Talk

By R. C. THOMAS

Kids like to wade in the water—in creeks, mud holes, or in lakes—just so it's water. But a word of caution is in order because of a recent happening.

Bodie Balkum, 6-year-old grandson of Mr. and Mrs. W. R. Balkum, recently went wading in the shallows of Bluff Creek east of Winters. He stepped on some sharp object in the bed of the creek—possibly a broken bottle—and a tendon in his foot was almost severed.

Which report should make everyone even more cautious of where they discard their empty bottles and other junk. Unmindful throwing of those empties not only makes for a messy sight, but the result can be very dangerous for the unsuspecting and trusting.

How about that? The name of the little pony winning first place in the Miniature Class in the pony show here Saturday? What else but "Billy Water Gate!"

Housewives these days—those who do their housewifing during the day, and do not have to wedge it in after downtown jobs—should be more knowledgeable of current events of national importance these days than their husbands. They should be able to lead any discussions on the important matters of the day. And what could be more current and of more national importance than Watergate?

These ladies have had the opportunity to see first-hand—and do not have to depend on the flexible reportings of television commentators and reporters—all the things which are taking place in the drawn-out hearings. They've had the chance to hear the accusations and denials directly, voiced by people who have been at the very heart of our governmental system. They have been able to watch the facial expressions and hear the tones of voices of accusers and accused, the questioners and the other witnesses. They've had tons of material thrown at them via the airwaves of television; and most of them—those who have been regular viewers of the proceedings—probably have already made up their own minds what the outcome should be. They could be called a giant jury, and detached as they have been, separated by hundreds of miles from the actual hearings, are virtually unaffected by the actual surroundings. In view of this, they probably could render a better judgment than those who are present at the proceedings: those whose every movement and gesture and utterance have political significance.

When the Watergate hearings are over, though, and the soap operas again take over the television screen, these ladies may be in for some surprises. Aunt Millie's son, the one whose reputation and entire future was hanging in the balance when last seen a good many weeks ago when Watergate took over, probably will have all his personal problems solved, and be worrying about his own son's future, by the time the soap sellers get started again. It may be confusing to the ladies, at first, trying to get everything back in sequence, but they'll work it out some way, and the old world will keep on a-turning.

LAST DAY — Winters Postmaster H. M. (Jiggs) Nichols takes a report from Mrs. Edna Rogers following her return from her last rounds on a rural mail route. Mrs. Rogers made her last route run last Friday, and is retiring after carrying the mail for 22 years. (Staff Photo)

Edna Rogers "Will Miss the Seasons' Changes, Many Friends On Mail Route

"I'll miss the changes in the seasons—the summer, fall, winter, spring, the sunshine, the rain, the heat and the snow—But mostly I'll miss the regular visits with the many friends I have gained through the years," Edna (Mrs. Doc) Rogers said Friday, after making her last run on a rural mail route out of Winters.

Mrs. Rogers has retired after 22 years with the U. S. Post Office Department and the succeeding U. S. Postal Service.

She began as a temporary clerk in the Wintgate Post Office in 1951. She became a regular rural carrier out of the Wintgate office in 1961, and in January, 1973, when two Wintgate and Winters routes were combined, began work out of the Winters office, carrying the combined single Wintgate-Wintgate route.

Over the years as a rural carrier, Mrs. Rogers has known few of the much-publicized experiences usually related by some rural carriers, especially those of earlier years. The job and experiences on the routes have been more or less routine, she said, although she has had her car stuck in the mud a few times—"until I learned better." Most of the time while she has been on rural route duty, she said, the roads have been well-kept and passable almost all of the time, with the few exceptions when heavy rains or snowfalls made detours necessary. She did have a little tire trouble at first, she relates, but she finally learned what kind of tires to put on her car.

Watching the seasons change, and watching out for rural wildlife along her routes have kept the job from becoming boring, she said. She has seen wild foxes, deer, skunks, and other animals which normally live in the rural areas. Once, she said, she saw a mother skunk cross the road, carrying a baby skunk, perhaps moving to a new home site.

And "I've made a lot of friends along the routes, and these I will miss; at least, the regular visits with them."

Mrs. Rogers has lived in the Wintgate community most of her life, and finished high school at Wintgate. She has one son.

Far from "complete" retirement, Mrs. Rogers will continue to live at Wintgate where she and Mr. Rogers own a stock farm.

H. M. (Jiggs) Nichols, Winters postmaster, said the route carried by Mrs. Rogers will be covered by someone else out of the Winters office.

Phase 4 Economic Controls

Farm Bureau Head Says Farmers Grateful Ag Products Not Included

Texas Farm Bureau President J. T. Woodson said this week farmers and ranchers are grateful that the Administration recognized the "fallacy" of price controls on raw farm products in the new Phase 4 economic control program, but also expressed disappointment that beef will remain frozen.

"A free agriculture can and will produce adequate supplies of food for this nation with enough left over for export to help strengthen our economic standing around the world," Woodson said.

However, the farm organization leader said it is "regrettable" that beef will remain under the freeze until September 12. This will cause many producers to hold their cattle off the market until that time, he said.

