HOME TOWN

Talk

By R. C. THOMAS

Been given an opportunity to help out in a friendly family argument—wouldn't want to add or take from—just help answer a question or so, give some facts and information—and then stand back out of range and watch.

The Enterprise has had a communication from Mr. and Mrs. Herschel Barnhill Jr., of Corpus Christi, and they say they've had a friendly argument going for the past 30 years, comparing his home town of Winters, Texas, with her home town of Hoxie, Ark. She said her home town is growing, and they were wondering about his home town.

Well, we don't know anything about Hoxie, but we'd say his home town has grown some since he's been gone—he probably wouldn't know the old place now. With our several industries, the oil development which has been going on for years, the new churches, the fine school system, and the new hospital building. To say nothing about the airport southwest of town which is about to undergo a big overhaul. To help put the point across, we'll send them one of the new brochures the Chamber of Commerce plans to release this week—perhaps that will give them some indication of what his old home town is all about.

Also, they said their son is sports-minded, and has in this instance stepped over on Pop's side, saying that Winters has a better football team (The Blizzards) than that other town. Again, we don't know about that—we don't know what kind of town that other one is. Too, it seems he has forgotten the lyrics of the Winters school song (1939), but we couldn't help them on that.

Anyway, they want to start getting The Enterprise to eliminate one handicap—she gets her hometown paper. And we can certainly help there—we'll start getting it this week. We hope, though, that it doesn't deepen the argument into a gap—just intensify it a bit.

Everybody—or nearly—is always talking about saving and conserving and preserving this or that. Save the land, save the birds, save the trees, conserve the water, etc. If all the energy consumed in the talk could be devoted to direct action, there would be some tangible results, perhaps.

But, according to a recent article in Parade Magazine, one woman in Cherry Hill, N. J.,

Larry Awalt Hospital Fund Is Started

Larry Awalt, son of Mr. and Mrs. Virgil Awalt of Winters and Wingate, has been critically ill in a hospital in California.

"Because of the nature of the illness, expenses have mounted to staggering proportions. Friends of the community have opened a fund to help defray some of the heavy expenses connected with Larry's illness, and have invited others to join them if they wish.

Contributions to the fund may be made at the Beauty Center, Huffman House, or directly to the fund at The Winters State Bank. Checks may be made to the Larry Awalt Fund.

Larry is married. He attended the Wingate School, and graduated from Winters High School. After a term of service in the Armed Forces, he was employed in California, before becoming bedridden.

"Seven Days a Week" To Present Concert Friday In Civic Center

The "Seven Days A Week" singing group from Wayland Baptist College, Plainview, will present a concert in the Winters Community Center Friday night, February 16, beginning at 9:30 p. m.

The concert is being sponsored by Winters Piggly Wiggly, and there will be no admission charge. Donations will be accepted during the evening, to go to the West Texas Rehabilitation Center.

The 9:30 p. m. concert time was set in order to prevent conflict with the annual Chamber of Commerce membership banquet, which is scheduled for the same evening. The banquet will be over in time for those attending to also attend the concert in the Community Center.

The "Seven Days A Week" group from Wayland appeared in Winters last June, and the group has filled engagements in high schools, universities, Lions Club banquets, and for other civic organizations in Texas, Oklahoma and New Mexico.

Babs Tatum, a senior student at Wayland, and the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Walker Tatum of Winters, is a member of the "Seven Days A Week."

Kirby Robinsons Are Selected For Outstanding Farmer Award

Mr. and Mrs. Kirby B. Robinson of the Norton Community have been selected for the Outstanding Conservation Farmer Award in the Runnels Soil and Water Conservation District, according to Jake Presley, chairman of the district.

The Robinsons own and operate 335 acres of land in the Norton area, and entered into a District Cooperative agreement with the Runnels S&WCD in September, 1950.

With technical assistance from the Soil Conservation Service, and cost-share assistance from the Rural Environmental Assistance Program, Robinson constructed 46,860 feet of level closed-end terraces for moisture conservation and erosion control in addition to carrying out a good conservation cropping system which includes rotation, management of crop residues and contour farming.

