HOME TOWN Talk

By R. C. THOMAS

Many of us too much of the time take for granted what we have in this country of ours, especially in this section of Texas. The unchallenged length and breadth of the land—plenty of elbow room—clean, fresh air; scenery unsurpassed (yes, right here in West Central Texas!); the means and the time, for most, to go any place and do about anything we please, un-fettered by boundaries and restrictive situations; untouched, for the most part, by the shoulder-to-shoulder teeming populations so apparent in some sections of the world. Room and freedom to work hard; and room and freedom to play hard, when we wish. Situations of plenty, or at least enough, for those who have the desires to barter their abilities. Recreation-wise, we have opportunities unknown in many parts of the world.

We accept those advantages, and others, with an attitude that they have always been here and will remain (and they will, if we are big enough to keep them). We are so used to them that we sometimes fail to fully appreciate them.

Sometimes it takes an outsider to point out all these things for us, to make us suddenly realize just how fortunate we are. Recent visitors from England, who have spent several weeks here, have been amazed at what they have found. The entirely different life style which we take as a matter of course. The nonchalant manner in which we accept the things about us. The great distances of the land—and, for example, our nonexcitement over what to us is an ordinary journey, whether it be ten or a hundred miles.

These visitors have, in the few short weeks they have been with us, tried to absorb as much of our atmosphere as we have absorbed in lifetimes—and in many instances, they have outdone many of us. And along with their love for their own great and good country, they have grown to love and respect and appreciate what they have found here.

During the past five or six weeks Eric and Frances Roberts have been in Winters on an exchange program for the United Methodist Church, they have become a part of the community, so much so that when they return to their own country next week, they will leave a vacancy which will be hard to fill. The same can be said of Lesley Roberts and Richard Holloway, and Jim and Doris Wyeth, who have visited the Roberts during their stay. They have expressed appreciation and thanks for the natural hospitality which they have found here.

So, as they leave for their home in England next Sunday night, the entire community wishes them God speed, with this invitation:

"Y'all come back now, Y'hear!"

Some Wind and Lightning Damage In Winters Area Sunday Afternoon

An electrical and wind storm visited the immediate Winters area late Sunday afternoon, causing some damage to electric power lines and damaging outbuildings at a farmstead about two miles northeast of town. A fence in the Winters-haven Addition (on the Novice highway) also was blown down.

Storm clouds dumped upwards of two inches of rain in some parts of the area, while only showers fell south of town. The official U. S. Weather gauge showed 1.85 inches of rainfall in the northeast section of Winters proper.

A spokesman for West Texas Utilities Co. said lightning blew out some transformers on company lines near Winters, and some electrical lines were "melted" by the lightning. Firemen were called during the storm to a home in the northwest section of town, where smoke was reported coming from a water heater. It was thought lightning had blown out the electrical heating element in the heater.

On the farm of R. C. Kurtz Jr. northeast of Winters, an outbuilding was moved about two feet by high winds, and roofs of chicken houses were blown off. Four weeks ago, June 16, the Kurtz place received some damage from hail and wind, when screens and windows were knocked out.

A fence at the residence of O. T. Hinds, on Circle Drive in the Winters-haven Addition, was blown down.

Rainfall was reported only two or three miles north of Winters, while only light showers fell to the south of town.

Horse Owners Advised To Vaccinate Animals For VEE Prevention

With summer weather rains, mosquitoes are becoming more plentiful, and since they transmit sleeping sickness to horses, owners are urged to take protective steps now. County Extension Agent C. T. Parker Jr. said this week.

All horses, mules and ponies should be vaccinated for the three types of equine encephalomyelitis (horse sleeping sickness), Eastern and Western equine encephalomyelitis, and Venezuelan equine encephalomyelitis (VEE). VEE caused many horse deaths when it ravaged Mexico and southern Texas in 1971, Parker said.

The three diseases are caused by different viruses carried by mosquitoes, and therefore separate vaccinations are required, Parker pointed out.

Vaccine for the Eastern and Western strains of the disease is a combined form and annual booster shots should be given to horses after the initial vaccination, Parker said. The VEE vaccine provides ample protection for 18 months.

The extension agent advised that horses not vaccinated since the 1971 emergency be revaccinated as soon as possible. Also, he said, colts vaccinated while under six months of age should be revaccinated.

