HOME TOWN Talk

Winters Volunteer Firemen have a frustrating problem. They are often called to fight fires in the rural areas . . . especially have they been busy during the present prolonged dry spell, fighting grass fires. And during the past few days they have been called to major structure fires in the rural area.

The big problem is one of water supply. On trips to the country, all the water they have to fight fires with is that which is carried in the storage tank of the truck making the run . . . and sometimes a privately-owned water tank truck.

It can be very frustrating to be in the middle of fighting a fire and watch the last drop of water from the tank drip from the end of the hose; make a quick trip to a surface tank, or even back to town to refill; and watch the fire gain on you all the while. There have been instances, according to firemen, when an additional 50 gallons of water at the right time would have prevented a major loss.

What is needed, the firemen say, is a tank truck which can be kept filled with water, ready to roll on any rural call. It would not have to be another fire truck, or even an elaborate set-up, they say . . . just something which will hold a good supply of water and be available.

The answer is quite simple: Provide the firefighters with a water tank vehicle!

Now that the answer has been found, the ways and means must be divined. There are no provisions for such an expenditure in the tight budget of the City of Winters, and the Fire Department has no funds.

But it is not hopeless. We remember back a few years ago when the need for an emergency vehicle presented itself. People started making donations, and before long there was enough to buy a station wagon and equip it. And no one was hit too hard. This would seem to be a natural route to take in providing the fire department with a water tank vehicle. It is felt there are many people, in town as well as in the rural areas, who, if given an opportunity, would be glad to buy a little "insurance" of this type. Then perhaps the City could borrow a little from some budgeted item, and help. And perhaps the County would be glad to help just a little. Before long, there just might be enough to buy a vehicle.

It's worth thinking about, at least.

Just reading that an American woman stopped at a monastery in Europe where the monks were running a rather elite seafood restaurant that featured fish 'n chips. She asked one if he were the fish friar, and he says, No, I'm the chip monk.

And again we just read that the Federal Income Tax Law is so complicated, as a result of repeated congressional additions, that it runs 930 pages and is "explained" by some 17,000 pages of court decisions and Internal Revenue regulations!

Archery Tourney Scheduled Here Sunday, Aug. 16

The Rannels County Archery Association of Winters will hold their third annual archery tournament Sunday, August 16, at the association's range at the Winters City Lake east of town. The range has been reworked and made ready for the tournament. The Winters archery range holds a "five-star" rating, the highest rating given by Texas archers.

From 50 to 80 archers from over a wide area are expected to attend this tournament, according to spokesmen of the association. Among those expected to attend will be Janie Wright of San Angelo, women's State and National barebow champion. The tournament will begin at 9 a. m. for 14 field targets, 14 hunter targets, and 14 animal targets. Trophies will be presented to first, second and third places in each class. Trophies are on display at Heidenheimer's.

Two-a-Day Practice Sessions

Football To Get Started Monday

The Winters High School Blizzards will begin two-a-day workouts next Monday, in preparation for the 1970 football season. This double schedule will be for the varsity and B teams. Freshmen will work out once each day during the week before school begins.

Head Coach Jerry Gibson said workouts will be held at 6 a. m. and at 7 p. m. daily during the pre-school period. Freshmen will begin workouts at 5 p. m. Monday.

An intra-squad scrimmage has been scheduled for Saturday, August 22, at 7 p. m.

The Blizzards will scrimmage Eldorado here Friday, August 28, at a time to be set, Coach Gibson said. Another scrimmage has been scheduled with Breckenridge, there, at 7 p. m. September 4.

Coach Gibson said about 80 boys are signed up for this year. About 14 lettermen are returning to the 1970 squad, he said.

Interscholastic League district realignment has given the WHS Blizzards some new opponents for this year and next, and dropped some of the old opponents. Ballinger and Coleman, conference opponents for some years, remain in the same district with Winters—8-AA—but all the schools north of Abilene have been placed in other districts. In 8-AA along with Winters, Coleman and Ballinger, are Clyde, Comanche, Hamilton, Eastland and Cisco.

The Blizzards have only three non-conference games this year, with seven conference games. Non-conference will be with Hamlin (Sept. 11), Merkel (Sept. 18) and Anson (Sept. 25), all previous conference mates with Winters. The first conference game will be with Clyde here, October 2. Non-conference games will begin at 8 p. m., and district games at 7:30 p. m.

Coaching staff this year, besides Coach Gibson, will be Charles Black, who will coach the varsity line; Tommy Konczak, B team; C. A. Milam, freshmen; and Mike Martin, 8th grade. Coach Gibson tutors varsity backfield.

City Water Pump Out of Order For Three Days

An electric motor driving one of the water pumps at the Winters Lake went out of commission Thursday night of last week, causing a reduction of the water supply to the treatment plant, and forcing a reduction of water usage in Winters until Sunday afternoon. The motor was repaired and back in service Sunday morning.

The Water Department has two big pumps at the lake, pumping water to the system in town. Each pump is capable of delivering about 900,000 gallons of water during a 24-hour period. Water usage has been more than a million gallons daily during the long dry spell, and one pump could not handle the demand. Residents were asked to refrain from watering lawns while the pump was out to prevent exhaustion of the supply in the tower.

