HOME TOWN Talk

By R. C. THOMAS

On the north edge of Winters is an example of what can be done when enough people with enough determination to get things done get together.

The Little League baseball fields—two of them—are rapidly being shaped up for the season, which began this week. One of the fields has been used for several seasons, but needed a lot of work to bring it up to par. The other field—built for the senior league—is brand new, and will be used for the first time this year—and is the result of planning and work which has been going on for a long time.

The new field has been laid out, dugouts built, bleachers set, light poles put in and lights readied to turn on. Backstops for both fields have been painted, bleachers painted, and an underground watering system installed. Grass was planted, and although a good turf may not be noticeable this season, it certainly will be for next. Play will go on just the same, however... the kids had a couple of games Monday night.

The concession stand has been painted, and the entire area made ready for almost-nightly baseball games.

To an outsider, or to someone who takes no direct interest in development of such a project, it may appear that these facilities "just happened". Many of us haven't paid particular attention to what has been done, or what has been done, except for commenting once in a while that "they" ought to build another field; that "they" ought to get that existing field in better condition; "they" should do this and do that. (It's human nature that it is never "we").

Well, "they" have done it; and "they" are continuing with the project. "They" — a comparatively small group of dedicated people—got out and scrounged, begged and borrowed. Took up collections, dug into their own pockets. "They" worked during every spare hour they could find, even after dark; sacrificed their own days off, and in some instances deserted their own businesses for long periods of time to get the job done.

And the job was done—and is continuing to be done. Winters—the rest of us—should be proud of what "they" have done up there on the north edge of Winters. Not only has the project enhanced the beauty of our town, but it has added to the recreational facilities, which sorely needed some adding to. It would be hard to estimate just how much this addition is worth, but we know what it cost—a lot of labor and sweat and worry on the part of the volunteers who put it across. Some of us may have donated a little cash when it was needed, but "they" not only donated the cash—they gave of their time and energy.

At first there was an idea to give each of these volunteers a bit of credit for what they have done. But it soon became apparent that it would be impossible to list each one of them—and there would always be the chance of missing someone. There were men, women, children—and companies who contributed tools, equipment, and equipment operators. Men who climbed poles and connected electric wiring; men who dug ditches and post holes and poured concrete. Women who wielded paint brushes and rakes and hoes. The individuals who as a group make up the "they" the rest of us depend upon to get things done.

MRS. ORBIE HARRISON . . . MRS. VELMA HART

Mrs. Harrison, Mrs. Hart Retire After "64 Years of Teaching"

Sixty-four years of teaching in the public schools is a long span in time—but that is the total for Mrs. Orbie Harrison and Mrs. Velma Hart, both of whom are retiring following the close of school for Winters Independent School District. Forty-three of those years have been in the Winters schools.

Mrs. Hart, a first grade teacher, has completed 33 years in the teaching profession, 26 in the Winters system, and Mrs. Harrison, fourth grade teacher, 31 years, 17 in Winters.

Mrs. Hart taught three years in the Dale community school, two years in the old Pleasant Hill School, now consolidated with the Abilene system, and two years in Clyde, before coming to Winters. At Winters, she taught in the same building she

Area Ready For Grain Harvest "Jump Off"

Oat and wheat harvesters are poised for the big "jump off" into the cutting of North Runnels wheat and oats, with an eye on weather forecast maps. A few more days of sunshine and dry weather will see the combines in the fields, according to grainmen.

No sample cuttings of grain had been reported Monday of this week, and it was expected that try-outs will begin in different areas by the first of next week. Also, it is a toss-up as to which will begin to come off first, the oats or the wheat.

There is this year, as one grainman put it, a better "from the road" promise of a bumper crop of small grain than has been realized in this area for some years. This "from the road" estimate is a visual one, it was explained—the real test will be after the first cuttings are made.

There have been a few reports of rust-affected grain in the area, but in nothing like the extent which has been experienced in past years, according to grain-growing sources.