Wildlife upland habitat management also has been carried out on the Robinson farm, by leaving existing cover of brush and vegetation along the creek bottom for wildlife food and cover.

Robinson and his wife, the former Alpha Bryan, "live, talk, and practice conservation," according to Harvey Kahlden, district conservationist with the Soil Conservation Service. "We would like to extend our congratulations to Mr. Robinson for being selected as the outstanding farmer in the district," he said.

In addition to being a good conservationist and active director of the Runnels S&WCD for 22 years, Robinson is a charter member of the Norton Lions Club, a director of the Coleman County Rural Electric Administration, and a director of the Winters State Bank. He has also served two terms as a member of the FHA County Committee.

County ASCS Office Will Not Be Moved

The Runnels County ASCS office will not be moved nor consolidated with ASCS offices in other counties, County Judge Elliott Kemp said this week.

Following announcement of consolidation or closing of some ASCS offices in some Texas counties, there had been a feeling—a rumor only, Judge Kemp said—that the Runnels County office would be consolidated with the Coleman County office, and all Runnels activity conducted from the Coleman office.

Judge Kemp was in Washington, D. C., last week and conferred with several Congressmen and with Senator John Tower's office. He said Sen. Tower's office informed him that the Runnels County ASCS office would not be affected by the recent consolidation or closing plans, at least not "within the foreseeable future."

Further, Judge Kemp said, Sen. Tower's agricultural staff member assured him that no county in this area, bordering on Runnels County specifically, would be affected nor would be consolidated or moved.

Texas Ranger Medal Offered At Winters Bank

Official medals, commemorating the 150th anniversary of the Texas Rangers, have been released, and are now available at The Winters State Bank.

The medal was authorized by the Texas Ranger Commemorative Commission, which the Texas Legislature created to ramrod appropriate celebration of the 150th birthday of this historic band of Texas law enforcement officers.

Noted western artist Ruiz Grandee painted one of Texas' foremost Rangers, Captain Alexander H. McNelly, for the face of the medal. The result is well worth the attention of the discriminating collector.

The medal is available in two materials—oxidized bronze at $1.00 each, and a 999 fine silver medal at $10.00. Proceeds from sale of the medals go toward funding operating costs of the Texas Ranger Hall of Fame to be built at Waco.

A REVIEW OF SILVER
Wellesley Hills Mass. — Reflecting increased industrial demand and a decline in warehouse stocks, silver prices moved higher throughout 1972. With the domestic economy likely to heat up further, consumption may well post another increase this year and widen the consumption-production gap. Moreover, continued turmoil on international money markets could stimulate speculative demand. With warehouse stocks still on the decline, the outlook favors additional price gains as 1973 unfolds.

DEMAND UP IN 1972
Handy & Harman in its latest annual review of the silver market, estimates that industrial consumption of silver in the United States was up about 10 percent over the 1971 level. Almost all major categories registered an increase last year. While the electrical and electronic category showed the largest gain, other segments chalking up a good increase were photography (the largest consuming category), sterling ware, and commemorative and collector arts. The latter category has registered significant gains in recent years.

NEW OUTPUT IN SLIGHT DIP
Contrary to demand, new production of U. S. silver dropped off somewhat last year. Again, according to Handy & Harman, U. S. production receded to 38 million ounces in 1972 compared with 41.6 million in 1971. Thus, while domestic consumption was up about 10 percent last year, output was off almost 9 percent. On a worldwide basis, total industrial consumption rose about 6 percent, while consumption for coinage increased from 27.3 million ounces to 40.5 million. Thus, total world silver consumption (excluding communist-dominated areas) was up approximately 9 percent. On the other hand, new output (also excluding communist-dominated areas) dropped off some 2 percent last year.

There are, of course, other supplies of silver such as demeterized coins, speculative holdings, salvage, and fairly large quantities in the form of religious and artistic articles. So, although the last of the weekly auctions of GSA ended in November 1970, other sources of silver are available. There is, of course, always the question of how much of this silver will be on the market at any given price.

Hecla, were adversely affected by the disastrous fire which closed down Sunshine Mine operations for a number of months. Limited work at the mine has now been resumed.

