HOME TOWN Talk

By R. C. THOMAS

Although the school board election is still two weeks away, voters of Winters Independent School District, and of Wingate Independent School District—AND ESPECIALLY THOSE WHO RESIDE WITHIN REALIGNED COUNTY COMMISSIONER'S PRECINCT NO. 3—should make themselves more familiar with all possible consequences of the COUNTY SCHOOL BOARD ELECTION.

County School Trustees are elected from County Commissioners' Precincts, plus one trustee-at-large to be elected from the county as a whole. In the election for County School Trustees, only qualified voters from specific Commissioner's Precincts where trustees will be elected will be eligible to vote, except for the trustee-at-large, regardless of their local school district. Thus, only residents of Precinct No. 3 may vote for a County Trustee from that precinct; voters of Precinct No. 2 may vote only for the trustee-at-large, the County Trustee representing that precinct not being up for re-election this year.

Ballots for the April 1 Winters Independent School District election have been prepared in accordance with these requirements; presumably, ballots for elections in other districts are the same. Election judges will instruct voters according to the precinct in which they live.

These were slightly—or unintentionally—factors included in the short discussions which preceded the action redistricting Runnels County Commissioners' Precincts last year. But they are important to the people who reside in Precinct No. 3, and especially those who live in North Runnels County. As the precinct lines are now drawn, the power, not only of the Commissioners Court, but of the County School Board, could very easily be overbalanced to the disadvantage of the majority of the people supposedly represented—the people of North Runnels County.

A third grader was asked why March 17 is celebrated as St. Patrick's Day. "That's the day Patrick Henry ran all the rattlesnakes out of Sweetwater," he answered.

Highway construction roadside superintendency is on the decline... for a fact, this once-proud calling has almost died off completely. One has to be highly mobilized these days to spend any time at all on the job, things happen so fast.

Used to be a good roadside superintendent could settle down in one spot and last through three or four good chaws, and five or six pipefuls of rough cut, before having to move to keep up with the working fences. Nowadays, one location won't last through a regular cigarette—with a king-size smoke, well, the machinery and men will already be out of easy walking distance.

In earlier slower-going days, the roads were built by men and mules, or at best, a grader pulled by a crawler tractor. Dirt and gravel was hauled in wagons. Much of the dirt was moved by mule-pulled fresnos, and the close work was done by hand—pick and shovel. It was slow work, and hard work—for men and mules—but they built the roads which first linked this vast country; they gained the roadbuilding knowhow present-day builders add to and use with their big machinery. Some—many, perhaps—of the roadbeds built by fresno still are being used as bases for modern arteries.

Blizzard Band Trip To Six Flags In May Not All "Fun and Games"

The long-planned-for trip by the Winters High School Blizzard Band to Six Flags Band Festival in May will not be all "fun and games" for band members, Kirke McKenzie, band director, said. They will have to mix work with pleasure, he said.

The blizzard band has been invited to participate in the annual Six Flags Band Festival, May 12, along with about 15 other top Class AA Bands from Texas and other states. This is one of the highest honors the band can receive, McKenzie indicated, as only top-flight bands are invited. The bands will be competing for a large golden trophy, and members also will tour Six Flags during their visit. This will be the last public concert for the Winters band this year.

Judges at the band festival will be "an elite group of musicians who are famous in the field of band music and hold the ultimate reputation as strict adjudicators throughout the U. S.," McKenzie said.

Blizzard band members, and the Band Boosters, are conducting money-raising projects to finance the trip to Six Flags.

Cancer Society Plans Crusade Beginning Apr. 1

Mrs. Bill Bell has been named chairman of the North Runnels Unit of the American Cancer Society's 1972 educational and fund-raising Crusade which begins April 1.

The appointment was announced by Mrs. Earl Roach, president of the North Runnels Unit, who said that Mrs. Bell had accepted the position because of her "deep concern about the urgent need for cancer control and the necessity to help win the battle through widespread public education."

The 1972 Crusade is under the national chairmanship of Joan Crawford, the celebrated movie actress who is also a successful business woman.

"Our Theme is, 'We want to wipe out cancer in your lifetime,'" declared Mrs. Bell, "and we will be calling on our friends and neighbors to make a generous gift to the Society as well as to bring them a life-saving message about cancer."

"During the past year the war against cancer began to receive high national priority," Mrs. Bell said. "Let us back up the scientists with a vigorous effort to get all Americans to have a regular health checkup, including cancer tests."

