HOME TOWN Talk

By R. C. THOMAS

Little did the sponsors of the drive to form a rural water system for North Runnels County realize the extent of interest which would be displayed. At the first meeting Tuesday of last week, at which the proposal was laid out, residents quickly grabbed the reins and started running. Meetings in several communities were planned, and then another big meeting was planned for Next Monday night in the Winters Community Center.

Then on Tuesday afternoon of this week—one week after the idea was originally broached—members of the steering committee met to organize, make plans for collection of initial fees for the corporation, and set deadlines for sign-up.

Water seems to be on everyone's mind, and the rains which came last week did nothing to dampen the enthusiasm, even though they raised drought-depressed spirits. From the atmosphere developed by this proposal, it is predictable that there will be established in this area a water system designed to provide good water to everyone . . . and it will not be long in coming.

If you, as a rural resident, have not been contacted for your opinion—or your sign-up fee—seek out those leaders of your particular community who are pushing the project. And if your community has not already organized itself for this, contact others and the sponsors. Even though a steering committee will work out the administrative details and start the ball rolling, the entire project will require the untiring efforts of all concerned. It is needless to say that an area which has access to plenty of water will be the prosperous area . . . we can't afford to drop the ball on this one! And besides that, it will not mean any additional taxes!

Strange how a change in the weather will cause a change in people's vein of humor. We haven't heard a dry weather joke all week. A lot of people have even stopped cussin' the Republicans.

Our old Bluff Creek farmer friend was missed around town for three days following last week's rains, and some of his cronies were worried about him. They knew the creek didn't rise enough to keep him from getting to town—all the water soaked in. So a search was made. He was finally found, sitting on the creek bank with his feet in the water and a dazed expression on his face. As they gently led him up to the house, he kept muttering, "I kept tellin' 'em!" City Council Takes Look At Water Situation

Winters City Council last Thursday took another long look at the city's water supply in the Winters Lake, and moved to head off possible serious water shortages, "in the event lake-filling rains are not received by June 1."

In a called meeting last Thursday, the Council heard a report of a special water measurement conducted Thursday morning by the Water Department, and passed a resolution which would curtail water usage after June 1.

Mayor Wade White said—after studying the report—that there was no immediate danger of a water shortage, but that the Council felt that steps should be taken to prevent a shortage if rains are not forthcoming.

Mayor White said Saturday that the lake received very little water" following the rains which fell in the area Thursday night and Friday of last week. A "hard rain" in the lake's watershed is needed to put more water in the lake, he said.

The mayor said the water in the lake was measured Thursday morning by City personnel. The report indicated that there are 200 acres under water, averaging 1-2 feet. Making allowances for normal evaporation, he said available water depth would be 4 1-2 feet, or 900 acre feet of usable water. This would give the city 300 million gallons of water, he said.

The mayor also said that annual water consumption is about 200 million gallons; consumption in 1970 was under normal, he said, with only 140 million gallons used. Present indications are that there is a 300 day supply available, he said.

However, to be on the "safe" side, the Council passed a resolution which would place the following restrictions on water usage:

1. If the lake has not received a reasonable amount of water by June 1, 1971, an ordinance would be passed doubling water rates.
2. Request limitations of water usage by industrial users.
3. Restrict yard water to two days a week.

Rabid Skunks Are Found In Winters, DANGER IS NOTED

At least two skunks, one of them known to be rabid, have been in contact with dogs in Winters within the past few days, Chief of Police Joe Stevens said this week.

Stevens said he was notified last week that a skunk was in a yard with dogs in the southwest section of town. The skunk was killed and the head was sent to Austin for examination. Subsequent report indicated that the skunk had rabies, the Chief of Police said. The dogs apparently had not been bitten by the skunk, he said, but were confined and are being kept under observation.

A few days prior to that, Stevens said, a skunk came in contact with a mother dog and several pups. The skunk bit the mother dog and some of the pups several times, but was not caught. The dogs all were destroyed, he said.

Several days ago a housewife in the southwest section of town reported seeing a skunk in the alley, "apparently sick." The animal escaped before it could be caught or killed, however.