The Texas Animal Health Commission requires that all horses being moved to shows be vaccinated for VEE, Parker said.

Death often results after animals contract encephalomyelitis. Outward signs of the three diseases include depression, lack of appetite, and drowsiness. Animals may frequently grind their teeth and stagger when moving.

Rev., Mrs. Roberts Spoke At Meeting At Baptist Church

Reverend and Mrs. Eric Roberts of Southall, Middlesex, England, were guest speakers at a luncheon Tuesday hosted by women of the First Baptist Church for members of the First United Methodist Church and other guests.

Approximately 90 people attended the luncheon held in Fellowship Hall.

Rev. Roberts, pastor of King's Hall Methodist Church near London, is serving a six weeks ministry as exchange pastor with Rev. Bob Sanders of the Winters Methodist Church together with the churches at Wingate, Talpa and Crewes.

The Roberts showed slides and spoke of their work in King's Hall parish. One of their outstanding projects is a "Lone-ly People's Party," which is a Christmas dinner, program and gifts for those who are alone at this season of the year, regardless of age. This project has grown until it has become community wide with many people contributing.

The Mayor comes to this dinner and personally greets the guests. It is also his custom to visit the hospitals on Christmas morning and extend greetings to the patients.

Each year a nativity scene for the passerby is built in King's Hall large entrance hall which faces the street. The scene is erected ten days before Christmas and someone is on duty each day from 4 to 10 p. m. to tell the story of Jesus. There are many immigrants from the West Indies and India in this area.

Each year at Easter there is a festival of Spring flowers when each family brings flowers to the church in memory of some loved one who has passed on.

$6.5 Million In Oil and Gas Produced In Runnels In 1972

The petroleum industry in Runnels County played a significant role in 1972 in helping to satisfy the unprecedented demand for Texas' crude oil and natural gas.

Runnels was one of 190 of Texas' 254 counties which produced oil and gas valued in excess of $100,000 in a record production year for the state's No. 1 industry, according to figures compiled by the Texas Mid-Continent Oil & Gas Association.

The county ranked 121st in the state in the value of petroleum produced, $6.5 million. The sale of crude oil brought $6.1 million; natural gas, $421,000.

But despite this record year, due in large part to nine months of production at 100-percent of the maximum efficient rate, the nation's largest producer of petroleum could not produce enough to satisfy demand.

"To further stimulate production, we need a restoration of the open market force," said Robert A. Buschman of San Antonio, president of the Association.

"This would produce two much-needed effects: First, it would channel the state's petroleum products to the most efficient and highest priority uses; second, it would help provide part of the capital needed so desperately to build refineries and superports and to carry on expensive exploration and production activities," Buschman added.

This study by the Association also shows that production last year in Runnels County resulted in the payment of $819,000 to royalty owners.

The state of Texas received $314,000 in production taxes from county wells; $282,000 on crude oil output and $32,000 from natural gas production.

Oil and gas producers and developers spent $3.8 million drilling 69 wells in the county last year, with $1.6 million of that figure lost in 42 dry holes.

According to the Texas Employment Commission, 241 oil and gas industry employees worked in the county in 1972 and shared a payroll of $1.4 million.

One natural gas processing plant also added to the county's economy. The "Oil and Gas Journal" lists its total daily capacity at 1.1 million cubic feet.

City To Issue Revenue Bonds For Water Works

The Winters City Council on July 27 will pass an ordinance authorizing issuance of revenue bonds for the purpose of "improving, extending and repairing" the water works system. Notice of intention is being published this week.

The bonds, not to exceed $150,000, will be used for purchase and installation of a water storage tower to replace the old one which was removed prior to the street-widening project last year. The bonds will be secured by a pledge of the surplus net revenues available to the city from the waterworks system.

Farmers Union To Have Ice Cream Supper

The Runnels County Farmers Union will have an ice cream supper Tuesday, July 1, at 7:30 p. m. in the Winters Community Center.

Several 4-H Club members will give reports on their work. Members are asked to bring a freezer of ice cream or a cake.

Granddaughter of Wintersites Goes To State Contest Despite Handicap

Rhonda Mitchell, granddaughter of Dr. and Mrs. C. R. Bellis of Winters, is a courageous four-year-old Haltom City girl who despite her deafness was the winner of the Our Little Miss contest held in Fort Worth recently and went on to enter the state contest at Waco in June.

