The Things We Say

By RUBY SHANNON

Two students were discussing a national contest and one of them said she planned to enter it.

"You don't stand a Chinaman's chance of winning," her friend advised.

Overhearing the conversation, I knew the girls were using the phrase in its present connotation of "no chance at all," but I was curious why we say it.

It seems that, during 1849, the gold rush to California involved many others besides citizens of the United States of America. Among these fortune hunters were many immigrants from China who would work for what their American peers considered "starvation wages."

The races (in this case white and yellow) were completely segregated. If the Chinese prospected at all, it was in some abandoned mine where the chances of finding gold were slim indeed.

After the gold rush was over, the Californians were violently opposed to the introduction of Chinese labor into the state, and a Chinaman's chance of getting a job was almost nil. The result was that the Chinese immigrants established their own places of business, such as laundries and restaurants.

Today, descendants of the Chinaman with no chance are prosperous citizens of this country.

A Large 1969 Apple Crop: October's a good time for "polishing the old apple."
Why? The U. S. Dept. of Agriculture reports an unusually good supply of apples on hand—in fact this year's crop is expected to be the largest in 10 years.

The apple you polish may be red, golden yellow or green, depending on your preference. Too, you can choose a tart or juicy, sweet apple for eating out of hand—and the same or a different tart variety for cooking.

Mixtures of sizes and colors make an especially attractive fruit bowl. Another important reason for their being such a fine addition to meals is that their juicy, crisp and crunchy quality provides that all important menu necessity—texture.

With apples so abundant, the plentiful foods program of USDA's Consumer and Marketing Service and the apple industry are cooperating in promoting the marketing of this huge crop.

Apples are especially appealing in salads. They mix and match with the greatest of ease.

Apple Mayonnaise: Grate a tart apple, including skin and blend into 1 cup of mayonnaise. Stir to blend, and serve atop fresh apple or gelled fruit salads. Yields about 1 1/2 cups of dressing.

Apple Cabbage Slaw: Combine 1/2 cup dairy sour cream, 1 teaspoon each of horseradish, lemon juice and sugar, 1/2 teaspoon salt and a dash of pepper. Stir to blend and add to a bowl containing 1 cup each finely diced apples and finely shredded cabbage. Makes four generous servings.

Shrimp-Apple Salad: Pare, core and dice 1 large apple. Combine apple with 1 cup each, sliced celery and cleaned, cooked shrimp. Chop 1 small green onion very fine and blend onion into 1-3 cup mayonnaise, along with 2 teaspoons lemon juice and 1/4 teaspoon horseradish.

Add dressing to apple-celery-shrimp mixture, tossing lightly. Chill about an hour. Just before serving, stir in 1/2 cup coarsely chopped pecans or walnuts. Serve in crisp lettuce cups.

Dip for Apples: Skinned apples, cut into wedges and cored, are perfect for serving as a dipping-good fare. Sprinkle apples with lemon or pineapple juice to keep them "bright" until dipped.

For the dip, combine 1 cup mayonnaise with 1/2 cup catsup, 2 tablespoons each horseradish and lemon juice and sugar, 1 tablespoon dry mustard, 1/2 teaspoon each salt and Worcestershire sauce, and 1/4 teaspoon pepper. Chill in tightly sealed container until serving time, then pour into dip-dish and surround with crisp apple wedges.

Why not get October off to a good start with lots of apple pie? Apples are featured item on the U. S. Department of Agriculture's plentiful foods list this month. The 1969 crop is estimated at 6 1/2 billion pounds—the largest in 10 years. Of course, apples are great for eating out of hand, too. Supplies of both cooking and eating apples will be large.

Special reminder of the large crop is National Apple Week, October 8-18. Appear also tie in with the Fall Cheese Festival annual celebrated during October, and, of course, Halloween.

Other foods reported plentiful this month are fresh pears, broilers, canned peaches, potatoes, dry split peas and rice.

Both fresh pears and canned peaches give special spark to breakfast. They also come in handy for salads and desserts at other meals. Bartlett pears amount to about 70 percent of the nation's total crop.

Alternate potatoes and rice often for easy, interesting meal variations. Potato production is slightly larger than last year, and the rice output is expected to be the second largest on record.

