HOME TOWN Talk

By R. C. THOMAS

Apollo 14, at this writing, is thousands of miles out in space, on the way to the moon, and if all continues to go well, a moon landing by the two astronauts probably will have been accomplished by the time this is read.

This moon-landing feat is—or should be—a thing of pride to every American, because it is being accomplished in the same spirit of adventure which gave birth to this country and which has promoted the high rate of development incidental to making this country the greatest nation on earth. Without that spirit, this nation—if it indeed had become a nation—would have remained at the low level of development experienced by many other countries of the world.

There is much evidence of a vein of controversy in this land regarding the values and benefits of these moon shots and other space exploration. Some—many of them in high places—would have us believe that the efforts and money expended in the space projects could be put to better use; for example, in helping to relieve poverty and want, not only in this nation but in others as well; in making the world a "better" place in which to live. This attitude is the "agrimism" which has been present throughout the ages. This "agrimism" rears its head in the face of most anything attempted, be it a "moon shot" or a new and different method of processing wheat into flour, or a revolutionary method of tilling the soil. It will continue to be with us.

To begin with, it is doubtful that the money and energy spent on the space program—even though it has cost many millions of dollars—would make much of a dent on the world as a whole, or on this nation in particular, if directed toward the "better uses" some would have us undertake instead. It takes more than a few million dollars and a decade and a half to change the will and attitude of humankind.

What many of us tend to forget is the value of the "spin off" of such programs. Already many benefits to mankind have resulted from the space program alone, in the fields of communications, medicine and the like. Without the program, these benefits probably would have been a long time coming, if at all. Values of these benefits will far outstrip the actual cost of the programs within a comparatively short time, if they have not already done so.

The moon landing is not the end—it is only the means to a never-ending program of development. If we demolish the means, then we stagnate.

In less than a couple of weeks, we're going to note a holiday under the new system devised by the powers that be, a system which decrees that many of the old standby holidays which previously had landed just about any place during the week now fall on a Monday. This gives

Mr. and Mrs. Audra L. Mitchell Selected For Conservation Award

Mr. and Mrs. Audra L. Mitchell of the Pumphrey Community have been selected for the Outstanding Conservation Farmer Award in the Runnels Soil and Water Conservation Farmer Award in the Runnels Soil and Water Conservation District, according to Kirby Robinson, chairman of the district.

Mitchell owns and operates 1170 acres of land in the Pumphrey area. Ronald Rugh, range conservationist with the Run-

Contracts Awarded For Highway On FM53 In Runnels County

Contracts for highway construction in Runnels County have been awarded by the Texas Highway Commission.

H. L. Freeland, Inc., and George M. Amthor of San Antonio have been awarded a contract for grading, structures, base and surfacing on 1.7 miles of Farm to Market Road 53 in Runnels County. Low bid was $290,408.97.

The project is located 1.0 mile north of Wingate at Valley Creek, and from 5.3 miles east of Winters eastward 2.1 miles. W. B. Hoppe of Ballinger is the Highway Department engineer in charge of the project which will take an estimated 160 working days.

Strain Brothers, Inc., of San Angelo was awarded a contract for seal coat of 280.0 miles of highway in the San Angelo District with a low bid of $514,650.15. This work will take an estimated 80 working days to complete. James R. Evans of San Angelo is the Highway Department engineer in charge of this project.

Lubbock Men Charged With Crews Burglary

Two Lubbock men have been charged with the Saturday burglary of the Marvin Gerhart home 10 miles east of Winters, according to law enforcement officers.

Ramon Gonzales, 28, and Joe D. Pina, 24, both of Lubbock according to police, were taken into custody by Abilene police at the Abilene bus station Saturday night and turned over to Runnels County officers.

According to police reports, Mrs. Gerhart and Mrs. Delbert Kruse walked into the Gerhart home Saturday night and found two men in the house. Several household items had been piled on a bed, but the suspects ran without taking anything. Police were notified, and a car said to have been driven by the suspects was later found at Tuscola. Abilene police were notified, and picked up the two men at the bus station.

Police reports said a door of the Gerhart home had been "kicked in" to gain entry.

Adult Education Course Begins In Local Schools

An Adult Basic Education program is being offered by the Winters Public Schools, in cooperation with the San Angelo Independent School District.

The first classes were to begin Thursday, February 4, and will continue through April 22, Carroll Tatom, superintendent of Winters Schools, announced.

Any adult, male or female, of any race, color or creed, who is 18 years of age or older, who needs instruction in the basic fundamentals of reading, math, and English, is eligible, Supt. Tatom said.

There will be no cost to students, and materials for the courses will be provided free of charge. Classes will be offered at the following levels:

—Basic or "A" Level: For those who wish to learn to speak English, and those who have no education, or only a first, second or third grade level of education.

—Intermediate or "B" Level: For those who need to begin study at approximately the fourth to sixth grade level.

—Upper or "C" Level: Those who need to begin study at about the seventh to eighth grade level.

Supt. Tatom said the program will "provide an opportunity for men and women to improve their education. Almost every job and the chance for advancement depends at least upon the completion of elementary school."

Those wishing to enroll may do so at the first session, or may enroll at any time during the program period. Classes will meet each Tuesday and Thursday evening from 6:30 to 9:30.

TB Testing Is Planned

A tuberculosis testing survey is being planned for Winters, to be held within the next few weeks, it was learned early this week.

No date has been set, but it was expected that the testing survey will be held in early March. Details of the project have not been worked out, but it is expected that X-ray tests will be available.

Complete information and date will be announced later. The testing survey will be conducted by Region 10, Texas TB and Respiratory Disease Association, with local Association members working with the Region personnel.

The Winters Lions Club Tuesday to support the project.

Winters Youngsters Win Many Places In Beef Carcass Show In Ft. Worth

Youngsters from Winters won many high places in the open beef carcass show at the Fort Worth Livestock Show last week. Judging on hoof and on hook was done last week, but results of placings were not announced until the first of this week.

Stanley Blackwell, vocational teacher in Winters High School, accompanied the young people to Fort Worth. The eleven Winters exhibitors represented the Winters chapter of the Future Farmers of America and the 4-H Clubs.

Blackwell said 24 calves were taken to Fort Worth, and 22 of them were slaughtered for the carcass judging, following the "on hoof" judging.

Ricky Dean's junior shorthorn was grand champion in that division, winning first place on the hoof and first place on the rail.

Bertha Grohman showed the senior Brahman to championship, with first on hoof and first on rail.

Ricky Marks showed his junior Hereford to reserve champion in the Hereford division of the carcass show, winning first on hoof and first on the rail. He also showed a senior Hereford to second place on foot in that division, and to first place on hoof in the junior Brahman carcass show.

John Spill showed a senior Shorthorn to first place on hoof. Rebecca Dean showed to second place on hoof in the junior Shorthorn division.

$350 Pledged To Rehab Center Thru Local Bank

Contributions amounting to $350 were pledged to the West Texas Rehabilitation Center in Abilene through the Winters State Bank Saturday night during the "Rehab '71" telecast on KRBC-TV.

The bank had made arrangements to have a person available to take calls from persons in this area who wanted to make pledges to the Rehab fund. Calls were received from 7:30 to 10 p.m. Saturday.