"We believe that wage and price controls are bad for any and all segments of the economy," the head of the 145,000-member farm organization said. "We look forward to the day when this country can return to an unrestricted economy."

"The most powerful fuel behind our inflation is wasteful, deficit spending by our federal government," Woodson said. "It may be that in the long run our current fears over the economy will be beneficial if all Americans learn this one fact of life and quit expecting government to spend money it doesn't have."

Woodson predicted that, barring unforeseen weather factors, the production of food in this country will increase substantially this year. He quoted the U. S. Department of Agriculture as predicting that corn supplies will be up 6 percent over last year, soybeans up about 24 percent, grain sorghum up 5 percent and wheat supplies up by some 13 percent.

REV. AND MRS. VIRGIL JAMES

Congregation of Southside Baptist Honors Pastor and Wife For Service

In a special service Friday night during a week-long revival meeting, the congregation of the Winters Southside Baptist Church honored their pastor, the Rev. Virgil James, and Mrs. James, "for 30 years service in the ministry, 16 of them at the Southside Church."

The Rev. Mr. James was presented a plaque, and Mrs. James received a gift from the congregation, in appreciation of their services.

A native of Orient Community in Tom Green County, the Rev. Mr. James was reared in McCulloch County. He came to South Taylor County in 1936, and has lived there since, with the exception of the few years he pastored churches in other communities.

The Rev. Mr. James accepted a call to the ministry July 15, 1943, and preached his first sermon July 24, 1943. He was ordained in the Southward Baptist Church in Plainview.

During his 30 years in the ministry, the Rev. Mr. James has served nine churches: Fairview, near Canyon; Whitfield, near Plainview; Moro Baptist Church in Taylor County; Oak Grove, near Pleasant Grove in Jones County; Wilmeth Baptist Church; the Hillcrest Baptist Church, Big Spring; Hopewell Baptist Church in North Runnels County; Harmony Baptist Church in North Runnels County.

He has been pastor of the Southside Baptist Church for 16 years. During that time, he has seen the expansion of the church from a small mission type organization to a large congregation. Several years ago, a new church building was erected on Crews Road. For more than a year, the Rev. Mr. James preached at St. Luke's Baptist Church on Sunday afternoon.

During his 30 years in the ministry, the Rev. Mr. James has officiated at 306 funerals; has performed 83 weddings; and has preached in 41 revivals.

In addition to his work with the church, the Rev. Mr. James has a ranching operation in South Taylor County. He has been active in community affairs, and was one of the first members of the board of directors of Elm Creek Water Control District, appointed by the Governor when the district was organized a few years ago.

The Rev. and Mrs. James have two daughters, Mrs. Roy Rice and Mrs. Elwood Wade, and three grandchildren.

Boll Weevil Program Organized, Growers Will Be Solicited

Members of the board of directors of Runnels Area Boll Weevil Association met in Ballinger Tuesday night to map plans for the second year of a three-year diapause program to eradicate the boll weevil in cotton in the area.

After hearing reports from the Runnels County Extension Agent, C. T. Parker, concerning boll weevil infestation in the area, the group made plans for soliciting cotton growers in the area for funds to be used in spraying. It is expected that the State will furnish money for one-half the cost, with growers underwriting the rest.

It was also expected that boll weevil "checkers" would be hired to take a weevil count in the area.

Parker said attempts will be made to include some of the area east of Winters in this year's program. That area, and some sections to the south, were not included in the program of aerial spraying last year because of the lack of funds, and the low count of weevils. The cut-off line last year was US Highway 83. The county agent said it was hoped the program could be moved at least three miles to the east of Winters this time.

In a boll weevil count made by the county agent's office, infestation in the Miles area was found to be very low, Parker said. In the Wintgate area, infestation was 5 to 20 percent (punctures counted in 100 cotton squares). This count was lower than at the same time last year, but this year's cotton crop is much younger than last season.

In the Drasco-Pumphrey area of North Runnels County, however, the infestation was found to be extremely heavy—as much as 50 percent damage, Parker said.

Lubbock Man Killed In Wreck

A Lubbock man was killed, his wife seriously injured, and a Winters man injured in a two-vehicle collision at the intersection of US 83 and FM 53 on the south edge of Winters Tuesday. Police said the accident occurred at 11:57 a. m.

Lloyd Voss Risinger, 77, of Lubbock, was pronounced dead at the scene of the accident by Winters Police Officer Justice Ray Heathcott. Mrs. Risinger, 82, received emergency treatment at North Runnels Hospital and transferred almost immediately to Hendrick Memorial Hospital in Abilene. She was suffering from possible concussion, possible broken legs and lacerations.

Lloyd Compton of Winters received a broken arm, broken ribs and lacerations. He was taken by Spill Funeral Home ambulance to North Runnels Hospital, and then transferred to Hendrick Hospital.

The great distance traveled by the Risinger car after colliding with the Compton vehicle at the intersection was cause for some confusion immediately after the accident, according to reports, and assistance and rescue efforts were spread over a wide area. Police reports indicated the Risinger car traveled half a mile from the point of impact before coming to a standstill in a milo field south of FM 53, and caught fire. Ambulance drivers thought at first that only one car was involved and one person injured until their attention was called to the second car half a mile away.

