Roger Babson Report—
Cities Stymied By Laws To Do
Anything to Improve Conditions

Mounting social unrest in our cities admittedly stems from various causes. But a growing number of public officials, educators, sociologists, and businessmen feel that the cities are stymied — in their efforts to improve conditions — by outmoded state constitutions and laws.

Overshadowed By Washington

Our founding fathers established a federal system comprising (1) a strong central government with specific powers limited by the Constitution and (2) effective state governments to act as a checkrein on this central authority. Their concept of the proper division of power is spelled out in Article X of the Bill of Rights: "The powers not delegated to the United States by the Constitution, nor prohibited by it to the States, are reserved to the States respectively, or to the people."

For the first 125 years of our history as a nation, this division of power was adhered to. But beginning early in the present century the federal government has been growing stronger and more authoritarian, casting an ever-lengthening shadow over the states. Climbing local costs for education, public welfare, and other services — now threatening to expand beyond the ability of the states to pay — are causing real concern. At last, the urgency of the need to strengthen our system by modernizing state governments is being widely recognized.

Weak Executive Departments

In the vanguard of organizations actively plumping for reforms in state government structures is the Committee For Economic Development. The committee asserts that sweeping revisions of state constitutions are necessary to bring these in line with modern conditions. CED also recommends annual sessions for all state legislatures and substantially higher salaries for members. The Chamber of Commerce of the United States is another advocate of state government reform and is trying to enlist broad public support for such a program. Some Chamber officials believe the states could more effectively administer their services if county government functions were to be expanded and updated.

The Massachusetts Experiment
Considerable interest is now being focused on Massachusetts one of the original 13 states — which is about to move toward the first major reorganization of state government since colonial days. Last month, the federal government approved a $722,000 comprehensive study to determine how best to update the Bay State's executive department.

Uncle Sam, through the Department of Housing and Urban Development, will contribute about $480,000 toward the project and the Commonwealth of Massachusetts will pay the remainder. Savings of up to $50 million annually are estimated once the reorganization is accomplished.

Project For Foundations

In due course, Washington will probably finance, through grants or otherwise, projects to streamline government operations of other states. As the need for such updating becomes more urgent, the way may be opened for businessmen to sponsor, finance, or at least participate in such reorganization projects.

Often our large foundations are criticized for making so many and such large grants for projects in foreign lands. It seems to us that the buttressing of our whole federal system through the revamping of state governments would be a domestic work of a scope and importance worthy of the attention of some of these foundations.