HIGHER PRICES THIS YEAR
With industrial activity likely to quicken further in the current year, domestic demand for silver will probably rise again in 1973. This will keep upward pressure on silver prices over coming months. If the international monetary situation fails to stabilize, speculative demand may also rise, lending further support to the higher price trend. Longer term, the price trend, supported by the production-consumption gap, appears almost certain to move higher. The price level at any specific time, however, will depend on a great many variables, especially speculative demand and psychological attitude.

At the present time, the Research Department of Babson's Reports is maintaining a hold position on both Hecla Mining and Sunshine Mining, two leading domestic silver producers that should benefit from the higher price for silver. Last year's results for Sunshine Mining, and to a lesser extend for

By BILL BOYKIN

AUSTIN—First formal step toward rewriting the patchwork 1876 Texas Constitution was finally approved by the Legislature and Gov. Dolph Briscoe last week.

Briscoe lost no time in signing into law legislation authorizing appointment of a 37-member Constitutional Revision Commission when both houses finally agreed on terms.

The Commission which will study the constitution and make recommendations to the legislature when it convenes as a constitutional convention next year, will go to work within 14 days after it is named. It has only until November 1 to complete its hearings, study and report to lawmakers.

Under the legislation, Briscoe will serve as chairman of the six-member selection committee to pick the study commission. Other selection committee members are Lt. Gov. Bill Hobby, Atty. Gen. Hill, House Speaker Price Daniel Jr., Supreme Court Chief Justice Joe Greenhill and Court of Criminal Appeals Presiding Judge John Onion Jr.

Legislators served notice they want the Commission to be fairly and equitably representative of sexes, ethnic, social and economic groups and geographic regions.

Recommendations for membership already are pouring in from interest groups.

A majority vote of the House (76 members minimum) and Senate (at least 16) could reject the selection committee's choice of a commission slate.

A controversial provision of the legislation permits the selection panel to meet in secret (by majority vote) to consider its appointments, after first holding an open session and later meeting publicly for final formal action.

SHIELD, LOBBY BILLS ADVANCE
The proposed "free flow of information law" to protect newsmen from forced disclosure of their confidential sources of information has passed the House with only a handful of dissenting votes.

At the same time, the House passed (with just 25 dissenting votes) a tough lobby control bill. Both measures are part of the reform package of Speaker Daniel who also backed amendments to the open meetings law and a measure to ease access to governmental documents in the public interest.

Sponsors of the shield law fought off five amendments to weaken protection against source disclosure.

The lobby control act, to be administered by a 12-member ethics commission, would require reports of lobbyists' activities, including gifts or loans of more than $50 in any month of a legislative session to legislators.

Both measures now advance to the Senate, where a somewhat less-enthusiastic reception is anticipated.

COURTS SPEAK
A Fort Bend County man won reversal of a 35-year sentence for robbery by firearms when the Court of Criminal Appeals held a guilty plea is invalid unless the defendant is advised of consequences of the plea.

State Supreme Court denied a writ of habeas corpus to a Temple man who was jailed after he refused to produce 47 magazines in an obscenity case in which he had been convicted earlier.

Court of Criminal Appeals held circumstantial evidence was insufficient to convict a Harris County man for heroin possession.

A Jefferson County murder conviction was also thrown out by the Court of Criminal Appeals because the defendant was not advised of consequences of pleading "no contest."

ETHICS CONFERENCE CALLED
Lt. Governor Hobby will invite about 150 representative Texans to discuss governmental ethics during a conference here late next month.

The Lieutenant Governor indicated he wants advice on what legislation to create a state code of ethics should contain. An ethics bill already has been introduced.

In another recent opinion, the Attorney General held that requirements for membership on the Texas Board of Examiners in the Fitting and Dispensing of Hearing Aids include a provision that one member be a licensed physician or surgeon specializing in otolaryngology and another be a trained audiologist—both actively practicing.

AIR'S CLEANER NOW
According to the Texas Air Control Board, air pollution has abated a bit.

Samplings over a two-year period indicated a slight improvement. A Board report maintained.

The Board further claimed its program of permitting polluters additional time to clean up the messes they make has been successful in obtaining voluntary compliance with standards.

