By R. C. THOMAS

Little League baseball is good training. As someone has pointed out, it not only is good training for the boys swinging the bats and running the bases . . . it is good training for the parents of these boys. They say it helps some parents to realize that Junior is not, either, infallible or immune to mistakes (the same mistakes all of us may have forgotten we made at that age).

But primarily it is good training for the boys; here, perhaps for the first time, they learn the value of teamwork; they learn—or should—the importance of proper attitude when winning; they also learn—or should—the importance of proper attitude when losing. (Some of us who are older could take a lesson from their acceptance and display of understanding when losing, and determination to try harder next time. They have not yet been bitten, deeply, by the "win, win, win, regardless," bug).

Little League, even though the season may be really too short for the effort sometimes expended, offers many boys an outlet for post-school season energies, by providing organized and supervised summer recreational activity . . . which many of them wouldn't get without the League . . . in a sport which has a tendency to grab the interest of most every boy in the community and the nation. Many of these boys would be idle for the 6-7 weeks were it not for Little League.

Many of these boys make a pretty good reputation for themselves during the summer Little League season . . . on the mound, behind the plate, at second base, in left field . . . and at bat. Some of them develop the so-called "baseball knack" to the extent that they play on the field is above the average, and more or less attain a leadership position in the eyes of the others; the action of some is mediocre; and some of them are downright fumbler on the field, even though the desire to excel is there. Every boy is different. Some of the kids who turn out for Little League baseball seem naturally inclined, with inborn ability; some don't have the ability and will never have it, but want to play baseball anyway. The trick (and a knotty one it can be, especially when looking for a winners' trophy) is to recognize the latent ability and help to develop it, and to also recognize a desire, even in the absence of ability, and in some way fulfill that desire. Little League provides an opportunity for both—that is the reason for its existence.

Also, the success of a Little League project demands the attention and the energy and the effort of many people. Without these, it would be a flop before it ever got off the ground. The program demands not only team managers and assistant managers, but people who work behind the scenes on promotion, arrangements, finances—and it costs to organize and operate Little League. Winters has been fortunate in this respect, because there have been many people who have pitched in and offered their services. It has meant some amount of personal sacrifice on the part of every individual connected with Little League, but the results have been well worth it. The community in general, and the parents of the boys who are in Little League in particular, owe those people a great big vote of thanks. People in other ventures are always being honored and thanked publicly . . . perhaps it wouldn't be a bad idea for all the parents and the rest of the community to say "thank you" in public to those who put Little League over.

Intent upon today and perhaps mildly apprehensive of tomorrow, we normally burn very little energy in remorse, regret or recrimination over our yesterdays, and about the only time we are depressed by realization that some of our youth obviously was wasted, is on press day when one of our duties is bundling papers for mailing and we think of the many opportunities we had to learn the technique of tying a package without holding the end of the string in our teeth.

FIRST PLACE — The Yankees led the pack in Little League baseball play this summer, with a 12-3 record for the season. Two of the games lost were lost by two runs, with the third lost by one run. Leading batter for the Yankees was Mike Fowler, who hit .676 for the summer. Billy Albright led the team in runs scored with 28.

and Vernon Grand led in the pitching department with 5 wins and no losses. The three captains for the team were Jay Henderson, Oscar Torres and Billy Albright.

Head Start Open House Planned Aug. 1st, Program To End Friday, Aug. 4

The Head Start program in the Winters School will complete the scheduled eight-week term Friday, August 4, with an open house planned for Tuesday evening, August 1.

George Beard, principal of Winters Elementary School, who has been director of the summer program, said the open house will be held in Rooms 5, 6 and 7 in the north wing of the Primary school building, and that the public, as well as parents of children involved in the Head Start program, is invited to attend and see some of the results of the summer's work.

Beard said the program will close out Friday, August 4, with an indoor picnic in the cafeteria for the children and their parents.

There have been ten paid staff members working with the program this summer, in addition to the director, and from three to six volunteer workers daily.

The director said that all children have been given dental examinations, and medical examinations, and have been given polio vaccine, tuberculosis skin tests, and have received immunization shots for smallpox and other diseases. Two of the pupils have received tonsillectomies while the program was in the progress.

The Head Start Program, financed with federal funds, is aimed at preparing underprivileged, pre-school age children for entry into the public school system for the first time. The program is not confined to children who will start to school in the first grade in September, however. Beard said that of the 45 children enrolled this summer, 35 of them will begin school this year; the other 10 will have to wait another year before starting to school because of sixth birthdays coming after September 1.

