HOME TOWN Talk

By R. C. THOMAS

The following has been circulated in various forms for several years, but circulation has been increased of late, with many newspapers printing it. The Lubbock Avalanche-Journal recently devoted a full page to reprinting the article, as a public service, with a suggestion that it be torn out and sent to a friend—and ask them if they will run this in their newspaper.

I AM A SICK AMERICAN

There are those that claim ours is a "sick" society; that our country is sick; our government is sick; that we are sick. Well, maybe they're right. I submit that I'm sick . . . and maybe you are, too. I am sick of having policemen ridiculed and called "pigs" while cop killers are hailed as some kind of folk hero.

I am sick of being told that religion is the opiate of the people, but marijuana should be legalized.

I am sick of commentators and columnists canonizing anarchists, revolutionaries and criminal rapists, but condemning law enforcement when such criminals are brought to justice.

I am sick of being told that pornography is the right of a free press, but freedom of the press does not include being able to read the Bible in school grounds.

I am sick of paving more and more taxes to build schools while I see some faculty members encouraging students either to tear them down or burn them.

I am sick of Supreme Court decisions which turn criminals loose on society—while other decisions try to take away my means of protecting my home and family.

I am sick of pot-smoking entertainers endorsing me with their condemnation of my moral standards on late-night television.

I am sick of being told that policemen are mad dogs who should not have guns—but that criminals who use guns to rob, maim and murder should be understood and helped back to society.

I am sick of being told it is wrong to use napalm to end a war overseas—but if it's a molotov cocktail or a bomb at home, I must understand the provocations.

I am sick of not being able to take my family to a movie unless I want to have them exposed to nudist, homosexuality and the glorification of narcotics.

I am sick of riots, marches, protests, demonstrations, confrontations, and the other mob temper tantrums of people intellectually incapable of working within the system.

I am sick of hearing the same phrases, the same slick slogans, the cries of people who must chant the same things like zombies because they haven't the capacity for verbalizing—thought.

I am sick of those who say I owe them this or that because of the sins of my forefathers—when I have looked down both ends of a gun barrel to defend their rights, their liberties and their families.

I am sick of cynical attitudes toward patriotism. I am sick of politicians with no backbone.

I am sick of permissiveness. I am sick of the dirty, the foul-mouthed, the unwashed. I am sick of the decline of personal honesty, personal integrity and human sincerity.

Most of all, though, I am sick of being told I'm sick. I'm sick of being told my country is sick—when we have the greatest nation that man has ever brought forth on the face of the earth. Fully fifty percent of the people on earth would willingly trade places with the most deprived, the most underprivileged among us.

Yes, I may be sick, but if I am only sick, I can get well. I can also help my society get well—and help my country get well.

Take note, all of you . . . you will not find me throwing a rock or a bomb; you will not find me under a placard; you will not see me take to the streets; you will not find me ranting to wild-eyed mobs.

But you will find me at work, paying taxes, serving in the community where I live. You will also find me expressing my (Continued on page 8)

Ink Drawing By Troylene McKnight Published In Book

An ink and pencil drawing by Troylene McKnight of Winters, freshman student at Cisco Junior College, has been published in the Annual Anthology of College Art. Miss McKnight was one of four CJC students whose work was published in the book.

Miss McKnight is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Troy McKnight of Winters, and a graduate of Winters High School. An art student at CJC, under the instruction of Mrs. Fred Mullinax, she plans to continue her art studies at Cisco next year and graduate with an associate art degree. Following graduation from CJC, she will attend one of the senior colleges in Texas.

The CJC students were notified of publication of their work by Dennis Hartman, editor of the Art Division of the National Poetry Press. Students from both junior and senior colleges all over the nation submitted their drawings to be judged. The National Poetry Press has been publishing the best college poetry and essays in book form for the past 30 years. The art publication is a comparative newcomer in the anthologies.

Other CJC students having their work published in the anthology were Paula Daniel of Comanche, Sue Ann White of Graham, and Blue Homme of Breckenridge.

Measles Shots Scheduled Friday

All children of the area—from infants to children age 11—who have not been vaccinated against Rubella (German measles) will have an opportunity to get the vaccinations in a mass inoculation project scheduled Friday afternoon in the school cafeteria.

The program is again being sponsored by the Winters Lions Club.

Authorization blanks, to be signed by parents of school children, were sent to parents the first of this week. Parents were asked to sign the permits for each child, and return them. No vaccine will be administered without the authorization, it was pointed out.

Parents of pre-school infants and children may bring them to the school children Friday afternoon from 1:30 to 4 for the vaccination.

There will be no charge for the vaccine.