Also, reports that a third person was riding in the Risinger car caused a search of the fields and roadside along FM 53. An airplane, flown by Dr. Z. I. Hale and Dr. T. L. Russell, was put into service in the search. It was later learned there had been no one else in the car with Mr. and Mrs. Risinger, however.

According to police reports, the Risinger car was traveling west, and the Compton pickup headed north when the two collided at the intersection. It was believed that at the moment of impact, Mr. Risinger's foot or leg jammed the accelerator to the floor, causing his car to gain speed. It traveled on down FM 53 for several hundred feet, went into a ditch north of the road, then back onto the highway, and then hit a highway sign on the north side of the road 1,000 feet from the intersection, then went back across the highway and several hundred feet into a milo field south of the highway, and stopped about 2600 feet from the original point of impact. It was believed that Mrs. Risinger, with her husband's body across her lap, had attempted to steer the car from the right hand seat as it sped down the highway after the collision.

About 100 people gathered at the scene after the accident, and made a walk-through search in the fields on both sides of the road for the third person in the Risinger car, before it was determined that only two people had been in the car.

Pork, Chicken Shortages Becoming Apparent Here, Little Heavy Buying

Although food markets in some of the larger cities reported heavier-than-usual buying of pork and chicken at week's end, in the face of anticipated share increases in prices, local food stores report only a slight increase in purchases.

Some housewives did buy extra supplies of these food items—such as whole cases of chickens in some instances—and bacon supplies in the stores were lowered to serious levels. However, according to Winters merchants, reaction here to the Phase 4 price regulations have been only a ripple compared to that reported in the heavy population centers.

Sharp increases in prices of pork and chicken were seen the first of this week, with some of the highest jumps in the so-called economy brands of bacon. Merchants also are expecting some difficulty in keeping freezers stocked with chickens and pork, as stocks around the country decline. They already are experiencing difficulty in ordering, as wholesalers reduce orders to fit their supplies.

Local food market people are anticipating further shortages in these items within the next few weeks, as overall supplies dwindle.

Beef, which remained under strict price control, is expected to become harder to get within the next few weeks, also. Carcass beef has not been affected to a great extent thus far, some merchants say, but difficulty is expected within a short time.

A big increase in prices of prepared meats, such as cooked sliced ham and luncheon meats which contain a big percentage of pork, was seen the first of this week. A small 4-ounce package of boiled sliced ham which last week was retailing at 85 cents has jumped to about $1.09, and a 6-ounce package of sliced luncheon meat retail for around 89 cents a few days ago now is priced at $1.19, or more.

Meat is not the only food item caught in the squeeze, according to food merchants. An expected shortage of all cereal foods is beginning to be felt, as the supplies of wheat and other food grains dwindle. One merchant said shelves which normally hold cereal foods are beginning to empty, and there is difficulty in maintaining a sizeable stock. This also is expected to become worse within the next few weeks and months.

Egg prices have increased about 10 cents per dozen within the last few days, and prices on other food items are climbing with the release of controls on some.

Local food merchants have expressed appreciation for the calm customer reaction in the face of difficulty in obtaining what they want, and have become so used to purchasing when they pleased, and the higher prices which are already being felt. Local customers are not attempting to lay the blame on the doorsteps of merchants, they said, but realize that national events are causing the shortages and higher prices.

Winters food merchants say they will continue to serve all customers to the best of their abilities, providing the best products available, and at the lowest possible prices.

History Group Name to Change, Marker Ban Lifted

The Texas State Historical Survey Committee will soon become the Texas Historical Commission, members of the Runnels County Historical Survey Committee were told at a meeting of the group Saturday. The local organization's name also will be changed, it was stated.

Also, a moratorium on historical marker placement or allotment, which has been in effect for some months, has been lifted, and applications from local units are again being accepted, it was stated.

The Runnels group also was informed that the state commission is beginning to make plans for the U. S. bicentennial celebration, which will be held in 1976.

Attending the Saturday meeting from Winters were Mr. and Mrs. Rankin Pace, Mrs. Loyd Roberson and Mrs. George Poe.

Vandals Hitting Schools, Reward For Info Offered

The Winters School this week announced an offer of a $50 reward for information leading to the arrest of person or persons throwing rocks through windows of school buildings.

School Superintendent Carroll Tatom said 18 windows had been broken out by thrown rocks Monday night. Within the past few days, 48 windows were smashed in the old gymnasium, he said.

COUNTY AGENT PARKER'S COLUMN

FALLS TOP ACCIDENT LIST

Falls are among the most common and serious accidents in agriculture, says the county Extension Agent. National Farm Safety Week, July 23-31, co-sponsored by the National Safety Council and the U. S. Dept. of Agriculture emphasizes prevention of accidental falls.

Surveys of farm and ranch accident in 10 states showed that nearly one-third of all farm injuries were caused by falls. An in-depth investigation of these accidents showed that over half of the falls occurred on the job and while the victim was walking, not climbing or running. In a study of 86 accidents, 76 percent of the victims received serious injuries.