Beard said that the children who have been enrolled in the Head Start program this summer will be better prepared to enter school in September. He said they have gained self-confidence and have learned to adapt themselves to school surroundings, and to become a part of class groups, which will be of immense value when they do enter the public school. In fact, the director said, some of these children will be leaders of their grade classes when they do begin school because of the training they have received this summer. Whether this posture will be retained is conjecture, it was indicated. Some of the children who were enrolled in the first Head Start program in Winters will be entering the third grade this year. Beard said he did not have a comparative report at hand which would indicate the total value of the summer Head Start program when integrated with the children's first two years of regular schooling.

In addition to the training for the children in the Head Start program, mothers of the children have met once each week for discussions and educational work under the supervision of the county home demonstration agent, Mrs. Juanita O'Conner.

Federal funds which had been granted and earmarked for the Winters summer Head Start program had not been received this week, but it was understood that the money had been received, or would be received within the next few days, by Central Texas Opportunities, Inc., the area clearing house for all "poverty" program projects.

Coaches Off To Coaching School At San Antonio

Winters High School coaches, L. G. Wilson, Bill Grissom and Bud Busher, will attend the annual Texas High School Coaches School which is in San Antonio July 30 to August 4. Coach Jerry Neely, who recently joined the staff in the local school, is attending summer school and will be unable to attend the coaching school.

Several notable instructors have been scheduled for the school this year, including John McKay of Southern California, and Doug Dickey of Tennessee, who will instruct in football. There also will be instruction in basketball, track, baseball and training.

Climax of the school will be the All-Star basketball game between the North and South squads Wednesday night of next week, followed by the All-Star football game Thursday night.

All indications point to a new attendance record this year, to break the record enrollment of 4,677 set in Houston last year.

Jimmie L. Hoppe Receives Masters At San Antonio

The degrees were presented at the summer graduation exercises in Thiry Auditorium at the College at the close of the first summer session.

Sgt. Jerry L. Davis, son of Mrs. S. E. Davis of Ballinger, was recently promoted to Staff Sergeant E6, according to information received by his wife. Mrs. Davis, the former Carolyn Green and little son, Jerry Lynn are making their home in Winters while her husband is in Vietnam. He is stationed at An Khe, with the 545th M. P. Company, First Air Cavalry Division.

RECEIVES PROMOTION

Under provisions of the program, a swimming supervisor will be entitled to $300 per month, with helpers to receive $1.40 per hour.

Bill Baldwin and Mike Hays will be unpaid volunteer instructors for the swim program.

Swimming classes will be held from 10:45 to 11:45 daily at the municipal pool, and the program is restricted to children of families meeting the "poverty" program criteria, with income of less than $3000 per year, it was stated. Children from families with higher incomes do not qualify for the free swimming courses.

War Bride Visited "Old Country" After Many Years, But Glad to Return Home

It had been about ten years since Mrs. Dale Thompson of the Maverick Community had been "home." But after a visit to the place of her birth—Germany—she said "it sure was good to get back to the good old USA," and "Texas never looked better."

Mrs. Thompson, nee Leni Wenderoth, came to Runnels county in March of 1948; she and Mr. Thompson were married at Bronte March 13, 1948, and now live in the Maverick Community. They have five children, Marvin, Manfred, Donald, Norma Jean, and Marla Leigh. Dale Thompson is the son of L. B. Thompson of Maverick.

On May 18 Mrs. Thompson left for a visit with her family in Witzhausen, Germany. She flew from Dallas, via Chicago and London, to Frankfurt, Germany.

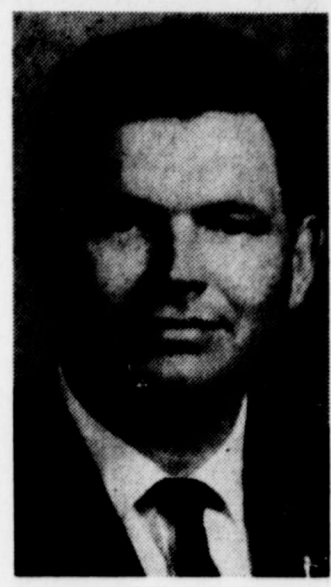

Arriving in Frankfurt, she traveled by car on the autobahn from her home town, Witzhausen. "My first impression was that everything was so deep green in contrast to West Texas," she said. On her last visit to Germany about 10 years ago, she said there were not nearly so many cars; but on this trip, "I noticed there was heavy traffic everywhere and very fast driving on narrow pavement, even through small villages and towns."

She spent several days in the "beautiful State of Hessen," visiting relatives and friends. "We had several rainy days and I was so happy with the rain that I put on boots and umbrella and walked around in it."

At the end of May she drove to the Rhine River by way of the old city of Braunfels with its castles, and watched tug boats pulling barges upstream. "The river is at its narrowest here and the water so swift the loaded barges could not make it on their own power." She described the vineyards on the east side of the river as "almost straight up, for many miles. I do not see how people can work on such steep slopes. I was told that some kind of farm machinery is even used to cultivate the vineyards." They also visited the city of Ruedesheim.