Chief Stevens warned all residents to be on the lookout for skunks—or other animals such as coons and opossums—and to report any sightings. He also warned all dog owners should make sure their dogs are vaccinated against rabies.

Rural Water Meet Monday

A second meeting of all residents of North Runnels County, to discuss the proposed rural water system, will be held Monday, April 26, at 8 p. m., in the Winters Community Center.

C. T. Parker, Runnels County Agriculture Agent, one of the sponsors of the proposal, said additional information would be available regarding the proposed project. He said a representative of the Farm Home Administration, would be present with more information on the methods of financing a rural water system. Also, he said, an engineer familiar with such projects, is expected to be present.

Several communities of North Runnels County already have held public meetings in their own areas to sound out residents concerning the proposal, and others are planned. Communities have been in process of naming members to an overall steering committee to work for the water development project. Others probably will be named within a few days.

The first meeting, held Tuesday afternoon of last week, was held at the Winters City Hall. About 75 people attended the initial meeting, at which the rural water system proposal was explained. Those attending the meeting indicated a high interest in the project, and interim steering committee members were named at that time to begin formal organization procedures.

Briefly, the rural water system project proposed for North Runnels County would mean organization of a non-profit corporation, along the lines of REA, which would contract for purchase of water from such sources as the Coleman Lake, and perhaps Brownwood Lake, lay water distribution lines throughout the entire area of North Runnels County. Such a project would be financed through 40-year loans from the Farm Home Administration.

No additional taxes would be involved, it was explained at the meeting last week; the water corporation would not have taxing powers.

A small initial joining fee would be paid by rural residents, and the water would be purchased at minimum rates from the corporation. The corporation would be administered by local residents elected by the members of the corporation to the board of directors.

A similar project is underway in the south part of Runnels County. Also, according to Fay Brown of the FHA office in Coleman, FHA has financed about 1,000 such projects, affecting many thousands of rural residents over the country.

The need for additional water supplies was brought out in the meeting last week, when it was noted that adequate water has reached a critical stage in this area, and sources of additional water must be found immediately. Reports indicate that water supplies in North Runnels County are becoming more and more contaminated by salts, nitrates and other impurities.

HATCHEL WATER MEETING

A meeting will be held at the Hatchel Church of Christ Thursday, April 29, at 8 p. m. for purposes of discussing the proposed North Runnels Water Corporation. All residents of the Hatchel Community are urged to attend.

Farmers and ranchers of North Runnels County may now sign applications for membership in the proposed rural water system for the area.

The steering committee which was formed at the initial meeting last week to work for organization of a water corporation met this week and organized, and immediately announced that rural residents may make application now for membership in the corporation.

Application blanks may be obtained at the Winters Chamber of Commerce office, from the County Agriculture Agent's office, any member of the steering committee, or from The Security State Bank at Wingate, which has been designated as the official depository of the organization. Checks should be payable to the North Runnels Water Corporation.

Applications, along with membership fee check, should be forwarded to Press Galloway, Secretary-Treasurer, The Security State Bank, Wingate, Texas.

Initial membership fee will be $100 per meter, in accordance with rules set forth by the Farmers Home Administration, which will finance the corporation after it is legally formed.

A June 4 deadline for making application was set by the steering committee, in order that preliminary organizational work and engineering surveys may be made prior to August, when requests for FHA loans and approval by various agencies will be sought. It was explained that this sign-up time was much longer than the two weeks period allowed for a similar system in South Runnels.

All moneys collected during this sign-up period will be kept on deposit, and in the event the corporation is not formed, will be refunded.

All farmers and ranchers and other rural residents of North Runnels County, located north of the Colorado River, and some in South Taylor County, will be eligible to make application for membership. At the meeting of the steering committee Tuesday afternoon of this week, Gilmore Sanders of the Drasco-Pumphrey area was elected chairman, and LaDell Davis of east of Winters,

Chiggers Are Not On Wanted List

Austin—Even the most gung-ho of outdoorsmen probably have second thoughts about the beauty and harmony of nature when they find they have wandered into a bed of chiggers. Chiggers are not the most valuable of our woodland creatures. In the total environmental picture they surely have their place. Still, it's easy to wish that somehow we could get along without them, regardless of nature's balance.