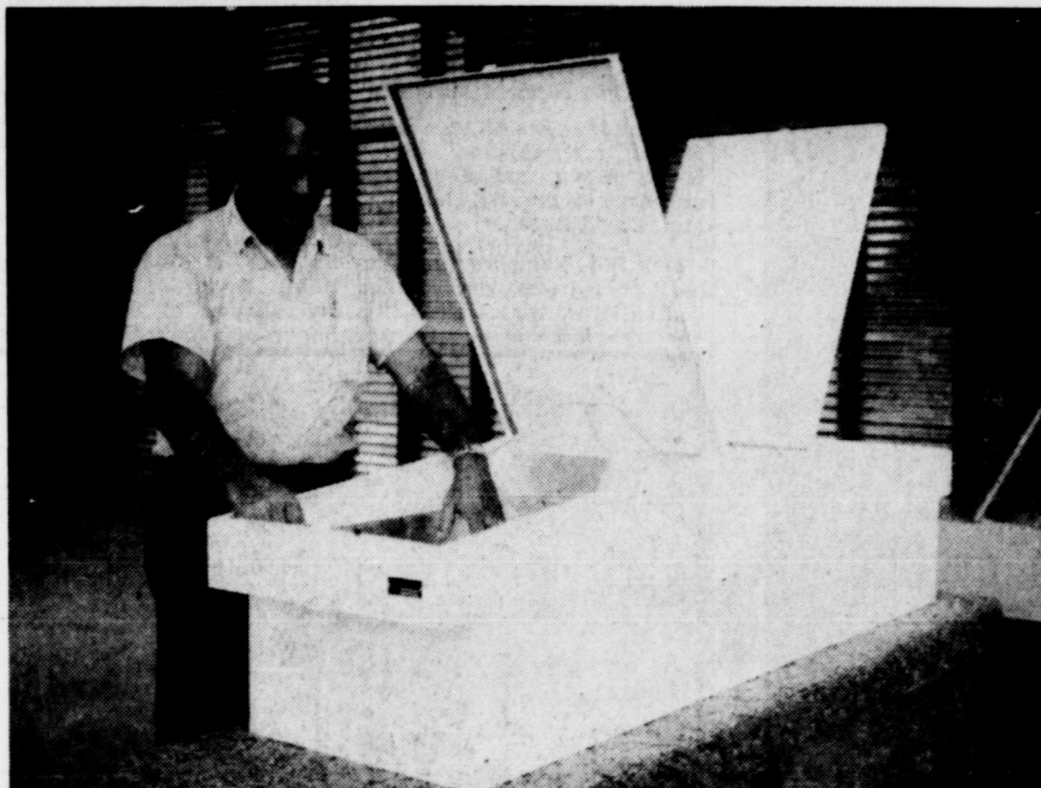

City officials said residents showed good cooperation during the time the pump was out of order, and there was no danger of running out of water.

In the event both pumps or motors go out of commission at the same time, the City has a gasoline-driven pump which can be pressed into service for necessary water, officials said.

School Board Busy With Full Agenda, Approved Budget, Adopted Tax Rate

A full agenda kept members of the Board of Trustees of Winters Independent School District busy at the regular meeting Tuesday night, as they approved the budget for 1970-71, adopted a tax rate, approved rules and regulations for conduct and dress for students, and approved bids for gasoline and milk, among other items of business.

In setting the tax rate, it was explained that it was necessary to increase the percent of assessment of taxes in order to meet requirements for 1971-72. There will be no actual increase in taxes, however, only a re-adjusting of percentages for maintenance and debt service. Current tax rate is $1.70 per $100.00 assessed valuation, based on 48 percent of actual value. This is divided into $1.46 for maintenance and 24 cents for debt service. It was recommended, and approved, that the $1.70 tax rate be maintained for 1970-71 by adjusting the maintenance tax to the legal maximum of $1.50 and reducing the debt service tax to 20 cents.

Regarding the budget, it was explained that this year's budget is a deficit spending budget. The difference between budget requirements and expected tax revenue will come from surplus funds accumulated in past years, Superintendent Carroll Tatom said. Total revenue for the year is anticipated at $634,924.00, against total expenditures for the year budgeted at $654,705.00. This does not include ESEA Title I funds, $36,073.00, which are budgeted separately.

Total revenue from local sources is expected to be $266,034.00, against $277,519.68 received in 1969-70. Due from county sources, $200; from State sources, $366,690.00, compared with nothing from county sources the previous year, and $320,731.50 from State sources. Budgeted disbursements for

Buyers of Season Football Tickets Can Save Money

Football fans who purchase season tickets this year will save quite a sum of money . . . $2.50, in fact, for each seat.

Sale of season tickets for the Winters High School football season (five home games) will begin Monday, August 17, at the school business office. Those fans who take advantage of the pre-season sale may pocket the difference in cost of a book of five tickets and single reserved seat tickets purchased prior to each game.

Cost of tickets, in three categories, will be:

Season Reserved	$1.25
Single Reserved	$1.75
General Admission	$1.50

A book of five tickets for all the home games will sell for $6.25, if purchased during the pre-season period.

A full week option period—the first week of the sale—has been arranged for fans who had reserved seats last year and who wish to obtain the same seats for this season. Those fans who held season tickets last year may increase or reduce the number of tickets to be purchased, but in order to do so may have to change seating arrangements.

Regular season ticket sales (for those people who did not have reserved season tickets last year) will begin Monday, August 24, and end Thursday, September 3. These tickets will be sold on a first come-first served basis.

After the pre-season sales period is over, tickets for reserved seats will be sold game-to-game, and cost will be $1.75.

Season tickets will be sold at the business office between 8 a. m. and 4 p. m. on the dates specified.

Reserved seat tickets will not be available for all out-of-town games. When available, such tickets will sell for $1.75. All general admission tickets, at home and away, will sell at $1.50 for adults and 75 cents for students.

In-Service Program

Classes Begin August 24, But Teachers Go Back to School Monday

Classes in Winters Public Schools will begin Monday, August 24, for the 1970-71 school year, but under the state's "10-months employment" rule, teachers will begin their school year one week earlier, August 17.

The one-week period will be used for the "in-service program," wherein teachers will attend special courses for more training in their particular fields. Two in-service programs have been scheduled for Winters teachers, one in Abilene for secondary teachers, and one in Tuscola at Jim Ned School for elementary teachers.

Secondary teachers will meet at Madison Junior High School in Abilene where they will attend seminars on about every subject, including art, business, English, foreign languages, industrial arts, mathematics, music, physical education reading, science, social studies, special education, speech and drama, homemaking, and vocational courses. There also will be courses for counselors, and for nurses.

Elementary teachers will study elementary math, basic graphics, and social studies and others.

Some of the secondary teacher programs will be held at Cooper High School, Abilene High School, and Hardin-Simmons University.

In a letter to all teachers, containing the schedule for the in-service program, Superintendent of Schools Carroll E. Tatom said that he was "looking forward to a pleasant and rewarding school year, with full realization that we have assembled one of the strongest school faculties that this community has known."