The special kick-off telecast for "Rehab '71" covered most of West Texas and reached into parts of New Mexico and southern Oklahoma.

Talent on the special program included Rex Allen, Rosemary Clooney, Slim Pickens, and many others.

Cindy Davis Is "Glacier Queen" At Winters High

Cindy Davis, a senior student in Winters High School, Tuesday was elected "Glacier Queen" by the student body. She will be honored with a full page picture in the school's yearbook, which will be released later in the spring.

Glacier Queen candidates from the other three high school classes were Brenda Smith, junior; Debbie Tekell, sophomore; and Cheryl Whitlow, freshman.

Miss Davis is the daughter of Mrs. Joan Howard. She is senior cheerleader, and was elected FFA Queen two years. She was a candidate for Glacier Queen in her sophomore year, and was her freshman class favorite girl. She also was a candidate for West Texas Fair Sweetheart last fall, and was a nominee for Miss Winters in the Lions Club Miss Winters contest last spring.

Miss Davis plans to enter McMurry College following graduation from Winters High School.

The Glacier Queen contest is sponsored and promoted by the Glacier staff. Bruce Smith is yearbook editor.

More Than 225 Attended Grid Banquet Here

More than 225 attended the Winters High School football banquet in the school cafeteria Saturday evening.

Eddie E. Meador of Richardson, former player with the Los Angeles Rams professional football team, was the principal speaker. He was introduced by Lynn Billups, representing the Winters Boosters.

Jerry Gibson, former head football coach in the Winters Schools, who moved to Fort Stockton in January, was a honored guest.

Tandy Stevens, a WHS senior, was master of ceremonies. Several awards were presented during the program.

The banquet was sponsored by the Cheerleaders of Winters Winters High School.

EDDIE HARRISON

WHS Graduate Has Art Exhibit In Abilene Center

An exhibition of the art work of McMurry senior Eddie Harrison opened Sunday in the gallery of the Amy Graves Ryan Center of Fine Arts, Sherwood Suter, head of McMurry College art Department, has announced.

Harrison is showing more than 20 paintings along with original pottery. This is the first art show for the just finished Ryan Fine Arts Center.

The show will continue on display through February 5.

Harrison is an art education major with a speech minor. He graduated from Winters High School in 1966. His parents are Mr. and Mrs. A. H. Harrison of Ovalo.

Drum Major with Dr. Raymond Bynum's McMurry Band, Harrison has also been active in Ko Sari social club and served as treasurer for the Kappa Pi Honorary Art Fraternity. He was co-director of the 1969 Homecoming Revue.

Ft. Worth Singer To Entertain At C. of C. Banquet

Francine Reese Morrison, spiritual and gospel singer of Fort Worth, will sing at the annual membership banquet of the Winters Chamber of Commerce Friday, February 19.

Congressman Omar Burleson will be the principal speaker at the affair, which will be held in the Winters school cafeteria.

Winters Lions Club Chili Supper Next Tuesday Night

The annual chili supper sponsored by the Winters Lions Club will be held in the school cafeteria next Tuesday evening, February 9, beginning at 5 p.m.

Tickets may be obtained from any member of the Winters Lions Club, or at the door.

The chili supper is one of the annual fund-raising projects of the Lions Club. Proceeds will be used by the club to purchase glasses for the underprivileged, to help crippled children, and other community service programs.

Runnels Baptist Men In Quarterly Meeting Here

The quarterly meeting of the Runnels Association of Baptist Men was held Monday in the Winters First Baptist Church. Virtually every church in the association was represented by pastors, laymen and guests.

Dr. T. A. Patterson of the Dallas office of the Baptist General Convention of Texas was principal speaker. Ladies and members of the Royal Ambassadors were special guests. Loyd Roberson led group singing, and special music was presented by Mrs. Ferris Akins of Ballinger, Mrs. Joel Butts of Winters, and the Rev. Harry Grantz, pastor of Winters First Baptist Church.

A city election to elect a mayor and two aldermen has been called for Saturday, April 3. Winters City Council took the action at the regular meeting of the city's governing body Monday night.

Terms of Mayor Wade W. White, and Aldermen Nelan Bahlman and E. E. Vaughan expire in April.

Deadline for filing for any of these offices will be 30 days prior to the election.

Mayor White said this week he is "undecided" about seeking another term in office. He is presently serving a second two-year term. Prior to being elected mayor, he served as an alderman for two years.

Alderman Nelan Bahlman told The Enterprise this week he "definitely will not" be a candidate for re-election. He is completing his second two-year term on the council.

Alderman E. E. Vaughan said he had not made a decision whether to be a candidate for re-election to office.

Incumbent aldermen who have another year on present terms are James Spill, Bill Robinson and Hal Dry.

Three Winters Men "Distinguished Students" At A&M

Three Winters students have earned "Distinguished Student" ranking at Texas University.

They are Michael F. Kozelsky, a freshman aerospace engineering major; James Ernest Smith, a pre-veterinary medicine major; and Stephen L. Smith, a junior aerospace engineering major.

The undergraduate honor is awarded students who have excelled academically. Recipients must earn at least a 3.25 grade point ratio (out of a possible 4.0) during the grade period.

In addition to a 3.25 or higher GPA, a student qualifying for "Distinguished Student" honors must have been enrolled in a minimum of 12 hours and have no grade lower than a "C."

The "Distinguished Student" ranking is limited to 10 percent of Texas A&M's undergraduate enrollment.

Kozelsky is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Joe J. Kozelsky of 605 Novice Road; James Ernest Smith is the son of Mr. and Mrs. James Ernest Smith of Route 2; and Stephen L. Smith is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Lawrence T. Smith of Route 4, Winters.

WHS Students Pick Class Favorites

"Class Favorites" of the four classes of Winters High School recently were chosen in voting at the school. Each class picked a favorite girl and a favorite boy.

Janice Mills was chosen class favorite girl, and Don Magee class favorite boy, of the senior class.

The junior class picked Tandy Medford favorite girl, and Ricky Dean, favorite boy.

Mary Webb is the favorite girl of the sophomore class, and Wayne Schwartz, the favorite boy.

Freshmen picked Mary Jacob as favorite girl, and Jerry Mack Jackson, favorite boy.

Bluegill Looks Tame, But He's A Savage

Austin — He's a cannibal, a nest robber and a domineering gangster in the brotherhood of Texas fishes.

This is not a description of the barracuda. Or of the man-eating shark. Not even of the black bass.

It's the bluegill sunfish.

The bluegill (Lepomis macrochirus) has a vicious nature disguised by its diminutive size and pet-store appearance.

In some situations, a group of bluegills can commit an act of violence that would make a piranha shudder. Underwater films have shown a school of bluegills harrassing a nesting black bass like a pack of wolves worrying a cow moose and her calf, according to Marion Toole, inland fisheries coordinator for the Texas Parks and Wildlife Department.

"After the bluegills surround the bass, one of them will dart in front of him and draw him off the nest long enough for one of the others to steal a mouthful of eggs," Toole said. "They will keep that up until the bass realizes he has no more eggs to guard."

This destructive habit, combined with the bluegill's own reproductive capacity, sometimes causes the species to eventually dominate a body of water. This dominance eventually hurts the bluegill as well as other fish species, since they tend to become overcrowded and stunted in many cases.