Marketing of broilers this month will probably be about 6 percent larger than during the same month last year. Production of another protein food, dry split peas, should amount to about 4.8 million hundred-weight.

Special Poundcake
1 (1-lb. 1-oz.) package Pound Cake Mix
3/4 cup milk
2 eggs
2 tablespoons grated orange rind
12 ounces cream cheese, softened
1/4 cup granulated sugar
1/2 cup pitted, snipped dates
1/2 cup diced toasted almonds
2 tablespoons orange-flavor liqueur or orange juice
2 (6-oz.) packages semi-sweet chocolate chips

Forest Fires in the United States charred 10 percent less acreage during 1968 than in 1967, but the total was still a formidable four-and-one-fourth million acres.

There is a great difference between the right word and the word that is almost right. For instance, you can call a woman a kitten, but not a cat; a chicken, but not a hen; a duck, but not a goose; a vision, but not a sight.

Self-assurance is more a matter of tempering than of temperament. Belief in oneself is the natural ore which needs to be tempered into the steel of strong character.

3 tablespoons instant coffee
1/2 cup water
1/2 cup butter or margarine
1/2 cup sifted confectioner's sugar
5 to 6 red candied cherries, cut into fourths

Prepare pound cake mix according to package directions using three-quarters cup milk, 2 eggs and adding 1 tablespoon orange rind. Bake; cool completely. Cut into three horizontal slices. Combine next five ingredients and remaining orange rind. Spread evenly over two cake layers; stack; add top layer. Refrigerate. Place chocolate chips, coffee and water in saucepan. Stir over low heat until melted and smooth. Remove from heat. Stir in butter or margarine in small pieces. Add confectioners sugar, stirring until smooth. Chill until spreading consistency; then use to frost and garnish cake, along with the cherries. Refrigerate until ready to serve. Makes 12 (3/4-inch) slices.

was held liable for failing to foresee just this kind of mishap.

Another circumstance that might lead to parental liability is their disregard for the local gun laws. For instance, one community had an ordinance against giving BB guns to children. A couple who let their six-year-old have one, despite the ordinance, were later held liable for an injury to the boy's playmate.

The court said that by violating the ordinance, the parents not only became subject to a fine but also branded themselves negligent—hence responsible for the accident that followed.

Mimics, Unlimited

Mimicking the famous is, and always has been, a favorite mode of humor. Prince or president, magnate or movie star, anyone in the public eye can expect to see his idiosyncrasies turned into fodder for laughs.

Some are pleased, perhaps on the theory that imitation is the sincerest form of flattery. But suppose the person mimicked is not pleased. Does he have a legal kick coming?

As a rule, the answer is no. Whatever anguish he feels is considered one of the penalties of fame. The law gives a kind of poetic license to the mimic to practice what it calls "a distinct variety of the histrionic art."

However, there are limits. Even the famous are entitled to be shielded against the imitator who goes too far.

For one thing, mimicry must not be used as a device for defamation of character.

"A person shall not be allowed," said a judge, "to murder another's reputation in jest."

For another thing, the mimic—even though telling no lies—must not violate the right of privacy. He must not expose those areas of the person's life that are not "fair game" for public dissection. Thus, revelation of a tycoon's personal peccadilloes, if totally unrelated to his business career, might well be an invasion of his privacy.

What if the mimic uses imitation not for humor at all, but rather to pass himself off as the real thing? In one case, an actor assumed a name and mannerisms similar to those of a famous entertainer, so as to trick audiences into coming to see him.

But a court finally halted him, with an injunction, partly to protect the original entertainer, partly to protect the public. As one judge put it:

"First, a man who has a reputation for excellence is entitled to be protected in the reputation thus established; and second, the public should be protected against whomsoever places a counterfeit article on the market in the likeness of the genuine."