Supt. Tatom said, "We are most fortunate to be employed in a community where recognition of the need of a quality education program is evident, and where full community support is always forthcoming. Let us . . . fulfill the trust placed in us and sincerely dedicate ourselves to the task of making available to each individual the best possible opportunity for educational achievement."

New U-M Church Construction "On Schedule"

Construction on the new United Methodist Church building is progressing on schedule, according to the Rev. Glenn Bowman, pastor of the church.

There is considerable work yet to be done on the outside of the building, and finishing on the inside, but contractors expect to be able to complete by September 15, barring delays in obtaining further material and bad weather.

When the church is completed by the building contractors, furniture suppliers will begin their work, expecting to be finished by about October 3, or earlier. Some of the furniture has been received, it was stated.

Schedule calls for beginning of installation of the new organ anytime after September 15.

The pastor said it is hoped that the church will be ready for occupancy sometime in October.

Winters Gains New Sheet Metal Products Industry

Winters' industrial community has been enlarged, with the addition of a new metal products manufacturing company—John's International—owned by J. P. Dry.

The new company will manufacture metal tool boxes for pickup trucks, with the factory now being tooled for production of four styles. It is expected that additional styles and models will be added at a later date. It also is anticipated that the company will add other products in the future.

The plant of John's International is located at 305 North Frisco, and presently has about 8,000 square feet of floor space. Enlargement of the building is presently underway, and plans call for additional building as production grows.

Two full time employees and several part time employees are installing machinery to be used in manufacture of metal products, and building conveyor lines and assembly lines. When machinery and lines are completed, production personnel will be added, Dry said.

The tool boxes will be sold through dealers throughout the southwest, it was stated. Loyd Roberson will be sales representative for this area, with other representatives added soon. Already assigned as local dealers are Winters Tire & Supply, Western Auto Associate Store, American Supply and Morgan Motors.

Several of the new metal tool boxes already have been built at the new plant, and have been sold through local dealers.

J. P. Dry was one of the founders of J. P. Dry & Sons, manufacturers of evaporative air conditioners, in the late 1940s. This company later became Winters Manufacturing Co., and distributed its air conditioners throughout the southwest. The company was sold in 1958.

Dry subsequently started Dry Manufacturing Co., manufacturing louvers, grilles and diffusers for air conditioning and heating systems. These products are distributed throughout a large part of the United States.

Early in 1970, Dry Manufacturing Co. was sold to Wallace-Murray Corporation, and became Dry Manufacturing Division. Dry remained with Wallace-Murray as general manager of the local division for some time, and then became consultant for that corporation, before forming the new manufacturing company recently.

Thank You, Mr. Burleson!

(AN EDITORIAL)

Many hospitals in small towns over the country face the possibility of being closed, simply because it is impossible for them to meet the unbending and exacting demands made by the Department of Health, Education and Welfare regarding Medicare patients. Medicare has become the lifeblood of most of these small-town hospitals, and if they are to be denied that source of income—which has preempted all but a small segment of hospital income—they have no other choice than to close their doors.

Some of HEW's regulations have to do with certain types of equipment which must be available. This is not an insurmountable obstacle, although it could cause considerable hardship. Most small hospitals, if given a clear field in other areas, could find means to meet this requirement, even though it has been pointed out that some of the equipment required probably would never be used in a small hospital.

Most small hospitals, however, find it next to impossible to meet the requirement that a registered nurse be on duty at all times. Even many of the larger hospitals have difficulty in maintaining a full staff of registered nurses. Up to now, the small hospitals, in most instances, have provided very satisfactory care by using licensed vocational nurses along with a few registered nurses available in their localities. The admitted and well-publicized shortage of registered nurses seems, however, to have no effect on the thinking of HEW; the die has been cast and the Department goes blindly about the business of wholesale wreckage of the small hospital system of the country.

The issue is further confused and lacking in common sense when it is noted that low-cost housing for the elderly continues to be promoted and financed through agencies of the Federal government, especially in the smaller towns. Here we have the Federal government, on the one hand, seemingly concerned about the housing welfare of the elderly, and on the other hand, depriving them of medical facilities convenient to their locality. It just doesn't make sense.

Congressman Omar Burleson has recognized the threat which hangs over the small-town hospital. (See the Congressman's newsletter below.) He has introduced legislation to amend the Social Security Act which would prevent the closing of so many of the small-town hospitals because of strictness of HEW rules and regulations. Those of us who live in the small towns have for a long time realized the importance of our hospitals, but perhaps we have been lax in expressing our thoughts on the subject. Now is the time to say what is on our minds, to let our Congressman know where we stand on this issue, and to give him our thanks and support in his efforts to help us. Our letters would add strength to his fight.

As It Looks From Here

Burleson Working To Aid Small Town Hospitals

By OMAR BURLESON
Congressman, 17th District

Washington, D. C.—The national health crisis has been discussed heretofore and from all indications it may get worse before it gets better. There is, however, concentrated attention being given to meet the situation. In spite of the high cost, the overcrowding of facilities, and shortage of technical help connected with illness, more people are receiving better care than ever before. But there are deficiencies which still have to be met for certain hospitals to qualify under the Medicare Program.

Special efforts are being directed to providing better nursing care. We probably have some of the best nursing homes to be found anywhere but from reports there are also some pretty bad ones.

One of the great unanswered challenges is the shortage of nurses and yet small hospitals in many of our small towns are being denied Medicare benefits because they do not have, and cannot afford to have, at least one registered nurse on duty for each 8-hour shift.

Many of our older and smaller hospitals do not meet the safety standards set by regulations under the Medicare Program. In many instances these physical facilities can be improved to the extent of qualifying but no one wants to spend the money necessary if they are unable to have at least three registered nurses on duty over a 24-hour period.

In Texas alone there are some 170 hospitals which may have their Medicare benefits terminated if they have to comply with the unbending strictness of the rules and regulations laid down by the Department of Health, Education, and Welfare. Like most, if not all, Federal programs, administrators must "go by the book" but the book itself, in the form of rules and regulations, is forcing the closing of some small-town hospitals. This means that elderly patients would have to go to a hospital located in some larger town. Elderly patients accustomed to local care just simply don't want to leave their community.

Everyone agrees that any hospital or nursing home should have the best and most modern care available but when regulations and rules leave no hospital at all people are understandably upset. There should be more time for modernizing buildings to meet proper safety standards but under the rules this still leaves the requirement for nurses.

