WASHINGTON

"As it looks from here"

OMAR BURLESON

Congressman
17th District

Washington, D. C. — Human nature being what it is, we take for granted many of the good things around us. More noticeable are the calamitous and catastrophic events. On the occasion of such happenings there must be action on the part of those with responsibility to meet and deal with the situation.

It would do us good to recognize those who are organized for the purpose of preventing calamities and to remedy and administer to them when they unavoidably come about.

The hundreds of volunteer fire departments stand as excellent examples. Volunteer fire fighting is a tradition in America. It begin in Philadelphia in 1736 when Benjamin Franklin, who seems to have had a hand in about everything, organized the first fire brigade.

From that beginning there are today some 24,000 fire companies, 22,000 of which rely on volunteers. The cities, of course, must have wholly professional and paid firemen of which there are about 250,000.

Smaller towns have all they can do to provide the essentials with volunteers. Some larger towns and communities have training and equipment on the same level as those of larger companies. This means that volunteers work at their job with all diligence to reach professional qualifications.

In thousands of small towns across our Nation when the siren blows and the bells ring men drop their knives and forks, barbers put down their shears and a store clerk leaves a customer.

In rapid order they are together, garbed in helmets and slickers and whatever else they have and on their way to extinguish a fire, which is always a tragedy for someone.

Such actions occur across the land daily where men from all walks of life—salesmen, laborers, teachers, professional and businessmen and the like, provide a service which saves lives and property.

Drawn together by a common desire for protection, unselfish neighbors rally together at the fire station or at the scene, using their own cars or going by foot, at all hours of the day or night and in all kinds of weather.

It is estimated by the National Fire Prevention Association that there are 22,000 volunteer fire departments providing $5 billion worth of services to their communities and townspeople each year.

Ruth Elizabeth O'Connor and Robert Oliver Browder, Jr., To Marry Aug. 7

Mrs. Juanita Loraine O'Connor of Ballinger is announcing the approaching marriage of her daughter, Ruth Elizabeth, to Mr. Robert Oliver Browder, Jr., of Odessa.

The wedding will be August 7, in the First United Methodist Church in Ballinger.

Miss O'Connor is a graduate of Ballinger High School and will be a sophomore at Odessa Junior College in the fall. She attended Texas Tech University this year, and was on the dean's list for both the fall and spring semesters.

Son of the late Rev. and Mrs. R. O. Browder, Sr., of Big Spring, the prospective bridegroom was graduated from Big Spring High School and is a graduate of McMurry College. He did graduate study in chemistry at Texas Tech University. He is employed in Odessa by the Ector County Independent School District.

Walleye Hatching In Aerated Jars

San Angelo—A research project to produce walleye fry in aerated, 70-degree temperature controlled jars is paying off, said Larry Campbell, a fisheries biologist for the Texas Parks and Wildlife Department. After stripping eggs from female fish and sperm from males, young fry were observed in the jars after one week of the experiment.

The six jars at the research laboratory contained about two million fertile eggs, kept cool by pumping in fresh well water and taking advantage of shade and cool nights. Water flow was maintained through the jars to induce hatching.

The project is aimed at supplying Texas anglers with a new, hard-fighting species of exotic game fish, and to provide film and slides for training fisheries personnel.

Mrs. Minzenmayer Honored On 80th Birthday Monday

Mrs. Olga Minzenmayer was honored Monday, May 17, on her 80th birthday in the home of Mrs. Loyd Roberson, Mrs. Leonard Bowden and Mrs. Raymond Kurtz were co-hostesses.

As Mrs. Minzenmayer approached the refreshment table to blow out the 80 candles on her cake, the group of 45 guests sang "Happy Birthday." Mrs. Roy Crawford sang "An Evening Prayer," the favorite song of the honored guest. The group also sang other songs, and Mrs. Kurtz gave an appropriate reading.

Refreshments were served and the gifts were opened and viewed by those present. Many who could not attend sent gifts. Mrs. Minzenmayer expressed her gratitude for the kindness of her many friends and wished for each of them to reach the 80th year and be able to enjoy life as she does.

