HOME TOWN Talk

By R. C. THOMAS

Even if you're real busy Saturday, leave a little time for yourself, and visit the art show at the Winters Public Library. If you're just a little susceptible to some of the nicer things of life, a visit to the art show should help to brighten your whole day—and perhaps several days to come.

Someone has said that a painting is like a beautiful woman—made to be seen and not hidden away. The area amateurs who will have their work on display feel that way about it, too. They've done these paintings for the sheer enjoyment of it, and they'd like for other people to see them.

Mrs. Douglas Cole, librarian, has put in some long hours in preparation for this first art show here. We're sure you'll enjoy it—so tell her what you think about it. Could be that it will become an annual affair.

The small boy in the next pew had been sniffing loudly for some time. After several disapproving frowns, the prim, middle-aged lady near him asked, "Little boy, have you a handkerchief?"

"Yes, ma'am," he sniffed, "but mother doesn't like me to lend it to strangers."

Is it difficult for you, too, to find the time to do some of the little things you'd like to do? We clipped the following little item, Author Unknown, to pass along:

When I have time, so many things I'll do . . . to make life happier and much more fair . . . for those whose lives are crowded now with care . . . I'll help to lift them from their low despair . . . When I have time.

When I have time, the friend I love so well . . . Shall know no more these weary toiling days . . . I'll lead his feet in pleasant paths always . . . and cheer his heart with words of sweetest praise . . . When I have time.

When you have time! The friend you hold so dear . . . May be beyond the reach of your intent . . . May never know that you so kindly meant . . . to fill his life with love and sweet content . . . When you had time.

Now is the time! Ah, friend, no longer wait . . . to scatter smiles and words of cheer . . . to those around whose lives are now so dear . . . they may not meet you in the coming year . . . Now is the time!

Art Show Set At Library Saturday

Area amateur artists will display their work in an art show to be held at the Winters Public Library Saturday, May 3. The show is under the joint sponsorship of the Library Association and the Winters Chamber of Commerce.

Five divisions will be judged in the show: still life, portraits, landscapes, marines and abstracts. The show is open to all amateur artists, with ribbons to be awarded to the first three places in each group. Consolation ribbons also will be awarded in each class.

Judge for the show will be Frank Walker, artist and art instructor of San Angelo. Walker has judged many shows, including the Governor's Art Show.

Assisting in production of the art show will be R. G. Phillips of the Wilmet Community. An amateur artist, Phillips will show some of his paintings, but will not enter them in the competition. He also will have some of his paintings displayed at Western Auto Store.

Mrs. Douglas Cole, librarian at the Winters Public Library, will assist in the arrangements for the show.

Artists were to bring their pictures to the Winters Public Library no later than Thursday, May 1. Many paintings were brought in last week and the first of this week.

Judging of the paintings will be done Friday, with the public show scheduled for Saturday, beginning at 9 a. m. Many of the paintings probably will be left on display at the library for several days.

There will be no admission charge for the show. Visitors will be asked to cast votes for their favorite paintings, with the artist showing the painting receiving the highest number of votes to be awarded an original painting by Walker.

The number of paintings already entered for this show, the first of its kind in Winters, indicates a great amount of interest. Sponsors are hoping to make the art show an annual affair.

Funds Allocated For Head Start School Program

Funds for conducting a two-month Head Start program for Central Texas Opportunities, Inc., have been allocated, according to an announcement made last week by Congressman Omar Burleson.

In a telegram to The Enterprise, Congressman Burleson said: "Pleased to announce $38,185 summer Head Start grant to Central Texas Opportunities Inc. Total cost of program $62,809, serving Coleman, Callahan, McCullough and Runnels Counties. Two month program with 296 enrollees, 18 classes, 8 centers."

The announcement did not include a breakdown for the several separate schools which will participate in the Head Start program this summer. James Jones, teacher in the Winters Public Schools, is director of the Head Start program for Winters this year.

City Will Patch Holes In Streets

Material has been received, and the Street Department will begin patching holes in Winters' paved streets within the next few days, Homer Hodge, assistant in charge of the Street Department, has announced.