Rhonda, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Tim Mitchell, did not win the title in state competition but placed in the top ten, and because of her personality and charm she has been given a special invitation to enter the world contest to be held in New Orleans in August. She was the youngest entrant in the pageant.

The young, energetic mother of Rhonda, and two small boys, Roy and Timmy, is the former Deann Bellis. She has a special reason for entering her daughter in the pageant.

"I don't feel sorry for Rhonda and I don't want anybody else to."

"Deaf children go through a difficult psychological stage in adolescence, when they worry about being different. I feel Rhonda can use this experience to help her overcome feeling different."

"That's why I've planned to enroll her in modeling. Models don't need to hear or talk."

With the patient guidance of her mother and teachers at the Easter Seal Society for Crippled Children, and Tarrant County Day School for the Deaf, Rhonda was able to speak to the judges through sign language. She said, "My name is Rhonda and I am four years old."

This one sentence represented several weeks effort on the part of teachers and students, both to learn the sentence and to overcome shyness in saying it to others.

Rhonda wasn't born deaf and even now she is not completely deaf. She hears but not enough to make sense out of the noises. Doctors think her deafness is due either to high fever or some medication that was given to her when she had pneumonia at 18 months.

Boll Weevil Assn. Elects Officers,
Plans Diapause Program This Year

Officers for the Runnels Area Boll Weevil Association were elected by the board of directors last Thursday, and plans were drawn to begin the boll weevil diapause program again this year.

According to information received from C. T. Parker Jr., county extension agent, the state will provide the same amount of funds for the program this year as was provided last year, with local cotton producers matching the amount, in an effort to eradicate the boll weevil population in the area.

Enough funds were available last year to pay for three aerial sprayings over most of the affected area last year, and plans are to duplicate the effort this year. The diapause program is a three-year project.

Billy Joe Walker of Wingate was elected president of the Runnels Area Association, with

Sorghum Midge Control Necessary For Higher Production In Milo

Sorghum midge populations often increase to damaging levels in grain sorghum during this time of the year, according to County Extension Agent C. T. Parker Jr., and with the prospects of good grain sorghum prices this year, the producer has a real incentive to implement effective pest control in his crop if needed.

If daily field inspection indicates that an average of over two adult midges can be found per head and if 25 to 30 percent of the sorghum heads are beginning to bloom at the tip of the head, then insecticidal treatments should be applied, Parker said. If adults are still active in similar numbers three to five days later, then another application may be needed. This procedure should be continued if multiple insecticide applications are warranted by crop production potential until bloom is completed.

Carbaryl (Sevin), carbophenothion (Trithion), diazinon, disulfoton (Di-syston), ethion, parathion and malathion are all effective in controlling sorghum midge. Further information on rates and specific cautions as to the use of these insecticides can be obtained from the office of the county agent.

One method of checking adult midge populations is to quickly slip a plastic bag over the sorghum head then watching close-

TIPS OUTDOORSMEN

Wildlife Is a Product of Edges

This statement has long been an axiom in game management circles. Although hunters may not have thought of it in these terms, this principle is one that most of them realize instinctively.

What does it mean?

Dr. J. P. Linduska of Remington Arms explains it this way. When you go hunting for cottontails (and that's legal in Texas anytime) you don't put your beagle down in the center of a cornfield, or in the middle of a dense wood. You work the hedgerows, and brushpiles, and woodland borders—the edges.

It's the same with quail and pheasants. For every one of these birds you find out in the center of the field, you'll stir up a dozen on the borders, on the banks of ditches and just inside the thickets. Again it's the edges.

Of course the real give-away as to where game hangs out is to watch a bird dog with a couple of seasons of savvy behind him. He won't putter around in the middle of the field, the edges of the plum thickets, the edges where different types of vegetation meet.

Dr. Kinduska says "It's no mystery why game inhabit the edges. That's where they find, in close proximity, all the things necessary for a good life."

He points out that the center of a picked cornfield offers food aplenty and occasionally the birds will wander to the center. Also the center offers protection, so now and then the birds will stray in. But by far the greatest advantage to the hunter is to be found at the edges... since that's where the game spends most of its time.

Succinctly put "it's a matter of safety and logistics."

