HOME TOWN Talk

By R. C. THOMAS

The government directive against cigarette advertising on television has created some new problems. We saw a lady at the store the other day trying to buy some cigarettes. She couldn't remember what brand she had been smoking, and it had been several days since she had been told by television what brand she should be smoking to remain socially acceptable. Frankly, she was in a predicament... and her only solution was to return to the tv and find out what kind of pills to take to calm her down.

Seriously, not questioning the truthfulness of warnings of harmful effects brought on by smoking, this prohibition of television advertising of cigarettes has opened a Pandora's box of questions. For instance, if one product can be prevented from advertising through a certain medium, what is to keep the powers that be from prohibiting another product from advertising through another medium? If the health hazard is reason for prevention of cigarette advertising on tv, why should printed advertising be acceptable? If the reason given that tv has the power of mind control over the young holds water, what about alcoholic beverage advertising? What about sleeping pills and the like? What about advertising of questionable movies or books, on the air or in print?

Anyone of conscience accepts efforts of policing for the protection of health and welfare, but a discriminatory singling out of certain products and certain media raises a question of final purpose. How far can such police powers extend? and how discriminatory can they become? After the public has been conditioned to strict control in one area, which area will next be affected?

Clipped: "I used to think I was poor. Then they told me I wasn't poor. I was needy. Then they told me it was self-defeating to think of myself as needy, that I was culturally deprived. Then they told me I was underprivileged. Then they told me that I was disadvantaged. I still don't have a dime, but I have a great vocabulary."

What They Won't Think of Next Dept.: According to a hand out, Interior Department scientists, who started producing oil experimentally from garbage and waste paper, have found ways to simplify the process and reduce the cost. A ton of wet urban refuse, minus bottles and cans, can now be made to yield just over one barrel of crude oil by treating the refuse, under 1,600 pounds per square inch pressure, with carbon monoxide and steam at 480 degrees F. Such oil could be valuable in localities which, to prevent certain forms of air pollution, permit only low-sulfur fuel to be burned, said the article. Nitrogen content of the oil is relatively high, however, and would have to be reduced to make the oil suitable for refining into gasoline.

So don't burn that garbage! You might have a gusher in your alley!

Although the New Year season is several days past, and 1971 is well on its way, it's still not too late to think about those resolutions. Aside from the usual pledges of reform having to do with smoking, drinking and what-not, it would seem that this could be a good time for all thoughtful citizens to take the pledge in a number of matters beyond the strictly personal—matters that may determine the kind of a nation we will be living in.

Official Proclamation

By Elliott Kemp, County Judge
Runnels County
Ballinger, Texas

Greetings;

Agriculture is vital to the economy of Runnels County, our State and Nation. A large percentage of our citizens are dependent directly or indirectly upon agriculture for their livelihood. All of our people benefit from the productive efficiency of modern agriculture.

Farmers and ranchers have learned to promote their industry through organization. Four out of five agricultural producers in this Nation belonging to a general farm organization are members of Farm Bureau.

Farm Bureau is an independent, non-partisan, non-governmental voluntary organization of families united for the purpose of analyzing their problems and formulating solutions to those problems.

Therefore, I, Elliott Kemp, County Judge of Runnels County, do hereby designate January 25-30 as Farm Bureau Week in Runnels County, and urge our citizens to give due recognition to this observance honoring Runnels County Farm Bureau.

In official recognition thereof, I hereby affix my signature this 20th day of January, 1971.
ELLIOTT KEMP,
Runnels County Judge

Jim Hamner Is Assistant Water Superintendent

Jim Hamner Monday night was named by the City Council as assistant water superintendent.

He will be assistant to Water Superintendent W. D. Waggoner.

Hamner has been employed by the City Water Department for several years.

In other business, the City Council approved a proposal to halt all bulk water hauling, effective immediately. Although there is no present danger of a water shortage—Water Superintendent Waggoner said there is an ample supply of water in many months even without rain—the action was taken simply as a precautionary measure, the City Hall said.

There has been very little bulk water hauling during the past several months, it was stated, and there are no large oil field water flooding projects presently depending on water from the City Lake.

Counter Checks Still Good Here, Says Bank Head

Although many metropolitan banks have abandoned the use of counter checks, or are planning such action, the Winters State Bank has no plans presently of discontinuing the use of these checks, Woodrow Watts, president of the bank, said this week.