The last mass inoculation held in the Winters area was in November 1969. Health and

Wilmeth Meeting To Discuss Rural Water System

A meeting of all residents of the Wilmeth community will be held Tuesday, May 11, beginning at 8:30, to discuss the proposed North Rannels rural water system. The meeting will be held in the Baptist Church Annex.

All residents of the area are urged to attend and obtain information regarding proposal. C. T. Parker, Rannels County Agriculture Agent, will be present, along with Foy Brown, representative of the Farmers Home Administration.

Winters Wants Better Telephone Service Before Rates Increased

The telephone company serving Winters must provide better service, along with toll-free Extended Area Service into communities surrounding Winters, before a rate increase will be considered, representatives of the company were told Monday night.

General Telephone Company had requested authority from the Winters City Council to adjust telephone rates upward—approximately 33 percent in some instances. Representatives of the company met with the Council in a regular meeting Monday night to discuss the request.

About 25 or more Winters residents also were present and many of them expressed their views regarding the request, and pointed out that an increase in basic rates could not be justified in view of the "inadequate service" being provided by the company.

Interested residents also stressed the importance to Winters of a toll-free Extended Area Service, a system which has been sought for several years, but about which nothing has been accomplished by the company.

The service being provided by General Telephone is very "poor," Winters citizens pointed out to company men. Especially is this true regarding long distance calls, they said. One man said he tried for more than an hour recently to make a long distance call, using several telephones, before he could make connections. One said a party in another town had tried unsuccessfully to call his number in Winters, only to be told by the operator that "There is no such business in Winters."

Telephone company representatives were told that it is "almost impossible" to make connections with an operator when seeking operator assistance in making long distance calls, waiting for several minutes—and at least 25 rings—before an operator answers. Most everyone present expressed dissatisfaction with long distance service, and even though local service is "fair," it was pointed out that "a light rain causes great disruption in even local service."

All said they could see no justification for a rate increase under these circumstances.

It was also brought out in the meeting that Winters for many years had sought Extended Area Service, but without success, while other cities in the General system enjoy that service, at even lower rates than those being requested by the company for Winters.

At the present time, it was shown, the rate for a one-party business telephone in Winters is $9.00 per month; the company seeks to increase this to $12.00. The rate for the same service in Ballinger, a company man said, is $10.50 per month, and Ballinger has Extended Area Service, which is not available in Winters. "This is unrealistic," Winters citizens told the company.

In a prepared financial statement accompanying the request for the rate increase, General Telephone states that the present rate of return on their investment is only 5.15 percent; the proposed increase would raise this to 7.76 percent, they said. Total operating revenue for the Winters local exchange for the 12 months ending June 30, 1970, was $94,226.44, according to the financial statement, with operating expenses $81,104.70, leaving a net operating income of $13,121.74. This is not enough considering the investment the company has in the Winters exchange, representatives of the company said.

These figures are for "local service" only, it was stated by General Telephone spokesmen: long distance toll calls are not included and are not counted as revenue chargeable to the Winters exchange. Jack Goss, representative of the telephone company, said this practice is "legal" when considering local telephone rates, and he said he did not know how much long distance revenue was charged to the Winters exchange. Winters citizens replied that even if it were "legal" according to the courts, it still did not give a true picture of the total income available to the company from the local exchange.

Because of the several Winters industries which do business on a statewide and nationwide scale, General Telephone men were told, the long distance revenue derived from this source "must be enormous, several times over strictly local revenue."

Regarding the establishment of Extended Area Service, several of the citizens attending the meeting commented that the telephone company "has been giving us the run-around on this for several years." An Extended Area Service system for the Winters trade territory would involve cooperation between General Telephone and South Taylor Telephone Cooperative, it was stated. The company representatives knew of no new developments regarding this, he said. Mayor Wade White produced a copy of a letter from the company setting a tentative date of June, 1973, as a target date for an EAS system. White said South Taylor Co-op had indicated they could be ready by 1972, if all agreements were reached.

The EAS proposed would give direct communications between Winters and Bradshaw, Crews, and Wingate exchanges, and possibly other outlying areas.

MEETING MAY 17TH

Following the hearing Monday night, the Winters City Council announced they would study the rate increase request, and will meet with the telephone company representatives Monday night, May 17, a regular meeting night. The public is invited to attend that meeting, it was announced.

"Rannels Is My County" Named Best Historical Publication of the Year

Austin—The book "Rannels Is My County," by longtime county resident, Mrs. Charlie Poe, has been named "Best Historical Publication of the Year on Local or Regional History." Announcement of the award, given annually by the Texas State Historical Survey Committee, was made May 4, by Lester Prokop, president of the Committee.