It was also announced that a survey is being made of streets in the City to determine which streets are in need of seal coating. Such a project is being planned for later in the spring and summer. It is not known how many blocks will receive this seal coating, however.

FROM PLAINVIEW

Mr. and Mrs. Hugh Ritch of Plainview spent several days last week in the home of his sister, Mrs. Lora Coupland.

Congressman Burleson Introduces Tax Reform Bill In Washington D. C.

Washington, D. C.—A major step in the direction of controlling federal spending and at the same time strengthening state and local governments was proposed today by Congressman Omar Burleson (D), of Texas.

A member of the House Ways and Means Committee, Burleson introduced "The State Tax, Education, and Welfare Act of 1969" as a means of dealing with what he called "one of the most urgent problems facing America today."

"For a number of years I have felt that the financing and control of welfare programs and public education should be returned to state and local governments," he stated in a speech made at the time of introduction.

Burleson's bill calls for taxpayers to receive credits against their federal income tax liabilities for 40 per cent of state corporate and individual income taxes and general sales taxes paid in those states which agree to assume the full cost of basic welfare and education programs. It is currently estimated that this could reduce federal income taxes paid by residents of the 50 states and the District of Columbia by nearly $6 billion annually.

"By reducing the amount of money going to Washington," the veteran Texas Congressman said, "state and local governments could in turn increase their levels of taxation to assume full authority and responsibility for education and welfare without necessarily increasing an individual's total tax liability."

PANCAKE SUPPER—A large crowd from North Runnels County attended the pancake supper held in the Wingate School cafeteria Friday evening of last week. The pancake supper was held to raise money for the Wingate Little League baseball teams. Shown at the stove, cooking pancakes and bacon, are J. B. Denson (barely visible on the left), Pat Pritchard and Wesley Dean. On the serving line are Mrs. Page Baize and Mrs. James Williams.

Chamber of Commerce, City of Winters To Coordinate Clean-Up

Plans have not been completed at this date, but the week beginning Monday, May 12, has been designated as Spring Clean-Up Week. The extra effort to make Winters more attractive and healthful is being co-sponsored by the Winters Chamber of Commerce and the City of Winters.

Many businesses will find it impossible to close up, it has been pointed out, but they will attempt to send or employ someone to work on the project.

Tentative plans are to kick-off the special Thursday afternoon effort in a carnival atmosphere, with teams of workers with tools to leave from a starting point downtown for sites where they will work on cutting grass and weeds and generally cleaning up.

During the Thursday afternoon effort, a pickup or truck with large cans of lemonade will cruise the city, serving cold drinks to volunteer workers. Mrs. Earl Roach and Mrs. Frances Campbell, members of the board of directors of the Chamber of Commerce, will have charge of the refreshments.

Committees are also working with the school to determine if high school students would like to participate in the Thursday drive. The Chamber of Commerce has discussed a proposal to make substantial contributions to several departments in the school as an incentive.

Although the appearance of the entire city is of concern to those coordinating the drive, they are more concerned about the appearance of the approaches to the city. There are many vacant lots of the main thoroughfares into town, they said, which should be cleaned up, and weeds and grass cut, and general appearance improved. These are the locations where teams of workers will concentrate their efforts, it was stated.

As plans are completed for the Clean-Up Week, they will be released to the public.

Hospital District For North Runnels OK'ed By House

The Texas House of Representatives last Thursday, passed a bill to create a hospital district in North Runnels County.

House Bill 145, by Rep. Lynn Nabers of Brownwood, was passed by a vote of 199-0.

The measure was passed by the Senate Wednesday of this week, Rep. Nabers announced. The bill was amended by subcommittee to conform to other like measures for hospital districts.

The proposal, as passed by the State Legislature authorizes the Runnels County Commissioners Court to order an election in the affected section of the county for actual formation of a hospital district.

Pat Wood is chairman of the tournament committee at the Country Club.

Band, Choir Will Present Music Festival Tuesday

The Winters High School Blizzard Band and the high school Choir will present "Let Music Blossom," a spring music festival, in the high school gymnasium next Tuesday, May 6. The program begins at 8 p. m.

