Talk

By R. C. THOMAS

T. A. Smith, who last winter handed out little cards on which were printed a "Wind Chill Chart," has been asked to supply similar cards with "Heat Stroke Charts."

The skies were almost completely clear last Saturday night down at Hords Creek in Coleman County, with only a few fluffy clouds afloat, reminders of those which had dumped showers in several parts of this section of West Central Texas earlier in the evening. A wisp of a moon, waning in the aftermath of a moon, caused the shadows to come and go among the giant liveoak trees lining the banks of the creek which feeds Hords Creek Reservoir. To the unconditioned eye, all sorts of forms and shapes could be imagined in the groves of liveoaks, and the slight leaf, and twig-rustling of night-hunting rodents and other small varmints, along with the contented chirp of roosting birds, hummed a contented tune through the still night air, blasted only occasionally by the cacophonous squawk of an old "Up-the-Creek" crane.

In the acre-size clearing among the liveoaks, however, the stars and slight moon provided more than enough illumination to clearly distinguish such objects as picnic tables and camp chairs, and even an ice chest left on the ground beside a table. There were no flickering shadows to play tricks upon the pupils of a watcher's eyes . . .

A good many years ago, the good people of Dickens County heard and re-told their tales of the "Sump'n," which roamed the fields and pastures, and the creeks and canyons, leaving tracks the size of a man's outspread hand and supposedly larger, and preying upon livestock in the area . . .

The people of Haskell County had their "Thang" a few years ago, with a few reported sightings and many rumors of destruction. The "Thang" gained national attention during its day in the limelight, and all kinds of explanations were brought forward—until the strangeness had worn off, or the trails dimmed, or people grew tired of the reportings . . .

Something — perhaps a change in the tempo of the night-music among the liveoaks, a cough or a sneeze—brought him to a sudden sitting position on the camp cot in the tent, now wide awake and alert, and he stared through the mesh screen of the tent's window. There was something different in the familiar outlines in the star- and moon-bathed clearing, about 50 feet away; something more than the clear outlines of the table, the chairs, the ice chest, this something moved but slightly as he watched; it had a bit more height and bulk than a big German shepherd, and was much longer. In the moonlight, the tip of the tail, which was much longer than the body itself, sliced soundlessly through the night air. The body noticeably stiffened suddenly, and the neck arched as cat ears turned toward a slight noise. Without a sound, the lithe body suddenly hinged, and the tawny cat-creature beat a trotting retreat for a few feet, then changed into a silent lope and disappeared into a grove of liveoak.

When told of the incident, old timers of the area nodded wisely — "It" or "They" — had been seen before, on several occasions. It wasn't really a "Sump'n" or a "Thang," but was simply an animal known variously as a puma, a cougar, a Mexican lion, a mountain lion, a panther, a painter. From

City Makes Counter-Proposal To Lone Star's Request For Increase

In a meeting Monday night, the Winters City Council countered a request by Lone Star Gas Co. for authorization to increase gas rates, with an offer of an increase of 3.5 percent.

The application for the rate increase listed increased cost of buying gas, higher property and equipment costs, increased costs for employee compensation, and other increases as primary reasons for the request.

Lone Star serves more than 1200 customers in Winters. The company's request for a 10 percent increase would raise the average monthly residential gas bill by approximately 66 cents, it was stated.

Day Care Center To Help Working Mothers To Be Operated By Schools

An OEO-financed Day Care Center for children of working mothers will be operated by the Winters Independent School District during the 1972-73 school year, Superintendent of Schools Carroll Tatom has announced.

Approval of the project was made by the Board of Trustees at a meeting last week.

The Center, for four-year-old children, will be operated on the same schedule as the regular school. A maximum of 20 children will be accepted by the Center for this school year, Supt. Tatom said.

Two persons will be employed to conduct the program. Applications for these positions may be obtained at the school administration office.

Information regarding eligibility of children for the Center, and for supervisors of the project, may be obtained at the school business office.

Winters, County Police May Be On State Network

The Winters Police Department and county law enforcement agencies of Rannels County will be included on a statewide radio network, with most of the expense paid through the Federal Government.

The Winters City Council Monday night approved a proposal to join the network, with cost to the city of about $500. West Central Texas Council of Governments, headquartered in Abilene, has indicated approval of the proposal.

It was also understood that the Rannels County Sheriff's Department had agreed to join the statewide network, according to County Judge Elliott.

The Winters Police Department already has direct radio communications with the Sheriff's Department, but if the county law enforcement office goes on the network, and Winters does not, it was pointed out, Winters would have no outside radio hookup.

West Central Texas COG was one of 26 regional and metropolitan area planning councils awarded criminal justice planning grants for fiscal 1973, according to Governor Preston Smith. Amount was $27,300.

It is part of this money which will be allocated for radio communications systems, Mayor Wade White of Winters said.

The awards to regional planning councils come from the Criminal Justice Council, which oversees statewide law enforcement planning and administers funds from the U. S. Department of Justice for crime control projects in Texas.

