Roger Babson Says—

Of Nation's 78,000,000 Work Force,
About One-Third Are Women

The Role Of The Working Wife

Babson Park, Mass. A recent study by the National Industrial Conference Board takes a realistic look at the role of the working wife in America today. The survey brings to light many questions that should be of interest to families at all social levels. . . and suggests many answers that may not jibe with those of women contemplating a king jobs to "double" the income their husbands are making.

The Working Mother With Children

With prices so high and still climbing, many young or middle-aged housewives with children are already holding down regular jobs outside the home for economic reasons. But their experience has not always been as helpful as they expected it would be, for reasons that may not have occurred to mothers currently thinking of going out to work. Scanning some statistics on this situation, we find that often the salary a mother had thought she would add to her husband's "take" has somehow evaporated to an alarming degree before it got into her market basket.

For instance, a woman who takes a job paying $15,000 a year to add to her husband's $20,000 may well find that she ends up contributing only about $3,300 to the family till. Where does this sizable difference disappear to? Well, if she has two children and is not blessed with a mother or mother-in-law willing to do indefinite standing duty, she will probably have to lay out as much as $5,000 a year for a full-time housekeeper or nurse. Then there are such items as carfare or the upkeep of another auto, extra clothing lunches, and taxes. And, usually not considered in advance the mother will have no time to hunt for retail bargains and ferret out short cuts that will hold housekeeping costs down.

Conditions, Of Course, Vary Widely

While this means that many a working mother will be surprised by how slight her addition is to the household "kitty," there are many situations in which it is eminently worthwhile for a wife to hold a job, whether full-time or part-time. When children are older and at school or college, there are more incentives for a woman to go outside the home and make use of her talents. In the first place, the cost of household help at this particular time can be greatly reduced and perhaps entirely eliminated. Hence more of the extra salary can be directed toward the education of the children, time-saving appliances, and boosting the family's standard of living generally.

Despite the fact that many young women believe their place is in the home, taking care of the children and of the house, there are a surprising number of women who want to take economic advantage of their education and training as soon as reasonably possible. Such girls consider their college experience wasted unless they use it to help the family economically. They feel also that they are healthier and in better spirits if they can find stimulating work.

How Many Wives Are Now Actually Working?

The gradual extinction of prejudice against females in various segments of the social and economic order has now become so complete that women are accepted in almost any role. Out of the country's total labor force of about 78,000,000 approximately 25,000,000 are women working today. Of this number, about 60 per cent are married and many of them have children. The trend toward an ever-greater movement of women into the full-time labor force may be expected to intensify over the years immediately ahead, particularly in view of the manpower shortage in so many different significant fields.

Part of the upward pressure will stem from the higher edu-

Education being attained by more and more American girls, suiting them for a wider diversity of jobs. Greatest concentration will probably continue to be in the higher-pay-bracket families. At present, of families with incomes of over $15,000 a year, some 40 per cent have two incomes. You can expect working women to become more numerous, more sophisticated, more capable—and more highly paid—as educational opportunities are made more readily available to the economically de-

SUCCESS THROUGH COOPERATION

In search of gold, the Forty-Niners crossed the continent in covered wagons. A few found wealth, but all found danger, hardship and adventure.

One unwritten law of the long trail was that all who passed that way were to be helpful to each other. The spirit of cooperation played an important part in the early development of our country and we still have need of it today. Men still strive toward wealth and independence, but more reach their goals by wise money management than by any other way. A bank account with this dependable and conservative bank may be, and often is, helpful to the banking public of this area.

Is meat buying an easy job for you? If you are like most shoppers, you may find the trend toward giving ordinary beef cuts exotic names—and usually higher prices—leaves you bewildered.

You are faced with such meat cuts as rotisserie roast, California steak, boneless undercut steak, his 'n' her steaks, treasure steaks, butterfly steak, as well as the many standard name cuts.

There is nothing wrong with new or different names or cuts, as long as you know where these cuts come from so they can be prepared properly.

Cuts from different parts of the carcass vary in tenderness and therefore, should be cooked differently. For instance, most fluts from the rib and loin of USDA Prime, Choice and Good Grades may be oven-roasted, broiled or pan fried.

Less tender cuts—those from the flank, plate, brisket, and fore Shank regardless of grade—need long slow cooking with moist heat to become tender.

Price is also an important consideration in buying meat. Often the meat cuts with exotic names are the less valuable cuts which have been cut or trimmed differently and given fancy names to go with fancy prices.