Mrs. Ed Otwell
Hosted Mary Martha
Circle Tuesday

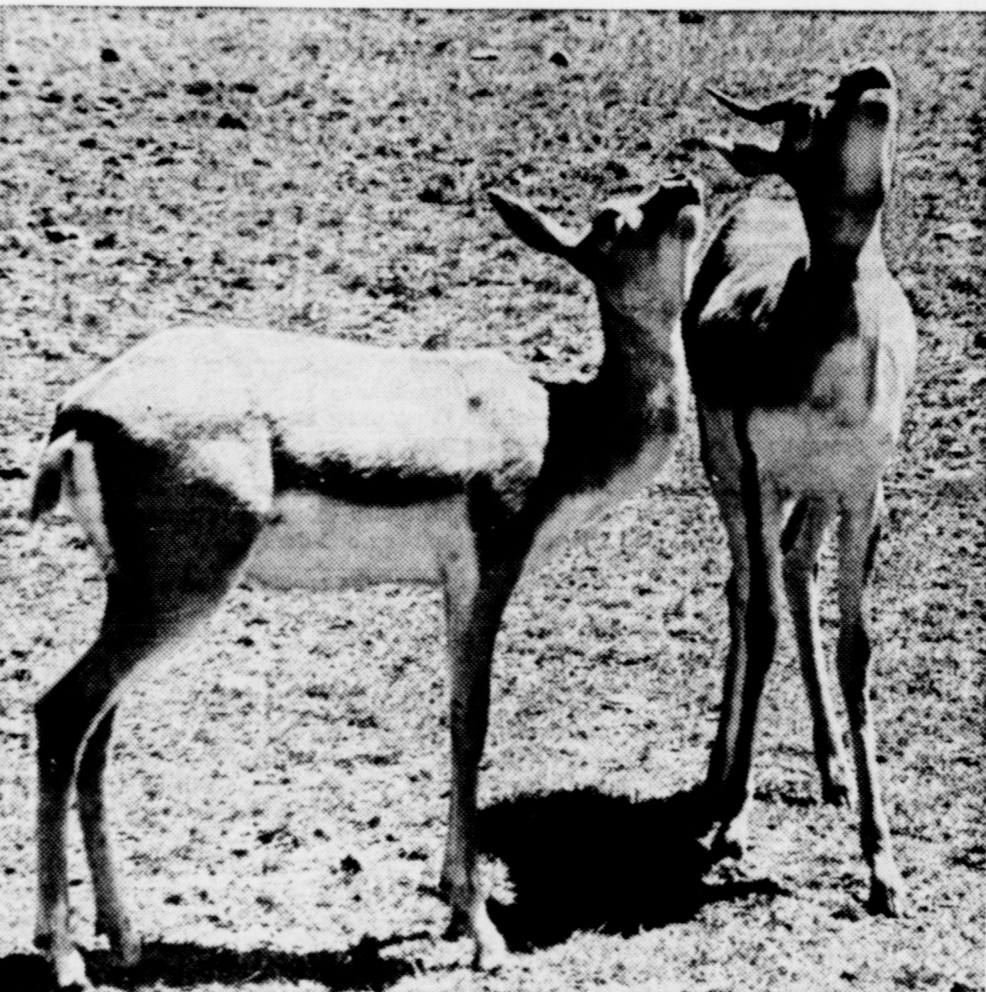

The Mary Martha Circle met in the home of Mrs. Ed Otwell Tuesday with Mrs. J. D. Vinson, Circle Chairman, presiding. The Lord's Prayer was repeated in unison by the group and a short discussion on TV programs followed.

The devotion was given by Mrs. Pearl Whigham using scripture reading from the book of Ephesians.

Mrs. John Schaffrina gave the program topic, "A Woman's Society Without a Church," taken from "The Methodist Woman."

LIKE GIANT INSECTS hovering over the foliage, two helicopters lift off Hill 110 near the Demilitarized Zone in South Vietnam, one lifting the other. The lower copter was disabled in previous fighting.

IT'S A BIRD, IT'S A PLANE, it's Superdeer? The humanlike expression sported by these Axis deer in the San Francisco Zoo might give that impression. Actually, they were left slightly agape by a squadron of low-flying jets.

Flavorful Chicken

How much chicken will you eat this year? If you eat as much of this meat favorite as you did last year, you'll put away about 36 pounds. Chances are, though, you'll eat more this year than you did last. Why? Because broilers are so plentiful and economical.

Farm prices on frying-size chickens have been running about 1 to 2 cents per pound cheaper than during the same period last year, and this has been true for the past several months.

So why not give a boost to your budget, and flavor and variety to your meals, by serving chicken. Serving ways are almost endless. Chicken is a real bargain in nutrition, too. Fryers are rich in protein and they also provide thiamine, iron, riboflavin, niacin and vitamin A. If you're looking for a little different way to offer this food favorite, try marinating it. It's easy to marinate meat of any kind. Simply soak it for a while in a sauce, or marinade, which usually has oil and something sour or acid. Marinating usually makes meat more tender, as well as changes the flavor.

A simple marinade is a mixture of salad oil and vinegar or oil, vinegar and lemon juice. Or try the juice poured off watermelon pickles, or steep pepper pods in vinegar for about 10 minutes.