The event will be the annual spring concert presented by the band and choir. In past years, the concert has been held in the high school auditorium, but removal to the gymnasium gives more latitude for the performance planned for this year.

The band and choir are under the direction of Kirke McKenzie.

Tickets to the Spring Music Festival may be obtained from members of the choir and band, and members of the Band Boosters.

Main objective of the Spring Music Festival, said Director McKenzie, is "to afford ourselves and those we perform for the richest and most rewarding experience in musical listening and enjoyment."

"Music is a part of the school's educational program," McKenzie said. "Instrumental and choral music offer an excellent medium through which participating pupils can develop the art of cooperation, self-discipline and democratic attitudes. An important aim of the Winters Band and Choir program is to help students develop an appreciation and lasting enjoyment of good music." Music is one of the few hobbies that lasts for life and improves with age, he said.

Sgt. Alvin L. Dunn Returns Home After Year's Combat In Vietnam

Although many times frustrated by the reports of lack of progress in current peace talks, and harboring no little disgust over actions of rioters, dissenters and draft card burners on and off the campuses of colleges and universities, and even lack of moral support from some high political figures in the United States, the American troops fighting the war in Vietnam have been given a job and, with few exceptions, are doing it in the proud tradition of Americans.

Condensed, this is the impression one gets when talking with Sergeant Alvin L. Dunn, who last week returned after a year's combat duty in South Vietnam. The Sergeant didn't say it in so many words, but the story is there. In this war which lacks total and all-out support from all levels of the American populace, in which there is no loud "For God and Country!" rallying cry, no "Victory Garden" patriotism, and no "Mom's apple pie" reasoning, the present-day American fighting man is following the example of his predecessors of other wars, exhibiting no less group and individual battlefield conscientiousness and devotion to duty than they. It becomes apparent, in talking to some of these people, that this generation of fighting man is just as determined as his forebears—perhaps more so, because he is better educated, better trained, better informed. With this background, and with typical American inherent reasoning, he probably more readily recognizes the root and importance of his being personally involved in a non-popular war thousands of miles from home. He has been given a job and is methodically doing it.

Sgt. Dunn, son of Mr. and Mrs. Luther (Doc) Smith, was reared and schooled in Winters. He graduated with the WHS Class of 1967 and, along with Jerry Awalt, also a WHS graduate, entered the U. S. Army in August of '67. They took their basic training at Fort Polk, La., and then went on to jump training with the Airborne Service. Following intensive training, they were sent, more than a year ago, to Vietnam.

They were assigned to Camh Rahn Bay, South Vietnam, and to Bien Hoa for orientation and further training. Dunn was assigned to the 3rd Battalion, 187th Infantry, 101st Airborne Division. Awalt was assigned to the 2nd Battalion, and was subsequently wounded in action in fighting at Cu Chi, near Saigon, and returned home in 1968.

Sgt. Dunn saw duty at Dak To and Dak Pak, in the Central Highlands, for about a month, and was in action around Phu Bai and Hue. He was awarded the Bronze Star in recognition of his action in combat last October.

When asked how many patrols he had taken part in, Sgt. Dunn said he could not remember exactly how many times he had gone out looking for the Viet Cong—"We were on 'patrol' almost constantly," he said. He took part in many "ambushes," a new concept in warfare made necessary by the Vietnam type of conflict. These were called "Search and Destroy" missions, a term which has been changed to "Reconnaissance In Force," which is more palatable to some.

On these RIF patrols, he said, troops would be situated in a triangle, in company strength at each point, each company in support of the companies on the other points. Small patrols, of squad size, then would be sent out to make contact with the enemy. In the event of a fire-fight, the outpost patrols would pull back, drawing the Viet Cong into closer contact with the larger company. The patrols would never know if they were in contact with 5 or 500 enemy troops.

Communications are the best, Sgt. Dunn said. Seldom, and then only in extremely bad weather, were troops out of communication with supporting units. He has only high praise for combat pilots of the Air Force, too. When a unit was in (Continued on page 8)

Clearance Lights Installed At Winters Airport

Blue clearance lights have been installed on the runway of Winters airport southwest of town, Mayor Wade White said this week.

