Back in March, 1928, one could buy pork chops for 23 cents a pound . . . if one had the 23 cents! Eggs were two-bits a dozen, and bananas were 23 cents a dozen. A leading rancher from Peacock took four loads of choice yearlings to the Fort Worth Stockyards, and sold them for $11.75; two loads of yearlings from Knox County sold for $13!

And the Fort Worth Municipal Airport was making a strong bid to become the leading air center of the Southwest, and was popular among pilots of the day, including Capt. Frank M. Hawks . . .

George Brown recently purchased the old homestead of the late W. L. Pratt on North Main Street, and is now tearing down the old house to build a new one on the site. Ray Gene Lett and James Mayes are doing some of the work. In tearing out part of the walls, they came across an old yellowed and crumbling copy of the Fort Worth Star-Telegram, dated March 29, 1928. The address label on the 45-year-old paper showed that Mr. Pratt's subscription to the Fort Worth paper was paid up until Dec. 29, 1928.

In a Piggly Wiggly ad in the 1928 paper, specials for the day included the pork chops, and veal meat at 17 cents a pound; meal (lots of cornbread consumed in those days) at 10 pounds for 35 cents.

That was a time when radio was just coming into its own, and the one or two radios in one block—or perhaps in the entire community—drew all the neighbors. Atwater Kent was a big name in radios then—Model 37 was priced at only $88—but then you had to have a set of tubes, listed as extras, which came to $26.50. You still couldn't get Peul Whiteman and His Band from New York, though . . . until you laid out another $24 for another extra—the speaker—for your Atwater Kent—a total of $138.50! Just to hear a special Dodge Brothers (automobile) radio program featuring D. W. Griffith, Charlie Chaplin, Norma Talmadge, Dolores Del Rio, Douglas Fairbanks, and John Barrymore. "From Hollywood, California, with other movie stars, in the greatest radio program ever offered!"

"The Stock Market Gains Strenth Despite Attempts of Bears," said a financial page headline—this a few months before events precipitated the Big Depression!

"Murders Row," the battling order of the New York Yankees, were getting in shape to deal the rest of the teams in the league some misery.

Ladies could buy a dress for $1.95 at Monnie's in Fort Worth. (Out here in the country, many-the-time, the dress came with the flour!)

Social welfare then? Fort Worth was chosen for the convention site of the Texas Conference of Social Welfare.

MISS WINTERS '73 — Trish Hill, a senior student in Winters High School, was named Miss Winters 1973 in the Lions Club pageant here March 10. She will represent the Winters Lions Club at the District 2A-1 queen contest later this spring. Miss Hill is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Clifford Hill.

Blizzard Band To Contests Friday

The Winters High School Blizzard Band, under direction of Kirke McKenzie, will compete in the final University Interscholastic League contests Friday at Brownwood, reaching for First Division ratings in concert playing and sightreading which would give the band a Sweepstakes award for this year.

The band already has won First Division ratings in previous contests, in addition to winning top rankings in non-UIL events during the year. The concert and sightreading contests will be held at the Brownwood High School. The Blizzard Band will play at 3 p. m. Friday.

County Commissioners Seek Bill To Abolish County School Office

Runnels County Commissioners last week approved a resolution aimed at abolishing the office of County Superintendent of Schools for Runnels County.

The Commissioners have sought the aid of State Senator Grant Jones in filing a bill in the State Legislature to discontinue the Runnels County school office, effective Dec. 31, 1974. According to information, the bill has been filed.

W. T. Elkins of Ballinger is presently Runnels County School Superintendent. His present term of office expires the last of 1974.

County Judge Elliott Kemp, in explaining the Commissioners' action, said the Commissioners felt that because all but one of the county's schools were in independent school districts, there no longer was need for the county school directly under the county official, Judge Kemp said.

Also, it was pointed out, all county school business which is now being conducted through the county superintendent's office can be channeled through the county judge's office without much extra financing.

It has been estimated that cost of maintaining the county school superintendent's office is almost $25,000 annually. Much of this is paid by the several schools of the county, and abolishment of the office would mean a considerable saving to the schools, it was stated.

A petition was circulated in the county last year asking the Commissioners Court to seek in a referendum the attitude of the people of the county regarding abolishment of the county school superintendent's office. The measure was offered too late to gain enough signatures to be included in any election, it was stated.

Farm Bureau To Sponsor Safe Driving Course

The Runnels County Farm Bureau will sponsor a National Safety Council Defensive Driving Course, April 2, 3 and 5. Class will begin at 7 p. m. each of the three evenings, in the Farm Bureau office in Ballinger.