The West Central Texas grant will be used in implementing action projects outlined in previous plans and in updating the comprehensive five-year criminal justice plan for the 19 counties of the West Central Texas State Planning Region.

Emphasis in the region presently is being given to law enforcement officer training and education, updating and coordinating regional planning; communications; and planning in the fields of juvenile delinquency, probation services, regional corrections and justice of the peace and corporation court judges' training.

West Central Texas COG furnishes professional criminal justice planning services to each local governmental unit in the region's 19 counties and serves as a regional clearinghouse for projects.

These counties are Brown, Callahan, Coleman, Comanche, Eastland, Fisher, Jones, Kent, Haskell, Knox, Mitchell, Nolan, Rannels, Scurry, Shackelford, Stephens, Stonewall, Taylor and Throckmorton.

The region's cash contribution to the criminal justice planning effort for the coming year will be $3,033.

CY CARPENTER

Farmers Union Seminar Set For Wednesday

Cy Carpenter, president of Minnesota Farmers Union, will be the principal speaker at a Rannels County Farmers Union "Sound Off Seminar," Wednesday, June 28, in the Winters City Hall. The meeting will be held from 11 a. m. to 12 noon.

This is one of a series of Seminars sponsored by the Farmers Union, being held throughout the state from June 26 to 30, according to L. B. Watkins of Winters, president of the Rannels County Farmers Union.

Carpenter and John Stencil of Denver, president of Rocky Mountain Farmers Union, will travel with Texas Farmers Union president Jay Naman of Waco and vice president Joe Rankin of Ralls on a flying tour of 25 counties in five days. Since the farm organization officials cannot visit all of the 100 Farmers Union membership counties, some of the meetings will be multi-county.

The purpose of the Sound Off Seminars is to give the farmers and ranchers in the areas visited the opportunity to "sound off" on the problems facing them and the other farm families in their areas. Although the meetings are being arranged by Farmers Union officials, they are open to the public and all who are concerned about the future of rural Texas are invited to attend, Watkins said.

Carpenter was born and raised on a farm near Sauk Centre, Minn. After graduating from high school, he started farming with his father and brothers, continuing the fourth generation of Carpenters who farmed in that community and on some of the same land.

Operating as Carpenter Brothers, Cy and his brothers purchased and operated a farming operation that included crop and purebred livestock production.

In 1956 Carpenter started work for Farmers Union Marketing Association as a field representative for northwestern Minnesota. In 1965 he began work in the Minnesota Farmers Union state office as legislative representative. He was elected State FU secretary in 1969 and served in that office until he was named vice president in 1971. He then was delegated acting president of Minnesota Farmers Union because of the illness of the president.

Carpenter and his family make their home in Bloomington, Minn.

Annual Flea Market Sale Here Friday and Saturday

Friday and Saturday in Winters will be both buyers' and sellers' days, similar in many ways to the old Second Monday Trade Days which were so popular several years ago. Two days during which everyone can participate in buying and selling.

The two days have been designated "Flea Market Days" by the sponsoring Chamber of Commerce, and promoted by the Retail Trade Committee of the chamber.

This "Flea Market," in contrast with many such-named events over the country at which only antiques and rare items are bought and sold, is open to all individuals, clubs, organizations or churches who would like to participate, offering for sale any item they choose.

This event will not be confined to any one building or area of town, but sales stalls may be opened at any downtown location, with property owners' consent.

Also, some individuals or groups may set up concession stands at several locations downtown.

Using the Retail Sale Committee's slogan, "Flea Market—It's A Circus," many Winters merchants also will be featuring "Flea Market Daze" specials during the two-day event, and some will treat the occasion as a sidewalk sale, displaying and selling merchandise on the sidewalks in front of their stores.

Engineers Say Winters Can Furnish Water For Rural Distribution System

The engineering firm of Yeatts & Decker of Abilene has advised the Winters City Council that the City of Winters can furnish water for the proposed North Rannels rural water distribution system.

The rural water group, now in process of incorporating, had requested that Winters study proposals to furnish water for the system, which would be financed through long-term FHA loans and grants. The system would cover most of the rural areas of North Rannels County, and studies have indicated that water demand by customers would not exceed approximately two million gallons monthly. Consumption in Winters alone, during peak use seasons, is slightly more than one million gallons daily, it has been stated.

The engineers said that under ordinary circumstances, the city could provide the water needed by the rural system without problems. An increase in filtering capacity might be needed, it was pointed out, but this could be solved without big problems, it was understood.

The rural group also had requested a study by the City of Ballinger, with reports that that city could provide the water.

First term final examinations will be given July 7. Registration for the second McMurry summer semester will be July 6-7 and finals August 11.

Counterfeit Exhibit At Winters Bank

Great people are always being imitated. And old George is certainly no exception. Can you distinguish between a real U. S. bill and a counterfeit?

An exhibit, to be in the lobby of the Winters State Bank for a week beginning Monday, June 26, will give you an opportunity to find out.