The theme of "We want to wipe out cancer in your lifetime" grows out of the great advances that science has made in recent years in combating cancer with new drugs, and more advanced methods of surgery and radiation. Also it reflects the judgment of many eminent physicians that we may be approaching the staging area for a major assault on these dread diseases, Mrs. Bell said.

"Every dollar that is given to the American Cancer Society, helps support vital programs of public education, research, and patient services," Mrs. Bell declared.

DIRT MOVER: This is one of the big dirt loaders being used by highway construction crews on the current project to widen and reconstruct US 83 through Winters. Much of the dirt and rocks being removed from the highway right of way is being used to fill old gravel pits on city property north and east of the old Winters Lake north of town. This will do much toward reclaiming some of the waste land near the lake which had been unusable and unsightly for some years, city officials said. It also was pointed out that deep cuts and ditches which have appeared on Main Street during the past few days will be filled in and highway surface when completed, will be near present height and depth. Cooper & Woodruff Construction Co. of Amarillo are contractors on this job, supervised by the State Highway Department.

Political Musk Ox Trading

By RALPH NOVAK

NEW YORK (CFP)

We have all heard of political horse trading but President Nixon has introduced something new: political musk ox trading.

When Mr. Nixon went to China he took two musk oxen as presents to the Chinese people but, astute politician that he is, he knew that the Chinese would have to reciprocate. And sure enough the Chinese, not wanting to look a gift musk ox in the mouth, accepted the present gracefully and in return gave us two pandas.

Now trading two musk oxen for two pandas is like trading your 16th and 17th round draft picks for Bob Griese and Paul Warfield. It is a wheeler-dealer's coup of the first magnitude.

In one fell swoop, the President demonstrates how inscrutably he is able to outmaneuver the Chinese at the bargaining table, solidifies his hold on the votes of the panda lovers of America, and gives himself a good reference in case he ever wants to become general manager of a pro football team.

He also picks up a few points over his presidential rivals, who now have to wrack their brains thinking of ways to prove that they, too, are shrewd at political musk ox trading.

Edmund Muskie, for example, might offer to trade Grank Funk Railroad, the Grateful Dead and 30 or 40 other loud rock groups to Poland for an equal number of polka bands. This would help him with the silent majority.

George Wallace might offer to trade all the school buses in America to South Africa for free correspondence courses in apartheid for all members of the Supreme Court.

Hubert Humphrey could offer to trade President Nixon, Vice President Agnew, the Cabinet, Lyndon Johnson and all the other Democratic candidates to Italy for Sophia Loren. This would help erase Humphrey's image as a stuffy nonswinger and remove all his competition except for Harold Stassen.

George McGovern might trade the entire U.S. nuclear arsenal to Iceland, which in return would promise to make the world safe for democracy.

Eugene McCarthy could trade 1,000 volumes of his collected poems, one gross of mimeographed autographs of Yevgeny Yevtushenko and all his leftover 1968 campaign bumper stickers to the Soviet Union for their entire nuclear arsenal.

And John Lindsay could trade whatever was necessary to whomever would take it in exchange for anything he could get.

ANY DOUBT as to the destructiveness of dreaded Dutch elm disease should be dispelled by this scene near Shullsburg, Wis. Several hundred trees have been lost recently.

"THE LITTLE ARK"

He has been called "the intellectual Walt Disney," and although there is a vast difference in the nature of his films and Disney's, Robert Radnitz has been one of the few film creators whose name above the title assures movie-goers that a motion picture will be exciting and worthwhile for the entire family.

He and his films have earned a staggering number of major awards and honors, as well as marvelous reviews and box-office success, and one reason is the fact that Robert Radnitz never makes a motion picture just to be making a motion picture. "The Little Ark," like each of his films, is the product of his love for a book and his dedication to bringing that work to the screen.

What was it about "The Little Ark" that motivated Radnitz to devote two years of his life to its filmization? The answer is apparent from his description of the work: "In the event that you haven't read the book, 'The Little Ark' is a story of two adopted children—one Caucasian and the other Malaysian—a boy and a girl, who become separated from their family during the 1953 floods that devastated a large part of Holland. The novel, written by Jan de Hartog, is one that works on a number of levels. It is an adventure story and yet, on another level it is a tale that says: in times of stress what is comedic to children is horrendous to adults, and vice versa. The film is very important to me. It is one that I have wanted to do for many years. However, I think that its theme is possibly even more relevant today when

Helping Hand Club Meeting Recently

The monthly meeting of the Helping Hands Club, cooperating with the OEO office, held a meeting in the home of Mrs. Gaston Boatright recently.