Installation of the lights will provide a safety factor for night operation.

The lights have been installed according to specifications of the Texas Aeronautical Commission, and the State Highway Department. Electricity for lights on the north end of the runway will be provided by West Texas Utilities Co., and for the south end, by the Coleman County Electric Cooperative.

Mayor White said there are prospects of hangers and some other facilities being added at the air strip. He said more and more people are using the airport, with additional use expected in the future.

BABSON'S POINT OF VIEW

Tax-Exempt Bonds

By Babson's Reports Incorporated, Wellesley Hills, Mass. Having recently completed their annual accounting with state and federal tax agencies, investors are most conscious of taxes and their effect on income. The higher-bracket taxpayer is particularly aware of the tax bite and consequently should seek out opportunities that will allow him to retain more of his investment income.

Some will look at oil ventures and cattle ranches, which, while providing high expense deductions, could prove to be too risky for most investors. It is at this point that consideration should be given to tax-exempt municipal bonds.

Issued by cities, towns, and other local governmental bodies, "municipals" provide the funds to carry out major municipal projects. (One may also include in this group municipal industrial development bonds, issued to finance commercial ventures within a community). Income from such bonds has been exempt from federal income taxes and also, in some instances, from income taxes of the issuing state. Hence they bear a coupon rate lower than corporate issues.

Coupon Rate Vs. Yield

A word about "yield." Prices for bonds are usually quoted in terms of yield to maturity, which is a reflection of coupon rate and the length of time the bond has to run to maturity. This also translates into a dollar price for the bonds. (Dollar price runs counter to yield—as price declines, yield rises.) A bond priced below par will have a yield to maturity higher than its coupon. Also, if held to maturity, a portion of the proceeds could represent a capital gain. Recently the average corporate bond yield, as expressed by Moody's averages, was 7.21 per cent. On the same date the average yield on municipal bonds was 5.28 per cent. This latter rate would, in itself, seem highly favorable—tax exempt! But the advantage is even greater for the higher-bracket taxpayer.

An investor in a 50 per cent tax bracket holding a municipal bond bearing a 4 per cent coupon receives the equivalent of an 8 per cent return on a taxable bond.

Selection

With the great number of state and municipal subdivisions in existence, there is obviously a wide choice of municipal bonds available. However, in selecting an issue we must look beyond the purpose of the issue, or even the yield. While most municipal bodies probably will not default on their bonds, this has happened. A measure of the quality of a bond may be found in its rating—usually Moody's— from highest AAA to the seldom seen C. These ratings are essentially an evaluation of the issuing body, based on a variety of factors, roughly comparable to an individual's credit rating.

As might be expected, the better-rated issues will command higher prices (and produce lower yields) than those of lesser-known issuer will be less marketable, especially in small or odd lots. In this situation it is possible for an investor to find himself forced to hold bonds to maturity because there is no ready market at realistic prices.

Tax-exempt bond investments, perhaps more than other types of investment, must be personalized. But we offer, as suggestions, a few issues which look attractive to the Babson's Reports staff. First is the Illinois Toll 4 3-4's of 1968, yielding 5.05 per cent to maturity. Second is the Fairfax County, Va. Water Authority 5's of 2007, yielding 5.22 per cent. Also, we like the Austin, Texas School District 4.90 per cent of 1991, yielding 5.25 per cent.

Business Prospects Continue Favorable

Although uncertainties abound and there is no lack of unsolved problems, the U. S. economy is still pointing to the upside. Admittedly some segments of business are not showing as much vigor as previously, yet relatively few really serious setbacks have occurred. Thus far, the Administration and Federal Reserve fiscal and monetary control actions—designed to bring about disinflation of the overheated economy—have had only a token impact.

Capsule Forecast

As things now shape up, the staff of Babson's Reports expects final compilations to show Gross National Product for the first quarter of 1969 approaching the $905-billion mark—a gain of 2 per cent over the 1968 fourth quarter. Despite the heavy restrictive influence of large spring tax payments and government credit curbs, we feel there is enough forward business momentum to carry the GNP to the $918-920-billion level in the second quarter. With perhaps half of this additional 2 per cent increase coming from higher price tags, the real expansion will be only fractional. Yet the trend will still be up and new highs will be reached in the April-June period.