New F-M Road Must Be Okeyed By Commissioners

A proposed new Farm-to-Market Road near Ballinger's Valley Creek Lake must be approved by the Runnels County Commissioner's and accepted within less than ninety days, it was revealed this week.

The proposed FM road would be a continuation of FM 2111, which joins Highway 158 at Valley View, in the south part of the county. The new road would run from Valley View across the Colorado River to intersect with FM 2133, the road linking Ballinger and Rowena and known as the River Road.

The County of Runnels would provide the right-of-way and the State Highway Department would construct the road, according to information.

Elm Creek Water Control District Preparing For Hoped-For Hearing

Two committees have been made to make plans and preparations for a priority hearing with the State Water and Soil Conservation Board. W. M. Hays, chairman of the district board, said this week.

Although a priority hearing has not been set at this time, Hays said, the district has made application to the State Board for such a hearing, and if approved, will be announced later.

The State Board must approve projects proposed by the Elm Creek District, Hays said, and give the District a priority position for start of said projects, if such are approved by other agencies.

The hearing, if approved, would be held in Winters, it was stated, and preparations must be made to present evidence of need for projects to the State Board, J. E. (Buck) Smith, a member of the Elm Creek Board, has been named to head a committee to organize rural tours of the district by t h e

Well Testing In County Continues, High Nitrate Content Said Found

Testing of water from wells in Runnels county is continuing, with preliminary reports indicating a high nitrate content in most instances, according to County Judge W. H. Rampsy.

A private research firm from Austin has been employed by the Texas Water Development Board to make the tests. The Legislature last year had appropriated $25,000 for the project, which is understood to be only a "curatory" test. It was also understood that the Water Development Board had requested a $90,000 Federal grant to continue more extensive tests.

The testing program was initiated several months ago when reports were received from farmers and livestock men of high death rates among livestock.

State Board prior to the public hearing.

Hays appointed Charles Hambrick, Ballinger member of the board, to head the committee to organize tours of the cities of Winters and Ballinger, and to work with officials of the two cities and the county in preparation of evidence to be presented to the board.

Hays said it was hoped that the public hearing could be held in the near future—possibly by the middle of the summer—so that further planning can b e started on obtaining federal funds and assistance i n constructing water retarding dams on Elm Creek and its tributaries within the district.

It was also stated that approximately 57 percent of the affected land within the district is included in soil conservation planning. It is necessary, under the law, that at least 50 percent of a district be under soil conservation planning before Federal grants can be obtained, Hays said.

Tests showed that a high nitrate content in well water was cause of death, and subsequent tests showed many wells in the county were contaminated. County residents were asked to send in samples of well water. These samples were tested and it was found that all samples contained high percentages of nitrate, according to County sources.

Residents in areas of the county where nitrate percentages were high were warned that the well water in those areas was not suitable for human consumption. Many residents who were not already making other provisions for household water began hauling water, it was reported.

Source of the nitrate contamination is not known, and probably will not be known until extensive tests are made, Judge Rampsy said.

Surface water, from lakes, ponds and earthen tanks, is not affected by nitrate contamination, it was pointed out.

Deeds Are Being Returned For Hiway Widening

Although the City Council only Monday of last week ordered mailing of deeds for additional right-of-way for the Main Street-US 83 widening project, several property owners had already returned them to the City Secretary's office by the last of the week. City Secretary Buford Baldwin said Monday.

Baldwin said checks for payment already had been forwarded to some owners, with additional work to be done on other locations before settlements are made.

By Babson's Reports, Inc.
INSURANCE MUTUAL FUNDS

Wellesley Hills, Mass., May 28. The insurance industry is becoming a prime force in the mutual fund area. It is offering its policyholders the security of a fixed amount of dollars and a long-term inflation hedge from equity investments in a single package. This idea has much merit from the point of view of both the individual and the issuing company, but it is not without its disadvantages.