The Texas Parks and Wildlife Department points out that chiggers, or redbugs, aren't really bugs at all—insects. They are a type of mite, and are relatives of spiders, ticks and scorpions.

With no enemies except trappers and hunters who go after them for fun and profit, and with an excellent reproductive capacity (two times a year, with litters of two to 11 young), nutrias have spread out in all directions.

Some feel that nutrias are less than welcome imports. They burrow into pond and river banks, leaving holes nine inches in diameter and as much as four feet deep.

When the rodents become overpopulated they destroy fish habitats and eat food which normally goes to migrant waterfowl.

And with their rodents' propensity for gnawing, they have destroyed crops, gnawed holes in boat bottoms and eaten foam floats on barges.

The larvae of the redbug is the one which causes all the misery, the department says. Because they are less than 1/150 of an inch in diameter, they are easy to overlook.

They wait in areas where vegetation is thick, hoping that a human, or one of the approximately 70 types of animals, birds or reptiles on which they prey will come by. Then they climb aboard, moving generally upward until they find a place where the clothing fits tightly or where the skin is thin, tender or wrinkled.

Then it's time for a three or four-day feast. Chiggers attach themselves to their hosts by inserting their mouth parts into a hair follicle or pore. Then they inject a fluid which dissolves the tissue which the chigger sucks up.

As anyone who has ever had chiggers can testify, the place where the chiggers bite turns red and itches up a storm. There also is some swelling and the flesh actually covers the chigger, giving the impression he has burrowed into the skin.

Chigger bites affect some persons more severely than others. With some there is just an itch which never seems to stop. With others there is sometimes fever.

The discomfort connected with chigger bites will develop within 24 hours after the attack, and the itching may continue for a week if not treated.

Temporary protection may be had by applying a commercial repellent to clothing, with special attention to shoe tops, stockings, cuffs, and edges of all openings.

Longer lasting protection can be had by impregnating clothing with a mixture prepared from a quart of cleaning fluid such as dimethyl phthalate and two ounces of commercial insect repellent.

In case preventive measures don't work, a dab of antiseptic applied to the welt will kill the chigger and reduce itching, at least for a short time. But the sad truth is that no treatment is known to relieve the misery instantly and completely.

Runnels County Emergency Area For Hay, Grazing

Runnels County has been designated a drought stricken area and farmers and ranchers may receive emergency aid for haying and grazing privileges.

Congressman Omar Burleson notified The Enterprise last week of the Government action to help Runnels Countians.

Paper that has become damp and then stuck to furniture (or was under a hot object) should not be scraped off. Soften by covering with olive oil. Allow it to soak and then rub off.

Nutrias Become Pest In Some Texas Areas

San Angelo — After taking East Texas like Attila the Hun, nutrias are looking for new worlds to conquer.

Nutrias, more correctly known as coypus, are already becoming pests in some West Texas areas, especially along such rivers as the Colorado and San Saba, report officials for the Texas Parks and Wildlife Department.

These obnoxious rodents were introduced into Louisiana from South America in 1938 as a fur animal. Their belly fur is equal in quality to that of beaver. Nutrias were introduced into Texas in the late 1940's and early '50's for aquatic vegetation control.

As soon as nutrias were set loose they began taking over. They are not native to the U.

LIMESTONE, MAIN—U. S. Air Force Major Minor W. Nelson, son of Mrs. A. M. Nelson of Winters, Tex., has been decorated with his second award of the Distinguished Flying Cross (DFC) and second award of the Air Medal for aerial achievement in Southeast Asia.

In the accompanying photograph, Major Nelson (left) receives the DFC and Air Medal at Loring AFB, Maine, from Major General George V. Williams, commander of the 21st Air Division.