Registration fee will be $8, which will pay for student notebook and validation of the certificate by the Texas Safety Association which will qualify certificate holders for a 10 percent reduction on liability, medical and collision auto insurance.

The course will include only classroom lectures, and will entail no test and no road driving. The defensive driving course being sponsored by the Farm Bureau will be presented by the San Angelo Safety Council, and will be the same course offered in Winters some weeks ago. Those persons who were signed up for the Winters course, and missed any class, may make up the loss during the Ballinger course, to receive the certificate and credit, it was explained.

Those taking this course do not have to be Farm Bureau members. Those wishing to take the course may register at the FB office in Ballinger or call 365-246 any time before 7 p. m. April 2.

Students Attend VICA Meeting At San Angelo

Several members of the Industrial Cooperative Training Program of Winters High School attended the VICA District I meeting held in Central High School at San Angelo over the weekend.

Alvin Owen won second place in the skill-speed contest in auto parts, qualifying him to participate in the state meet in Fort Worth next month. He is employed as an auto parts man at Harrison's Auto Parts.

Dickie Clough received an excellent rating on his project. He is employed by Farm Equipment as a mechanic and will also participate in the Fort Worth meet.

Other members attending the meeting in San Angelo were Carlos Melendez, Dennis Rozman, Riley Marks, Don McGallian and Gary Thompson. Robert Stathem, ICT coordinator, accompanied the students to San Angelo.

Archers Brave Winds In Sixth Annual Shoot-Out

Ninety-five archers from over the State of Texas braved the high winds—sometimes gusting to 25 miles an hour—in the sixth annual Invitational Tournament sponsored by the Runnels County Archery Association of Winters Sunday.

Archers shot 28 field targets in the morning, and 14 hunter targets in the afternoon.

In a shoot-off in the men's amateur division for first place, Marvin L. Clark of Winters and Bill Lee of San Antonio tied with a total of 14. Lee took the first place with a win on the third target.

Plaques and trophies were presented to first place winners, and medals to second and third place winners.

County Buys Ford Vehicles

Dale's Ford Sales of Winters and Bailey Ford Co. in Ballinger were awarded the contract for eight vehicles, to be purchased by Runnels County, last week.

The Commissioners Court awarded the contracts for $37,830.32.

In other business, the Commissioners approved advertising for bids on revamping the air condition system in the Runnels County Courthouse, and authorized the County Judge to use the juvenile center annex to the courthouse to house delinquent boys, instead of using the regular jail. Revenue-sharing funds will be used to prepare the center and for maintenance.

City Letter Carriers Now Driving Jeeps To Deliver Mail, Parcel Post

The two city mail delivery routes in Winters are now motorized, with carriers driving right-hand drive Jeeps to make their rounds.

Two Jeep Dispatchers, with right-hand drive, built especially for the U. S. Postal Service, were delivered to the Winters Post Office last week. They were put in service for the first time Monday of this week.

The right-hand drive, with a sliding door on the right side, will enable carriers to park at a curb and leave the vehicle without stepping into the path of other traffic. Also, for those residences where the mail box has been put on a curb-side post, the carrier does not have to leave the vehicle.

In addition to regular mail, the city carriers now will handle the parcel post, with enough room in the Jeep to carry most of the packages they will handle.

Winters Postmaster H. M. (Jiggs) Nichols said there may be some change in the sequence of mail delivery, to fully utilize the new vehicles, but that delivery should be more rapid once all routes are studied. The carriers will not have to cover the entire city on foot each day, and will walk only in a small area at a time, returning to the Jeep after a given section is covered. Also, they will not have to carry such large loads of mail as has been necessary in the past.

Nichols said it is anticipated that two and one-half man hours per day will be saved with the addition of the Jeeps on the carrier routes. He also said that some of the collection boxes which are located over town will be eliminated, and that some of the outside mail collection boxes in some parts of town will be taken out, and some relocated.

The parcel post vehicle which has been leased by the Post Office and used to deliver parcel post and to transport regular mail to pick-up boxes for the foot carriers, will no longer be needed, Nichols said. Carriers will be able to transport all mail for their route, and will not have to return to pick-up boxes for deposit of mail or to pick up bundled mail for certain areas.

Nichols said all city delivery routes in the Abilene Section Center area have been motorized, or will be shortly.