AG OPINIONS
Atty. Gen. John Hill advised Governor Briscoe the state cannot intervene to prevent abortion during the first three months of pregnancy. Only during the last three months of pregnancy is state regulation possible under a January 23 U. S. Supreme Court decision. Hill wrote.

Briscoe also named Joe D. Carter as chairman of the Texas Water Rights Commission. Carter has served on the Commission since 1961. He was executive secretary of the Texas Water Development Board 1958-1961. He succeeds former Sen. Dorsey Hardeman of San Angelo, who served briefly by choice of former Gov. Preston Smith as chairman. Hardeman remains on the Commission.

Waterfowl Plan Approved By P-W Commission

AUSTIN — The Texas Parks and Wildlife Department is embarking on a new program which may prove a boon to waterfowl hunters—the establishment of waterfowl sanctuaries on major East Texas reservoirs.

The Parks and Wildlife Commission has approved a pilot program for approximately 3,600 acres on the upper bend of Toledo Bend Reservoir.

Department Executive Director Clayton Garrison now has commission approval to negotiate with the Sabine River Authority for the management license for this area.

Department biologists say the establishment of waterfowl management areas adjacent to heavily hunted areas often results in improved hunting.

Major reservoirs in East Texas support relatively high waterfowl populations for brief periods, biologists say, but hunting pressure or the deterioration of habitat conditions soon result in a reduced waterfowl population and declining hunter success.

The site under consideration by biologists is 11 miles northeast of Center and contains 300 to 400 acres of old fields. Initial plans call for the planting of these fields in waterfowl foods.

The site will not be open to hunting. Future developments would include the construction of a water control structure to create a sub-impoundment of approximately 2,000 acres.

Department biologists also propose a demonstration project on Catfish Creek on the Engeline Wildlife Management Area bottomlands.

The objective of this proposal would be to demonstrate to landowners economical methods of improving waterfowl habitat in the hardwood bottoms of East Texas.

Small ponds of water will be formed by plugging old sloughs or throwing up small levees in the bottoms with standard farm equipment. These structures will be of a temporary nature but should form small "green tree reservoirs" of the type used in the Arkansas bottomlands with great success.

Each hunter is allowed to hunt two days and may kill two javelinas.

The 15,200-acre Chaparral Area is located eight miles west of Artesia Wells.

Department officials say the hunt was a part of wildlife research programs on the area and not necessarily an indication of high javelina populations.

Small increases will be paid to widows who first got checks before 65. "For example," Talbot said, "a widow who started getting payments at 62 will now get 82.9 percent of her husband's benefit. Previously, she got 82.5 percent." Widows who get no increase under the new law will be mostly sole survivors whose husbands would have qualified for minimum retirement benefits, Talbot said.

The new law also applies to benefits paid to some 500,000 dependent widowers. "Like widows, dependent widowers can now start getting reduced benefits at 60," Talbot said. "Previously, widowers had to wait until they were 62 to start getting retirement checks based on their wives' social security records."

For more information, contact the Social Security Office at 3909 West Harris Avenue in San Angelo, or see the representative when he is in your area.

Persons who are unable to meet with him are encouraged to call the office in San Angelo. Residents of Winters may call toll free by dialing "Operator" and asking for "Enterprise 2058."

Public Javelina Hunt Drawing
AUSTIN—Some 200 Javelina hunters won a free weekend hunt on the Parks and Wildlife Department's Chaparral Wildlife Management Area thanks to lady luck in the person of Miss Betsy Booker, a sophomore at the University of Texas in Austin.

Miss Booker drew the hunters' names from the hopper during public drawing ceremonies Jan. 18 in the John H. Reagan Building in Austin.

The Parks and Wildlife sponsored hunt is an annual event and attracted 1,440 applicants this year.

The first 100 eligible hunters took to the field Feb. 3-4 follow-

Primitive Camping, Hiking Allowed In Pedernales Falls State Park

AUSTIN—A portion of a popular state park has been set aside for the purpose of backpacking and primitive camping.

In a recent meeting, members of the Texas Parks and Wildlife Commission approved a primitive camping plan for Pedernales Falls State Park. Parks and Wildlife Department officials say that most of the limiting facilities had already been installed for the February 1 opening date.