THE FAMILY LAWYER

GUNS AND CHILDREN

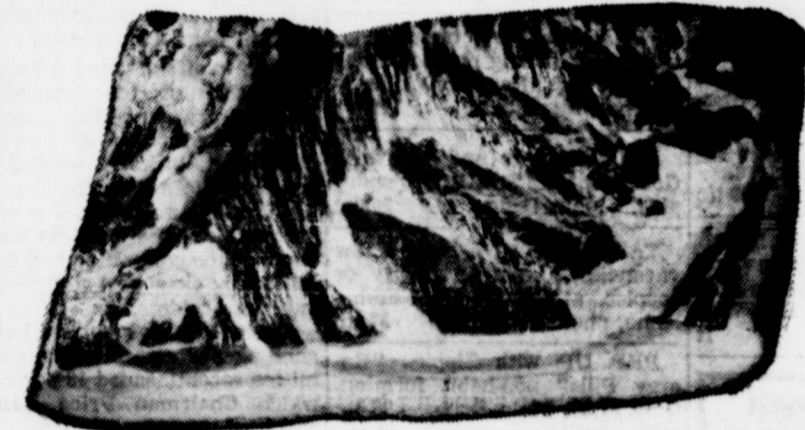

High-spirited Jimmy, a suburban teenager, got a shotgun as a gift from his dotting father. When he mischievously pointed the gun at a neighbor one day, his father scolded him—but allowed him to keep the gun.

A few days later, Jimmy tried the same stunt. This time the gun went off, seriously wounding the neighbor.

Could the father be held legally liable for the neighbor's injury? A court ruled that he could indeed. As one judge put it:

"Firearms are so magnetic to the young that a person of ordinary prudence will take preventive measures commensurate with the great harm that may ensue from the use of a gun by someone unfit to be entrusted with it."

Anson lost their third game of the season in as many outings as the Albany Lions roared past 31-12. Albany took an early lead on a pass play, converted, and stayed ahead from then on.

The Winters Blizzards remained in the losers' column for their third game and third loss, as they dropped a see-saw to the Clyde Bulldogs 26-14 on Winters' field. The game was highlighted by some extra curricular activity, as John (Tailgate) Hawk of the Bulldogs, jumped onto the field from the sidelines to stop Jimmy Sims who was headed unopposed for the goal line. Winters was awarded a touchdown by default for that little by-play, and Barnes made the PAT run for the extras. The Blizzards ended up on the short end of the score, however, as the Bulldogs, smarting from a lant, long string of losses hit for three counters in the third.

The Bluecats from Coleman did a 48-7 scalping job on the Comanche Indians Friday night, to keep their win-loss record intact. The two teams were tied up at the end of the first, but Coleman got 7 in the second, 20 in the third, and iced it down with 14 in the final.

The Haskell Indians kept up their winning streak Friday night, tromping the Munday Mogs 40-0 at Haskell. The Indians scored twice in each of the first three quarters, with yardage gains of 94, 88, 46, 60, 2 and 47 yards.

Down in South Runnels County, Ballinger, who had rested on the previous week, played their second game of the season, hitting Sonora 25-0. The Bearcats pounded the Broncos all night, holding them to only 7 first downs, only one of which came in the first half.

Hamlin was another 7-AAer to keep opponents at bay all night Friday night, as they pounded Cisco 26-0. It was the second win of the season for the Pied Pipers, who lost their opener to Rotan, and then came back to best Clyde 21-6 the following Friday.

The Merkel Badgers, who are going through their second year in 7-AA, are doing right well, thank you. They have three wins under their belts—Clyde 20-0, Baird 21-6, and their 19-3 win over Aspermont last Friday night.

It was a defensive battle between Stamford and Jacksboro at Jacksboro Saturday night, as the Bulldogs suffered their first loss of the season, 0-12. This was a contest between the state sixth and seventh-ranked Class AA teams.

Go Camping This Fall

It won't be long now until there's a nip in the air and outdoor's fair weather friends move indoors to watch the Dallas Cowboys until next spring. That's too bad because Texas in the fall offers less of the bad things and more of the good things associated with the outdoors.

For example, there are less people and insects in your favorite camping area. And with the summer heat gone that warm sleeping bag feels really luxurious.

On the positive side it will be found that the summer dollars for fishing has ended. Hunting season is in progress. Fall colors are making a show. And if you like to camp in State parks, you can buy a $12 annual permit and get into any park in Texas for the rest of the year without paying. A $5 annual permit for a single park is also available. Both are good until Sept. 1, 1970.

When the air is crisp, camping is much more comfortable and enjoyable.

BABSON'S POINT OF VIEW

GROWTH IN SHELTER REQUIREMENTS

Wellesley Hills, Mass. — Government efforts to curb inflation have put the pinch on new construction, particularly housing. For August, housing starts dropped 1.6 percent, the seventh consecutive monthly decline. Building permits, a forerunner of housing starts, dipped almost 3 percent in August to a 1,193,000 seasonally adjusted annual rate.