Once a lake has become seriously overpopulated with bluegills, nothing short of massive management tactics will correct the situation, Toole said. This means draining and starting over or trapping the bluegills to trim their numbers. Fishing won't do it.

Not only does the bluegill sometimes rob bass nests, the male has been known to consume eggs laid by female bluegills and left in his trust. Newly-hatched bluegill fry also fall victim to their father's appetite, but the tremendous numbers usually produced in a single nest make the loss insignificant.

But with all his bad habits, the bluegill has a following. Any one who has hooked a large (half pound or more) bluegill on reasonably light tackle will readily admit the little rascal has heart. Some purists even oppose the use of anything but ultra-light tackle for the little fellows.

Many's the proud bass fisherman who's saved an otherwise fruitless day by putting away the heavy equipment and catching a stringer of bluegills on worms or artificial flies.

Even more numerous are the youngsters who delight in dabbling for bream (the name given to the bluegill and other sunfish family members in the Southern U. S.) with cane poles rigged with tiny hooks and bobbers.

When kept in check, the bluegill is probably a valuable member of the finny family, with his nest-robbing forays probably happen only when other natural foods are lacking.

The bluegill is the best-known of a group of sunfishes which includes the pumpkinseed, redbreast, redear, green and spotted. And, oddly, he also is akin to the black bass, but the bluegill doesn't share the bass' discriminating food habits.

Bluegills, in fact, will eat most anything, and virtually any kind of bait will catch them if not too large. Tiny worms, insects or a piece of cheese on a size six, eight or 10 hook will LYNDON B. JOHNSON, former president, attended a building dedication at the University of Texas in Austin, wearing something new: a hearing aid.

WASHINGTON — "As it looks from here" OMAR BURLESON, Congressman 17th District

WASHINGTON, D. C. — The mayor of a small town in Italy was having trouble getting his city council to approve his recommended budget. According to a foreign newspaper report, he hit upon an idea of unusual strategy. He spent a night in a hut, performing rites involving the sacrifice of a black hen. It seems he depended upon two good spirits by the names of Rakel and Bayel who, he said, looked after economic and financial affairs. Just maybe Washington should be calling Rakel, Bayel and one black hen to report immediately.

President Nixon submitted his Fiscal Year 1972 Budget to the Congress this past week based on the theory of a "full employment."

The idea is fairly simple. With unemployment hovering around 6 percent, the U. S. economy is underproducing very seriously. Whenever the economy underproduces, the Federal revenues suffer severely.

In the next fiscal year it is estimated that Federal revenues from all sources, including social security taxes, SHOULD be about $230 billion. Since the economy is underproducing so badly, the actual revenue is estimated to be about $215 billion.

Since there is underproduction and unemployment, the Administration says the economy needs stimulation. To stimulate, the idea is to set the spending level at a rate of Federal tax collections that would come in IF there were full employment. Based on this theory, a balanced budget is accomplished on "full employment." The result, work. Artificial flies also work, especially small popping bugs and underwater flies with spinners. Ultra-light spinning or fly rods give the bluegill the best opportunity to show off his fighting spirit.

Most bluegills are caught with a simple hook and line from docks, boats or the shoreline. Anglers should use the smallest size float available, and allow the fish to pull the rig a short distance before setting the hook. Bluegills have a tiny mouth, and pulling too soon on the line often will jerk the bait away from them.

The fastest action for bluegill fishing is during the late spring and early summer when the fish are spawning. Their circular nests are easy to see in the shallow water, where they have swept clean a gravel area for their eggs.

however, is a $15 billion actual deficit.

The fiscal year budget of 1961 is an example of what might have happened had the "full employment" concept been applied. In that budget the actual deficit was $3.4 billion. Unemployment stood above 6 percent, about where it is today. If the "full employment" idea had been applied, there would have been a $11.3 billion surplus.

A "full employment" budget can be defined as the excess over Federal spending that would have been collected had there been full employment. Full employment, in turn, is defined as existing when unemployment drops to 3 percent or less of the labor force.

In accordance with the rules now adopted by the President, it is all right to have an unbalanced budget when there is high unemployment.

This idea is not new. The theory was proposed several years ago by some of the economists who are now in the Administration, one of which is Mr. George Shultz, the President's Economic Counselor. Dr. Walter Heller, Chief Economic Advisor to President Kennedy has been a longtime advocate of the theory.

A book published last year called "The Real Majority," authored by Richard M. Scammon and Ben J. Wattenberg, political writers, portrayed the typical American voter as a 47-year-old housewife, living in the suburbs of Dayton, whose husband is a machinist. She is greatly upset about such things as crime, urban unrest, student riots, drugs, pornography and other things related to "social issues." Her views in this regards are conservative. The writers say, however, that the same average citizen is more liberal on "bread and butter" issues.

It would appear that in the case of a "full employment budget," a liberal position is being taken by the President. The position seems to favor stronger support for "law and order" but soft pedals our serious economic condition. Some of us feel that there is a serious error in these assumptions. It is not complimentary to the citizens of this country to think that they are not equally concerned with high government spending, high taxes, inflation—to assume that Americans are "liberal on bread and butter issues." There is sufficient evidence to show that a large percentage of people have a great concern—yes, fear—of a great overpowering Federal Government. Although the demands for more services of one sort or another are great, there is also demand on the part of many that Government spending, heavy taxes and rising inflation be brought under control. An Administration and a Congress which does not meet this test will undoubtedly be vulnerable the next time people go to the polls.

Proper handling of mulches is one of the most important but least understood soil and water conservation measures used in Texas," Hoffman said. USDA Leaflet On Garden Mulches Is Available

Garden mulches and how to use them is the subject of a new leaflet available from the USDA Soil Conservation Service.

Woodrow Hoffman, SCS district conservationist at Ballinger, said the leaflet, "Mulches For Your Garden," has the best and most concise explanation of how to use mulches and compost in a garden that he has ever seen.