These facilities include signs, trail markers, a small clearing for the camping area, trash receptacles and two chemical toilets.

A fee of $1 will be charged for each camping unit using the camp with a maximum of eight individuals constituting one camping unit.

Instructions to primitive campers include telling them that they are beginning an experience designed to remove them from everyday "civilized" life to which they have been accustomed.

"The country through which will walk has been allowed to revert to its natural condition," says an instruction sheet. "The incursions of man have been kept to a minimum."

The visitor is encouraged to maximize his experience in this natural setting by closely examining and experiencing the sounds, smells and the feel of nature.

"The satisfaction and achievement of traveling through and camping in a primitive area can be complete only if the user leaves no sign of his visit . . . no perceptible traces," according to the sheet, which also admonishes, "Take only photographs and memories, leave only footprints."

Overnight camping is permitted only in the designated primitive camping area. Rules prohibit the rearranging of the landscape with rock ramparts or windbreaks.

Cutting branches, digging trenches or holes or leveling an area for a bedside are also prohibited.

Campfires are not permitted in the primitive area due to the lack of natural firewood in the area and because of the possibility of wild fires.

Cooking is allowed only on containerized fuel stoves.

Toilet facilities are located adjacent to the trail at the designated camping area. All garbage and litter are to be packed out of the area for disposal in trash receptacles located at the designated camping area and at the trail head. Burying garbage is not permitted.

Visitors are asked not to cut corners or cut across switchbacks on the trails since this results in erosion and gullying.

They are also asked to be considerate of others when camping. The instruction sheet says, "Do not crowd your neighbors. Noise is out of place in the primitive area. Many careful hikers can use the area and do less harm than one careless or inconsiderate individual."

Seafood Ideal For Dieters, Says P&W Economist

Austin—with a bit of imagination and a dash of color, Texas seafoods offer the dieter an ocean of low-calorie variety.

Cindy Gray, home economist for the Texas Parks and Wildlife Department, says the possibilities are endless for light lunches, satisfying suppers, and sensible snacks. Seafood also offers a high-protein way to start the day.

To stay with a diet until you reach a goal, you need foods that give a sense of satisfaction as well as nourishment. Fish and shellfish give you both vitality and a wonderful, well-fed feeling because in addition to being high in protein, they are 80 to 95 percent digestible and rich in energy-giving vitamins and minerals.

Here's a recipe which will help you stay slim with seafood. Other recipes for dieters are contained in a brochure, "Stay Slim With Seafood," available from "Seafood," Texas Parks and Wildlife Department, John R. Reagan Building, Austin, Texas 78701.

"SPICY SNAPPER"
2 pounds snapper fillets, or other fish fillets
2/3 cup tomato juice
3 tablespoons vinegar
2 tablespoons salad oil
1 envelope (½ ounce) old fashion French dressing mix

Skin fillets and cut into serving-size portions. Place fish in a single layer in a shallow baking dish. Combine remaining ingredients and mix thoroughly. Pour sauce over fish and let stand for 30 minutes, turning once. Remove fish, reserving sauce for basting. Place fish on a well-greased broiler pan. Broil about four inches from source of heat for four to five minutes. Turn carefully and brush with sauce. Broil four to five minutes longer or until fish flakes easily when tested with a fork. Makes six servings. Approximately 155 calories in each serving.

Hunting Violations Soar During December

AUSTIN—The waning days of deer season kept game wardens busy across the state.

Wardens filed 1,111 hunting violations during December.

Topping the list were 161 citations for hunting at night, followed by untagged deer and killing or possessing deer in closed season.

Not to be outdone by the hunters, 196 fishermen managed to get caught in the middle of some surreptitious act. All but a few were for no fishing license, a $2.15 investment.

December's hunting and fishing violations netted the State of Texas $78,706.

In individual instances, Freestone County Game Warden Randall Goff caught three men hunting at night after they had killed three deer. The three were fined $1,800.

The next night Goff caught seven men hunting at night. These men were fined $700.

Since the deer season has opened in Freestone County, Goff has filed 65 cases for illegal hunting. Total fines for these cases have amounted to some $7,000.

