would be willing to undertake such performances? This bank is able and willing to perform all the services enumerated and many more. We wonder sometimes if our friends and customers know all the things we are prepared and willing to do for them. Only a bank with ample capital and supervision is equipped to perform even the meager demands of the average customer.

An invitation is given to test our skill in meeting demands as a conservative bank should.

A 25th Anniversary Salute to the 500,000 star-spangled Americans who work for this country's security without pay

The U. S. Treasury Department sells about $4 1/2 billion worth of Savings Bonds every year.

Yet no one ever tries to sell you Bonds on the phone. Though you rarely see them, there are about 1/2 million patriotic Americans who will help you buy Bonds. Have been, since the first Series E Savings Bond was issued 25 years ago.

Your banker, for instance. He'll give you folders and facts, issue your Bonds, make certain they're properly registered, cash them when the time comes.

Your employer and thousands of other employers who have set up the Payroll Savings Plan are also on the team. So are the officials of your union who have endorsed Bonds.

There are many others. Like your neighbor, the advertising man, and the radio, TV, poster, magazine and newspaper people he works with.

All of these volunteers work for the Bond program without pay. You can do your part, too. Buy U. S. Savings Bonds.

Supt. Christian To Attend Forum In San Angelo 24th

Robert F. Christian, superintendent of Winters schools, will attend an Education Service Center forum in the board room of the San Angelo public schools Jan. 24.

This will be one of the meetings associated with the establishment of 20 regional media centers in the state, tentatively approved this week by the State Board of Education to study the projects of education under State and Federal programs.

The plan, given preliminary approval by the State Board, would set up 20 regional education media centers throughout the state to provide these basic services to schools:

—A materials lending library containing 16 and eight motion pictures, slides, filmstrips, remedial and instructional materials, and disc recordings.

—Services to reproduce transparencies, slides, filmstrips, and charts.

—A magnetic tape duplicating service.

—A system to deliver and disseminate materials and services.

—Also professional leadership training services to the districts to coordinate media and curriculum.

—The gathering and use of materials that will supplement the curriculum of local school districts.

These are the services each center must provide, but there are three others which the centers may provide:

They are equipment repair service with local school districts paying for the services; a service of evaluating new equipment, materials and techniques, and a service staff to reproduce transparency masters, charts and other services.

Locations of the Regional Media Centers in each of the regions will be established by the action of the Regional Media Board, subject to application by the State Board of Application.

Regional boards will be comprised of five or seven members each, with members elected by members of the Joint Committee (composed of one representative from each participating school district) for a term of three years.

A Regional Media Board must develop and approve an annual budget for the operation of its center; approve all fiscal arrangements, policies and arrangements; formulate policies governing the operation of the center; and make annual reports covering all activities to the Commissioner of Education, among other duties.

Preliminary plans call for an allotment to each center (from the Minimum Foundation School Fund) an amount not exceeding $1 for each scholastic in districts participating in the program, provided districts pay to the center an equal amount.

Funds provided by the state will be used only to purchase materials or equipment for the center as approved by its Board and the Texas Education Agency.

Any public school district in the state may participate in the program by action of its board of trustees, payment of its proportionate share of the cost, and compliance with the policies established by the State Board of Education.

Winters will be in District 15.

AS IT LOOKS FROM HERE

Omar Burleson, M. C.
17th District, Texas

Presidents from George Washington to Lyndon Johnson have interpreted their Constitutional duty to report to Congress on the State of the Union.

General George Washington came from the White House to the Capitol in a gilded coach, accompanied by officers of State and members of the Military in full dress uniform. The Grand ceremony which marked his initial address drew angry criticism from many quarters. Some said it resembled too much a speech from the throne which the King of England gave each year to the British Parliament. One of Washington's most severe critics was an anti-Federalist editor who wrote that, "Future, and perhaps rapacious Presidents may be the dark and despotic Caesars of America."

Washington ignored the criticism and continued the high ceremony that marked his first State of the Union Address throughout the eight years of his Presidency.

Jefferson was sensitive to criticism and set the precedent 12 years later of staying away entirely.

Incidentally, the record does not suggest that George Washington was dictatorial or king-like in his address to the Congress. In one instance, having made a suggestion, he promptly added, "It rests with the wisdom of Congress to correct, improve or enforce this plan of procedure."

A President is required by the Constitution to report to the Congress on the State of the Union. He does not have to do it every year, but only when he pleases, since the Constitution says, "from time to time."

Nevertheless, one such address has been given each year since Washington's time, except in 1933. In that year the date for taking office was moved up from March 4 to January 20. Had outgoing President Herbert Hoover continued in office until March, it is said he would have prepared the address. Franklin D. Roosevelt, being new in office in January, declined to report on the State of the Union. James A. Garfield and William Henry Harrison were the only Presidents who never prepared a State of the Union Address. They died before their first occasion to do so.

A President can meet the constitutional requirements by sending a message in writing to be read by a clerk. In fact, Woodrow Wilson, in 1913, was the first President since John Adams in 1800 to give the State of the Union Address in person. Thomas Jefferson in 1801 started the practice of absenting himself, which was to endure for more than a century. He sent a private secretary to the Capitol to read his annual message to Congress.

One hundred and twelve years later, Woodrow Wilson went before the Congress himself to read his message. He said that he was glad to verify, "The impression that the President of the United States is a person, not a mere department hailing Congress from some isolated island of jealous power."

Millions of people saw President Johnson appear before the Joint Session of Congress last week. Most will likely agree that he came without pomp and ceremony, dressed like any businessman and using simple language in presenting his message.