Licensed Vocational Nurses do a very fine job and could well, under the general supervision of doctors and registered nurses, fill the practical needs.

There is an area for common sense to be provided and particularly until reasonable deficiencies can be met. A hospital less than two years old in South Texas faces the prospect of being denied admittance to the Medicare Program because of the requirement of equipment which probably will not be used and lack of nurses which it cannot obtain.

Note: Congressman Omar Burleson's staff advises that he has introduced legislation to amend the Social Security Act which would exempt hospitals having 50 or fewer in-patient beds from the requirement of full 24-hour registered nursing services and his legislation also calls for the relaxation of such other requirements when applied to institutions having fewer than 50 in-patients, as requiring an autopsy being performed on 28 percent of deaths occurring in such hospitals.

B. J. Colburn Named To Local School Board

Billy Joe Colburn, Winters farmer and stockman, has been appointed by the board of trustees of Winters Independent School District, as a member of the board to fill part of the unexpired term of the late Willis Davis.

Under the new school election statute, Colburn will serve until the board election in April, 1971, at which time a member will be elected to serve for the remaining two-year portion of the full term.

BUSINESS and the STOCK MARKET

By Babson's Reports, Inc.
Wellesley Hills, Mass. — Most top union authorities would like to see the United Auto Workers brought back into the AFL-CIO, and there are signs that such a reunification may actually be on the way. The return of this innovative union would add 1.4 million members to the Federation's existing 13.6 million in 121 affiliates. This would, of course, mean a shoring up of the power of organized labor, plus a substantial and welcome increase in the flow of dues into AFL-CIO coffers.

out of the Federation in mid-1968. He and President Meany of the AFL-CIO had long held different philosophies as to the best ways of operating. Reuther—fiery and considered by many to be of radical bent—wanted labor to be fully involved in social problems in order to gain the loyalty of the progressive element, the young, and minority groups. Meany tended to be more conservative, willing to win out by practical maneuvering rather than by head-on attacks.

In the 1960's, the animosity of Reuther toward his superior Federation officer seemed to grow more intense than ever. His charges of backward, old-fashioned tactics became more frequent. Reuther contended that the policy-making executive council of the AFL-CIO included no representative of government and white collar employees, who have for some time been making up the most rapidly growing section of organized labor. Then came his abrupt withdrawal from the Federation, joining the independent status of the Teamsters which had been expelled from the AFL-CIO in 1957.

plating reinstatement of the Auto Workers in the Federation, since Woodcock obviously did not feel the same hostility toward President Meany as had Reuther. In fact, Woodcock recently visited the AFL-CIO offices to discuss national health insurance, and this was the first time in two years that any UAW bigwig had been in the Federation's headquarters.

But it should be noted that those closest to him claim he has no serious ambitions toward higher office, as did Reuther. It is said that he wants only to achieve a highly satisfactory agreement with the Big Three in the automotive field this year. Then he will be content to bring his experience and knowledge to the council, and probably be undisturbed if somebody else aims for the highest-echelon position when that is vacated by President Meany, who is 76 this month.

RETURN NOT IMMEDIATE

The talk of such a re-merger has thus far been mostly in Washington, and primarily behind the scenes. Woodcock himself has denied that there is yet any such intention, and adds that nobody in Detroit is talking about it. It is obvious—and natural—that his prime concern at this time is not to carry his UAW back into the Federation; it is to draw up an agreement that will provide his members in the auto firms with sizeable wage increases and widening fringe benefits. Such a success would make for prestige that might considerably ease the re-entry into the AFL-CIO with his 1.4 million men.

Now and again there has been talk of the Federation's accepting the Teamsters back eventually, if corruption were entirely stamped out. But this is not so likely in the foreseeable future. James Hoffa, still in jail for jury tampering, will be president until his term expires in 1971. Until that time there is no chance of reaffiliation; what happens thereafter remains to be seen.

Milo Harvest Is Increasing Daily

The market is stable, grain quality is good, and the yield is much better than had been earlier expected, as more and more combines pulled into milo fields in the North Runnels County area this week.

Non-maturity has caused moisture content to be higher than desired, but given a few more days without rain, this problem will be alleviated.

If the weather holds, it is expected that harvest of early milo will increase daily within the next week until it peaks.

Tax Man Sam Sez:

The Dallas District office is proud of their record in tax education. The most effective tax education program IRS offers is their course "Teaching Taxes" for high school and college students. About 175,000 North Texas students were given some very simple instructions in how to prepare their own income tax returns by more than 2500 teachers in 953 different schools.

In addition to the simple income tax training course, the Dallas District developed a business tax return course and furnished 59 different colleges in the Northern half of Texas, to teach approximately 7500 accounting students some of the fundamentals of preparing a business tax return. The Dallas Chapter of the Texas CPA Society has worked with the Dallas District to train thousands of adults in how to prepare a better income tax return during the past six years. The tax lawyers and other groups cooperating with Internal Revenue and the Dallas Public Library have added hundreds of other better trained taxpayers during the past two years. The Military bases, the Community Action groups, and the retired groups arrange for other tax training sessions and account for thousands of other taxpayers getting needed help each year. The Internal Revenue employees feel that the taxpayers want to do their part but that they need a little help before they can understand some of the more complex provisions of the law.

Fires Saturday, Monday, Destroy Home and Shed

Two fires, one Saturday night, and another Monday, destroyed a home in Bradshaw and an implement shed north of Winters.

A three-bedroom home in Bradshaw, owned by Grover D. Orr and occupied by John Patton, was completely destroyed Saturday night, according to Winters Volunteer Firemen, who answered the call about 10 p. m. Cause of the fire was unknown.

Lone Star Gas Ups Quarterly Dividend, Forms New Branch

Directors of Lone Star Gas Company at Dallas have declared an increased quarterly dividend of 31 cents per share on common stock payable September 14, 1970, to shareholders of record August 28, 1970 and approved the formation of a new wholly owned subsidiary company designed to sell energy other than natural gas, according to L. T. Potter, chairman.