Mrs. Poe is a member of the Rannels County Historical Survey Committee.

The central Texas county was little more than a sparsely settled area on a Texas map when its local government was organized in 1880. In reporting the growth of the county, Mrs. Poe brings in many names—some now forgotten, many still prominent—in its social, political, and economic life.

She chronicles the change from open-range cattle country to a diversified farming area which has attracted oil and manufacturing interests.

Town by town and community by community, she reports in detail the county's marked progress in cultural, educational, and religious endeavors—the introduction of civic improvements over the years.

She records a way of life which now seems quaint to the twentieth century, telling of tent shows and carnivals which drew countrywide audiences, and recalling one of the last meetings of Civil War veterans—the Colorado-Concho Confederate Reunion.

The author, Mrs. George Poe, writes much of her material from firsthand experience, having lived in the county for over half a century. Born Charlie Mae Graham in 1909, she moved with her parents to Winters in 1915. In 1927 she married George Poe and they embarked on the difficult enterprise of cotton farming during the Depression.

Mrs. Poe has taught American government and general math in high school and has written numerous newspaper features.

In 1963 she published her first book, "Angelo to the Papagos."

WASHINGTON

"As it looks from here"

OMAR BURLESON

Congressman
17th District

WASHINGTON, D. C.—Washington in April is a beautiful sight. It is a good time for tourists to be here to see the budding tulips at their height, blooming bushes and trees of all hues and colors. The pink and white dogwoods are flourishing.

It should be good if this was all to be said about happenings over the past 10 days. Instead, among the blooming trees and shrubbery and through the tulip beds walk thousands of unwashed, long-mat-haired characters, out to interfere with the enjoyment of tourists and stop the wheels of government.

The first group of demonstrators claimed to be 1,200 Vietnam veterans with a lot of hangers-on. Some of them, of course, were genuine but admittedly a great number were draft dodgers, those released from military services with less than honorable discharges and many others including girl camp-followers.

The next wave comes with all the appearance of revolutionaries. Their demands range from ending the Vietnam war immediately to free abortions, clean water, gay liberation, union lettuce and the Government's scalp. They demand . . . demand . . . demand . . . even drugs!

Incidentally, the heavy use of drugs by so many reduced their daytime ranks considerably. Hundreds had to be given medical attention. If the term "revolutionary" appears too strong in describing these motley people, the hundreds of North Vietnam and Viet Cong flags, the placards of Mao Tse-Tung and Leon Trotsky and the chanting of obscenities furnish pretty strong proof. Their principal leader is Rennie Davis one of the so-called "Chicago 7."

Granting that there are basic rights to dissent and to peacefully assemble in demonstration there is no right to interfere with the lawful activities of other citizens and to stop the functioning of government. There is no right to plot the overthrow of government. The place for them is jail.

This cup, of course, will pass. Rennie Davis and the revolutionary mob are not going to become the government of this Country. Unfortunately, however, there are Members of Congress who have lent encouragement and at least passive support to this outrageous demonstration. These are the one who cry out for peace at any price.

There may be a significance to a recent Gallup poll finding that 16 million Americans would pack up and leave this country if they had the opportunity. This figure represents 12 percent of our adult population. Most of them would prefer Australia. The survey showed 3 in 10 young adults between the ages of 18 and 29, with college training, expressed a desire to leave. They are not all made up of draft dodgers, shiftless and irresponsible people. The draft dodgers and others like them prefer Canada or Sweden, not Australia.

Many of those people are expressing a desire to be free from many frustrations and register disgust at this sore represented by the crew here in Washington. It is assumed that these people hold to the values and traditions of our Nation but are disillusioned as to what has happened in our Country since 1960. They likely feel they cannot live happily in an atmosphere of confusion and uncertainty and want to look for anchors of security. They feel that the accepted truths of our institutions are not nailed down so as to be unremovable. They most want to be able to see through the forest of question marks and see daylight of confidence in front of them.

Obviously, the demonstrating revolutionaries have no such desire to leave but stay to disrupt and attempt to convert our Nation to anarchy. Meanwhile, a few home truths should not go unobserved. While 1,200 veterans made demands, including the ending of the war, over 2 million are not demanding peace at any price. While about 10 Senators and 29 Members of the House of Representatives give passive support to some of these things, 90 Senators and 406 Representatives do not. While 200,000 rabble rousers choose to take their politics to the gutters, 200,000,000 other Americans do not.

This is not to say that this great majority of our citizens do not want us out of Vietnam. It does not mean that the Vietnam veterans who did not come to Washington, Members of Congress who did not endorse the demonstrations, Americans who did not choose to listen to the rabble rousers or to Peter, Paul and Mary, want the war to continue. Rather one would like to think that they want the war ended without a scuffle, that they prefer ballots to ballyhoo and finally that they prefer democracy to mobocracy.

