BABSON'S POINT OF VIEW

Our Debt To The Press
Babson Park, Mass. Probably there is no business that does so much good yet is still so little appreciated as the newspaper business. Most of us take our papers for granted, paying our dime to get a dollar's worth and more of news and information, and failing to realize the value of the personal, social, and economic service provided us.

Purveyors Of News
The history of the press in the United States is a long and fascinating one. Beginning with the first regular newspaper, the Boston Newsletter, originating in 1704, our newspapers have played a glorious part in the development of our country, its economic growth, and its advance to its position of prestige among the nations of the world. Not only the large city dailies, but also the numerous weeklies and the small papers in rural areas, have an enviable record of service as purveyors of news, protectors of liberty, guardians of public morals, and champions of the better life. In pursuit of this fourfold goal, our newspapers are continually compiling and publishing a record of our times based on the thoughts, motives, actions, and living habits of people here in our own country and in the wider world which we must learn to understand if we are to prosper in it and be at peace with it.

Protectors Of Liberty
The first of the ten Amendments to the Constitution of the United States, which form our Bill of Rights, reads in part as follows: "Congress shall make no law... abridging the freedom of speech or of the press..." But what thus became the law of the land in 1791, a scant 15 years after the Declaration of Independence, was established in principle back in 1735 when John Peter Zenger—editor of the Weekly Journal of New York City—was acquitted of libel charges arising from his critical reports and comments respecting the conduct in office of the Colonial Governor of New York.

Ever since Zenger's day, the American press has been the protector of the people's liberty, exercising this function with a faithfulness and zeal seldom matched and never surpassed by the press of any other nation. Its alertness and integrity are among the most effective bulwarks of our freedom as American citizens.

Guardians Of Public Morals

As we have grown to our present greatness as a nation—and have become more knowing and more tolerant in the process, newspaper editors try to win adherents for their views. They endeavor to persuade rather than to impose their ideas upon the communities they serve.

Champions Of The Better Life

During the past quarter-century, advertising on the airwaves has grown tremendously. Radio and television now share with newspapers the promotion and sale of a wide variety of products and services. Yet until radio and TV become more effective gatherers of news as well as dispensers of entertainment, they will not hold the same consumer interest the newspaper holds. The mass production and distribution techniques which have so greatly and so quickly advanced our economic growth would have been almost impossible without the preparation of mass consuming markets by our newspapers.

Your newspaper, large or small, deserves your patronage and support. Subscribe to it, read it, ponder what its editors call to your attention, advertise in it. Your newspaper is still your best and most dependable source of news. More, it is the steadfast champion of the better life we all seek.

THE FAMILY LAWYER

Enact the Ten Commandments?

Not long ago, a western lawmaker proposed the enactment of the Ten Commandments as part of the state's criminal code. The proposal did not pass. But it did put into sharp focus the relationship between moral law and criminal law.

There are striking differences between the two systems of law.

For one thing, moral law usually deals in generalities. Criminal law in specifics. While the Sixth Commandment says generally that "Thou shalt not kill," the criminal law weighs the specific variations that may affect guilt in a particular case.

Thus, the criminal law recognizes that a person may indeed kill in the necessary defense of himself or his family. This is not a rejection of the Sixth Commandment. It is merely law on a different level.

Furthermore, moral law often sets standards that are too lofty, as a practical matter, to be enforced by criminal penalties. Imagine, for instance, the difficulties of enforcing the Tenth Commandment—"Thou shalt not covet"—by fines or jail sentences.

Yet, in a deeper sense, criminal law must at least be in harmony with moral law if it is to be acceptable to the community. It is to the moral law that mankind looks for its directions and its aspirations.

And if moral law has the disadvantage of being enduring, Poet James Russell Lowell put it this way:

"In vain we call old notions fudge,

And bend our conscience to our dealing;

The Ten Commandments will not budge,

And stealing will continue stealing."

Also, because moral law speaks directly to the conscience, it may influence conduct in a way that no mere legislative enactment — ever could.

In one case, a farmer posted a "NO TRESPASSING" sign in an effort to stop repeated thefts from his apple orchard. But apples continued to vanish. One day he changed the sign to read "THOU SHALT NOT STEAL." The thefts stopped at once.

"The Big Mouth"

Jerry Lewis doesn't mind being known as "The Big Mouth," title of the Columbia Pictures release in which he is starred at the State Theatre in Eastman color. At the height of his powers, Lewis is the producer and director, as well as co-writer, of "The Big Mouth." He plays a bookkeeper with a passion for fishing who suddenly finds himself pursued by two rival underworld mobs and sundry other characters. . . all because he inadvertently hooked and reeled in a frogman with a knowledge of smuggled diamonds. The role is tailor-made to the Lewis image, and to Lewis' insistence that movie-making should hew closely to basic cinematic fundamentals in which the picture is more important than the words, action more vital than dialogue.