Although use of personalized checks is encouraged by the Winters bank, counter checks will still be available locally, Watts said. He said those paying bills out of town by check would find it more convenient to have in their possession their own personalized checks, because Winters State Bank counter checks will not be available in most other towns.

Weather permitting, the City of Winters will be ready to turn Main Street (US 83) over to the Texas Highway Department for contract-letting purposes by April 15, Buford Baldwin, City Secretary, said Tuesday.

Many water and sewer lines have already been relocated, and W. D. Waggoner, Water Superintendent, indicated that this would be completed within the allotted length of time. Two extra men have been assigned to the Water Department to help speed up the relocation work.

Regarding relocation of the City's electric lines, the Council planned to meet this week with a contractor who will move the lines. This work will require several weeks, it was stated.

Jan. 25-30 Farm Bureau Week In Runnels County

The week of January 25-30 has been designated "Farm Bureau Week" in Runnels County by County Judge Elliott Kemp.

During this period the Runnels County Farm Bureau will have a special membership enrollment drive as a part of a statewide effort to exceed last year's total of 121,158 member families. Runnels County ended its 1970 year with 981 members.

Governor Preston Smith has proclaimed the same period as "Farm Bureau Week" in Texas. Doyle Condra of Talpa is president of the local county Farm Bureau. Membership chairman is Lucius Evans of Norton.

The county president said farmers and ranchers need an organization more than ever before. "We producers need to be organized for more effectiveness in marketing, agricultural public relations, tax problems, as well as other matters affecting our incomes," he said.

... about your SOCIAL SECURITY

Most people are aware that wives can receive social security retirement benefits based on their husband's work, said J. M. Talbot, social security manager. But, not many people know that in certain cases a husband can qualify for retirement benefits based on his wife's work.

For example, if a husband is disabled, his wife may be the principal breadwinner. In cases where the wife is the worker, her retirement or disability can work a significant financial hardship on the family. Congress provided long ago that when the husband is dependent, he could receive benefits on his wife's record.

If you are a dependent husband, you must be age 62 and receiving at least one-half of

COUNTY AGENT'S WEEKLY NOTES

Good lighting around the farmstead will provide year-round benefits for farm families, reminds county agent Parker.

These include keeping wild animals and prowlers away, preventing falls and accidents, saving time in farmstead night work and making activities in the building areas easier. Now with winter here and fewer hours for performing the outdoor chores, good lighting is even more important.

The mercury-vapor yard light is one of the best available. When located near the middle of the building area, it provides enough light to adequately cover the entire area. The 250-400 watt size lamps continue to gain in popularity over the 175 size watt, says the county agent.

The fixtures have a built-in photoelectric control to automatically turn the light or lights on at dusk and off in the morning. The mercury bulb has a rated life of 16,000 hours. This amounts to about 4 years of operation under automatic control.

Most electric power suppliers have a rental plan by which these lamps can be installed and permanently maintained for a small monthly charge. The agent suggests a visit with the local power supplier for the details on the lights and rental plan.

OPINIONS BY MARTIN

One who gets an occupational driver's license (while his regular license is suspended) is not entitled automatically to return of his auto registration receipts and license plates, Atty. Gen. Crawford Martin has held.

In other recent opinions, Martin concluded that:

"State employees who held city offices but resigned them may receive their state pay."

"Deer killed on the land of another, without his consent, should be released to the game warden — for charitable purposes."

Martin issued a warning against mail solicitations which closely resemble a bill for merchandise.

and suburban homes as well as to farmstead landscaping. A well designed windbreak points out Parker, will greatly reduce or modify annoyance caused by prevailing winds can reduce livestock feeding costs; lower heating bills and protect roads and driveways from the cold north and northwest winds.

It will also provide cover and protection for all types of wildlife and in some cases provide food for wildlife. It is also an environmental asset.

The direction of the prevailing winds should determine the location of the windbreak, says the county agent. For winter protection, use plantings to screen the north and west sides of the area to be protected.

In areas where heavy snowfall may occur, windbreaks should contain five or six rows of trees to properly protect the farm home or other buildings. One or two row plantings will greatly modify summer wind; however, larger plantings are better.