Whether it's game or some other species of animal life it's not enough simple to have lots of food and cover. Unless they are properly distributed... one in relation to the other... the amount of wildlife an area will support will be limited well below its real potential.

That's why, other things being equal, 10 one-acre ponds will produce more ducks than one big 10-acre pond.

It's a large part of the reason, too, why the small patch farms of yore were more productive of game than the big, consolidated, Texas ranches of today.

Modern day game management strives to improve habitat partly by increasing and bettering "edge" conditions.

Naturally, such a program doesn't allow for too many generalities. In a large timber stand it might well mean creating openings to insert food producing units in a uniform habitat of trees. In a large area of open fields it might call for hedges, or fence-row plantings of shrubs and trees to add cover to a barren landscape.

Whatever the formula, it will vary with the nature of the countryside and the type of game you want to encourage. But you can be sure that giving wildlife an edge on numbers will require, first of all, giving them an edge in which to live.

...about your SOCIAL SECURITY

If you are disabled, why wait to file for benefits? The Social Security Law changed last year, and the waiting period has been reduced from 6 to 5 full months. The disability claim takes a little longer to process; so, if you file early, the social security office will have enough time to process your claim and be able to get your first check to you in time.

For more information, contact the Social Security Office at 3000 West Harris Avenue (P. O. Box 3808) in San Angelo, Texas, or see the representative when he is in your area. Persons who are unable to meet with him are encouraged to call the office in San Angelo. Residents of Winters may call toll free by dialing "Operator" and asking for "Enterprise 2058".

The monthly premium for Medicare medical insurance, scheduled to be increased in July has been rolled back in keeping with President Nixon's 60-day price freeze policy, according to J. M. Talbot, social security manager.

"The higher amount will continue to be charged until the premium record for each beneficial can be corrected," Mr. Talbot said. "Refunds in full will be made at a later date. This also applies to railroad retirement beneficiaries and Civil Service annuitants who pay premiums for medical insurance under Medicare."

Medicare medical insurance helps pay for doctor bills and many other medical expenses of almost everyone 65 or over and disabled people under 65 who have been eligible for monthly social security disability payments for 2 years or more.

For more information, contact the Social Security office at 3000 West Harris Avenue (P. O. Box 3808) in San Angelo, Texas, or see the representative when he is in your area. AUSTIN—Annual public hearings to determine auto insurance rates were held this week (July 10) amid predictions that premiums will drop again this year.

Insurance Board Chairman Joe Christie expressed hope that evidence will bring a reduction for insurance buyers in most of Texas' 40 statistical rating territories.

This year's hearing was conducted against a backdrop of new legislation and a price freeze which applies to insurance as well as the usual review of accident frequency, claim cost and inflationary factors.

Laws which must be considered are comparative negligence, repeal of the guest statute, personal injury protection and the new deviation or competitive rating plan.

Texas Safety Association will also ask additional credit for persons completing the defensive driving course. Board rules now allow a 10 percent reduction in auto insurance rates for those certified as having taken the course.

Meanwhile, House Insurance Committee Chairman Rep. Ben Bynum of Amarillo predicted the average premium will drop 10 to 15 percent when new rates are set this fall.

Competitive rates may mean drops of as much as 20 to 30 percent for drivers with good safety records, Bynum said. "Nobody can definitely state what the final rates will be until the statistics and the impact of new insurance laws are weighed in detail after the hearing," said Christie.

REVISION SCHEDULE SET

The Constitutional Revision Commission will meet here July 27-29 to review policy presentations of its seven standing committees on specific areas.

Commission members will hold briefings for the press during the three-day meeting. Members of the Texas Press Association and Texas Association of Broadcasters will meet with commission members on Friday, July 27.

Commission action on the committee reports will be taken September 6-8 and 13-15.

Consideration of the final document is slated for meetings September 20-22 and 27-29, and the presentation, together with supporting reports, November 1, followed by briefing of legislators in December.

Commission members bogged down at a recent meeting here on adoption of basic guidelines for their mission and postponed consideration of a statement of principles until their July 27-29 meeting.

Instead, they agreed tentatively to write a "revised" constitution—the minimum assignment of voters last November 7 when they directed wheels be set in motion toward overhauling basic state laws. Two members thought even that non-specific commitment was premature.