The club voted to hold an Easter egg hunt for children, and planned a work day for March 22 in the home of Mrs. Robert Pruser.

Members present were Mesdames A. J. Hodges, Garland O'Dell, Robert Pruser, Robert Kraatz, Gaston Boatright.

I first read the book, some ten years ago. We shall see."

Unlike most Hollywood producers who prefer to work with new casts and crews, Radnitz has developed a warm and friendly rapport with his co-workers of previous films, and feels that this unity of spirit contributes to a better motion picture. National General Pictures' release of "The Little Ark," which shows Friday, Saturday and Sunday at the State Theatre, reunites many of the key talents who have worked with Radnitz on previous films.

Livestock Business Or Grass Farmer?

Are you in the livestock business or are you a grass farmer? You may be both! Ken Schrank, Soil Conservationist with the local Soil Conservation Service assisting the Punnels Soil and Water Conservation District, said livestock were meant to harvest what has been grown, but that proper management of the grass is a must. He said many acres of grass are planted each year, but many plantings fail because grazing is started before the grass is well established. This results in lost time and money for the farmer and rancher.

A successful grass planting depends on proper seeding time, with good seed, proper seedbed preparation, and sufficient rainfall, followed by proper grassland management. When the rainfall is sufficient for field crops, it should be sufficient for grass seeding. This is one item that we have no control of in successful grass plantings, but we do have control over the other requirements.

The best time to plant most warm season grasses is from March 1 to May 15. The grass seed, like any crop seed, needs to be covered by soil, but never by more than one-quarter to an inch deep. Seed on top of the ground seldom germinates and if they do, the plant's crown is exposed and it usually dies. After the grass is seeded, the pasture should not be grazed until the grass is well established. This is normally two full growing seasons.

After grazing is stated, management of the grass is necessary to maintain a good cover and to maintain the vigor of the plant.

For technical assistance in selecting the kind, amount, and different ways to plant grass seed, contact your local Soil Conservation Service Office.

The expression, "two bits," for a quarter-dollar comes from the days when the Spanish dollar was often used as currency in the American colonies. When small change was needed, the dollar was cut. The coin could be divided into eight pieces, or bits.

WASHINGTON
"As it looks from here"
OMAR BURLESON
Congressman
17th District

WASHINGTON, D. C.—Thousands of young men, the exact number unknown, evaded the Vietnam war illegally and are now living mostly in Canada and Sweden.

Should they be forgiven and granted amnesty? If so, should it apply only to draft resisters or also deserters? Should their forgiveness be tied to certain conditions of atonement or should these young men continue subject to prosecution, which would mean that most would remain in exile?

These are questions that touch the raw emotions generated by the war itself. These emotions run the full spectrum from the ennobling of the draft dodger as above the law to the furious portrayal of these men as self-indulgent cowards to be written off by their country, permanently or indefinitely.

There are estimated to be 70,000 to 100,000 young men living outside the United States, having left to avoid prosecution for draft dodging or desertion. Late last year the Department of Defense listed 35,249 deserters still at large.

Legislation introduced in the Congress distinguishes between the draft dodger and deserter and provides that amnesty be granted the draft resisters on condition that they return to the United States and serve three years as provided in a Senate Bill and two years in a House Bill, either in civilian or military programs. Deserters are not included in the proposed legislation.

Either the Congress by legislation or the President by proclamation can grant amnesty and there is precedent for it. The U. S. Constitution, Article II, Section 2, says, "The President . . . shall have Power to grant Reprieves and Pardons for Offenses against the United States . . ." The Constitution does not use the word amnesty but there is a long tradition of it being applied. George Washington granted this forgiveness to farmers who staved the Whiskey Rebellion in 1794.

On December 8, 1863, Abraham issued a proclamation for general amnesty for persons who would sign an oath of allegiance to the Union. This was more than a year before Lee surrendered at Appomattox. Andrew Johnson declared three general amnesties, requiring an oath of allegiance, in 1865, 1867 and 1868. In 1924, Calvin Coolidge granted amnesty to men who had deserted since the World War I armistice.