To minimize the north or northwest winds, or drifting snow, in and around farm buildings, plant the nearest row of trees at least one hundred feet from roads or buildings. In suburban areas where space is more limited, plantings may be spaced closer to roads and buildings by using smaller trees or large shrubs in the immediate vicinity of the buildings.

The use of native or adapted plants for windbreak plantings is as important in the development of a satisfactory windbreak as is its location. Parker said he would be happy to discuss with persons interested plant varieties, planting and management problems as well as how planting species may be obtained.

NEWS for OUTDOORSMEN by VERN SANFORD

Every ardent angler remembers those rare times when he gets in a school of surfacing white bass and catches a fish on practically every cast.

Schooling fish such as these often give the inexperienced angler a sense of false security. Since the whites were near the top, he figures they spend most of their time in this vicinity, and he casts or trolls shallow-running baits.

Not so, says white bass expert Bob Hill of Austin who has fished over the entire state for whites and has worked out some highly specialized methods for taking them.

Based on his observations, Hill says whites spend fully 90 per cent of their time in deep water near the bottom. So anyone trolling a bait, even a deep-running job, usually isn't getting down to where the fish are.

Hill likes to tell about the time he was fishing on Lake Concho near San Angelo with Billy Disch were anchored, working the bottom, and catching a fish on almost every cast. Trollers, witnessing the phenomenal success of the Austinites, couldn't figure what they were doing wrong.

Since white bass prefer a bottom that's fairly clean, such as the mouth of a creek where a sand floor has been washed into the lake, the bottom can be worked with little likelihood of the lines getting hung up. Hill likes some sort of slow-wobbling bait, such as a silver or gold spoon or one made of solid lead.

His favorite used to be a heavy silver spoon, like the Dixie Jet, Tony Acetta or Lone Star spoon. While this spoon still produces quite spectacularly, Hill's current favorite is the Slab Spoon. It is made commercially by the Bomber Bait Company. Hill likes the slab so well he even molds his own.

This heavy, solid-lead spoon can be worked slowly along the lake bottom and it seems to have the slow-wobble action that whites prefer. Hill casts the bait and allows it to plummet straight to the bottom. Then he brings it back in slow stop-and-go jerks, lifting it off the bottom and allowing it to wobble back down. Most times, a white will not attack this bait savagely. It sort of pecks at it. Therefore, the angler must learn to keep a tight line, to feel the almost imperceptible bite, or watch his rod tip for the telltale bob that indicates a white is fooling with the lure.

Hill casts the bait and allows solid white with just a thin slash of red along the front end.

Biggest problem in white bass fishing is finding the fish. Hill watches for bird activity. Gulls hovering and diving over the water usually indicate that white bass are feeding below. If there is no bird activity, he simply works any likely spot that might hold whites. He prospects an area for maybe 15 minutes before moving on. Usually, if whites are present and cooperative, they'll hit in a hurry. By systematically moving and trying different spots, Hill usually finds a concentration of fish sometime during the day.

Even when the fish are schooling near the top, he quite often fishes the bottom. He points out that the small, eager fish rush the shad to the surface to feed ravenously, while the older, more docile whites wait patiently near the bottom for wounded shad to sink down to them. . . . shad that the eager youngsters have missed. A spoon dropped in the vicinity and worked to simulate a wounded bait fish usually will prompt a strike.

"Sizing Up" Onions
Do you "size up" the situation when you buy onions? The size of onion to buy will vary with the use, says Mrs. O'Connor. Smaller onions are best for boiling whole, stewing or creaming, while medium ones are ideal for serving stuffed. Then the larger ones are perfect for luscious, thick slices to top off hamburgers and other sandwiches and, of course, for onion rings. All sizes are equally good for grating, chopping, dicing or slicing.

You'll want to size up your onion purchases according to quality, too. Fruit and vegetable experts of USDA's Consumer and Marketing Service suggest you look for onions which are dry and have small necks. They should be covered with papery outer scales and be reasonably free from green sunburn spots and other blemishes.

Avoid onions with wet or very soft necks, as they are usually immature or affected by decay. Also avoid onions with thick, hollow, woody centers in the neck or with thick sprouts.

