AS IN DAYS OF OLD, the natives of Dahomey fish from dug-out canoes. One thing is new, however, the nets, supplied to the West African republic by UNICEF, are made of nylon. Further help has come in the form of experts who introduced more modern methods of fishing to counteract the effects of a scarcity of fish.

Useful Onion:
Shakespeare and Chaucer considered the onion worthy of mention in their writings.

Certainly you'll find it worthy of mention—and frequent use in your kitchen. Onions are forever making a place for themselves. Not just in prose and poem, but in soups, casseroles, salads and dips.

Recipes frequently call for a silver, a slice, a dash of onion—or minced, chopped, pureed or grated onion.

Considering the frequent use of onions, the large supply we have on hand is especially noteworthy. Late summer onion production, the source of storage stocks, was four percent larger than the previous year's output. So USDA's Consumer & Marketing Service has placed onions on its January plentiful foods list.

Are you a wise food shopper?
Test yourself against these habits—a wise food shopper knows the nutritional needs of her family and the difference between needs and wants. She keeps track of regular food prices so she can recognize "specials." She knows food grades and buys quality to fit intended use: perfect pieces and top grades if eye-appeal is important, broken pieces if it is not. She tries lesser-known brands in an effort to find acceptable quality at lower prices and she buys favorite foods for future use when they are abundant and offered at lower than usual prices. She figures cost-per-serving as well as cost-per-unit purchased. All her good habits adds up to a better fed family at lower cost.

Older women use frozen main courses to add variety to meals while younger married women use them as a convenient way to increase the number of meal offerings for her family. Mrs. O'Connor adds that the women of all ages seek common benefits from the frozen products. They are quick, easy to prepare and practical for smaller families. The family with a working woman is 18 percent more likely to use frozen main courses compared to the family where just the husband works. Thirty percent of these families used TV dinners, she reported.

Spices and herbs lose their true flavor and aroma if kept for too long a period of time. Extension agent advises to check those tag ends of spices and herbs by giving them a sniff test. You'll probably find the remnants of their characteristic aroma. But compare the old supply with a newly purchased stock and you'll quickly become aware of the difference in freshness and strength. To keep all spices and herbs fresh longer, close containers promptly after each use and store away from heat and direct sunlight.

If a few drops of lemon juice are required for a recipe, just stick a fork in one end of a lemon and squeeze out the needed juice instead of cutting whole lemon in half.

Add a cup of crushed cornflakes to a favorite chocolate chip cookie recipe for an extra crisp cookie.

Try a new flavor for pot roast or meat loaf by basting them during cooking with the spiced vinegar left over from canned sweet pickles.

Did you ever wonder what

CON-DUCK-TING you might call it, if you have the nerve to say that sort of thing. The artistic fowl performs at Mirror Lake, near St. Petersburg, Fla.

makes butter yellow? It's carotene, says the Home Demonstration Agent. That's a yellow pigment that's very rich in vitamin A. Your body converts it into vitamin A and stores until needed. Vitamin A is an absolute "must" for growth, healthy legs and skin, and the maintenance of healthy tissues for resistance to infection. And butter is especially rich in vitamin A because it contains the vitamin both in its natural form and in the form of the yellow pigment, carotene.

New laundry appliances that weigh wash loads, include special cycles and control degree of dryness are as modern as today's homemaker.

Weighing devices on washers allow the homemaker to be more accurate in sizing a wash load. This takes the guess work out of how much water and detergent to use. "Tiny" wash settings for small loads and items normally washed by hand are new on many washers.

Improved permanent press cycles reduce spin time to less possibility of wrinkling. New touch-up settings have been added for clean but wrinkled clothes.

Another control improves drying. She explains that it "feels" clothes at intervals and automatically shuts off the dryer when the clothes are dry. "Degree of dryness" controls are adjustable, permitting homemakers to vary the degree of dryness obtained. Other innovations are new and improved agitators. They improve cleaning action by increasing the currents of water in the washer.