HEALTH FOR ALL

How many times have you noticed a label on your new mattress, pillow, or sofa cushion that loudly proclaimed "Do Not Remove Upon Penalty of Law"?

The State Health Department would like to see more people begin checking those labels before making their purchases in the stores. Those labels indicate whether the material used passes both state and federal safety requirements.

The federal government is now moving to strengthen some of those requirements. Analysis by the Department of Commerce has led it to conclude that the existing standard does not adequately protect children against flammable sleepwear.

Research showed that purchased items of children's sleepwear were readily ignited when exposed to a small natural gas flame for as little as three seconds. Such fabrics are capable of producing severe injury or even death.

Recent federal tests indicate that more than 37 percent of the blankets now on the market failed to comply with the present wearing apparel.

Standards are also being formulated for mattresses and other bedding materials. At present, there are no such regulations.

The Southwest Research Institute of San Antonio has conducted several experiments in which bed assemblies were ignited by one of several small ignition sources such as cigarettes or matches. Measurements showed that hazards to life developed in such fires from toxic fumes, reduced oxygen in the atmosphere, suffocating concentrations of carbon dioxide, smoke, and excessive temperatures. Lethal conditions were developed in each experiment, except one which used blankets, sheets and mattresses treated with flame-retardant chemicals. The burning mattresses were found to be the primary causes of the lethal conditions.

Standards are also being formulated to measure the surface flammability of carpets and rugs. Again, no such standards exist at present.

Some Disappointed At LBJ Fish Kill

AUSTIN—Net-wielding spectators as the massive rotenone treatment of Lake Lyndon B. Johnston recently may have grumbled slightly at what took place.

It wasn't a lack of fish—there were millions of 'em. It was the type of fish. Carp, buffalo and shad were scooped up by the boatload as more than 50,000 enthusiasts descended on the Hill Country lake located in Llano and Burnet Counties.

Although Texas Parks and Wildlife Department officials hailed the treatment as a complete success, many spectators felt something was awry.

"We heard complaints that the rotenone wasn't strong enough, because there were hardly any bass coming to the surface," said Marion Toole, inland fisheries coordinator. "But our water samples and live box tests showed we killed virtually 100 percent of the fish in the lake, so the bass just weren't very numerous."

This was no surprise to officials who planned the fish kill. They announced months ago that the game fish population of the lake (excluding sunfish) made up only 10.2 percent of the total fish population.

Furthermore, they pointed out that the largemouth black bass population was a paltry one percent of the total, both by number and weight.

"If there had been a large population of game fish in the lake we wouldn't have treated it in the first place," Toole explained. "That was the point of the whole project—to rid the lake of this huge population of rough fish and restock it with game fish."

So the fish kill weekend saw perhaps 50,000 competing for 10 percent of the fish in the lake. Not many came away with ice chests full of bass.

Mrs. Juanita O'Connor's Weekly Home Demonstration Agent's Column

A new modified nylon yarn promises to end the annoyance of static electricity in carpeting, announces Mrs. O'Connor. Static electricity is caused by frictional contact that generates a charge, Mrs. O'Connor explains. This charge, in turn, produces a tingling and often painful sensation as one walks across a carpet of synthetic fibers. The charge may be as great as 12,000 to 15,000 volts with conventional nylon carpeting.

The new modified nylon reduces the charge to a level low enough to eliminate shock, she pointed out.

A method for eliminating static electricity in carpet has long been studied by manufacturers. One approach, called the humectant method, involved the development of a fabric finish or fiber additive. This method, however, failed to function at low humidity. Metallic filaments were then added to the fabric, a process that proved more effective than the humectant method but limited the range of colors and construction.

Effective for the duration of the carpet's life and enabling unrestricted design possibilities, the new modified nylon offers a more complete solution.

According to manufacturers, the new modified nylon yarn can be used in all styles, constructions and colorations of carpeting without detection. The fiber's anti-static properties are not reduced by vacuuming, spot cleaning, shampooing, scouring or high traffic abuse. Such resistance is due to the anti-static properties which are built into the fiber itself. The new carpet yarn not only eliminates static electricity, but also enhances bulking and coverage properties. In addition, the new yarn can be used in all constructions, ranging from level pile to patterned top-sheared and even shag. It also comes in all colors—plain shades, space dyed and printed designs.

It's Up To the Consumer

Consumers—it's your responsibility, too, says Mrs. O'Connor. You, as a consumer, can do much to help the marketplace be friendly and fair-dealing by following the guides of responsible shopping, she explains.

