HOME TOWN Talk

By R. C. THOMAS

Outdoor cooking (and-or "barbecuing") goes on most of the year around in this section of the country, in one form or another, but with more daylight hours and pretty weather becomes even more popular this time of the year, and there seems to be a permanent haze of wood and charcoal smoke hanging over town as outdoor cooks practice their arts.

Guess is that there are few families that do not, at one time or another, move outside to do their cooking over some type of open fire—charcoal, wood, or even gas. Even with all the modern indoor types of cooking appliances available and in use, there seems to be an urge on the part of most to, in a mild way at least, return to some type of "primitive" living; an urge to reach back and pretend to touch that which was a common way of life for our forebears. (We wonder sometimes if the primitives "moved inside" once in a while, on a lark, to cook their bison, bear and dinosaur?)

Ways and means of outdoor cooking are about as many and varied as the people who participate, too. Facilities and equipment range from the smallest "coffee-can" barbecuer, home-made units, one-lung charcoal units, small gas models, large gas models, rock, brick and concrete pits, to elaborate charcoal-wood-gas barbecuers and smokers.

In most instances, too, when cooking is moved out-of-doors, it is Papa who rules the roost and does the cooking—or at least the supervising. Each cook has his own special way of preparing the meat or whatever, and his own private recipe for "sauce" for the barbecued chicken, beef, pork, venison, or what have you. Each cook thinks his is the most savory, and he is either very reluctant to reveal the ingredients to someone else, or he broadcasts his recipe to the world. True the charcoal used to burn meat, in some cases, would taste more delicious than the meat itself—but that is beside the point, really. If all the "barbecue sauce" recipes used by outdoor cooks were gathered in one pile, it would take a computer to sort them and volumes to list them—and a bonfire of them would light the countryside. And if two or more "barbecuers" get together and start talking their specialties—the sauce they use, the way they cook their meat, the kind of wood they use, etc.—the rest of the world may as well stand still—there is nothing of greater importance.

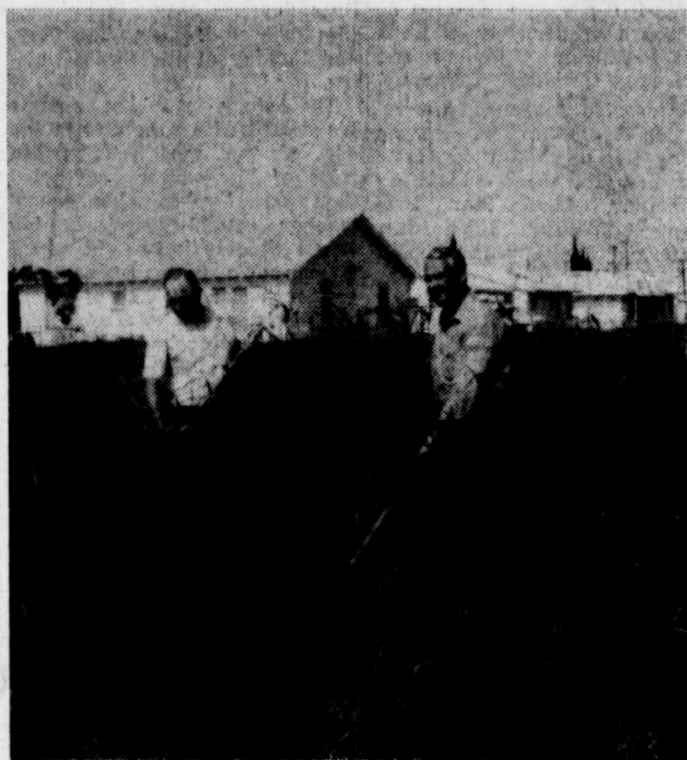

But it has become a way of life, and a whole industry has sprung up in the last few years, catering to the whims and fancies of the outdoor cooks, in their headlong efforts to best their neighbors in the art of burning a hunk of meat. But there are very satisfying results, you may be sure.

In addition to the family-size "barbecues," there are the big affairs, which include organizations and entire communities in many instances. These we have had with us for a long time, and in this section of the country they have become a tradition. Such as the Winters Volunteer Firemen's Annual Barbecue, held in August each year, which brings us to our little punch-line story:

Several years ago, the firemen decided to build a new barbecue pit, to be used to prepare the meat for the annual affair. What better location to build than beside the concrete calaboose behind the city hall? The concrete wall of the little lockup would serve as one side of the pit, and only three sides would be needed. So the pit was built.

Then came the big day—the meat was brought and cut up the wood was piled into the pit and set afire. The coals burned down just right before the meat was put on the grates. But...

The poor fellow who had celebrated just a mite too much the night before, and had been put in the calaboose by the local police to "cool off"—just a concrete wall away from the barbecue fire—undoubtedly awoke believing he had passed from this world to an unjust reward! When released, he was a repentant man, and has never been seen or heard from again!

IN TALL GRASS—Woodrow Watts, left, president of the Winters Chamber of Commerce, and Mayor Wade W. White join the volunteer crews who pitched in and worked to help clean up the town last Thursday afternoon in the Spring Clean-Up Drive sponsored by the Chamber of Commerce. Several vacant lots on approaches to town were mowed and trash cleared off by businessmen and others. City and County crews ran mowers and trucks to haul away the debris picked up. Lady members of the Chamber of Commerce operated a mobile "thirst slaker" stand, serving lemonade to clean-up workers.

Recent Rains Caused "Considerable" Damage On Non-Dammed Streams

Heavy rains during last month caused "considerable" damage on creeks and tributaries in North Runnels County which do not have flood detention dams, Woodrow Hoffman, conservationist with the U. S. Soil Conservation Service, reported. These rains gave landowners an opportunity to compare the damage and lack of damage on non-dammed streams and dammed streams, he said.

Greatest amount of damage was experienced on Bluff Creek, Hoffman said. Heavy rains—from 6 inches up—in the Drasco and Bradshaw areas dumped a lot of water into Bluff Creek, which went out of banks and caused a lot of damage to planted fields, pastures, fences, water gaps and roads, it was reported. The flood water completely inundated entire crops along the creek.

Elm Creek, farther to the east in North Runnels County, did not get as full as Bluff Creek, nor was there as much damage experienced. The water went around both ends of the dam of the Winters Lake, in the emergency spillways, causing some damage there. The rainfall was not as heavy in the runoff areas of Elm as on Bluff, Hoffman pointed out, lessening the chance for damage. Too, he said, Winters Lake helped to slow down the water to some extent.