Some of the most common hazards of falls are cluttered work and passage areas, slippery surfaces, broken flooring and unsafe ladders.

The best weapon against accidental falls is alertness, says

Parker. Illness, haste, fatigue, emotional upset, alcohol and drugs increase the potential for a trip or slip.

Parker suggests that farmers guard against falls by:

- Keeping stairs repaired, cleared and well-lighted.
- Provide sturdy hand rails.
- Do not carry loads that block your vision.
- Set ladders on firm footing with the base one foot out for every four up.
- Keep materials well secured and within easy reach.
- Wear shoes with non-skid soles and heels.
- Do not work up high when the weather is windy or stormy.
- Allow no one to ride on a tractor drawbar or towed machinery.
- Stay clear of running machinery so that an accidental slip won't throw you into moving parts.
- Wear clothing that fits properly for the activity and allows free movement.
- Never mount or dismount a moving tractor.
- Falls can happen without warning, so always take time to watch where you are going and be alert, advises Parker.

TRACTORS CAN BE SAFE

Competent operation, use of protective equipment and proper maintenance could prevent most tractor and farm machinery accidents.

And National Farm Safety Week, is a good time to review farm safety and to take preventative action where necessary. It is estimated that tractor accidents claim from 700 to 1000 lives and cause thousands of injuries annually.

More than half of all tractor accident fatalities involve overturns. Roll-over protective ends and frames could eliminate more than 90 percent of the fatalities. Many farmers do not have roll-over protection on their equipment due to the investment it requires. However, such protection is important and is being considered as a possible requirement under the Occupational Safety and Health Act.

Stay clear of ditches, embankments and holes to avoid upset.

Cut speed when turning, crossing slopes and rough, slick or muddy surfaces.

Watch where you're going at row ends, on roads and near

... about your SOCIAL SECURITY

Some children can now get social security payments on a grandparent's earnings record. Because of a recent change in the social security law, grandchildren who are supported by their grandparent can get monthly social security payments if the grandparent is getting payments or died after working long enough under social security.

Generally, the child's parents must be deceased or disabled at the time the grandparent began getting payments or died. The child must be under 18 and dependent on the grandparent. In some cases, grandchildren can get social security payments if they are legally adopted by their grandparent.

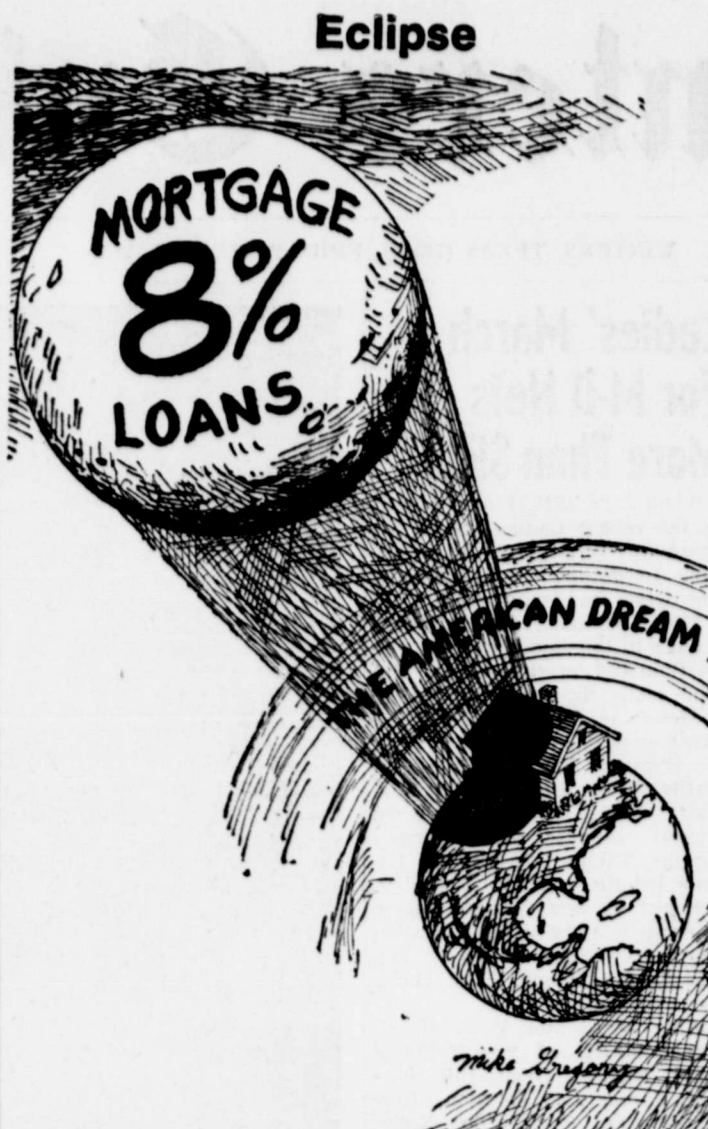

These new provisions are designed to help children who live with grandparents who take care of them.