House and Senate committees, meanwhile, have been named to make preliminary plans for the January-May constitutional convention, draft rules and agree on procedures.

14 MORE GAS SUITS FILED

Atty. Gen. John Hill has filed 14 more suits to recover full market value of royalty gas produced from state lands. The first such suit was filed May 18 against Exxon Corporation.

The state contends it is not limited by long term contracts, nor to any regulated ceiling prices promulgated by the Federal Power Commission.

Defendants, according to state allegations, are selling gas at about 20 cents per 1,000 cubic feet, or less, while the market value is around 45 cents per 1,000 cubic feet.

Suits now filed cover about 80 percent of all lease contracts involving gas royalties, Hill said.

COURTS SPEAK

A 4-year prison term assessed Amarillo former State Rep. Walter Knapp for using $1,200 worth of state-issued postage stamps to buy a used pickup truck was affirmed by the Court of Criminal Appeals, on a three-to-two split vote.

The same court reversed and remanded conviction and 20-year sentence of a Mineral Wells man for alleged delivery of heroin because of testimony concerning beating by police officers.

AG OPINIONS

Law requiring finance reports by House speakership candidates is clear as to who may and may not contribute, the amounts, extent of expenditures allowed and other matters, Attorney General Hill held.

Department of Public Safety, Hill said in another opinion, is governed by statute which requires certification of accuracy of seller's invoice in purchases through the State Board of Control. Other purchases requiring disbursement by the comptroller from the operator's and chauffeur's license fund must be accompanied by the vendor's certification of the invoice's accuracy in the usual manner. Hill continued.

APPOINTMENTS

In a major reshuffling, Gov. Dolph Briscoe appointed William T. Keenan of Houston executive director of the Governor's Committee On Aging, replacing Mrs. Carter Clifton of Austin.

Briscoe, at the same time, named Alton O. Bower of Austin chairman of the Committee on Aging.

Other recent appointments by the Governor included: J. R. Taylor of Amarillo and John Biggs of Vernon to the Animal Health Commission.

Dr. Margaret Cigarroa of Laredo to the Board of Mental Health and Mental Retardation.

Dr. Richard Hooker of Austin as gubernatorial school finance advisor.

J. R. Porter of Dallas to Texas as Mass Transportation Commission.

Statewide Harvest Figures For 1972 Season

AUSTIN—Kill a deer with a computer? Well, not exactly, but the computer at the Parks and Wildlife Department can tell you how many deer were harvested during the previous season, where they were killed and from where the successful hunters come.

The results are in from a statewide deer and turkey hunter harvest survey initiated earlier in the year and department fish and wildlife planners are confident that they have found the foundation for some very important information about the Texas deer herd and the Texas deer hunter.

Under the direction of department wildlife planner Ted Clark some 33,000 questionnaires were mailed to resident hunting license holders selected at random throughout the state.

The information card asked if the license holder hunted deer or turkey and if so, what species of deer, its age and sex, where and when the deer or bird was killed.

Responses were fed into a computer and, after working out a few of the initial bugs, the machine replied as to how many persons killed what game.

The results:
In the 1972-73 season, an estimated 362,178 white-tailed deer, 14,414 mule deer and 35,740 turkeys were harvested.

Of the whitetail figure, 75 percent of the kill were buck deer and virtually 100 percent of the mule deer harvest were buck animals.

Gobblers represented 86 percent of the total turkey harvest figure.

It is estimated that in the 1972-73 season, there were some 517,000 white-tailed deer hunters in the state, 37,000 mule deer hunters and 103,000 turkey hunters.

As was expected by Clark and other planners, the majority of deer killed in the state were taken in the Edwards Plateau, some 46 percent.

Llano County tallied the most deer within the Plateau area with 17,121 deer reported.

"We have been fairly sure of some data concerning deer and turkey harvest through experience in the field," said Clark "but up to this year we have lacked this type of data to back up our 'educated guesses'."

One of Clark's "educated guesses" was that most deer are killed on opening day, holidays, and weekends.

Sure enough, some 49,329 deer were killed on Nov. 18, the first day of the gun season, which represented 13 percent of the season's total harvest.

This year is also the first time that wildlife planners were aware that some 25 percent of successful hunters took two buck deer during the season.

Clark said that the data will be important in setting future seasons.