Batter-Fried Onion Rings are a real family treat. To prepare, cut peeled onions into thick (about 1-4 to 1-3 inch) slices. Separate into rings and cover with salted water. Let the onions stand in the water for about 30 minutes, then drain and remove excess moisture with paper toweling.

Prepare a medium-thick waffle batter, using a mix or favorite recipe, but make one variation to the recipe, if not already called for separate the eggs, adding yolks to the batter and beating whites until stiff and then folding in carefully. By folding in the egg whites, you will have a lighter coating on the rings. Pour melted shortening or salted oil to a depth of one inch in a heavy skillet and heat to a temperature of 375 degrees—a cube of bread browns in 40 seconds. Or fill your automatically controlled deep-fat fryer with shortening and heat to 375 degrees. Dip a few onion rings into batter and drop into the hot fat, frying until each is golden brown. Continue dipping the rings into the batter and frying until all are cooked.

Here are a few pointers to remember when deep-fat frying onion rings: 1. Be sure temperature of hot fat remains constant. If it is below 375 degrees the batter will become oil-soaked.

and not cook properly, and naturally if the fat is too hot, the onion rings will burn. A deep-fat thermometer is a good investment if you do not have an automatically-controlled deep-fat fryer, for it will quickly tell the temperature of the fat and indicate whether heat should be lowered or increased. 2. Avoid cooking too many onion rings at one time. There should be ample room between each to allow the fat to cook the batter uniformly. If too many are added at one time, the rings will mass together and part of the batter will be uncooked and doughy.

3. By dipping a few onion rings into the batter at a time, just before frying, the batter will remain "around" the rings and will not settle "down". A perfectly fashioned batter-coated onion ring is entirely hidden within the batter, with none of the onion peeking through.

PORK-APPLE SALAD
2 cups chopped cooked pork or ham
2 cups diced apples
1-2 cup chopped celery
1-2 cup mayonnaise or salad dressing
1-4 cup raisins
1 tablespoon lemon juice
Lettuce, as desired
Combine all ingredients except lettuce. Chill thoroughly. Serve on lettuce. Makes 6 servings, about 2-3 cup each.

Kitchen Safety

What room can be the most dangerous in the house? Research shows that it's the kitchen, but it does not have to be so, according to Jan Slabaugh, Extension specialist in housing and home furnishings.

The kitchen is a combination factory, bakery, cannery, butcher shop, restaurant, household workshop and children's playground. "Each family member should put into practice all he knows about safety in this busy place," Mrs. Slabaugh says.

Safety is an attitude of sincere concern for the well-being of oneself and others. Mrs. Slabaugh adds, "It is a willingness to accept rules and regulations and to apply them in all activities."

A safe kitchen starts with the development and practice of good habits in the selection, preparation, serving and storage of food. Safety continues its march to actuality as long as the family members observe strict rules designed to prevent fires and mishaps.

Keep matches in metal containers. Light gas burners by holding a lighted match to the burner before turning on the gas. Be careful not to place trays, pot holders, and plastic and wooden utensils on electric range units which could be hot without showing red.

Mrs. Slabaugh also suggests that range burners should not be turned on until they are needed. And, they should be turned off as quickly as they are not needed.

Such flammable items as waxed paper, towels, cleaning agents, and other combustibles should be stored away from the range. Turn pan handles to the rear or side of the range to prevent scalding from an accidental bump or spill. A supply of dry, thick pot-holders should be on hand for use with hot objects.

When using the oven, pans and other utensils should be placed or removed by pulling out the rack. Such precaution will save a lot of hand and arm burns.

"A fire extinguisher should be part of every kitchen, and each family member should know how to use it," Mrs. Slabaugh reminds.

February draft call for Texas is 1,185 men, an increase of 280 over January.

First priority selection group is made up of registrants born in 1961 currently classified in Class 1-A, 1-A-0 or 1-0.

Patti Smith and Edwin Tischler Will Be Married Here February 12

Mr. and Mrs. Whitley Smith announce the approaching marriage of their daughter, Patti, to Mr. Edwin Tischler, son of Mr. and Mrs. Monroe Tischler.

The wedding will be Friday, February 12, at 7:30 o'clock in the evening, at the Southside Baptist Church.

Friends and relatives of the couple are invited to the ceremony.

Water Adds To Cost of Foods, Says Specialist

College Station—"We're paying more and more at the supermarket just for the privilege of carrying home plain, ordinary water," reports Mrs. Doris Myers, Extension home management specialist.