If you want a mild flavor added to the chicken, an hour in the marinade usually will do it. For a strong flavor, chicken should be kept 24 hours in the marinating sauce, but put it in the refrigerator and turn the chicken several times. After marinating, fry as usual.

Of course cooking and serving today's chicken is a real joy. Ready-to-cook broilers live up to their name. All you have to do is rinse them in cold water, drain and pat dry. If the chicken is to be fried, broiled or oven-broiled, make sure it is dry, because a wet surface will prevent the chicken from browning properly. Broiler-fryer parts or cut-up chickens usually take one hour of cooking in a moderate oven. Pan-fried or broiled parts cook in 30 to 35 minutes, depending on size. Add about 15 minutes cooking time for unfrozen frozen chicken parts. Chicken is done when it is fork tender, and when the meat on the thickest part of the drumstick is soft to the touch.

Don't overcook, since this makes the chicken dry and chewy. Remember that the breast will cook in a shorter time than the thickest parts. So give the legs a 10 minute head start before adding the breast, and you'll find that the breast will be more juicy and tender.

Try Imaginative Fried Chicken—a scrumptious delight you'll be proud to serve. All it actually involves is a few variations from your usual fried chicken recipe. Dip the chicken pieces into subtle, tangy, fresh butter-milk instead of the usual egg-water mixture. Add crunchy sesame seeds to the flour-salt-pepper coating. Use smooth corn oil rather than a pure vegetable shortening for quick and easy frying.

"El Dorado"

"El Dorado," a Paramount Picture Showing Friday, Saturday, Sunday and Monday at the Fiesta Drive-In Theatre, is a big, colorful, film, full of action, sex, humor and all the other ingredients one always hopes to find in a rousing outdoor adventure yarn.

Starring John Wayne and Robert Mitchum, "El Dorado" is set in Texas in the perfect era for tumultuous western adventure, the period following the Civil War when the cattle market was beginning to emerge and when empire-builders and gunfighters were governed by greed and the desire for power.

John Wayne is the for-hire gunslinger, with Robert Mitchum playing his one time companion, now a law officer in-olved with a girl. There is the typical Howard Hawks scene of the two friends, temporarily estranged, almost beating each other insensible before they discover they are really on the same side and closer than ever. The film is also sprinkled with the typical two-fisted humor one expects in a Howard Hawks feature.

Winters Blizzards Drop Game To Seymour 12-6 On Stamford Field

Playing uninspired football, the Winters Blizzards once more dropped a close decision, this time a 12-6 squeaker to the Seymour Panthers. The game was played on the Stamford high school field Saturday night.

The Blizzards started out like they meant business by moving down inside the Seymour 10-yard line. They were unable to score, however, and this inability seemed to add life to the Seymour team.

The Panthers were unable to gain a single first down in the first quarter but early in the second quarter two of their players charged in on Punter Arlon Barnes. The punt was blocked and they took over on the Blizzard 40 yard line. After an initial first down, quarterback Larry Theale passed to Harry Kuehler in the end zone for a 6-pointer. The 2-point try was stopped.

Winters began a desperate drive that was ended when the clock ran out at halftime. The Blizzard offense was in the third quarter with fumbled snaps and missed assignments stopping all drives. Two passes were intercepted by Winters when the offense bogged down. Seymour regained the ball each time.

Seconds into the fourth quarter, Seymour capped a nine-play, 66-yard drive with a one-yard sneak. Again the points after failed and the score stood 12-0.

Midway in the final stanza, the Blue offense showed a spark of life. Sam Scott laved a bruising tackle on the Panther punt returner, causing a fumble. After three downs, Arlon Barnes stood back in punting position, but instead he took the ball and raced 25 yards around right end for a first down. From the 6-yard line Mike Kozelsky carried in for the TD. The extra point attempt was fumbled and the score was 12-6.

Seymour made a final drive but was halted on the Blue 5-yard line. Blizzard Fred Wilder hit "Jackrabbit" Greer with a 45-yard pass. Greer stumbled and fell just as he took the ball in. On the next play, Kozelsky passed to Greer for 10 more yards, but three passes and a run failed to produce and Seymour took over to run the clock out.