Warning systems and stop-start controls guard against wrinkling of clothes left forgotten in the dryer. The dryer buzzes to remind the homemaker when clothes are ready to be removed. In some dryers, if clothes are not removed right away, a special control restarts

CREWS

Deep sympathy is extended to Mrs. Welby Fuller and son Lowell in the death of the husband and father, Welby Fuller, at the home Sunday morning. Funeral services were held in Stevens Chapel in Coleman Tuesday morning with burial in the Crews Cemetery.

Mr. and Mrs. Ralph McWilliams visited Mr. and Mrs. Willie Bain in Lampasas last week.

Visitors in the home of Mr. and Mrs. M. L. Wood Sunday were Mr. and Mrs. Earl Ambrose, Mr. and Mrs. Bill Brantley, Mr. and Mrs. Ralph Spina, Mr. and Mrs. Asa Phelps and Phil, of Fort Worth, and Mrs. Jean Huffman of Temple.

Mr. and Mrs. Calvin Hoppe and girls, Mr. and Mrs. Bill Hoppe, Mrs. Elaine Austin and girls were among those who enjoyed a birthday dinner with Mr. B. J. Goetz in Winters Sunday.

Mr. and Mrs. J. T. Lucas of Midland, spent Sunday night the dryer every five minutes; fluffs clothes gently for 10 seconds; then buzzes again—continuing this stop—start sequence 2 1-2 hours or until the clothes are removed.

Farmers Union In Opposition To School Plan

Bobby Rogers of Winters has called the attention of Runnels County farmers and ranchers to the Governor's Committee on Public Education (COPSE) Report.

Rogers, president of Runnels County Farmers Union said, "The Governor's Committee on Public Schools has disclosed recommendations to reduce the number of school districts from 1218 to 353, to readjust taxes to 20 cents per 100 dollar full evaluation to be increased to 30 cents over the next ten years, and to place a minimum of 2600 students in each school district."

Runnels County, now having whole or part of nine school districts, would be reduced to four districts by the Committee proposal.

Rogers asserted, "Implementation of the Committee's recommendations will expedite the exodus of people from rural areas." Rogers said Farmers Union is not opposed to voluntary school consolidation when the smaller district votes to consolidate. Farmers Union adopted a resolution opposing the forced consolidation of school districts, hence opposing that portion of the COPSE Report, at the State Convention in December he said.

Jay Naman, president of Texas Farmers Union is chairman of a Committee from the Texas Farmers Union which is working with other organizations in carrying the concern of rural people over this measure directly to the legislators in Austin. Other citizens concerned about rural Texas and the humanization of education are urged to join with this group in making their views known to the state legislators. Naman stated that Farmers Union is urging its members to write letters to their legislators and make their views known. He said, "letters are a most acceptable way of telling our lawmakers what our views are."

"Farmers Union has prepared a brief summary of the Committee Report and Texas Farmers Union members may obtain a copy free of charge by writing or calling the state office in Waco," said Naman.

Color Trends In Home Furnishings

Each year, some colors are "in" and widely used in home furnishings while others are used rarely.

Faber Birren, one of the world's leading authorities on color makes some predictions for 1969.

Off-white will continue to be the most popular color in paints and wall coverings and will continue to be used for contrast with bold, vivid colors.

Gold, avocado green and brilliant blue will continue to be used extensively in home furnishings. These colors will continue to become clearer and brighter.

"White walls, brilliant home furnishings, muted walls are the order of preference in '69," according to the color expert.

Mrs. Jane Berry, Extension housing and home furnishings specialist, explains what makes color fashion. The consumer establishes color trends through the selections he makes in the market place. Color trends are natural and spontaneous.

Color research experts establish and interpret color trends by analyzing retail purchases in various consumer areas from year to year. Computer analysis of sales records of consumer products including paints, carpets, furniture, draperies, accessories, linens, appliances and automobiles also determine color trends.

