

Mrs. Juanita O'Connor's Weekly Home Demonstration Agent's Column

Okra-Favorite Southern Dish: Though okra started out in the South as a vegetable grown in small home gardens, modern processing techniques made it possible for this once-regional delicacy to join the ranks of big-time vegetables.

It is grown commercially in a number of states. Among the more important are Texas, Louisiana, Georgia, Florida, Tennessee, Alabama, and Calif. Most okra is not only packed according to the grade standards, but it is also processed under USDA inspection. This means that an inspector with the Consumer and Marketing Service fruit and vegetable division checks the okra to make sure it meets the requirements of the standards, and issues a certificate stating its quality. The certificate helps processors market the product by helping establish its quality and value. Top quality usually brings a higher price or quicker sale.

When a grader checks the processed okra, he looks for specific factors. U. S. Grade A okra has a good bright color, is tender, and is virtually free from defects and tough fibers. Grade B or C okra is not as uniform in appearance and other characteristics as Grade A. It is best for use in stews, soups, and casseroles.

Frozen okra comes mainly in two styles — whole okra, which is very tender and is used chiefly as a side dish, and cut okra, which is good for combination dishes.

This tasty vegetable also comes canned, either plain or with the tangy flavor and bright red color of tomatoes. Either way, the grade standards are widely used to determine the quality. Although some canned okra is whole, most of it is of the cut style.

You can look for the U. S. grade shield on frozen okra packages or cans when you shop. If the okra has been packed under continuous inspection, then you may see the USDA shield with the words, "Packed Under Continuous Inspection of the U. S. Department of Agriculture," or you may see a shield with the wording "U. S. Grade A."

Whether or not you see the shield, most processed okra each year is packed according to USDA quality standards.

For the food that gourmets consider the "southern belle" of the vegetable family, you can try all kinds of recipes. Okra can be boiled, served with lemon butter, creamed, scalloped, pan fried, or dipped in batter to be deep fat fried.

Because of its flavor and texture, okra is prized by gourmets for the body and taste it gives to stews, soups, and gumbos. Okra lends itself happily to combination with other foods. Try okra with chicken, lamb, or shrimp, or serve it with rice and tomatoes. And okra packs a bonus — it's low in calories. A half-cup serving has only about 38 calories, and that's little enough to come back for seconds.

IN PUCKETT HOME

Tibbs has been stationed in Rhode Island, but has received a new assignment to the Naval Air Station at Beville. Mrs. Puckett, who had been visiting in Houston, Florida and Rhode Island, returned to Winters with them. Also visiting in the Puckett home are Mr. and Mrs. Bob Drake and family of Houston.

Winters and County May Get Police Teletype

Governor Preston Smith has approved a grant of $39,857 to the West Central Texas Council of Governments, Abilene, for establishing a law enforcement teletype net. Rannels County and Winters may be included on the network, Police Chief Joe Stevens said.

The grant was made on recommendation of the Texas Criminal Justice Council, which administers funds from the Law Enforcement Assistance Administration, U. S. Department of Justice.

It was one of 17 action grants recommended by the Council at its regular monthly meeting recently in Abilene. The 17 grants total $311,141.

Judge Joe Frazier Brown, executive director of the Council, said the grant would be used to create a teletype network of 41 terminals for the 19-county area comprising the West Central Texas Region. The network, he said, will significantly reduce radio traffic and expedite the flow of law enforcement information in the region.

Counties to be served by the net include Kent, Scurry, Mitchell, Stonewall, Fisher, Nolan, Knox, Haskell, Jones Taylor, Throckmorton Callahan, Coleman, Shackelford, Stephens, Eastland, Brown, Comanche, and Rannels.

Equipment to be installed in the system meets requirements for connecting to the automatic teletype switching system being installed at Austin by the Texas Department of Public Safety. Acquisition of the equipment is expected to begin immediately.

Winters Police Chief Joe Stevens said the teletype center for Rannels County probably will be located in the sheriff's department at Ballinger, and would be available to Winters police by direct radio hookup. Installation of a teletype for Winters alone would not be feasible, he said, because traffic would not warrant the monthly expenditure. The local police are in constant contact with the sheriff's department by radio, and the installation of the teletype equipment there would serve the entire county. The cities of Winters and Ballinger and the County of Rannels would participate in monthly expenses, he said.

