The election will be held at the City Hall, with H. F. Gerhart as presiding judge, and Mrs. Gaylene Harrison alternate presiding judge.

The Council is seeking authorization to issue general obligation bonds in the amount of $120,000 to pay for the street project. Officials have said that the City's share of the cost would run from $100,000 to $120 .-000, with the State Highway Department paying the other half This sum would be used to purchase needed right-of-way for the proposed street-widening project, and for damages, and not for actual construction costs. The Highway Depart-

The Muslims don't allow lanterns or other things to clutter their mosques. The Christian Shrines, however, are crowded with various religious articles such as lanterns, ikons, crosses, statues, candles, etc., which, for us anyway, greatly detracted from the reverance of the places. The most moving part of our Jerusalem visit was at the Church of St. Peter at the crowing built over the spot where Peter thrice denied Christ. We descended into some caves at the bottom of the church where Christ may have been held the night he was taken prisoner. There, after hearing one of the Psalms about being in darkness cut off from friends, we said the Lord's Prayer together. The silence there, which we found no where else in Jerusalem, made

Work-Training Project Set For Poverty War

A new Federally - financed Community Action Program has been approved for administration by the Office of Economic Opportunity, and will be directed in this area by Central Texas Opportunities, Inc. CTO offices are in Coleman, and Joe D. Philpott is director for that organization.

Known as Operation Mainstream, the program is said to be designed to provide an opportunity for chronically unemployed people to improve both their work skill and standard of living. The project will place these people into on-the-job work-training situations where they will work and receive training.

The objective is to provide training, while the individual is earning, which will lead to permanent jobs in the competitive job market. Enrollees will receive pay for 40 hours per week. They will receive 34 hours of work-training on the job, two hours of professional counseling and four hours of remedial or vocational training.

Applicants for the program will be interviewed and tested to determine their interests and apptitudes and eligibility. Enrollees must be 22 years of age or older and be chronically unemployed to be eligible. Selection of any individual may also depend upon the availability of a job fitting his desires and apptitude. Philpott explained. we will be depending on the public agencies in the community to develop work assignments

The operation does not include private industry job sources, but is confined to non-profit organizations. The program, sponsored by the Community Council of Comal and Blanco counties and approved by the Department of Labor, includes a 27-county area. Project director is Winton C. Brown and area coordinator for the seven-county area of Brown, Callahan, Coleman, Concho, Eastland, McCulloch and Runnels is Carlos Flores, with office at 117 West Street, Coleman.

The Runnels County chairman is Mike Zuniga of Winters. Applications for persons wishing to sign up for the program are being handled by Mrs. Beatrice Pounds at 140 North Church Street, Winters.

Public agencies such as city, county, federal government. non-profit hospitals, and schools will provide the places of work enrollees. Enrollee wages will be paid from program funds and the cooperating agencies will provide on-the-job supervision and training.