Former President Truman appointed a board to look into the matter of recommending pardons for 15,805 men convicted of violating Selective Service during World War II. The board recommended 1,523 pardons and they were granted by Mr. Truman.

For whatever may eventually be the case justifying amnesty for deserters and draft evaders of the present war, the time is certainly not now and neither by legislation nor Presidential order is it soon likely.

The war in Vietnam is winding down but it is not over. We still have men in Southeast Asia and some are fighting and a few are dying. At least 55,000 American boys have already died in that unfortunate conflict. Other American men languish in North Vietnam prisons. To welcome home, at this time, the draft dodgers and deserters, as if what they did was guileless and incidental, would be a monumental affront to those who have performed their duty and continue to perform it.

The word "amnesty" derives from the Greek word amnesia, meaning "forgetfulness." In reverse, to grant amnesty at this time to the draft evaders and deserters would be forgetfulness of those 55,000 or more who have given their lives in Vietnam and the environs and forgetful of those prisoners of war whose condition and circumstances should be bringing the heart of America.

Foundation Of Terrace System Is Grassed Area

Grassed waterways are the foundation of many terrace systems. A Waterway is a grassed area, usually within a cropland field, used for carrying excess runoff water from adjoining unterraced cropland fields or pastureland through a farm with little or no erosion.

Glen Green, of the local Soil Conservation Service, assisting the Runnels Soil and Water Conservation District, said in building a grassed waterway you will need to make it wide enough to carry the heaviest rain. He said natural drains in fields, with some shaping and establishing of a suitable grass, may be all that is needed to safely take care of your runoff water.

Green said, financial assistance to carry out this important conservation practice is available at your local ASCS office. He said, if you will contact the local Soil Conservation Service technicians, they will advise you in regards to the location, design, layout, checking the waterway after shaping is complete, and the seeding of the waterway.

An alternative may be to get your neighbors on top of the hill to terrace that unterraced field. Many times this will solve your problem and you may not need a waterway.

Green said, a group working together can change those ugly eroded areas into useful, income producing areas. He said, many waterways are used not only to carry runoff water through a farm, but for hayland, pastureland, or a source of grass seed. So let's join together and conserve what we have and help keep this country of ours beautiful.

Where the Action Is?

COUNTY AGENT PARKER'S COLUMN

Diapause Boll Weevil Control Program

The interest in diapause boll weevil control in many weevil-infested areas of Texas has been generated by extensive yield losses caused by this insect and the overall economics of cotton production. Though a rather wide choice of effective insecticides are available to growers, preventing excessive weevil damage has become quite costly in many production areas of the state.

The increasing development of insecticide resistance in bollworm—budworm populations can not be overlooked as an important factor supporting diapause boll weevil control. The seriousness of the bollworm-budworm resistance problem demands that we take a very close look at the entire cotton insect control program in each area of the state. It is obvious that we can no longer consider the control of one cotton pest with little or no regard for the impact or side effects of the applications on other pest species—resulting from changes in the field's insect, mite and other invertebrate populations.

The cotton fleahopper and boll weevil are the two key cotton pest species which often determine the need for and extent of insecticide applications in bollworm or tobacco budworm control. We must have effective means of preventing economic fleahopper and boll weevil damage which, at the same time, will not aggravate or precipitate a bollworm-budworm problem. Diapause boll weevil control is one means of preventing economic boll weevil damage by using insecticides at a time in the season when resulting worm buildups are of no, or at most minimal, significance. If properly planned and carried out, diapause boll weevil control offers the following advantage when compared to conventional, in-season weevil control:

1. The total number of insecticide applications required for maximum protection from boll weevils would be reduced and control costs would be correspondingly less.

2. The destruction of parasites and predators capable of suppressing bollworms, budworms and other pests would be minimized, thus reducing the control costs and associated yield losses.

3. The risk of weather interfering with control measures, and the resulting reduction in their effectiveness, would be minimized.

In different areas of Runnels County, meetings have been held recently with Mr. Emory Boring of Vernon, Texas Agricultural Extension Service Area Entomologist, and C. T. Parker Jr., discussing the Diapause Boll Weevil Control program with the area farmers to help them decide whether Runnels control program carried out on an areawide basis, would have the following major advantages:

Southside WMU Meeting Recently

Women's Missionary Union of the Southside Baptist Church met recently at the church to observe the Week of Prayer. "Expect, Attempt, Great Things for America," was the theme. An all day meeting was held with a covered dish luncheon at noon.