Included in the exhibit will be a device in which are placed genuine bills in denominations of $1, $5, $10, $20, $50, and $100. These are placed beside counterfeit bills. There is a button under each bill. If you push the button under a good bill, a green light will flash. The button under a counterfeit bill will turn on a red light. Woodrow Watts, president of the bank, says the device cannot tell a lie, and that it demonstrates that honesty is the best policy.

The public is invited to see the exhibit and to test their abilities in distinguishing bills.

Secret Agent 'Peiping Tom'
By RALPH NOVAK

NEW YORK (CEF)
Since the revelation that the FBI has been spying on the sex lives of famous Americans, most Americans have become so worried that they are even afraid to remove their clothes to take a shower, lest they be accused of Communist tendencies.

So to get the inside story on the sex espionage program, we arranged a top secret meeting with an agent who is known as "Peiping Tom," apparently because of his work in China during World War II.

When we met Tom he was dressed inconspicuously in a plain brown suit and was carrying his standard equipment: tape recorder, binoculars and a huge leather-bound ledger labeled, "Sightings of Indecent Behavior."

"We asked him to tell us about his job."
"Well, in all modesty, I think I have probably the second most important job in America, right after Monty Hall of 'Let's Make a Deal,' who does such a good, clean-cut job of keeping up the country's morale. My job basically is to make sure nobody important does any subversive kissing or hugging."

"People may scoff but all I have to say is that if the Roman Empire had had somebody like me around, we'd all be speaking Roman today."

Tom's biggest thrill was the day he discovered 25 of the most famous men in America drinking and frolicking together in the nude and immediately put in a person-to-person call to the president to warn him about it.

"Of course I found out later that I was in the locker room of the winning team in the World Series but it went into their file, anyway. You never know about that kind of thing and the effect it might have on national security."

"The job isn't all glamor, though."
"You have to go through a lot," Tom says, unconsciously fondling what he calls his "big black book." "People step on your fingers when you're hiding under a bed, they bore you to death by going to sleep. They always get into the interesting stuff just when you're changing rolls of film and then, too, there's always eye strain."

Tom does his job so well that his colleagues have dubbed him "The Big Eye" and one source says of him: "He has all the tools to be a great one: eyes, ears, the ability to tiptoe, quiet breathing and a history of voyeuristic tendencies. But most important of all, he has the desire."

Tom himself says he is working on his autobiography, "Almost Too Disgusting to Watch," but has no plans for retirement.

"They'll have to tear the binoculars off me," he says.

"As it looks from here"

OMAR BURLESON

Congressman
17th District

Washington, D. C. —Fifteen years ago, when then Chairman of the House Administration Committee of the Congress, I inaugurated a study of how paper work in government could be reduced.

Then, and now, paper work, much of it absolutely nonessential, threatens to bury us, choke business and slow the processes of getting a job done.

Every Governmental Agency issues forms to carry out regulations it has established. It was found during the investigation that more than 30,000 forms throughout the Federal Government were issued each day. Heads of departments and agencies were brought before the Subcommittee on House Administration and queried about the necessity of issuing so many forms to be filled out by individuals and businesses. In most instances an attempt was made to justify all their paper work but much of it was unconvincing.

Regulations, which demand so much paper work and so many copies, are reducing the freedom of the individual citizen. The tremendous cost of filling out forms and reports by business is costly and in the end must be paid for by the taxpayer.

Presently a subcommittee of the U. S. Senate is studying the same thing and has come up with an estimate that all the paper work of Federal, State and local Governments is costing the taxpayers, individuals and businessmen, $36 Billion a year.

With the rise of the many new programs inaugurated by the Congress in recent years, such as the various consumer programs, environmental protection, health and welfare, occupational safety, not to mention income tax forms, paper work has increased many times over. Each agency issues its regulations with all sorts of forms and reports for compliance. Some businesses have to employ people to do nothing else but fill out papers. For example, just a few years ago, plans for airport construction were presented to the government with four or five copies. Today a minimum of 45 copies of plans are required. Overlapping agencies must all be provided with a certain number of copies to determine if their regulations are met. Washington is bulging at the seams with stored papers.

The study of Government paper work reveals that this flood of required reports and applications figures out to ten forms for every man, woman and child in the Nation. In some instances, people have simply gone out of business by not being able to comply. One report shows that a small businessman intended to hire a college student to help him with his paper work. In fact, he hired 3 part-time students but when he found out it took a bundle of paper work to just hire the students, he decided to do the Cheese, one of our oldest foods packed solid with protein, rates as both a luxury and an economical food. It all depends on which cheese you choose, how it's packaged and how much you buy.

CHEESE

Cheese buying puzzles many shoppers since more than 800 varieties from all around the world are marketed, and package labels usually omit cheese flavor descriptions, serving suggestions and storage hints.

Natural cheeses and blends or combinations of natural cheeses are all labeled process cheese, cheese food or cheese spread.