Members of the Volunteer Fire Department said another purpose of the Firemen's Association will be to make possible the continuance of the annual barbecue. In the past, they said, the barbecue has been financed primarily through a few donations. For many years, individuals and firms donated calves to the Fire Department, and for a long time there was a waiting list of those who wanted to help in this way. In the last few years, however, it has become necessary to solicit donations to finance the affair, and it was felt, firemen said, that the financing should be more widely spread, to include everyone in the area who wished to contribute.

Firemen Organize Association To Buy Equipment, Hold Barbecue

The Winters Volunteer Firemen's Association, which any individual or family in Winters or North Runnels County may join.

The new Firemen's Association will have no direct connection with the Volunteer Fire Department, but will be only a sponsoring organization to help obtain needed equipment for the protection of the entire area, and to sponsor the annual Firemen's Barbecue, held annually on the third Thursday in August.

Family membership in the Association will be $5, and besides helping to purchase new equipment, will entitle each member-family to attend the annual barbecue. There will be no Association officers, with the business of the organization being conducted by the members of the Volunteer Fire Department.

Addition of equipment, and replacement of some equipment will enable the Winters Fire Department to more adequately provide a fire-fighting service for the entire North Runnels area, it was pointed out. Without it, they said, it will become more difficult to maintain the better-than-usual protection which has become the tradition for the Winters Fire Department.

Members of the Volunteer Fire Department said another purpose of the Firemen's Association will be to make possible the continuance of the annual barbecue. AIRLINES OFF THE GROUND?

Wellesley Hills, Mass.—In 1972 the airlines managed to reverse or at least neutralize the adverse earnings picture of prior years. Most companies reported in the black although in some instances the gains were modest. But the upward trend appears to have been stalled again as share prices of the carriers register new lows, dragging down with them the Dow Jones Transportation Index, now at a two-year low.

Part of the problem seems to be in air fares. While airlines were permitted to raise domestic fares by 3 percent in September 1972, the overseas routes did not benefit, and many ran at a loss. Also, the crazy quilt of special and excursion fares offered by U. S. and foreign airlines lowered seat-mile yields, the measure of profitability.

GROUP CHARTERS

A phenomenon of air travel has been the group charter, usually at a much reduced fare. At first it was necessary to claim membership in some quasi-legitimate group, usually an organization in name only. This pretense is no longer necessary, as forty or more people may charter all or part of an airplane flight with consequent lower fares—sometimes even on an otherwise regular-fare plane. This and other arrangements are part of a three-year trial authorized by the Civil Aeronautics Board aimed at bringing some order to the rather chaotic charter - vs. - scheduled-airlines picture. One effect of this

THE WINTERS ENTERPRISE
Winters, Texas
Friday, March 23, 1973

on the "skeds" will be an increased North Atlantic passenger-load factor (per cent of seats occupied), offsetting the lower flight fares. On the other hand, there is also consideration of permitting charter airlines to offer scheduled service in competition with the regular carriers.

THE SKYJACK CONUNDRUM

The most immediate serious problem facing airlines today is aircraft hijacking and the efforts to thwart this serious crime. Some progress has been made at the diplomatic level, as Cuba has now agreed to return successful hijackers for prosecution. Attempts are also being made to encourage other countries to refuse sanctuary.

At ground level, airlines face the acute problem of screening boarding passengers for weapons capable of use in skyjacking. This involves a metal detection search plus a physical inspection of hand baggage and personal effects. While serving as a deterrent, these efforts are reportedly being conducted in a manner that has ruffled many a passenger and left many a traveler stranded as his plane took off while he was still being searched. The entire procedure is also an expensive proposition what with the metal detection systems and the extra personnel needed for the screening. It does appear likely, however, that airlines will pass these costs along in the form of higher fares.

Equipment and Capacity

In the past, airlines have felt little need to limit capacity, so there has been heavy competition on identical routes. This meant a lower percent, essentially, of seats occupied per mile flown. Now a conscious effort is being made to improve this factor, with an objective of some 55 percent hoped for in the years ahead.

Another focus is on the aircraft itself, with most lines trying to reduce the types of planes operated. This is helped by an avid market for replacement equipment. The 747 is now the primary long-haul aircraft, while the DC-10 and the 727 fill in the shorter routes. The supersonic transport does not appear in airline plans, as the U. S. SST was cancelled and less interest is being shown in the Concorde.

