Farm Equipment in High Gear
Wellesley Hills, Mass., May 3, 1973. Last year was one of the best in some time for sales and earnings in the agricultural equipment field. A continuation of the fine improvement in financial results is anticipated for 1973, barring massive or protracted labor difficulties. There are several favorable factors which brighten the outlook, notably the growing demand for food both on the domestic and on the worldwide scene. Because of this, farm machinery is being used at a steadily increasing rate.

Other developments which foretell strong sales include the current low levels of inventory, the sharply higher volume of farm income, the intentions of increasing total plantings in 1973, and the strong demand for grain, particularly on international markets. Even though labor negotiations in this industry and in certain related lines are scheduled for the not-too-distant future, the stage appears set for another year of high production, sales, and profits—if no strikes erupt.

measure by the level of farm profits. During 1972 and into 1973 agricultural prices rose markedly. Indeed, on average, in January of this year they were up 21 percent from twelve months before. Strong demand for food and feed at stepped-up prices carried cash receipts, gross and net farm income to all-time record levels in 1972.

The excellent return achieved by farmers will likely be translated into new-equipment purchases. In addition to the improved cash position of farmers, other factors also enhance the industry's sales prospects. Outstanding here is the declining number of farm workers and the increasing acreage per farm, forcing the farmer to greater use of machinery in order to obtain healthy gains in productivity.

Mixed Industry
The farm equipment makers are interlaced with several other industrial sectors. For example, Ford is the nation's second largest auto maker and at the same time a world leader in tractor production. White Motor is basically a truck manufacturer but it is also a major factor in the farm equipment industry. Even companies like Avco with its New Idea Division and Sperry Rand with its New Holland Division are represented in this industry. While farm equipment sales are usually a small percentage of the total turnover for these larger firms, they constitute an important segment of the farm equipment industry itself.

Foreign Sales Impetus
Much of the furor over 1972's massive U. S. grain deals had to do with the upping of wheat prices, which was reflected in the increased costs of domestic food products, etc. But from the standpoint of the agricultural equipment industry, the volume of demand for grain has become so large that it means potential for fresh gains in machinery sales. Naturally, the price of grain in the marketplace has much to do with farmers' planting and—or the sale of their surplus, which in turn determines how much they will spend on new equipment. Farmers hoping to boost profits have taken to using larger, improved machinery as a hedge against further increases in costs.

On balance, the intention to hike plantings in 1973 and the strong demand for the farmers' and products paint an encouraging picture for the farm equipment industry. The Department of Agriculture estimates that feed grain acreage will rise from last year's 115 million acres to 121 million acres this year, bolstering the argument that farm equipment sales will strengthen further. The Research Department of Babson's Reports maintains a "hold" position on most farm equipment stocks under its supervision. For investors interested in acquiring representation in this field at the present time, Babson's recommends purchase of the common stock of White Motor Corporation, the near-term outlook for which appears favorable.

CRISIS BARGAINING MAY BE ON WAY OUT

Wellesley Hills, Mass. — Over recent years labor walkouts have become desperately costly for all concerned—the unions, the companies, the workers, and often the public. As a result, there has been a growing trend toward the kind of management-labor negotiations that take up issues as they arise and hence avoid crisis bargaining that often leads to prolonged strikes, plant shutdowns, financial embarrassment for the workers involved. In the old days when wages were relatively small and worker benefits usually the exception, it was often worthwhile for both unions and workers to suffer through an extended strike to gain higher basic pay rates and fringe concessions throughout an entire industry.

There are great differences today, however, with working wages at far higher levels and most companies observing a fair coverage of benefits. Even a brief stoppage can put employees in a severe bind, particularly with so many families living up to their incomes. If a breadwinner's salary is stopped, it does not take very long for bank accounts to dwindle and bills to pile up. Mortgage payments, rents, utilities, charge accounts, taxes, time payments on cars and appliances—they all make extremely heavy demands.

STRIKES BECOMING UNPOPULAR

Such huge problems are raised by strikes that the unions, the companies, the employees, and the public are turning against the whole concept of work stoppages. Neither unions nor workers look with favor on compulsory arbitration, and most Administrative and Legislative representatives have managed to avoid calling for strictures on the right to strike. But there has been plenty of work done behind the scenes in an effort to make expensive walkouts a thing of the past, and some of the results are beginning to surface.

In mid-March the railroad industry—long plagued by ineffectual bargaining procedures and constantly recurring crises—suddenly announced contract agreements concluded nearly three months early, with unprecedented negotiation by all the rail unions at the same time. Of course, the critical situation existing in so many railroad systems and pressure for anti-strike legislation in Congress helped bring the agreement into being at that early date.