She visited the famous Cathedral in Ulm, and then drove to the foothills of the Alps.

In Germany, she said, "it was a good thing we took advantage of the sun for it rained for four days, constantly, and the temperature was in the upper thirties. I had to borrow

Beat Ralls 15-4

All-Stars Won Seymour Game

The Winters All-Stars defeated Ralls, 15-4, to advance to the Section 1 Finals in the Southern Senior League tournament at Seymour Wednesday night.

Sam Scott went all the way on the mound, and added to this a homerun with three men on base.

WINTERS LITTLE LEAGUERS DEFEATED BALLINGER ON WAY TO SEYMOUR FINALS

The Senior Little League All-Star, from the Winters Little League Association, won the Ballinger All-Stars in a district tournament game at Wingate Monday night, winning a trip to Seymour for further contests.

Pat Pritchard and Lynn Billups accompanied the boys to Seymour. Winters merchants and others paid expenses for the All-Stars' trip to Seymour.

2 Winters Women Attend WSCS Meet In Georgetown

Two Methodist women from Winters, Mrs. Eva Kelly, 104 W. Pierce, and Mrs. M. L. Dobbins, Route 4, were among the 200 from Central Texas Conference who attended the Woman's Society of Christian Service school of Christian Mission held last week on the campus of Southwestern University at Georgetown.

Mrs. Winslow Dahnke was Dean of the School. This year's theme was "Christian Unity." Mrs. R. W. Bickham of Fort Worth, is president of the Central Texas Conference Woman's Society.

Much of the time was spent in study groups. Topics included "Ecumenicity," "Man and Community," "Christ and the Faiths of Men," and "Japan."

Wingate Man Is Recovering From Vietnam Wounds

W. C. Dunn, son of Mrs. Lena O. Dunn of Wingate, is recovering from wounds received June 29 in Vietnam, while on duty with the 101st Airborne Division.

Dunn was dismissed from the hospital July 17, but had not been returned to active duty as of the last report.

He is stationed at Duc Pho.

she said. One of the towers has recently been opened to the public, "and I enjoyed walking up narrow steps to the top and viewing the town from there."

On June 17, she and her group went by train to Bremen and Oldenburg, and made a Sunday afternoon excursion to the North Sea. "We watched people swimming in what was to me very cold water. In fact the breezes from the sea were too cold for me with even a sweater on. I took a bad cold."

On one afternoon side-excursion, she visited the locks in a nearby ship channel, and saw workmen lift heavy loaded barges from the harbour to the ship channel, which is about 10 yards higher than the harbour.

Taking advantage of every moment of her visit, "I crammed as much as possible in the last few days. One nice warm sunny morning we took a long walk in a nearby forest, just like we did as teenagers on Sunday afternoons." On another day, "we visited a lookout on a mountain top. From there you can see miles and miles of forests with only the red roof tops of the little villages to break the green."

Mrs. Thompson started home on June 27. "It was hard saying goodbye to parents, brothers, sisters, many friends, old neighbors and to that beautiful country. But my own family and Texas never looked better. It sure was good to get back to the good old USA."

National Debt Amounts to $1,880 For Every Man, Woman and Child

Babson Park, Mass. Last month Congress voted to increase the federal debt limit to the staggering total of $365 billion. This gives Uncle Sam a green light to borrow even more and could well lead to additional hefty expansion of non-federal public debt and of private debt.

Ballooning Federal Debt

It may be assumed that avoidance of fiscal crisis was the big motivating factor in the Administration's request for authority to create additional debt; but the size of the increase and the relative ease with which it passed Congress points up the fact that deficit financing is certainly in no immediate danger of losing favor in Washington. Time was when no federal debt could be created without a specific enabling act of Congress, identifying and limiting the purpose or program which the debt was to finance. Now—and for many years past—the Secretary of the Treasury has blanket authority to borrow, subject only to an over-all limitation by Congress which we call the "federal debt limit."

Deficit financing has been an easy road for Washington to follow. As a result, our federal debt—which amounted to $34 billion in 1940—is now seven times that amount. On a per-capita basis it has expanded from $400 to $1,880, despite the fact that since 1940 our population has increased by about 65 million.

All Public Obligations

State and local governments, too, have been finding it convenient to "borrow from tomorrow" in financing a wide variety of projects and programs. As a result, total public debt in the U. S. has been rising at a fairly rapid pace during the past quarter century. In the decade from 1956 to 1966, these debts of all governments in our nation rose from $348.5 billion to $475.8 billion, — and advance of 37 percent.