When you buy from an unethical or careless businessman, report the unsatisfactory service and poor merchandise to retailers and manufacturers. Most companies give personal attention to consumer complaints with a prompt, courteous reply. These complaints can help a company identify and correct mistakes.

Read informative labels, instruction booklets and guarantees to products, when they are provided by the manufacturers, before buying an item to learn its performance and care requirements. After purchasing the product, keep the receipts, warranties and booklets. Then if you have to return an item or make a complaint, you will have an accurate record of purchase dates and prices, use and care instructions and model numbers.

Before making a complaint, think through the reasons why you are dissatisfied so that you can present your case well. Making an intelligent complaint requires courtesy and patience, plus accurate records.

Legitimate complaints contribute to the goal of better products and better services—as well as assuring the consumer of getting the best value for his dollars, says Mrs. Juanita O'Connor, Home Demonstration Agent.

Austin, Texas.—Tax bill action switched back to the House this week after Senate passage of a $662.3 million revenue measure.

Senate passed its version of the tax bill 22-9 after rejecting six separate attempts to insert a corporation profits levy by narrow (usually 16-15) margins and six other amendments. Only amendment of substance attached in floor debate was a half-cent-a-gallon increase in diesel fuel levy to make it the same as the gasoline tax.

Here is what the bill (HB 730) now calls for and its estimated biennial yield:

—Increase sales tax rate from 3.25 to four percent, $288.5 million.

—Increase motor vehicle sales tax to four per cent and bring auto rentals under levy, $79.4 million.

—Raise corporation franchise tax from $3.25 per $1,000 to $4.50, $102.6 million over three year period.

—Increase cigarette tax three cents a pack to 18.5 cents, highest figure in the nation, with one cent dedicated to park development, $46.7 million.

—Raise the gasoline tax from five cents to seven cents a gallon, $102.1 million.

—Increase beer tax from $4.30 to $6 a barrel, $28.8 million.

—Increase diesel fuel tax one half cent, to seven cents a gallon, $4 million.

House Speaker Gus Mutscher took an early dim view of the gasoline tax in particular, and a conference committee was expected to adjust differences.

Stripped from the House bill were taxes on hotel rooms, stock transactions, jet fuel, admissions and entertainment and sand, gravel and shell. Senate also more than doubled the House version of the franchise tax.

COURTS SPEAK State Supreme Court agreed to set a hearing on the issue of whether district attorneys can file a barrage of suits to prevent stores from using various devices to get around Texas' Sunday closing laws.

A Houston clinic can be sued along with a doctor-partner in it for alienation of affections. Supreme Court held in a split decision.

High Court, reversing an intermediate court, held that the Austin suburb of West Lake Hills is a legally-incorporated city, but its attempted annexation of territory to the north of its original boundaries is invalid.

Third Court of Civil Appeals held that six Texas A & M University employees cannot draw state salaries and serve on the College Station City Council at the same time.

Same Court reversed the state savings and loan commissioner's finding that a charter should be granted to a savings and loan concern in Pasadena.

A new trial of the disputed sale contract involving a Killean radio station was ordered by the Third Court.

AG OPINIONS Legislation permitting the transfer of persons convicted of a felony at their request to the state prison system pending appeals of criminal cases is constitutional, Atty. Gen. Crawford C. Martin has held. Martin warned that constitutional problems may arise if such prisoners are required to work or disciplined as convicts.

In other recent opinions, Martin concluded that:

—A coin operated machine delivering trade discount tickets and options to purchase other tickets is an illegal gaming device.

—Potter County may contract with a private non-profit institution for the care and supervision of juvenile delinquents.

—A water supply corporation organized under Article 1434a, civil statutes, is required to operate as a non-profit corporation.

—Harris County domestic relations judge may serve on Texas Southern University board of directors.

—City or county bond interest and sinking funds may be used only for paying interest on bonds or redeeming them.

—Travis County may employ an ambulance service for residents outside audience and use city streets for transporting patients to hospitals without a city franchise if all safety standards are met.

APPOINTMENTS Gov. Preston Smith appointed B. B. Schraub of Seguin as 25th district judge and Houston C. Munson of Gonzales to succeed Schraub as district attorney of the 25th district.

Smith named Dr. James Harris Sammons of Baytown to the Commission of Rehabilitation.

Governor appointed Royce Lee of Upper Colorado River Authority and reappointed Everett J. Grindstaff of Ballinger, Cumbie L. Ivey of Robert Lee and John R. Salmon of San Angelo.

Cancer Crusade Passes Goal, More Expected

The current Cancer Crusade, promoted by the North Runnels Cancer Society, is winding down this week, with contributions far surpassing the goal which had been set earlier.