Those attending were Mesdames Virgil Fisher, John Baty, Bob King, Joe DeLaCruz, E. J. Reid, Virgil James, Elwood Wade, V. P. Rice, Charlie Sprinkle, Fred Young, W. D. Waggoner, and three visitors, Mrs. F. L. Jackson, Mrs. Adam Lopez and James Lynn Wade.

Sandhill Crane Harvest Better

San Angelo — West Texas sandhill crane hunters bagged approximately 3,100 birds during the past season, more than 800 over last year's kill, according to Texas Parks and Wildlife Department officials.

Approximately 500 birds were taken in Lamb and Bailey counties, with the heaviest harvest in Lubbock, Lynn and Terry Counties where game management officers report 1,550 birds killed.

Over most of the 16-county area the hunter interest was high as the beginning of the season and gradually waned as the birds began to leave.

County will participate in this program.

Kerr Area Turkey Hunt Applications Are Invited

Austin — Applications are being accepted for participation in a public spring turkey gobble hunt on the Texas Parks and Wildlife Department's Kerr Wildlife Management area in Kerr County April 22-29.

A total of 80 permits will be issued after a drawing to be held at 10 a. m. April 6 at the John H. Reagan Building in Austin. Deadline for applications is 5 p. m. April 3.

Successful applicants will be issued permits for a two-day hunt, and a limit of one gobble per hunter will be in effect. The spring hunt on the Kerr area is part of the department's continuing research program, and is not necessarily indicative of a high turkey population on the area.

In addition to the Kerr hunt, a nine-day spring turkey season has been set for April 23-31 in 36 Texas counties this year. The one-gobble limit also is in effect for these counties.

Applications for the Kerr hunt may be obtained from department regional or district offices, or from Austin headquarters. New rules this year allow hunters under 17 years of age to participate, but the youngsters must be at least 12 and must conform to a rigid set of supervision procedures for the public hunt.

Medicare Records Are Confidential

Some people may be confused by advertising which suggests that some private health insurance plans have an official connection with Medicare, according to J. M. Talbot, social security manager.

"Some advertising may suggest that a private company has access to Medicare records," Mrs. Talbot said. "Some may use envelopes similar to the envelopes used to send out monthly social security checks. The names of some private health insurance companies may suggest a Government connection."

The facts are, Mr. Talbot said: "Medicare records are confidential by law. Private insurance companies do not have access to Medicare records. Even if the company is a Medicare carrier or intermediary, its authorized employees are restricted in their use of the Medicare records." Medicare is Government health insurance for people 65 and over.

Irish Potatoes

The Irish potato got its name from two sources. One from the early growing of potatoes by a group of Irish immigrants in New Hampshire around 1719, and later from the tragedy of the famine in Ireland in the 1870's.

Potatoes were brought to England and Ireland from South America, but the Irish were the first of the Europeans to realize the potato's economic and nutritional benefits.

In the 1600's farmers in Ireland quickly found that potatoes could yield heavy production at a modest price per acre. The potato's usefulness spread slowly throughout Europe and early Irish immigrants to the New World carried potatoes—as security against an uncertain food supply.

Potatoes remain an Irish and American vegetable favorite. What better way to celebrate St. Patrick's day than with a real symbol of the "luck o' the Irish"—the potato. The Consumer and Marketing Service says supplies are plentiful.

Irish Stew

- 1 lb. lean beef, cut in cubes
- salt, pepper, flour
- 1 onion, sliced
- 2 T. fat or oil, water
- 2 potatoes, diced
- 4 small carrots, diced
- 1 turnip, sliced
- 1 T. chopped parsley

Sprinkle the meat with salt, pepper and flour. Brown it with the onion in the fat. Add water to cover.

Cover pan and cook slowly until meat is almost done—about 1 1/2 hours.

Add potatoes, carrots and turnip and cook until tender—20 to 30 minutes. Then add parsley. Makes four servings.