Major Nelson earned the DFC as an F-4E Phantom fighter bomber pilot when he attacked and destroyed a fortified bunker complex strategically located in rugged mountains overlooking the Kheng Poko River in Vietnam. As a result of his actions, the enemy was neutralized and friendly forces occupied the area without sustaining casualties.

He earned his Air Medal when he led a highly successful aid support strike against a large contingent of enemy troops threatening to overrun a fire support base. Despite ground fire and mountainous terrain, he destroyed a vast quantity of supplies and equipment and forced the enemy troops to evacuate the area.

He was honored at Loring AFB where he now serves as chief of standardization and evaluation for the 27th Fighter Interceptor Squadron, a unit of the Aerospace Defense Command.

The major holds the aeronautical rating of senior pilot.

Major Nelson, a 1952 graduate of Winters High School, received a B. S. degree in agriculture in 1956 from Texas Technological University. He was commissioned there through the Air Force Reserve Officers Training Corps program and is a member of Phi Delta Theta.

The major and his wife, Robby Dale, daughter of B. M. Davis of Kilgore, Tex., have two children, Kirk M., 12, and Stephanie K., 11.

SCHOOL SUPERINTENDENT'S REPORT TO BOARD

Periodically, and at the annual reorganization of the Board of Trustees of Winters Independent School district following election of trustees, the Superintendent of Schools makes a detailed report of conditions of the Winters Schools.

In the report submitted last week by Supt. Carroll Tatom, changes in tax money sources were pointed out, along with total school enrollment and other data. Supt. Tatom also drew a comparison of per pupil cost, comparing the Winters schools with other schools of similar size in the area.

The report as it was submitted to the Board of Trustees is as follows, and is published for the general knowledge of the public:

1. School budget for the 1970-71 school year is $654,605.00. Tax rate is $1.70 per $100 valuation, broken down to $1.50 for maintenance and 20 cents for bonded indebtedness. District value is $16,342,730.00, based on 48 percent of actual value.

Legal limit for maintenance tax is $1.50. Continued loss of school district values, primarily oil values, required a tax adjustment for the 1971-72 school year. Tax rate for 1971-72 has been set at $1.50 per $100 valuation. This is broken down into $1.30 for maintenance and 20 cents for bonded indebtedness. District value for 1971-72 will be approximately $20,729,000 based on 65 percent of actual value.

2. Percent of funds from State sources: 58 percent; from local sources: 42 percent.

3. Per pupil cost comparison: Winters, $542.00. Other area schools: Coleman $518, Ballinger $558, Anson $487, Hamlin $605, Stamford $534, Brady $516, Merkel $601, Haskell $513, Average $542. (Information taken from Annual Statistical Report of the Texas Education Agency, dated Fall, 1970).

4. Bonded indebtedness will be completely paid during the 1971-72 school year. December, 1971 payment, $41,800.00. December, 1972 payment, $40,600.00.

5. Unincumbered funds in August, 1970, were $58,000. The 1970-71 budget is expected to be some $20,000 in excess of 1970-71 income.

6. Tax collections the past 8 years have been 96.30 percent of current taxes, with delinquent payments bringing the overall total is 98.51 percent.

7. Decrease in oil values has been an unpleasant factor. Ten years ago the local tax values were 64 percent oil and 36 percent local. The tax roll is now 31 percent oil and 69 percent other.

8. School employees: There are 59 certified school employees and 34 non-certified. We presently have 7 teachers above the state minimum as compared to 11 three years ago.

9. Monthly payroll: $49,825.00.

10. School enrollment: Total

951. Kindergarten, 8; primary and elementary 654; high school 297.

11. Graduation requirements: 18 credits minimum. Credits offered: 42.

12. Vocational Courses: Home Economics, Vocational Agriculture, Distributive Education and Industrial Cooperative Training.

13. Athletic Expenditures: The budget is usually about $14,000. The athletic budget has not been increased in many years, but we have had to supplement gate receipts as much as $4,500.00 per year.

14. Band expenditures have increased 85 percent the past three years over the previous three year period. In addition, $6,322.50 has been expended for additional uniforms.

15. School Accreditation: The Winters Independent School District is fully accredited with the Texas Education Agency and Southern Association of Colleges and Schools.