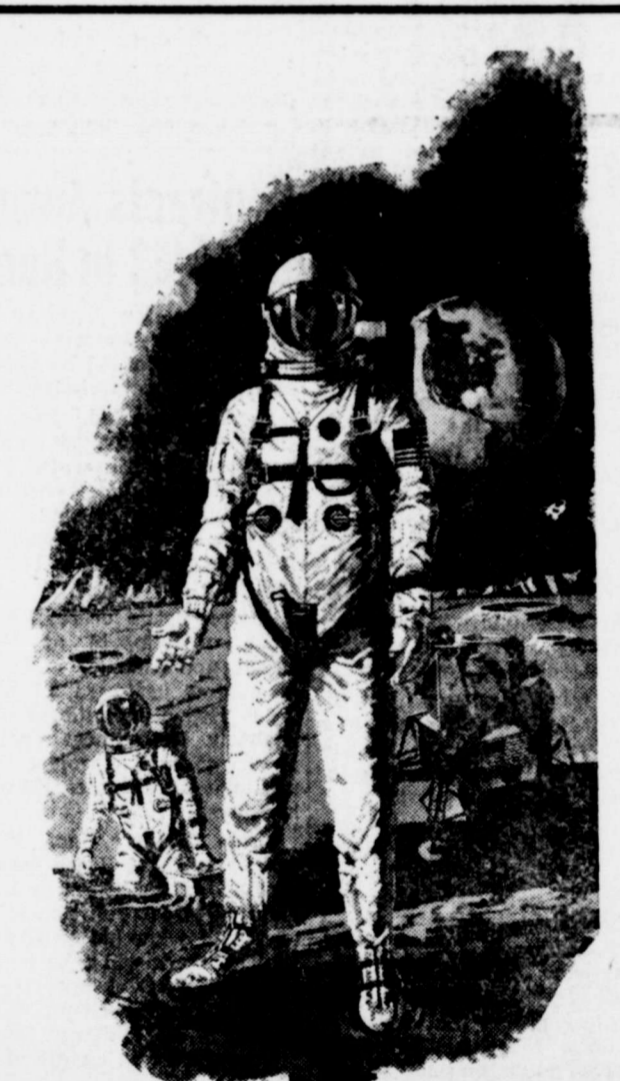

"The leaflet explains how mulches cushion falling raindrops which reduces soil loss and soil compaction," Hoffman said. "Mulches keep soil cool in the summer, conserving moisture; they also furnish food for earthworms which are valuable for aerating the soil. Organic matter added by mulches helps keep soil crumbly and easy to work."

Hoffman said some mulches are more valuable if composted before using. The new publication shows how to build a simple compost bin out of wire or boards and is complete with drawings and pictures.

The leaflet lists the number of cupful of various kinds of fertilizer, wood ashes, or epsom salts to add to a bushel of compost to speed decomposition and to increase the compost's plant nutrient value. Details are also given on how to make acid compost for use with azaleas and rhododendrons.

"Proper handling of mulches is one of the most important but least understood soil and water conservation measures used in Texas," Hoffman said. "All good conservation farmers leave the stalks and stems from their crops on the land to reduce erosion and conserve moisture. Few conservation measures do more to reduce pollution from blowing dust or from sediment."

strongly toward present grants system rather than a distribution with no strings attached. But need is great, governors and mayors are pressing, so we expect passage of a compromise program late in the year.

OTHER ISSUES

The President, however, seems prepared to send up to the Hill too many sweeping recommendations and proposals. There's no chance Congress can act on the bulk of these intelligently and constructively this year. Hearings on the Nixon measures are bound to be lengthy, disputatious; and Senate filibustering on Vietnam, foreign policy, other issues, will tend to delay action on the President's requests.

Yet we do think Congress will hammer out a healthy insurance program for the poor that will likely include a revision of Medicaid; vote to keep the SST alive; revamp the draft; pass even more stringent laws to curb abuse; and possibly raise the minimum wage from $1.60 to $2.00 an hour.

Reloading the Reel Spool

It's easy to reload the reel spool when you're out at the lake, or on it. Just run the end of the line down through the guides, from tip-top guide to the reel, and tie the line to the spool. Then simply toss the fresh spool far out into the lake and start reeling in the line.

Believe it or not, the spool will spin right where it landed, as the line comes off—and give just the right tension for an A-1, line-spooling job.

If you don't want to use all the line, just paddle over and pick up the spool whenever you have wound off what you need.

Hook and Bait Saver

Sinkers that hang-up in rocky areas when you're surf fishing often cause line breakage. Results is loss of hooks and bait. If you need a heavy sinker that's disposable (and free), use an old discarded spark plug. Hammer the electrodes together, then tie on a short wire leader—from line to electrode loop.

Then, if you get snagged—a sharp pull on the line will release the wire and free the bait and hook.

Identify the Kiddies

Vacationers who take along the kiddies find peace of mind in equipping the youngsters with identification bracelets, tags or pins.

Each day add the current address to a luggage tag, hung by a string, necklace-style. Or slap a piece of ident tape on the child's wrist.

Handy Tent Patch

"Iron on" patches are handy for repairing the snagged or torn clothes of the outdoorsman. They also can be used to patch that hole in the tent.

Heat a pot and use the bottom of the pot to iron on the patch.

BUSINESS and the STOCK MARKET

by BABSON'S REPORTS INC. Copyright 1971

Wellesley Hills, Mass.—In a sweeping State of the Union message to Congress and the nation, President Nixon urged the adoption of proposals leading to the attainment of "six great goals": Welfare reform; prosperity in peacetime; restoration and enhancement of our natural environment; improved health care; strengthening of state governments through revenue sharing; restructuring of the Executive Branch of the Federal Government.

The recommendations the White House will send to Congress in furtherance of these goals will be numerous, complex, controversial. Although designed to offer leadership and guidance, they are unlikely to quicken the legislative pace on Capitol Hill. The President wants very much to light a fire under Congress . . . urge governors, mayors, citizens to prod Senators and Representatives to act promptly on his proposals. In his eagerness for action, he seems to be putting too many logs on the fire and could be smoked out.

State of the Union
Traditionally, the annual State of the Union address of a President defines the condition in which the nation finds itself. Ordinarily the speech itself is intended to be a rallying force for the correction of ills. President Nixon's message failed to spell out details of the critical fundamental problems for which he will offer solutions.

And, while the President did make a bid for public support to achieve the six great goals he outlined, he gave practically no hint of the discipline and sacrifice which will be required to reach them. He did indicate hope of effecting a better rapport between the Administration and Congress, thus setting the stage for compromises in some areas.

PRICES AND WAGES
In his message the President skirted the thorny issue of wage and price escalations as well as unemployment. But he put himself and his Administration squarely behind the idea of an expansionary (deficit) budget as a principal tool in achieving his goal of prosperity in peacetime . . . a move not calculated to endear him to conservatives.

He said nothing about White House jawboning, gave no hint of what he would do if management fails to curb excessive price boosts, labor unions don't scale down big raises. However, the staff of Babson's Reports feels Mr. Nixon will follow up his steel-price-rise warning with sharper criticism of future extra-large price and wage advances.

SOCIAL SECURITY, WELFARE, REVENUE SHARING

The Nixon Welfare Reform—Family Assistance package will finally make it through Congress this year, probably being enacted in tandem with the bill to increase social security benefits by at least 5 percent, up the monthly minimum to $100. But passage won't come before spring, perhaps not until mid-year, for 1971 Congress pace will be slow.

Revenue sharing with states and cities is another matter. Congress is reluctant to forfeit control over funds shared, leans

Bleach Bottle Uses
There are dozens of uses the outdoors woman can make of empty bleach bottles.

Cut off the tops of three different sizes and they make excellent emergency bowls that fit, one inside the other, for easy storage. They are light but strong and can be used as mixing bowls or for refrigerator storage.

Men find the old plastic bottles ideal as scoops or for bailing water from the boat. It all depends on the way you slice it.

Austin, Tex.—Legislators face a week of major decisions.

Before the House are key portions of Gov. Preston Smith's finance plan. House followed the Senate in hurrying to a vote the proposal to lift the $80 million a year welfare spending lid.

An emergency $49.4 million deficit spending bill to avert a welfare crisis is perhaps their biggest problem today.

A four-fifth vote of both houses is required to suspend the Texas constitution's "pay as you go" requirement and permit lawmakers to go into the red for the balance of this fiscal year—which ends in August.