1973 SHOULD IMPROVE

The Research Department of Babson's Reports feels that a rejuvenated economy could provide the airlines with the momentum to attain higher revenues in 1973, provided the sky-jacking problem is solved. Properly scheduled, efficient aircraft should mean higher earnings and better days ahead in general for the air carriers.

REAL ESTATE INVESTMENT TRUSTS

Wellesley Hills, Mass.—Although real estate investment trusts have been in existence for a long time, it has been only in recent years that they have been aggressively exploited as a conduit for investment funds. The now popular REITs are generally regarded by investors as good vehicles for both income and profit, and as a source of business for financial institutions which sponsor, advise, and service these trusts.

IMPETUS FROM ADVERSITY

The Real Estate Investment Trust Act restored tax exemption for qualifying trusts, an advantage which had been denied this group from 1935 to 1960. Thus, a REIT which has at least 75 percent of its assets in real estate, mortgage investments, cash or government securities or which derives 75 percent of its gross income from real estate, can qualify for exemption from the federal government's corporate income tax if at least 90 percent of each year's profit is distributed to the holders of the trust's shares of beneficial interest. One other condition: Only those trusts with at least one hundred shareholders (no five of whom can control more than half the trust's shares) can qualify for tax-exemption, leaving more profits to flow through to shareholders.

It took, nevertheless, the grinding crunch of the mid-to-late 1960s to provide the impetus for the proliferation of REITs. At that time, the institutions traditionally financing a sizable portion of construction loans and mortgages were hard pressed for funds. The REITs moved so profitably into this vacuum that they rapidly gained favor. The building boom of the past three years further augmented the popularity of REITs.

ADVANTAGES AND RISKS

The vast inflation of realty values and the high yields available to investors holding shares of REITs in recent years are impressive credentials. The attraction is even greater where the organizer and adviser to a REIT is a well-known financial institution. Investors, however, should be aware of the element of risk involved, even though some of the adverse conditions may be temporary. The rapid increase in the number of trusts superimposed upon existing traditional financial institutions can lead to heavy competition for prime loans and top-grade borrowers—or for the best quality of commercial, industrial, and residential structures. Under such circumstances, some REIT could be forced to enter the twilight zone in the realm of risks to keep their assets working and to maximize their returns.

In addition, those trusts which extend mortgage loans and make loans for construction and development work may also be susceptible to pinched profit margins if they are forced to borrow funds for a portion of their capital. Borrowed capital can be especially costly at times when the building field takes a breathing spell.

INVESTMENT PERSPECTIVE

The Research Department of Babson's Reports warns investors interested in the securities of REITs to apply the same rationale they would in considering other types of investments. An investor, for example, requiring the highest possible income without undue risk may be better off with a top-quality utility or industrial bond. Those wanting a fair investment income and capital appreciation potential might seek a convertible security in some other field where the element of risk is less. Also, growth-oriented investors can find a number of good-quality growth stocks in several sectors of the stock market which have recently been swatted down to fairly good price levels, including issues of some excellent banks and insurance companies.

But for the investor with the temperament and financial depth, the Babson Staff would go along with placing part of his investment capital in the real estate investment trust field. He must be patient, however, and preferably wait until interest rates decline.

"There's A Dollar and Cents Side To Cancer," Says Crusade Chairman

The dollar and cents side of cancer is quite a story—but it could have a happier ending if we did some math.

Although she is not a mathematician, Mrs. Earl Roach, chairman of the North Runnels American Cancer Society Unit, which is beginning the annual Cancer Crusade, has some numbers that are staggering: "The direct cost of diagnosis, treatment and care of cancer patients this year will probably total some $3-billion! And, American workers will lose about $250 million in wages because of cancer while their disability will cost industry some 2 thousand man-years of productivity."

All of this would just be a pretty big bill and a lot of statistics if there weren't something to be learned, she said. "We know that many forms of cancer are curable if diagnosed early and treated promptly," she said, "and we've been convincing business leaders that it is in their own best interest to help us educate their workers to cancer's warning signals and safeguards."

The local ACS spokesman noted that although the Society is best known for its support of research, it does a crucial job of educating the public and ACS employee education programs offer one way. "Businessmen and union leaders across the country are cooperating, we're happy to say."

There is another job of education that the ACS undertakes, the chairman said. "It's the difficult one of alerting people to the danger, indeed the utter disaster of following unproven methods of cancer diagnosis and treatment. Cancer must be caught and treated early; it's one disease that doesn't go away or get better in time. Therefore, when misguided people waste this precious time with something that hasn't been proved scientifically — well, they're throwing their lives away."