However, those who defend this rapid rise remind us that in the same 10-year period the Gross National Product jumped 76.4 percent. Because of this unprecedented economic upthrust public debt relative to GNP stood at 64 percent last year, compared with 83 percent in 1956.

What Corporations and Individuals Owe

But private debt — consisting of the unpaid financial obligations of both corporations and individuals—has taken the biggest jump of all. In 1956, private debt stood at $482.6 billion. By last year, it had climbed 120 percent to $1,063.4 billion. When we add all the debt — public and private—it comes to the back-breaking total of $1.5 trillion, — up 85 percent from 10 years ago. This is about double our entire Gross National Product.

How Serious Is The Burden? Are our debts approaching a dangerous level? Unquestionably they are. The increase alone in the amount of these debts should give cause for concern; in addition, the ratio of the debts to assets is itself unfavorable. But probably we are still some distance from a breaking point because the real burden of any debt depends on the productivity behind it, and several times in the past our total debt relative to the GNP measure has been higher than it is today.

However, unless the rise in debt is curbed, we will be in peril if we should have a serious economic downturn. It is difficult and costly, but we are still able — on balance — to make repayments on our debts, whether they be long-term federal borrowings, state bond issues, corporate obligations, or installment obligations. It all boils down to this: "Borrowing from tomorrow" is popular and can be justified — up to a point. But it is always foolhardy to borrow without carefully considering one's ability to repay and without allowing a good margin for contingencies that may arise to gravely reduce one's capacity to repay. Debt itself should not frighten us, but over-indebtedness should be avoided like the plague.

Year of Great Deficit

Our government's New Year has just begun. It will end June 30, 1968. Economists, legislators, accountants, financiers — and just plain citizens who have been watching the U. S. spending spree shift into high gear — are shocked by the prospect of a federal deficit that may hit the $30-billion mark for this fiscal year.

Despite this towering evidence of budget mismanagement, our Administration and our Congress continue to amble along a path of business-as-usual. Here and there you hear of the upcoming deficit as the "greatest in peacetime." Unfortunately, the nation is engaged in one of the biggest, though undeclared, wars in our history.

Highway To Inflation

Remember the days of President Franklin Roosevelt? He took office at the depth of our most severe depression. His "brain trust" (that was before the time of the Council of Economic Advisers) recommended that he spend a great deal more that would be taken in through taxes. This was called "priming the pump". The idea was that the additional dollars spent by Uncle Sam would find their way into consumers' pockets, and hence "prime" the business "pump." Hopefully, prosperity would be restored.

Both President Roosevelt and his advisers were sorely disappointed. Business and employment did pick up slowly for some years; but there followed the severe depression of 1937-1938. Unemployment climbed back to a staggering 9 million. It did not subside substantially until World War II vastly stimulated demands both abroad and at home. Despite controls, higher taxes, and price ceilings, wartime deficits created huge additions to U. S. money supplies. At the end of hostilities, our tremendous monetary expansion provided a broad highway to inflation. Wages and prices truly exploded.

Repeat Performance

Right now it looks as if we are going to have a repeat performance. The Federal Reserve is upping the money supplies of the nation at an 8 percent yearly clip. This at the moment when the government is heading toward a $30-billion deficit. The combination of an easy-money policy and a huge "pump priming" makes a renewed surge in prices almost a certainty.

That is what all the "hollering" will be about in the weeks just ahead. The "kickoff" was done the last week in June by Mr. Martin, head of the Federal Reserve Board, calling loudly for an income tax increase. Then Mr. Ackley, top man in the President's Economic Council, got into the bigger-tax lineup.

Heavy Opposition To Bigger Taxes

Despite the formidable support and prestigious names plumping for increased income taxes, there is no guarantee yet that Congress will vote them — at least not soon. Many legislators are not convinced that rising money supplies will produce an automatic pickup in total business. They do not agree with the Council of Economic Advisers that the coming fourth quarter will bring a sizable upswing in sales and profits.

Newspaper readers throughout Texas soon will be seeing long columns of type about important issues as Secretary of State John Hill begins to advertise the six proposed constitutional amendments to be voted on November 11.

Fourteen additional amendments will be on the 1968 ballot. Eight of the 20 amendments are of interest mainly to special groups (eg: legislators or state employees). Eight others would provide local governments with new powers or duties. Only four of the group directly affect most Texans.

Amendments to be voted on this year will appear on the ballot in this order:

No. 1, House Joint Resolution 3, to permit counties to put all tax money in a single general fund rather than dividing income in specified amounts among separate funds for earmarked purposes as is now required.

No. 2, HJR 37, allowing cities and other governmental units within hospital districts to levy taxes for participation in mental health and mental retardation community centers.