A GROWING LIST
The number of insurance concerns offering mutual funds to their customers continues to increase. Some—like Aetna, John Hancock, and Lincoln National—have formed their own mutual funds; others have purchased existing fund managements. Examples of the latter include CNA Financial and its acquisition of Tsai Management, American General taking over Channing Financial Corp., and New England Life linking up with Loomis Sayles & Co.

nities or other specialized plans.

MISSED THE BOAT
There are important reasons for the surge into the equity field by the insurance industry. It is an effort to regain access to some of the lost savings dollars it once had. Consumers have become far more sophisticated in terms of equity markets in recent years, and the industry is trying to capitalize on this situation. It missed the boat earlier on equity-type programs. Content with the old way of doing things, it did not comprehend the dynamic impact new approaches could have on operations. The industry now recognizes the potential of packaging equity and life insurance together.

PROBLEM AREAS
Many problems have emerged within the industry because of mutual funds. One of the biggest drawbacks has been sales forces unsophisticated in the selling of funds. Most insurance salesmen have been concerned mainly with fixed dollars, and not well versed in equity-type investing. Many had grave doubts from the start about combining mutual funds and life insurance. All had to be retrained and tested before they were qualified for their new selling stint. This often meant a loss of time, both business and personal. Nor did the problem end there. As first-year commissions are much higher for life insurance than for mutual funds many salesmen did not attempt to sell the latter not realizing that commissions mount later on.

Also of considerable concern is the possible effect performance will have on insurance

Baby Prairie Dog Raised in Exhibit

Austin—A baby prairie dog born two months ago in the Texas Parks and Wildlife Department's traveling wildlife exhibit apparently is going to survive.

If it does, the phenomenon will be the first ever for the 21-year-old exhibit in spite of numerous prairie dog births.

The furry female, as yet unnamed, is scurrying around the cage it shares with its parents. Tom Abbott, exhibit director, said in the wild the prairie dog pups are born in "nurseries" as much as 14 feet underground. These conditions are difficult to duplicate in cages, where the animals have to make nests with wood shavings.

The black-tailed prairie dog (Cynomys ludovicianus) once ranged over most of West Texas and lived in huge "towns" consisting of hundreds of thousands of animals. Now they are reduced in numbers until only a few major towns exist.

The young prairie dogs weigh only 15 grams at birth and are hardly larger than a thimble. They are hairless and blind and don't emerge from their burrows for at least six weeks.

The exhibit, which is headquartered in San Marcos, travels to numerous fairs and other events to acquaint visitors with the State's varied forms of wildlife.

sales and lapse ratio. This could be especially troublesome with many funds starting near a market peak, taking several years to reach a level where performance can be considered good. Fear is that customers will change companies for their entire insurance package because one company's fund has outperformed another. This might be particularly true for new clients where the rate difference would not prevent the switch. This could be a substantial threat because an insurance company incurs the greatest expense during the first year of a policy.

SERVING THEIR MARKETS
Prime market for insurance at this time is the young generation, one far more equity conscious than were its parents. Therefore, it is inevitable that the industry would serve this youthful market with mutual funds. Babson's Reports is currently recommending several such insurance companies, including CNA Financial, INA Corporation and All American Life and Financial.

HEALTH COLUMN

"Anybody who has ever made his living as a singer knows the value of healthy lungs," says Mike Douglas, star of TV's daytime variety show.

Mike Douglas has a special interest in healthy lungs. He is National Honorary Chairman of the 1969 Christmas Seal Campaign, which begins November 12.

People in cities and towns across the country will receive their Christmas Seals from their local tuberculosis and respiratory disease association. The design of this year's Christmas Seal shows twelve tots in snow togs dancing around a fir tree. The circle means warmth and togetherness. The mood is upbeat and fun-filled.

"When an entertainer is in constant touch with millions of people," says Mike Douglas, "I figure he has a certain obligation to level with them—to talk to them now and then about things that are real."