It's hard to put a price tag on cancer quackery but in one large state, California, authorities estimate that health frauds of all kinds cost the consumer $200 million annually.

"Families never have enough money to squander it just to make these greedy people rich. Even the most intelligent can be tricked by fine-sounding scientific names or titles, vibrating, flashing machines or treatments that don't hurt," she said.

In order to help frightened or uncertain patients and their families, the ACS maintains up-to-date files on unproven methods. At the same time, the local unit of the nationwide voluntary agency is ready to show a family how to marshal its resources and those of the community when cancer strikes.

"Education, service to the cancer patient and of course, research, are what the American Cancer Society is all about, and I hope this April everyone in the Winters area will be part of the effort by giving the Society's educational and fundraising Crusade the greatest support in its history. After all, our theme is everyone's theme: 'We want to wipe out cancer in your lifetime!'"

The annual Wingate Community Day has been scheduled for Friday, March 30, and will feature a community lunch at the school and culminating with a Junior High School track meet in the afternoon.

Teams entering the track meet will be boys' and girls' teams from Jim Ned, Blackwell, Paint Rock and Wingate. A team trophy will be presented to the boys' and girls' teams who score the most points. Ribbons will be awarded to the first four places in each event.

An added attraction this year will be an art exhibit by Mrs. Jarrell Walker. She will have several paintings on display in the school library.

Each family is asked to bring food for their family and two others. Beans, bread, drinks, paper plates, cups and silverware will be furnished. Lunch will begin at 11 a. m. and the track meet will start at 1 p. m.

Gov. Dolph Briscoe submitted as emergencies 14 bills dealing with creation of water districts and their operations.

The House passed 138-0 a bill to restrict influence on speaker-ship elections.

Home Town Talk

built in San Diego for Col. Chas. A. Lindberg (The Lone Eagle), equipped with "cat's eyes" for night flying and landing, and parachute flares which would light up the countryside for 10 square miles!

The comic strips were "comic" strips then, with Moon Mullins, Bringing Up Father (Maggie and Jiggs), The Gumps (Andy, Chester and Min), Mut and Jeff, Gasoline Alley, Smitty, Winnie Winkle, Crazy Kat . . . and the Toonerville Trolley. (None of that stuff is called "comic" strips today.)

There were problems then, though, as today: A banner headline announced that a murderer received the death sentence after one hour of deliberation by the jury in San Angelo! At Seagraves, 21 business houses were destroyed by fire. Owner of a jewelry store in Santone was shot to death. . .

At Austin, the Third Court of Civil Appeals held unconstitutional a 1925 state statute authorizing establishment of water control and improvement districts in Texas! A 14-year-old girl in East Texas pulled a 45 on the faculty and pupils in a school! A trial was going on for the robbers who held up the Cisco bank.

Arthur Brisbane was a celebrated columnist in "28"—"From South Africa astronomers send word the great star Nova Pictoris has split in two. We are excited on this little earth ball when a big stock "splits" two for one." If we were a few billion miles nearer Nova Pictoris, we should have a new meaning for "split." How safely we live in our little corner of space with fearful cataclysms around us. We should be grateful."

Those were the "good old days," in the memories of some—but a glance at the front page, and at the news items throughout that old paper, and other information (two-bit eggs and dollar-a-day labor), would indicate that neither the people nor the times were any "gooder" than nowadays.

Attending were Mesdames I. W. Rogers, Carroll Stocker, Charlie Adams, Reese Jones, Verge Fisher, Ernest Thormeyer, Raymond Knight, Herman Spill, Clifford Lehman, Clifton Davis, Norbert Ueckert and Jack Whittenberg.

The next meeting will be in the home of Mrs. Herman Spill Tuesday, March 27.

Brown Recluse Spider Has Poisonous Bite

AUSTIN—Spring, with its attendant crowd pests, is not too far off.

Texans are becoming increasingly concerned about one pest in particular—the brown recluse spider.

A brochure from the U. S. Department of Agriculture says that the brown recluse has been in North America for centuries, but until 1957 it was not known that it had a poisonous bite.

The little spider is not aggressive. It prefers to hide in dark quiet places. But it will sometimes bite if handled, or when it is trapped in clothing.

Normal reactions to the bite include intense local pain, a blister, inflammation of the affected area and an ulcerated sore.