NEWS for OUTDOORSMEN

by VERN SANFORD

Once in awhile an outdoor writer gets an opportunity to fish with a top-flight, A- No. 1, prize winning, and bass fishing champion. This was my good fortune and that of outdoor writer Earl Golding of the Waco News-Tribune one weekend at Toledo Bend.

It happened when a bunch of outdoor writers were fly-in guests of Hide-Away Harbor, Holiday Inn and the San Augustine C of C.

The expert was John Fox, National Bass Champion for 1968... and an expert he is!

Like most bass champions, Fox began making his own "bait" immediately after winning the national honor.

Fortunately for us John's trip out this time was to test his newest product, not yet on the market.

We were in John's own rig, designed strictly for fishing. All of the other ten host's boats went out about the same time and most stopped at the first likely point—about a halfmile from the launching ramp. John did, too.

With the wind rather calm, none of the boats anchored—just floated where they stopped and cranked up the kicker only to come closer to shore when needed.

John brought in a half-dozen small bass before either Earl or I caught any. It wasn't long, however, before most of the boaters scattered for different areas. This was when John said "Now, I'll take you where the big ones are"... and that he did in short order.

Where did he go? To the brushiest area! But to him the brushiest area was the thickly wooded section where the "Iron Trees" were so close to each other that we could only reach his choice spots by pulling and pushing the boat from tree to tree, sometimes lying almost prone in the boat to clear the overhanging limbs.

Finally he found a spot that looked good. There he settled down to serious fishing... with plastic worms, of course. You'll be interested in how John rigs up his gear.

To begin with, John uses a heavy bass rod designed especially for worm fishing. It's a five and one-half footer, real thick at the handle and slowly tapers off to the end. Only really flexible part is the tip... for about the final 12 or 16 inches.

His choice is 20-pound monofilament line and a not-too-heavy, cone-shaped slip-sinker. He runs the line through the sinker's pointed end, first, then ties on a large and very sharp 5-0 drop-shaft hook. After inserting the point of the hook through the nose of the worm, about an inch or so, John turns the hook over so that he can embed the point into the worm. This makes it weedless, without the use of a metal weedguard.

Naturally, he uses the Flutter-tail Worm... his own brand... with a thin, flat, flexible tail.

In this case, John's experimental worm had a white tail. At its nose the worm was solid black, but it was lighter and lighter in color as it tapered to the end, becoming light gray as it reached the white tip.

That, and his Ambassador reel, comprised his fishing gear.

With no luck at the first spot, John moved to another, saying "Well, I know we'll get some lunkers now." And that he did and so did his two companions, thanks to him.

Here's how John did it. He dropped the worm lightly into the water, keeping the line tight as he slowly released it straight down alongside one of the multitude of "Iron Trees" that clutter the area. When the worm hit bottom, 30 feet down, John slowly began to retrieve it. Following his instructions, we did the same alongside other nearby trees.

Now, warned John, when you think you have snagged the hook, set the hook as hard and as fast as you can—because it is almost impossible to snag that hook if you have imbedded it into the body of the worm, properly. So, set it HARD!

Meanwhile, John pointed to small bubbles rising from the water where he had let down his lure. "See those bubbles—that's a sign the old hoss has opened his gills and is about to strike." And strike the bass did ...but ever so gently. John set his hook so hard that we thought he'd go overboard. A fast reel brought up a beautiful four-pound black bass.

After stringing that one he let down the bait for another try—in the same spot. Shortly he had another of identical size. Within a period of 20 minutes he boated four, four-pounders. Same spot, mind you.

Then he said, Vern, you try it... the same way, in this same spot... and we came up with three, three-pounders. Meanwhile, Earl was doing well too.

So, that's how John Fox does it. First he finds them; then he works the same hole again and again. Some say you can't catch more than one bass in the same spot. But not John. He figures that when one lunker leaves the throne another moves in and takes over.

Who's to argue that point when seven good ones come out of the same hole 30-feet deep and in an area no more than three feet in diameter.

John made a believer out of us!

HEIDENHEIMER'S

Austin, Texas. — Cold figures submitted in major agency budget proposals left top state officials and legislators little room for optimism about the amount of next year's tax bill.

Texas Education Agency calculated public school operations during the next biennium will cost about $2.3 billion—$2 billion in state money alone. This is an increase of about $377.1 million over the present level.