Demand Is Pressing

In reflection of the slowdown in building and the unfavorable market climate, many building stocks have fallen 20 percent and more from their 1968-69 highs. In our opinion, long-term oriented investors could use present weakness to begin picking up some selected building issues. While we recognize that the near term housing picture does not inspire confidence, we feel the shelter market in the next few years is going to boom. The demand for shelter is now nearing the critical level. It has been estimated that in the next 30 years as many houses—142,000,000—will have to be built as have been built since the Pilgrims landed at Plymouth Rock almost 350 years ago.

Filling A Void

Soaring costs of conventional building, record-high interest rates and tight money may temporarily delay the building boom, but eventually we feel the demand will be met. Where traditionally built homes cannot meet the need, mobile units, modular buildings, apartments, and factory manufactured housing will fill the void. Those companies whose capabilities span a broad spectrum of shelter concepts should be in the forefront of the booming shelter market of the 1970s. Among the companies the Babson staff favors for participation are the following:

Boise Cascade

From a small lumber producer ten years ago, Boise Cascade has expanded dramatically to become an international manufacturer and marketer of building materials, paper and packaging and office supply products. Its broad scope of activities in the shelter field include the manufacture of factory-built homes, mobile homes, recreational travel trailers and campers and land development activities. The speculative-grade common near 71 appears attractive for aggressive investors seeking appreciation and growth of capital.

Emhart Corp.

As one of the world's largest makers of builders' hardware, Emhart is in a good position to benefit from anticipated building boom of the 1970s. In addition to making hardware, Emwarehart has a strong position in glass-making machinery and in sporting firearms. Start-up costs of a new, highly automated hardware manufacturing complex, believed to be the largest hardware manufacturing plant in the country, will be heavy this year, but company's prospects for the '70s are bright.

National Gypsum

The second largest producer of gypsum products, National Gypsum also holds an important position in other building lines including portland cement, insulation, ceramic tiles, and paints. Recent acquisitions have further expanded company's activities into decorating vinyl wall covering and plastic laminates and into the fabrication and installation of glass for commercial shelter construction markets. Purchase of National Gypsum's speculative-grade common stock, near 28, is recommended for intermediate to longer-term appreciation.

Weil-McLain

Makes and markets indoor climate control and water supply equipment and factory-built, sectionalized homes. Sales have grown from $17 million in 1964 to $54.5 million last year, while net income has increased from $1.2 million to $2.6 million. Company is seeking, through acquisitions and internal growth, to expand its opportunities in factory-built housing in the northern Midwest and New England areas. Near its recent price of 31, the speculative-grade common appears attractive for aggressive accounts seeking appreciation.

WASHINGTON

"As it looks from here"

OMAR BURLESON Congressman 17th District

Washington, D. C. — Perhaps there is no such thing as a fair distribution of the Federal tax burden. In fact, there are some who feel that there is no such thing as a "just" tax at any level.

During the course of the recent hearings on tax reform, a definite conclusion can be reached that those representing the Treasury Department look at the total revenue losses and gains first, and equity second. Referring to the income tax burden for single persons, a knowledgeable Committee admitted that the single person is really in a bind but added that the loss of tax revenue probably rules out relief. At the same time, the purpose of tax reform means the establishment of equity.

What is fair and equitable is subject to opinion.

There are approximately 19 million single taxpayers—youth people working their way thru college, elderly widows trying to make ends meet on meager incomes, school teachers, telephone operators, nurses, secretaries, stenographers, factory workers and thousands of retired people across the Country who now pay an average of about 40 per cent more than married couples in the middle income brackets filing joint returns.

Under present law, married couples pay lower taxes than others because the law enables them to split their income and take advantage of the lower rate. Widows, widowers and certain other single persons with dependents are taxed at head-of-household rates midway between those for single and married persons.