The increase of three cents per share on previous quarterly rates closely followed reported record per share earnings of $1.94 for the 12 months ended June 30. Net income for the same period rose 40.6 percent to nearly $28.5 million on total operating revenues of approximately $252 million.

Potter said that the dramatic net income advance, with tight expense control as an important factor, made the dividend increase possible. He re-emphasized that Lone Star's overall cash position remains excellent with no interim or short term debt outstanding.

Potter said that the new wholly owned subsidiary, Lone Star Energy Company, primarily will provide services under a central plant concept. The company will construct, own and operate plants supplying hot water, chilled water, steam and other forms of energy to large complexes such as institutions, industrial sites, shopping centers, and apartment complexes. The energy company's operations will not be limited to Lone Star's gas utility distribution area.

Department Dove Map Is Now Available

Austin—The Texas Parks and Wildlife Department is distributing the 1970 dove maps to help prospective hunters prepare for the season on white-winged and mourning doves starting in September.

The maps will be available this week from license deputies, Department regional and field offices, or from Department headquarters in Austin.

For regulatory purposes, the state again has been divided into a North Zone and a South Zone. The North Zone mourning dove season is September 1 to October 30. The South Zone mourning dove season is September 26 to Nov. 24, except in those counties having a white-winged season where it will be September 5 and 6, September 12 and 13, and September 26 to November 20.

Shooting hours in all counties will be from 12 noon to sunset. The Department map clearly indicates by shading the South Texas counties which have a white-winged season this year, and it also shows the protected "buffer zone" for white-wings along the Rio Grande in Starr County and a portion of Hidalgo county. White-wings may be hunted in 21 counties only on September 5-6 and 12-13.

Daily bag limit for both species is 10 birds, with a possession limit of 20. Bag limits of both white-winged and mourning doves may be taken in the counties having a white-winged season September 5-6 and 12-13.

The map also reminds sportsmen that no hunting is permitted in game refuges, state and federal parks, game reserves, within corporate city limits or from public roads or road rights of way.

The retention of one fully-feathered wing on dressed doves is required in those counties having a white-winged season when both mourning and white-winged doves may be taken. This requirement also applies when doves are imported from Mexico or any foreign country.

Shotguns must be plugged permanently to three-shell capacity and may not be larger than 10 gauge. Rifles are prohibited.

The closed area is south and west of a line extending along U. S. Highway 83 from the Starr-Zapata County line to Mission, and from Mission to the north city limits of Hidalgo via FM 1016 and FM 1926 during the concurrent white-winged and mourning dove season.

tobacco on one's person during the school day.

Such areas are subject to periodic examination and search by teachers, school administrators, and other school personnel if there is reason to believe that drugs, liquor, or any other disruptive devices may be present.

Student cars and other personal effects may be searched in the presence of the student by school personnel and—or civil authorities if there is reason to believe they may contain drugs or stolen school or student property.

During school hours and at school sponsored activities a student is subject to search by school and—or civil authorities if there is reason to believe the student has in possession drugs, liquor, or a weapon.

UNAUTHORIZED PUBLICATIONS
Distribution of unauthorized newspapers, pamphlets, or any other writings and—or drawings on or about the school campus is prohibited.

Juicy Watermelons:
Cut in wedges, squares, balls or quarters—watermelon is a juicy, delicious treat on a hot summer day.
Now's the time to load up on this summer cooler. The U. S. Department of Agricultural reports watermelons particularly plentiful during July.
To help you pick a watermelon that has just reached its peak of ripeness, here are some tips. If you're buying cut watermelons (halves or quarters), the best way to judge ripeness is by examining the flesh. This should have a fresh, firm texture and bright color. Dry, mealy flesh or watery, stringy flesh usually means the watermelon is overripe or old. Once in awhile you may notice a hard white streak running lengthwise through the flesh—this is a condition known as "white heart." If you see this, pick another melon. Seeds, too, are a good clue to ripeness. Usually they are dark brown or black in a fully mature melon.

When buying a whole watermelon, the surest way to determine its ripeness is the traditional method of cutting a "plug" out so you can see the flesh and test the taste. Of course, this is not always practical. Even from the outside, there are some indications of the ripeness within. Ripe melons, for instance, have symmetrical shape and a velvety bloom—a dull rather than shiny surface. Also, the underside of a ripe watermelon is apt to be turning from white or pale green to a light yellowish color.
Beat the heat with this Frosty Melon Salad
1 cup boiling water
1 pkg. (3 oz.) fruit flavored gelatin

1-2 cup cold water
1-2 tablespoon lemon juice
1-2 cup mayonnaise
1-4 tsp. salt
1 cup crushed pineapple
1 cup watermelon cubes
Dissolve gelatin in boiling water, lemon juice, mayonnaise and salt, and blend with mixer. Chill until firm (20-25 minutes). Turn into bowl and beat until fluffy and thick. Fold in pineapple and watermelon. Pour into molds and chill until firm (45-60 minutes). Makes 4-6 servings.
Watermelon Dip
This is just great for patio or backyard bar-b-ques:
1 cup peanut butter
1-2 cup commercial sour cream
3 tablespoons candied ginger
1-2 cup undiluted frozen orange juice, thawed.
Combine all ingredients and mix thoroughly. Chill until time to serve. Dip cubes of melon or melon balls into the dip. Makes 2 cups of dip.
Watermelon Boat is perfect

Mexico, Texas Are Cooperating In Whitewing Studies
Austin — Greater concern for an international bird, the white-winged dove which inhabits border regions of both nations along the Rio Grande, is being reflected in heavier law enforcement and increased research in Mexico.
Cooperation was the keynote of a meeting last month at Nuevo Laredo, in the Mexican state of Tamaulipas, where Dr. Rudolfo Hernandez pointed out to Texas and United States officials that inspection of hunters' aircraft and other law enforcement measures have produced 51 justifiable prosecutions of violations with heavy fines and confiscation of firearms and equipment.
The Director General of the Mexican Wildlife Department also noted favorable progress in a solution to the problem of whitewing depredation on grain sorghum crops in Mexico. Methods of scattering dove concentrations during nesting in May and June, when the parents feed nearest the fledglings, had been suggested to Dr. Corzo's staff at a September, 1969, meeting with U. S. Bureau of Sports Fisheries and Wildlife Director John S. Gottschalk in Mexico City.