Price variations on these luxurious-sounding cuts as compared with standard-name cuts may vary from a few cents to as much as thirty cents per pound.

For example, the beef chuck, one of the least expensive wholesale cuts, contains several muscles—most of which require moist heat cookery to make them tender.

A chuck, therefore, can be cut into a variety of steaks and roasts, but giving these cuts fancy names does not change the fact that they should be cooked with moist heat for real eating satisfaction.

What should you do to make sure you pay a fair price for the cut you select? One way is to learn which part of the carcass various cuts come from and the relative value differences between them. If an unfamiliar cut appears in the meat case, ask the meat man what it is and where it came from in the carcass.

Decide first what kind of meat dish to cook, then select the cut and grade which best fits this dish in quality and price. A wise shopper learns to identify the cuts that are real bargains. And she knows what grades mean and how they can help her to pick the quality she wants, to compare prices, and to get the most for her money.

You can get the help of a meat specialist—a man who makes a profession of identifying the quality of meat—when you select meat which has been graded by the U. S. Department of Agriculture.

A specialist who performs this service is an official of USDA's Consumer and Marketing Service. The packer pays C & MS for his services.

Last year, USDA meat specialist graded more than 11 billion pounds of beef—about 60 percent of total beef production.

In addition, there are USDA grades for veal, calf, lambs and mutton.

Gift Tea Honors Miss Minzenmayer

A gift tea was held in the basement of St. John Lutheran Church Jan. 7, honoring Miss Shirley Minzenmayer, bride-elect of Rodney Hambright of Ballinger.

Mrs. Freddie Bredemeyer registered guests in the bride's book, and Mrs. George Pruser Jr. introduced the honoree. Her mother, Mrs. Edgar Minzenmayer, and the mother of the bridegroom-to-be, Mrs. Joe Hambright.

A centerpiece of a small bride doll escorted by a boy doll dressed as a sailor centered the linen-covered table, flanked by blue candles and blue crystal candle holders. Coffee was served from a silver service and punch from a crystal service. Vases of blue flowers were placed in the room.

Miss Brenda Presley provided piano music during the afternoon.

Other hostesses were Mrs. Willis Whittenberg, Miss Estella Bredemeyer, Mrs. W. W. Ahrens, Mrs. Jerry Holle, Miss Zella Wade, Miss Kay Green, Mrs. Edward Bredemeyer and Mrs. E. H. Holle.

Goal Digger Club Met In Johnson Home Monday

The Goal Digger Club met in the Johnson home Monday evening with Jan Johnson serving as hostess.

The club voted to sell balloons for the March of Dimes Saturday, and have a car wash project on the following Saturday.

Members present were Jan Johnson, Susan White, Mae Bower, Donna Gehrels, Carolyn Phelps, Lenda Fuller, Kay Lyn Rives, Carla Davis, Janis Grey, Linda Smith and the sponsors, Mrs. Johnny Wilson and Mrs. Hal Dry.

For the busy homemaker, time is money.

It pays to prepare many potato dishes with dehydrated, frozen, or canned potatoes rather than fresh ones, says Mrs. O'Connor.

You can have your potatoes mashed, French fried, au gratin, scalloped, hash brown—or in the form of puffs and soups—from processed potato products that require less of your time and attention.

Preparing frozen potato puffs, USDA food specialists found, took only 3 minutes compared with 55 minutes if you start with unpeeled fresh potatoes. Frozen au gratin potatoes required only one minute, au gratin potatoes from fresh potatoes 32 min.

Taste panels have rated most of the processed products just as tasty as dishes made from fresh potatoes. American families must agree with them, because the amount of the U. S. potato crop going into these products has tripled since 1956.

In nutritive value, process and fresh potatoes are similar except for fat content. Processed potato products contain more carbohydrate and minerals and less protein than fresh potatoes. This is not critical because potatoes are not a major source of protein in U. S. diets.

The main nutritive difference is that frozen potato products take up more fat while frying. Frozen French fries, for example, contain about 19 to 20 percent fat when served. You can cut down on the fat content by reheating frozen French fries in the oven. They will contain about 8 to 16 percent fat, which shoestring types containing more than regular or crinkle cut forms.

MRS. CHESTER PUCKETT

Marilyn Elaine Beard, William Chester Puckett Recite Marriage Vows Sat.

Winters Church of Christ was the setting for the marriage Saturday at 7 o'clock in the evening when Marilyn Elaine Beard, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. George M. Beard, became the bride of William Chester Puckett. Parents of the bridegroom are Mr. and Mrs. Barney C. Puckett.