THE FAMILY LAWYER

Ad Piracy

Poster ads for a circus were so eye-catching that a printer made up some copies—without asking anyone's permission. The owner of the circus promptly filed suit, charging infringement of copyright. But in court, the printer argued:

"More advertisements cannot be copyrighted. The Constitution says copyright is intended only for the 'useful arts.' That means something on a higher artistic level than just ads, which are plain commercialism."

Nevertheless, the court ruled that ads are indeed protectable by copyright and held the printer liable. The court said the Constitution drew no line between highbrow and lowbrow art.

In earlier years, many courts did draw such a line. But today, almost everywhere, ads are entitled to the same copy right protection as a book or a painting. Courts have recognized that a great deal of money and a great deal of talent are now going into the creation of ads. It is still true, however, that a copyright won't stand up if the ad is dishonest. Thus:

A series of ads was developed by a sales agency, to be used by piano dealers. When one dealer began using the ads without permission, the agency sued him for copyright infringement. But the judge refused to mix in, when he discovered that the ads were riddled with deceit.

"The law should extend its protection," he said, "only (to ads) that speak the truth."

Furthermore, only the specific details of an ad—the words, the drawings—are protected, not the general idea.

In another case a merchant advertised a contest in which people were supposed to write letters, telling why they liked to shop in his store.

Later, another merchant announced a contest along the same lines, but describing it in different language. Was this an infringement of copyright?

A court said no, since only the general idea had been copied. If general ideas were copyrightable, said the court, one person could stake out an entire field of thought and keep it as his own private monopoly.

"Can't Walk Away From Boat Wreck"

Austin — Thirteen more persons have died from drownings and other water-oriented accidents in Texas the first three months of this year than for the same period last year, according to George Cook, director of Water Safety Services of the Texas Parks and Wildlife Department.

"If this sharp rise in fatalities continues we will be past the critical point," said Cook.

"The department's game management officers and water safety officers are out in force, patrolling our lakes, rivers and coastal waters to try to cut down on this toll," said Cook. "They have been instructed to enforce the Texas Water Safety Act to the exact letter of the law."

Warm weather has moved more and more persons out on the water, increasing the likelihood for accidents, according to Cook. "The coming vacation time means that the age group in which most of the water-oriented fatalities occur, teenagers, will be out of school and headed for water for some fun," he said.

"We know from experience that some of these young persons will die from acts of pure carelessness," said Cook. "Most of these deaths can be prevented."

According to Cook, some of our waterways are becoming as congested as highways and much more dangerous. "You can't walk away from a boat wreck," he said.

Cook cautioned that those seeking outdoor recreation could increase their chances of living through another summer by using a little common sense around water.

HEALTH FOR ALL

NEW ENGINES TO FIGHT POLLUTION

Car exhaust is the chief cause of air pollution in this country. Now experiments are underway to supplant the internal combustion engine. Little battery-driven cars are one possibility. So are other car engines that run on the principle of the steam engine.

Experimental models of electric cars have been developed by two major American auto companies. A recent opinion poll shows that as many as 50 million Americans might be interested in buying an electric runabout, especially if the cost is under $2,000. At the moment, however, there are real disadvantages to the electric cars. They can travel only one hundred miles at a stretch. And they can go only 60 miles per hour.

When the batteries run down they can be recharged overnight by plugging the car into an electrical outlet. And the electric car—which causes no air or noise pollution—can be useful for short trips within cities, where pollution is heavy.

Another kind of nonpolluting car will be mass produced by a Japanese company. The company expects to sell 100,000 of these cars in the United States by 1972. The engine works like a steam engine but uses a chemical called Freon, widely used as a cooling agent in refrigeration, instead of water.

The engine, the manufacturer's claim, has almost pollution-free exhaust and emits less than one part per million of deadly carbon monoxide, compared to about 25,000 parts per million emitted by present internal combustion engines.

To find out more about our polluted air and what can be done to improve conditions, check with your local tuberculosis and respiratory disease association. It's a matter of life and death.

Liquor advertising has been banned on Philippine highways, according to Texas Alcohol Narcotics Education (TANE).

Scholarships, Awards Presented At W.H.S.

Several scholarships, "Merit W" awards, and other special awards were made to students of Winters High School during Awards Day program at the school Wednesday morning.

In addition to awards made to individual students, several departments of the school presented to the school the trophies, banners and other prizes won during the school year.