Statistics were close with Seymour 15 first downs and Winters 13. Winters gained 259 yards to 237 for Seymour. Winters was considerably hampered by the loss of several key players due to injuries.

AROUND THE 5-AA FOOTBALL LOOP

The preliminaries are over; from here on in, every move will be for keeps!

The six member-teams of District 5-AA have teamed up pre-conference games, and will begin district in-fighting Friday night. And anything can happen, as has been evidenced in past years.

Only two teams in the loop have come through unscathed in bouts with outsiders: Hamlin and Haskell lead the pack in this respect, and have chalked up impressive records for themselves. Anson, pre-season hopefuls and picks for leadership in the district, met their one defeat at the hands of Iowa Park last Friday night, 38-13.

In this week's go-for-broke entry into conference play, four of the district's strongies will meet, and the league-trailers will have to meet the top team. Stamford goes to Anson, and Hamlin goes to Colorado City. Winters invites Haskell.

Last week's games saw the following results: Iowa Park 38, Anson 13; Ballinger 27, Colorado City 0; Hamlin 21, Clyde 0; Haskell 24, Olney 6; Stamford 28, Coleman 0; Seymour 12, Winters 6.

OUTDOORS IN TEXAS

BY VERN SANFORD

This is the age of the machine, even in hunting!

Latest gimmick for outwitting wild creatures is an ordinary tape recorder.

Equipped with an appropriate distress tape, this compact little battery-powered machine will bring critters like foxes, coyotes and bobcats running toward the hunter.

In his book, "The Critters Come When Called," Russell Winsley, outdoor editor for the Austin American - Statesman, points out that the tape recorder has replaced the portable phonograph as the best device for calling predators. Thanks to transistors, tape recorders today are small and compact in size, and some actually can be carried in the coat pocket.

However, the small recorder lacks the necessary volume for calling nature's killers from any great distance. To overcome this obstacle, the Burnham Brothers of Marble Falls, Texas, devised an amplifier-speaker system that plugs into a recorder to more than triple its output of sound.

wander into the woods, then switch on the machine and let the tape do the calling for him. And he'd better be watching with gun held ready.

Newest calling recorder is a cartridge-type job that plays continuously. No rewinding is necessary. Four different tapes are enclosed in a plastic holder that the hunter inserts into the machine. Caller simply chooses the distress sound he wants, by pushing a button, then switches the machine on and prepares for action.

But the recorder is just part of the story. Equally as important are the tapes themselves.

When electronic calling was in its infancy the available recordings were simply recordings of someone using a mouth-blown call. But today the records and tapes carry authentic distress sounds of animals and birds.

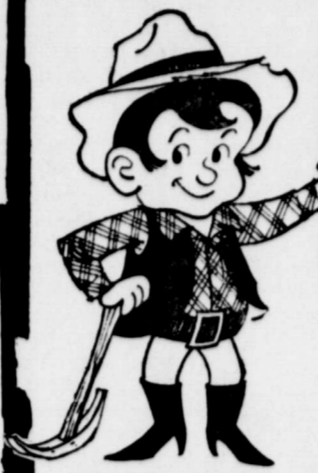

These recordings are made by capturing creatures alive, getting their distress cries on tape, then releasing them unharmed.

On every effective tape is the shrill of a woodpecker in trouble. The Burnham Brothers made this particular calling tape by placing a net over a hole pecked in the wood siding of a house and tapping on the plank until the bird flew out and into the cord mesh.

When so held, the bird shrieked piteously. A very sensitive tape recorder captured its distress cries. Then the woodpecker was released.

Similar tapes were made with jackrabbits and cottontails. One tape even has the clucking of a chicken on the roost. Promise of a tasty chicken for dinner is, obviously, one sound that no meat-hungry predator can resist!