If legislators decline to take this route, they must pass a tax bill to raise the money by March 1. To place a revenue-raising measure into immediate effect would require passage by a two-thirds majority.

Alternative is reduction in welfare benefits by early spring.

Another matter being moved to an early showdown is Governor Smith's proposal to float a $450 million state bond issue secured by income from permanent school fund revenue diversion. Both bond issue and tapping of school land lease money would require constitutional amendments.

Regardless of the House vote on the bond issue, Lt. Gov. Ben Barnes sizes up Senate sentiment toward it as cold.

Mood of both houses appears to favor early passage of code of ethics legislation.

If Governor Smith's finance program doesn't fare better than he anticipates, Barnes says, he will ask House Speaker Gus Mutscher to join him in urging the Governor to submit some alternatives.

COURTS SPEAK

Third Court of Civil Appeals here turned down the plan of the Fredericksburg Community Savings and Loan Association to provide mobile service to Burnet, Bandera, Kimble, Llano and Mason counties via trailer.

Third Court also affirmed the savings and loan commissioner's decision to grant a charter to Matagorda County Savings and Loan Association in Bay City.

An April 7 hearing is set in the Third Court on the Sharpstown Bank of Houston dispute with an insurance company over a performance bond to insure repayment of a loan.

Mustang Island park purchase—whether State Parks and Wildlife Commission has authority to spend $4.2 million in state and federal funds for the property—has been the subject of a lengthy hearing in the federal district court at Austin for two weeks.

life Commission has authority to spend $4.2 million in state and federal funds for the property—has been the subject of a lengthy hearing in the federal district court at Austin for two weeks.

NEW CAR INSURANCE PLAN OFFERED

Auto insurance agents in a hearing before the Insurance Board proposed "a much better insurance package" at a reduced cost.

But a spokesman acknowledged no actuarial studies have been made to back up their claim.

While their plan keeps present liability coverage, it also would extend unlimited medical expense benefits to the insured regardless of who is at fault in accidents. It would replace up to 60 per cent of wages lost due to accident injuries to maximum of $250 a week, and provide death and dismemberment coverage.

Although all of the above (proposed as mandatory coverage in each policy) would increase costs, agents claimed the overall premium would be reduced if $150 deductible damage coverage was substituted for $50 and $100 deductible.

AG OPINIONS

A Justice of the Peace is not authorized or required to present the state's case, or undertake representation of the state's interest, in any matter before him, Atty. Gen. Crawford C. Martin has held.

In another recent opinion, Martin concluded that the El Paso county treasurer is duty bound to countersign checks signed by the county auditor when the commissioners court orders money transferred from the general fund to a special bank account for disbursement by check to welfare recipients.

However, said Martin, the treasurer may refer checks to the commissioners court for direction.

Martin obtained a $1000 judgment against Proler Steel Corporation of El Paso as the result of an air pollution suit.

FEDERAL HELP LAUDED
Word that the Secretary of Interior has announced the availability of more than $2 million to the State of Texas for fish and wildlife research in 1971 was greeted with enthusiasm by E. A. (Gene) Walker, director of Wildlife Services for the State.

Texas has participated in the Federal-State wildlife program since 1937 and the Sport Fish restoration project since 1950.

"This is the backbone of the work program in Wildlife and Fisheries," said Walker, "and the results of this basic research has provided tremendous increases in hunting and fishing opportunities for the people of this state."

As an example Walker cited the fact that Texas has more deer than any other state; larger bag limits and longer seasons on quail . . . just to mention a few of the benefits made possible by Federal financial assistance.

The Lone Star State will receive $1,538,500 in wildlife funds and $653,750 for fish restoration.

Money for wildlife research is derived from the 11 per cent excise tax on sporting arms and ammunition. Funds for fish projects come from a levy of 10 percent on sport fishing equipment.

Appropriation is made available through the Interior's Bureau of Sport Fisheries and Wildlife. Formula for appropriating hinges on the number of hunting and fishing licenses issued in the State.

Money also can be used for purchase of land and water for wildlife and public use.

TREASURE DISPLAY URGED

An interim committee advised the Legislature in a written report to direct permanent display of treasure recovered from ancient Spanish galleons off Padre Island.

Actual ownership still is the subject of a dispute in court. Platoro Inc. of Gary Ind., which recovered the artifacts, won a decision in the Fifth Court of Appeals that it had a valid claim with the state for a 50-50 share of the treasure.

House interim committee on housing the treasure concluded it should become the property of the permanent school fund, and transferred around the state in a mobile unit occasionally, so school children can see it in their own communities.

REGISTRATION EXTENSION VOTED

A bill to extend voter registration through February sailed through the Senate 27-1 but ran into a delay in the House.

Another Senate bill passed to the House would provide for precinct-by-precinct reporting of statewide election returns to the secretary of state.

Still another would change the name of Pan American College, Edinburg to Pan American University.

SHORT SNORTS

A new Senate bill would require advance permits and strict security and health standards for rock festivals in rural areas where more than 5000 people are expected to remain 12 hours or longer.

Charles G. Scruggs of Dallas was nominated for the Texas Tech University board of regents.

A Senate study committee recommended a state open housing law.

Bills call for establishment of a University of South Texas at Corpus Christi and a University of Houston branch at Clear Lake.

Top state leaders will address the third biennial legislative forum on United Community Services here on February 9.

Texas is recovering from the credit crunch (tight money) of 1968-70, according to a University of Texas Bureau of Business Research study.

Air Pollution One Enemy of Hosiery

See how they run is the frustrating slogan for many panty hose wearers. But help may be on the way, announces Jeanne Thurber, clothing consumer education specialist at Texas A&M University.

The major hose makers plan to adopt standardized charts this winter. Eventually, any woman who knows her correct weight and height can count on a proper fit.

Hose producers also speculate that uniform sizing will prevent runs that often result in ill-fitting hose.

Air pollution is another enemy of hose. In foggy or especially damp weather mixed with smog, women's hosiery develops excessive holes and runs.

To insure good performance for hosiery now on the market, proper care is important. Care begins with care of feet and legs. Rough heels or toe nails that are too long can snag or run your hose.

Laundry hose often, using mild suds and rinsing well. Roll in a towel and gently squeeze to remove excess water. To dry, hang hose on a smooth rod or use clothespin-type hangers. Double back legs over the rods to prevent stretching from weight of the water.

To launder by machine, use the gentle or delicate wash cycle. It is wise to use a nylon mesh bag to hold panty hose. Never use chlorine bleach.

THE "IN" METAL

Sixteen denominations of pure nickel and nickel alloy coins were introduced by seven different countries in 1968 to replace coins previously struck in silver.

HEALTH COLUMN

What are your chances of being injured in an accident involving some consumer product this year?

If you are a male between the ages of 5 and 24, working or playing at home with some consumer product between 3:00 and 9:00 p. m. on a Saturday or a Sunday, you probably should take greater care to avoid potential accidents. That could be of the lessons learned from the 1970 Product Safety Report issued by the U. S. Department of Health, Education and Welfare. The report is designed to furnish information concerning the types and severity of injuries, with particular emphasis on identification of consumer products usually involved or associated with those injuries.