The bite of this pest is especially dangerous to children, to the elderly and to those in poor physical condition. However, fatalities from the bite of the brown recluse are very rare. The mature brown recluse spider, also called the "brown spider" or "fiddleback spider," has a body about 3/4-inch long, and 3/16-inch wide. Its legspan is about the size of a half-dollar.

The most noticeable mark on the brown recluse is a dark, fiddle-shaped area on the front half of its back.

The bite from the spider is usually followed by intense pain. Sometimes the victim is not immediately aware that he has been bitten, and an hour or more may pass before he experiences discomfort.

The first visible symptom of brown recluse poisoning is a small white blister at the site of the fang punctures. The affected area enlarges and becomes inflamed. Eventually, affected tissues begin to die and peel away.

If you think you have been bitten by a brown recluse spider, get immediate medical attention. Keep calm and, if possible, try to find the spider that bit you—positive identification of the spider by an expert can be helpful.

Although there is no specific antidote for the bite of the brown recluse, patients have responded well to steroids, antihistamines and antibiotics.

—Apply an antiseptic solution to the fang punctures to help prevent infection.

—Apply ice packs to the area surrounding the bite.

Do not treat the wound as you would a snake bite. Do not cut the fang punctures. Do not apply suction. Do not employ a tourniquet.

The Department of Agriculture brochure says an insecticide called lindane is effective in controlling this pest. It should be sprayed along baseboards, behind furniture and pictures, beneath boxes and around other objects which serve as hiding places.

You should limit the amount of lindane you use. Do not spray large surfaces such as walls, floors or ceilings.

The brochure warns lindane users to follow directions on the insecticide package carefully, making notice of the cautions listed.

Cooking Chicken According to Cut

Cook chicken according to the cut just as you cook other meats suggests Mrs. O'Connor. When you follow this method, you are assured of meat that will be fully cooked, tender and tasty with little waste.

The meaty pieces such as the breast, pulley bone and thighs require longer cooking than the bony pieces. They are at their best when fried, broiled or barbecued. Always use moderate heat so that the outside of the chicken will not turn too brown before the inside is fully cooked.

In contrast, the bony pieces of chicken such as wings, backs and necks respond best to moist cooking. The meat shrinks less than when fried, broiled or barbecued and it is easier to remove from the bone so there is little or no waste.

Cover the bony pieces with water, add a little chopped onion, celery or other vegetables or herbs for flavor. Simmer the meat about an hour or until the meat comes off the bone easily.

Then use the meat and thickened broth to serve over toast, rice or dumplings. Also, you can use the meat and broth for chicken a la king, chicken salad or sandwich spread. The bony parts of a three-pound ready-to-serve bird should provide enough meat for two to three servings of any of the dishes suggested.

Some homemakers with four to five members in the family always buy two whole chickens so that they can have enough meaty pieces for two meals and enough bony pieces to provide meat for two or three meals, depending on how much extender, such as rice or dumplings, is used in the recipe.

Chicken Dinner Special

For each package use:

- 1 fryer, halved
- 1 slice tomato
- 3 strips carrots
- 1 slice onion

- 2 pieces celery

Place halved fryer in the center of a square of foil. Add a slice of onion on top, then add potato slices. Next add tomatoes and place carrot strips and celery to sides. Season to taste, top with butter if desired and close the foil, making a tight package. Bake on a cookie sheet in preheated oven at 350 degrees for 1 hour and 30 minutes. Serve in package to retain natural gravy. Serves 4-6.

SPRING ACCESSORIES GO CLASSIC

Gloomy winter may be outside but in accessory showrooms, it's bright springtime as designers show their ideas for the new year.

With tailored clothes coming up, classic accessories will go along—creating a touch of drama.

Starting from the top down, hats definitely belong in the spring picture. Fashion leaders have already adopted the stretch jersey turban, and to it they'll add the sharp-brimmed hats, especially cowboy styles.

Along with hats, scarves remain in the spring picture.

Favorite prints come in every possible arrangement of dots and stripes.

If you're not concerned about the "latest thing" any brightly colored print will work. A major scarf style will be the small cowboy type, tied close around the throat inside the open collar of a shirt-top dress. Belts also will continue to be important.

In keeping with the classic trend, they're now less overwhelming. About the widest you will find for spring is four inches, but lesser widths are more common, and the one-inch belt is back.

Leather belts will be well cut and honestly accented without cut-outs or appliques. Suede, brushed cowhide and grained leathers appear in belts of various widths.

Hardwearing closings, big plain buckles, top-stitching and gilt rings all accent the tailored look of pants, suits and sportswear.