Soup manufacturers have realized that consumers will pay a good price for water, so they're adding it at the plant, the specialist explains. By advertising an "honest, old-fashioned soup," they can get the public to pay two to three times the single serving price of condensed soup.

A recent survey taken in Washington, D. C., shows that soups with water added cost about 12.5 cents per serving, while condensed soups cost about 4.2 cents for the same serving.

There are other products in which we pay for water, Mrs. Myers adds. Some puddings and whipped toppings come ready-to-eat. Fruit drinks often containing only 6 percent actual fruit are made up mostly of water.

"Just think how much money we've spent on bottled drinks and the energy exerted lugging home all those bottles of water," she points out.

But convenience can't be ruled out. When we're in a hurry or unable to make the product ourselves, convenience foods come in handy. Products such as ready-to-eat puddings and toppings save cooking and cleaning equipment. And some take the guesswork out of cooking.

Soups and soft drinks, however, are another story. A can of soup still needs to be opened and the contents heated in a pan. Do you consider it much work to add water?

The next time you feel the cost of living tugging at your pocketbook, stop and think. Is it worth the extra cost to have someone else turn on the faucet?

REPUBLICANS ON MOVE

Texas Republicans named Dr. George Willeford Jr. of Austin as their new state chairman and began laying their plans for joining in campaigns of President Nixon and Sen. John Tower in 1972.

Willeford said GOP needs to change its face, and deal in specific issues rather than "in platitudes about things like fiscal responsibility."

GOP leaders insisted the appointment of Democratic former Gov. John Connally as secretary of treasury enhances the chances of both Tower and Nixon. Tower predicted he will win and said he doesn't care who the Democrats run against him.

The reason truth makes such slow progress in the world is that it is in competition with pretense.

STATE Capital NEWS

By VERN SANFORD

Austin, Texas — Texas' 62nd Legislature is prepared to settle down to serious business after hearing recommendations of Gov. Preston Smith as to priority duties.

Legislature's first week was spent largely in organizational preliminaries. However, Lt. Gov. Ben Barnes named a full Senate committee roster, and the sub-panel of the Senate appropriations committee began hearings on the budget.

Lawmakers were reluctant to talk much about where they would find up to $850 million in new taxes until they heard "the governor's plan." Smith's message to lawmakers was set for the day after his and Barnes' second term inauguration.

Meanwhile, bills piled up in hoppers of both houses during the "lull." Among them was the $7.5 billion all-funds state biennial budget draft prepared by the Legislative Budget Board. It would require an estimated $576.4 million in new revenue, and that was regarded as a minimum.

House Speaker Gus Mutscher was elected to a second term without opposition. Sen. Jack Hightower of Vernon was unanimously selected as Senate president pro tempore—an honor which carries with it the privilege of serving as governor for a day, probably next April.

The proposed constitutional amendments already introduced would lower the minimum voting age to 18, remove the $80 million a year welfare spending ceiling, provide four-year terms for state officials and call for annual legislative sessions.

Hundreds of bills already have been submitted. Some of the major ones would require drivers to have liability insurance before they can get a driver's license or auto plates; set up an independent Texas Air Control Board; split the Parks and Wildlife Department; allow individuals to bring anti-pollution suits; and abolish recognition of common law marriages after 1971.

WELFARE CRISIS GROWING
Lieutenant Governor Barnes warned Senate budget writers that emergency funding is necessary to prevent some welfare allocations from running out altogether.

He said money for aid to families with dependent children and medical assistance might be exhausted by May or June unless the Legislature provides early supplements.

Barnes urged special attention to welfare problems. Welfare officials confirmed a reduction in AFDC is likely "not later than March" if no additional money is provided. A reduction in "Medicaid" would result in "losing the whole program," they said, due to strict federal matching requirements.

Welfare Department is asking a $34.9 million emergency appropriation to maintain the current level of aid to the needy, drawing AFDC and regular medical benefits.

Barnes is ordering a check to determine if local expenditures for medical welfare could be channeled through the state treasury and thus attract additional matching federal aid on a two-to-one ratio. He thinks the procedure may make a substantial "saving" in state money.