In Cameron County, Don Powell filed 13 cases with fines totaling $1,933.50. Powell was checking a locker plant in Willacy County and found six illegally killed deer. One man was fined $416 for killing four of the does, and another was fined $246 for killing two of the does. Does are not legal game in Willacy County.

Game Warden Gene Bruce whose territory includes Cass County had a busy two days in December. He caught two men with illegal deer. A Cass County judge fined the men $411.

Two days later when Bruce was patrolling at 5:30 a. m., he caught four men with illegal deer. The four were fined $1,644.

That same day Bruce caught a Linden man netting crappie, an illegal act. The man was fined $10.

Rare Cats Under Federal Law Shield

AUSTIN—Endangered spotted cats, some found occasionally in Texas, are getting some help on the federal level.

Federal law makes it illegal to import eight species of spotted cats, including the leopard, snow leopard, cheetah, jaguar, ocelot, margay, tiger and tiger cat. Ocelots and margays are found in Texas.

The importation of these species is banned except by permit from the U. S. Fish and Wildlife Service for zoological, educational, scientific or propagation purposes.

The ban includes . . . the dead body or parts thereof whether or not included in a manufactured product." In other words, it is illegal to import the skins of these animals for the purpose of making clothing.

NUTRITIOUS DRIED BEANS

You can count on economical, versatile dried beans, whenever you feel the need to hold down your food bill, without a severe cut in your family's nutritional intake.

Dried beans always are in good supply. Stocks were unusually high in January. They fit into any meal occasion, at any time of year, and they're especially suitable for cool spring days.

Dried beans provide a wealth of energy and nutrition at a nominal cost per serving. They contain B vitamins, such as thiamin and riboflavin; invaluable protein; and iron. In fact, a three-fourths cup serving of dried beans provides almost a third of the iron recommended daily for an adult male.

When buying dried beans, try to buy them in cellophane or other types of "see through" packaging. Then, look for these factors—brightness of color, uniformity of size and visible defects. In addition, read the label carefully since it may give important instructions for preparation.

Always wash dry beans before cooking them. Then, they should be soaked before cooking to reduce the time required for cooking. Soaking overnight is a frequent practice. However, a quick way to speed up the soaking process is to boil the beans in water for two minutes. Then remove them from the heat and soak for one hour—now they are ready to cook.

Always boil beans gently and stir very little in order to prevent breaking their skins unless, of course, you are making bean soup. Rapid boiling or too frequent stirring can result in moist beans.

Another thing that should be kept in mind is that dried beans expand when cooking. For example, depending on the variety, one cup of dried beans will yield anywhere from 2 to 2 3/4 cups of cooked beans.

BEAN SOUP

1 lb. dried beans (navy or great northern)

1 smoked ham bone, meaty

1 c. chopped onion

3 med. size potatoes (cooked and mashed)

1 c. chopped celery

2 cloves garlic, minced

Wash and soak the beans. Add enough water to make 5 quarts. Add the smoked ham bone (a sizeable ham hock may be used). Simmer about 2 hours or until the beans begin to mush. Add the potatoes, onion, celery and garlic. Simmer for 1 hour. Remove the bone, trim the meat off it and put meat back into the soup. Season to taste with salt and pepper. Makes about 4 1/2 quarts.

BOSTON BAKED BEANS

2 c. dry navy beans

6 c. (1 1/2 qts.) water

1/4 lb. salt pork, cut in chunks or slices

1/4 c. dark molasses

1 1/2 tsp. salt

1/4 c. brown sugar, packed

1 tsp. dry mustard

2 tsp. chopped onion

Boil beans in water 2 minutes. Soak 1 hour, or overnight if preferred. Add salt pork and salt to beans and simmer until beans are tender. Drain, saving 1/2 c. liquid. Place beans in a 3-quart casserole dish. Combine liquid from cooked beans, brown sugar, mustard, onion and molasses. Pour over beans. Bake uncovered at 350 degrees F. for one hour, or until beans are lightly browned on top and of desired consistency.

Happy Homemaking

When packing cosmetics for traveling, fill and label plastic prescription bottles with the needed hand lotion, cleansing cream, powder, astringent, etc., from large economy-size packages. This not only prevents breakage and spillage but narrows everything down to a compact size.