COUNTY AGENT'S WEEKLY NOTES

Part Two of a Three-Part Article:

After deciding upon the size and location of a patio, the next important step is selecting the building materials and the method of construction. A little advance planning can greatly reduce maintenance and up-keep and make a patio more enjoyable to use. "Factors generally influencing the selection of surface materials include the intended use of the patio, whether you build it yourself or hire it done, the aesthetic effect desired and the cost," says Parker. "Because of its durability, low maintenance requirements and ease to install, concrete seems to be more widely used as a patio surface, however, a plain concrete slab is somewhat lacking in visual quality or aesthetic beauty."

With a little imagination, concrete, nevertheless, can be used very effectively as a patio surface. A redwood grid system used with an exposed aggregate concrete provides an attractive surface. Usually a three or four-foot square grid is constructed of 1 x 4 inch or 2 x 4 inch heart of redwood lumber. This is especially handy for the do-it-yourself type construction as it allows one to pour and finish the concrete, one square at a time, Parker says.

"The exposed aggregate surface provides one of the most attractive patio surfaces available," Parker said. It gives color and texture to the surface which is lacking in finished concrete, yet it provides the permanence and durability of concrete; however, exposed aggregate surfaces do not lend themselves easily to the do-it-yourself projects and are best handled by experienced concrete contractors."

A practical yet very attractive surface for the do-it-yourselfer is the brick-on-sand patio. This is especially suited to a house where brick is part of the exterior structure and it provides a desirable design continuity through a repetition of materials, he added.

A good sand base is essential for the brick patio. First step is to excavate the area designated for the patio to a depth of five or six inches. Fill in with three to four inches of builders sand, level and compact. The brick

APPETIZING HOUSE began as a haystack. A Wisconsin farmer put it up as a feed supply for his cows and they promptly nibbled it into a shelter against chill winds, carving out a tunnel and three inside rooms. Eventually, they will eat themselves out of house and home, but by then it will be summer.

are then laid as close together as possible on top of the compacted sand surface.

There are numerous patterns one can use in laying the brick, the important consideration however is to keep the upper surface of the brick at ground level, Parker stated. If the patio area is to be higher than the surrounding area, it is essential to hold the brick in place with a concrete or redwood curb.

The brick should be carefully leveled as they are laid, then as an area is finished, sweep fine sand into the cracks and sprinkle the surface with water.

Other materials suited for a patio surface include wood, tile, slate, cut stone and flag stones.

The important consideration in choosing a material for a patio is that it should blend with or repeat material used in the house or elsewhere on the landscape site. It should also be attractive as well as durable and usable.

Many plants, such as Crepe Myrtle, Rose and Eunonymus are showing signs of a fungal disease known as powdery mildew. This disease, as the name implies, gives the plant the appearance of being covered with a powdery substance such as talc, explains county agent Parker.

Powdery mildew is difficult to control; however, if the homeowner will use the proper fungicide and make repeated applications, a successful job can be done.

Fungicides which can be used are Karothane, Acitdione P. M. and Folpet. Surphur may also be used.

However the county agent says to use sulfur with care or burn may occur if environmental conditions are not optimal for its use. Other fungicides such as Captan and Zineb are not effective for powdery mildew; thus many homeowners do not get the desired control when using them.

Repeated applications of the recommended material should be made at 5-7 day intervals until a minimum of three have been made, advises the county agent. Weather conditions may

Mr. and Mrs. Burley Campbell and Miss Bonnie Mae Clark from Ballinger went to Lamesa where they visited Mrs. Jewel Warren. Mr. and Mrs. Campbell went on to Levelland where they visited Mrs. Campbell's sisters, Mrs. Goolsby and Mrs. Lewis.

Thursday night Mr. and Mrs. Burley Campbell went by Levelland and picked up Mrs. Campbell's sister, Mrs. Goolsby and necessitate additional applications to keep the disease controlled. The secret to powdery mildew control, concludes Parker, is selection of the right material and its repeated use.

Galls: Abnormal growth or galls are showing up on many ornamentals and shade trees in the county, reports C. T. Parker Jr.

Certain insect species and mites, he explains, cause the deformities which develop on the leaves, twigs, or stems of the plants. Immature stages of the pest can often be found inside the developing galls.

The insect eggs are laid in the tissues of the leaf, stem or twig usually prior to full development of the leaves. The laying and hatching stimulates the plant to form an abnormal growth at the point of the attack inside which the immature pests develop. Control of the abnormality cannot be accomplished after it has formed since it contains and protects the pest from insecticidal contact.

Most ornamental plants and shade trees can tolerate galls with no apparent injury; however, under certain conditions a sufficient number of the insects can damage the plant. Unhealthy trees are more susceptible than those in vigorous growth, says the county agent.

Preventive sprays applied early in the growing season may lessen gall infestations. Control is impossible after the gall begins to form. If a preventive spray program is needed, applications should begin with new growth and continue at weekly intervals until the leaves are fully developed, advises the county agent.

Information, he adds, is available at his office on many other insects and their control.

Pastures containing stemmy, mature grasses and unsightly weeds should be mowed in order to give the better forage plants a chance for regrowth, advises county agent Parker.

A heavy weed infestation can cut forage production by fifty percent or more. Mowing pastures, explains the county agent, not only is a good weed control practice, but will help maintain the quality of grass by keeping new and tender growth coming on.

Some stockmen hesitate to mow their pastures during the summer because of the usual hot and dry weather. By mowing a part of the pasture and waiting until it recovers, then mowing the remainder, this problem can largely be eliminated points out Parker.

The mowing height is important. Mowing above forage plants being saved for hay or later grazing will eliminate the tall weeds; however, pastures where grazing is continuous can be mowed at heights of two or three inches.

Chemicals may also be used to eliminate unwanted weeds. And information on this method of weed and brush control is available at the county agent's office.

NEWS for OUTDOORSMEN

by Vern Sanford

Several years ago, I was fishing near an angler who made extremely long casts. His boat was far from shore and he was whipping himself to death trying to drop his lure close to the bank.

Occasionally he caught a bass. Then he fought that bass through 50 yards of good bass water. This of course can ruin the area for further fishing—at least for the time being.