Coyote Creek, in the central part of North Runnels, was out

Coleman Lions Sponsoring Fish Rodeo, to July 15

Five thousand dollars in prizes will be offered to the winners of the Fish Rodeo being sponsored by the Coleman Evening Lions Club.

The contest began May 15 and will continue to July 15.

Tagged fish have been released in Hords Creek Lake and Lake Coleman, and fishermen catching tagged prize fish must take them to authorized inspection stations: Rudolph's Service Station, Commercial Avenue at Walnut, Coleman, and the Coleman Police Department.

Fishermen entering the Fish Rodeo are required to register and have a valid Rodeo Registration Card at the time any prize fish is caught. $25 first prize and a $10 second prize for the largest and next largest fish caught in Coleman Lake in each of the following categories: black bass, yellow cat, channel cat, carp. Each fish submitted to an inspection station must be alive and in good condition at the time of the submission. Fish must have been caught in Coleman County to qualify for the largest or next largest fish, in any category.

Registration cards may be obtained from any of the Lion sponsors in Coleman.

CTO To Sponsor Recreation Period During Summer

Central Texas Opportunities, Inc., funded by the Office of Economic Opportunity, is sponsoring summer recreation programs in Brown, Coleman, McCulloch and Runnels Counties this summer.

The programs are designed for children from 6 to 14 years of age and will consist of swimming, arts and crafts, baseball, volleyball, tennis and other athletic activities, picnics and family nights.

This year emphasis will be placed on swimming. The City of Winters is cooperating with the community action agency by contributing use of its pool and personnel.

All children wishing to participate in the recreation program should be at the Winters Multi-Purpose Center at 9 a. m. Monday, June 2. The program will continue through July 26.

Stell Building Being Torn Down For Parking Lot

Demolition work was started this week on the building known as the Stell Building in the 100 block of West Dale Street, which was purchased some time ago by the Winters State Bank.

Woodrow Watts, president of the bank, said plans are to make a paved parking area on the lot, which is across the alley from the bank building.

The brick building—a double-size brick structure—has housed several businesses down through the years. Hawkins Dry Goods & Grocery occupied the building for many years, to the mid-1920's. Then J. M. Skaggs Dry Goods Co. was in the building. Payne's Dry Goods, operated by Joe H. Payne, followed Skaggs, and then Clarence Gambill operated Gambill's Variety Store there. J. T. Stell then operated Stell's Variety for some years, and then James Hinds operated Winters Variety Store in the building Hinds was the last occupant; the building has been vacant for several years.

of banks a lot, it was stated, and floodwaters caused considerable damage in that watershed. Hoffman said it would be impossible at this time to even estimate the amount of damage caused by Bluff Creek floodwaters, although individual landowners probably know by now the extent of the damage. There was a big contrast in the damage in the east half of North Runnels and the west half of the county, it was pointed out. Several flood retardation dams have been constructed on Valley Creek in the western part of the county, and their value during times of heavy rainfall was graphically illustrated. Only one tributary of that creek got out of hand and caused serious damage, it was reported, and there are no retardation dams on that tributary as yet. Retardation dams on other tributaries, built by Valley Creek Water Control District, stopped the sudden flooding following the heavy rains. Otherwise, without the presence of those dams, some landowners pointed out, it would have been a repeat of happenings of 1956-57, when Valley Creek roared out of banks causing thousands of dollars in damages. About the same amount of water fell in the gathering basins of Valley Creek as fell on the headwaters of Bluff Creek, it was stated. The difference in resulting damages was caused by the presence of dams on Valley Creek.

Hoffman said that plans of Elm Creek Water Control District to develop a water retardation dam system on Elm Creek will, when carried out, prevent heavy losses such as were experienced in the last month on Bluff Creek and Elm.

W. M. Hays, chairman of the board of directors of Elm Creek Water Control District, said planning is going ahead on this project, and that results of such planning should begin to be more noticeable within the next few months. There still is a lot of preliminary work to be done before applications can be made for Federal funds to begin such work, he said, but this should be accomplished within a short time.

TREES—Members of the Winters Country Club joined forces last Saturday morning to plant non-bearing mulberry trees on the golf course. Forty-five young trees were planted as fairway markers. Shown is one planting crew placing a tree in a hole which had been dug previously. Left to right, Jack Burns, caretaker at the Country Club, John Edward McAdoo, T. A. McMillan and Johnny Dry. Trees were obtained through contributions by club members, and name plates of individual contributors have been attached to trees. Club members expressed a special note of thanks to E. E. Thormeyer of Farm Equipment for use of a tractor and posthole digger; Pud Cooke of Cooke Wrecking Co. for building the water tank trailer; and Jeryl Priddy of Winters Grain Co. for the water tank.

Spotty Beginning In Wheat Harvest, Still Too Early To Predict Outcome

Harvest of the 1969 wheat crop in North Runnels County is just beginning—in fact, only spot cuttings have been made—and wheat farmers and grain men still are reluctant to make any predictions on the outcome. Heavy rains of a few days ago have been cause for some concern among wheat farmers, rust has been a big problem and wet fields another. But there still is optimism in the wheat fields, and the results will be known only when the combines pull in to the fields.

Early maturing varieties of wheat have been more affected by the rust, with later and rust-resisting varieties looking good, so far, according to most sources. Grain men indicate that cuttings so far cannot be considered representative of the overall picture, because this wheat took the brunt of adverse weather conditions. It is felt that quality and yield will improve when combining gets underway to a larger extent.

In spite of some gloomy prospects—rust and other conditions—most feel that this year will be an above-average year, comparable to last year, when records were broken or threatened. Given good weather conditions for the next few days, the wheat harvest should be in full swing in another two weeks, it was thought.

For row crops, milo in North Runnels County looks good, according to Allen Belk, assistant county agriculture agent. There is some planting going on in the north section, however. In the south section of the county, milo farming is behind, because of the wet weather. Most farmers are just now planting, it was indicated. Cotton farmers are busy in the fields, planting, with a few locations still unreachable because of the wet ground. Warm winds and dry weather during the next few days should see most planting completed, however, according to most sources.

Texas Education Agency Outlines Regulations On Student Transfers

Texas parents who wish to transfer their children from one public school district to another—without changing their own place of residence—have been given a new route by the State Legislature.

This new plan is outlined in detail by the Texas Education Agency in a letter mailed to school superintendents throughout the state Monday. The act, passed by the 61st Legislature and signed by Governor Preston Smith on May 9, repeals transfer methods which have been in effect since 1925 and 1935.

Parents will no longer apply for transfer to the county superintendent. Instead, they will now go directly to the superintendent of the school district they wish their children to enter. The parent or guardian or the child must apply in writing at the receiving school superintendent's office. If the district agrees to receive the non-resident student, the parents or guardian will be notified in writing.