North Runnels Cancer Society has set a goal of $1700.00 for this year's Crusade—as of Tuesday morning this week, a total of $2059.00 had been turned in by workers, and more was expected to be turned in before the week is out.

Cancer Society members said this was one of the most successful campaigns ever conducted in North Runnels.

The Society has expressed thanks to all the volunteer workers and to those who made contributions to this cause.

WHS Graduate Commutes To Work On Motorcycle

Mrs. Ray Figueroa of Douglas, Ariz., the former Su Deaton of Winters, goes to her job as a switchboard operator at Cochise College, Douglas, on a motorcycle.

Mrs. Figueroa and her husband, Ray, ride their motorcycle to Cochise and back each day. He is a student in the college. They started commuting on their motorcycle as an economy measure and found that it was fun, and faster.

Figueroa is the chauffeur and Mrs. Figueroa carries the books. She said motorists stare, wave and honk, and always smile at them. However, riding the motorbike is limited to good weather. But in any weather, their four year old daughter thinks it's the only way to go.

Mrs. Figueroa is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Eli Deaton of Winters, and is a graduate of Winters High School.

WELFARE ECONOMIES URGED

Lt. Gov. Ben Barnes followed through on his warning that Medicaid welfare spending may "bankrupt" the state with proposals for trimming the bill an estimated 25-30 percent for '72-'73.

Barnes suggested these steps: —A limit on the time welfare patients can stay in the hospital.

—A limit on the cost of hospital rooms.

—A fixed fee schedule for doctors on welfare cases.

—A surgical benefit schedule as in private health insurance plans.

SMITH REQUESTS PARK FUNDS

Governor has urged federal authorities release more than $3.2 million in Bureau of Outdoor Recreation funds for 20 state and 34 local park-rec projects.

He accused the Republican administration of delaying funds "for partisan political reasons."

Smith said the BOR is awaiting advice of federal solicitor and U. S. District Attorney Segal Wheatley of San Antonio before approving projects signed by Pearce Johnson, Parks and Wildlife Commission chairman as state liaison officer in parks matters.

John blocked the use of $2.1 million in BOR funds released to the state for Mustang Island park purchase early this year with federal court action.

Largest of the grants being held up is $731,300 for the new McKinney Falls State Park.

SHORT SNORTS

Governor Smith signed into law the new "rules of road" legislation to bring Texas highway laws into conformity with other states.

Also signed by the Governor was a bill to provide a special pool for insurance coverage in areas subject to hurricane and tornado disaster.

Parks and Wildlife Department is hearing proposals this week to expand the either-sex deer season from four to 24 counties.

...about your SOCIAL SECURITY

Young people often overlook the protection social security gives them when they start to work. J. M. Talbot, social security manager, pointed out today. If you are a young worker, you probably consider social security as something for older folks. You are not alone, as this is a common fallacy.

Mr. Talbot asked, "If you are a young wage earner with family responsibilities, stop and reflect on this for a minute. What would you and your family do if your career were suddenly cut short by disability? Disability benefits under social security can provide the answer."

Two requirements must be met for you to qualify for this benefit. You must be severely disabled, and you must have a certain amount of work under social security.

The first requirement is the same for all workers regardless of age. However, the amount of work needed depends on your age when you become disabled.

If you are under 24 or younger, you need have worked only 1 1/2 years in the three years just before your disability began. The worker between 24 and 30 needs work credit for half the time between age 21 and the time of his disability. A person 31 or older needs credit for five years of work out of the ten years just before he became disabled.

The younger worker needs less coverage because he has not had an opportunity to work as long under social security as some of his senior co-workers.

Mr. Talbot gave an example of how this provision helped one 24-year-old man Jim, a father of two small children, was seriously injured in an automobile accident. While working, he averaged $450.00 per month and had worked 1 1/2 years under

Winters FFAers To Area IV Meet At Stephenville

Two members of the Winters chapter, Future Farmers of America, will attend the Area IV banquet Friday night, and the area convention Saturday at Tarleton State College in Stephenville.

Ricky Dean, area vice president, and Tim Meyer, district president, will attend the banquet and convention. Accompanying the FFA boys to Stephenville will be Stanley Blackwell, vo-ag teacher in Winters High School, and Stanley Whitley, student from Tarleton now doing student teaching in the Winters school.

Tim Meyer will compete in the public speaking contest at the convention.

social security. Under recent increases effective January 1971, Jim and his family would receive $389.90 per month.