Actually, he was so far out that his fish had many opportunities to get entangled in submerged brush—and did.

At times long casts are fine—such as working with trout and red fish on the coast. But for fresh water fishing a cast over 50 feet usually is useless. If you keep within this distance you won't disturb much water, or scare away many fish.

Rod makes difference—some good fishermen insist on making long casts. But most of these distance shots are for show. A light-action rod puts the lure there, but when a fish hits, that same light-action rod will bend almost double getting him in—providing you're lucky enough to set the hook in time.

Naturally, the farther away the lure the longer it takes to firmly set the hook. A split second sometimes determines whether or not you latch on to the lunger or he expels the hook.

It is much easier to set the hook with a medium action rod, although most of us favor the light action one for casting.

On the other hand, a light rod is just no bueno for worm fishing. Neither is a long rod! Most of the best worm fishermen prefer a stick about five feet long and not over five and half feet. This gives them a rod with sufficient back bone to set the hook and get that big old bass to the top as quickly as possible.

Where long casts help—When fishing from the shore, longer casts may be helpful. In fact, most of the time you'll need to put the lure out close to a weed bed or to a point, or just beyond a drop-off.

Sometimes those who fish standing in the boat find it to their advantage to make a long cast. This is particularly true if the water is gin-clear and very calm.

Slab fishing for Whites—Occasionally I fish for white bass with two men who have entirely different habits in their fishing technique. One of them, after locating a school, stands in the boat and tosses a 3-8 slab-lure as far as he can. He then raises the rod tip and bounces that lure off the bottom. After about three bounces he usually has a bass (or gets his lure hung on an underwater rock or an old dead tree).

Angler number two just drops the same kind of lure over the side of the boat or maybe tosses it out about 10 feet. He lifts his rod tip and jiggles the lure two or three times, and he has a fish. Both methods work.

They usually wind up the day with about the same success. Of course the one who fishes close to the boat isn't nearly as tired at day's end. (Which means he gets to clean the fish)

There is one definite advantage in making an occasional long cast. It plays out the line so that you can wind it back tightly on the spool. On the other hand, there is more likelihood of a backlash on a long cast.

There is no firm rule you can follow on long or short casts, but generally speaking you can wind up with just as much poundage on a short cast and not work nearly so hard.

Several years ago Dave Hawk who has distinguished himself as a great bass fisherman, was weighing in a string of lunkers. A little woman approached him, looked over the string, and then asked "Don't you ever catch any little ones?"

"They are harder to catch anything but big fish," Hawk is one of them. Another is Tex Heth, who guides around Toledo Bend and Rayburn in East Texas. Then there is John Fox of San Augustine. He never seems to take one under four pounds.

It's a strange feeling to sit in a boat with an angler and both of you catch fish, but the other fellow invariably gets the lunkers. He will catch as many as you do fish-for-fish, but while you are stringing up two-pounds, he will land several in the four-pound class and some that go to six.

You'll be fishing with the same lures, and perhaps even the same make rod and reel. You watch him and try to fish as nearly as possible like he does, yet he continues to haul in the big brutes that you'd give anything just to try to land.

Such men are deliberately fishing for the big 'uns and utilizing all their knowledge and skill for taking braggin' size bass. There are many fishing secrets, and some fishermen seem to know most of them.

For one thing, these lunkers landers fish practically every day. They know their waters. They are able to "read" water with an experienced eye. They watch for the natural habitats of big bass. They know, by studying the land adjacent to the water, where the ledges are. Then, they have a pretty good estimate of where the points run down into the water.

They mark big trees protruding in the best fishing water. They conserve their casts. When they toss out the lure, they feel that the big old bass may be lurking there again . . . and he usually is. I've known fishermen to go back to the same spot for days just because they knew one big fish lived there.

A real good fisherman, whom I will not name, once was guiding a friend of mine. They had caught a tremendous string of crappie and decided they'd try a little cove for some blacks. My friend hooked one and thought it was a log. Because he knew fishing better, the guide realized it wasn't a log but a lunker.

He went back there a couple of days later and latched onto the same bass, but he lost it, too. This went on for days. The big old bass would grab the plug, spit it out and leave the fisherman empty handed.

That old bass had just heard the dinner bell because he grabbed both of those minnows . . . and our fishing friend set the hooks. That was all for Mr. might add, however, that it weighed a little more than eight pounds.

Moral here is that determination does it!

She carried a cascade of carnations and mums on a Bible.

A reception was held in the church Fellowship Hall following the ceremony. The tables were covered by Venice lace underlaid with peach satin. The centerpieces were made up of gladiolus, mums, and carnations. Serving the wedding cake was Mrs. Mary Lee Parham of Ben Wheeler. Serving the punch was Miss Lynnanna Hill of Winters. Miss Patricia Hill of Winters served the bridegroom's cake. Presiding at the bride's book was Miss Ruthie Slider of Dallas.

Law Violations Seen On Front Pages

Austin—The beaming face of a proud eight-year-old boy grinned from the front page of a Central Texas weekly newspaper.

Between the lad's outstretched hands was the lifeless body of a mature red-tailed hawk he had shot.

A big event in the life of a boy perhaps. But also a violation of state law.

Had the boy known that all hawks are protected by state law, he might have held his fire. And had the newspaper editor known it, he might have selected a different front page photo.

Hawks have been shot indiscriminately through the years, but most states now have realized the birds are beneficial and deserve the protection of laws.

Texas Parks and Wildlife Department law enforcement officials remind hunters of all ages that the only birds which still are not protected by either State or Federal law are English sparrows, starlings, crows and ravens.

Edmond H. Hight Died While On Visit To Idaho

Edmond H. Hight, 69, of Winters, died at 4 a. m. Friday of last week while visiting their son in Boise, Idaho.

Funeral services were held Monday at 10 a. m. from the Winters First Baptist Church, with the Rev. Harry Grantz, pastor, and the Rev. Glenn Bowman, pastor of First United Methodist Church, officiating. Burial was in Lakeview Cemetery under the direction of Spill Funeral Home.

Mr. Hight was born in Callahan County, Sept. 30, 1900. He married Leona G. Ellis Oct. 21, 1923, at Cottonwood.