The old June 1 deadline for filing transfer applications will be extended, probably by several weeks, when the State Board of Education meets in Austin June 7. Agency officials explained. The board is also expected to adopt policies for implementing the new law.

Parents who have already applied for transfer to the county superintendent will be notified in writing to contact the receiving school district. If their applications have already been sent to the county office, they will be forwarded to the receiving school district.

Parents who transfer their children into another district may be required to pay tuition if the grades are taught in the home district. If, however, the grades are not taught, the home district pays the tuition. The fee paid by parents may not exceed the difference between what it costs the school district to support a student and the state funds received. This amount will be based on the per student costs during the 1968-69

City of Winters

Budget Hearing Monday Night

A public hearing to discuss a proposed budget for the City of Winters for the fiscal year beginning Oct. 1 and ending Sept. 30, 1970, will be held at the City Hall next Monday evening, June 2, at 7:30. Mayor Wade White has announced.

Following the hearing, and taking into account changes or additions suggested during the hearing, if any, the City Council will adopt a budget at a subsequent meeting.

Mayor White said the Council anticipates that the proposed budget which will be studied

Monday night will be met with the current tax rate, and with no increase in taxes. Allowances have been made for the replacement of equipment and repair of present equipment, he said.

The Mayor and the Council are asking the help and cooperation of the public toward adoption of a budget for the next fiscal year.

The proposed budget, copies of which have been distributed to the public within the past few days, indicates that the Council has estimated tax revenue at $100,450 for the fiscal year beginning October 1. Total revenue for the general fund, which will include sanitary collections, parking meter collections, park and swimming pool revenue, gross receipts taxes, and other income, and ad valorem taxes, has been estimated at $205,245. Total expenses—operating and non-operating—for the general fund is estimated at $204,621.

The proposed budget calls for reserve funds in most departments of the general fund to purchase needed or replacement equipment, and for capital improvements.

Estimated revenue for the Electric Department is $150,040, with estimated total expense for that department at $149,552.

For the water department, operating revenue for the next fiscal year is pegged at $62,850, with total estimated expense $62,323.

Estimated income for the Municipal Hospital is $92,250, with a $5,000 reserve for bad debts. Total estimated expense for the hospital, $91,467.

Mayor White urged that all citizens interested in the progressive operation of their city to meet with the Council next Monday night, to study the proposed budget and make any suggestions which they feel would be in the best interest of everyone.

WASHINGTON

"As it looks from here"

OMAR BURLESON

Congressman
17th District

Washington, D. C. — "After Vietnam" is a favorite expression here in Washington. It seems that about everything anyone wants done can be accomplished "after Vietnam."

Some are promising that all will be set right when the war in Vietnam is concluded. Problems now challenging the Government on every hand can supposedly be cured in short order. This includes the renovation of cities, soothing the unrest which agitates the younger generation and the minority groups and even a refurbishment of spiritual and economic destitution which afflicts many Americans.

This attitude adds up to an assumption prevalent in our society's life during the last several decades that money is all that is needed to cure everything.

The whole idea seems to be that when we get things quieted down in Southeast Asia, the billions now being spent in that area can immediately be put to use here at home.

The cost of the effort in Vietnam is blamed for not having all of the desirable things here at home which we will have "after Vietnam." Many of these same people have never expressed a concern about Government spending before. The concern seems only directed at the purpose for which it is spent. That same objection will be directed against the refurbishing of our National defense, which is going to be necessary to a very large degree "after Vietnam," if we are to maintain a position of strength in the world.

The refrain grows that there should be a reappraisal of our military commitments. Apparently this means a reappraisal of the kind of world in which we live. Some sort of an assumption must be drawn that somehow our potential enemies have had a change of heart and that if we are not strong militarily, they will not fear us but will love us in our weakness.

The advocates of everything "After Vietnam" do not show signs of considering what would happen if it should turn out that high expenditures for military spending must continue. There is no admitting possibilities that the balance of power in the world may be shifting in favor of our adversaries instead of the other way around. The whole implication is that no such thing could result from a full-scale reappraisal of our military spending and turn her whole attention to curing the evils on the home front. The fact is that the "after Vietnam" thesis is so strong that priorities are already being established. These priorities leave military preparedness some place down the line from those activities which are supposed to relieve all our society's ills. It is already being talked that to bail out bankrupt cities the Federal Government must come across with another $20 billion per year, which just about doubles the present Federal contribution. It is further being talked that the Federal Government will need to pay about one-third the cost of all local and State Governments.

There is reason for suspicion about some of this "after Vietnam" business. In the first place there just might be reason to question whether it is being used as a convenient cover for lack of workable programs at the present time. There should be a question as to whether all of this money we don't have will be available for all these things. No one is saying anything about using "after Vietnam" resources to get our fiscal house in order—like paying off some of our debts, stemming inflation by balancing the budget, strengthening the integrity of the dollar by reducing some of the tax burden from the necks of the taxpayer.

There is nothing wrong in looking to the time when problems of our society can be solved to the greatest possible extent. At the same time the idea that money alone can meet the challenge is false. In the opinion of some who have espoused this concept in the past, the $20 billion or more now being spent on some of these problems has resulted in chaos. Another $20 billion or so under present methods could produce twice as much chaos unless the spending is done more effectively.