Jerry Lewis stars, and Susan Bay makes her film debut, in "The Big Mouth," new Columbia Pictures release in Eastman color. The comedy co-stars Harold J. Stone, Charlie Callas and Buddy Lester. Jerry plays a vacationing bookkeeper who suddenly finds himself in the middle of a gang war over smuggled diamonds.

Thus, when it comes to movie talk, the success of his own comedies is proof positive that Jerry Lewis knows whereof he speaks.

OMAR BURLESON

Congressman
17th District

The Congress is facing action on three separate fronts. The first is, of course, providing what is needed for efforts in Vietnam. The second is the battle against domestic crime and riots. The third to bring about a more sound fiscal policy.

While these three confounding issues hold a serious pre-occupation of the Congress, attention is being diverted from the internal security aspect of our Nation. For years we have been intensely concerned about subversive activities but because of the great demands on time, more recent efforts towards an eye on subversive elements have not been adequate enough.

Although opinions differ among people of good intent, many of the disturbances which have been afflicting our land have been inspired by communists and radicals. Conditions have given them a catalyst and an opportunity to foment civil strife in a most severe form. These are the people who want to see a disintegration of authority, both governmental and moral. This condition has been fed by the trend in our highest courts to tolerate such action and even assume a posture making it impossible to assert authority.

A number of us in the House of Representatives and others in the Senate, are now working to formulate legislation designed to plug loopholes discovered in some of our internal security laws and close gaps that have been blasted out by Supreme Court decisions.

As an example of some of these trends, between 1919 and 1942 the Supreme Court accepted jurisdiction in only 11 cases involving communist subversive activities. Seven of these 11 were decided against the radicals and 4 sustained their appeal.

Since 1943 the Supreme Court has accepted 147 cases involving appeals by communists and other subversives. Of these, 93 were decided favorably for those charged and 54 against.

The fact that these radicals can win cases shows the impartiality of our judicial system in which the judges of our highest courts can overlook personal repugnance and grant justice when the law demands justice. At the same time these statistics show it has gone far to accept jurisdiction in border-line cases and has tortured the laws in such a way that there is an imbalanced weight against the safety of our Nation.

The Supreme Court recently ruled void the Law on the statute books making it illegal for subversive elements or members of an organization found to be a communist front to hold jobs in defense plants.

We propose to draft another provision which we hope to have enacted into law to cure this situation. In addition, it is hoped to absolutely prevent those who have been identified with subversive groups to hold positions in a labor organization, public schools or Federal agencies. The Subversive Activities Control Board, which has been virtually paralyzed since the Supreme Court struck down laws requiring communists to register will be revitalized. Under our proposal the Board will be empowered to determine who and what is inimical to the best interest of the Country. Since the Court's decision on a number of Federal cases have left a blank for our legal protection in this regard, greater tools are needed for our internal safety.

Other probable features of Legislation being drafted are protection of Federal employees from reprisals for giving information to Congressional Committees which might implicate their superior's wrongdoing; making failure to surrender a U. S. passport upon request a heavy penal offense; providing severe penalties for collusion with foreign governments to

After 7 p.m., you can call anywhere in the country for a dollar.

All long distance callers worth their salt know that calling in the daytime is more expensive than calling in the evening hours. (Actually, most people call during the day, when we charge our regular rates.) But long distance callers aren't interested in explanations. The only thing they care about is calling for the cheapest possible price. So to get more for their money, they devised a scheme you might call The Waiting Game. The idea is to do just what the name implies: Wait and wait and wait and wait. Because they know if they can hold out till after 7 p.m. or any time of the day on Saturday or Sunday, they can call anywhere in the country for a dollar or less. Which just goes to prove that anybody can afford to call long distances. Provided they know how to play The Game. General Telephone A dollar goes a long way.

ERADICATE MEASLES

Next to the common cold, measles is, or was, probably the most often seen virus disease in the United States. In many cases it is a matter of a bad cough, conjunctivitis, a runny nose, relatively high fever, some red spots and a week to ten days in bed. But in too many cases, measles leaves tragedy and heartbreak in its path. It is estimated that measles causes some 1,600 cases of mental retardation each year in the United States and that it is responsible for as many as 500 deaths.

Smith Drug Co.

years has eliminated the need for this to happen. And, in fact, the widespread use of measles vaccines in these years is helping to wipe out these needless tragedies. The United States Public Health Service believes that if the usage of measles vaccines can be expanded, the disease can be virtually eliminated in the United States this year. However, the job cannot be accomplished by the health team alone. It will require the cooperation of all Americans. This kind of cooperation has helped to virtually eliminate polio. With the same cooperation, we can eradicate measles.