Stay off hills and slopes too steep for safe operation.

Don't overload; engage the clutch slowly with a heavy load to avoid backward tip.

Short Takes

Date Line
The International Date Line is the 180th meridian of longitude, which runs north and south about the middle of the Pacific Ocean. It marks the point where one civil day ends and the next begins upon the earth.

Changed Spelling
Magna Carta was the original spelling of England's Great Charter. In 1946, the British House of Lords took action to drop the letter "h" in the spelling of "charta" and the word was officially changed to "carta."

Swift Swimmer
The otter is the fastest freshwater mammal in North America. It cruises at six miles an hour but can go much faster if need be. It can swim a quarter-mile under water and remain submerged for four minutes.

Enormous Eruption
The eruption of Krakatau, a volcano near Sumatra and Java, in 1883, threw out about four cubic miles of earth into the air, where some of it remained for three years.

BEEF BUYING
Beef-hungry consumers can follow seven guidelines to keep meat on the table in spite of the "shrinking buck".

Compare meat cuts on a cost-per-serving basis, rather than price per pound. For example, you can get about four servings from a pound of ground beef, but only two and a half serving from a sirloin steak. For them to be equal on a cost-per-serving basis—when sirloin brings $1.49 per pound, ground beef could sell for as much as $2.38 per pound.

A brisket at $1.19 a pound will cost as much per serving as a boneless chuck at 99 cents a pound, or shortribs at 78 cents per pound.

Boneless chuck roast at $1.09 per pound and shortribs at 88 cents a pound have exactly the same cost per serving, but a T-bone steak at $1.59 a pound costs twice as much per serving as liver at the same price.

Mrs. O'Connor advises homemakers—when substituting other meats such as broiler chickens for beef—to remember that most of them have very low servings per pound.

For example, a ready-to-cook broiler at 59 cents a pound is slightly more expensive per serving than brisket or rolled rump at $1.29 per pound.

Don't pay extra for minor conveniences.

Pre-formed ground beef patties are pretty—but expensive. The amount of work in making a hamburger patty is pretty negligible.

Similar types of conveniences—at a cost—are built into such items as tenderized or formed steaks, cubed stewing beef, breaded chicken-fried steaks and precooked cuts. Do the work yourself, and save a bundle.

Carefully compare prices for beef cuts in different stores.

All retailers don't charge the same prices for individual cuts. In fact, it's not unusual to have very substantial variations in retail prices between stores—even in a small town.

Shop around. Don't always buy your beef in the same old store, simply because that's where the watermelons are cheaper. Get your money's worth in quality. Unless you're an expert, the easiest way to insure consistent acceptability and quality is to buy only USDA Choice beef.

It's either labeled as such, or has a purple chilled with the word "Choice" inside of it, stamped on the outside of the meat cut.

Look for this before you buy. You could buy U. S. Good beef, but it's not as safe a bet in terms of quality. Don't be ashamed to return an unsatisfactory piece of meat. Most retailers, particularly larger chains, flaunt a money-back guarantee. Use it. If not completely satisfied, return it. Don't assume your cooking was bad.

In some cases, cooking can intensify the problem (like well-done steaks) but in general, you need a good piece of beef to begin with.

Learn some of the basic cuts of beef. Several different names are used for the same cut, because of regional preferences. Just a study will show you, for example, that a rib-eye steak is the same and probably cheaper than a Delmonico.

Similarly, a rib steak and a club steak are basically the same. Sirloin steak is a much more tender piece of meat than round steak. Buy on sales—usually the week-end sales will save you money. Don't be ashamed to buy only sales items at several stores that might be close to each other—it's your money—so make the most of it.

BRISCOE WEALTH ESTIMATED

Major Texas daily newspapers came up with estimates that Gov. Dolph Briscoe owns more than 300,000 acres of land in South Texas and has assets of over $40 million.

The Governor paid $113,309 in taxes of his land in 1972.

"What we assess him, he pays," said Dimmit County Tax Assessor-Collector Mrs. Jeanne John.

Through leases, in addition to his holdings, Briscoe is said to control a million acres of land.

COURTS SPEAK

Third Court of Civil Appeals agreed with lower court that St. Mary's University of San Antonio owns the Laredo Archives and other documents in the Sebron S. Wilcox collection.

The same court dismissed South Texans' suit for hunting rights in Uvalde, Dimmit and Zavala counties river beds.

Affirming an intermediate court, the State Supreme Court backed a new trial for a candy flavoring mix company's suit to collect insurance on ice cream unfit for consumption.

The Third Court of Civil Appeals affirmed a district court verdict that a miscarriage by an Austin woman was not caused by an auto accident.

The Texas Department of Agriculture reports dramatic increases in prices of eggs, pork and other commodities throughout the state.

TDA estimated the egg price increase at 10 cents per dozen this week on the retail level, and said grade A large eggs could sell for 85 cents a dozen.

Pork prices are up 10 cents a pound, and lamb prices are also soaring. The Agriculture Department said some smaller packers are contemplating discontinuing slaughter. Distributors were said to be seeking additional supplies of vegetables since they are permitted to raise prices.