Cheese shoppers can be more selective by remembering a few points:

Aged, or sharp natural cheese usually costs more than mild cheese. Imported often costs more than domestic, and cured or grated more than wedges or sticks.

Refrigeration is generally required to preserve cheese at its best. How long it can be stored depends on the kind and the wrapping.

Soft cheeses are highly perishable. Hard cheeses keep much longer if protected from drying out.

Cheese is delicious served in main dishes, salads, and sauces, served with fruit and crackers or used as a sure-to-please appetizer, dessert or snack.

2 1/2 c. (3/4-lb.) diced cooked ham
2 T. chopped onion
1 c. dairy sour cream
Cook noodles according to package directions; drain. In a large bowl, toss together noodles, ham, cheese, green pepper, onion and salt. Gently blend in sour cream. Turn into a buttered 2-quart casserole. Bake 25-30 minutes or until cheese melts and casserole is heated thru. Top with green pepper rings. Oven—375 degrees. Servings, 6.

Sea Trout Caught In West Texas

PECOS — Bass fishermen scratched their heads in amazement to see Parks and Wildlife biologists pull a saltwater speckled trout from the saline West Texas Red Bluff Reservoir.

A 20-inch, 3 pound ripe male was caught in an experimental net and the scale rings showed it to be more than seven years old.

It must be one of the original six trout which were stocked along with 378 redbreast, 15 flounder and 23 pinfish back in 1964 to determine if such species could live in a saline inland lake. Little has been heard of the pioneer transplants.

The catch is important because it indicates that a salt-water fish can reach maturity and survive in inland water.

There also exists the remote possibility that it may be able to spawn but department biologists note that should spawning activities take place, there is no assurance that the eggs would be fertile or that any young fish would survive should the eggs develop and hatch.

Texans Register
300,000 Boats

AUSTIN — The Texas Parks and Wildlife's Boat Registration Branch reports that 300,000 boats have been currently registered as of May 23, 1972.

Although the common expiration date of March 31, 1972 has passed, transactions are still at a level of 1,000 to 2,000 per day.

Future registrations will not create the same volume problems, however, since the staggered registration program is now underway.

The first expiration date under the program is Sept. 30, 1972. At that time, 13,300 registrations will expire.

Renewal notices will be mailed at a first class rate to these applicable boat owners during July. Each subsequent month shows expirations of 13,000 to 18,000 registrations.

Renewal notices will be mailed during a period of 60 but not more than 90 days preceding each expiration date.

The department reminds registered boat owners that changes of ownership must be reported within 15 days of the transaction according to the Texas Water Safety Act. Failure to do so may result in difficulty in renewing registrations.

The renewal fee and respective notice should be mailed to Austin not later than three weeks prior to the expiration date to facilitate processing.

New or original registration numbers can be obtained without delay by visiting any one of the department's 31 sales offices throughout the state.

Other important improvements have been made in the registration process. The old paper certificate of number has been replaced by a more durable plastic card.

Color coded decals, which remind boat owners of their expiration dates, must now be placed on both the port and starboard sides of the boat three inches to the right of the numbers.

Registration records are now computerized which increases access speed and insures greater accuracy.

By June 30 the department anticipates a 10-working-day processing period for boat registrations.

The overall improved program will result in fast, accurate ser-

Lady Golfers Met Thursday At Club House

Ladies Golf Association met Thursday, June 15, at the Winters Country Club. Approximately 30 members and guests enjoyed golf and a salad supper. Sandy Griffin, president, welcomed guests and new members. After a short business meeting, plans for the future were discussed. The ladies association is working toward a larger and stronger organization this year, and with the "face lift" at the Country Club, more activities are being planned to involve greater participation. There is even a hint that by next summer, the club will be so improved that Winters can host its first ladies invitational tournament.

State Acquires Ft. McKavett Land For Park Use

AUSTIN — The state parks system gets bigger and better every day. The State of Texas recently acquired five tracts of land around historic old Fort McKavett 17 miles west of Menard, according to George C. Adams, Assistant for Land Acquisitions of the Texas Parks and Wildlife Department. Total land obtained in the transaction is 42,012 acres. Prior to the acquisition the park was 14,830 acres. The largest of the new tracts, a 40-acre section, contains an old circular lime kiln built into the side of a hill, a quarry where stone was cut to build the old fort and a spring known as the "Government Spring" which provided water for the troopers of Fort McKavett. Another tract of land contains the fort's old headquarters building and the rock structure is reported to be in good condition. Adams said that two more tracts of land of less than an acre apiece will also be acquired in the near future. Fort McKavett was built back in 1852 by the 8th United States Infantry. It was used for protection of early Texas settlers and in the Civil War. General Ranald MacKenzie occupied the fort in 1868 during his campaign against the Indians in the Texas Panhandle. The fort was abandoned after MacKenzie's campaign and the original park land was obtained by the state in 1967 and 1968. At present, Fort McKavett is a day-use-only park with historic structures and a museum. Cortez found a thriving cotton trade in Montezuma's Mexico.

BUSINESS and the STOCK MARKET

by BABSON'S REPORTS INC.