No. 3, HJR 17, revising the veterans land program and authorizing a total of $400,000,000 in bonds to finance continued purchase of farm and ranch land by veterans, including those who have served in Southeast Asia during present hostilities.

No. 4, HJR 6, authorizing counties to pay medical, doctor and hospital bills of county law enforcement officers injured in line of duty.

No. 5, HJR 12, authorizing a $75,000,000 state revenue bond issue for the development of state parks and recreational areas. Bonds are expected to be financed by a small admission fee.

No. 6, HJR 27, permitting state officers and employees to hold non-elective positions under the state or U. S. governments where there is no conflict of interest and where the state might benefit.

That's all for '67. Top interest in these amendments doubtless will center on the park bond proposal and the veterans land amendment.

Hospital mental health and mental retardation groups will emphasize the importance of Amendment No. 2 to the new community center approach of treating mental patients close to home.

Calling the 1967 election for Veterans Day and a Saturday, undoubtedly, was to assure a large voter turn-out for the land fund amendment. A substantial campaign to urge its passage already is taking form. Gov. John Connally is the principal backer of the parks bond issue. Last December he unveiled a 10-year plan for acquiring and developing 150,960 acres of recreational lands and historical sites. This would more than triple present state park acreage and open a variety of new facilities for outdoor recreation.

Only opposition to the amendment to date has been based on the $1 a car park-entry fee, initially proposed by Connally to finance the vast program; and scattered complaints that facilities included in the governor's master plan do not adequately serve some areas of the state.

He is expected to spearhead an intensive fall campaign—supported by parks, recreational and outdoor groups—to put over the bond issue.

The veterans land amendment would add another $200,000,000 to state bonds previously authorized and through which 350,300 veterans have purchased farm and ranch properties at low interest rates spread over a 40-year pay period.

This amendment would raise the amount which could be borrowed under the program from $7,500 to $10,000. The program was initiated in 1949. Additional bonds were approved by voters in 1951 and 1956. Amendments to enlarge the bond authorization were rejected at elections in 1963 and 1965. Opposition came mainly from Dallas and Houston.

Proponents emphasize that, while thousands of veterans have benefited from the program, it has cost the state no money and actually has turned a profit of $2,500,000 a year while providing an expanded land market.

Opposition has adopted the argument that it is not the function of the state government to engage in the loan business and that veterans have had plenty of time to participate. Some also contend that "cheap money" invites purchases of land not needed and which will not be put to productive use.

Amendment No. 2 specifies that the legislature, in providing for creation of hospital districts does not have to require that the districts assume full responsibility for community mental health and retardation centers and services. It would permit cities and counties to levy taxes and issue bonds for such services. Subdivisions within existing districts would be authorized to do so unless statutes creating the districts expressly prohibit.

An attorney general's opinion held that the constitution does not allow political subdivisions within the boundary of a hospital district to levy taxes for medical and hospital service. Under that ruling, cities and counties located in such districts were restricted from participating in establishment of community health centers. Therefore, only hospital districts could establish such centers, a key part of the mental health program.

Usually you can spot an expert pleasure boater by the condition of his trailer.

Why?
Because he knows that a full summer's fun afloat can depend on a reliable trailer—one with tires, wheels and bearings properly serviced.

Even the very best trailer wheel bearings need to be cleaned and repacked periodically. Especially should this be done before starting on a long trip. Ideally it should be done as soon as possible after the wheels have been submerged in water. But how many boat owners do this? They are few and far between.

Furthermore, there's a correct way to do the job of greasing wheel hub bearings. Whether or not you do it yourself, here's how it should be done.

First of all, when pulling hubs off the axles, do so gently. Turn them a little to help the grease retainers slide off without harming their working edges.

Second, wash the removed bearings in a petroleum solvent and wipe the old grease from the hub interiors with a clean, soft cloth.

Then, inspect the cleaned bearings and races for signs of wear or corrosion, taking care to keep out all grit and dirt.

Trailer-pulling boat owners should remember that after trailer for any distance, trailer bearings become very hot. While in this condition, dunking the wheels in cold water will either crack the bearings or the swift cooling and contraction will suck in water.

Since there are various kinds of greases available, be sure to get one that is clearly labeled for wheel bearings.

Put a spoonful of grease in the palm of one hand and press the bearing cages into the grease to push the lubricant in between the rollers.

Then, put a layer of grease around the inside of the hub bores. Don't fill the hubs completely because when they warm up on the road, excess pressure will build up behind the seals.

Finally, after re-installing hubs and wheels, tap the dust caps on carefully. Make sure they go on straight and fit snugly.

A final word of caution — a high-speed bearing failure will cause your trailer to start swaying. So, listen for squeaky wheels. Each time you stop see if the hubs feel hot. Both are danger signs!