The rate of gain posted by the Federal Reserve Index of Industrial Production thus far in 1969 has been lagging the 1968 pace. Preliminary figures suggest a first-quarter average for the index of about 169.5. We are looking for a second-quarter average near 171, with the high mark probably occurring in May. But beyond midyear, production increases may be harder to come by.

Mother-Daughter Banquet Held At Fireside Sunday

Mother-Daughter banquet, sponsored by the Ladies Aid Circle of the St. John's Lutheran Women of the Church, was given at the Fireside Restaurant Sunday evening at 7 o'clock. Members of the banquet committee were Mrs. H. L. Frick, Mrs. John Hiller, Mrs. E. E. Thormeyer and Mrs. Ellis Ueckert.

The banquet tables, laid in white linen, were decorated with spring flowers and swirling stars alternating through the center. A space rocket emphasizing the theme of the program "Youth in the Space Age" centered the head table.

The Space Mistress, Mrs. Walter Gerhart, president of the Ladies Aid Circle, welcomed the guests. She stressed the mother in space age. The oldest mother, Mrs. Wm. Minzenmayer; the youngest mother, Mrs. Charles Kraatz; the youngest daughter, Miss Melody Kraatz; the mother with the most daughters present, Mrs. Minnie Belitz; the mother who traveled the farthest, Mrs. Archie Goldman of Dallas; mother traveling the shortest distance, Mrs. M. D. Wright, who lives within a block of the Fireside.

Mrs. Gerhart introduced Mrs. Fred Voss, who led the group in singing and Mrs. E. E. Thormeyer, who accompanied on the accordion.

The Rev. Walter Probst, Sr., pastor of the church, gave the invocation. Carroll Tatom, superintendent of the Winters Schools, was the guest speaker. He stated that our footing should be firm and that God's love is similar to mother's love, she loves her children even if they do wrong.

The speaker said "our time is shorter now due to the space age, it is necessary to develop mentally, socially, church activities and to keep physically fit, have faith in Lord Jesus Christ."

Miss Rhanae Hoppe played her own guitar accompaniment and sang "Turn Away."

Mrs. W. F. Minzenmayer, president of St. John's Lutheran Women of the Church, opened the business meeting with the reading of the Preamble. Reports were given by Miss Estelita Bredemeyer, treasurer; Mrs. Walter Spill, secretary of education suggesting that all should read article in Scope; Mrs. Jerry Holle, secretary of stewardship who stated that projects are doing nicely.

Mrs. H. L. Frick, chairman of cookbook committee, reported that the cookbooks should be ready about the middle of July. Mrs. Walter Gerhart, delegate to Northwest Conference Convention held at Slaton April 25, gave her report.

The offering meditation was given by Mrs. Walter Kraatz and the meeting closed with a rising vote of thanks to the Ladies Aid Circle. One hundred and two guests were registered by Mrs. Erwin Ueckert.

Runnels, Coke Counties Survey Committees Sponsor Tour Sat.

Fifty six people took the historical tour Saturday sponsored by the Runnels and Coke County Historical Survey Committees. The group stopped at the estimated spot where the battle between the Indians and Rangers took place overlooking Valley Creek, near the present Wingate cemetery. Here the Kiowa Chief was killed in 1874. He was called "Big Foot" because of the large foot print always found when there had been a robbery or someone killed.

Mayor Wade White narrated the details of the battle when Captain J. W. (Capt. Jeff) Matley and his company of nine rangers killed the Indian Chief and two others. They seriously wounded a fourth man, but before he died he told them he was a Comanche and his name was Jape. He would not reveal the chief's name but said they left Fort Sill a few days before and for many years had been coming down to the settlements killing, capturing and robbing the people. He admitted they killed the Johnson, Blaylock and Bill Williams families.