"That's what I propose to do in my capacity as National Honorary Christmas Seal Chairman," he says. "To explain the urgency of the fight for better breathing, and the importance of Christmas Seals in the war against emphysema, air pollution and tuberculosis—a war being waged all year round by the National Tuberculosis and Respiratory Disease Association."

Healthy lungs are important for singers like Mike Douglas. And for everyone. Use Christmas Seals. It's a matter of life and breath.

Floating asbestos fibres can damage the lungs. When high concentrations are inhaled.

Those who run the highest risk of developing lung trouble from exposure to asbestos are men who mine the material, construction workers, and asbestos-textile makers. Two troubles, both believed to be triggered by asbestos, are most common. Lung cancer is one. Another is a generalized fibrosis, a scarring, in the lung tissue. Of the two, lung cancer develops faster, and the rates—especially for asbestos workers who also smoke—are phenomenally high. Billions of fibres are bunched together in just one bit of asbestos fuzz the size of a half dollar. The air around new buildings under construction is filled with fuzz. But how serious is this pollutant for the general public?

Nobody knows yet how much exposure is too much. A pioneer in research into the effects of asbestos, Dr. Irving J. Selikoff, says, "All I can say is that the public should be made aware of the problem, and that no one, particularly children and young people, should be unduly exposed." Dr. Selikoff is head of the Division of Environmental Medicine at the Mount Sinai School of Medicine in New York.

Other researchers caution against undue alarm. But all agree that unnecessary and overlong exposure to asbestos is to be avoided.

For further information about the effects of air pollution on the lungs, check with your local tuberculosis and respiratory disease association. It's a matter of life and breath.

The VA says both "honorable" and "general" discharge certificates issued by the military service are completely and equally acceptable in determining eligibility for veterans benefits.

The strong man meets his crisis with the most practical tools at hand. They may not be the best tools but they are available, which is all important. He would rather use them, such as they are, than do nothing.

Dove Banding Program To Start

The 1970 pre-hunting season mourning dove banding program is scheduled to begin June 1, according to Ted L. Clark, dove project leader for the Texas Parks and Wildlife Department.

Texas is to be joined by most other states in a nation-wide dove banding program aimed at adding to our knowledge of the species on a continental basis.

This dove banding program has proved to be valuable in collecting information about populations, movements, distribution, origin and recovery for use in formulating of management regulations.

"True Grit"
When young Kim Darby, sensible, business-like daughter of a prosperous Arkansas rancher, hears that her father has been murdered by hired hand Jeff Corey in Fort Smith, she heads for the town, accompanied only by a Negro hand, to see that her father is avenged. The year is 1880, and she arrives in time to witness the execution of a couple of prisoners condemned by famous "Hanging Judge" Parker — an event which the townsmen, women, and children turn out to enjoy. She stalks into the sheriff's office and demands: "Why aren't you out looking for him (Jeff Corey)?" and is told that Corey has escaped to Indian territory and is now federal business. Her questions as to who is the best men to bring him in lead her to U. S. Marshal John Wayne, a hard-drinking, one-eyed character who makes his home with a couple of Chinese and a cat when he's not out in the field. "They tell me you are a man with true grit," she explains. Wayne figures that Corey has joined outlaw Robert Duvall; his price for going up against this combination is $100 — and I'm giving you my children's rates," he adds. Darby gives him an advance of $25 then makes a sharp deal with horse trader Strother Martin to buy back the horses he sold her father and pay her for her father's missing horse. Texas Ranger Glen Campbell is also looking for Corey, wanted for the murder of a senator. There is a price of $2,000 on his head, which he offers to share with Wayne. Darby wants Corey brought back to Fort Smith for justice; Campbell is set on taking him back to Texas for the reward. "True Grit" will be shown on Friday, Saturday and Sunday at the State Theatre.

Seniors Honored At Class Party Saturday Night

The Winters High School Senior Class of 1970 was honored with a class party Saturday night at the Community Center.

A horoscope theme was used in decorations for the Center and for the supper tables. Zodiac posters decorated the walls and zodiac mobiles hung from the ceiling.