Nobody was too surprised about that, but the Texas Public Welfare Department came up with a shocker.

Welfare staffers figure that the rising assistance rolls will require a budget of nearly $2 billion overall for the 1972-73 fiscal period. That represents an increase in state welfare funds of $300.4 million over the current biennium.

So, two vital functions of state government alone—public education and welfare—are seeking some $677.5 million in additional revenues. It is expected that most of the other agencies will request more than their present appropriations instead of less.

Welfare requests, as large as they are, do not take into consideration larger grants for the needy and ill.

However, a Senate committee has recommended the $80 million a year ceiling for state spending on categorical assistance be abolished and aid payments be matched to actual need. If enacted by the Legislature, this would mean millions more in welfare spending.

Lt. Gov. Ben Barnes expressed grave doubts that legislators would accept tremendous increases in welfare spending without "substantial reform" of the entire welfare system.

Welfare officials note that assistance rolls continue to expand uncontrollably (due largely to federal court rulings and rising population).

COURTS SPEAK

Supreme Court upheld tough rules defining guests and required food service at private drinking clubs. In another decision involving the Alcoholic Beverage Commission, the Court refused to outlaw the purchase of liquor by "agents" for the private lockers of members of dry area clubs.

In a Texarkana-area case, the Court held that victims of uninsured drivers must prove there was no insurance coverage on the other motorist before he can collect on his own uninsured motorist policy.

A Houston nurse, who claimed purchases were charged against her on a bogus credit card, lost her appeal to the top court in her effort to collect damages from a discount house and bill collection service which persistently tried to make her pay.

EAGLE RULING NEAR

Railroad Commission soon will rule as to whether the famed Texas Eagle passenger train can be discontinued by the Missouri-Pacific Railroad.

Eagle is one of three passenger haulers now operating across the state.

M-P claims that the train is losing money and wants to cut it off. Railroad attorneys argued that the Commission has no right to force it to continue to lose money.

Contending that the train should be kept in service, the National Association of Railroad Passengers said if M-P tried harder it could sell more passenger service and make a profit.

Train runs from St. Louis to Laredo, through Texarkana, Palestine, Austin, and San Antonio.

DRIVING SCHOOL

Drivers who collect too many moving traffic violations may be going to night school to learn better behavior.

Thirty new sets of driver-training equipment will be provided to 20 regional education service centers over the state to teach students by day and adult traffic violators by night. This is in line with a new plan approved by the State Board of Education. National Highway Safety Bureau will pay $698,100 for simulator equipment and supplementary educational programs.

APPOINTMENTS

Gov. Preston Smith has re-appointed Francis A. Flynn of Austin to the Texas Board of Licensure for Nursing Home Administrators and named Edward G. Fisch of Austin to the Texas State Board of Podiatry Examiners. Manuel DeBusk of Dallas, Tom Sealy of Midland, Hunter McLean of Fort Worth and Harry Provenca of Waco are members of a sub-committee to study problems of private colleges and universities.

Dr. Charles M. LeMaistre was designated as new chancellor of the University of Texas system.

Santos L. Garza, native of Mission and now of Austin, will be public health advisor at the regional Office of the Economic Opportunity headquarters here.

Mike V. Arredondo of Bryan will be youth manpower specialist in the Youth Opportunity Development Program.

State Rep. John E. (Ned) Blaine of El Paso will become an assistant to House Speaker Gus Mutscher when he retires from the Legislature next January at 82.

Speaker Mutscher is naming a 100-member committee to evaluate jobs of lawmakers.

INTEGRATION AID ASKED

U. S. Justice Department has asked for state aid in meeting federal integration guidelines by 48 Texas school districts.

Among the larger districts named as not in compliance were Amarillo, Austin, Odessa, Lubbock, Midland, Port Arthur, Beaumont (South Park), Temple, Richardson and Wichita Falls. State education agencies, federal authorities noted, have control over local districts in such vital matters as state aid, accreditation and textbook distribution.

INSURANCE HEARING DELAYED

A delayed hearing date on auto insurance rate-making in effect assures Texas car owners that any premium hikes won't be effective until around December. Raises were expected by September.

Insurance board put off the hearing slated for July 14 on whether investment income of companies should be considered in the rate base and at the same time postponed an August hearing on the rate itself.

Investment income hearing now likely will be set for September 9, and another hearing will follow by a month or more.