The Chief's arms and marks on his rank were hung up by his captor to signify that his raids were ended. His arms consisted of a Spencer breechloading rifle, Remington army six shooter, bow and arrow, beautifully decorated, butcher knife and field. His breast ornament was made of 82 second joints of human fingers of those he had killed and his headdress was made of eagle feathers and white women's hair.

A tour of Ft. Chadbourne followed by Mrs. Bryan Yarbrough pointing out the crumbling stone buildings consisting of officers quarters, hospital, barracks for enlisted men and Overland mail station. The fort had 18 commanders in four years including Robert E. Lee, Earl Van Dorn and Colonel Johnston. It was established in 1852, and finally abandoned in 1867. In 1876 Colonel Odom moved his family to the site and his granddaughter, Mrs. Condra Wylie lives there today.

An Indian rock shelter recently located on Oak Creek was also explored and the old Fort Cemetery visited.

WASHINGTON

"As it looks from here"

OMAR BURLESON Congressman 17th District

Washington, D. C. —How do you arrive at a decision affecting vital aspects of our National defense — decisions which could make the difference between our survival and our annihilation. This is the issue involved in the debate now gaining momentum on the Anti-Ballistic System which will become better known by the name "Safeguard."

It seems one must start with three simple propositions into which must be stirred many other ingredients to produce sound judgments.

The first of these considerations is a conclusion as to the kind of world in which we live. The second is what it takes to be stronger than any potential enemy, to either deter attack from an enemy or to overcome him should he attack. The third is how to go about reaching this desired strength in terms of nuclear weapons, tanks, planes, ships, guns and what ever other material necessary.

This last of the three propositions has a subhead related to dollars and cents — not particularly whether we can afford it, because we must, but to make as certain as possible we are getting our money's worth.

Strangely enough the very first of these three propositions encounters widely divergent opinions even among the experts. Fundamentally, the differences of opinion occur between two words — capability and intention. These two words seem to be the key to arriving at a judgment in the kind of a world on which we are living. Our sources of information give us a fairly good estimate of the capability of the Soviet Union and Red China. The real rub comes in appraising their intentions. What might be intent today could be something else tomorrow under the totalitarian system of governments. In whatever way one may judge intentions of the moment, these intentions can change and quite suddenly. If capability is reasonably established, it follows, therefore, that we must assume the worst of intentions.

This essentially is the position of those favoring the ABM system. The dispute will mount in intensity in the weeks and months ahead.

The previous administration advocated the deployment of defenses against enemy ballistic missiles around our large cities. The theory was to reduce an estimated loss of 120 some odd million people to around 40 million by a first strike attack. The price — loosely estimated at $40 billion.

The present administration abandoned this idea favoring the theory of protecting our ability to retaliate on a first strike by protecting our offensive missiles and other offensive capabilities — the cost involved estimated at about $6 billion.

Up to this point, the decision remains relatively simple. Next comes the technical aspects and the differences of opinion of the experts grow. There is disagreement on the effectiveness of such defense system as well as the offensive capabilities of the enemy. When all testimony is ended, we are faced with the problem of what the non-experts should do when the experts disagree. The arguments grow that as we continue to build defenses against the enemy's capability, the enemy increases its offensive power and that disarmament agreements are less likely. The other is that our principal potential enemy, the Soviet Union, is already on the way to establishing a defense of its own against our offensive weapons.

The final decision on this whole issue may not depend so much on technical arguments as it does on the first and most important of all considerations — that is the assumption that there is no room for miscalculation; no room for misplaced trust; no room to be disillusioned into thinking that there is no possibility of unprovoked nuclear weapon attack or that a potential enemy could not hold us up to blackmail.

Perhaps the resolution of the issue may depend largely on a suggestion posed by former Deputy Defense Secretary Paul Nitze:

"Under our constitution the President is charged with the conduct of foreign affairs. I strongly urge the legislative branch to put him in the position he believes to be best to conduct those negotiations."

Conservation Tour Will Be Held On Monday, May 5

Griener Hays, Chairman of the Runnels Soil and Water Conservation District, said a conservation tour will be conducted Monday, May 5th. The tour, he said, will start from the Soil Conservation Service office at 9:00 a. m. and will be completed by 11:30 a. m.