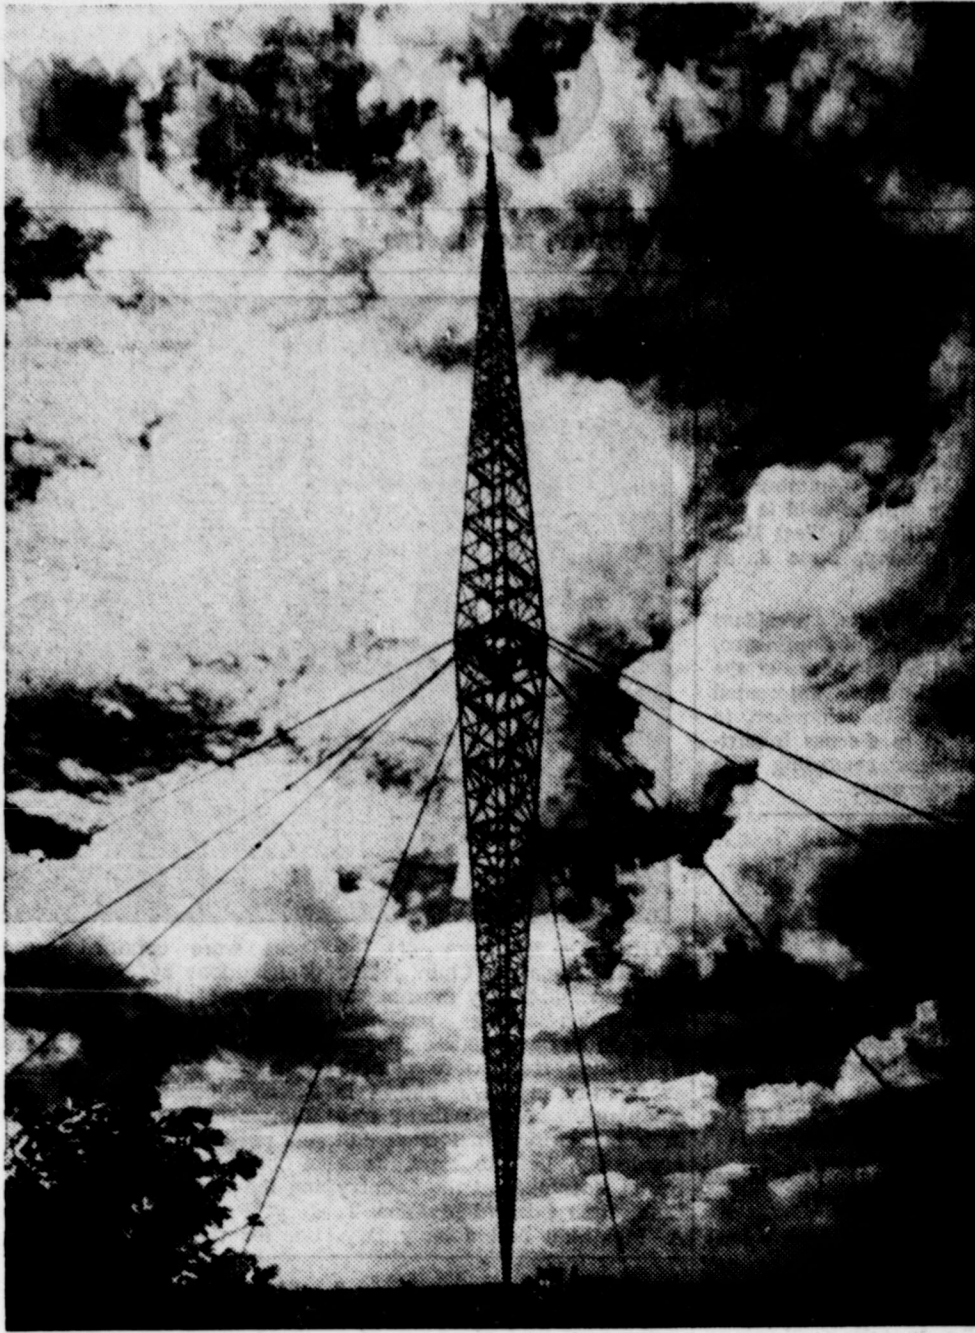

This, coupled with the need for refurbishing our military, hardly holds out the promises some are making "after Vietnam."

It is interesting to watch chipmunks gather food. This tiny little animal, about six inches long, can carry a tremendous amount of food in the pouch of its elastic cheek.

The horseshoe crab is classified as a true living fossil. It crawls around on the beaches and in the edge of the water. But it has been found on the ocean floor at times indicating 400 million years as a true living fossil.

Reason Texas and other Central Flyway states have an early teal season is that teal migrate south ahead of other waterfowl.

South Texas bobcats have much smaller paws than the Canadian lynx, which often must tread on snow.

OUTDOORS IN TEXAS
BY VEAN SANFORD

A few generations ago we gave very little thought to the possibility that in this century we might see the end of clean rivers. Now it is up to us. Pollution has increased to a point where water and wildlife will suffer and even people will perish. Today, scientists are working diligently on methods of pollution prevention.

But we, the people, are doing our damndest to bring it about. We have turned river and lake banks into settlements. Literally thousands of houses are without proper sanitary facilities. We toss our empty bottles, cans and old tires into the streams. Or leave them where they will wash into the water with the first heavy rain.

We operate thousands of houseboats on our lakes . . . and nearly all of them are without proper sanitary facilities. It seems that we do just about everything possible to ruin our water.

This is the water we drink. We bathe in it. We use it for our crops and our flowers. We even baptize with this water. Yet we pollute it.

Official steps are being taken to correct this situation, but it still remains a personal obligation. Each of us benefits and each of us pays the price.

Some hope may be available from the Scenic Rivers bill now in Congress. This measure sets up a national policy for the protection of wild and scenic streams. Coverage by the bill includes a stream or a section of a stream or a tributary and the adjacent lands. Measure passed without opposition in the Senate, but it encountered trouble in the House. This because some of the Congressmen were more interested in building dams and providing industry than keeping any scenic beauty for the future generations.

You can give support to this bill by writing your own congressman and letting him know that you believe some of our beautiful streams should be kept for posterity. Also pledge to him your support in keeping the streams of our areas as free from pollution as possible.

City ordinances and state laws exist, but there is a lack of enforcement and few teeth in the laws. Therefore it becomes an individual problem. Every one of us must do something to save our rivers, our fish and wildlife, our recreational areas and even our lives.

Next time you are tempted to toss a beverage can or throw an old tire into the water, think twice. You are not just hurting yourself, you are robbing your children and grandchildren of their rightful heritage . . . clean, pure water!

Importation of fish and wildlife has reached tremendous proportions in the United States. In one year alone (1967) we received from other countries 28 million live fish and more than 800,000 animals. These figures released by the Department of Interior.

birds, 137,697 amphibians and 64,304 mammals. Regulations do not place limits on exotic or rare species. Among these 1967 imports were steppe eagles, pygmy hippos and giant tortoises.

You might say a lot of money business is involved in this heavy importation, and you are right. Of the mammals, 62,526 were primates, and more than half of those were rhesus monkeys from southeast Asia. Many of them are used in medical research as well as for pets.

Ports of New York, Miami, Los Angeles and San Francisco handle most of these imports, which must all pass through quarantine inspection before they can be released or sold.

Among our fish importation, were 30,157 shellfish. Balance were mostly tropical fish for home aquariums. Shellfish were obtained for replanting the New England tidal flats, much as Texas is attempting to replant its oyster beds.

Those who worry about snakes may also be interested to know that 405,134 reptiles were imported into this country in 1967. They, too, were shipped to zoos and for experimental purposes. And these do not include the little snakes that sometimes slip into this country in bunches of bananas.