If you do not have a rod in the back of the car for hanging clothes, get a small chain, such as a dog chain, and suspend it from one hook across the back seat to the other. Coat hangers can be hooked into the chain links and will not slide to the center or interfere with the driver's view of the rear. The chain can be taken out easily and put away for another trip.

Carry a piece of reflective tape in the glove compartment of your car. If one of your head lamps burns out, make a cross of tape over the dead lamp until you can get to a repair station. The reflective tape will enable oncoming drivers to tell where you are and may avoid a head-on crash.

When on an extended trip, take your telephone directory along. You will be surprised at how many forgotten addresses it supplies.

COUNTY AGENT'S WEEKLY NOTES

VEGETABLE GARDENS

The planting date for vegetables is dependent upon the hardness of the particular species or variety. Those which are HARDY (broccoli, cabbage and lettuce) may be planted before the average last frost date in the area. Those which are half-hardy (carrot, chard, and beets) may be planted about a week before the last frost date. The TENDER vegetables (beans, corn, tomato and eggplant) should not be planted until a week after the average last frost date. The average in this area is around March 20.

The rows in the garden should be spaced as close together as possible to secure high yields, and yet far enough apart to allow space for the plants to grow and room to walk. Crops like onions, leek and root crops may be planted in double rows or in bands several inches wide to secure high yields.

A more complete utilization of soil moisture and nutrients will be secured when plants are spaced evenly along the row rather than in hills. The minimum distance between rows is gased on cultivation with hand tools, or the use of mulch. If you use power equipment, the rows must provide space for the passage of the equipment.

In good loamy soil, most vegetable seeds should be covered to a depth of about 4 times their longest dimension. In sandy soils plant them deep, and in clay soil, shallower. During the summer, when the soil is warm and dry, plant the seeds deeper. The emergence of young seedlings from a heavy soil will be improved if the seeds are covered with sand or vermiculite.

TRANSPLANTING

Set seedling plants about one inch lower than they grew in the flat or peat pot. If the peat pot has been kept continually moist and is soft, with roots protruding, it should not be removed. When peat pots have been allowed to become dry and hard, root growth through them will be retarded, and the pot should be removed before the plant is set out. In all cases, it is advisable to remove all portions of the pot which extend above the soil ball of the seedling plant.

The use of a starter solution instead of water when setting young vegetable plants will add nutrients and promote rapid recovery from the transplanting operation. Apply one cupful around each plant when it is set, and repeat every day for about 4 applications. Follow the instructions on the package in mixing the solution.

Fix-It Tip

Very few things around a home are on the level—and this has nothing to do with the moral climate. We are talking about walls, floors and ceilings.

When you put up shelves, install cupboards, lay floor tile or hang wallpaper, you will discover the true state of things; walls are not truly vertical, floors slope and ceiling height varies.

Always use a level, an inexpensive tool that will do what your eyes cannot. Use a level to check appliances. They will work better when properly leveled.

Being out of level puts a strain on washing machine and refrigerator motors. An out-of-level stove results in a lopsided cake.

...about your SOCIAL SECURITY

Students who get monthly social security payments may now get checks for a time after their 22nd birthday, according to J. M. Talbot, social security manager. Under a change in the law, an undergraduate student can continue to get social security payments through the end of the semester or quarter in which he reaches age 22, Talbot said.

If the student's school does not use the semester or quarter system, payments can continue until he completes the course he's taking or 2 months after he reaches 22, whichever comes first.

The change means students will no longer face the problem of having their benefits stop in the middle of a school term, he said. About 590,000 students are now getting monthly checks because a parent insured under security retired, became disabled, or died. Checks for dependent children normally stop at age 18, but payments continue to 22 for young people who are in school full-time and remain unmarried. Under previous law, social security payments stopped when the student reached 22.

West Texas Utilities Company An Equal Opportunity Employer

Capitol Report

BY REP. LYNN NABERS

In less than three weeks after the start of the 63rd Legislative Session, a time used in previous sessions by the Speaker to study and make committee assignments, the Texas House of Representatives was already voting on bills crucial to the reform movement.