MRS. BUDDY WAYNE MILLER (Photo by Little)

Garlinda Jo Crouch, Buddy Wayne Miller Wed At Southside Church

Mr. and Mrs. Buddy Wayne Miller are on a wedding trip to Ruidoso, New Mexico and Carlsbad Caverns following their marriage Friday evening at 6:00 o'clock at the Southside Baptist Church.

The bride, Garlinda Jo Crouch, is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Garland H. Crouch and the bridegroom is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Wayne Miller of Novice.

The Rev. Virgil James, pastor of the church, officiated for the double ring ceremony before the altar flanked by large floor baskets with arrangements of pink and white gladioli.

Traditional wedding music was played by Mrs. C. R. Knight, pianist, who also accompanied Betty Knight, soloist, to sing "Oh Promise Me" and "Because."

Carlton Parks served the groom as best man and Danny Killough was groomsman. Ushers were Wesley Crouch and Marvin Miller.

Gwen Crouch, sister of the bride, was flower girl. Mrs. Carlton Parks was matron of honor and Brenda Prine was bridesmaid.

The bride is a graduate of Winters High School and the bridegroom finished Jim Ned High School. He is employed by Walker Well Service at Lawn. Mr. and Mrs. Miller will reside at Lawn.

Many brides and brides-to-be, when buying their first set of dishes, will find themselves smothered in countless terms and styles. Here are a few hints for prospective tableware buyers.

"Sets" of dishes can be bought for as little as $25 or $30. But a "set" may mean 54 pieces of earthenware, 45 pieces of malamine, or 57 pieces of fine china. In fine china, incidentally, a single plate may cost $100 or a set may cost only $20.

Prices quoted in a variety of ways. A "five-piece place setting" consists of dinner plate, dessert or salad plate, bread and butter plate, and cup and saucer. A "six-piece place setting" consists of the same articles, plus a soup or fruit dish. A "starter set" has four-piece settings, each consisting of a dinner plate, dessert or salad plate, cup and saucer.

"Service for eight" (or twelve) means anywhere from 45 to more than 100 pieces, depending on the number of pieces in each place setting and the assortment of serving dishes such as platters, creamer and sugar bowl and coffee pot.

"Open stock" refers to single pieces, individually priced. This enables you to start small and add gradually without buying extras you don't want—and to replace broken pieces. Most moderate and higher-priced dishes are sold in open stock. If your pattern is not a current number, however, you may have to wait months for a special order. And "open stock" is no guarantee that a pattern won't be discontinued.

Figuring the average price per piece is one way to compare prices when the units are not alike. However, design has a significant effect on price. Price reflects the amount of skilled labor involved, too. Up to 70 percent of the cost of making fine china goes to crafts-flower girl wore a wristlet of pink carnations.

Given in marriage by her father, the bride wore a tiered lace empire design dress fashioned with bell sleeves edged with wide lace. Her shoulder length veil of illusion fell from a crown accented with seed pearls. She carried a white colonial bouquet of feathered carnations surrounding an orchid.

A reception was held in the Fellowship Hall at the church, hosted by the parents of the bride.

The bride's chosen colors, pink and white, were given emphasis in table decorations with centerpiece featuring a large white wedding bell, bows of satin ribbon and miniature bride and groom.

Linda Whittenberg and Mrs. Elwood Wade ladeled punch. Mrs. Roy Rice and Mrs. James Rossen, cousin of the bridegroom, served cake. Guests were registered by Zola Crowley.

For traveling the bride changed to a navy blue suit with white accessories.

The bride is a graduate of Winters High School and the bridegroom finished Jim Ned High School. He is employed by Walker Well Service at Lawn. Mr. and Mrs. Miller will reside at Lawn.

As It Looks From Here

Omar Bureson, M. C. 17th District, Texas

The filling station attendant had his book in hand, waiting to see the credit card.

When he was handed a five and a one dollar bill and some change in payment for a tank of gas, he looked suspicious.

Written on his face was the question, "What's wrong with this guy. Is his credit bad? Is the money counterfeit? He must be some sort of a nut."

Inside the station the manager looked at the bills and may have even bitten the edge of Ginger Gardner presided at the table and poured coffee from an ironstone coffee service. She was assisted by Mrs. J. P. Dry, Mrs. Wade White and Mrs. H. L. Speer in serving ginger muffins, cheese wafers, spiced pineapple chunks and salted nuts.

An arrangement of daisies and candles were on the table where Zanette Moore registered forty-five guests in the bride's book.

Other members of the house party showed gifts which were on display.

the coin as a test for genuineness.

There is a confession here. The sooner it is out, the better. I have no credit cards.