Other imports included 203,189

"Rachel, Rachel"

"Rachel, Rachel," the poignantly unfolding drama of a thirty-five-year-old spinster, was produced and directed by Paul Newman. Adapted for the screen by Stewart Stern from the Margaret Laurence novel. "A Jest of God," the Warner Bros.-Seven Arts Technicolor film shows Friday, Saturday, and Sunday at the State Theatre.

The story provides Joanne Woodward with a field to tackle one of the most challenging roles of her career as Rachel Cameron, the spinster school teacher caught helplessly between the bleak twilight world of her own fantasies and the suffocating empty web of small-town existence.

The talent-packed supporting cast includes Estelle Parsons (last seen in "Bonnie and Clyde") as Calla Mackie, an older teacher-friend who has "opened herself to life" through the Reverend Wood's (Geraldine Fitzgerald) local Tabernacle, Kate Harrington as Rachel's mother, James Olson as Nick Kazlik and Donald Moffat as Niall Cameron. Seven-year-old Nell, daughter of Paul Newman and Joanne Woodward, plays the part of Rachel Cameron as a child.

Starring Joanne Woodward, the film was shot on location in Connecticut and tells the story of a small-town school teacher who suddenly finds new release for her pent-up emotions.

STATE Capital NEWS

By VERN SANFORD

Austin, Tex. — Filibusters began to slow the tide of legislation passed by the Senate as the June 2 adjournment deadline closed in. However, bills continued to roll through both houses in staggering volume on the local and uncontested bills calendars.

A minimum-wage proposal landed in conference committee. Budget conferees brought out a one-year appropriations bill without knowing whether Gov. Preston Smith will veto it. While bills to create a University of Texas at San Antonio, a UT of Permian Basin in the Midland-Odessa area and a University of South Texas at Corpus Christi ran into senate filibusters, other new school measures went to the governor. Among them were UT at Dallas, medical schools at Houston and Lubbock, and a future site left to UT regents, a UT dental branch (probably in San Antonio) and nursing schools at San Antonio and El Paso.

An amended version of the implied consent bill to require breath tests of suspected drunk drivers found its way to the governor's desk. UT regents were given authority to curtail enrollments. A proposed constitutional amendment (SJR 15) would allow the legislature to establish a uniform method of assessment of ranch, farm and forest lands.

CLUB RULES FIRMED
Liquor Control Board announced its final version of new rules to clamp down on private bottle clubs, effective September 1.

Club "guests" cannot pay cash or share in club services unless in the company of a member or present on his personal invitation. Clubs also would have to maintain written records showing when members were admitted or removed, have a membership committee or governing board to pass on memberships and operate with at least 25 members. Other new rules include keeping permanent records of all transactions involving the pool system or maintaining separate storage lockers for each member if operating under the locker system, filing quarterly reports to Texas LCB on pool transactions and requirement that regular food service be provided.

THE EYES HAVE IT
A battle that has raged for almost 20 years between the chain store and independent optometrists has been tentatively resolved by the final passage of a "compromise" bill worked out by Sens. Jack Strong and Tom Creighton. Bill sent to the governor spells out a stiff code of ethics and advertising for the industry—something the non-advertising operators have wanted for years.

Big feature provides that there will be no more "one price" ads. In the future, ads will have to carry the lowest and highest prices of lenses in stock. On another health front, the legislature has sent to the governor a bill to license and regulate the hearing aid industry. It was passed with the full approval of the industry which worked closely with the lawmakers on perfecting the bill.

AG OPINIONS
Texans not registered as voters cannot serve as school district trustees. Atty. Gen. Crawford Martin ruled in a new opinion requested for Honey Grove (Fannin County) schools.

In other recent opinions, Martin concluded that: A legislator can run for office where pay was increased by legislative session when he was a lawmaker if the term doesn't overlap. Employment of adult probation officers is not subject to county commissioners' court approval.

A school board of trustees does not have the authority to suspend a student for any act, such as possession or use of dangerous drugs, unless the board has adopted a rule, regulation or general policy covering such conduct or unless the act violated state statutes covering "incorrigible conduct."

The National Guard Armory Board may act independent of the State Building Commission on development of armory construction and related projects and awarding of bids. A state department head may decide whether to allow payroll deductions of state employees' contributions for group insurance premiums.

The Industrial Accident Board cannot award an attorney a fee for fatal injury cases but can allow reasonable expenses for preparing and presentation of claim.

VOCATIONAL EDUCATION
State Advisory Council for Vocational Education has unveiled its new master plan for new directions in educating students for industry. The three-part program calls for spending the state's $16 million federal allocation for vocational education. A formal public hearing on the plan will be held June 7 at the regular meeting of the State Board of Education.

What will the new plan do for the students? John Guemple, assistant commissioner for vocational and adult education, explained it this way: "The state plan puts new strength in the standards of the vocational and adult programs, sets up special advanced courses for highly skilled craftsmen in junior colleges and James Connally Technical Institute in Waco, and even affects the preparation of teachers themselves."

Texas operated more than 8,700 programs in September of this year.

APPOINTMENTS
Governor Smith has named three former governors as co-chairmen of a committee to lead the campaign for the $3.5 billion Texas water bond constitutional amendment. Ex-Govs. John Connally, Price Daniel and Allan Shivers will head drive.

Smith appointed former Sen. Wardlaw W. Lane of Center judge of 123rd district to fill an unexpired term. Retired Supreme Court Judge Meade Griffin was sworn in as special judge of Court of Criminal Appeals. He will sit in for Judge Leon Douglas on cases where Douglas disqualifies himself.

David W. McElwath of Combes is executive director of Agricultural Stabilization and Conservation Service in Texas. A. F. (Tony) Rodriguez of San Antonio has been nominated as commissioner-director of the U. S. section of U. S. Mexico Commission of Border Development and Friendship.

Sen. O. H. (Ike) Harris of Dallas now is a member of Urban Affairs Study Committee of Southern Conference of Council of State Governments. Jose Vela of Waco and Fernin Islas of San Marcos now are members of the staff of the Texas Office of Economic Opportunity, selected by Governor Smith.

S. R. Greenwood, a Temple banker, has been named by Governor Smith to be chairman of the Governor's Committee on Aging. Charles H. Martin, superintendent of the Richmond State School, has been named deputy commissioner for retardation of the Texas Department of Mental Health and Mental Retardation.

SHORT SNORTS
State Supreme Court invalidated a $557,198 contract for improvement of the San Antonio water system because a member of the city electrical examining and supervising board was president of the company which entered the successful bid.

House Speaker Gus Mutscher erased any doubt as to his immediate political plans by announcing for re-election as speaker in 1971 and hinting he will be around after that. A legislative resolution seeks 1970 political party referendums on daylight saving time.