The products most frequently involved in injuries are, in descending order: bicycles, nails, kitchen knives, tables, beds, playground equipment, chairs, snow skis, non-prescription drugs, glass bottles, metal containers, ladders, power saws, prescription drugs, and drinking glasses. Also mentioned, but in less frequent numbers, are: clothes dryers, washers, stoves, and ovens, power lawn mowers and chain saws.

According to the statistics, almost one-half of the injured persons are under 15 years of age. And nearly 60 percent of them are males. Almost 70 percent of the accidents are reported to have occurred in and around the home.

J. M. Doughty, Jr., a Texas Health Department official, says these figures should not be viewed as reflecting all the consumer products accidents occurring across the country last year. They are, however, good indicators as to the type of products

Computers for the Grocery Store

A computer for checkouts at the grocery store, which would mean speedier checkouts and savings for the consumer, has been demonstrated for the U. S. Department of Agriculture, announces Gwendolyn Clyatt, Extension specialist in consumer marketing.

The computerized checkout system was demonstrated by Virginia Knauer, Presidential Assistant for Consumer Affairs, at the Agricultural Research Office of the USDA. It is the first working trial model.

The system consists of an electronic scanner, held over the product that reads the code label and records the price, name, amount and other identifying data about the item. The computer receives a detailed list of items purchased, prices, tax, and number of stamps due. The computer records this information and maintains an inventory by name and automatic ordering information for shelf replacement. It does not, however, handle fresh produce—items such as lettuce or unpackaged carrots.

involved, who is involved, and when and where they occur.

Almost 50 percent of the injuries reported occurred between noon and 6:00 p. m., and more than one-third occurred between 6:00 p. m. and midnight. Each day of the week ranked almost equal in the number of accidents occurring on that particular day, although Saturday and Sundays showed a slight increase.

THE FAMILY LAWYER

Clean Water Laws

One-and-a-half centuries ago, the poet Byron wrote: "Till taught by pain, men really know not what good water's worth."

Today, taught by the pain of pollution in a thousand lakes and streams, we are becoming acutely aware of what good water's worth. Clean water laws are being enacted with new urgency and enforced with new vigor.

Yet, serious objections may be raised by those who are affected adversely. How do the courts look upon such objections.

To begin with, there are indeed limits as to how far the government can go in fighting pollution. Take this case:

A state water commission tried to halt the discharge of sewage into a certain river. But the sewage was being discharged so far from the nearest community, under such carefully controlled conditions, that the chance of any harm to public health was almost nil.

Under these circumstances, a court ruled that the water commission was overstepping its authority. The court felt that even when they impose real hardship on a particular city, a particular industry, or a particular individual.

Consider the case of a factory owner who had been discharging raw pollutants into a local brook. When a new law banned this practice, he took the matter to court.

"I don't challenge the law itself," he said. "But the fact is that because of the ban, my factory is suddenly worth about $100,000 less than it was before."

Protecting Your Reputation

A consumer has the right, since January 23, to review information concerning himself on file in credit-reporting agencies, announces Mrs. Doris Myers, Extension specialist in home management at Texas A&M University.

The new legislation passed by Congress states that anyone refused employment, credit or insurance because of a bad credit report must automatically receive the names and addresses of the reporting agencies.

The law also gives the consumer the right to require correction of any false information in his credit files. If the consumer disputes the information, the agency must re-investigate. The consumer also has the right to sue for damages resulting from negligence on the part of the credit-reporting agency.

Anyone who deliberately obtains information from a consumer-reporting agency under false pretenses will be violating

Why shouldn't the government reimburse me for that loss? Otherwise, this is taking private property without compensation, which is unconstitutional."

However, the court denied his claim, saying this was not a "taking" in the constitutional sense.

"The design is not to take property for public use," said the court. "It is to regulate the use of property so as to protect the common right of all citizens."

federal criminal law. An officer or employee of the agency who knowingly makes unauthorized disclosures of confidential information from a consumer's file will also be violating federal criminal law.

The best safeguard a consumer can make is to be sure he has a good credit rating by making payments on time. A few late payments won't be considered a poor credit risk, but chronic late payments sometimes are reported against a consumer.

HIGH PRESSURE

Mr., Mrs. McKnight Return From Trip To Nassau, Bahamas

Mr. and Mrs. Troy McKnight returned home Monday night following a four-day trip to Nassau, Bahamas Islands, a vacation trip awarded by Funk Seed Co. as a grand prize in a sorghum production contest.

Mr. and Mrs. McKnight joined other contest winners at Lubbock, and flew to Miami, Fla., where they boarded the Italian cruise ship, "Flavia," for the trip to the Bahamas. The ship had a crew of 432, and a tourist-guest list of 525. While at Nassau, they visited nearby Paradise Island. They returned to Miami on the cruise ship, and then returned to Lubbock aboard Braniff International 747.

McKnight was awarded a gold placard at a banquet in Lubbock recently, for a meritorious achievement in agriculture. He was "Project 25 Dry Land" grand prize and area winner for 1970, producing 3,174 pounds of sorghum grain per acre on 25 acres.

County Agent's Column

Tree Care: The removal of dead, dying, or unwanted trees from your property is much easier to do during the winter months. Tree service companies usually give fast attention to orders at this time of the year and if you are a do-it-yourself gardener, chances are good you have more time for the job, points out County Agent Parker.

Soil conditions and plant growth habits also favor tree removal during the winter months. Since most deciduous trees are now without leaves the debris can be removed with less damage to lawns and nearby shrubbery.

The removal of a large tree is a job for the expert tree man. Unless you have the proper tools and skills for handling the job, it is better to contact a local tree service man who is trained in tree removal work. An improperly felled tree, points out the county agent, can cause untold damage to your home or to a neighbor's property.

Get acquainted with the plants which are available in the area before plant purchases are made, suggests Parker. Often times, he adds, native plants or those with a long record of successful use are much better buys than those of which little is known.

Homeowners working on a limited budget should first obtain the trees needed in the landscape plan since more time is required for them to reach a productive size. Within reasonable limits, select the largest trees available for the money to be spent. Resist the temptation to use all fast growing trees for many are relatively short lived whereas slower growing kinds are usually more desirable and live longer, points out the county agent.

And don't overplant, he adds, for small plants in time will reach the same size as mature plants of the same species and variety.

It must be remembered that newly planted trees and shrubs require at least one year to overcome the shock of being moved and adjust to the new location. If they do not receive proper maintenance, the adjustment may take even longer.

For best results landscape plants should be obtained from established nurseries in the local area. Local nurserymen can advise as to what plants do best in the area and can aid in the selection of unusual plants.

It's a good idea, believes the county agent, for prospective plant purchasers to visit nurseries and garden centers in order to become familiar with what is available and how the plants will fit into the landscape plans. The county agent also noted that planting lists and other publications on home landscaping are available from the county Extension Service office.

Pastures and Rangelands: While this may not be the best time to control brush and weeds on pastures and rangelands, it is a good time to make plans for the months ahead, advises county agent C. T. Parker, Jr.

He notes that brush and weed control must be considered as the fifth principle of range management if it is to have lasting benefits. The first four are proper kinds of grazing animals, proper season of use, proper distribution and the right stocking rate.