As guests arrived they drew the name of a class member and then wrote their forecast for that person. These predictions were read at the close of the party.

Highlight of the evening was the arrival of The Clairvoyant, Madam Zelda, who gave individual and group readings for the class members. At the conclusion of the reading, each was presented with his zodiac sign on a key chain.

While the seniors waited to see Madam Zelda, they were entertained with Ouidga boards and old time movies.

Supper was served to 35 class members and sponsors, Mrs. Charles Kruse and Mr. Kruse, Charles Black and Mrs. Black, and Weldon Middleton.

Host couples were Mr. and Mrs. Bill Byrns, Mr. and Mrs. Jack Pierce, Mr. and Mrs. Buford Baldwin, Mr. and Mrs. Middleton and Mr. and Mrs. M. E. Mathis.

MRS. DAVID HOWARD SORRELLS

Myra Minzenmayer, David Howard Sorrells Repeat Marriage Vows Sat.

Minzenmayer, became the bride of David Howard Sorrells when they repeated their marriage vows Saturday, May 23, at 8:00 p. m. in the St. John Lutheran Church here Saturday. Parents of the bridegroom are Mr. and Mrs. R. M. Sorrells of Sweetwater.

The Rev. Arthur H. Sander of Shreveport, Louisiana, officiated for the double ring ceremony before the altar with two candelabra holding lighted tapers of white, flanked by floor baskets of mums and pompons forming the background for the wedding party. Arrangements in the altar vases were white mums and leather fern. Pews were marked with lighted tapers, white and yellow pom mums, greenery, avocado ribbon bows and streamers.

Sallie Spill played appropriate wedding selections and accompanied Rhanae Hoppe to sing "O Perfect Love." Flower girls were Carol Ann Sander of Shreveport, La., and Cathy Hennritz. Ted Henritz was ring bearer.

Ralph M. Sorrells Jr., of Arlington, served as best man for his brother. Groomsmen were Roy and Leo Minzenmayer, brothers of the bride, and James Kincaid of Lubbock. Guests were seated by Aubrey Holt and Mike Roundtree, both of Lubbock.

Washington, D. C. — The total self-interest of the United States should govern her actions in all foreign affairs. There can be no real justification otherwise for the expenditure of taxpayers' money in any relation with other countries whether it be war, trade or aid.

Defining and identifying our own self-interest is a matter of human judgement.

Should we be directly attacked militarily, there would be no question about defending ourselves. It is another thing to believe that we are defending our own shores by fighting wars in other places before it reaches home.

In a direct attack our course would be obvious. In the longer range view, we entered World Wars I and II believing it was in our own self-defense.

In the present situation in Southeast Asia, we became involved as a subscriber to the Southeast Asian Treaty Organization (SEATO). The United States entered an agreement with the Philippines, Australia, France, New Zealand, Pakistan, Thailand and the United Kingdom to jointly defend that area against communist expansion. We believed it to be in our own self-interest on the long term basis.

We believed it was in our own interest to become a signatory to the North Atlantic Treaty Organization (NATO) as a buffer against the Soviet Union. Our Government spent billions of dollars on the Marshall Plan to rehabilitate Western Europe after World War II believing that floor-length A-line skirt and the bodice. The full length chapel train was applied with chantilly lace. She carried a cascade bouquet of white gladiolus centered with a white orchid.

Reception was held following the ceremony.

Members of the house party were Miss Eddie Marie Gottschalk, Mrs. Carl Gottschalk, Jr., Mrs. F. O. Minzenmayer, Mrs. W. F. Minzenmayer, Mrs. W. W. Ahrens, Mrs. Edward Gottschalk, Mrs. Jerry Lowe, Mrs. Dwight McDonald and Mrs. Erwin Ueckert. Mrs. Ralph Sorrells Jr., of Arlington registered the guests.

For her wedding trip to Ruidoso, New Mexico, the bride changed to a yellow two piece suit and wore the orchid from her bouquet.