Governor's Committee on Aging granted $189,220 to programs for the elderly in Big Spring, Mercedes, El Paso, Borger, Georgetown, Houston, Austin and Fort Worth. Governor Smith asked President Nixon to declare Johnson County and Blum in Hill County major disaster areas for flood aid.

New Boling Community State Bank, Wharton County, seeks charter from the State Banking Commission. William M. Steger of Tyler has announced as a candidate for the state Republican party chairmanship.

Governor Smith has written to the Texas delegation in Washington urging them to oppose any attempt to further reduce the number of questions to be asked in the 1970 census, saying he's convinced that proper safeguards for insuring privacy of the census have been provided.

CARD OF THANKS

To each of you who were so thoughtful during Kenny's hospitalization and since we have returned home, our sincerest "thank you" for your prayers, the cards, letters, telephone calls, gifts, visits and your many other kind remembrances. —Connie Mac Gibbs and Family. 1tp

CARD OF THANKS

I wish to express my thanks to all my friends who sent cards and flowers to me while I was in the hospital. Thanks to Dr. Rives and all the nurses for their kindness, during my recent appendix operation. My parents join me in saying, "we will always be grateful for every act of kindness from everyone." —Jack Hord. 1tc

Bighorn Sheep Produce Big Lamb Crop

San Angelo — Texas' bumper crop this year of 12 bighorn sheep lambs may be part of a new era in Texas hunting.

Since 1956, bighorn sheep, trapped on the Arizona Kofa Game Range and brought to Texas, have lived in a 427-acre holding pen on the Black Gap Wildlife Management Area, 55 miles south of Marathon.

Texas started out with four rams and five ewes which, in the past 10 years, have accounted for 56 descendants. During this period four lambs died and two were removed for research on bluetongue, a noted sheep-killer. Three of the original sheep died. There are, at present, 54 sheep in the enclosure.

Because bluetongue could affect the whole bighorn herd, biologists felt research on the disease was urgently needed. In 1968 a ram lamb was taken from the management area to Texas A. and M. University and inoculated with bluetongue, a commercial vaccine for the disease.

The ram, later inoculated with virulent bluetongue virus from a 30-month old ram which died from the disease, survived and is now living in a zoo. For the moment Texas' bighorn sheep are living lives of comparative safety. They are hunted neither by man nor beast because of a specially constructed and electrified, high pasture fence.

Biologists are busy studying the bighorns for more effective management, and say they plan to maintain a certain number of brood animals within the enclosure when eventual release of any surplus animals into the wild is made.

Fertile soil works wonders because one spoonful may contain more tiny plants and animals than there are people in the world. So say scientists.

Chancel Guild Met In Lutheran Parsonage May 22

The Lutheran Chancel Guild met Thursday in the parsonage, with the chairman, Mrs. Ellis Ueckert, opening the meeting with prayer and Mrs. Walter C. Probst giving the devotional.

"Pentecost" was the topic of the program presented by Mrs. Charles Adami. Reports were made by the secretary and treasurer, Mrs. L. R. Hoppe, and the meeting was closed with prayer. Refreshments were served to nine members by Mrs. Charles Adami and Mrs. Walter C. Probst.

The Family Lawyer

Is Ignorance an Excuse?
It takes more than 100 volumes, each one huge, to describe what the American law is today. Viewing this mass of material, you may well quaver at the thought that every person is presumed to know the law—that ignorance of the law is no excuse.

Is that true? Are you really supposed to know everything in those books?

No—not in any absolute sense. For one thing, you cannot fairly be expected to know about laws that are totally unrelated to your own activities. A New York pedestrian who is crossing Broadway, need not be aware of the jaywalking rules in Pasadena.

Furthermore, your ignorance of the law may be an excuse if you are accused of a crime that requires a specific guilty intent. Consider this case:

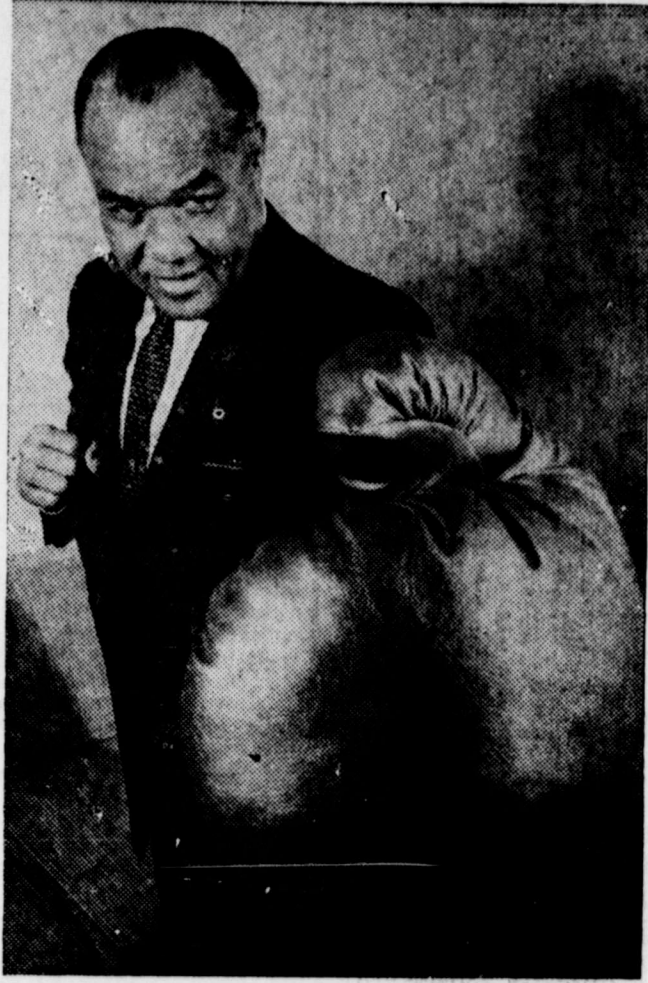

A landlady, noticing ink stains on the rug in a boarder's room, took possession of his radio. She planned to hold it until he paid for the damage to the rug. But he promptly retaliated by having her arrested on a charge of theft.

In court, the landlady pleaded ignorance of the law, saying she had honestly thought she had a right to take the radio. And the court decided she could not be convicted of theft, because she lacked the specific guilty intent called for in that crime.

Still, the rule that ignorance is no excuse does apply in the vast majority of cases. Our whole system of criminal justice would fall apart if the excuse of ignorance—so easy to claim, so hard to disprove—were to be generally accepted.