He was an employee of the Union Texas Petroleum Company for 15 years, retiring in 1967. Prior to his employment with the oil company, he was self employed and farmed.

He was a member of the First Methodist Church and the Masonic Lodge.

Survivors are his wife; one son, Eddie Hight of Boise, Idaho; two daughters, Mrs. Dale Wolf of Midland and Miss Debora Hight of Abilene; one brother, J. W. Hight of Rising Star; and five grandchildren.

We wish to express our gratitude to the many friends who showed such Christian love and concern in their ministry to us at the passing of our loved one. Especially do we thank the presiding ministers, Brother Virgil James and Brother Glenn Bowman, and to Brother Grantz, for his vocal numbers, to the Southside Baptist Church and friends for the noon meal. Especially do we thank the Hendrick Memorial Hospital and staff in Abilene. When sorrow comes to you, we pray we may show the same kindness you have shown us. —The family of Walter Blackmon. 1tp

The picture was six years in the making, and the result warrants the time and money spent, for it is surely the most enchanting screen entertainment ever conceived.
This story of the kiss known round the world has been recreated and given needed plot and visual excitement not found in Charles Perrault's original 17th century version, on which the picture is based. Disney has embellished it with fun, pathos and spectacle.

Alvin Scates To Corpus For West Texas Utilities

Alvin Scates, lineman for the Winters office of West Texas Utilities Company, left last week for Corpus Christi to work with several hundred other electric power company men to help restore power to that stricken city following Hurricane Celia's devastating attack August 3.

West Texas Utilities sent about 100 men to help the local power company in the Corpus Christi area.

Power had been returned to a big portion of Corpus Christi by the last of last week, on a temporary basis, but much work remains to be done before a return to a normal situation.

Scates was expected to return to Winters by Thursday of this week, but may remain in Corpus Christi for a longer period because of the heavy work load.

By VERN SANFORD

Austin, Tex. —Soaring state budget requests led the Legislative Budget Board to urge all agencies to hold spending in 1972-73 to essentials.

Lt. Gov. Ben Barnes, Board chairman, sounded the warning that a "critical financial condition" looms which demands "economy-minded" government.

In a letter directed to state agencies, Board advises that they submit suggestions at an early date on where fat can be trimmed from their appropriations requests.

"Reluctant" fat trimmers should be invited back for a second hearing before the Board, Barnes said.

Requests already submitted reportedly exceed the expected income for the 1972-73 biennium by more than $1 billion.

Estimates of the amount of the 1971 tax bill which will be needed to support adequate services for state agencies in the face of expanding demands still range from $350 to $700 million.

Some ranking legislators fear a revenue bill of that magnitude will be virtually impossible to pass in view of the fact that lawmakers voted $350 million in new taxes only last year.

Budget Board's recommendations on spending usually are more conservative than those finally adopted by Legislature. However, they serve as take-off points for the House Appropriations Committee and Senate Finance Committee deliberations.

AUTO INSURANCE DELAY

Texas motorists got a hint of good news: they may escape a raise in auto insurance premiums altogether this year.

Charles D. Mathews, a member of the State Board of Insurance, raised hopes of that in testimony before the interim Senate committee studying rat-

Mathews also predicted the Insurance Board will come up with a rate formula that includes company income from investments, a longstanding point of debate.

"I think the companies may be sorely disappointed in the Board," said Mathews. "We may not get around to an auto rate adjustment in 1970. There are just so many hours in a day."

Company spokesmen earlier indicated they were hoping for a 15 to 20 per cent rate hike this year. A delay in Insurance Board hearing dates made postponement of any increase until after November 1 virtually inevitable. A 9.9 per cent hike was granted last year.

Critics of a further increase told the Senate Committee that rates went up twice as high as the general cost of living in the last decade. Some recommended group coverage on auto insurance.

WELFARE OVERHAUL PROPOSED

Senate Welfare Reform Committee has recommended a sweeping overhaul of the system, including placing responsibility for Public Welfare Department administration in the hands of the governor.

At the same time, Committee endorsed a proposal that Welfare Department electronic data processing equipment be totally updated under a private contract to save manpower, time and money.

Study panel proposed abolishing the Texas State Board of Public Welfare and substituting an advisory panel to the governor. Also the name of the agency would be changed to Department of Human Resources under Committee recommendations to be submitted to the Legislature next January.

Computer experts estimated new electronic data processing equipment could save the state an addition of 2,600 people in the Welfare Department at a cost of $8.5 million a year.

In the second day of hearings, Committee was told that administrative costs alone of the Medicaid program were $11.6 million in Texas during less than three years. Committee recommended an "experienced executive having an insurance background" be employed to coordinate Medicaid functions now scattered among several branches of the Welfare agency.

SPECIAL OIL MEETING ORDERED

World oil crisis and Hurricane Celia prompted a special meeting of the Railroad Commission this week (Aug. 10) to reassess August oil allowable.

Commission earlier had set the market demand factor at 62.9 per cent for August, which would produce about 3,220,518 barrels of oil daily.

Since that action, Commission Chairman Ben Ramsey said, some companies have indicated a desire to buy additional Texas crude. On the other hand, said Ramsey, Hurricane Celia complicated movements of crude from South Texas and some West Texas fields to tidewater.

Commission invited crude purchasers and transportation executives to its Monday (Aug. 10) meeting "to assess effects of Hurricane Celia on the movement of crude, as well as the logistical problems of moving crude from other Texas areas to Gulf Coast and to markets elsewhere."

Closing of Tapline, a major oil line from the Middle East to the Mediterranean, plus high tanker rates for transporting oil around the southern tip of Africa to Western European and East Coast markets substantially raised the need for Texas crude, Ramsey noted.

LAND RECOVERY SOUGHT

School Land Board requested Atty. Gen. Crawford C. Martin to see if a lawsuit is feasible to recover state land from the Calhoun County Navigation District.

Land Commissioner Jerry Sadler estimated that the district bought for $1 an acre as much as 20,000 acres in state land it doesn't need for its functions as a navigation district.

Some of the land was resold to private developers, including the Key Allegro subdivision near Rockport, and is valued at $33,098 an acre now.

Land Board also agreed to recommend that the law be changed to limit the amount of state land available to navigation dis-