The most successful brush and weed control program must be planned to cover a period of years in order to allow for grass re-establishment and range improvement, explains the county agent.

Uncontrolled brush and weed are suggested for strategically located areas throughout the ranch to allow for food and cover for game animals and birds. Plants which are beneficial to wildlife should be left and the area developed into a wildlife-livestock habitat.

Improper brush and weed control can be detrimental. Entire pastures should be treated to keep grazing animals from concentrating on the controlled areas within a single pasture.

Maintenance control practices should be started three to five years after initial treatment to control re-invading brush and weeds, advises the county agent.

Persons interested in brush and control practices are invited to visit the county agent's office for information and publications on the subject.

Cattle lice may not create much of a problem in the warm months but it's different story during the winter season, reminds county agent Parker. Closer confinement aids the spread of lice from infected to clean animals.

By the time the parasites are easily seen, much of their damage may already be done. The time to treat livestock for lice is while the infestations are light, says the county agent. Four species of lice suck blood from cattle and one feeds on hair and scales. Cattle infested with lice have a rough course appearance and do not make normal gains. The pests, explains the county agent, are more abundant during the winter and spring when the hair of livestock is long.

Because of the restrictions of the use of the various insecticides available for use on cattle, the county agent suggests that persons interested, come by his office for a listing of the approved materials.

He noted that he also has available information on many other subjects dealing with the use of chemicals in agriculture.

19 Bighorns Were Released In Black Gap Area

Marathon — Biologists this week released 19 desert bighorn sheep to fend for themselves on the Texas Parks and Wildlife Department's Black Gap Wildlife Management Area.

The sheep were a portion of a 68-animal herd kept in a protective 427-acre holding pen. Biologists have been experimenting with re-establishing bighorns in the Trans-Pecos where they had become extinct.

Trapping bighorns for the experiment began in 1956 in Arizona, and in 1959, nine sheep, including four rams and five ewes, were brought to the Black Gap Area.

Of the nine original animals, three died, but the others were able to reproduce and bring the herd to its current level.

Wildlife personnel carefully studied the animals and believe the ones they released have a good chance of surviving without the protective fence. They plan to release several more ewes.

A major problem facing animals both in the wild and within the enclosure is bluetongue, a gnat-spread disease which was at one time common in domestic and wild sheep. Since bluetongue was responsible for the death of several bighorns, several lambs have been taken from the area to Texas A. & M. University for experimental inoculation. It is hoped that the experiments will lead to the bighorns developing an immunity to this disease.

Potatoes: How good is a potato? Just as good as you make it, says Mrs. O'Connor. The potato adapts to a number of serving methods to fit the palate of just about everyone.

And you'll find plentiful supplies of potatoes on the market now, she said.

Egg and Potato Scallop
1 cup thin white sauce, 1 tablespoon minced parsley, salt and pepper to taste, 2 or 3 medium-size cooked potatoes, sliced, 4 to 6 hard-cooked eggs, sliced soft bread crumbs.

Make white sauce, then add parsley, salt and pepper. Place alternate layers of potatoes and eggs in a greased baking dish and pour the white sauce over. Sprinkle with bread crumbs. Bake at 375 degrees for 15 to 20 minutes. Makes four servings.

Potato Strips with Cheese
3 cups raw potato strips (cut as for French fries) 1-2 cup milk, 1 tablespoon finely cut parsley, 1 tsp. salt, pepper, 1-2 cup thinly shaved process cheese.

Put the strips into a greased baking dish and pour the milk over them. Dot with butter or margarine and sprinkle with salt and pepper. Cover and bake in a 425 degree oven for 40 minutes, or until the potatoes are tender. Sprinkle with cheese and parsley and bake, covered for five minutes more. Serves four.

Fried Sweet-Sour Potatoes
4 slices bacon, 2 1/2 to 3 cups diced raw potatoes, 1/4 cup

...about your SOCIAL SECURITY

Wondering how to speed up that first social security check? Be prepared, says J. M. Talbot, social security manager.

For instance, one thing you should bring with you when you apply for benefits is evidence of the amount you earned last year. The evidence usually most readily available is your 1970 W-2 form. By having this on hand when you apply for benefits, you speed the processing of your application.

There is another reason for having your W-2 form handy when you first apply. All of your earnings for 1970 will not be credited until late in 1971. By supplying the W-2 form, you insure that you get the highest possible benefit based on your recent earnings.

Of course, there are other things necessary to see that your application is processed as rapidly as possible. A good idea is to phone or write your social security office and ask exactly what you will need. You may be able to handle the whole matter by phone.

Contact the Social Security Office at 3000 West Harris Avenue (P. O. Box 3808) in San Angelo, Texas, or see the representative when he is in your area. Persons who are unable to meet with the representative are encouraged to call the office in San Angelo. The telephone number is 949-4608.

THE FAMILY LAWYER

Trudging absentmindedly along the sidewalk, George failed to notice a car backing down a driveway. Result: he stepped in the path of the car and was injured. In short order he sued the motorist for damages, blaming him for driving across a sidewalk without looking.

But at the trial, the motorist said: "I wasn't looking, but neither was he. If I was negligent, he was too."

However, the court found no negligence on George's part and granted his claim. The judge said:

"It is the common experience of tired humanity to become immersed in thought and oblivious to one's surroundings, when travelling in a place of known safety. Therein lies no want of ordinary care."

Not every court would be so tolerant of a pedestrian's daydreaming. But it is true that the law does, by and large, look kindly on the pedestrian. It does not expect the same level of alertness from him as it demands from the motorist.

But she also admitted that she had seen the crack in time to step over it. To the court this meant that she had simply misjudged the length of her step. Dismissing the case, the judge said she had no one to blame but herself.

Texas Oysters Fat And Plentiful

Austin—The Texas oyster harvest is off and running and fresh oysters are in excellent supply, according to Parks and Wildlife Department biologists and industry spokesmen. It is reported that they are extremely plump and juicy this year due to favorable water conditions in the various oyster-producing bay systems.

The winter months have always been the best time to purchase fresh oysters. This is because water temperatures are cold, and the oysters have prepared themselves for winter by gaining weight. Later in spring, when water temperatures rise above 75 degrees Fahrenheit, oysters begin to spawn, and stress from this activity causes them to lose much of their winter fat.

Oyster-on-the-half-shell fanciers are reminded that they can eat Texas oysters with complete confidence, since dealers are required to meet strict quality and sanitation requirements imposed by the State Department of Health. Oysters can legally be taken only from those waters certified to be clean and free from harmful contaminants.

Shucking plants are inspected regularly, and each plant is issued a certification number which must be affixed to every container of marketable oysters from that plant. This number is the consumer's final assurance of wholesomeness.

To judge for yourself just how wholesome fresh Texas oysters are this winter, try them soon on the half-shell, or in your favorite recipe for oyster stew. If you're having guests, you can make believers of them all with the following recipe called "Angels on Horseback":

One 12 oz. jar fresh oysters
2 tablespoons chopped parsley
1/2 teaspoon salt
1/2 teaspoon paprika
1/2 teaspoon pepper
10 slices bacon, cut in thirds
Drain oysters and sprinkle with parsley and seasonings. Wrap bacon strip around each oyster and secure with toothpick. Place oysters on broiler pan and broil about 4 inches from heat for 8 to 10 minutes. Turn carefully and broil 4 to 5 minutes longer or until bacon is crisp. Makes approximately 30 hors d'oeuvres.

