... about your Graveside Rites SOCIAL SECURITY Dec. 30th For Burton Infant

About 150,000 retired workers and their families will get higher social security payments starting in 1973 under a special minimum benefit provision of the new social security law," according to J. M. Talbot, social security district manager in San Angelo.

"People who worked over 20 years in jobs covered by social security, but had relatively low annual earnings, may be helped by the special minimum provision," Mr. Talbot said.

The special minimum benefit ranges up to $170 a month for workers who retire at 65 with 30 or more years of coverage under social security, he said. A couple can get up to $255.

Benefits for people who apply before 65 will be reduced because the benefits will be paid for a longer time.

The new provision is effective January 1973.

"Retired people who will get a benefit increase under the new law don't have to apply for it. The increase will be paid starting with checks delivered in early April," Mr. Talbot said. People already getting more than the special minimum will continue to get their regular checks.

For more information, contact the Social Security Office at 3006 West Harris Avenue (P. O. Box 3808) in San Angelo, Texas, or see the representative when he is in your area. Residents of Winters may call toll free by dialing "Operator" and asking for "Enterprise 2058."

BIG BROTHER'S WATCHING

In 1966 the National Highway Safety Bureau of the Department of Transportation was formed. Since then, numerous safety devices have been added to passenger cars and trucks—seat belts, head restraints, padded dashboards, to name but a few. However, this is only the beginning. The list of other devices which are to be included in the future is quite lengthy. Although some of the safety requirements have had their implementation dates effectively postponed, the process of "building safety into automobiles" is in effect.

Thus, the automotive industry will have to learn to live with increasingly stringent product standards, particularly so in such key areas as emission control and safety. Obviously the degree of standards, both in effect and upcoming, will alter the business profile of many auto industry suppliers. For some of these the safety market is a completely new field of endeavor; for other automotive equipment companies, however, it is merely an extension or realignment of their previous activities.

INVESTMENT OPPORTUNITY

The size of the market for auto safety equipment is immense and certainly cannot be covered in a brief review such as this. However, companies in this field should not only benefit from the aforementioned strong automotive demand but also from the increases attributable to the progression of safety standards in 1973. We feel that the added safety regulations will be reflected in sales and earnings increases for suppliers of parts and acces-otive sales and production year. Forecasters anticipate that in calendar 1973 the high level of industry demand will continue and spawn a third successive year with hefty sales and production. We feel that sales and automotive output in 1973 will improve modestly over the 1972 levels—barring a prolonged or massive labor tie-up in this year's contract negotiations with the United Auto Workers.

GOOD INVENTORY POSITION

Presently the level of dealers' new-car inventories is rather low in relation to the rate of new-car sales. Consequently, unless there is a sudden or drastic slump in auto sales—which we do not foresee—the auto makers will find it necessary to maintain higher year-to-year production levels. In fact, auto assemblies are scheduled to post a 27.8 percent increase for January of this year over January 1972. We feel that this effort is being directed to refill the inventory pipelines and at the same time satisfy demand. In the struggle to retain or improve their market share, the manufacturers are keenly aware of the need to provide and maintain a full complement of model supplies in the hands of their dealers.

SOCIAL PRESSURES CREATE MARKETS

However, the foregoing reference to brisk production rates derives its particular importance from the fact that 1973-model cars are equipped with the safety devices now required by government mandates, since these safety items are standard equipment on all 1973 automobiles. The auto manufacturers have no choice but to build in the safety features specified by law, and consumers have no choice but to accept sories for the auto industry this year. Of the numerous companies currently in the automotive field, the Research Staff of Babson's Reports is favoring for purchase the common stock of North American Rockwell listed on the New York Stock Exchange. Other firms expected to participate widely include McCord, Arvin Industries, American Safety Equipment, Raybestos-Manhattan, Kelsey-Hayes, Associated Springs, and Borg-Warner, all of which the Babson Reports Staff considers worthy of retention for appreciation in a well-balanced portfolio.

"Dirty Harry"

Don't let Clint Eastwood's violent screen demeanor fool you. He's a pushover for kindness and consideration. He respects every living thing from kids to kangaroos; he believes in peace and reasonableness, and he has been known to gently urge a common housefly out the window rather than destroy its fragile life with a violent swat.