After many hours of debate and numerous attempts to add on amendments, a revision of the open meetings law was finally passed. House Bill 3 was given overwhelming support by the House in a 132 to 13 vote. Approval of the law making meetings of the governmental bodies open to the public was one more step toward implementation of the newly-elected Speaker's reform program.

A bill postponing the mandatory quarter system in public schools until the 1975-76 school year passed the House and was sent to the Senate where it has been referred to the Education Committee. My mail has indicated great interest in this legislation, therefore, I would like to devote a portion of this column to this particular subject.

At the present time, courses are taken for a full school year and are worth one full credit or for one semester and worth 1/2 credit. House Bill 92 provides that in 1975, schools will have to institute some changes in their curriculum because the nine month school year will be divided into three semesters rather than the present two. This will mean that three semesters, each lasting three months, will constitute a school year. A three month semester of summer school will be optional. Courses will then be given on a 1-3, 2-3, or 3-3 basis, the 3-3 credit being equal to one full credit and being given for courses that encompass the entire school year, or three semesters. An amendment, which I supported, was offered to leave this decision up to each school district; however, the amendment received only 35 votes out of the 151.

House Bill 200, a bill designed to reinstate the death penalty for certain murders and of which I am a co-sponsor, came before the Committee on Criminal Jurisprudence this week. Testimony offered gave evidence to substantiate theories both for and against retaining the death penalty. The leading arguments of opponents seemed to be the fact that the death penalty has been declared unconstitutional and that there is no evidence showing the death penalty to be a deterrent to crime.

Professor Daniel B. McGee, professor of Religion at Baylor University, stated that the death penalty is unjustifiable and morally indefensible, while Austin attorney, Frank Maloney, testified that in his opinion it would be impossible to write a bill that would comply with the Supreme Court decision. Other opponents testifying included Professor Alan Sager, professor of law at the University of Texas, testifying on behalf of the American Civil Liberties Union and the Texas Civil Liberties Union, and Dr. Harold Hyman, professor of Constitutional History at Rice University.

Proponents speaking for this legislation were ready with equally convincing testimony. Houston District Attorney, Carol Vance, testified that murders have increased more than 100 per cent in Houston since the U. S. Supreme Court declared the death penalty unconstitutional, the increase being attributed mainly to armed robberies. The District Attorney from Beaumont, Tom Hanna, continued this line of testimony, stating that a national poll showed that 5 per cent of all Americans would like to see the death penalty restored.

Committee members voted to ask for an attorney general's opinion on the constitutionality of this bill after which testimony will be continued.

had an idea on conserving the water supply. Instead of just talking about it, she did something. It was so simple it was hard to put across to those in the power seats, but put it across she did, and as a result, that city of about 17,000 homes "saved about 34 million gallons of drinkable water a year," according to Parade. And all it cost was $2000 which the council was persuaded to lay out for a bunch of bricks!

When the news got out, the whole town got into the act, and worked like beavers to distribute a brick or two to each home. Youth organizations and community service organizations pitched in for the house-to-house delivery of the bricks. Everybody had fun, and some good was accomplished.

The idea? Oh, yes... put a brick in the water tank in every bathroom in town! It was figured a brick would displace one quart of water, which when easing the burden on overloaded sewer systems. There is evidence that other cities and towns over the country are thinking about picking up the idea.

Let's see... there are 1296 water outlets in Winters. Say that one-fourth of those are two-bathroom homes... that would be close to 1600 bricks... saving 1600 quarts—400 gallons — of water each filling... multiplied by... Well, it would save a few hundred gallons of water daily. Not really such a silly idea, after all, when you get to figuring it... as proved in Cherry Hill, N. J.

Better than saving chewing gum wrappers!

When you SHOP AT HOME . . .

CIVIC IMPROVEMENTS are just some of the many extra benefits that you enjoy, along with the pleasure of shopping in attractive, familiar surroundings!

Schools, law enforcement, good streets . . . all these community needs are supported by your taxes . . . and the taxes of the merchants whose stores you patronize! That's why Winters merchants say:

SHOP AT HOME . . . SHOP IN WINTERS!