Furniture For '69 Will Meet Needs

Furniture for 1969 will accommodate living needs, explains Bonny Lay, Extension housing and home furnishings specialist.

Modern-styled furniture promises to be a big item with a continued increase in the use of plastics, metals and sprayed on materials.

Upholstery for molded forms will require the use of stretch and spray-on fabrics. Geometrics will be a common pattern with a continuation of the leather-look from last year, says the Texas A&M University.

Geometrics will appear in carpets. There will be a continued increase in the use of indoor-outdoor carpet and area and shag rugs.

New colors for '69 in home furnishings will be no-colors or neutrals, off white, ivory, beige, sands and light browns. Miss Lay predicts that cranberries, mauves, peaches and purples will be on the increase.

Good is better than evil because it is nicer.

Blizzard Basketball Drop Tilts To Stamford and Anson, Now 2-6

The Winters High School Blizzard basketball team lost two important games during the past week, dropping a contest to the Stamford Bulldogs Friday night there, and then dropped a 74-60 game to Anson Tuesday night.

Coch Jerry Neely said the outcome of the Winters-Stamford game was a result of "not getting mentally ready for the game."

Gary Antilley led scorers with 12 counters.

Winters 8th and 9th Grades Pull Two Straight Wins Over Junior Bearcats

The 8th grade basketball squad from Winters got the initial win Monday night over Ballinger, and the 9th graders came from behind to gain a win in their contest, to make a clean sweep over the Junior Bearcats.

The 8th graders played it cool and held off the bigger Junior Bearcats to take their third victory with a 29-23 score.

Lee Chont, Oscar Torres, Kurt McCusiston, Wayne Schwarz, Johnny Martinez and Fred de la Cruz were standouts. Torres and McCusiston led the defenders while Chont provided the firepower. Schwartz and Martinez led the rebounders.

The 9th graders managed to make it two in a row over the Bearcats.

WASHINGTON

"As it looks from here"

OMAR BURLESON

Congressman
17th District

Last week President Johnson made the 17th State of the Union Address in our Nation's history. It was the first speech by an outgoing President to a Joint Session of Congress since 1801 by John Adams.

A President is required by the Constitution to report to the Congress but it does not say he has to do it every year. The requirement is "from time to time."

Nevertheless, exactly one address has been given each year since Washington's time except in 1933. In that year the date for taking office was moved up from March 4 to January 20. Had the outgoing President Herbert Hoover continued in office until March, it is assumed he would have delivered an address. Former President Franklin D. Roosevelt, being brand new in office in January, declined to report on the State of the Union.

James A. Garfield and William Henry Harrison were the only Presidents who never delivered a State of the Union Address. They died before their first occasion to do so.

How far the President should go in spelling out legislation to be passed by the Congress is a question as old as our Country. Major differences in State of the Union Addresses from Washington's time until today reflect the differences in State of the Union Addresses from Washington's time until today reflect the differing attitudes of Presidents with respect as to how much power they should exercise over Congress. In this connection, the duty of the President to suggest laws is clearly set forth in the same part of the Constitution which calls for a report on the State of the Union.

Says the Constitution, "He (The President), shall from time to time give to the Congress information of the State of the Union and recommend to their consideration such measures as he shall judge necessary and expedient."

As revealed in State of the Union addresses, about one-third of the 35 Presidents have been somewhat aggressive in proposing new laws and policy while a few have been almost reticent and a few have been in between in influencing Congress.

Some addresses of Presidents have been more or less forgotten by historians. On the other hand, some of the most casual references have shaped history. The California gold rush of 1849 was set up in December of 1848 by a remark of President James Polk who noted that "an abundance of gold" had indeed been discovered.