"The study will help us evaluate the effects of game regulations," he said. "In the future we will be able to predict hunting pressure in a specific area of the state and tailor the seasons and bag limits accordingly."

Combined with figures on the production and mortality of deer in the state, this data will enable the department to construct a computer "model" which will predict the composition of the Texas deer herd in years to come.

"Such a model," said Clark, "will let us evaluate the effects of a wildlife management decision before the decision becomes law."

Clark and the planning staff are very confident about the survey's data to within a quarter of one percent.

Similar surveys will be continued every season for the "foreseeable future" according to Clark.

Federal Fishery Money Due Texas

AUSTIN—Texas is again at the front of the line to receive federal funds for sport fishery restoration.

The federal government distributed some $5.5 million in aid to all states July 1 and Texas received $275,000.

The maximum granted to any state, Alaska and California also received $275,000.

Wellesley Hills, Mass. — Most authorities within the industry still believe that the future of air travel will hinge to a large extent on the supersonic transport, despite the setback suffered as a result of the crash of the Soviet Tupolev-144 (TU-144) in Paris last month. The recent history of SST in this country has been discouraging, with ecologists and others putting up a stiff battle against basic research and development. Thus far, the opponents have prevented progress here.

The only two SST prototypes to have a tryout thus far have been the French-British Concorde and the USSR TU-144. Before the tragedy in Paris, which resulted in the injury and death of quite a number of crew members and citizens of the town of Goussainville near the field, prospects appeared relatively bright for both models. While details were not entirely established, it was in the cards for passenger operations to start on supersonic airliners in 1975. Insiders now admit that the accident will undoubtedly set the schedule farther into the future since it will be still some time before it can be determined exactly what went wrong and caused the crash.

CONCEPT STILL UNAFFECTED

Proponents of the SST concept have been quick to point out that both the Concorde and the second and improved prototype of the TU-144 logged a great many hours of successful flight without any trouble. Also highlighted is the fact that the SSTs are designed for flying at supersonic speeds, and the accident occurred during a show-off act over the field at Le Bourget not only at low altitude but also at slow speed. There was little disagreement about this aspect of the situation, although the general investigation continues.

time as a result of the TU-144 crash, but they are prepared to continue their plans for future SST transport despite the tremors. President of the French member of the Concorde's manufacturing group stated that one accident cannot be expected to hobble the future of one aircraft type. He has been among the most dedicated supporters of supersonic travel and is fully aware that fresh opposition will be stirred up because of the crash.

MAKING USE OF THE DELAY

SST insiders do not intend to waste the inevitable delay that lies ahead. The Russians realize that in their second prototype of the TU-144 there were certain design changes that had not been sufficiently tested in operation prior to the crash. Hence, before the Soviets can consider undertaking passenger service, they must try out some sister craft and check all results. At the same time, makers of the Concorde will likely incorporate into the new prototypes some of the alterations made by the USSR, especially such economic advantages as increasing the passenger capacity. This will be a reflection of the fact that the reluctance of airlines to order the new enormous ships of the sky has stemmed to a large degree from economic objections.

U. S. INTEREST STILL ALIVE

There are still many industrial and financial forces in this country watching the slow but continuing developments abroad that signal the eventual acceptance of the SST in the aviation field. It may be later rather than sooner because of the Le Bourget setback, but fresh endeavors to get this country involved in the SST will definitely be seen. The opponents are waiting in the wings for any such recurrence and they will not hesitate to try everything to block our participation. But eventual success of the TU-144 and the Concorde would certainly bring about a new campaign for our involvement. If detente with the USSR continues, as the Research Department of Bab-