APPOINTMENTS

Gov. Smith appointed Mrs. Lyndon B. Johnson of Johnson City. Dr. Joe Thomas Nelson of Weatherford and A. G. McNeese Jr. of Houston to the University of Texas board of regents.

He named H. C. Bell of Austin and Bill Lewis Jr. of Waco to the Texas A & M University board of directors. Smith also named: —Searcy Bracewell of Houston as chairman of the Texas Water Development Board.

—William C. Black of Belton as 146th district judge.

—Charles D. Travis of Austin as executive budget director.

—Rudy S. Davila of Austin as training specialist in Texas' office of Economic Opportunity.

—Mrs. Jeannette Watson of Austin as interim director of the Early Childhood Development program for the state.

COURTS SPEAK

State Supreme Court held that water permits not used for 10 years can be cancelled by the Texas Water Rights Commission. Decision reversed the Third Court of Civil Appeals.

In other decisions the High Court:

—Sustained the district court which held that two Fort Worth firms could not violate the Sunday closing law.

—Upheld lower courts that a Corpus Christi cab driver does not have to pay a city license fee to drive his cab in the city when he is licensed by the state to transport passengers.

—Stuck by its December 2 decision sustaining lower court findings that a suit claiming discrimination in membership against San Felipe Country Club must be re-tried.

SHORT SNORTS

Governor's advisory committee recommended creation of a permanent commission on physical fitness.

One hundred and six rice farmers in Chambers, Liberty and Jefferson Counties carried their appeal to the Texas Water Rights Commission on an irrigation water rate increase by the Trinity River Authority.

An Environmental Education Conference is set here for February 17 to support legislation to protect the environment.

Forest Hill (Tarrant County) is applying for a state bank charter.

HEALTH COLUMN

The most common communicable infection is the common cold, but ranking not far behind it in frequency is a group of infectious diseases which may come as a surprise to most persons—venereal disease.

Measles, rubella and chicken pox are diseases which are mentioned often, says the Texas State Department of Health, but VD is surging across the nation.

The United States Public Health Service estimates that there were more than 1.5 million cases of gonorrhea and about 70,000 cases of syphilis in this country last year. But despite the widespread incidence of the disease it is considered a "silent epidemic" because few people outside the public health field seem to want to talk about it, let alone admit the problem exists in such vast proportions.

One form of VD, gonorrhea, is so widespread in this country that public health officials flatly say that it is an epidemic. Only twice before has VD been considered of epidemic proportions in the United States. That was at the close of both world wars. The Public Health Service lists gonorrhea as the top problem among reportable communicable diseases in this country.

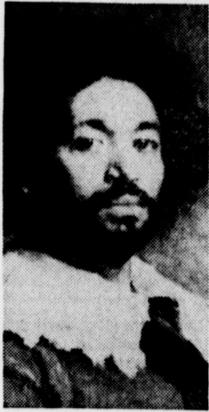

Texas has its share of venereal infections. State Health Department communicable disease authorities can only guess at the actual case total, because not all cases come to official attention. Nearly 55,000 cases were officially reported last year. That's more than 150 cases each day, or more than one case every ten minutes.

In Texas more than 50 percent of the venereal disease reported to the State Health Department is in young people 15 through 24 years of age. Texas is now reported 10 percent of all the venereally infected young adults in the nation.

The public still seems to lack an awareness and concern over Texas' VD problem, but the health department has sounded a call to action on the parts of private physicians and public health officials.

You as an individual can help! Both syphilis and gonorrhea can be cured. But it is important to go to a doctor or health clinic immediately if VD is suspected. The earlier treatment is begun, the easier the diseases are to cure.

Parents can learn the facts about syphilis and gonorrhea and see that their youngsters learn them too, either at home

JEAN DE PAREJA, a mulatto assistant to 17th-century Spanish painter Velasquez, was worth $5.54 million at a New York art auction—or at least this portrait of him was. Velasquez' painting was purchased by the Waldenstein Gallery.

The Goal Digger Club met Monday evening in the home of Mr. and Mrs. Garland O'Dell, with Mrs. O'Dell, a sponsor, serving as hostess.

or at school. Teachers are urged to tackle these diseases in their proper context in the school curriculum by at least the eighth grade. If you are a member of an organization, devote a meeting to finding out more about the VD problem and its solution.