Not often does any lasting pronouncement of foreign policy endure beyond one or two Administrations. Yet one State of the Union Address was the sole source of laying down a major tenet of foreign policy. In 1823 when the Holy Alliance in Europe aligned against Britain took up Spain's call to reclaim its lost colonies in Latin America, President Monroe said in his State of the Union Address, "We can not view any interposition for the purpose of opposing them (the South American States) or controlling in any manner their destinies by European power in any other light than in the manifestation of an unfriendly disposition toward the U. S." Thus, the Monroe Doctrine. Actually, it is the one major and long lasting U. S. policy which owes its expression

POINT OF VIEW

Labor Problems Facing Nixon

By Babson's Reports, Inc., Wellesley Hills, Mass. Many labor bigwigs were dead-set against Nixon before the elections; some still look upon him with undisguised suspicion. Now at the White House is his, as most union leaders have adopted a watchful-waiting attitude and are ready to give the new chief Executive the benefit of the doubt until he proves himself.

Campaign Promises

Actually, union officials don't expect Nixon to seek anti-labor legislation, if only because of their confidence in the strength they hold over Congress. They do, however, want to see whether or not he will stick to his pre-election claims. While campaigning, Nixon made statements in support of free collective bargaining. They were neither pro-business nor anti-labor promises, but many unionists responded warily. The then-candidate said that he did not approve of the government's sitting in at every bargaining table. That if he were elected there would be a hands-off approach toward union negotiations. The federal government would step in only if the health or safety of the nation were endangered or if existing legislation — such as the Railway Labor Act — required.

Government's Role Neutral

If the government were forced to take part in bargaining at any time, he guaranteed absolutely unbiased intervention with no favoritism for either management or labor. Nixon appears sincere in his labor pronouncements, and those closest to him expect him to follow through. One touchy issue: The need for early action on strikes of public employees. Few insiders doubt that legislative proposals will soon be drafted for resolving disputes affecting state and city workers.

Laborites are anxious to see what, if anything, the new President will do to check rein wage-price inflation. Both Nixon and his Labor Secretary appointee George Shultz have expressed skepticism about the effectiveness of guidposts. Neither labor nor employers are likely to pay much attention to the retiring Johnson Administration's swan call asking unions to hold the pay-raise ceiling for 1969 below 5 percent and management to keep profits in line with the 1967-68 average.

Breather For New Administration

There are some factors working in Nixon's favor which could give him time to settle into his berth in Washington for a while before having serious labor problems forced upon him. For example, multi-year contracts are now in effect for such key lines as steel, autos, trucking, bituminous coal, telephones, rubber, and aerospace. During the year just ended, close to 5 million employees covered by big agreements were engaged in negotiations. Also, many in pattern-setting fields. But in 1969 only 2.7 million big-contract workers will be facing expiration or wage reopening. Most 1968 agreements will run

Mary Martha Circle Held Meeting Tues. In Ledbetter Home

Regular meeting of the Mary Martha Circle of the United Methodist Church was held Tuesday morning in the home of Mr. and Mrs. Clarence Ledbetter at Bradshaw, with Mrs. Ledbetter as hostess. Mrs. H. O. Abbott, circle chairman, presided for the business session and the opening prayer was given by Mrs. W. W. Parramore. The devotional, taken from the scriptures John 4: 1-42. The program was led by Mrs. Vada Babston, who gave the topic "Encounter — Extraordinary." Mrs. W. W. Parramore gave "Soul Saving and World Saving." The Lord's Prayer was repeated in unison by the group. Refreshments were served to Mesdames H. O. Abbott, W. W. Parramore, E. L. Crockett, August McWilliams, W. T. Stanley, Glenn Bowman, D. A. Dobbins, Thad Traylor, Vada Babston and the hostess, Mrs. Ledbetter.