The bride is a graduate of Winters High School and Texas Tech University with a degree in home economics. She has been named to the dean's honor list for three semesters.

Sorrells, a Sweetwater High School graduate, is a senior student at Texas Tech University majoring in Industrial Engineering. He is currently employed with Furr's Advertising Department in Lubbock.

Mr. and Mrs. Sorrells will make their home in Lubbock. The bridegroom's parents hosted the rehearsal dinner at Huffman House.

those nations must stand militarily and economically independent of communist Eastern Europe.

No treaty exists in the middle East but there are those who apparently feel obligated for Israel's defense by contending that Israel is largely a creation of our making and that we have a responsibility for protecting her. Many of those of this feeling condemn our presence in Vietnam.

Almost obscured by the concern over crossing the somewhat vaguely defined borders of Cambodia is a developing crisis in the Middle East.

What is our self-interest in the Israeli-Arab conflict? It carries the usual elements of military and economic interest on which judgements in similar situations have been made in the past. It also involves heavy emotionalism in our nation.

On the material side is Soviet expansion and influence in the whole Middle East, Africa and the Mediterranean Sea.

At stake, besides the emotional ties to Israel, is the vast oil supplies in the Arab lands which would be a prize to the Soviet Union, if controlled by them. Dominance of the Mediterranean and its ocean outlets by unfriendly forces would seriously jeopardize the shipping of the free world. These factors which would come under consideration should a full conflagration develop.

Our nation has never been an aggressor. We have never sought by forceful means any economic hold in foreign lands. The possessions outside our borders were acquired for their protection and not for colonization.

Who determines our own self-interest? How do we arrive at the great decisions? A myriad of opinions go into making policy on foreign affairs. Finally, short of a formal declaration of war which only the Congress can declare, the President of the United States must decide.

He does so on all available information and on the advice of his consultants. Many and most times opinions vary—judgements differ and facts of a situation are numerous interpreted. The president must eventually choose and act.

Whoever advises and whoever the president, it must be presumed they act in our own national self-interest. It is inconceivable otherwise. We may not agree with the decision — not many completely agree on all things—but who else except the President has all the facts on which to form a decision? This does not mean he is always right but he stands at the small end of the funnel, the highest elected official and receives all that is poured into the big end. No other individual is in this position.

The United States Senate ratifies treaties. Only both bodies of the Congress can declare war.

Use Caution In Outdoors

Austin — A few precautions can keep a family outing from becoming a bad trip, according to the Texas Parks and Wildlife Department.

One good tip is to leave animals in the wild alone. A fox, skunk, coyote, or any other species for that matter, which approaches without fear should be immediately suspect. Rabies is never a certainty, but if you are bitten rabies shots almost always are.

Texas has three poisonous plants — poison sumac, poison oak, and poison ivy. Anyone interested in going outdoors should learn to identify these plants, and avoid them.

Unfortunately, there are insects aplenty with a liking for human blood. Plenty of insect repellent could keep a camping trip from becoming a swatting derby.

Then there are snakes. They

On the other hand, the actual operation and conduct of foreign activities in peace or war rest on the President. Only he has the authority.

Should decisions on the actual execution of policy be left to the Congress, there would likely be as many different approaches to every question as there are members, each believing that whatever he espouses is in our own "self-interest". Essentially this is the core of the present debate in the United States Senate.

become active when the weather becomes warm, about the same time outdoorsmen become active. Good boots and a sharp eye will usually be enough prevention. But to be on the safe side, snakebite kits are inexpensive and good insurance.

Rabbit hunters know no season in Texas, and spring and summer rabbit hunting offers a possible hazard to them—tularemia. Rabbits should be handled with caution, and the blood should be prevented from contacting any cut or scratch on the hunter.

Safety on the water is a must. More than 500 persons drowned last year, many of them while on pleasure outings. The Department urges boaters to obey the Texas Water Safety Act, and other persons enjoying the outdoors to use a little common sense when around water.