"Everyone hopes such a tragedy will not happen to him, but as a mature young worker you cannot ignore the uncertainties of life," Mr. Talbot said. You can find out exactly what social security will do if the need arises. For additional details on disability benefits, contact the Social Security Office at 3000 West Harris Avenue (P. O. Box 3808) in San Angelo, Texas, or see the representative when he is in your area. Persons who are unable to meet with him are encouraged to call the office in San Angelo at 949-4608.

City Police To "Zero In" On Glue Sniffers

Winters City Council Monday night handed local police another tool—in addition to State authority—to use in combating the growing problem of "glue sniffing" among some of the young people of the community.

The ordinance approved and signed by the mayor Monday night, makes it unlawful to any person to "sniff (inhale) or have in possession for the purpose of sniffing or inhaling any toxic substances; paint thinner, glue, gasoline, lacquer thinner, varnish, paint or other toxic substances for the purpose of becoming intoxicated, drunk, inebriated or 'high' within the corporate limits of the City of Winters." Conviction for violation can be cause for a fine of not less than $1.00 nor more than $200.

Chief of Police Joe Stevens said Tuesday that "glue sniffing" among some of the young people has become a problem. Several apprehensions have been made, he said.

Chief Stevens said young people should be warned of the dangers connected with "glue sniffing," and the practice of inhaling the vapors of other toxic substances. It can cause the breakdown of vital organs of the body, he warned, and a deterioration of the brain. In one instance, Stevens said, a "sniffer" has had to seek help from the Mental Health and Mental Retardation Center because of the damage caused. He warned that parents should be alert to the dangers of "glue sniffing" and to warn their children of these dangers.

Authorities from many areas have warned that the results of "glue sniffing" rank at the top when compared with other "far out" methods used by some for the purpose of becoming "high." Inhalation of toxic fumes from many substances can cause lasting and permanent damage to the brain, they warn.

Bill providing for 10-2 jury verdicts and comparative negligence doctrine in some civil damage cases was passed and sent to the governor who is weighing advice to veto it.

County Officers Cracking Down On Law Violators

The Runnels County Sheriff's department is stepping up a "crack-down" campaign against drug transportation and possession, cattle rustlers and minors in possession of alcoholic beverages.

County Sheriff Don Atkins announced this week that "anyone apprehended hauling illegal drugs, or narcotics of any kind," will have their vehicle, "regardless of type vehicle," confiscated, to be sold at public auction. This action is "within the legal jurisdiction of the State, and will be taken by the Runnels County Sheriff's Department," Atkins said.

In the crack-down against cattle theft, Sheriff Atkins said that any cattle trailer, operating on roads other than State highways after 11 p. m., "will be probable cause for search and investigation."

Sheriff Atkins also said that any minor or juvenile apprehended in the county, and "taking part in a party with alcoholic beverages present," will be filed on by the Department, and parents will be notified.

BUSINESS PICTURE BRIGHTER

By Babson's Reports, Inc., Wellesley Hills, Mass.—There can now be no doubt that the nation's economy has shown improvement since the General Motors facilities resumed production last fall after the labor tie-up. Actually, had it not been for the auto strike, industrial production might well have bottomed out in the summer of 1970. But labor disputes do have a critical impact on general activity, and in this instance it was of sufficient force to postpone the absolute low point until November.

Labor Figures In Recovery

After a protracted shutdown such as that which hit the auto industry's largest manufacturer, catch-up output inevitably gives a substantial uplift to industrial production as a whole. This is what happened during the final weeks of the fall season and into the waning weeks of the winter of 1971. Without this pent-up production, it would be difficult to gauge accurately how much vitality the economy would have enjoyed during this period.

The uncertainty as to the degree of inherent recovery is further heightened by the fact that the post-strike auto catch-up has been accompanied by substantial strike-hedge inventory accumulation of steel in preparation for possible labor troubles in that key industry this summer. There is also copper stockpiling in anticipation of potential disruptions in this industry as well.

Housing Adds Vigor

Whatever the cause, it must be recognized that the net effect has been a good boost for business in general. Residential building, too, has finally responded favorably, in this instance to the increased availability of mortgage credit. From the money-starved low of a little over one million units in January 1970—on a seasonally adjusted annual-rate basis—new housing starts climbed gradually upward and closed out the 1970 calendar year with a bulge that boosted the annual-rate mark to a shade over two million units.

This unexpectedly large increase in new housing starts last December was followed by a setback in the ensuing two months. But the underlying trend was still clearly upward and March saw another surge of sufficient scope to hike the seasonally adjusted annual rate back close to the two-million mark.

Greater Consumer Confidence

At long last, consumers are also lending their assistance in moving the economy ahead. In contrast to recessions of the more distant past, unemployment during the 1969-70 business setback did not increase to an inordinate extent, despite the degree of publicity accorded the jobless problem. There were—and still are—pockets of high unemployment, but these represent regions hard hit by cutbacks in outlays for military and aerospace projects.