...about your SOCIAL SECURITY

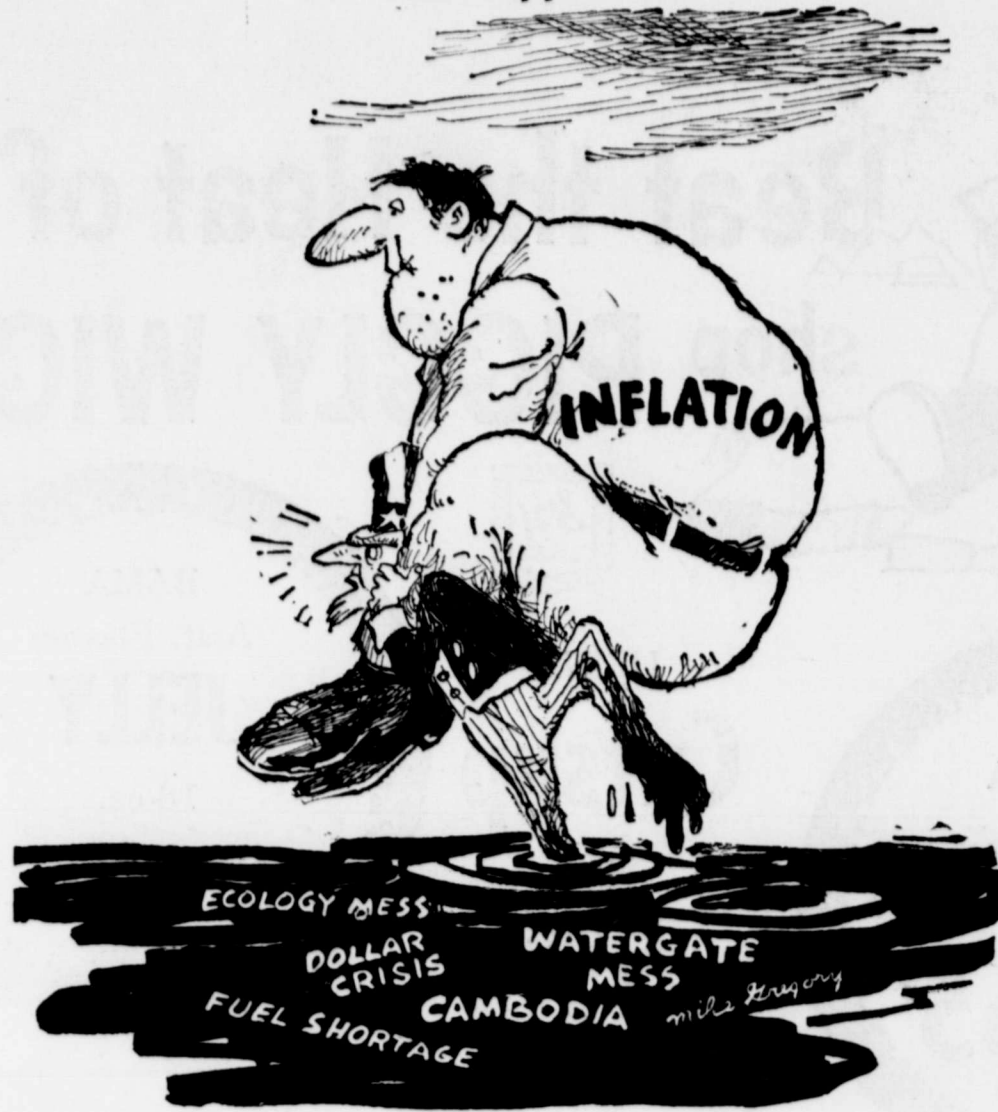

Social security payments will keep pace with the American standard of living for the next 50 years, according to J. M. Talbot, social security manager.

"A recent change in the law has made social security inflation-proof," Mr. Talbot said. "Increases in benefits are tied directly to increases in the cost of living. Each year, beginning in 1974, living costs will be compared with those of the year before. If living costs have increased 3 percent or more and a general social security benefit increase has not been enacted, benefits will be increased by the same percentage the following January."

The first automatic increase in benefits could be for January, 1975.

The Winters Enterprise's Reports expects, an adaptation of the TU-144 might even be made here, with help from the Soviets. Not a sure thing, but possible.

Mrs. Juanita O'Connor's Weekly Home Demonstration Agent's Column

Beware of Suntan Lotion Stains
Suntan lotions often stain swimwear and clothing, so handle them with care, advises Mrs. O'Connor, county Extension agent.

For instance, they react with protein fibers such as wool and silk, leaving permanent stains. Certain synthetic fibers, on the other hand, have an affinity for oily or greasy stains. Because of this, they absorb and hold suntan lotion.

These—and other fabrics—may stain permanently unless laundered promptly and properly.

For best results, hand wash swimsuits after each wearing—using warm water and mild detergent. Examine edges exposed to large amounts of suntan lotion, and if necessary, scrub them.