The "Merit W" awards are made to five percent of the student body for outstanding non-athletic achievement during the school year. Presenting the awards were Hudon White, Jr., president of the student council, and Ginger Fairey, of the student council.

Receiving the "Merit W" awards were Bruce Smith, Brenda K. Smith, Brenda King, Hudon White, Jr., Ginger Fairey, Leslie Bishop, Madelyn Bryan, Trish Hill, Debbie Lloyd, Tandy Medford, Rhonda Sneed, Landa Walker, Denise Williams and Rickey Mathis.

The Literary and Service Club special education award was made to Mike Krause. Presentation was made for the club by Mrs. Carroll Tatom.

The Diversity Club Homemaking award was presented to Madelyn Bryan.

Letter "W" Awards, from the Student Council, for University Interscholastic League Literary Achievement, were made to Madelyn Bryan, Dianna Magee, David Harrison, Debbie Lloyd, Cliff Poe, Mike Smith, Maurine Riess, David Grohman and Blanche Wharton.

The Randy Pendergrass Memorial College Scholarship from the Student Council was presented to David Harrison.

The Future Teachers of America scholarship was presented to Ruth Jansa.

Efforts Underway To Incubate Bass

San Angelo—The second phase of a project to artificially hatch white bass is underway at the Texas Parks and Wildlife Department Fish Hatchery in San Angelo.

Superintendent Wallace Clary said only 75 of 40,000 fertilized eggs in the first phase of the experiment grew into fry. A much higher yield is expected this time, he said, because of knowledge gained in the first phase.

announced during the awards program. Each student received a plaque. Having highest averages were Keva Harrison, freshman; Wynne Geistmann, sophomore; Bruce Smith, junior; Madelyn Bryan, senior.

The white bass is a prolific species, but so far biologists have not been able to find the right combination to effectively duplicate the natural spawning process.

In the wild, white bass don't build nests for their eggs. Rather, they locate a clean, rocky or sandy area on the bottom of a flowing stream and scatter the eggs in a helter-skelter manner. There always is a high egg mortality, but since each female white bass can produce up to 500,000 eggs each spring there usually are survivors.

Heretofore, white bass stocking has involved only mature fish.

Modern Refrigeration: Can you as a homemaker visualize what it would be like without refrigeration? The modern refrigerator with ice maker, automatic defroster and built-in freezer compartment blurs any thought of the old fashioned "ice-box" and the ice man who brought blocks of ice once a week by horse and wagon.

Even before that, when meat had to be dried to be kept for any period of time and fresh away if at all, perishables were a luxury.

But proper use of modern refrigeration and freezing helps meatpackers supply a constant stream of wholesome food to the public. Always studying better ways of handling meat, the U. S. Department of Agriculture's Consumer and Marketing Service aids in this large responsibility.

USDA recently developed guidelines for chilling, freezing and packaging meat and meat byproducts, based on results of an extensive study of plant operating practices. Industry representatives were consulted while the study was being conducted and after its completion by meat inspection experts.

By following the guidelines presented here, a packer can reduce the possibility of products becoming unsound during preparation, storage and distribution.

While meat and byproducts are being prepared at the plant, they must be quickly chilled to avoid spoilage. To retard bacteria growth, which can cause this spoilage, carcasses should be chilled to an internal temperature of 40 degrees.

By products, such as livers, will also spoil unless refrigerated to 40 degrees in a reasonable time—about 1 1/2 hours after evisceration. To reach this temperature, chill coolers must be kept at or below 36 degrees. Meat products are often frozen before shipping. For storage, a packer should lower the products temperature to 0 degrees or less because spoilage-causing bacteria stop growing, or grow very slowly below 14 degrees. 0 degrees provides for a margin of safety. To do this, freezers must be capable of maintaining a temperature of -5 degrees or lower.

Inadequate air circulation can spoil meat in both chilling and freezing. Freezers must have forced-air circulation between 500 and 1,000 cubic feet per minute, so cold air can reach all product surfaces. Carcasses, especially heavy beef, should have room for air to circulate between them.

For boxed products, spacing between layers and between boxes in individual layers is necessary for proper freezing. Stacking without adequate spacing will actually insulate the interior of the stack and retard the freezing process. Products may spoil before freezing.