A major problem is a shortage of trucks to move grain.

REIMBURSEMENT FOR CITIES

Cities which constructed sewage treatment plans before July 1, 1966 and July 1, 1972, without benefit of full federal construction grants can get reimbursements.

Texas Water Quality Board Executive Director Hugh C. Yantis, Jr., said applications for the reimbursements should be made to the Environmental Protection by October 17. Yantis also suggested cities which constructed plants as far back as July 1, 1956, without full federal grants should make applications for reimbursements in case regulations are changed to qualify them.

Allen Eugene Richardson, a native of Bailey County, is new executive director of Texas Water Rights Commission, and Clinton R. Miertschin of La Grange will be the agency's acting chief engineer.

Governor Briscoe appointed Don Carroll of Tyler as district judge of the Seventh District Court in Smith County, replacing R. P. Power who resigned.

Briscoe named LeRue Dixon of Jacksonville as district attorney in Cherokee County.

Governor Briscoe placed Frank Barron of Fort Worth and Robert T. Mattox of Crockett on the Trinity River Authority and reappointed Guy C. Jackson III of Anahuac, and Amon G. Carter Jr. of Fort Worth.

Sam Damron of Muleshoe and Albert Hopkins of Houston were picked by Briscoe to serve on the State Board of Pharmacy, succeeding John R. Fowler of Memphis and Eugene Wilson of Dallas.

Mrs. Blake Sparenberg of Austin is the Governor's choice for the State Board of Canvasers.

OIL PRODUCTION WIDE OPEN

For the 17th straight month, the Railroad Commission has directed 100 per cent oil production during August.

Crude oil buyers' request for more than 3.78 million barrels daily was slightly less than the record for July, however.

Exceptions to the wide-open order were allowed for East Texas field (86 per cent), Kelly-Snyder of West Texas (84 per cent) and Tom O'Connor Field (70 per cent).

Commission Chairman Jim C. Langdon said state crude reserves dropped 13.1 million barrels since July, 1972.

AG OPINIONS

Atty. Gen. John Hill conditionally approved the state's $5 million tuition-equalization grant program for private college students but warned that rules must be framed to meet U. S. Supreme Court tests of aid to parochial schools.

In other recent opinions, Hill concluded:

- A college professor cannot be employed simultaneously as an assistant state district attorney.
- Residence of a minor for purpose of school attendance is normally that of his parents.
- Texas Water Quality Board has authority to require feed-

Poison ivy will get you if you don't watch out.

What most people don't realize is that its poison is potent the year 'round—even after the plant is dead.

Furthermore its poison can be transferred from one person to another by clothing or shoes—even by animals that brush up against you or that you pet after they have run through a bed of ivy.

It's not uncommon for campers who pick up firewood to be poisoned—or even from the smoke of burning poison ivy buds. In this instance the buds emit droplets of poison ivy oil that are carried away in the smoke and settle on clothing, then seep through to the skin.

You can lessen the damage of ivy poisoning by a thorough washing of hands and arms as quickly as possible after contact—and by a good scrubbing of all wearing apparel at the very first opportunity.

There are numerous "relief" medicines on the market.

But the best "cure" we have found is to rub the skin gently (don't ever scratch) or dab it lightly with cotton soaked in a mixture of 12 aspirin tablets and some camphor gum dissolved in a pint of rubbing alcohol. Apply it often.

Some say that after a bad case of poison-ivy-itch you're immune to the infection for a year or two. But, it could be that you're just a darn sight more careful and give the itchy vine a wide berth for a long time thereafter.

HEALTH FOR ALL

Drilling Into The Lung

There are surprising new ways to detect lung disease. One of them is a high-speed, hand-held power drill.

The drill gets samples of lung tissue in much the same way that astronauts take samples of the moon's soils. The tip of the drill has a sharp cutting edge that bores right through tough, elastic lung tissue. The tip is inserted through a small incision between the patient's ribs at a top speed of 15,000 revolutions per minute. The entire maneuver takes only a few seconds.

The new technique was reported at a recent meeting of the American Lung Association. According to Dr. Donald C. Zavala—assistant professor of medicine, University of Iowa College of Medicine—the drill causes little disturbance to surrounding tissues. Patients do not feel much discomfort with a local anesthetic.

Dr. Zavala has used the drill to make conclusive diagnoses of rheumatoid lung disease, tuberculosis, viral pneumonia, and other lung diseases.

Another way to test for lung diseases has been developed by Dr. John B. West from the University of California San Diego School of Medicine. This involves a ten-minute breathing test that detects lung disease before symptoms appear. The equipment enables a doctor to measure in a relatively short time the lung capacity, blood flow, retention of oxygen and carbon dioxide, and closure of the lung's airways. According to Dr. West, these measurements correlate well with the development of such lung disorders as emphysema and bronchitis. The lung diagnostic package, he says, will be available in most major hospitals in two years or less.

Does TV Need an Analyst?

By RALPH NOVAK

NEW YORK (CEF)

Instant television analysis of presidential activities reached a new peak after the inaugural balls, when NBC's Edwin Newman and Barbara Walters sat around seemingly forever exploring the political implications of President Nixon's two-step.