Walking A Tightrope

There will, however, be some situations that could come to a head this year and reveal the stance of the new Administration. Perhaps most threatening are the deadlines for railway engineers, shop workers, and road employees. Also, beginning at midyear, seagoing workers, and road employees. Also, beginning at midyear, seagoing workers in the maritime industry will have a number of expiring contracts to argue out. Construction could well breed more trouble as contractor employers try to hold down labor costs that have soared so spectacularly that building has been curbed and pay differentials with other union groups have been knocked entirely out of whack. AFL-CIO President George Meany has summoned citizens of all political persuasions to support responsible efforts of the new Administration to meet the problems of our time. Should President Nixon be placed in a position where he would feel he had to side against the unions on a fundamental labor issue, a flare-up against him on the part of the Federation and other union groups would be instantaneous. It will be an interesting tightrope that Nixon walks during 1969, with the eyes of all union and pro-union leaders upon him.

Your Ballot: How Secret?

Defeated in a contest for sheriff, a candidate challenged the validity of the election. In a court hearing he demanded that certain voters be ordered to tell for whom they voted. But the court decided it had no right to make such an order. "Our whole ballot system," said the court, "is based upon the idea that unless secrecy is preserved, there can be no safety against those personal or political influences which destroy individual freedom of choice." Secrecy of the ballot has long been recognized as a cornerstone of democracy. One of the earliest court decisions in the nation's history, a South Carolina case in 1795, denounced prying into votes as "a kind of inquisitorial power unknown to the principles of our government."

There is an exception.

Generally speaking, it is permissible for a court to inquire into a person's vote if that vote is shown to have been cast illegally. But otherwise, secrecy is the rule. This applies not only in court hearings but in voting procedures as well. In one election, the voting booths were merely open, uncurtained cubicles. Voters could easily be observed either by other voters or by election officials. When tested in court, this system was held inadequate to insure privacy and the votes were thrown out. Not only booths but also ballots and ballot boxes are regulated with the same objective of secrecy. Thus, a referendum on a local liquor law was held null and void because voters had to deposit their ballots into either one of two boxes—plainly marked "For" and "Against." What about the use of voting machines? Again, secrecy must prevail. One early machine worked fine if the voter wanted to vote a straight party ticket. But if not, he had to ask for a special ballot from an election official. "It is obvious," he said, "that a voter cannot ask for such a ballot without indicating he does not vote for his full party ticket. It appeared that the machines do not afford an opportunity to vote a secret ballot, they cannot lawfully be used."

Sgt. Neil L. Brown On Duty With AF In Vietnam

acquainted with the rural situation, also question the "apparent refusal of the committee to acknowledge the economic importance of a school to a community." They say that it is apparent that "people live and do business in the community where their children go to school." Without the schools, many communities would cease to exist, they state, a situation "which would cause economic disaster throughout the state."

In one such community, the teacher payroll alone is above $40,000 monthly, according to one rural school authority. If the school should be moved to a central location, it was pointed out, these teachers and this payroll would follow along with the parents of many school children, "creating an economic void and ultimately economic failure, thus eliminating an important tax source which is needed to maintain the schools."

Much of the opposition aimed at the Governor's Committee recommendation has been entered on the proposal that no school district be organized with less than 2,600 students. Educators and school authorities, and individual citizens, are reminding that "textbook education is only a part of the educational process. Participation in all types of school activities is as important to students and future citizens as formal study," they say. In the larger schools, they stress, "chance for individual students to participate in the extra activities is much smaller because of the larger student population, and leaves a higher percentage of the student body without an outlet for excess energy. This creates a climate for delinquency, dropouts and drug addiction," they warn.

Throughout the state, rural communities are being organized to oppose the recommended abolition of most of the present school districts, and legislators and State officials are beginning to receive floods of mail. The question of whether the rural communities can retain their school systems remains with the State Legislators, sensitive to the wishes of the voters.

But there are exceptions—there sometimes is produced a program or movie both entertaining and enlightening. It is a rare occurrence, however. An example of this rarity we watched the other night on tv. There was a strong "message," even though the entertainment was run-of-the-mill. There was no attempt to disguise the "message" in any manner; it was so skillfully handled that it could have been labeled a well-produced "documentary."