Excellent speakers and motion pictures are available on request from the health department. Single copies of educational leaflets written in easy-to-understand language are available free of charge from the State Health Department or your local health department.

As a responsible citizen, you can urge others to actively support eradication of VD in Texas as a serious health problem.

If you can't profit from advertising something is either wrong with your business or you have nothing to sell.

THE FAMILY LAWYER

Lost at the Laundry

Katherine went to the neighborhood laundry to pick up her week's wash. But the proprietor greeted her with bad news.

"We had a burglary last night," he said, "and your bundles were stolen. I'm afraid you are just out of luck."

But Katherine decided that he, not she, ought to bear the loss. Filing suit for damages, she pointed out that the back door of the laundry had only the flimsiest kind of a lock, even though the building had been burglarized before. The court found the proprietor guilty of negligence, and ordered him to pay Katherine's claim.

When you leave clothing at either a laundry or a dry cleaner, you are creating what the law calls a "bailment." The company, as the bailee, must take reasonable care of your belongings. Although not to blame for an unavoidable loss, it is liable for a loss it could fairly have prevented.

Suppose the company tries to protect itself by a notice saying it is not responsible for losses of any kind. Does that make a difference?

Most courts will recognize some limitation, but not a total denial, of the company's liability. Furthermore, a notice has no legal effect unless it is properly brought to public attention.

In one case a laundry inserted into each finished bundle a small printed notice, placing a dollar limit on its liability for losses. But when a customer demanded payment for some missing items, the company was held liable in full. The judge said the dollar limit could not be part of the bailment contract, because it was not even mentioned when the clothing was first brought in.

On the other hand, the company too is entitled to "notice" of what it is accepting responsibility for. In another case, a man negligently left a ring in the pocket of a suit he sent to the cleaner. The ring vanished, and he put in a claim against the company for compensation.

But after a court hearing, his claim was turned down. The court said he could not blame the company for losing what it did not even know it had.

Truck Production Outlook Brighter

By Babson's Reports Inc., Wellesley Hills, Mass., January 1971. The nation's truck manufacturers wrote off calendar 1970 as a poor year for them. In 1969 the industry established its all-time high output record, with nearly 2 million trucks built. However, in 1970 many adverse factors exacted a toll upon the industry: Sales lagged early in the year, the labor difficulties of the teamsters curtailed inflow of materials and shipments of assembled units, economic conditions were uninspiring, commercial borrowing costs remained high until late in the year, and finally there was the UAW strike against General Motors. Hence, truck production for 1970 ran close to 1.5 million units, the lowest calendar total since 1963.

Snaphack Due

The Research Staff of Babson's Reports forecasts that companies involved in truck manufacturing and related fields (trailer and container manufacturing) will experience a return to more profitable operations this year. This reflects several favorable factors, including newer equipment to handle fishy-back, piggy-back, and container aspects of the intermodal transportation system; further additions to the massive interstate highway program; and liberalization by some states of weight and length maximums governing truckers. From a fundamental standpoint, another favorable factor for domestic heavy-duty truck manufacturers is that they are not plagued by stiff foreign competition.

Industry Profile

Among the leading truck equipment manufacturers are General Motors (GMC and Detroit Diesel), Ford, Chrysler, and International Harvester. The Detroit Big Three (GM, Ford, Chrysler) have the lion's share of the smaller light-duty truck market. Pick-ups or light-duty trucks account for over half of total domestic truck output.

In the heavy-duty segment of the market, however, the independents have historically made their mark, presently holding a share more than half of the domestic market. Also it should be noted that approximately 80 per cent of heavy-duty trucks are powered by diesel. Sales in the heavy-duty segment were off in 1970, but — aided by tax relief — recent marked increases in trucks for the recreational market (campers, etc.) lead us to believe that more of the smaller truck sales are going in this direction.

Basic Considerations

A parallel can be drawn between heavy-duty truck sales and Gross National Product. Increased demand for shipments of goods and services results in improved truck sales. Hence, we look for greater demand for these trucks in 1971. Also, the labor difficulties of the teamsters and the soft economy deferred many 1970 heavy-duty truck sales; hence we anticipate a generally better climate in 1971 for both light and heavy-duty segments of the market. The long-term growth outlook is favorable for the heavies, owing to larger pay loads and more liberal length regulations. Trucks, like autos, contribute to the pollution problem in proportion to their numbers. The same effort expended to reduce pollution by cars will be directed also to the truck manufacturers since they both fall under federal government and state supervision.