Most Americans are rather broad-minded people. They may accept the fact that a person can be an alcoholic, a dope fiend, a wife beater, and even a Congressman, but if he does not have credit cards there must be something wrong with him. Sometimes you are viewed with suspicion, and maybe even just a little bit of contempt.

In some instances when cash is used, such as at the filling station, you are looked upon with some suspicion. Actually, it seems easier to write a check or just say "charge it" than it is to offer cash. Sometimes we expect to hear the question when offering to pay in cash, "Do you have any identification?" Not to be able to present cards from six or seven oil companies, the American Express, or Diners Club is a lack of something which may imply a lack of credit standing in the community, and even integrity.

When asked for your credit card, you are looked at incredibly when you answer "I do not have any." Then the next question is, "Did you lose it?" The answer is, "No, I never had one." The look on the salesman's face is one of "This guy is trying to put something over" and you feel he is thinking about calling a detective. He seems to be thinking, "How Un-American can you get?"

There are an estimated 100 million credit cards of all types in the hands of users in the United States. It has been estimated by business concerns that there is a turnover of 1-1.2 million of these in a year by being lost, strayed or stolen.

Criminal syndicates operate organized rings to steal credit cards and turn them over to "fences."

Organized criminals have credit cards to purchase airline tickets under other people's names in order to leave no trail for law enforcers. It is estimated that the annual loss to card issuing industries and organizations amounts to approximately $40 million, and it is still going up. Legislation has been introduced to make illegal use of credit cards a Federal offense.

This is, however, not the reason for our not having credit cards. Ruth and I married at about the time the depression

TIPS FOR OUTDOORSMEN

Frees Frozen Ferrules—Here's an easy way to free stuck rod ferrules. Heat the ferrules, then put on a few drops of penetrating rust solvent. Heat will create a vacuum that will cause the solvent to work its way between the frozen parts. Then the ferrules can be pulled apart.

If we could not pay for it, we did not have it. The psychology has stuck ever since.

This is not the best for business, but there is a growing concern in the business community that consumer credit may be exceeding its capacity to pay.

According to a department of commerce study, debt service now consumes 22 percent of the average family income. Consumer debt has advanced to the highest point in history.

The experience with the filling station attendant is a bit exaggerated for the purpose of making a point. It is no exaggeration, however, when the Internal Revenue wants proof of certain claims for deduction, with nothing to show for it. This may be a case for credit cards.

Tires For Targets—An old tire makes a good archery target. Stuff rags or straw between pieces of cardboard fitted between the tire openings. Prop up the tire with a stick in the back, or if you want a moving target, let it roll down a slope.

Handy "Ammo" — If you are right-handed, which most of us are, sew a couple of loops on the back of your left-hand glove for carrying two spare shotgun shells. This will permit fast reloading. It eliminates trouble getting another shell out of your pocket while wearing gloves in cold weather.

Of course, if you shoot from the left shoulder, sew the loops on the right-hand glove.

Cuts Motor Vibration—Reduce vibration in your outboard by placing a mat between the outboard motor clamps and the boat transom.

You can get the necessary material free from a carpeting house. Scraps of carpeting with rubber backing make the best mounts.

MRS. CECIL RAY SELF

Leva Mae Reagan, Cecil Ray Self Recite Marriage Vows At Shep

Leva Mae Reagan, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. J. T. Reagan of Shep, became the bride of Cecil Ray Self when they recited their marriage vows at the Shep Church of Christ Saturday. Parents of the bridegroom are Mr. and Mrs. H. C. Self of Shep.

Dr. Orval Filbeck of Abilene Christian College, officiated for the double ring ceremony before the altar with a background of candleabras with white tapers flanked by baskets of gladioli. Pews were marked with greenery and small mums tied with white satin ribbon.

A quartet, Mr. and Mrs. J. W. Bahlman of Winters, Mrs. W. H. Lynn and Mrs. Russell Sneed of Shep sang, "Whither Thou Goest," "Because" and "Bridal Chorus." J. W. Bahlman, soloist, sang "Oh Promise Me."

Cousins of the bride, Charles Key of Clyde and Glenn Shedd of Abilene, were candlelighters.

Thurman Self served his brother as best man. Ushers were Tony Reagan of Shep, brother of the bride and Von Byrd of Winneto. Cecil Lewis Smith of Lubbock was groomsman.

Miss Nancy Grundy of La Junta, Colorado was maid of honor and Mrs. Steve Grissom of Winneto, cousin of the bride, was bridesmaid.

The attendants wore empire gowns of aqua cotton chateau. Their headpieces were small cabbage roses matching their bouquets of yellow carnations.

