HOME TOWN Talk

Shoved to the wall during the present meat "crisis," and obviously fed up (or would the term more accurately be "under-fed?") with the whole situation of rising prices and shortages of everything, Wilmer Balkum, owner of Balkum's Grocery & Market, this week takes a different tack in his regular ad in The Enterprise. For his meat-hungry customers, he's listing "Armadillo Filets, range fed;" "Local Cottontail (harder to catch all the time);" "Possum;" "Rattlesnake meat (hip cuts only);" and other delicacies.

The mark of a good supplier is his continuing effort to supply, even in the face of insurmountable obstacles. Even if he can't supply the things his customers have grown accustomed to, he'll arrange for the best substitute . . . Is Wilmer really . . . ?

When you're out on a limb, don't . . . The president of the Winters Lions Club is down at the heel this week.

Sometime over the weekend, he decided to trim a pecan tree. He propped his ladder against a limb, climbed up and proceeded to saw off the limb . . .

Dr. Tommy Russell, local dentist, will be back in his office within a few days, as soon as a broken heel mends . . .

If ever there is a time when close cooperation between two cities is needed, it is now.

Winters and Ballinger are municipal sponsors of the proposed Elm Creek watershed flood control project, now being surveyed for planning purposes. Included in the original plans—and in the legislation of a few years ago setting the framework for establishment of Elm Creek Water Control District—are provisions for a multi-purpose reservoir, to be located some place on Elm Creek, to impound water for use by the two municipalities. The make-up—location, size, and number of structures—of the entire project rests with the decision of the two cities regarding the proposed multi-purpose structure.

As explained by the Soil Conservation Service surveyors at a meeting with the governing councils of the two cities last week, the SCS will finance construction of its part of such a dam—that part necessary for flood control—but the two municipalities would be called upon to finance the extra dam footage to hold the water for municipal use. (Another avenue of financing would probably be used for the recreational footage proposed.)

Financing of such a project could be done through grants, if available, or through revenue bond sales, it was explained. But it would have to be a joint project of the two cities, to succeed.

To date, there has been no announcement from either of the two governing bodies of the action planned. Studies are still being made, and the two groups will probably get together within the next few days to make joint decisions. The SCS planning team suggested that whatever action taken by the two towns take place soon—they would like to work about six weeks with the towns' representatives in making plans for such a structure, as the design of the entire watershed project hinges on those decisions.

There is no way of knowing at the present time which route the councils of Winters and Ballinger will take, whether they will each appoint members to a special single multi-purpose (Continued on Page 6)

Grandson Of Local Residents Tells of Chile

Jon McMillan, grandson of Mr. and Mrs. T. A. McMillan of Winters, and son of Mr. and Mrs. L. O. McMillan of Pawling, N. Y., has been spending the summer in Santiago, Chile, as an Open Door Exchange Student, and recently told of his experiences in that South American country which is in an almost-civil war.

His parents are former residents of Winters, where his father was a school teacher and also in the school business office several years ago.

McMillan said "this is an exciting but somewhat dangerous time in Chile, as the Communist government of Salvador Allende is in an almost constant state of political crisis."

He is a guest in the Renzo Fanzo Home, and said, "I really like my family. Mrs. Fanzo is the motorcycle-riding, mountain-cliff-climbing, and waterfall-barreling type. Mr. Fanzo is changing. When I first came he was the jolliest man I had ever met, but he's become very nervous and can never talk about anything but the political situation."

On the political situation, "there is little food because the government has taken over all the farms and they are not producing anything. There are lines of people all over town waiting to get their ration of food. Not just the poor people, but everybody, except the very rich who get it in the black market."

"No one is allowed out of the house past 11 p. m. and the Open Door students can never be on the streets alone. Open Door has a special team of minutemen who are ready to whisk us out of the country in case of a real revolution. Mr. Fanzo told me that when I heard gun shots, which is often, never to look out the window because I'd probably get shot in the head. He was shot at three times last Friday. When (not if) the revolution comes, the Communists will come here to this neighborhood first, because this is where all the wealthy families live."

As soon as this government is kicked out, they want a dictator. No one wants a democracy, because they know it won't be strong enough to rid the country of all the Communists. With a dictator the rich will probably get what they want, and if that is so, the poor people are really going to suffer, because they are the Communists and they have benefited from Allende."