Looking Ahead

We feel that turbines will be used in large trucks and buses beginning in the present decade. Additionally, what is now an international concept of containerization should produce more growth in the companies which manufacture this type of equipment. Because of this type of equipment, the larger pay loads of operating units, we also anticipate that better braking qualities will be "built in" by the manufacturers, possibly with the addition of computer-operated skid controls.

Coast Fish Kill Laid To Cold Weather

ROCKPORT—Biologists of the Texas Parks and Wildlife Department have concluded that cold weather—and not pollution—was the cause of a widespread fish kill discovered over the weekend on the Lower Gulf Coast.

Ernest G. Simmons, a coastal fisheries regional supervisor, said the fish kill, which extends from Copano Bay southward through the Lower Laguna Madre, resulted from rapid cooling of the shallow waters by a cold front which moved through the area late last week.

The number of fish killed has not yet been determined, Simmons said, but both game and rough fish species apparently were hit.

Wear Life Jackets In the Wintertime Gives Tips On

Frigid weather makes the wearing of life jackets doubly important for water safety.

This is true because of the added shock of cold water to a person's body makes him much more vulnerable when he accidentally falls into a lake or river, according to George Cook, the Texas Parks and Wildlife Department's Water Safety Services director.

An unexpected fall into icy water may be followed by progressive muscular weakness. Heavy winter clothing also can contribute to the victim's demise if he isn't wearing an approved lifesaving device.

A jacket of this type can give a person the buoyancy he needs until he can swim to safety or be rescued.

When someone has been severely chilled by immersion, a fire and a warm blanket may save his life, Cook said. Wet clothes should be removed and replaced with dry ones.

The victim may suffer more from the cold after getting out of the water and into a cold wind, so immediate warming is needed.

Rubbing the victim's body or giving him alcoholic drinks may be a bad idea. Warm drinks such as coffee or tea are much to be preferred.

THE FAMILY LAWYER

Parents vs. Grandparents

Jane and Eddie, a young married couple, showed almost no interest in their baby boy. Out of sheer necessity, Jane's parents took over the task of bringing him up.

But when he was three, Jane and Eddie decided they wanted him back. The grandparents refused to part with the boy, so the two couples squared off in the courtroom to fight for custody.

"Parents outrank grandparents," argued the younger pair. But it also appeared that Jane and Eddie drank too much, worked too little, and had no home of their own. The court ruled that the boy was better off where he was, with his grandparents.

It is not rare for parents and grandparents to disagree about the custody of a child. Generally speaking, the law puts its main emphasis on what is best for the child, even at the expense of parental sensibilities.

Nevertheless, in most instances, parents are indeed favored over grandparents because they are the "natural" custodians of their own offspring. As one court put it:

"The law seeks to work in harmony with nature, and to continue those ties which bind man to his own flesh."

Thus, in another case, parents regained custody of their daughter even though they had no savings, no life insurance, and only a modest income. Noting that their income at least was steady and their habits sober, the court said:

"Unless they are to be deprived for all time of the love of their child, and of the opportunity to give her their love, they should be given that chance now."

Are a child's own wishes taken into consideration? Yes, if he is mature enough to have independent views. But usually this factor is not decisive by itself.

A 15-year-old boy, transferred to his parents' home after many years with his grandmother, was unhappy about the change. He said in a court hearing that because of squabbling between his mother and father, he wanted to move back with his grandmother.

ed to move back with his grandmother.

But the court held that the boy's discontent was not enough reason to grant his request. The court said he would probably soon get used to the shift from a sheltered existence with his grandmother to the normal abrasions of family life.

ing in at the end of this decade. A few good resolutions in behalf of the environment, the solvency of government, a higher quality of performance on the job, and the rights of the other fellow are certainly badly needed. The countryside could use less beer cans and litter. Every level of government could do with less demands from private citizens and government could do with less demands from private citizens and groups trying to get something for nothing. A new dedication to pride in a job well done might do more than anything else to restore a nation's sense of values. Finally, everyone abided by a resolution to respect persons and property by the law and order issue would be resolved at a single stroke.