Glen E. Gray, minister of the church, officiated for the double ring ceremony before the altar where two tall candelabra entwined with greenery and satin ribbon bows held white lighted tapers. Baskets of white gladiolus were at either side. Lighted candles on styrofoam base, surrounded by greenery, marked alternating pews.

Mrs. Joe Smithwick, soloist, sang "I Pledge My Love." She also joined Ted Griggs, Mike Taylor, Sharon Varner, Sharon Hogan and David Roberts to sing "Father, Hear the Prayer We Offer," and "Whither Thou Goest."

Presented in marriage by her father, the bride wore a re-embroidered Alencon lace wedding gown embellished with an English net cage over a peau sheath with round neckline edged with lace. Lace appliques enhanced the long sleeves and detachable train which was edged with satin. The hemline of the dress was also edged with satin. Her veil of silk illusion fell from a cluster of re-embroidered Alencon lace and orange blossoms. She carried a bridal bouquet of feathered carnations and white orchid atop a white Bible presented to the bride by her parents.

A reception was held in the home of the bride's parents, Mr. and Mrs. George M. Beard, 206 Park Lane.

The bride's table laid with white lace was centered with the bridal bouquet, surrounded with the long stem roses carried by the bridesmaids, flanked by white candles in crystal candelabras. The three-tiered decorated cake was outlined with hot pink rosettes at the base and topped with bride and groom. The punch, hot pink, gave emphasis to the chosen color scheme.

Robbie Davidson of Austin ladeled punch and Mrs. A. E. Patton of Lubbock served the cake. Mrs. Denny Aldridge of Austin registered the guests.

Others in the house party were Miss Jeanie Owens, Miss Robbie Davidson, Mrs. Waymon Pistole, Mrs. James Colburn, Mrs. Lee Harrison, Mrs. Jim Smith and Mrs. Homer Hodge all of Winters.

For her wedding trip to San Antonio, the bride changed to a two piece blue ensemble with black accessories.

She is a 1965 graduate of Winters High School and was cheer leader, class favorite, a member of the FTA and girls basketball team. She is enrolled as a sophomore business major at Abilene Christian College.

The bridegroom is also a 1965 graduate of Winters High School and was a member of the Blizzard football team, basketball and track team. He is attending McMurry College as a sophomore student and two-year letterman's Club, and Alpha Sigma Chi Social Club.

Mr. and Mrs. Puckett will make their home at 1902 South 18th Street in Abilene.

The bridegroom's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Barney C. Puckett hosted the rehearsal dinner at Huffman House.

Employers of Farm Workers Required To File Tax Form

Employers of farm workers are required to file Form 943, Employer's Annual Tax Return for Agricultural Employees—1966, and pay over their share of Social Security taxes plus amounts withheld from employee wages, on or before January 31, 1967, Ellis Campbell, Jr., District Director of Internal Revenue for northern Texas announced today.

These taxes applied to cash wages of $150 or more paid to each employee in 1966 or on cash wages in any amount even though under $150 in 1966, if the employee performed agricultural labor on 20 or more days during the year, Mr. Campbell said.

The rate of tax is 4.2 percent for the employer and 4.2 percent for the employee or a total of 8.4 percent on the taxable cash wages paid.

A "Crew Leader" is treated as an employer under the law for the purpose of these taxes the director said.

AS IT LOOKS FROM HERE

Everyone knows what Sherman said about war. It is, of course,

War is a dirty and unfortunate business wherever it is and whoever is doing it. Those who are loudest in their protests of our bombing in North Viet Nam are using the story of their most recent emotional appeal.

Recently, four women representing the "United States Peace Movement" were permitted to visit North Viet Nam. On their way back to this Country they stopped off in Moscow. A news dispatch quoted one of the women, a Mrs. Grace Newman, as saying, "I feel dirty. I am ashamed of my Government."

At about this same time another news story came out of New Orleans. It had to do with 88 American citizens who had just been airlifted from Cuba. They were the first group of those repatriated to come home after long and tedious negotiations with the Castro Government.

"I am the luckiest girl alive," said a young housewife as she came down the plane's ramp. "Freedom, Freedom!" cried a mother, holding two children in her arms. Another woman was helped off the plane into a wheelchair. "It will be wonderful to start a new life," she said.

The contrast in these people is striking. One woman who had never known anything but freedom in her own Country was permitted to go to Hanoi. She feels dirty and ashamed of us. These citizens from Cuba, having lived under Castro's Communism, are profoundly grateful for the opportunity of returning to the United States.