The program was the popular "Judd For the Defense." Although the story was about average for tv plays, it was strong enough to carry the thought—of a man whose life had been destroyed because a computer made a mistake, and no one was willing to buck the system or admit that computers subject to error.

The "message" was timely in that we now are well into the computer age, when we have all become—or are rapidly becoming—numbers and symbols, merely patterns of holes in a punch card. When all pertinent information regarding our public and even private lives is being recorded some place, to be referred to for countless reasons and by countless and unknown persons. There even is a drive on to enlarge upon these so-far limited procedures and to store even more information about each one of us in a central data center, instantly accessible and thereby stripping us all of our last cover of privacy. If this "central data center" idea goes through—and there is no reason to think that bureaucracy will not be ceaseless—we will then and there cease to exist as individuals.

Once in a while there is a program or movie with a "message"—perhaps we should all heed it.

Social Security Aims For Quick Claim Payments

When a person files a claim for social security benefits, whether it be a retirement, disability, or survivor's claim, the thing foremost in his mind is quick processing of his claim and prompt payment.

Ted F. Moellering, District Manager of the San Angelo Social Security Office, said recently that speedy payment of benefits is also the primary goal of the Social Security Administration. However, Mr. Moellering pointed out, the law requires that certain facts be established in each claim for social security benefits. Thus, employees of the Social Security Administration have a two-sided responsibility—to see that claims are paid promptly, but in accordance with the law.

Mr. Moellering listed three areas that cause problems and delays in the processing of social security claims: (1) lack of sufficient evidence of age; (2) employees whose wages are not reported or not reported at all; and (3) self-employed persons who do not file their tax returns correctly or do not file returns at all. All of these matters have to be cleared up before a claim can be completed.

For further information, contact the Social Security Office at 3000 West Harris Avenue in San Angelo, Texas, or see the representative when he is in your area.

"King Kong Escapes"

Holding beautiful Linda Miller in his massive fur-covered paw, gigantic King Kong climbs a 1000-foot television tower to wage mortal combat with a man-made robot replica of himself as the hair-raising climax of "King Kong Escapes," a Toho Production in Technicolor released by Universal, showing Friday, Saturday, and Sunday at the State Theatre. The climactic combat of this all new thriller is but one of several encounters between the live King Kong and the robot replica, constructed by sinister forces, in an effort to conquer the world.

Quite by accident, the live monster. They use tranquilizing bombs to quiet it, and a fleet of helicopters to transport it to their snow-covered industrial complex. There the giant, under a hypnotic spell induced by the scientist, is put to work tearing radio active material from the ground—work that has jammed the electronic equipment on the robot.

As King Kong claws the material, a reaction sets in causing fission-like eye-searing pyrotechnics, breaking the monster's hypnotic spell. The creature runs away to sea, turning up in Japan, where the scientist and his men have already brought their robot Kong hoping to capture the real animal. The city-crushing battle ends in the climax mentioned above.

counties and would be unable to retain their own school in an election contest with the heavier populated areas of the county."

Experienced school authorities in the rural areas also are questioning the claim that "another 30 minutes on a school bus would not be harmful to students." They say that any additional time on a school bus would cause much disadvantage to students.

Most educators in the smaller schools, who have opportunity to become acquainted with their students, also point to the huge, central schools as being "more adaptive to delinquency, dropouts, drug addiction," because of the "inability of teachers to know their students as persons rather than numbers." The larger schools have been the centers of this problem, they say. In the small town high schools, they state, "there is a noticeable lack of such problems, while many of the larger schools are 'hotbeds of trouble'."

Rural area businessmen and economists, as well as educators and school authorities, also are pointing to the almost total lack of representation of the rural areas on the committee. They say that the makeup of the committee "does not reflect the true status of the State concerning urban and rural communities."