Consumers were, of course, upset by the doubtful employment conditions, the adverse effects of inflation, by tight credit and high interest rates in the early stages of the recession, and by disturbing episodes of social unrest. In March of this year, however, consumers finally

BEST STILL AHEAD

Despite the improved business climate, there are still many problem areas. Unemployment continues reluctant to respond hearteningly to the economic revival. Inflationary pressures remain a grave threat, even though the rise in prices has recently decelerated to some extent. And many industries are still in the doldrums.

There is, nevertheless, enough evidence to conclude that the tide has turned. Progress may be slow in the months just ahead but once the major obstacles are cleared the pace can easily quicken.

County Agent's Column

The proper planting and training of pecan trees is one of the most important practices in a complete orchard management program, explains County Agent Parker.

The three keys to success in transplanting this popular tree, he adds, are starting with vigorous and fresh pecan nursery stock; keeping the root system moist at all times and reducing the budded or grafted top by a third to a half at planting time.

Sturdy, vigorous trees should be obtained from a reliable nursery and they should be checked for a root system that is free of crown gall or menatode damage. The top should be well grown and identified correctly as to the variety desired. The county agent notes that a moderate-sized nursery tree will suffer less "transplant shock" and usually will become established sooner and grow off faster than a larger tree.

The hole in which the tree is to be planted should be wide and deep enough to accommodate the root system of the tree without the bending of any of the roots. A power auger, 12 to 18 inches in diameter, is an excellent tool for digging the holes when considerable numbers of trees are being planted.

The tree, after the top and roots have been pruned, should be planted at the same depth it stood in the nursery row. The roots should be arranged in their natural position and friable top soil should then be worked around the roots. The hole should be filled about three-fourths full of the top soil and water should be added to settle the soil, eliminate air pockets and to keep the roots moist. After watering, loose soil should be added to complete the hole filling. It's a good idea to leave a basin around the tree to facilitate future waterings, says the agent.

The training of the young tree should start after the second growing season. The tree should be pruned so that it will grow into a strong tree capable of holding up well under heavy nut crops and will not be subject to storm damage.

A nationwide animal drug certification program sponsored by the agricultural industries has been announced by the National Animal Certification Committee. Purpose of the program is to assure consumers that the meat, milk and eggs which they purchase will continue to be wholesome and free of unauthorised residues.

The program, notes county agent Parker, calls on livestock producers to certify in writing, when marketing their animals, that they have observed the withdrawal periods and other label directions for animal drugs required by the U. S. Department of Agriculture and the U. S. Food and Drug Administration.

In addition to the assurance given consumers, livestock and poultry producers are also expected to benefit from the program. It is designed to assure the animal drugs are properly used. These valuable meat production tools, which represent cost savings to the producer which are passed on to the consumer, may no longer be available to producers if they are not properly used.

Horse owners use the incisor teeth to tell the age of a horse and it works very well, reminds county agent Parker.

The first pair of permanent teeth come in at three years of age, showing the cups in the wearing surface. These cups last for about three years. By the time the second set comes through at four years of age, the cups in the first set are one-third worn down.

When the third and final pair show up at five years of age, the first set is two-thirds gone and the second set, one-third gone, explains the county agent. An experienced horseman can thus tell the age of the horse quite accurately. At five years of age, all the permanent teeth are present and the horse is described as having a full mouth.

As the horse matures and reaches old age, the incisor teeth meet each other at an increasing angle and become farther apart. This identifies a horse older than 20 years of age.

Like the incisors, the permanent teeth molars also come in gradually. These new teeth may cause some irregularities when coming through, but most often troubles do not develop until the later years.

All permanent equine teeth, notes the county agent, except for the canines, are constantly pushed out of the alveoli—the part of the jaw where the teeth arise—by the slow growth of bone beneath the roots. This is a continuous process throughout the life of the horse and is nature's way of compensating for the wear that occurs while chewing food.

Any damage to a horse's teeth should be corrected as soon as it is detected. Therefore, notes the county agent, regular checks by a vet are recommended.

anger and indignation to elected officials.

You will find me speaking out in support of these officials, institutions and personalities who contribute to the elevation of society and not its destruction. You will find me contributing my time, money and personal influence to helping churches, hospitals, charities and other establishments which have shown the true spirit of this Country's determination to ease pain, suffering, eliminate hunger and generate brotherhood.

But, most of all, you'll find me at the polling place. There—if you listen—you can hear the thunder of the common man. There, all of us can cast our vote—for an America where people can walk the streets without fear. —Author Unknown