The Wankels Are Coming! By Babson's Reports, Inc., Wellesley Hills, Mass. June, 1972. The protests of ecologists, conservationists, and anti-pollutionists against the internal-combustion engine and its relative passage of stiff anti-pollution laws, the automotive industry and private groups are now avidly seeking the most feasible means and methods of replacing the conventional reciprocating type of internal-combustion engine with an engine less damaging to the atmosphere.

It is hoped that an acceptable alternative power source will be found that may be used beyond the near term and will help to eliminate the noxious fumes spewed forth on the highways today. While no one particular alternate source has been officially selected, it seems likely that some form of a rotary-powered engine will be the eventual choice of domestic auto makers. The primary contender, the Wankel, has been sought out by the three Detroit giants, and U. S. cars using this kind of power may be on the market within a couple of years. If so, it will mean a long time ago—substantial changes for parts suppliers and manufacturers of components and machine tools.

General concern for cleaning up the environment has brought increased pressure on the auto makers to remove as many automotive-related pollutants as possible. Through programed legislation there are existing standards that must be met and still others that must be complied with by 1975-1976. Auto producers involved must have their products certified and measured to be sure pollutants are within the limitations allowable.

Over recent years the public has been aware of the controversy going on, from the standpoint of both fuel (leaded vs. unleaded gasoline) and the production of new cars. Different methods are being used by the manufacturers to resolve the emission problems. Up to this point, the most effective means of cleaning up present reciprocating engines appears to be through the use of catalytic converters, along with continued motor modifications and adjustments.

It seems likely that in the near future a new or alternative power source will be adopted by the automotive producers. There are many possibilities under consideration—steam, electricity, gas, diesel, jet, turbine, rotary, etc. Of these, however, one type—the rotary engine—is receiving most of the attention in Detroit. General Motors has evidently been the most enthusiastic, enough so to invest some $50 million over a five-year period for the non-exclusive rights. In addition,

GM has set up operations for researching and developing the rotary engine. So, the Research Department of Babson's Reports feels that some form of the rotary will soon make its appearance in a domestic production run, probably in the 1974 model year.

Already On U. S. Market

A Japanese rotary-powered auto, the Mazda, is being imported and merchandised on the West Coast. An estimated 20,000 were sold in the U. S. last year, and forecasts place 1972 sales at triple that amount. Model lines, dealerships, and territories are being expanded. Ford and Chrysler have also negotiated for rights on the Wankel. But GM has bought the engine rights with no further royalty payments after the final purchase bill is paid at the end of 1975. While the internal-combustion engine will be around for some time yet, the rotary—on balance—is smaller, lighter, simpler, and contains fewer moving parts. It uses less fuel compared with conventional engines. With so much going for it, chances are that it could become a predominant power source for autos within the foreseeable future. At present, Babson's Reports is favoring the common stock of General Motors as a buy candidate in this interesting field of development.

(Editor's Note: A number of U. S. newspapermen and columnists were invited to Mexico City last week for briefings on the current visit to the United States of Mexico President Luis Echeverria Alvarez. Echeverria dedicated a Mexican Cultural Institute in San Antonio June 19, also visited Washington, D. C., New York and Los Angeles.)

MEXICO CITY—Mexico opened an institution of higher learning in the United States this week—in San Antonio, Texas. Why?

The answer to that question lies in the personality, leadership and goals of Mexico President Luis Echeverria Alvarez. The new dynamic President of Mexico is visiting the U. S. this week to discuss a couple of major problem areas between Mexico and this country.

If his track record here comes close to his achievements in Mexico since his inauguration Dec. 1, 1970, he will go back home with some commitments about the Mexican laborers in California and the salinity problems of the Mexicali Valley caused by the Colorado River water.

His visit to Texas gave this state a clue to his major goals in Mexico. He dedicated the San Antonio Mexican Cultural Institute—located in HemisFair's Mexico pavilion. It is symbolic of the principal changes Echeverria is attempting in Mexico's way of life.

His enthusiasm and determination to solve Mexico's problems has become contagious among all government leaders in his country.

There is no "siesta" in Mexican governmental circles these days. The new leadership in Mexico is determined also to get rid of the "manana" image—and turn it to "today and tomorrow."

They recognize internal problems—and have programs to do something about them. "Most of Mexico's problems can be solved by education," Echeverria believes.

His program for educational reform in Mexico points out the fact that he means what he says.

Echeverria anticipated the country's education problems before he started his six-year term as president (a president may not succeed himself in that country.)

"President Echeverria studied the country's population statistics and discovered that 500,000 children per year will be entering the elementary education program," states Mexico's Secretary of Education Victor Bravo Ahuja.

"Mexico has a population of 30,000,000—half of which is in the rural areas. One-fourth of the population is between six and 14 years of age. There were no schools for 150,000 students wanting to enter elementary school."

"More than 12,000 new teachers must be trained each year to educate these new students," the Secretary of Education continued.