Spring handbags will return in such favorite shapes as the envelope, pouch, satchel and clutch. Good leather is the theme, whether grained, semi-polished, soft suede or glassy patent. Trimming is part of the design, whether in the prints done on suede, the gleaming hardware closings, or the handling of leather in tucked or shirred forms.

The realization that something is alive in food products stored in the pantry is a very annoying experience for the housewife, but sooner or later small insects which may be termed pantry pests are found in almost every home. These insects infest stored products such as dried fruit, nutmeats, dry pet foods, cornmeal, chocolate, paprika, and other spices, and any food made of cereal grain such as bread, macaroni or breakfast cereals. Pantry pests may be recognized as "worms" in the immature form, or as beetles or moths, the adult forms.

Pantry pests usually come into the home with a package of food that became infested along the way from the producer to the manufacturer to the housewife. If the infested package is left in the cupboard for a long period, the insects escape and infest other foods. And so, the entire cupboard becomes infested. Many of these pests are capable of boring into uninfested food packages or because of their small size are able to enter uninfested packages through extremely small cracks in the containers.

The first step in controlling pantry pests is to locate the source of infestation. This is usually a long-neglected container of dried foodstuffs. It is a good practice to inspect infrequently-used materials periodically to make sure they are not infested.

Rapid turnover of dried foods is one of the surest ways of preventing trouble from insect infestations. If all insects are confined to one package, simply destroying this package eliminates the problem. If you suspect insects have invaded other packages of food, placing these packages in a freezer at 0 degrees F. for four days will kill them. Another method of removing the source of infestation is by sterilization in the oven in a shallow container at 150 to 160 degrees F. for one-half hour. Store uninfested or heat sterilized dry foods in containers that have tight fitting lids, such as coffee cans or fruit jars. Original packages of paper, cardboard, cellophane, etc., are generally inadequate for excluding insects.

Crime Prevention Council Begins Campaign To Educate Public

A public education program on the problem of organized crime is being opened by the Texas Organized Crime Prevention Council.

The Council, established in 1970, is co-chaired by Attorney General John Hill and Colonel Wilson E. Speir, Director of the Department of Public Safety. It is a subsidiary of the Texas Criminal Justice Council.

"Gambling, narcotics, auto theft, prostitution, loan sharking, credit card fraud, and infiltration of legitimate businesses were classified by the Council as initial target areas of criminal activity."

The Council was created by executive order of the Governor to help coordinate work in Texas of law enforcement agencies in their fight against organized crime. The public education program was assisted by the Law Enforcement Assistance Administration, U. S. Department of Justice, through the Governor's Criminal Justice Council.

The following is the first of a series of articles prepared in the current public-education program, and deals with a broad view of the problem. Subsequent articles will deal in specific types of criminal activity.

Organized crime has become a billion-dollar-a-year business in the State of Texas.

Governor Dolph Briscoe, in his first address to the Legislature, said "... it is correct to say Texas is in the frontier stage of organized crime, but we still have time to react and do something about it."

Attorney General John Hill and Colonel Wilson E. Speir, Director of the Department of Public Safety, are acutely aware of the problem and both have it high on their priority list.

"We are not about to sit back and let Texans be victimized by mobsters," Hill said recently.

Speir commented, "We have all aspects of the problem under close surveillance and already are making many arrests. It may be however, that new laws will be needed to assist us in cracking down hard on certain elements of organized crime."

Hill and Speir are co-chairmen of the Texas Organized Crime Prevention Council which consists of the state's top law enforcement personnel.

The Council has compiled some startline information.

Gang killings, used effectively to gain promotion up through the ranks, are still occurring in and around the major metropolitan areas.

The majority of the gangland murders are believed tied to narcotics trafficking and underworld power struggles.

Bookmaking is perhaps the largest money maker for organized crime in the state.

Bookies realized a gross profit of $98 million from both college and professional football games during the 1971 season alone. Brs totaled some $315 million which means about 12 per cent "off the top" went into the pockets of organized crime.

"Bookmaking is the most intricately organized field in all

Jack Martins Return From Southwest Tour

Mr. and Mrs. J. C. Martin recently returned from an eight-week tour of the Desert Southwest, including New Mexico, Arizona and California. They left Winters January 13, their planned departure delayed a few days by the snow and ice storm which closed many highways in West Texas and New Mexico.