For example, imagine the chaos if every motorist who had been caught speeding could escape punishment by saying:

"I did go fast, Your Honor, but I didn't realize that speeding was against the law."

True, the ignorance rule may be hard on the occasional individual who really did not know he was breaking the law. There is some harshness in punishing a person who, as one judge put it, "stumbles over an edict in the dark."

But for the sake of practical law enforcement, some unfairness cannot be avoided. Said Oliver Wendell Holmes: "Justice to the individual is outweighed by larger interests on the other side of the scales."

Texas has a wonderful fishing hole. Anyway, at least half of it is in Texas.
It's Toledo Bend Reservoir on the Sabine river, between Texas and Louisiana. Covering some 200,000 bass-stocked acres it is about 40 percent open water and 60 percent brush.
This new lake is just east of bountiful Sam Rayburn lake in the Angelina National Forest. Among the closest towns to Toledo Bend reservoir are San Augustine, Hemphill, Jasper, and Newton. It is a little more than 100 miles north of Beaumont and is pretty well surrounded by good roads.
Toledo Bend Reservoir has been stocked heavily with largemouth black bass by the conservation departments of both Texas and Louisiana. These bass now are yearlings and ready to catch. During the fall and winter months they were schooling.
Early last fall the lake was only about one-third full. Winter and spring rains have added much more water, however, and the fish have been spreading and will spawn this spring. Like Lake-o-Pines and Rayburn, much brush has been left in the lake. It has been engineered for the fishermen, however. A boat road has been cleared along the channel of the Sabine, for something like 40 miles upstream. In addition lateral boat roads have been cut through the brush to the more than a score of landing places and public camp grounds now available.
This lake is a project of the Sabine River Authority and was built entirely without federal funds. It holds water for release to generate hydro-electric power. Lines tie into a trunk system serving both Texas and Louisiana. These two states entered a compact for construction of the dam and sold revenue bonds. They were based on contracts with three power distribution companies.
Site for the dam was first discovered 35 years ago by Carr Forrest, a young engineer, now the senior member of Forrest and Cotton, consulting engineers of Dallas, who engineered the dam. Forrest is a fisherman himself, and you can bet he was cognizant of the ideal conditions for piscatorial proclivities when he and his staff laid out the lake in the middle of the Sabine National Forest.
Fishing there today is still rather primitive. More and more rigs are being rented, but to be safe you should take your own boating equipment along. Construction, however, is in progress on a half-dozen camps on both the Texas and Louisiana sides.
When you go there, however, be sure and check on the license requirements because you may be fishing in Louisiana. There is still some debating over reciprocity, although this is expected to be worked out.
And take along plenty of line and lures. With so much underbrush, if you fish in good bass water you are going to lose lots of lures and break quite a few lines. But you'd catch fish!

When you look across a meadow on a frosty morning and see beautiful and artistic spider webs glistening in the sun, remember that as many as two million individual spiders may be living on each acre of ground.

WASHINGTON

"As it looks from here"

OMAR BURLISON
Congressman
17th District

Washington, D. C.—The White House indicated a few days ago that President Nixon has ordered a full-scale review of our Government's policy toward South Africa and Rhodesia.

It is hoped that such a study will reach into a series of bad judgments and blunders our Government has made in trying to please Great Britain, the United Nations and a few African nations who demanded sanctions placed against Rhodesia. Our Government joined this action to appease these nations and for political appeal here at home.

President Nixon could do a lot worse than to draw on the knowledge of this situation from former Secretary of State Dean Acheson. He has said all along that our policy toward Rhodesia was ridiculous and absurd.

No one has said very much about this situation recently and even the British have had little comment lately, principally because the imposed sanctions have failed. The economy of Rhodesia has suffered some but, if the whole truth were known, nations refusing to trade with Rhodesia and South Africa have been hurt more.

One of the best examples is in the trading of chrome. Concentrated deposits of chrome in Rhodesia are the greatest in the World. It is a vital element in the production of stainless steel and other high-strength metals used in American defense preparations. The United States must depend on importing its needed supply. We formerly received about all our needs from Rhodesia. Two American companies own the largest mines and prior to December 1966 provided a steady source of ore for the free World. In 1966, we agreed in the United Nations to sanctions against Rhodesia. We cut off our nose to spite our face.

As sanctions were further tightened in 1967, the two American companies—the Foote and Union Carbide mines—were compelled to cease operations. They were not even permitted to export 200,000 tons of ore which had already been mined and already paid for. Present United States' policy prevents them from doing anything with it.

Meanwhile, our American Steel Companies had to have chrome and where did they have to turn for it—the Soviet Union. The Russians, of course, were happy to make a fat profit out of the Rhodesian situation and even happier to have American steel makers depend upon their supply of ore. They also were bound to be happy to see two American-owned businesses in anti-communist Rhodesia be frozen out of business.

Like a producing oil well and many other extractive industries, from all information, the chrome mines in Rhodesia require continued operation and maintenance. To operate they must export their production. According to informed sources, unless the Foote mine, particularly, is operated again soon, it is in extreme danger of being lost. It is estimated to require about a million dollars to start operating again.

It is hoped that out of the review, understood to be ordered by the Administration, the United States can extricate itself from the policy of folly it has been following. Of course, there would be a howl from Prime Minister Wilson's government and from the African bloc but it is time our Government acted in its own best interest instead of yielding to these political pressures. It definitely is in our self interest and, as a matter of fact, to continue our dependence upon supplies from Russia, not even considering the higher cost, is a risk we can ill afford.

BABSON'S

POINT OF VIEW

THE TRUCKING INDUSTRY
Wellesley Hills, Mass.—Since the end of World War II, the truckers have made tremendous progress, outpacing the traffic gains in overall transportation by a substantial margin. This has been accomplished by diversion of traffic primarily from the rails. Today the trucking industry is one of the nation's largest, with revenue exceeding $50 billion annually. It provides employment for some 8,000,000 persons and is a major consumer of goods and services.

Joining Forces
This is not a centralized industry. It is highly fractionalized, involving more than 15,000 companies with only about 50 being publicly owned. Many privately held firms are still controlled by the founding families or original owners. But, in recent years there has been an increasing trend toward consolidation or merger. There seems little doubt that this trend will continue as the participants strive to extend their operating authorities and acquire established and professional management teams.

Other Growth Elements
Mergers and consolidations are not the only factors responsible for the industry's growth. Our population has moved to suburbia, away from the traditional rail centers. Decentralization of industrial production has also led to plants being built away from rail centers; and simultaneously our federal highway system, which is well along toward completion, has enabled other truckers to serve far-reaching markets.