That was so entertaining and informative, we will soon hear something like the following:

Ed: Good afternoon, ladies and gentlemen. We have interrupted our regular programming to bring you this special report on President Nixon's unexpected appearance at a window of his White House office.

Since this is the first glimpse of Mr. Nixon the public has had in weeks, we have gathered our entire staff of correspondents, plus the NBC janitorial staff and the Ding-a-Ling Sisters here. We'll start with Frank—

Frank: Well, Ed, I believe I noticed that during the President's appearance at the window—which lasted exactly 19.3 seconds—he was looking up at the sky.

Now I think that in view of Mr. Nixon's recent running battle with the Congress, he was checking the weather.

Ed: In case he wants to personally go over to the Capitol to have face-to-face talks with Congressional leaders?

Frank: No, in case he decides to call in air strikes to show Congress he means business.

Ed: Thanks, Frank. That's something that I have to admit hadn't occurred to any of us here. David?

David: It came as no surprise. There was the President. He was standing there. As if he were, in fact, at the window. Which he was.

It was clear. He was looking for the mailman. Ed—

Ed: David, that was the dumbest analysis I ever heard.

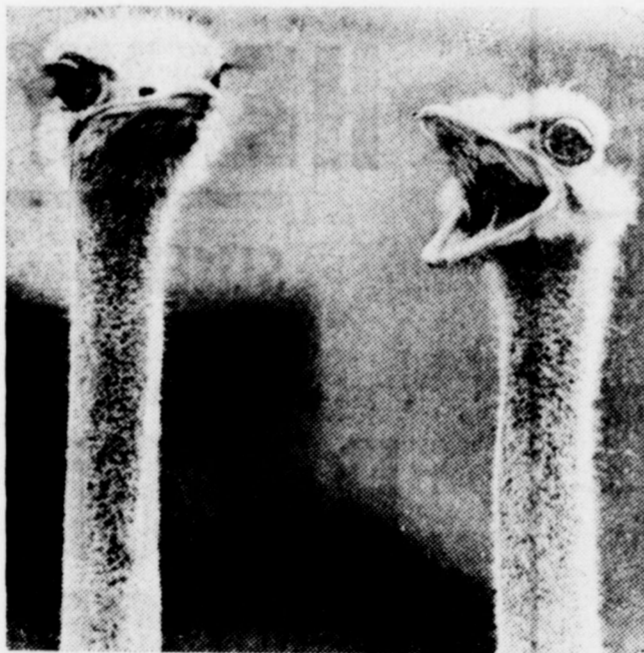

David: Nobody used to say things like that to me when Chet was still here.

John: If I can interrupt, Ed, I believe that what the President was doing in the already-famous Window Appearance was to symbolically tell us that America should be looking outward at its worldwide responsibilities but should not stray too far from home to do it.

How do you like that McGee? How do you like them apples, you—

Ed: Now, John, let's keep our objectivity. But I think we have time for only one more comment. Barbara, will you sum up?

Barbara: Peachy keen. Ed, I think it is, if I can make a little joke here, perfectly clear that Mr. Nixon came to that window for one reason and one reason only. I happened to be walking by and he wanted to wave to me. As I said to Tricia the other day . . .

Athabaska Oil Sands

Wellesley Hills, Mass. — A constantly rising demand for petroleum in the face of declining reserves has focused attention on a secondary source of oil with great potential. Until recently the economics of the business has restrained development of oil sands, but increases in the price structure of conventional crude oil are making the synthetic crude extracted from oil sands considerably more competitive.

The oil or "tar" sands in question are located primarily in the province of Alberta, Canada, along the Athabaska River. The deposits lie within an area of some 30,000 square miles and represent oil reserves of some 600 billion barrels, one of the largest reservoirs in the world. The oil is actually contained in a sandy material which is processed to produce a synthetic crude oil.

History Of The Sands

The oil sands were first noted in 1778, but the need for oil in that era was minimal. Not until close to the end of the last century were the first surveys made and commercial development of the oil sands brought under consideration. Since then progress has been slow in perfecting practical production methods. Only a small percentage of the sands can be reached by surface mining; the remainder is as deep as 2,000 feet and must be reached through drilling a special type of extraction well. Several thousand wells have been sunk, but no feasible extraction process was found until fairly recently.

Currently, a hot water separation process appears to be the most practical. The sands are treated with hot water and steam which separates bitumen and waste products. Further treatment turns out a synthetic crude of good quality. Sun Oil Co., through its subsidiary Great Canadian Oil Sands Ltd., is the principal producer of synthetic crude today. After a substantial capital outlay, Sun's operation is now considered to be on a commercial footing. Output is at a rate of 45,000 barrels a day, and a quota increase has been requested, raising this to 65,000 barrels a day. After six years of losses, GCOS recently was able to report a profit. This may, however, be short-lived since the Province has just moved royalty payments upward.