Mexico will have 11,000,000 or one-fifth of its entire population in elementary school this year. Only 57 percent of the elementary school students finish grade school—and this is up from 45 percent two years ago. Echeverria's goal is to get 75 percent of the grade school students into high school.

He does not believe all high school graduates should go to college. (There are 133,000 students attending the University of Mexico this year.)

Echeverria has more than doubled the budget for technical institutes. Although the cost of college is only $12 to $15 a year tuition in Mexico, the Mexico President is trying to direct high school graduates into technical and trade institutes.

"We believe that it is a mistake to send everyone to a university. The President's education policy has three principal points," the Secretary of Education relates, "giving students a chance to accept every educational opportunity, get into their working lives without frustration, and the economic opportunity for everyone to be educated."

Here are some other facts and figures given to newsmen by Mexico's Secretary of Education Victor Bravo Ahuja.

—27 percent of the national budget (up 23 percent from last year) goes into education.

—66 percent of the people on Mexico's federal government payroll work in education.

—88 percent of education in Mexico is financed now by the Federal government.

With all of this interest on education—it is easy to see why President Echeverria wanted to open a Mexican educational institution in San Antonio.

More buildings will be added later, classrooms, labs and a library. Operated by the Secretary of Foreign Affairs Emilio O. Rabasa, the Institute will feature classes in Spanish for four levels, also anthropology, literature and Mexican history.

Exhibits of Mexican arts and crafts, Mexican painting and excavations of ancient temples will be featured also.

AUSTIN, TEXAS

Legislative leaders are predicting a quick end to their long-dreaded special session which began last Wednesday.

Gov. Preston Smith caught nearly everybody by surprise when he announced he has discovered an additional $125 million in federal funds which can be applied to welfare.

The federal windfall for social services to the needy was Smith's secret weapon to finance 1973 state operations without need for any new taxes.

Most lawmakers had concluded he would recommend an 8-months' budget for welfare to make it possible to avoid another tax bill before he leaves office.

The governor proposed a $4.1 billion budget for 1973 ($318 million from general revenue.)

Lt. Gov. Ben Barnes and House Speaker Rayford Price say they are optimistic about chances of finishing the budget-writing job in two to three weeks.

Submission of other matters would keep the special session going longer, although Smith has indicated he is reluctant to broaden the call. A proposed new code of ethics has been drafted, and there will be pressure on the governor to submit it.

Welfare Commissioner Raymond Vowell told the joint finance committee he fully expects to get written confirmation from Health, Education and Welfare officials next week that the additional funds will be available.

Comptroller Robert S. Calvert, who must certify foreseeable revenue before it can be obligated by the legislature, wants firm evidence the $125 million will be available if he permits it to be counted in 1973 budget-writing. If Calvert declines to certify it, lawmakers almost certainly will turn again to the eight-months' welfare budget idea.

DEMOCRATS CONVENE

George Wallace and George McGovern were high-point winners in Texas delegate strength for presidential nomination at last week's stormy, marathon state Democratic convention.

Democrats milled around for more than 15 hours before they could agree on the slate of 130 Texas delegates who will attend the party's national presidential nominating convention.

Wallace got 42 of the delegates, McGovern 34, Hubert Humphrey 21, and 33 are uncommitted.

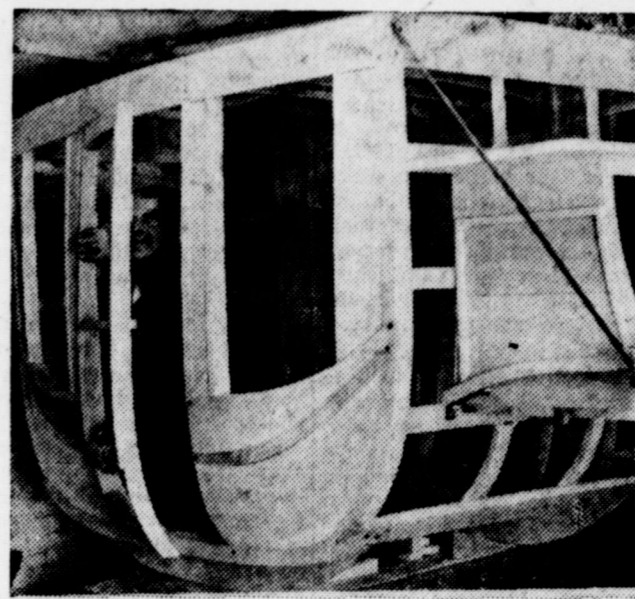

Main fireworks at the long-drawn-out convention came on the election of the largely-ceremonial vice-chairman. State Democratic Executive Committee Chairman Roy Orr of DeSoto was defeated 2,125 votes to 1,795 by Mrs. Eddie Bernice Johnson of Dallas, a black nominee for state representative.

Gubernatorial nominee Dolph Briscoe had his way with other convention officers and nomination of Democratic national committeeman and committeewoman. Jess Hay of Dallas will be the new committeeman and Mrs. Roland (Jane) Blumberg of Seguin, the new committeewoman. Calvin Guest of Bryan served as convention chairman.