16. Building Needs: No major building program is necessary at the present time. The buildings are in need of a major ex-

Refreshing Rains Hit North Runnels, Farmers Ready To Hit the Fields

Long-awaited rains washed over North Runnels County—along with the rest of West Texas—last Thursday and Friday, leaving a dent in the drought which was beginning to take a foothold.

This was the first moisture of any consequence to fall on the area since last September, when 2.78 inches was recorded in Winters. October saw only .75 of an inch, December 23 of an inch, and February only .29 of an inch.

Although the drought is by no means ended, last week's rain, and a few showers which fell in the area Monday of this week, halted the dryness temporarily and gave some hope for farmers and ranchers. Most farmers, who had not already dry-planted grain sorghum, this week were only waiting for the land to dry a bit before pulling into the fields. Most of the small grain had already been considered a loss, however.

Winters proper received 2.51 inches of rainfall, according to the official weather gauges maintained by Roy Rice. Other parts of North Runnels County recorded upwards and a bit above 4 inches, 3½ inches, and some lower than Winters.

Rains which were received last week were of the "ground soaking" type, and runoff was considered low. Very little runoff from the watershed of Winters' lake was noted, and the lake remained low the first of the week.

Wild Turkeys Need Some Rainfall

San Angelo—Adult wild turkeys are finding food in the form of barley, rescue grass seeds, Mormon tea and a few types of forbs, according to George Litton, project leader in the Permian Basin for the Texas Parks and Wildlife Department.

The adult birds will likely survive the current drought without too much difficulty, but because of it the poult crop for the coming year may still be threatened.

Hackberry, cedar berry and acorns are gone, and much of the area still is dry, making nesting a question mark. Litton has seen only a few turkeys paired off, with most birds still grouped in winter flocks of all hens or all gobblers. An early hatch this year is extremely doubtful, he said.

THE FAMILY LAWYER

Plan on Dying

Some years ago a clerk in a bookstore, unpacking a shipment of new books, found one on the subject of "estate planning." Thinking it must be about the landscaping of large homes, he placed it in the gardening section.

He would hardly make that mistake today. Estate planning has come into its own, used by thoughtful people everywhere to preserve assets during their lifetime and to pass them on wisely—and economically—at death.

One reason for the growth of estate planning is the growth of estates. Nowadays even the ordinary citizen is likely to have an estate of substance. It may well include not only a home and a savings account but also personal life insurance, group insurance, stocks, pension plan benefits, profit-sharing options, and social security rights.

Another reason is that estate planning has become far more sophisticated. Its techniques have gone well beyond the traditional "testamentary trust" for a rich old lady and "spend-thrift trust" for a rich young man.

Unfortunately, there are pitfalls aplenty for the amateur planner. For example: many people think avoiding probate is the same as avoiding taxes. But the federal estate tax is based on the entire estate, whether it passes through probate or not.

Likewise, many people think life insurance is not taxable. But life insurance proceeds are included in determining a person's gross estate for federal estate tax purposes unless he has retained none of the incidents of ownership of that policy.

True, it may be sensible in certain circumstances to avoid probate. And it may be possible in certain circumstances to avoid taxes on life insurance. But clearly this is a field in which the layman needs expert help.

Much information is available from trust departments, accountants, insurance men, and investment counselors. The ultimate adviser, however, should usually be an attorney, since he alone is fully qualified to give the personal legal guidance a program should have.

Some people shrink from the thought of estate planning. But, like it or not, some plan is going to govern the care and distribution of your possessions. The plan could be yours, if you make one. If you don't, state and federal laws—oblivious of your wishes—will do it for you.

We're close to a cure for leukemia.

It's almost too good to believe. A whole crop of kids who are alive and well 5 years or more after getting a new kind of drug treatment for leukemia. And after 5 years, cancer researchers begin to hesitatingly, hopefully, talk of a permanent "cure."

Work has been going on feverishly ever since this kind of therapy was started in 1964. And each year, the children who get leukemia have a far better chance of cure than those of the year before.