Future Of Oil Sands

It is this question of royalty payments which could restrict near term development of the sands. But if it is resolved and the prospect of higher prices for conventional crude materializes, there could be a real boom in production of synthetic crude. Estimates indicate as many as 25 operating plants by the year 2000, with production capacity of 3.5 million barrels a day. Near term, there are plans for a 125,000 b/d plant to be built at a cost of $500 million. This would be constructed and run by a consortium of U. S. and Canadian companies. Another firm is also considering two 100,000 b/d plants at a cost of $800 million.

Economics The Key

A decision is expected shortly on whether these projects will actually proceed. Again, it is largely a question of economics which will determine "go" or

Round Steak—The Money's Worth Steak

Shoppers always try to get the most for their money. When they shop for beef, they try even harder. That's why wise shoppers buy round steak. It gives them their money's worth by giving them a cut that has very little waste and plenty of lean meat.

With round steak "What you see is practically what you eat." Not much of it has to be trimmed off and thrown away. Round steak has the lowest percentage of fat of all beef steaks. Although in general it is a less tender cut, because it comes from the less tender round section of the beef carcass, the tenderness of its different parts

varies. Three Distinct Parts
Round steak is sold either as a full round steak or cut into its different parts. These parts differ in tenderness because they contain different muscles. The most tender section is the top round section—the largest section in the round steak. If it is graded USDA Prime or Choice, the top round can be broiled or pan-broiled like more expensive steaks. In lower grades, it should be braised. When sold separately, top round is more expensive than bottom round.

The eye-of-round section is the smallest. It is not as tender as top round, but if it's USDA Prime or Choice it can be pan-broiled if thinly sliced. The bottom round section is the least tender, and must be cooked with moist heat in all grades. It is often sold with the eye-of-round attached. A full round steak, which of course includes the bottom round, should also be cooked with moist heat. Cost about 87 cents per serving.

In April, 1973, the national retail average price for round steak was $1.75 per pound. At that price, a 3 pound round steak, a generous meal for six, would cost you $5.25—or 87 cents per serving. That's allowing each person an 8-ounce serving—and perhaps you'd prefer to serve smaller portions.

Fresh Cherry Parfait—Ideal Summer Dessert

2 cups fresh sweet cherries, halved
Sugar: 1-4 cup, 1-3 cup and 1-4 cup.
1-4 cup fresh lemon juice
1 envelope unflavored gelatin
1-4 cup cold water
3 eggs, separated
1-4 tsp. salt

Combine 1 cup of halved fresh sweet cherries, 1-4 cup sugar, lemon juice, and 2 tablespoons water; simmer covered, over low heat 5 minutes. Drain, reserving 3-4 cup juice and cherries; chill. Soften 1 envelope gelatin in 1-4 cup cold water. Combine egg yolks and 1-3 cup sugar in top part of double boiler. Stir in 1-4 tsp. salt and chilled cherry juice. Cook over hot water (not boiling) or very low heat until mixture coats metal spoon, stirring constantly. Remove from heat and add softened gelatin. Chill until mixture is about as thick as fresh egg whites. Fold in chilled cherries. Beat egg whites until they stand in soft peaks, gradually beat in remaining 1-4 cup sugar. Fold into gelatin mixture. Chill. Just before serving, fill parfait glasses with layer of gelatin mixture and a second cup of halved fresh sweet cherries, starting and ending with gelatin mixture. Garnish with whipped cream. Yield: 6 servings.

Fresh Pears—The Greeks Had A Word For Them

Wayback in the year 50 B.C. according to some historians, the Greek poet, Homer, described fresh pears as the "gift of the gods." Pears delighted the palates of Roman emperors at the lavish banquets which were a hallmark of that golden era of history; and Roman legions en route to world conquest carried pears to the temperate parts of the Old World.

The culture of pears advanced through the centuries and by 1866, there were 850 different varieties catalogued in Great Britain alone. Although it is not known precisely when the pear was introduced to this country, records of the Massachusetts Bay Company indicate that it

Cherry Bonanza

"Oh boy... cherries!" You're bound to get a good response from your family when you bring home fresh cherries. And now is the time to buy them. There's a bonanza of sweet, juicy cherries this year, available right now in stores across the nation.

Cherries, with their appealing color and luscious flavor have long been one of our most popular fruits. For a superb treat at mealtime or in between, cherries offer instant enjoyment just as they are. All you have to do is wash them, and they're ready to be eaten.

You'll want to seed them, of course, if you're planning to use them in a mixed fruit dish. They combine beautifully with other fresh fruits in fruit cups, salads, and many desserts.

Left on the stem, cherries make a colorful garnish on a slice of melon, or a half pear, or other fruit.

Or for your summertime table why not make an appetizing centerpiece of fresh sweet cherries still on the stem, along with pears and other fresh fruits to suit your own taste.

Arrange the fruits in a large, shallow dish, with the pears and other bulkier fruits in the middle. Then put plenty of sweet cherries around the outside for easy access. And add another dash of color here and there by putting some of the cherries in among the larger fruits in the middle of the centerpiece. This is bound to be a winner at meal or snack time.

But, however, you choose to serve sweet cherries, you'll find them a bonanza in good eating.