GOP'S CLASH

GOP gubernatorial nominee Henry Grover of Houston instructed the convention executive committee to meet and oust the party's state chairman and vice chairman, Dr. George Willeford and Mrs. Malcom Milburn of Austin. Grover claimed the leaders are doing nothing to help him get elected. His proposal was shouted down.

Party leaders deny there is any deep rift, claim they are backing Grover.

Curator of the Michigan State Historical Commission in Lansing, he works from faded photographs and crumbling original coach parts to recreate classic models such as this Abbot-Downing Concord, originally built in Concord, N.Y., in the 1830s.

Big Sand Shark Opens New Record Category

Austin—The Texas Game Fish Records Committee of the Parks and Wildlife Department has accepted a 380-pound sand shark as a new state record.

Morris Kocurek of Corpus Christi caught the fish from the Padre Island surf on March 18, 1972.

The shark, which was 10 feet long and had a girth of 60 inches, was identified as Carcharias taurus, sometimes called sand tiger.

The shark establishes a new category in the state's saltwater fish records, as no sand sharks had ever been submitted to the committee for consideration.

Cotton fabrics range from heavy corduroy to sheer, lightweight voile.

Cotton calico, handprinted with wooden blocks, was first made in Calicut, India.

The cotton gin was invented in 1793.

Amistad Bass

Del Rio — The Amistad bass population got reinforcements in May.

Approximately 200,000 two-to-four-inch fish were released in the huge Amistad Reservoir and more than 500,000 bass have been released in the waters this year.

Parks and Wildlife fish hatcheries also stocked 5,445 Rio Grande blue catfish in the lake last fall to add to the population of blues and channel cats.

COUNTY AGENT'S
WEEKLY NOTES

USE CARE WITH LAWN MOWERS

Many people fail to realize the danger of a piece of equipment they have all used—the lawn mower. With the lawn mowing season in full swing, a few simple safety precautions are offered that may prevent damage to property or even save someone's life.

Before cranking up the mower, be sure the blade is sharp, tight and balanced. Balancing is even more necessary on a lawn mower blade than on the front of a car since the blade travels so fast. A sharp blade will make mowing easier, make a better looking finished job and will do less harm to the grass. A dull mower blade shatters the tops of grass blades, causing them to dry. This gives the lawn a brownish appearance.

When servicing or checking the mower blade, be sure to disconnect the spark plug wire on gasoline engine driven mowers and to unplug electric mowers. Just turning the blade a little may be enough to start a gasoline engine. Unplugging an electric mower may avoid injury if the switch is accidentally flipped. In either case, the difference could be the number of fingers remaining on your hand.

On gasoline-powered mowers, fill the gasoline tank before starting the engine—and always do this outside. Handling gasoline indoors may result in a large enough build-up of fumes to cause an explosion. If refueling is necessary, let the engine cool first. Even a drop of gasoline spilled on the muffler or any other hot part of the engine could start a fire and cause an explosion.

By observing a few safety rules, you can make your lawn mowing season easier and one unmarred by injury.

EAR MUFFS PROTECT AGAINST FARM NOISE
Prolonged exposure to tractor noise can cause hearing loss. Why not guard against such a mishap by investing in a pair of lightweight acoustical ear muffs?

The muffs, similar to those used by ground crews working around jet airplanes, are available through safety equipment and sporting goods stores.

Ear muffs can help reduce hearing losses even if worn only part of the time. Breaking up the lengthy periods of exposure to noise is the important thing as it's the continuous stress that gradually but inevitably does the damage.

Certain danger signals from the effects of loud noises are ringing ears or head noises that persist for a few hours after you get off the tractor, following a day's work. Another sign of trouble is when your own speech seems muffled after you've been around loud noise for an extended period.

A South Dakota study which showed most farm tractors tested made enough noise to be potentially dangerous to hearing. Farmers involved in the test found that acoustical ear muffs reduced the noise to comfortable and acceptable levels. Initial discomfort from wearing the muffs lessened as farmers became used to them.

In Canada a test showed farmers have a greater loss of hearing than the general public. The test also showed that hearing loss is increased the longer farmers spent operating tractors.

Don't take the chance of having your hearing damaged by long exposure to tractor noise. A pair of acoustical ear muffs could be an important investment.

STICKY MATERIAL ON THE CAR
The appearance of a sticky material or honeydew on the car is a good indication that a car has been parked under a pecan tree or other trees that are infested by aphids or similar insects. The yellow pecan aphid is the insect that produces large amounts of honeydew when feeding on the pecan trees.

Honeydew, a saccharine material, when allowed to accumulate on the leaves or car will support the growth of a sooty mold. This sooty mold on the leaves will interfere with photosynthesis by shading the leaf from the sun. The feeding of the aphids and the interference with food production in the leaves by the sooty mold can cause the pecans to be poorly filled at harvest.