The American Cancer Society plays a vital part in this exciting work. So, when our volunteer comes to your door this month, be generous. Especially if you have children. Or grandchildren.

Runnels County Aggie Muster Held Wednesday

Former students of Texas A&M in Runnels County mustered Wednesday, April 21, to mark the passing of comrades and honoring them.

The 6 p. m. meeting was held at the Ballinger City Park, with Dr. John E. Green Jr., Muster Chairman.

The Aggie Muster began April 21, 1903, and has been held annually ever since, wherever A&M men find themselves on that day. Aggies have mustered on board ship, in foxholes on the battlefield, in the Swiss Alps, in airplanes, and on Corregidor shortly before the Japanese captured the island in World War II. More than 500 Musters were held around the world this year, including many in Vietnam and doubtless in prison camps.

The ceremony was the same in every location. Aggies paid their respect to those who were absent. When the names of the honored dead were called from Muster rolls, a friend of the deceased answered, "Here."

Are you going to let your gas heating sleep through another summer?

Why not put it to work as an air conditioner?

It's a simple matter to install a cooling unit to your gas heating system. You can probably use the furnace blower and ductwork you already have. You'll save up to half the installation costs of starting from scratch.

Temperature control in your home is a year-round proposition, but not an expensive one. We have special rates for gas air conditioning during the summer. And no matter what the season, you pay less for gas than electricity.

Another nice thing about gas central air conditioning is its simplicity. There are fewer moving parts. Fewer breakdowns. Fewer repairs. Wake up your central gas heating to central gas cooling. You'll sleep better this summer.

WASHINGTON "As It Looks from here" OMAR BURLESON Congressman 17th District

Washington, D. C. — The Insurance Industry, covering life, health, accident, fire and other disasters — particularly automobile, is coming under scrutiny of the Federal Government.

There are those who would set Federal standards by which state regulatory agencies must comply or the government itself would step in. The process would be the same as that now applied to certain safety standards—the same as now in effect for meat inspection.

More and more the idea of setting Federal regulations as a substitute for State regulations is being talked and advocated in the name of protecting the consumer.

As our society becomes more compact and State lines less distinguishable, uniformity in matters of safety, pollution and other problems not especially peculiar to any community or State, may become desirable, if not necessary, to be efficient and effective. On the other hand, this trend toward Federal direction is further eroding State authority and control.

Take automobile insurance as an example. It is not the fault of the local agent that our automobile insurance is high and seems to be getting higher. His rates are fixed and he can do nothing about it. Complaints of cost increases and difficulty in settlement of claims is nationwide.

Secretary of Transportation John A. Volpe established the Administration's position favoring a modest start in the "no-fault" insurance concept. This concept provides that no matter who is at fault in an automobile accident the claimant collects. This, it is reasoned, would provide faster adjustments, reduce bureaucracy and court litigation in many cases.

The theory is that it would eliminate costs all along the line and thus trim cost of insurance.

Actually, there is little experience to provide guidance for this idea. Massachusetts, from which State Secretary Volpe comes, has had "no-fault" insurance since last January. A number of States have the matter under consideration by their Legislatures. Senator Hart of Michigan has offered a bill which would in fact, nationalize the idea. His Committee has held a series of hearings on the proposition and will likely hold more.

These hearings have developed evidence that "no-fault" insurance for small accidents would formalize what is already a policy of some companies. To look further, however, the issue is not quite that narrow. The wider and longer-range view touches on the moral question of what personal responsibilities a driver assumes for the privilege of using the highways and streets. It raises the question of whether safe drivers would not, in the end, subsidize the unsafe ones. Further, under proposals now being considered in the U. S. Senate, a disturbing aspect of the "no-fault" idea is that citizens in lesser accidents would be compelled to waive rights to use the courts to settle a claim they thought to be unjust.

Another troublesome element in the "no-fault" system is the groundwork it lays for a broadening of the concept to cover accidents of greater seriousness. It would seem to imbed in State or Federal laws the principle that government can establish an arbitrary value upon the emotions, the bodies and time of a citizen of the United States.