Spanish Omelet

- 1 medium tomato
- 1 small green pepper
- 1-2 onion, olives
- 2 sprigs parsley
- 1 stalk celery, mushrooms
- Salt and pepper, 4 eggs

Peel the tomato, add the pepper, onion, parsley, celery, olives, mushrooms, and chop all together in a chopping bowl. Place the mixture in a saucepan, add seasonings and cook for two to three minutes. Beat the eggs, put them in the omelet pan and, as soon as they begin to cook, add the chopped vegetables. Do not overcook it or it will shrink or be tough. Loosen the edges of the omelet, cut through the center, slip a spatula under the side next to

... about your SOCIAL SECURITY

Some 400,000 young people whose mother or father has died get monthly social security checks that help them attend high schools, colleges, or trade schools, according to J. M. Talbot, social security manager. The students, 18 through 21, are eligible for benefits as survivors of workers who were insured under social security.

About 100,000 other students get monthly checks because one of their parents has retired and is collecting monthly retirement benefits. And, over 50,000 young people are getting students' benefits because they are children of severely disabled workers who are getting disability insurance payments, Mr. Talbot said.

A recent study of student beneficiaries made by the Social Security Administration showed 66 percent of the students were enrolled in college, 26 percent were attending high school, and 8 percent were in technical or vocational schools.

Students can get benefits until age 22 as long as they are attending accredited schools full-time and remain unmarried, Mr. Talbot said.

People who are 65 and haven't already signed up for the medical insurance part of Medicare may enroll now through March 31 at any social security office.

The medical part of Medicare helps pay the doctor bills for people 65 and over. "Almost everyone 65 and over is eligible," according to J. M. Talbot, social security manager. "Most people who didn't sign up in their original enrollment period can sign up now," he said.

The medical insurance program is the voluntary part of Medicare. People who enroll in it are required to pay monthly premiums that are matched by the Federal Government. It supplements Medicare hospital insurance, which is funded by social security contributions by workers, employers, and the self-employed and helps pay the hospital bills of people 65 and over.

"You have 7 months to sign up for the medical insurance part of Medicare the first time," Mr. Talbot said. "You can sign up during the 3 months before you're 65, during the month you reach 65, or during the 3 months after you're 65. But, if you wish to have the protection beginning with the month you're 65, you must apply during the 3 month period before you're 65."

"Within 3 years after the end of your first enrollment period, you can still sign up during any January, February, or March," he said. But, if you enroll and then cancel your medical insurance protection, you're eligible to re-enroll only once. And, you pay a higher premium if you sign up after your first enrollment period.

Nine out of 10 people 65 and over are enrolled in the medical insurance part of Medicare. Last year, the program paid $2 billion in benefits on behalf of 9 1/2 million people.

HEALTH FOR ALL

THE POLLUTION FIGHTERS

Pollution is poisoning the planet. But fighting pollution sometimes has built-in hazards.

On the first Earth Day in April 1970, for example, a group of students in Delaware, Ohio, swept out debris from an old bird roost near the school. Two weeks later, one-third of the teachers and almost half the student body—354 young people, in fact—were either in the hospital or sick at home. Their symptoms? Coughing, headaches, vomiting, muscle aches, chest pains, and poor appetites.

The sudden onset of symptoms resembled influenza. Tuberculin skin tests were taken because TB was also suspected. The final diagnosis was histoplasmosis, a disease of the lungs that can mimic TB but is caused by inhaling the fungal spores in airborne dust. The disease is not spread from man to man but by breathing in dust contaminated by bird or animal droppings.

Not all the 354 stricken students had swept out the droppings, though. How had they contracted the disease? A smoke bomb was finally used to show how the dust kicked up by the cleaning had spread through the ventilating system into three large classrooms.

Most patients recover from the disease without serious complications. But the infection from the fungus also can spread from the lungs to almost any other area of the body, including the liver, kidney, heart, or brain. This can cause the organs to enlarge, fever to rise, or it may cause anemia—a disease of the bone marrow that affects the blood.

Local observers of late have been given a chance to see what men with big, specialized machinery can do within a short time, as work on widening and reconstruction of US 83 through Winters Progresses. One hour, a block of the street being widened will show few signs of change. Within another hour, huge dirt-chewing and loading machines take out the familiar, and leave deep ditches and raw patches of dug earth. This displaced dirt, along with concrete curbs and gutters, and occasionally abandoned water and gas pipe, is lifted by big monster-like loaders, dumped onto large trucks and hauled away. Some of it is being used to fill in gravel and caliche pits in the vicinity of the old Winters Lake; some of it is being used to build small dams; and some is being used to fill in low-lying lots where construction is planned, or where earth-fill is needed.