The use of insecticides to control the yellow pecan aphid will stop the production of honeydew. Materials that may be used now are malathion or dimethoate (Cygon). Directions given on the label should be followed closely when applying these materials.

Short Takes

Solar System
The solar system is the sun with its group of celestial bodies which, held by its attraction, revolve around it. This group includes, so far as is known, nine major planets with 31 satellites, minor planets or asteroids and, also, comets and meteors.

"Vinegar Bible"
An edition of the English Bible printed in 1716 is known as the "Vinegar Bible" because a printer's error made in the parable of the vineyard substituted the word "vinegar" for "vineyard."

Palm Sunday's Palms
The palm used by churches on Palm Sunday is usually from the cabbage palm, also called palmetto, and from low, shrubby palmetos in Florida. Ashes from the burned palms of the previous year's Palm Sunday are used in Ash Wednesday ceremonies.

Fish Moves on Land
The climbing perch is a renowned land traveler. A native of Asia and Africa, it possesses special breathing equipment which permits it to leave the water and journey overland in quest of a new place to live. To move about, the fish has unusual gill covers, which it uses much like crutches.

Birdwatching In Texas Burgeons
Austin — Texas birdwatchers bested the rest of the nation and Canada during the 72nd annual Audubon Christmas Count.

During the count, birdwatchers try to locate as many birds as possible within a 15-mile diameter in a single day.

The highest total ever tallied in a count was 226 species listed on December 19 by a group around Freeport.

Texas also led the pack with 56 different groups participating in the count.

Data gathered by counters from all over North America is analyzed to map the early winter distribution of a number of species of birds.

Future Looks Bright For Mottled Ducks

LA PORTE—The weather in May along the Texas coast was fit for ducks.

Springtime freshets were distressing for baseball games and picnics, but the resident mottled duck population loved every drop of it.

Rain filled ponds in the uplands and made potholes in the marshes for this year's hatch.

Texas Parks and Wildlife officials are optimistic that mottled duck numbers will swell for the fall hunting season.

Attwater Hatch Lost To Floods

LA PORTE—Spring showers brought trouble for the endangered Attwater Prairie Chicken.

This rare bird is making its last stand along the coast. The torrential rains which fell in the Victoria and Refugio areas in May made a bad situation for the bird even worse.

Most of the 1972 hatch has been lost to floods, according to Texas Parks and Wildlife biologists.

The situation is the most serious in Refugio County where

Hurricane Fern destroyed the 1971 hatch of young birds.

Bill Brownlee of the department has tagged some prairie chickens with tiny radio transmitters which allow him to track the birds.

Brownlee says that what happened to one of the tracked females typifies the plight of the flock. She laid her eggs, incubated them and they hatched when the rains started and the chicks were lost.

Cotton can be made flame-retardant.

the hills, it had come to the creek or lake for water; evidently highly adaptable, it had somehow grown used to apparently empty camp sites, recognizing the scent of man but perhaps not seeing him. Maybe a pound of fresh hamburger meat in a styrofoam ice chest near the picnic table had drawn him into the empty-appearing clearing?

The observer was asked if he had been excited during and after the incidental sighting. Not necessarily, he replied. He had previously decided to change campsites, anyway, and had kept his cool as he put his pants on over his head—the way he always does.

Control Needed
For New Spring
Grass Plantings

Some 3,000 acres of pasture plantings have been completed this spring in the Runnels Soil and Water Conservation District, according to C. J. Robinson, Jr., of the Runnels County Soil Conservation Service office. More than 4,000 acres of range seedings in mixtures have also been seeded. The most popular species have been bermudagrass, kleingrass, sideoats grama, and wintergreen hardinggrass.

With the recent rains in the District, prospects are excellent that most grasses will survive with proper management this summer.

Management is the key to a successful pasture. Without the proper care, a pasture is doomed to failure and disappointment.

During the first year, a young seedling develops the root system. Top growth is slow and care should be given so as to not harm the plant. The leaves manufacture the food and store plant food in the root system, and the root system also gathers plant food from the soil and takes the nutrients to the leaves to manufacture more food.

Grazing should be controlled the first year. Bermudagrass should not be grazed until it reaches a height of 10 inches and grazed no shorter than 6 inches. If bermudagrass is used for hay production, it should not be mowed shorter than 4 inches to maintain proper growth.

Kleingrass should not be grazed before it reaches a height of 16 inches and a stubble height of 10 inches should be maintained.

Weed control is a must for new seedlings and sprigs. The young grass cannot compete for food with a fast growing annual weed the first year. Chemical spray, mowing, and shedding should be used to control of weeds.

After grass is established and root systems developed, the grass will dominate weeds and probably with proper use no control of weeds would be needed by the third year.

Fertilizer is also needed for maximum production from a grass pasture. Bermudagrass needs a fertilizer program to maintain palatability and proper protein content.

The soil should be tested and proper ration of fertilizer should be applied.

Robinson went on to say that pastures can be an asset to most livestock producers in this area because more beef or lamb can be produced with less acres involved.