SCHOOL GROUP FORMED

A new statewide group called "Citizens Association for Public Schools" has been formed to oppose diversion of public funds to non-public elementary and secondary schools.

Organization made no secret of the fact that it will "work for keeping public tax money for schools confined to support of the public schools." Some private and church schools have indicated they will seek state assistance next year.

Affiliated organizations include Texas State Teachers Association, Texas Association of School Administrators, Texas School Boards Association, Texas Congress of Parents and Teachers, Anti-Defamation League, Baptist General Convention of Texas and Americans United for Separation of Church and State.

SHORT SNORTS

Two members of the Board of Mental Health and Mental Retardation, Dr. Horace Cromer of Austin and Isaac Arnold Sr. of Houston, have resigned.

Comptroller Robert S. Calvert is in the process of moving to the brand-new State Finance Building and will be followed quickly by Treasurer Jesse James.

Pollution experts now say some Texas Gulf Coast air pollution may come from as far away as Chicago and Cleveland.

A team of 34 law enforcement leaders began its fight against organized crime in Texas, bolstered by a $213,669 federal grant.

Texas ranks third in sales of fishing licenses and fourth in hunting licenses, according to Parks and Wildlife Department. Eighth annual Texas Youth Conference summer session will be held July 30 - August 2 in Seguin and Austin.

More than 100 government and business leaders will participate in Texas Transportation Congress at Arlington on Friday.

Men Of The Year Named—the Texas County Agricultural Agents Association has announced six agricultural leaders as its men of the year in Texas. The 1970 honorees are J. H. Sears of Hereford, president of the First National Bank; Bob Hillery of Wichita Falls, assistant vice president, First Wichita National Bank; Jack Dillard, farm director, Shreveport Radio Station KWKH; Harry Holt, Radio and Television KRBC, Abilene; Rawley Thomason, a Huntsville rancher and civic leader; and L. O. Tiedt, executive vice president of the Rice Council for Market Development in Houston.

Polled Hereford Clinic

WASHINGTON
"As it looks from here"
OMAR BURLESON
Congressman
17th District

WASHINGTON, D. C.—For more than 20 years there has been before the United States Senate for ratification an instrument known as the Genocide Treaty.

The proposed treaty defines Genocide as "acts committed with intent to destroy, in whole or in part, a national ethnic, racial or religious group, as such."

The specified acts are already prohibited by law against an individual. It is superfluous to contend that the nature of the crime changes when committed against a group of individuals. The language of the Treaty seems to suggest that it is more evil to murder a group of people falling in this definition than it would be to murder one person of such a group.

The wording, therefore, is of dubious definition with no commonly accepted interpretation. It is no wonder that the term genocide is loosely thrown at the United States, connected with every controversy from attacks by the Black Panthers to our air raids on North Vietnam.

For more than two decades the United States Senate has refused to consider the proposed Treaty, the full name of which is "The Convention of the Prevention and Punishment of the Crime of Genocide." Actually, 74 nations have signed the Treaty since 1951 but it has never been applied to or by any of them.

The fact remains that if the United States were to ratify, those nations which dislike us, of which there are many, would be able to exploit our peculiar position as a powerful Nation in the World, subjecting us to propaganda and international pressures. As a Nation we could be charged before international tribunals and as citizens could be dragged before foreign courts without any of the guarantees in our own system of justice.

The American Bar Association has been against the proposal because it realizes that the provisions of such an agreement would work contrary to the American system of law and the rights which Americans enjoy under its Constitution.

Some organizations in this country are advising people in their publications that a ratification of the Treaty by the Senate is imminent and call for donations to fight it. It is perfectly well to fight it but there is no indication that any action is about to take place in the Senate and nothing is scheduled on it at all. Certainly, it is wise for all of us as citizens to be aware that a resolution is pending for the ratification of the Treaty and oppose any consideration of it. The United States has no business, and it would in fact be dangerous to our freedom, to enter agreement whereby any United States citizen could be tried in the Country where alleged acts under the Treaty were committed and punished under the laws of that country. In theory, a United States citizen could be convicted of a crime without definition, under rules and procedures of foreign courts and liable to punishments not yet named.

SPACE-AGE CAVE. Modern man is going back underground, conducting his business in caves as did his stone-age ancestors. The North American Air Defense Command will build three buildings here inside Cheyenne Mountain in Colorado.