The bride, presented in marriage by her father wore an A-line bridal gown fashioned with long sleeves. Lace appliques were reembroidered with pearls on the skirt and the train which was attached at the shoulders. Her veil of silk illusion fell from their home at 7502 Avenue H, a cabbage rose of peau de soie

Sharp Knives Are Safer To Use

Do you realize that the kitchen knife is used approximately 130 times a day? This is the estimate projected by Mrs. Doris Myers, Extension home management specialist with Texas A&M University.

Obviously, anything that is so vital to running a smooth operation should be kept in top-notch condition.

It is much easier to keep knives sharp than to recondition them after they become dull. For sharpening knives, many makers of fine cutlery recommend using a steel similar to that used by butchers. A fine, flat sharpening stone is also recommended for sharpening fine knives. Mechanical or electrical sharpeners are sometimes preferred. From a safety standpoint, sharp knives require less effort to use and cause fewer accidents than dull ones.

Be certain that knives are thoroughly clean and dry before storing them. This is essential with a hard steel knife, which will rust easily. Never leave a knife soaking in water. Not only is the blade likely to rust, but the handle may loosen, and if wood, it may soften. Knives should never be placed in a drawer unprotected. Racks in drawers or on the wall are the most convenient storage. The cardboard protector on knives when purchased may be used for temporary storage.

He that falls in love with himself, will have no rivals.

OUTDOORS IN TEXAS

BY VERN SANFORD

Anglers have found this to be an excellent year for white bass fishing. Every major Texas lake has provided whites by the thousands.

White bass probably have done more to increase the fishing interest in more people than all other fish combined. It is a fish anyone can catch and often in great numbers.

This is not to say the white bass ever will supplant the largemouth black bass, or even the Kentucky spotted. But it is a fish that isn't as likely to disappoint you on the only day in the month you can get out.

As plentiful as they are and as easy as they are to take, some degree of skill, plus a little luck, is necessary if you want to come in with a "bragging" string.

I have two friends who fish for whites regularly and most of the time they catch white bass until they get tired.

Although much of their fishing is on the Highland Lakes, within easy driving distance of Austin, they also have fished most of the other major impoundments with equal success.

They are Billy Disch, a marine dealer, and L. A. Wilke, a retired outdoors writer, both of Austin. They think nothing of picking up a string of 50 whites in an afternoon, say on Lake Buchanan.

Incidentally, Buchanan, at the top of the Highland Lakes chain, is one of the best white bass fishing waters of the state.

Their own system is fairly simple, because they have fished so much they know the alternatives. They know in what kind of water the fish are to be found, and basically the lure the bass will take. Mainly, however, they know to change lures when one won't work, until they find the one that will.

In terms of its availability in Texas waters, the white bass is a comparatively new fish. Although it has been on the Mississippi watershed and around the Great Lakes for a long time, the white bass in great abundance in Texas dates back less than 35 years. It might be said they came with the new major lake construction program in Texas. People learned to fish 'em when the tackle industry developed such equipment as light action rods and either spinning or free-spooling reels.

White bass moved up the Red River from the Mississippi basin into Caddo Lake many years ago. About 1930, with completion of the Lake Dallas reservoir near Denton, 30 brood white bass were moved there. It wasn't long until these prolific breeders practically filled the lake, working up the Elm east fork of the Trinity, making it a fishing paradise even before World War II.

From Lake Dallas the fish were planted in other reservoirs as fast as they were built. As a result they are in every major reservoir today that has a fresh water inlet. They are migratory. Therefore there is no record of them having done well in smaller, landlocked impoundments.

Although there is a 25 limit on some of the lakes still covered by general laws, the limit has been removed in most of the impoundments.

White bass can be taken on any lure that will appeal to a black or spotted bass, but they have their own preferences. It depends on the season, where the fish are hitting, and what they are eating. Sometimes they get contrary and you may have to try out a dozen lures before you find their choices.

Perhaps the most effective lures are spoons, such as the Dixie Jet and the Bomber slab or the Abu-reflex spinner bait. Sometimes they'll take all three. Then there are times when you just have to experiment until you discover which they will take.

In using any of the three above lures, the favorite colors seem to be either yellow and black, or white and black, with white bucktails on the spoons. Disch likes to cast far out, raise the rod high and bump his lure to the boat. For this, he usually uses an Ambassador 5000 with a fast action rod.

Wilke fishes differently. He likes to jiggle over the side of the boat. Both men use heavy lures to get to the bottom as quickly as possible, thereby missing the smaller fish that work to the top.

When the lake bottom is reached, the lure needs to be raised gently, then lowered. For this, Wilke uses the light Mitchell 320 reel with a light action rod. With it he can effectively feel the fish hitting the lure.

Finding the whites? First look for the birds. If you see gulls circling around, the probability of fish is good. If no birds, then try trolling until you find a school. Then go to work!