Frozen products must be 0 degrees or lower throughout before they may be labeled as frozen. They may appear frozen when actually only the outer surfaces are frozen. Such products could spoil in transit if the carrier temperature is higher than the temperature of the products.

To avoid the possibility of partially frozen products, internal temperatures should be periodically checked by drilling a small hole in the center of the frozen product and inserting a thermometer. A stainless steel spike or hand drill with a stainless steel bit should be used. All instruments must be sanitary to keep the product clean.

Besides avoiding bacteria growth, another reason to thoroughly freeze products is to preserve their shelf life. Depending on the particular product, shelf life varies from 2 to 6 months. A good way to determine which

Crows Leave West Texas

Colorado City — Mitchell and Nolan Counties lose more than a million residents each when spring rolls around, but few mourn the loss.

In fact, the northward migration of crows from West Texas farmland is probably viewed with relief by most landowners, but there's a hitch. The raucous rascals will be back after traveling as far north as Canada for the summer.

Texas Parks and Wildlife Department officials estimate the number of crows in the two counties, and two counties which are annually hit hard by the crow blitz, Howard and Borden, may have had an increase in crows this year.

To shotgunners who have discovered the fast action available in crow hunting, the returning noisy flocks are a welcome sight. Local merchants and civic clubs have even promoted crow hunting to bring more sportsmen into the area.

Many devices are used to lure the birds into range including mouth-blown calls and electronic calls.

Mr. and Mrs. Eddie A. Voelker Note 50th Wedding Anniversary Sunday

Mr. and Mrs. Eddie A. Voelker were honored at an open house in the Fellowship Hall of the Main Street Church of Christ Saturday, May 13, in observance of their 50th wedding anniversary.

The affair was hosted by the couple's daughter and husband, Mr. and Mrs. Gerald Proctor of Stamford, and their granddaughter and husband, Capt. and Mrs. John Van Duyn, and great-granddaughter, Michelle Van Duyn, of San Antonio.

Displayed with the gifts was a handmade gold book made by their daughter and granddaughter, filled with pictures which had been taken from horse and buggy days to the 50th anniversary.

Flowers used for decorations in the party room were white carnations and white mums, with gold leaves and white and gold stephanotis. The two-tiered cake was white, with white roses and gold trim, entwined with white flowers. The top layer as on a division of lattice work separating the cake from three white bells with white and gold leaves and tied with a bow of white net. The table was laid with gold net over gold satin, with hem pleated and entwined with gold leaves.

Members of the house party from out of town were Mrs. Ralph Ashburn of Arizona, Mrs. Margaret Schmidt of San Antonio, Harvey Voelker of Houston, Mr. and Mrs. Kenneth Griffin of Odessa, and Mrs. Erna Huffhines of Abilene. From Winters were Mrs. R. T. Gray, Mrs. Victor White and Mrs. Lera Henniger.

Mr. and Mrs. Voelker were married May 11, 1921, at Ballinger.

He was born at Rose Hill in Travis county. During World War I, he was a sergeant in the U. S. Army, and a few years ago was presented a 50-year membership pin by the American Legion.

Mrs. Voelker, the former Allie Mae Smith, daughter of the late Mr. and Mrs. Merrell D. Smith, was born at Glen Cove, in Coleman County.

Mr. Voelker was a stock farmer and farmer at Hatchel for many years. They moved to Winters in 1932, and he still farms and raises stock.

Mrs. Voelker is a charter member of the Winters Home Demonstration Club, now called the Women's Industrial Club. Approximately 100 guests registered.

is the older product which should be shipped first is by a date-of-pack marking on product containers. A packing date also aids inspectors in re-inspecting frozen products ready for shipment.

When packaging products before shipping, for example, carcasses or quarters should be wrapped with cloth, paper or other suitable covering. A protective covering prevents rust, grease and other contaminants from reaching the carcass surface. Coverings also reduce bacterial contamination that can occur each time the carcass is handled between the plant and consumer.

Containers of meat and byproducts must be kept clean of blood and other spoiling agents. Such unsanitary and unsightly soilage is often caused by the overfilling of boxes and by lack of moisture-resistant coatings. Polyethylene, or heavy waxed paper, should line boxes lacking this type of interior.

Unassembled boxes, intended for later use, should be stored in clean, dry storage areas. These rooms should be tightly closed and free from moisture, dust, insects and rodents.