Clint Eastwood's impenetrable toughness grew, naturally, out of those Italian roles in such films as "A Fistful of Dollars" and "For a Few Dollars More," in which an absence of humane-but admired kind of movie hero. With the international success that came to him in those roles, he stayed more or less in the same type when he resumed making pictures in America.

He was a tough cowboy, or a tough soldier, or a tough deputy sheriff, and right now he's a tough police detective in "Dirty Harry," a Malpasco Production for Warner Bros., Friday, Saturday, and Sunday at the State Theatre, produced and directed by Donald Siegel. Clint plays the title role, the epithet indicating that Harry gets his dirty end of the stick rather than that he plies his profession in a less than admirable manner.

THE FAMILY LAWYER

FIRE INSURANCE ON CIGARS

Once upon a time a man tried to collect fire insurance on a box of cigars. Having smoked them all, one at a time, he argued that they had been "destroyed by fire" and were therefore covered by his policy.

But the court pointed to a rule which is followed almost everywhere in the field of fire insurance: that damage done by a "friendly" fire is not covered. A friendly fire is one that is burning where it belongs—in an oven, in a fireplace, or at the tip of a cigar.

"In common parlance," a court explained, "one has not 'had a fire' so long as it has burned only in the place where it was intended to burn."

This rule has generally been applied not only to things burned on purpose, but also to things burned by mistake.

Consider two examples:
1) a housekeeper threw an envelope into the family furnace, unaware that it contained a valuable ring;
2) a man unwittingly tossed his wife's dentures, wrapped in tissue paper, into a trash fire.

Both the ring and the dentures were ruined in the flames, and claims for fire insurance were filed in both cases. But both claims were later denied in court, since the furnace fire and the trash fire were friendly—burning where they belonged.

Of course, a fire may change its character from friendly to unfriendly.

Suppose that some red hot cinders jump out of a crackling fire-place and set fire to nearby draperies. For this kind of damage, you could indeed collect compensation under the ordinary fire insurance policy.

For, as one court pointed out most of the fires that eventually do cause damage are fires that were friendly when they began. (A public service feature of the American Bar Association and the Texas State Bar Association.)

North Runnels On Edge of Worst Ice Storm Of the Winter Season

An arctic front shivered into the Big Country early Saturday evening, dumping traffic-stalling freezing rain, sleet and some snow, and sending the mercury to the teens once again.

Although North Runnels County did not receive the brunt of the icy storm, except along the extreme north boundary, some freezing rain caused hazardous driving conditions in the area Saturday night and into Sunday in the area. Clear ice collected on utility lines and tree limbs, but little damage was reported early in the week due to lack of high winds, and the temperature continued cold.

Livestock feeders in the area were experiencing difficulty in getting feed to animals, but the immediate Winters area was spared the heavy ice accumulation received in Taylor County and to the north.

Hazardous road conditions were noted to the north, but a visible line of ice ended about the county line near Bradshaw.

Most schools in the tier of counties north of Runnels were closed Monday, and some Tuesday and Wednesday. However, Winters, Wingate and Ballinger schools were open as usual, as ice was not extreme on roads and highways in the immediate area, except on crossings and bridges. Snow beginning early Wednesday morning caused some doubt that North Runnels would continue to be free of bad road conditions, however.

The temperature dropped to 17 degrees Monday morning, just above the season's low of 14 and 15 on December 5-6. The weatherman had promised a let-up by Tuesday, but clouds remained, and a low of 15 was recorded Tuesday morning, and the temperature stayed at 18 or below all day, for a low Tuesday night of 15. Light snow and drizzle was experienced at times most all day Tuesday.

THE WINTERS ENTERPRISE
Winters, Texas

The week's ice storm in this immediate area was not accompanied by heavy winds, accounting for minimal damage to power and phone lines. However, to the northwest, telephone lines were reported heavily coated with ice and down in the Blackwell area Monday night. Utility companies in the area had not by Wednesday noon reported heavy damage due to ice, but crews and stations were alerted to expect trouble in case the freezing rain and snow increased, and in the event the wind velocity increased.