It's been some inconvenient these past few days, with the streets torn up... and if we should get a much-needed two-inch rain, it would be more so. But it is not as inconvenient as it could have been—the contractors are taking special pains to prevent it from wearing too thin. In fact, it has been mentioned in several circles that "this bunch of road builders are the most considerate and fastest working" observed in a long time.

When all this work is completed, we'll have nice wide roads and streets, and then we'll have forgotten the mild inconvenience we experienced for a short time.

Straightening Of Sunlawn's Creek Being Completed

The small creek separating Sunlawn Addition in the southwest section of town from the rest of the city is being straightened, and cleared of brush, to provide a better waterway during periods of heavy rainfall.

Crews from the City Street Department and County Commissioner's Precinct No. 2 began work Monday on the project. The main channel of the creek will be straightened, and trees, brush and fences removed. This will allow a faster runoff after heavy rains, and prevent destructive backup of flood waters. After last June's heavy rainfall northwest of Winters, the small creek became a raging torrent, and water was held back until it entered several houses in the Sunlawn Addition, and washed out several fences. Although that rain has been classified as a "50-year" rain (once in a 50-year time span) lighter rains have caused considerable damage at times in the past. Also, if water is allowed to stand in the creek, with all the debris, it becomes a breeding place for mosquitoes.

BUSINESS and the STOCK MARKET

Farm Equipment Outlook Improving

By Babson's Reports Inc., Wellesley Hills, Mass., February 24, 1972. It appears at long last that substantial price increases lie ahead for the common stocks of leading farm equipment producers. These issues have trended downward over the past few years and—despite temporary rallies from time to time—have generally received relatively little attention from investors. As 1972 moves along, however, gains in industry sales and earnings are likely, aided by considerably higher government outlays for federal farm programs, an improving economy, and still favorable money rates.

This should, of course, mean that stocks of the leading companies will do better. There are two additional plus factors which make the outlook brighter for farm equipment manufacturers. First the problem of excessive inventories now appears to have been resolved. And, second, the investment tax credit has been reinstated.

Limited Investment Field

An investor seeking representation in a firm whose fortunes are directly linked to the farm machinery sales cycle has a rather limited choice. Numerous companies produce farm implements, components, and—or—agricultural machinery, but there are very few firms in which farm machinery represents the largest percentage or the mainstay of total sales. For example, in 1970 Deere & Co. the biggest domestic manufacturer, derived 76 percent of its sales from farm equipment; and Massey-Ferguson, a worldwide leader, derived 59 percent. But International Harvester's farm equipment accounted for only 31 percent of its total sales and Allis-Chalmers', 21 percent. The same is true of many other corporations turning out selected farm equipment. For instance, Ford Motor makes a broad line of tractors, but it derives 90 percent of sales and 93 percent of pre-tax profits from automotive lines.

Agricultural Evolution

For some years the number of farms and farm workers has been on the decrease, while our population and food requirements have continued to rise. As farms grow fewer, the size becomes greater. Thus, there is a need for newer-type machinery capable of increasing the yields per acre and offsetting the high cost and the scarcity of farm labor. Naturally, there are many variables affecting the sales of farm machinery, and two of the most important are the amount of money available from crops and the level of government support for grain prices. However, we feel that the trend toward greater utilization of more productive machines will continue. Long-range estimates of farm equipment and machinery sales indicate that they will reach $4.67 billion by 1975 and $5.74 billion by 1980, for a compound annual growth rate of 4.2 percent. We look for a farm machinery sales increase of 7 percent in 1972.

Trend Reversal

In our judgment, the long-awaited reversal of the downward trend in producers' sales of agricultural equipment is at hand. So far in 1972, turnover has generally outpaced the previous year's level. The economy is moving ahead, albeit slowly, under the Phase II programs and controls. For the past two years, moreover, efforts have been made by the farm machinery manufacturers to reduce inventories of finished goods. Estimates are that a 30 percent cut in key areas such as tractor inventories has already taken place. This should lead to livelier manufacturing rates, not only to refill those reduced inventories but also to handle the sales increase expected this year of labor peace in the industry.

In summary, the Research Department of Babson's Reports feels that there is presently an extremely favorable potential for price recovery in the stocks of the important agricultural equipment manufacturers, after a long period of depressed quotes. For investors interested in this industry, Babson's Reports has been recommending the stock of International Harvester for appreciation.