For several years, there have been pending in the Congress proposals to indemnify the victims of crimes. If you are burglarized or robbed, the Federal government would make restitution. There seems to be some parallel between these ideas. Would it encourage irresponsibility, sometimes maybe on the part of the victim as well as the trespasser?

Whatever may develop toward a more equitable system of auto insurance or indemnity for the victims of crime, nothing to reward the wrongdoer should be included.

Soil Stewardship Week, May 16-23

Soil Stewardship Week, a nationwide observance which places emphasis on man's obligations to God as stewards of the soil, water and other related resources, will be observed May 16-23, according to Grider Hays of the Runnels Soil and Water Conservation District.

"The World and They That Dwell Therein," the theme of this year's observance, underscores the responsibility which each citizen has in fulfilling his or her role as caretaker of the land.

The Runnels S&WCD will sponsor a tour and will distribute material upon request to the churches of all faiths for this year's observance, Hays said. Additional information will be released at a later date.

...about your SOCIAL SECURITY

Nine out of ten American homes house a small social security office within their walls.

Where is yours? Right there on the desk in the den or on your kitchen wall or on your bed table. Your telephone can instantly put you in touch with a nearby social security office, where qualified representatives will assist you in transacting your business. Usually, you never have to leave your home.

Almost everything concerning social security can be handled over the telephone. Retirement claims, survivors claims, Medicare questions and check problems can usually be handled without visiting an office. Disability claims may begin over the telephone, but a personal contact with the disabled person is generally necessary. Housebound disabled claimants may call their local office and arrange for a representative to visit their home.

The procedure is very simple. If you wish to apply for benefits, have a question, or wish to discuss a particular problem, merely call the nearest social security office. It will be listed in the telephone book under Federal offices, or you may obtain the number of the nearest office from your local operator. The representative who answers your call may handle your problem, or he may refer you to a specialist.

If you are applying for benefits, the representative will complete a claims form during your telephone conversation. He will ask you questions about recent earnings and employers, your family, your age, and other items necessary to determine your eligibility for benefits. He will also explain what documents you must provide to support your claim.

Then, he will mail the completed forms to your home for your review and signature. A self-addressed envelope will be provided for you to return the forms to the office, along with the documents requested by the representative. These documents will be returned to you later. In a few weeks, if your claim is approved, your check will be in your mailbox.

Routine problems, such as changes of address, reports of work activity, and death notices may also be handled by telephone and mail. Only in a few complex situations would a visit to an office be necessary.

For more information, contact the Social Security Office at 3000 West Harris Avenue (P. O. Box 3808) in San Angelo, Texas, or see the representative when he is in your area. Persons who are unable to meet with him are encouraged to call the office in San Angelo at 949-4608.

Clear Your Area To Avoid Snakes

Austin — Unfortunately, humans aren't the only creatures who emerged in the spring from their winter dens.

Snakes also like the warm sunshine and emerge to share the outdoors with campers, hikers and picnickers.

You don't have to go far to find snakes in the spring, according to Texas Parks and Wildlife Department officials. Some persons don't have to look beyond their back yard, especially if there is a rock pile, trash pile, stacked lumber, tree stumps or other debris close at hand.

These offer cover both for snakes and their food supply, and ridding the area of them will lessen the chances of an oversupply of reptiles.

Of the 103 species of snakes in Texas, only 16 are dangerous to man—10 species of rattlesnakes, four species of copperheads, coral snakes and cottonmouths.

Chances of dying in an auto accident are about 200 times greater than being killed by a snakebite. But a bite can cause a great deal of misery and even permanent disability. Texas averages about 1,400 snakebites per year, and 24 persons have died in the past 10 years.

If we waited long enough FDR would see that we got some rain!"

Well, we set some sort of record for making predictions. Usually, when we predict something will happen it turns out exactly the opposite. A couple weeks ago we predicted we'd get our "Easter spell" AFTER Easter, and then we'd get a little rain! What happens? Four days after Easter, the rains came! We were so flabbergasted when the first drops began to fall that we plumb forgot that we had predicted it would happen.