Win-Tex Cattle Pens Filling On Schedule

The feeding pens of Win-Tex Cattle Feeders, Inc., are filling with cattle according to schedule, a spokesman for the company said this week.

It is expected that the pens will be full by March. Capacity of the feeding pens, located northwest of Winters, is about 8,000 head of feeder cattle.

The first turn-out or end of the first cycle of feeding will be about the middle of April, it was estimated.

Feeding pens and facilities of Win-Tex Cattle Feeders are some of the most modern in this section of the state.

Weather is important to some fishermen, unimportant to others.

Some anglers will go out only when the temperature is a comfortably cool 55 degrees. Others don't care whether it's 28 or 98.

Anglers who feel that conditions must be "just right" do catch fish. . . and the "I don't care" fellows do, too. So what's the answer?

I don't know the right answer; nor do I think many other anglers do either. But I'm inclined to agree that the best time to go fishing is right now. So, if you want to fish, get gone, regardless of rain, sunshine, heat or cold.

Fish, wherever they are, and whatever kind they be—fresh water, salt water—perch, bass, stream trout, Gulf trout, king, ling, redds, whites, red snapper—every living one of them has to eat.

And that's when they hit your bait, be the "food" live shrimp or dead squid, live minnows or plastic ones, or artificials—like plastic worms, top-waters, spinners or such hardware as spoons. . . large and small.

Get with it, if you want to fish and just disregard the weather. We've had great success in below freezing temperatures. Many times when we went after "whites" below the dam we had to break the ice that formed in the line guides, time and time again as the line froze solid in the rings.

On the other hand we've had great success on the hottest days catching black bass in a blazing sun on lakes and on ponds. Also, we've taken salt water fish on the hottest of days in the bays as well as far off shore in the Gulf of Mexico.

Furthermore, we've had great success trout fishing in the mid-day heat in summertime Wyoming, Montana and Colorado where it was supposed to be good.

It's not unusual for anglers in the cold climates to cut holes in the ice to do their fishing.

We renege—fish have to eat! Your first job is to find the fish, then serve them the "food" of their choice for that day, that year, maybe even for just that minute.

We've had wonderful success when it was so cold, even with gloves on, that we could hardly hold the rod; and when it was so doggone hot we had to mop the brow after every cast.

And we're just a common, ordinary fisherman who loves the outdoors and likes the challenge of angling.

Nope, we don't have "tremendous success" every day out. No siree! We've had our share of "dry runs." These too, happen to most everyone. But there is fun in fishing! It's relaxing, it's nerve settling. And, when you do land a few of those flip-tails it's a great thrill.

Then along comes a lunker and takes your bait—and whether or not there will ever be another day, that day was great.

Youths Need Gun Safety Training

Austin — Younsters sporting new guns after Christmastime need more instruction than just how to load and fire them.

Texas Parks and Wildlife Department officials remind Texans that even the smallest single-shot .22 can be a deadly weapon, so parents who give firearms to youngsters should be sure they are familiar with safe gun handling.

A formal firearms handling course would be appropriate; where this is not possible, some individual instruction from an experienced shooter might fill the bill.

Also, the youngster fry should not be allowed to use guns except when accompanied by a responsible adult. Guns and ammunition should be locked up when not in use.

Another reminder to weekend plinkers of all ages: only four species of birds remain on the "unprotected" list. They are the English sparrow, raven, starling and crow.

A new gun can be a source of pride and continuing pleasure for the young sportsman if he tempers its use with an awareness for gun safety.

BIRTH ANNOUNCEMENT

Mr. and Mrs. Donald Roach of Fort Worth are announcing the birth of a daughter, Kristin Denise, born in Fort Worth February 3, 1971. The girl weighed 7 pounds, 6 ounces. Maternal grandparents are Mr. and Mrs. H. F. Gerhart of Winters. Paternal grandparents are Mr. and Mrs. Earl Roach of Winters.

Car Tags Went On Sale Monday

Automobile registration tags for 1971 went on sale Monday, and Mrs. Ted Meyer, deputy at the Runnels County Tax Collector's sub-office in Winters, said business opened briskly.

Owners registering vehicles need only present the registration card they received through the mail recently to register and obtain tags. In the event registration cards were not received, title must be brought to the tax office.

Passenger vehicle tags issued from the Winters sub-office are pre-fixed HXR, HXS, and HXT, Mrs. Meyer said.

several longer weekends to those comparatively few people in governmental offices and a few civilian spots.

We're talking about George Washington's birthday, traditionally celebrated on February 22. This year, George's "birthday" will fall on February 15, instead of the 22nd. Next year it'll probably fall on February 14, so that it will be a Monday.

It may be a bit difficult to get used to—some of the other holidays this year will be changed, too—but February 15 is really closer to the correct date of George's birthday. Old George was really born on February 11, 1732, but that was just a few years before everybody got together and whacked 11 days off the calendar, presumably to make up for an accumulative error of about a day in space every 128 years. Leap year is supposed to take care of the error most of the time nowadays—since the Gregorian calendar became popular. But give us another thousand or so years, and we'll have to make another change. . . that is, unless the Congress, on pressure from small minority bureau sources, decrees that George will just have to celebrate his birthday on another day, for the sake of convenience. May even end up sometime in the summer.

As participants in the Texas Electric Cooperatives Youth Tour, local contest winners will travel by chartered bus to Washington, D. C., where they will spend four days visiting places of historical interest and seeing the nation's government in action.

On Wednesday, June 17th, the Texas group will meet more than 1,000 students from other states for a program sponsored by the National Rural Electric Cooperative Association and the Rural Electrification Administration. The program will feature presentation by officials of these organizations and other Washington personalities and possibly the Presidential staff.

The eventful day will end with a chartered cruise down the Potomac River which will include entertainment and refreshments.

Also included on the 12 day agenda will be visits to the following: George Washington's Mount Vernon home, Arlington National Cemetery, the U. S. House and Senate, the U. S. Department of Agriculture, the Smithsonian Institute, the Lincoln Memorial and other places of interest.

Automobile travel is getting to be a calculated risk.

Co-Op To Sponsor Youth Tours To Washington

Expense paid trips to the nation's capitol city will be awarded winners of an essay contest was announced this week by Mr. C. L. Newton, manager of the Coleman County Electric Cooperative.

Contest is open to any boy or girl at least 16 years of age but not 18 years of age prior to September 1, 1971. Mr. Newton said. Winners will join winners of similar contest sponsored by other electric cooperatives across Texas on the annual Texas Electric Cooperatives Government-in-Action Youth Tour to Washington, D. C. All expenses of the 12 day trip beginning June 11 will be paid by the Coleman County Electric Cooperative, Newton said.

Each entrant will be required to submit a 1,000 to 1,500 word essay on the subject "A Youth Looks at His Community". Each essay will be thoroughly judged by a qualified panel of judges on the basis of neatness, originality, and knowledge of the subject.

Interested young people may obtain an official entry blank from their school or the offices of Coleman County Electric Cooperative. The deadline for submitting entries will be midnight March 31, 1971.