These guidelines will not solve all problems, but if followed, they are in the step to the right direction. It's to everyone's advantage—packer, inspector and consumer alike—that the packer follows them closely. Only by paying careful attention to the many variable involved in meat can a clean, sound product be produced.

Members of the Dale Sewing Club met in the home of Mrs. Raymond Knight Tuesday. Quilt blocks were pieced for the hostess.

Refreshments were served to Mesdames Carl Baldwin, Verge Fisher, Lloyd Compton, Clifford Lehman, I. W. Rogers, Charlie Adami, Jack Whittenberg, Ernest Thormeyer, Lettie Davis, Ernest Davis, August Stoecker, Miss Emma Henniger, and two visitors, Mrs. C. O. Rogers and Mrs. E. L. Marks.

Next meeting will be held in the home of Mrs. Verge Fisher, Tuesday, May 25.

... about your SOCIAL SECURITY

Most social security beneficiaries who earned over $1680 in 1970 are required to file a report of their earnings with the Social Security Administration by April 15, 1971. This report is in addition to any Federal or State tax return, and it must be filed with the Social Security Administration, according to J. M. Talbot, social security manager.

Beneficiaries who were 72 years old in all months of last year are not required to file the annual report of earnings. Disabled beneficiaries should report immediately if they become self-employed or take a job. All other beneficiaries, including families of disabled persons, are under the retirement test and must report their earnings annually.

The purpose of social security benefits is to replace earnings lost due to retirement, death, or disability. If an individual continues to earn a substantial amount—$1680 or more—some adjustment is made in the amount of his benefits. One dollar for every two dollars earned between $1680 and $2,880 is withheld. If an individual earns over $2880, he gives up a dollar for each dollar earned over $2880 regardless of the amount of yearly earnings. A beneficiary is entitled to his full social security check for any month in which he does not earn over $140 and is not self-employed. The annual report will allow us to determine whether or not additional benefits are payable.

For more information, contact the Social Security Office at 3000 West Harris Avenue (P. O. Box 3808) in San Angelo, Texas, or see the representative when he is in your area. Persons who are unable to meet with him are encouraged to call the office in San Angelo. The telephone number is 949-4608.

BANK BILLS PROPOSED

A series of bills to prevent recurrence of such failures as that experienced by the Sharpstown State Bank and to strengthen the state's powers over the banking industry were introduced in the Senate by the General Investigating Committee.

One of the key measures gives the banking commissioner expanded authority to order "problem banks" to correct shortcomings without actually closing them. Another bill would prevent insider dealings by officers and directors of insurance companies.

Funeral Tuesday In Spill Chapel For Mrs. Chapman

Funeral services were held at 5 p. m. Tuesday in Spill Memorial Chapel for Mrs. Ellis Chapman, 63. The Rev. Virgil James, pastor of Southside Baptist Church, officiated.

Burial was in Lakeview Cemetery under the direction of Spill Funeral Home.

Mrs. Chapman died at her home at 12:45 a. m. Monday, following an illness of several months.

She was born Alpha Alma Cody, March 9, 1908, in Wayne County, Tenn. She came to Texas with her parents from Tennessee in 1924, settling at Mt. Olive near Goldthwaite in Mills County, where she lived until 1932. They then moved to Hamilton.

She married Ellis Chapman March 20, 1935, at Hamilton. In 1942 Mr. and Mrs. Chapman and their son moved to Winters where they have lived since.

Mrs. Chapman was a member of the Southside Baptist Church.

Survivors are her husband; one son, Billy Ray Chapman of Oklahoma City, Okla.; a grandson, Jimmy Chapman of Winters; four brothers, J. E. Cody of Fort Worth, Roy Cody of Robstown, R. P. Cody of Athens, and J. B. Cody of Reno, Nev.; three sisters, Mrs. Henry Hohertz of Hamilton, Mrs. W. B. Lightfoot of Fort Worth and Mrs. Donald Power of Charlotte, N. C.

Pallbearers were Allen Jackson, Cecil Scott, Ras Gideon, Roy Rice, Roy Calcote, and Truett Bentley.

Wingate Sew and Sew Club Meeting

The Wingate Sew and Sew Club met in the Annex of the Wingate Baptist Church, with Mrs. J. C. Belew as hostess. Quilting and handwork was done for the hostess.