How far the President should go in spelling out legislation to be passed is a question as old as our Country. Major differences in State of the Union addresses from Washington's time to the present reflect the differing attitudes of Presidents with respect to power they should exercise over Congress. Nevertheless, the duty of the President to suggest laws is clearly set forth in the Constitution. It is a matter of opinion, but from the record it appears that about one-third of the 36 Presidents have been aggressive in urging new law and policy. A half-dozen or so have been reticent,

FROM THE AIR, it might look like any middle-sized city. But it is Saigon, capital of war-torn South Vietnam, and itself rocked frequently by bloody Viet Cong terrorist attacks on what appear to be peaceful streets.

THERE'S LITTLE CHANGE in the scene on New York's well-known Bowery at the corner of East First Street. "Bowery Bums" still rummage through garbage cans for junk to trade for a meal ticket at a mission house.

INSURANCE RATES CHANGED

A 7.3 per cent across-the-board increase in title insurance rates, the first jump since 1962, has been approved by the State Board of Insurance.

Increase, which became effective on January 1, is based on a formula that board actuaries worked out in 1962.

At the same time the Board approved a general statewide reduction of four per cent in crop-hail insurance rates.

Reduction was approved when the Board okayed a filing by the Crop-Hail Actuarial Association of Chicago proposing rules, rates and forms for the 1967 growing season.

Plans were submitted by engineers-planners for a system of distribution lines through which water could be transmitted to consumers. Basically, present distribution lines would be retained, and would be discontinued only when removal or enlargement was necessary. Additional distribution lines would be installed with the thought in mind of the future requirements which would come about through increase in population and subsequent increase in water use.

Many of the water distribution recommendations are being followed at the present time when the water department makes changes or additions in the system; instead of duplicating the pipe size which is being added to or changes, larger lines are being installed with a thought toward future demands.

Considerable thought has been given to the renovation and updating of the sanitary sewer system. The present system is slightly below the standards which have been set for a city of the size of the present Winters, and the engineers-planners, along with the City Administrations of the past several years, have realized this. Plans and suggestions have been made for enlargement and modernization of the system, not only to meet present demands, but in anticipation of future growth.

Paving came in for considerable discussion by engineers-planners, who along with most civic-minded leaders in the community, have anticipated an even greater growth in the future few years than has been realized in the past many years. Engineers-planners dwelt at great length on a capital improvement program, making suggestions which, if following even in a slight degree, would keep Winters more or less abreast of a growing State and Nation.

As engineers-planners and the City Administrations of the past several years have pointed out, none of the recommendations or suggestions contained in the several reports and the final analysis which has been submitted within the past month contain a complete and concrete solution to the problems of growth demands which will face Winters in the next few years.

REV. AND MRS. ROY L. CRAWFORD

Rev. and Mrs. Roy Crawford Honored Sunday At Reception On Anniversary

Observing their Golden wedding anniversary, Rev. and Mrs. Roy L. Crawford were honored at a reception Sunday afternoon from 2 to 4 o'clock in the parlor of the First Methodist Church.

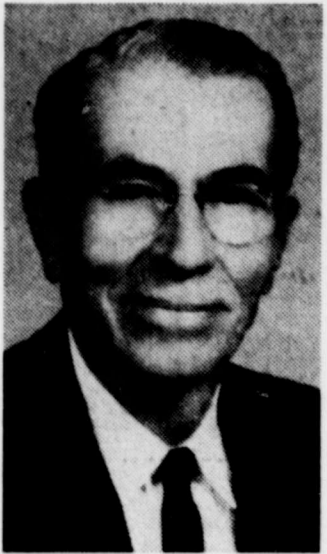

In the receiving line were Rankin Pace and Jarrett Pace of Austin, brothers of Mrs. Crawford, the Rev. and Mrs. Crawford and Mrs. Rex Russell of Midland, cousin of the couple.

Others in the house party were Mrs. Rankin Pace, Mrs. Mary McKiel, who registered the guests. Presiding at the table was Mrs. Jarrette Pace of Austin, who served the three-tiered cake decorated with golden bells and butterflies. Mrs. M. E. Leeman and Mrs. Ralph Lloyd, poured coffee. Mrs. John L. Placke of Austin and Mrs. D. W. Williams ladeled punch. Others assisting with the serving were Mrs. I. W. Rogers, Miss Lucy Kittrell, Emaleta and Glenda Cole.

Gifts were shown by Mrs. Ladd Davis and Mrs. E. C. Collingsworth. The Rev. Edward H. Orwell said good-bye to the guests at the exit of the church. Mr. Crawford was born at Itasca in Hill County, and Mrs. Crawford at Salado in Bell County. They were married Jan. 14, 1917, in the home of her parents, Mr. and Mrs. J. B. Pace in the Pumphrey community.

The Rev. Crawford was an active pastor in the Central Texas Methodist Conference for 40 years. He served as member of the commission on finance

The plans are drawn up only as basic recommendations which can be followed, a "base camp" from which to explore the possibilities of future community frontiers. As has been pointed out by various persons who have been closely associated with the idea of an "on-paper" Comprehensive Plan for Winters, the very existence of the plan would tend to provide a stimulant when preparations are made to meet the future needs of Winters' citizens and the needs of the present.

If a Man Answers, Don't Hang Up!

Men are sometimes operators, too. So if a man answers, don't hang up. That is the word from General Telephone Co. of the Southwest and the Southwestern States Telephone Company, serving Winters, as company-wide training programs were announced. The training is designed to acquaint personnel with new traffic procedures inaugurated in recent months to improve service.

L. L. Porter, traffic director for both companies, explained that all management people have "their turn at the switchboards" and the current training program is scheduled to begin this month and end about April 1.