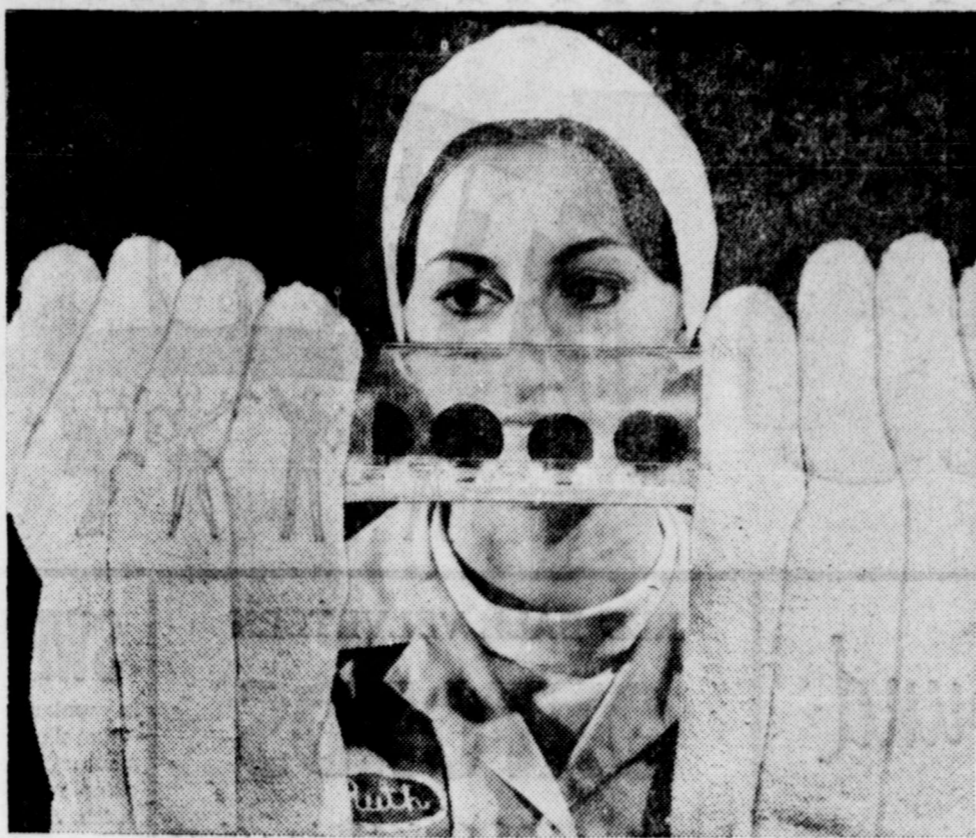

The reform bill would extend head-of-household treatment to all widows, widowers and those single persons over 35. Widows and widowers with dependent children would be permitted to pay the married rate as if their spouses were still living.

Actually, there is no law that says single people must pay higher income taxes just because they are not married. Congress has never passed, nor does it contemplate passing such a provision because of the Constitutionality question.

If people have to pay higher income taxes because they are single then it would follow they should pay higher property taxes for the same reason.

The present tax treatment of single people came about more than 20 years ago under the community property law. It originally applied for Federal income tax purposes, only to those States having community property laws. At that time only 36 of the 48 States had such a law. Subsequently the law was changed to permit the community property treatment for the other 12 States.

Since the enactment of the Federal income tax in 1913, arguments have persisted as to the moral rightness or wrongness of the graduated income tax system. The "ability to pay" has been legally sustained throughout the years but the contention exists that the penalty is placed on those who are able to pay by reason of industry, ability and, possible, luck. A percentage of taxable income appears to be the only way to apply an income tax. The "blood out of the turnip" still holds, but nothing can erase the moral issue.

There are, however, glaring discrepancies in tax treatment and that of the single person is one of them. Perfection, of course, can never be reached in any tax treatment but there can be the application of reason and logic to work toward the old paraphrased adage of "it is not as good as it ought to be, not as good as we would want it to be, but thank goodness it might be better than it used to be."

St. John's WOC Hosted Birthday Party For Pastor

The Women of the Church of St. John's Lutheran Church Sunday evening hosted a surprise birthday party, an "old fashion pounding," honoring their pastor, the Rev. Walter C. Probst, Sr., in the church parlor. The pastor's birthday was September 25. The affair was a covered dish dinner.

A singing was held for the group with Erwin Henniger as leader and Miss Emma Henniger at the piano. Mrs. W. F. Minzenmayer presented the gifts, arranged on a white covered table, to the pastor.

The Rev. Probst gave the invocation, and games were played following the meal. Approximately 90 guests were present.