Runnels History Group Meeting In Ballinger Sat'day

Four tours of historic spots were reported by members at the regular bi-monthly meeting of the Runnels County Historical Survey Committee meeting at the courthouse in Ballinger Saturday.

George Garrett reported on a tour of the Nancy Parker Cabin, Ranger Peak, Content and Crews, conducted by him and Mrs. Garrett for the Junior Culture Club May 1. The tour ended at the courthouse and a picnic lunch was served at the park at noon.

Other tours were of the markers on the courthouse lawn by members of Youth I Sunday School Department of the First Baptist Church, and by the Woman's Study Club and a Boy Scout Troop of Ballinger.

In accordance with a request from the State Committee, Rankin Pace, chairman, appointed George Garrett, Dr. Tommy Russell, both of Winters, and Charles W. Jones of Ballinger as a committee to decide on a time and place for the presentation of the award to Mrs. George Poe for the best publication of the year on a regional or local level. A member of the State Committee will present the award.

Other business of the committee included the approval of the inscription for the marker for the Sons of Herman Lodge No. 216 at Rowena, and plans for indexing and filing material and the purchase of a book to help with this work.

Mrs. George Garrett and Mrs. Dexter Eoff of Ballinger reported on the Regional meeting held at San Angelo which ten members of the committee attended.

Mrs. Clarence Lee announced that the Maverick Homecoming would be held June 12-13 at the Maverick Community Center.

Eight speeches and programs were conducted by committee

Freed Bighorn Sheep Producing Lambs

Marfa — At least five bighorn sheep ewes have become mothers recently at the Black Gap Wildlife Management area.

This piece of news is unusual, in that the new lambs are the first actually born in the wild since the species was exterminated from its West Texas range years ago.

Previous bighorn births on the area have been in the 427-acre "holding pen" which has been the sheep's home since the first animals were brought in from Arizona in 1866.

A sixth ewe is expected to lamb soon.

At least 10 lambs have been born inside the pen this spring to ewes not liberated. Of these, two have been sent to Texas A. & M. University for disease research, leaving approximately 81 sheep on the 101,000-acre area.

M. L. Dobbins, Glenn C. Bowman, E. L. Marks, Lavenia Crockett, Roy L. Crawford, M. E. Leeman, Charles Black and son Bill, Verdine Hood, the Rev. Glenn C. Bowman, and Mrs. W. T. Stanley, Frank Mitchell, S. P. Nesmith and I. W. Rogers.

COUNTY AGENT'S WEEKLY NOTES

Shade Tree Borers

The larval stages of several beetles and moths are referred to as borers. These include insects which feed in the terminal shoots; burrow beneath the bark, frequently girdling and killing the tree; still others tunnel into the heart-wood, creating a situation in which the tree is made vulnerable to wood-rotting organisms and wind damage. A few species will attack healthy trees, but most attack trees and shrubs already weakened or injured by transplant shock, drought, flooding, dirt fills, poor soil fertility, mechanical damage, etc.

There is no "magic formula" which can be applied to the soil or trunk of the tree and will kill wood borers in the tree. Do not confuse bird (sap sucker) damage with the woodborer damage. Bird damage appears as rows of holes circling the trunk or larger branch of the trees. The holes are about the size of an unsharpened lead pencil.

The presence of borers is commonly not evident until it is too late to prevent extensive damage and, in many instances, to save the tree. Therefore, sound tree management practices are most important in preventing borer attack. These practices include such things as:

1. Trunks of young or transplanted trees should be wrapped with nursery wrapping paper, burlap, aluminum foil or newspaper to prevent egg laying by adult borers. Wrapping also aids in preventing sun scald and mechanical injury. Injured areas of the bark are particularly vulnerable to borer attack. The trunks should be sprayed with BHC or lindane before wrapping on all year and replace it when it becomes torn.
2. Water and fertilizer trees properly to maintain vigorous growth.
3. Prune all dead or dying branches, and treat the wounds with a good wound paint. Treat wounds by lawn mowers, automobiles, etc. in the same manner.
4. Select trees and shrubs which are adapted to your particular geographical area. Select trees which are not as susceptible to borer attack when planning or landscaping premises. Ash, cottonwood, linden, soft maple and poplar are quite