Principal points visited on their tour were Truth or Consequences, N. M., Tucson, Phoenix, Yuma, Quartzsite, Packer, and Lukenville, Ariz., Needles, Topoe Slough, Blythe and Wintehaven, Calif. They were joined on the tour by a number of friends with whom they have traveled on four previous winter vacations.

Mr. and Mrs. Martin traveled in their new fifth-wheel self contained trailer.

TO ALPINE, BIG BEND

Mr. and Mrs. G. W. Scott Jr. visited in Alpine with Mr. and Mrs. Sam Scott and sons over the weekend, and also toured the Big Bend Country and other places of interest. On the return home, they visited Mexico, and visited with Mr. and Mrs. George Scott and family of El Dorado.

Colonel Speir commented, "and our investigations have just touched the surface but we are making progress."

Prostitution is prevalent in many areas, especially those with sizeable populations.

Available information places the average gross weekly income per prostitute in Texas at $1,400 for those working in the more sophisticated operations. This is usually split on a 60-40 basis with the "house" or the procurer.

Prostitutes, in many instances, are lured into that "profession" to obtain money to support a costly narcotics habit.

At least eighteen separate narcotics smuggling rings are known to be operating in Texas cities. There are several hundred major traffickers who have been located and identified by various law enforcement agencies.

Vigorous prosecution at all levels of law enforcement has been stepped up on drug pushers. Arrests are increasing statewide.

The "take" in Texas on illicit drug traffic is almost impossible to reduce to dollars and cents, partially because of strong indications that in addition to supplying users in the state, the pushers also supply the markets in at least nine other states.

District Attorney Ted Butler of San Antonio, says, "organized syndicates are directly connected as purchasers and sellers of illegal drugs."

Poetically, or jokingly, dubbed the "Wheels of Crime," no less than 40 auto theft rings have been uncovered in Texas. Last year in Dallas alone car theft hit near the $7 million mark.

Statewide there were 48,323 auto thefts reported in 1971.

Valued at over $50 million, these hot cars were "fenced" in Arizona, New Mexico, Oklahoma, Alabama, Mississippi, Louisiana, California, Mexico and even Europe.

Loan sharking has not found too fertile a field in which to operate in Texas, although there is some evidence it exists. Organized crime also has quietly moved in legitimate businesses in Texas in recent years.

Symptoms of the criminal schemes to take over legitimate business operations surfaced in Texas during 1972.

Although it may not sound like it from the above facts, Texas organized crime really isn't rampant at this point.

There's no Murder, Inc. as such, and there are no gang lords with overtones of "God-fathers."

Organized crime is not necessarily synonymous with the Mafia.

"In general," said Colonel Speir, "it consists of unlawful activities of the members of a highly organized, disciplined and sophisticated association engaged in supplying illegal goods and services."

The Colonel added, "Home-grown criminal organization frequently employ the same tactics used by those in the more classic organized criminal operations."

Attorney General Hill puts it another way. "We know the problem exists, and all segments of the criminal justice system are working on it. Texans deserve nothing but the best efforts of us all—they have been and will continue to get nothing less to make sure their lives and property are protected."

This series of articles will continue with specifics in each of the major organized crime fields and will outline what is being done about it.

Citizen support in the fight against organized crime will be explored as well as some causes and effects. The next story deals with auto theft.

Abilene High Students Visit WHS In Last Half of Exchange Program

The Student Council of Abilene High School visited Winters High School last Wednesday, to complete the last half of an exchange program with the Winters High School Student Council.

Thirty members of the AHS Council were accompanied by Max Irwin and Elmer Wright, sponsors. Mr. Wright is the Dean of Students for the Abilene school.

The students paired off with their counterparts from Winters High and attended classes with them, witnessed the WHS Student Council campaigning and voting, and finished the day with a coke party where ideas and observations were exchanged.

Winters Student Council has sponsored exchange programs between schools of their own size and classification for many years. However, this is the first exchange program with a school the size of Abilene High. Winters' enrollment is about 300 students in the top four grades, while Abilene High has 2200 in the top three grades.

The exchange was prompted by a request from the Abilene group, and they agreed with the Winters students that a small school has many advantages as far as smaller classes, greater participation in extracurricular activities and the closely-knit fellowship of a small student body. On their trip to Abilene High School recently, the Winters High Council members were especially impressed with the wide range of courses offered in a larger school, especially in vocational subjects.

Students from both Winters and Abilene agreed that size was about the only important difference, and that high school students "are much the same everywhere."

Scott King is the president of the Winters Student Council, and Mrs. Lee Harrison and Jake Joyce are sponsors.