ALSO BREAKTHROUGH IN STEEL

About ten days after the surprise move in the rail industry, a novel and historic agreement was drawn up by the United Steelworkers and top steel industry negotiators including a no-strike clause on national issues and a promise to submit unsolved issues to arbitration. The most significant feature of the arrangement is that it has already been signed, sealed, and accepted by the steel rank and file although the present contract does not expire until next year. Company representatives expressed elation, citing the understanding as a great boon for their employees and customers.

The agreement provides guaranteed benefits, subject to traditional upward renegotiation via the regular channels, in return for the no-strike clause. Called for are early talks next year, guaranteed pay hikes of 3 percent yearly, a $150 bonus in September 1974, and living-cost adjustments for each of the three years following expiration of the current pact on Aug. 1, 1974. A limited right to strike over local issues can be used only if given specific approval by the Steelworkers' international president.

MORE STRIKELESS BARGAINING

Major employers in all industries will be watching the results of the early bargaining agreements in both rails and steel. A General Motors spokesman has hailed the steel innovation, saying it will remove the need to stockpile as a strike hedge if the plan works out. Many other lines would like to avoid crisis bargaining, maintaining output at even levels, and keep customers' needs satisfied.

Capitol Report

BY REP. LYNN NABERS

The Marijuana and Drug Bill was passed favorably out of the Committee on Criminal Jurisprudence last week, and will be presented on the House Floor for further consideration. The penalty provisions in the amended bill make the first offense for possession of any amount of marijuana a misdemeanor punishable with up to 6 months in jail and/or a fine of up to $1000. A subsequent conviction for any amount of marijuana would be punishable as a felony with a jail term of 2 to 10 years and/or a fine of up to $5000. The court may, at its discretion, reduce the penalty to a misdemeanor punishable by up to a year jail sentence and/or a fine of up to $2000.

The selling of any amount of marijuana will be considered a felony with a jail term of 2 to 10 years. If the amount changing hands is less than a quarter ounce and it is proven that there was no remuneration, the conviction will be considered a misdemeanor and will be treated as simple possession.

The penalty for possession and selling of heroin will remain the same as the present law.

There is other language in the sale or delivery of marijuana penalty that is too broad and possibly could allow a misdemeanor conviction for sale or delivery.

This bill also allows those who have been convicted of possession to be resentenced under the new law.

I voted against this bill as I feel it is too permissive.

During the long debate on the biennium appropriations bill, members succeeded in forcing the adoption of an amendment which would remove able bodied recipients from the welfare rolls. The amendment, proposed by Rep. Ralph Scoggins of El Paso, will restrict welfare recipients to those who are blind, disabled, or unemployed but actively seeking employment.

The adopted amendment requires every able bodied welfare recipient to prove that he: (1) is actively seeking employment through the Texas Employment Commission; (2) has been refused a job located for him by the TEC and (3) is not engaged in a work stoppage or strike.

It is felt that this amendment will put some sort of legitimacy into the welfare programs of the state and will insure that our tax money goes where it is most needed without senseless waste.

the little drummers' building, was employed in a dry goods store in those days. She would be dispatched to the drummers' building, along with the late Mrs. C. W. Gregory, she says, to look over the merchandise for her employer, pick out what she felt the people of the community would like, and place her orders with the drummer. She recalls that she bought many items for resale during those early days.

Often, after they had shown their samples and written their orders, the drummers would have time on their hands, waiting for the next day's train. When that happened, according to B. G. Owens, who operated a drug store here in the early days, the drummers would gather in the shade of the building of an afternoon and early evening, and play dominoes. Or they would sit and swap yarns—the original "traveling salesman" tales—and compare notes of happenings throughout the country.

Things have changed a bit since those early days. Traveling salesmen still tour the country, but they no longer are called drummers. And traveling in air-conditioned automobiles for the most part, they no longer spend more than a few minutes at each port of call. They don't have to depend on non-existent trains to get about. There is no longer any need for a "drummer's" showroom—the salesmen take orders, and seldom takes samples around. Most of the merchants attend his showings of merchandise in the metropolitan areas, periodically, and the modern "drummer" has no need for a local showroom.

So the little "drummer's" building sits on West Dale Street, waiting out history, having already fulfilled its purpose. It's now used for storage, Mrs. Pumphrey says.

OUTDOORSMEN

Rules of the water are as important as rules of the road. You think not?

Well, the way water regulations are ignored lots of people must think that way too. But it's a matter of lack of information—we hope.

Very few people who venture out into the water, with a boat of any kind, size or shape (from little canoes to big runabouts), really know waterway regulations.

This is hardly true of those who helm the large cruisers on our mammoth impoundments, and certainly not true of those who man the great seagoing rigs on our Gulf coast . . . for the latter are checked and double-checked periodically by the Coast Guard.