If a stain remains after regular washing, test the fabric for possible use of a dry cleaning solvent.

If found safe, sponge or spray stain with solvent and launder. For stains on synthetics, use a commercial spray before-washing spot remover. These aerosol spray products—basically grease-solvent are ideal for washable, colorfast fabrics.

Launder treated garments as soon as possible after spraying. However, if a fabric can't be treated with solvent, pretreat it with a concentrated solution of detergent, then launder. To get life from swim-wear, treat it with care, the agent advises.

Consumer Complaints

Consumers have the right to complain—and to expect adjustments—on purchases that fall short.

They also have the responsibility of making justified complaints—not those stemming from consumer negligence or abuse, Mrs. O'Connor noted.

Consumer can follow several guidelines to insure better products and services.

Make a habit of keeping receipts, hang tags, warranties, and care labels in one convenient place so they're available if needed for merchandise returns.

Before buying, read instructions carefully concerning use, storage, washing, oiling and other general care for a preview on what to expect from the product. After buying, follow instructions.

This may eliminate the need to return merchandise.

When returning merchandise avoid making returns near closing time or during rush hours. If leaving an item for repairs—or if a refund will be mailed to you—be sure to get a receipt for the item.

In making a complaint, be calm and courteous. Be friendly, but firm, and don't be sarcastic or abusive. Let the facts speak for themselves. State the facts clearly—where and when the product was purchased, it's model number (if any) brand name, price and what is wrong with it.

Try to explain what went wrong, when and how the defect appeared.

Hunting, Fishing Guides Ready For Distribution By P. & W.

AUSTIN—A digest of hunting and fishing regulations for 1973-74 has been printed and will be distributed to the public at the earliest pre-season date in Texas Parks and Wildlife Department history.

The free 32-page booklet, 5 1/2 by 8 1/2 inches in size, is printed in two colors on an off-white opaque paper. New feature this year include a revision of regulations under section headings for quick reference, two pages of explanation and illustrations on the use of tags and permits, large state maps for the county hunting regulations with easier-to-read county names and a listing of P&WD regional and district offices.

"An extra effort was made this year to get the hunting and fishing guide to the public well in advance of the coming seasons," explained Clayton T. Garrison, executive director. "Public hearings on proposed regulations were held earlier than ever and the Parks and Wildlife Commission met on April 26 to set seasons and limits for all counties under its regulatory authority."

"As a result this information is available in time for hunters to make their fall and winter plans, and is in keeping with our policy of getting information to the public as quickly as possible."

Copies of the guide were first sent to department offices around the state to help personnel answer questions on hunting and fishing regulations which become effective Sept. 1, 1973. Large quantities for public distribution will have been received at these offices by July 16.

Garrison pointed out that the guides will be available wherever hunters and fishermen buy their 1973-74 licenses after mid-August.

New 1973-74 licenses, which reflect increases established by the 63rd Legislature, are scheduled to be mailed to all issuing agencies on Aug. 10, Garrison said and will be available to sportsmen the following week.

"All of our license deputies — and these include sporting goods stores, fishing and hunting camps, marinas, grocery stores, bait shops and tackle departments — will have the new guides as they issue licenses," he said. "Since all are required to post new bonds for the coming fiscal year to qualify as license agents, the guides will be delivered beginning July 16 to all deputies who have filed public official bonds with us."

While the new regulations booklet is both early and comprehensive this year, certain processes in establishing game and fish regulations are still incomplete and will be listed in subsequent publications. These include:

—Dove Map, a single letter-size sheet with North and South Zones shown on state map and information on seasons, limits and regulations for mourning and white-winged doves, gallinules, rails, snipe and woodcock. Federal guidelines for state regulations are normally received in July for Parks and Wildlife Commission action. Available around August 1.

—Duck Identification leaflet, a four-color field guide to ducks found in Texas, with photographs made largely in the wild and information on seasons. Limits and regulations for all migratory game birds. Federal guidelines are due in August for Commission action. Available around September 1.

—Supplement to the hunting and fishing guide, containing game and fish regulations for counties placed under Parks and Wildlife Commission regulatory authority by the 63rd Legislature. Available early fall, following public hearings in September and subsequent Commission action.

—Commercial Fishing Guide, an annual digest of regulations for the taking and handling of fresh or saltwater aquatic species for commercial purposes.