Overhead Pressures
At the same time that revenues have grown, expenses have also increased, thereby resulting in a steady pressure on profit margins. The truckers' biggest expense is labor; wages and fringe benefits amount to some two-thirds of operating costs in comparison with 50 percent for railroads and 40 percent for airlines. Since 1963, the trucking industry has been absorbing increases in labor expense of about 5 percent a year. Through technological advances, it has been able to absorb these by use of larger equipment and tandem trailers.

Turnaround
The trucking industry has shown good profit improvement and, barring any unforeseen developments, the year as a whole should be very favorable. Aiding this year's results has been the rate relief granted by the ICC, which will more than offset the wage boosts. This, plus a generally stronger economy, labor accord, and increased freight movement, are all contributing factors to this year's earnings improvement for the truckers.

The success of the truckers is dependent on a healthy economy. Should there be a slackening, the trucking industry's growth rate would level off. But should a slowdown occur, the Babson staff feels it would be only a temporary situation . . . not permanently damaging to this industry.

Bright Future
On the whole, we feel the trucking industry is in a favorable position, and we are optimistic concerning both its near- and long-term outlook. As more and more companies merge, the surviving firms should be in much stronger positions and better able to cope with the narrow profit margins of this cyclical business. Also, unlike the situation in the rails, the Interstate Commerce Commission is not likely to become a roadblock to future combinations.

New Fabric Ideal For Slip Covers

Beauty of furniture often has been sacrificed to practicality. But now there is a new stretch knit slipcover that provides beauty plus protection, says Bonny Lay, extension housing and home furnishings specialist.
The knit fabric, 98 percent acrylic and two percent spandex fiber, offers stretch features that give ready-made slipcovers a custom-made look. This unique combination of spandex and acrylic fibers provides a new dimension in texture and fast, bright colors.
The consumer will find the new slipcovers hug the furniture and stay neat longer than those of traditional woven fabric, says Miss Lay. They can be machine washed, tumble dried and put right back on the furniture—no ironing necessary.

HEALTH LETTER

Austin—If the warm spring weather has drawn you out to work in the yard—when it's not raining, that is—and you have not had a tetanus immunization, you are, in fact, giving tetanus an open invitation to pay you a visit.
Last year it visited 17 persons in Texas—and all but seven died. Of the 10 deaths, at least eight had not been immunized against tetanus, according to State Health Department morbidity reports.
Often referred to as "Lockjaw," tetanus is no respecter of persons—either by age or residence. It hits anywhere.
In 1968, the disease struck down two infants under one year of age. It also claimed victims in the 1-to-4 age group, and age groups of 5-to-9, 10-to-19, 30 to 39, 50-to-59 and 60 and older.
Tetanus is definitely a killer. Even when treatment is started almost immediately, about one-third of the victims die anyway. Fortunately, there is an effective and safe immunization procedure against this disease.
However, an initial series of tetanus inoculations will not help if given after an injury. A booster will do, if you've had initial protection.

Spores of the bacteria which cause tetanus are almost everywhere. They are found in soil, street dust and animal droppings, particularly in manured soil. A scratch, cut or open sore may allow some of the unseen spores to enter the body.
Once inside the body, these tough spores turn into a form of tetanus germ which may secrete a powerful toxin—or poison. One-fourth teaspoonful of this toxin is enough to kill 100,000 people.
In humans, the toxin causes muscle spasms, convulsions and frequently, death. The label "lockjaw" refers to a spasm of the jaw muscle which clamps the jaw shut.
Unless you have had a basic tetanus immunization in the armed forces or from your family doctor, you must do so before an injury to be protected.

Best Time For Quail Season Is Mid-November

San Angelo — An often-asked question, "why open quail season on the second Saturday of November," is answered by Jack Parsons, wildlife supervisor of Region I of the Texas Parks and Wildlife Department. He explains it as a matter of simple biological mathematics.

Biologists strive to recommend season lengths and bag limits in accordance with the amount of hunting pressure a species may tolerate without harm to the reproductive potential of that species, and to prevent waste of game that should go into the hunter's bag.

A longer quail season will thus give participating hunters more time to harvest birds which would otherwise be lost to natural mortality in any event.

Despite some mixed emotions over the possibility of hunting birds classified by some as "too young", Parsons says it is difficult to distinguish 90-day-old birds from adults.

From thousands of wing collections biologists have noted mid-July as the peak of the quail hatch in West Texas. This allows most birds to attain the 90-day age before November.

Several years' accumulated data from various parts of the State show from 89 to 98 percent of the quail are hatched prior to August 15. The Trinity, Brazos, East Texas and South Central Texas areas vary from 89 to 91 per cent young of the year hatched by the middle of August.

An eight year study in the Possum Kingdom Regulatory Area sets the same occurrence at 95 and 96 per cent.

Quail mortality, he says, begins at the moment of hatch, and bird numbers decline from then on. In West Texas there is generally a fall population shuffle. One of the reasons for this is that some ranges supporting quail in summer will no longer do so in winter. Many birds are lost from natural causes during this period which occurs from late October to early December.

Figures also show that approximately 80 per cent of each summer's hatch is lost before the next nesting season and that at best, the hunter only bags approximately 10 per cent of these birds.

Past records show that the hunter operates under a law of diminishing returns and usually stops hunting of his own volition before there is danger of hunting pressure having adverse effects on quail populations.

YOUR REPRESENTATIVE IN AUSTIN

By REPRESENTATIVE LYNN NABERS

The Sixty-first Session of the Texas Legislature is quickly coming to an end. Both houses are having sessions that last into the night. Tempers are short and debates are heated as lawmakers attempt to decide controversial issues before the June 2nd deadline. (The session MUST officially end by midnight June 2nd.)

Most major legislation, however, has already cleared the House. The most major piece of legislation still pending is the one year Appropriation Bill.

This past week the House passed the Teacher Pay Raise Bill and it is now awaiting Senate action. Judicial Redistricting Bills took up many hours of heated debate. A bill allowing the state to support the Baylor Medical School at Houston was approved. The House also passed and sent to the Senate the Cavness Plan Bill. If it wins approval in the Senate, it will go to the people of Texas in the form of a Constitutional Amendment on August 5th.

Invitations are being extended to everyone in the Twelfth and Twenty-fourth Senatorial Districts to an Open House at the Governor's Mansion on June 9th. This includes everyone in my Legislative District. Visitors are asked to come between the hours of five and seven in the evening. I would like to personally urge everyone who possibly can to make plans to attend.

If this weekly column seems shorter than usual there is a reason! The House held sessions six days this week and the seventh day simply had to be devoted to studying the many, many bills coming up for a vote this final week.