Hays said everyone is invited to make the tour. It will be sponsored jointly by the Runnels S & W C D, the Valley Creek Water Control District and the Agricultural Committee of the Ballinger Chamber of Commerce.

The tour is designed, he said, to bring about a better understanding of how conservation helps everyone, town and farm people alike. And too, to see first hand what our people are doing to the land, water and related resources that have been entrusted to their care.

The tour will be a forerunner to the observance to Soil Stewardship Week. This week has been designated as May 11-18th by a proclamation issued by our Governor, Preston Smith.

Hays said the tour will include stops at places where good care has been given to the land as well as points where the care has not been too good.

"Hello Down There"

Ivan Tors, who has introduced dolphins, cross-eyed lions, gentle bears and other exotic fauna to the screen, adds a new concept in his latest film, the underwater comedy for Paramount Pictures "Hello Down There" in color, showing Friday, Saturday and Sunday at the State Theatre, —family life in an underwater house.

"Living underwater is not a crackpot or science-fiction," said executive producer Tors. The house we built for our film could be completely practical. We have the knowledge and skills right now to construct such a building, and within the future it not only will be built but lived in."

Due to the exigencies of motion picture production, making the house for "Hello Down There," which stars Tony Randall, Janet Leigh, Jim Backus, Roddy McDowall, Ken Berry and Merv Griffin, was built both in an underwater version and on a sound stage. "We used the underwater set for our exterior scenes," —explained George Sherman, producer of the film. "If we tried to shoot the interiors down there we would have had to swim in an entire crew which would have been too difficult."

"Hello Down There is the first film to deal with the practical aspects of underwater living. Beyond that producer Sherman explains: "It is not only unique, but it is also a family picture. When you make a family picture successfully you must have elements that appeal to everyone, and they've got to work together. In "Hello Down There" we have hippies and rock music, dolphins and sea lions; we've got a fresh new comedy done with complete respect for the scientific aspects that we're dealing with."

YOUR REPRESENTATIVE IN AUSTIN

The Texas House passed a bill this week relating to firemen and policemen. Often when these public servants are called on to testify in Court it is scheduled on their day off. Heretofore, they have lost their time off and received no pay for the day. House Bill 187 states that firemen and policemen shall be paid regular wages for the days that they are required to appear in Court to give testimony.

House Bill 960 was passed and should be of interest to many. It designates that all state agricultural agencies will add wool and mohair to the list of Texas farm products that they promote. Previously such agencies were concerned with the research, development, production, and utilization of cotton, oilseed products, and textiles. Now, wool and mohair will be included in their promotion.

Many people from throughout this district were on hand in Austin Wednesday to pay tribute to Gus Mutscher on Speaker's Day. There were approximately 5,000 who bought tickets to the evening "Barbecue" held at Zilker Park.

Much of my time lately has been devoted to three educational bills I am sponsoring this Session. All three bills are designed to help Texas meet the growing needs of providing its residents with opportunities for college education in the future. By 1980 it is estimated that college enrollment will be up 89 per cent. I contend, therefore, that all existing institutions, as well as those presently being developed, will be needed. These educational bills could save Texas millions of dollars by making it possible to utilize existing colleges instead of building more and more state supported institutions of higher learning.

MRS. JOHN RICHARD HANNON

Karen Kay Knapp, John Richard Hannon Wed At Wichita, Kansas

Karen Kay Knapp of Wichita, Kansas, daughter of Mrs. Kenneth K. Knapp of Dallas, Texas and the late Kenneth Knapp, became the bride of John Richard Hannon Friday April 25, when they repeated their vows in a candlelight service at the Christ The King Catholic Church in Wichita, Kansas, with the minister, FA Vincent Eck, officiating.

Parents of the bridegroom are Mr. and Mrs. Bernard S. Hannon of Wichita, Kansas.

The Knapp family formerly lived in Winters.