Already some of our men in Vietnam are being charged with atrocities against civilians. Conceivably, since no statute of limitations is involved in the Treaty, our men in Vietnam might be charged and tried at some future date for acts taken in the lawful prosecution of the war against the communists.

One of the obligations which parties to the treaty assume is to pass legislation outlawing and punishing the crime of genocide. Should the Congress decline, it is supposed that any one of the 74 nations could charge us as a nation before the International Court of Justice. In such instance, our whole legislative process could come under the definition of international affairs. It is unthinkable for the United States to submit its sovereignty, or any part of its legal system, to the judgement of any other nation or group of nations.

Those who agree with this position may wish to write our Senators. A direct contact is more effective than have some self-appointed agent doing it for us.

Vigilance continues to be the price of liberty.

Washington, D. C.—If "What happened on the way to the Forum" was strange, equally so was a recent court decision in Credit River, Minnesota. (The name of the town is coincidental with the circumstances in a court case to foreclose on property.) What occurred could be of vital interest later on or it might be nothing at all.

A federal court in Minnesota has ruled that Federal Reserve Notes, some of which you have in your pocket at the moment, are worthless.

In May, 1964, a man in Savage, Minnesota borrowed $14,000 from the First National Bank, securing the loan with a mortgage on real estate.

Three years later the borrower still owed $476 and the bank foreclosed. The bank bought the property at a sheriff's sale and a year later brought suit for possession. The case was tried in 1968 by a jury which held that the bank was not entitled to recover possession of the property and that the debt was void because the borrower did not receive lawful money on his mortgage.

The bank thereupon appealed to the Federal District Court. The filing fee was $2. The bank presented two paper $1.00 bills in payment. The Court refused the fee as unlawful tender, citing the Constitution as legal reason.

Article I, Section 10 of the Constitution provides "no State shall make anything but gold and silver coin a tender in payment of debts." The Court said "these Federal Reserve Notes are not lawful money within the contemplation of the Constitution of the United States and are null and void. The Notes on their face are not redeemable in gold or silver coin . . ."

The Court went on to say that an act of Congress to make Federal Reserve Notes legal tender was unconstitutional and no authority existed for their issuance.

The Court held that congress has only the authority to coin money and regulate its value. The last time Congress so acted was in 1878 when it fixed the value of the dollar at 412.5 grams troy weight of silver.

What the court decision in Minnesota really means is anyone's guess at the present time but the man who owed the bank $476 on his $14,000 loan, still owns his farm. No test has been made of the case in the Supreme Court and the question remains undecided as between the authority to issue Federal Reserve Notes and the interpretation of the Constitution.

It is a case of many ramifications. If the decision of the Federal District Court in Minnesota should be upheld by higher courts, it would mean that mortgage holders all over the Country would be denied the authority to collect unless the loan was paid in gold or silver. The question as to how or for what purpose the borrowed money was used seemingly was not an issue. Logically the acceptance of Federal Reserve Notes all down the line as legal tender would alter the situation but apparently this was not resolved by the decision.

Be this as it may, the matter deserves the attention of the Supreme Court and the Congress before more serious consequences occur.

Picnic Preparation—Summer picnics will be easier if foods are used that can be prepared and frozen ahead of time. Fillings that freeze well include peanut butter, cheese and cheese spreads, and pickled or smoked meats. Lettuce and mayonnaise should be carried separately and added to sandwiches just before eating. Cream-filled desserts are not good hot weather travel foods.

COUNTY AGENT'S WEEKLY NOTES

Lawn Care:

Homeowners need to care for their lawns throughout the summer, even though the mercury may rise and it is easier to stay in front of the air conditioner. Mr. C. T. Parker, County Agricultural Agent, says that in the summer, St. Augustine grass is often attacked by a soil fungus which causes what is known as "fading out." This is shown by the grass dying in irregular patches.

Parker points out that the fungus is always present in the soil, but attacks the grass stolons, runners, only when the plants get in a depleted, weakened condition. He gave some tips for keeping a lawn looking lush and green all summer.

A balanced fertility program with a fertilizer is essential for proper growth of the plants. In addition, proper watering will help. This part of lawn care would seem to be the easiest, but often causes unnecessary problems. The common afternoon sprinklers used by many people often result in a shallow root system that is harmful to the grass. Parker says to water the lawn thoroughly and then not water it again until the ground needs it.