Perhaps the good lady, Mrs. Newman, should be given the opportunity to spend a few years in Cuba under a sort of government which North Viet Nam would impose on the South part of that Country.

Another news reporter for the New York Times, Harrison Salisbury, was permitted to go to Hanoi and sent back stories which are now admittedly the propaganda line of the North Viet Nam Government. The emphasis, of course, is on the fact that some civilians have been killed by our bombing. The fact remains, however, that fewer civilians are being killed or injured in this war, even on a percentage basis, than any other in ancient or modern history. This is not to justify a war. It does show, however, that these people use this propaganda to support their advocacy of peace at any price.

It would seem that these people should also lament and decry the fact that Viet Cong terrorists have killed thousands on multiplied thousands of South Vietnamese. There is no accurate estimate of just how many.

At about the same time of the publicity of civilians in North Viet Nam being killed by our bombing, the Viet Cong smuggled a Claymore mine into a bus and killed Vietnamese women and children.

Similarly, the Viet Cong descended on a village that was showing signs of being friendly to the South Vietnamese, and brutally killed a number of women and children and destroyed their huts.

These acts have been going for years, committed by both the Viet Cong and North Viet Nam regulars in their guerilla warfare. There is no doubt that the terrorists in South Viet Nam, under the direction of the Hanoi Government, have by grenade, mine, rifle mortar, knife and other hand weapons killed more civilians many times over than have the bombings in North Viet Nam. They are killed, not because they happen to be near a strategic target, but as an example to others.

Not to bomb oil centers, rail yards, supply lines or any other installation which gives the enemy more ability to kill Americans, Vietnamese, Australians and New Zealand soldiers, and others from 15 nations, is to betray them.

"MAYA"

One of the most unique and fascinating motion pictures ever brought to the screen, "MAYA" new King Bros. production for Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer, is at one and the same time a thrill-packed, pulsating adventure-drama, the warm story of the friendship between an American and Hindu boy who set out together on a perilous quest, and finally, a breathtaking experience in the jungles, mountains and exotic cities of India in settings never before photographed for a feature film.

"MAYA," which stars Clint Walker and Jay North and introduces the talented twelve-year-old Indian actor, Saïd Kahn, was filmed in Technicolor and Panavision entirely on locations in southern India. Here is unfolded the moving story of Terry (Jay North) who comes from Wyoming to visit the white hunter father, Hugh (Clint Walker), whom he has always envisioned as a hero, only to find him a coward terrified of wild animals after having been clawed by a man-eating tiger.

Clint Walker plays a white hunter, with Jay North cast as the son who comes to India from America to join his father in "Maya," thrill-packed King Bros. adventure drama. The Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer picture was filmed in Panavision and Technicolor entirely on locations in southern India.

"Not With My Wife, You Don't!"

Audiences about to see "Not With My Wife, You Don't!" will know the moment the picture begins that they are in for a laugh treat.

That fact is signalled by a variety of interest-stirring film techniques such as Pop Art, Op Art, animation and superimposition which start the picture. Norman Panama, producer-director of the new Warner Bros. release, due to show Saturday night, Sunday and Monday at the State Theatre, chose sparkling screen techniques as the way to give his movie a contemporary look and, at the same time, plunge onlookers into the racy story of "Not With My Wife, You Don't!" The new comedy in Technicolor is Panama's first venture as a producer after 25 years as one of Hollywood's most successful and imaginative writer-directors. He is also co-author of the original story and the screenplay of "Not With My Wife."

FROZEN MIST puts nature's decoration on tree limbs at Horseshoe Falls at Niagara, forming a picturesque frame for the giant cascade that is one of this continent's oldest and most popular tourist attractions.

Recently I was standing on a dock on Lake Austin, watching several fishermen patiently waiting for catfish to bite. With me was a friend from out of state. Suddenly one of the anglers had a bite and hooked into a nice fish.

It fought like a catfish, deep and grudging. But soon it came thrashing to the top and the fisherman captured it in his net. "Oh," my out-of-state friend remarked "you've caught yourself a drum."

"Nah," the fisherman snorted. "Just an old gasper."

Actually, both of them were right. A "gasper" is a freshwater drum. But gaspergus is the nickname most Texans know it by.

Regardless of what you call it, the gaspergus is one of the least-understood of all Texas fishes. Anglers catch them occasionally, mostly when bottom fishing for catfish or crappie.