Dr. Robert M. Knapp of Houston, Texas, uncle of the bride, presented his niece in marriage. She wore a full-length A-line dress of peau de soie designed with lace Bishop sleeves jeweled with crystals and pearls, high waistline emphasized with the same jeweled pattern and gathered chapel train which fell from the shoulders attached to a hat bow. Her veil of illusion fell from a cluster of crystal and pearl flower petals. She carried a large Colonial bouquet of white carnations with pinks of pink tulle centered with pink

Nixon Seeking Increase In Postal Rates

An "inherited" postal deficit of $1.2 billion is responsible for proposals to raise the postage bill for residents of Winters, Postmaster Nichols said today.

Mr. Nichols said he had been advised by Postmaster General Winton M. Blount in Washington, that the record $1.2 billion 1970 deficit compelled President Nixon to seek postage rate increases. Without higher rates the department will be left with a staggering deficit that would become an added public tax burden.

In addition to increasing letter mail from 6 to 7 cents, as proposed by the Johnson Administration, President Nixon also asked that second and third class mailers help reduce the large postal deficit which would otherwise be paid by taxpayers, the postmaster said.

For bulk third class mail and most magazines and newspapers, the rates would be increased 16 percent to 20 percent above today's levels, he noted. These percentages include rate hikes already scheduled by previous action of Congress.

The President's recommended increases will reduce the 1970 postal deficit by more than $600 million.

The postmaster listed these other details on the proposed increase:

First Class Mail: Letters and postcards would be increased one cent, to 7 cents an ounce and 6 cents a piece, respectively, on July 1, 1969.

Air mail postage would remain at 10 cents. This would yield $57.2 million in new revenue.

Second Class Mail: A handling charge of three-tenths of a cent per piece for circulation outside home counties would become effective July 1, 1969. This would yield $15.3 million annually and would represent a 12 percent increase in addition to the 8 percent rise scheduled to take effect January 1, 1970.

Third Class Mail: For single pieces, rates would be increased 1 cent per piece. This would yield $12.4 million. For regular bulk third-class, the minimum would be increased to a uniform rate of 4.2 cents January 1, 1970, as contrasted with the present rate of 3.6 cents.

The 1970 increase would lift revenue by $46.8 million annually.

Sgt. Dunn--

(Continued from page 1) action against the enemy—which was most of the time in the field—it was comforting to be able to call in ever-present Air Force gun ships which could lay down deadly patterns of fire against an onslaught of Viet Cong.

What about the M16 rifle which caused so much controversy several months ago? The best, he said. It's a good weapon, and when it is treated and handled right, will get a man out of some hairy jams.

Then the question which seems to pop up at every turn. There is no color line on the firing line, Sgt. Dunn said. Your patrol companion's skin may not be the same color as yours, but his blood runs as red as yours does. No problems there, he said.

"You better believe it!" Sgt. Dunn answers to a lot of questions. He's pretty convinced in his beliefs. What about the officers? Are they qualified and trained? "You better believe it!" His Company Commander had undergone all the normal training, plus. Plenty of Ranger training, capped off with jungle training in Panama. "He's right on the line with you, too," said the Sergeant. Not only the company-rank officers. The man next to you in the rice paddy or the tall grass may be brass who in past conflicts may never have been past the guard gate of rear area headquarters. In Vietnam, everybody takes a hand.

Sgt. Dunn is glad to be home, though he gives the impression he would not whimper if asked to return to Vietnam. He saw a lot of action, but came out with a whole skin. The last few days, during which he knew he would be returning Stateside in a little while, were the hardest, and the natural fear mounted with each passing day. "I didn't get hit," he says with some wonderment, "but my feet took a beating!"

An Airborne soldier, Sgt. Dunn was flown into action areas in choppers many times. In addition to the Bronze Star ribbon, he also wears the Air Medal ribbon—awarded for the first 25 times he was air-transported into action territory. On that ribbon are several clusters, themselves representing additional airborne trips. He also wears the Army Commendation Medal ribbon, the Vietnam Campaign ribbon, and the Vietnam Service medal ribbon.

Sgt. Dunn has 16 months to do on his Army hitch. He is being assigned to Fort Bragg, N. C., and hopes to take an "early out" before the hitch is up so he can go to school. What school? He isn't decided—but he'll study in some agricultural field.