But the little fellows who steer the fishing boats and the small pleasure craft are neglected. That is, we don't have the critical observers to make us learn the rules and adhere to them. And it's typically true that what you're made to do, you do—and what you aren't forced to do, you don't.

This is not a criticism of law officials, or to urge a slump down on the negligent. It's just a gentle reminder to you and me to ship up and to brush up on our jargon, our knowledge of boating, and ability to "put to sea" safely and to operate our boats courteously.

When the State of Texas chose its "Drive Friendly" slogan (thanks to former newspaperman Weldon Hart), it selected a simple but potent motto that grows on you. Really, it's surprising how many accidents can be attributed to anger. But they are not limited to cars and roadways, or to airplanes and airways, but also to boats and waterways.

To me driving friendly on the water is more important to living than driving friendly on the highway. It's bad enough to have a collision on the highway but it's doubly dangerous on the water, for there you may survive the crash but you still face the serious danger of drowning.

That's double jeopardy. Only a midair plane collision could be worse.

Your Social Security

Many social security beneficiaries must make a report of their 1972 earnings by April 15. Any beneficiary who earned over $1600 in 1972, was under age 72 for any month of the year, and received a benefit check for that month must make the report. Filing an income tax return does not fulfill the requirement, as the report is a special one for social security.

To make your annual report, contact the Social Security office at 300 West Harris Avenue, San Angelo, or see the representative when he is in the area. Persons who are unable to meet with him are encouraged to call the office in San Angelo. Residents of Winters may call toll free by dialing "Operator" and asking for "Enterprise 2058."

The Winters Amateurs defeated Miles in both games of a double-header at Miles Sunday, taking the first at 19-11 and the second 13-2. The first game went the scheduled seven innings, but the second game was called at the end of the fifth on the 10-run rule.

Jerry Tischer was the winning pitcher for the first game, and Joe Lujano was on the mound for the second.

Winters gathered 2 hits in the first game, and one home run in the second.

The Winters team now has a 4-0 record, and is aiming toward the regional playoffs to be held in Lubbock.

A game scheduled with Carlsbad on April 15 was called on account of rain after the second inning, with Winters leading 6-1. Lupe Lujano hit a grand slam homer in that game.

The Winters Amateurs will have an open date May 6, and then host Robert Lee May 13.

Other teams in this league are Ballinger, Miles, Robert Lee and Carlsbad.

County Agent Checking Condition of Boll Weevils After Spraying, Freeze

County Agriculture Agent C. T. Parker this week was distributing "boll weevil traps" throughout the county, in an effort to determine the population of the weevils and their condition following a hard, cold winter, and the spraying which was done early last fall.

The trapped weevils will be forwarded to an entomologist for study, Parker said. It is hoped, he said, that the three sprays which were made last fall, and the hard freezes experienced in this area during the winter, had had a "depopulating" effect on the weevils.

The aerial spraying last fall was the first in a series of such operations in an attempt to kill out the boll weevil.

Many thousands of acres of cotton were sprayed. However, effects of the spraying will not be known for sure until boll weevil season comes again this year. Plans are to repeat the process at least two more times, Parker said, to eliminate the weevil.

Half the cost of the program was underwritten by State agencies last year, Parker said. He also said he had contacted agriculture officials at Austin, and they had assured him that although many other areas of the state have plans to begin such programs this year, and money may be hard to come by, that Runnels County would definitely be included this year because of the high interest developed last year, and the fact that the first application of sprayed poison had already been made.

Coastal Bermuda Increases High-Quality Forsage

There is an increase in the amount of high quality forage being produced in the Runnels Soil and Water Conservation District due to the establishment of coastal bermudagrass.

This grass, due to our limited rainfall, is normally established on bottomland soils or areas that receive extra water. Many land-users have been taking advantage of seepy areas on their farms by successfully establishing these areas to bermudagrass. Due to its ability to use excess water, large quantities of forage can be produced. Although the quantity is there, too often quality is absent, according to Ken Schrank, Soil Conservationist of the local Soil Conservation Service Field Office.

The best means of improving quality in bermudagrass is to have your soil analyzed to determine the amount of fertilizer needed to be applied for optimum production. With the absence of a soil analysis, a good rule of thumb is to apply 30 pounds of Nitrogen, 10 pounds of Phosphorus and 30 pounds of Potash for each ton of expected yield.

With this information and good management, a good bermudagrass program can be carried out according to Schrank.

It is normally considered better to utilize bermudagrass during the growing season. This will also give you an opportunity to rest your rangeland and utilize it as dry forage during the fall and winter months.

For additional information on establishing bermudagrass and management, contact your local SCS field office.