The Family Lawyer

A public service feature of the American Bar Association and the State Bar of Texas. Written by Will Bernard.

RELUCTANT BRIDEGROOMS
Shotgun weddings may be good melodrama, but they are bad law. For a marriage is a contract. "I do", if not spoken freely, is not a true consent. No consent, no contract. A man should not be forced to choose between a wedding and a funeral.

Of course, a real shotgun is seldom used nowadays. But there are plenty of lesser pressures that may push a reluctant bridegroom to the altar.

Consider a common situation. The girl faces the prospect of becoming an unwed mother.

At first the man involved is unwilling to marry her. But her family bombards him with arguments ("You have a duty toward the baby") and entreaties ("Be a man"; "Do the decent thing").

Finally he yields and goes through with the ceremony. Is such a marriage valid?

Indeed it is. The pressures on the man, to choose between marriage and dishonor, are not so overwhelming as to amount to duress in the eyes of the law.

Now suppose that, in addition to such pressures, there is also a threat of criminal prosecution ("Marry our Nell or we will have you arrested"). Even then if the man submits to matrimony, he is ordinarily bound by his decision. He has weighed the two alternatives—marriage and probable imprisonment—and made his choice.

In fact, even a threat of physical violence does not always invalidate the nuptial ceremony.

Thus, a court upheld a marriage that occurred two days after the girl's brother had threatened to kill the bridegroom. The court pointed out that he had plenty of time, between the threat and the wedding, to either leave the vicinity, or to get police protection.

Doubt has been expressed as to the wisdom of enforcing vows so grudgingly given. But by and large, the courts see more good in it than harm. This reflects a traditional concern for the unwed mother and the illegitimate child.

"Making the fellow marry the girl" commented one judge bluntly "seems to me the right and proper course."

But very few fishermen go forth to catch gaspers and nothing else.

Actually, there are scant few fishermen who know enough about gaspergus to catch them consistently.

Veteran fishermen will tell you that one of the best times to take gaspers is when a river is rising. There's something about a flooding stream which prompts the gaspers to start biting. They prefer still, deep holes and the bait most are caught on is ordinary earthworms. However, they will hit minnows occasionally.

Fact that the gaspergus is closely akin to the croaker family, explains the weird croaking noise one makes. Many a time, fishing on a still night, we've been over a deep hole in a river and heard this mystic croaking. It seems the fish were following the boat around, croaking right below us.

If you ever catch a gasper there's no chance of you confusing it with any other fish. The gasper has an unusual appearance all its unmistakable own. It is silver in color with tiny dots sprinkled around under its blunt nose. It has an overly large, fan-shaped tail, a humped back and eyes that are large and bright. Both anal and dorsal fins are unusually strong.

Ichthyologists say that not only is the gasper one of the few fishes able to emit sounds, it also is the loudest. This distinctive grunting or croaking comes from the sudden forcing of air from one section of the air bladder to the other. When dressing one, you'll find an exceptionally large air bladder in its belly. This air bladder can be removed without deflating.

Another peculiar characteristic of the gasper is the two roundish crushers in the fish's throat, used to crush food before it enters the stomach. Many children call them lucky stones. They are flint-hard and motivated by strong muscles. The gasper is capable of crushing a clam in its throat.

An average-size gasper will range between two and three pounds, although occasionally he brought the fish to the net. But much to his surprise he didn't have a bass. It was a 12-pound gasper.

Gaspers are capable of growing quite large, although anything past ten pounds is rare. Largest one I ever saw was a 19-pounder caught on a drop line. Another jumbo weighed 15 pounds. It was caught by a white-bass angler while bouncing a silver spoon along the floor of Lake Buchanan.

The gaspergus has many homes and a distinctive flavor. Some people say it tastes good; others claim it is gamey.

One of the best methods for preparing a large gasper is to bake it. Scale or skin, sprinkle with salt and pepper and coat thoroughly with lemon juice. Next wrap in foil and bake until almost done. Then the fish can be removed and cooked outside the foil with barbecue sauce added if desired.

On smaller ones, cut off the heads, roll in corn-meal and fry a golden brown. Make them crisp enough so the small bones will crackle and can be eaten. Some people soak them for an hour or two in vinegar before cooking, to remove some of the gamey flavor.

One of the secrets of making a gasper suitable for the dinner platter is to dress it immediately upon catching. If a gaspergus is allowed to sit idle for any length of time, it absorbs the strong stomach flavor.

So, dress it promptly after taking it from the water.