Proper mowing is also important, especially trimming at regular intervals and at the right height. He adds that many people cut too much of the grass at one time if frequent mowing is not practiced.

He also warns against allowing the development of "thatch" that layer of dead grass and leaves that give the lawn a spongy feel. The best way to prevent this problem is to catch the grass clippings when mowing. Although it is too late this year, it is best to clip the grass shorter than normal just as the growth begins in the spring.

Finally, the proper use of fungicides can help control fading-out. Parker emphasizes that fungicides are to be used in conjunction with the other practices, and not be relied on by themselves. Information on the type and amount of fungicides for ordinary lawn can be obtained from the County Agricultural Agents office, on third floor of the courthouse.

Parker emphasized that the lawn care program must be a continuing one all during the summer growing season; or so that the lawn grass may be maintained in a healthy vigorous condition all year long.

Chiggers or Redbugs: Everybody has a different belief or remedy for those little bugs that cause so much misery.

The truth about chiggers or redbugs, says Parker, is that the bugs can be present everywhere there is any form of vegetation.

Since the requirements of chiggers are so wide and cover just about any type of climate and vegetation, they are found in every county of Texas. Soil and temperature do have some effect, but the type of grass, vine or weed influences the presence of chiggers.

Eggs hatch into immature chiggers called larvae. Chiggers in the larvae stage are the troublemakers, since they are parasitic on man and animals. The larvae transform into nymphs, and the nymphs into adults. Nymphs and adults feed on insect eggs, small insects and other organisms found on or near decaying woody substances.

When the larvae come in contact with man or animals, they move about in search of a suitable location to feed. Delicacies for chiggers are areas of the body where the clothing fits tight or where the flesh is thin, tender or wrinkled.

Chiggers attach themselves by inserting their mouthparts into the skin. When they feed, they inject a fluid which liquefies the tissue and causes reddish welts, swelling, itching and (in some persons) fever.

HE'S A SPONGER. Saul Sannes of New York does his thing using these sponges, once he gets out from under them. Sannes paints them, creating sculptured, three-dimensional paintings, an art concept the youth claims he originated.

A chigger attached in a pore or at the base of a hair may be so enveloped by swollen skin that it appears to be burrowing in the skin. This leads some people to mistakenly believe that chiggers embed themselves in the skin or that welts contain chiggers.

Parker says protection from chiggers can be achieved through use of a repellent before entering areas where the bugs might be present. Repellent most effective are diethyl toluamide, dimethyl phthalate, dimethyl carbate, ethyl hexanediol and benzyl benzoate.

If and when chiggers do infect the skin the following steps are the most effective in obtaining relief:

Take a bath as soon as possible and then apply a dab of antiseptic to each welt to kill the chiggers and reduce possibility of infection.

Destroying the chiggers reduces the itching but does not stop it because the fluid injected into the skin is the cause. No treatment is known that will give permanent relief from the itching, but temporary relief can be obtained with a local anesthetic, Parker points out.

A formula compounded by a druggist of 5 percent benzocaine and 2 percent methyl salicylate, 0.5 percent salicylic acid, 73 percent ethyl alcohol and 19.5 percent water when applied to each welt will give relief for an hour or longer.

In lawns and areas where chiggers need to be controlled, dust or spray formulations can be effective. Dusts recommended are carbaryl (Sevin), chloradane, lindane, sulfur or toxaphene. Sprays that can be used are to be applied to the grass and ground litter to rid the areas of the bugs.

Under normal conditions, a cricket when chirping can be heard for more than a mile.

Tax Benefits For Tornado and Storm Victims

Unfortunately thousands of Texas taxpayers have qualified for a major tax deduction for 1970. These taxpayers are the victims of the extensive tornadoes and storms (primarily in the High Plains). They have suffered extensive property losses many of which were not covered by insurance. They can claim a casualty loss on their 1970 income tax return. The Internal Revenue Service has worked with community groups to schedule tax clinics in Lubbock and a number of other High Plains communities where large numbers of taxpayers are entitled to tax benefits.

IRS expects these meetings to help many taxpayers get an immediate tax benefit by simply completing a new Form W-4 and a W-4 Schedule A to reduce the tax withheld from their pay. Most of us would agree that if your home and belongings have blown away that a tax benefit today is worth a lot more than one next April. The Tax Reform Act of 1969 seems to be giving these taxpayers some real help.