Disabled Vet Tax Exemption Bill Called Void

Jack Farmer, Runnels County Tax Assessor-Collector, said he has received notice from the State Comptroller that House Bill 80, providing ad valorem tax exemptions for disabled veterans, is void. The bill was passed by the 63rd Legislature.

Farmer said he received the following notice, dated August 16, 1973, from the office of the Comptroller: "The Attorney General of Texas today advised this department HB No. 80, passed by the 63rd Legislature, to exempt certain disabled veterans from various amounts of ad valorem taxation, is void in its entirety. The Attorney General also stated that the exemption could not be granted until there is further legislation on the subject."

The Runnels County Tax Collector said there have been several inquiries regarding this exemption.

French Tourist In Winters Home

Marie Francoise Musnier of Flaine, France, who is making a bus tour of the United States, visited a few days last week with Elva Cavallaro, and in the home of Mr. and Mrs. Garland Shook.

Miss Musnier, who speaks little English, is a real estate salesman or representative in her home town, which is in the mountains near Geneva, Switzerland. She began her tour of Southern Canada and the United States from Quebec, traveling by bus to the West Coast.

She visited several of the Northwest States, California, Nevada, and then to Texas. She had no pre-planned tour, but caught a bus when she had completed visits in each of the places she stopped. At times, she said, she missed bus connections in small towns, and was forced to find good sleeping places. She slept in an outside corridor of a building in a Northwestern State, and at one place where there was no hotel or motel, she slept sitting in a chair in a filling station while waiting for the bus.

She was surprised, upon reaching Texas, that the towns were not filled with cowboys on horse back, and big herds of cattle were not seen along the bus routes.

Miss Musnier said traveling by bus was the only way to really see the United States and meet the people. This type of travel is much better than travel agency-planned tours, she said, and she planned to do it again in the future. She left Saturday for New York, where she was to board a jetliner for Iceland, and then return to France.

The City Water Department also was authorized to purchase a new pickup truck. Robinson Chevrolet Co. submitted the low bid of $2549.00, with trade-in.

The City also will advertise for bids for paving the runway, parking aprons and access road at the municipal airport.

First Football Game

Blizzards Play In Clyde Friday

The Winters Blizzards will open the 1973 schoolboy football season Friday night with a non-conference game against Clyde at Clyde. Kickoff will be at 8 p. m.

The Blizzards are scheduled for five non-district games, three at home and two away, before District 6-AA play begins October 19. All non-conference games will begin at 8 p. m., with district contests to begin at 7:30. The Winters team will have an open date October 12.

Friday night's game at Clyde will be "feeler" for the young and inexperienced Blue team, as most of the starters will be going for the first time in varsity status. They have been in practice only a short time, and have scrimmaged with outsiders only twice, and many changes in the lineup can be expected after the first game or two, Coach Chili Black said.

As has been the case for several years past, the Clyde Bulldogs are expected to field a big, bruising team, bigger player-by-player than most Class AA teams in the area. They have been pre-season picked to win the crown in their own district, 8-AA. The Bulldogs were second to first-place Coleman in their district last season, and had a 7-2-1 season in '72.

The Blizzards and the Bulldogs met in a scrimmage event here last Friday night, and came out about even, according to Coach Black. The Blue team did a good job in that scrimmage, and Black said the defense was beginning to hit as if they meant it. They have a long way to go, however, and this week's game will be some test of their mettle. Offensively, the Blizzards have been a little down on execution of plays, but this fault is expected to be remedied once the team goes for the record. A list of probable starters was released Tuesday of this week, but there could be some changes before the starting whistle Friday night—and probably some changes in the lineup for the second game coming up the following week. For the starting game, the Blizzards will be working out of a Wishbone formation offense, and a Split-4 defense lineup, Coach Black said.

The Bulldogs will field about six offensive and six defensive men who were starters during the 1972 season. They will be out to break a three-game losing streak they have suffered at the hands of the Blizzards. The Blizzards downed the Bulldogs 28-9 in 1970, 7-6 in 1971, and 20-16 in 1972. In 1969, Clyde broke a 20-game losing streak by defeating Winters—the last time they have come out ahead in this series.

To win Friday night, the young Blizzards will have to stop: —Johnny York, 230 pound tackle, who is already being touted for All-State. —Jarrell Hurst, offensive threat last year, and a good running back as well as a top-notch receiver. —Rueben Ramo, second stringer last year, who is expected to be one of the best quarterbacks in the AA area this year. Combined with Hurst, he will present a threat. —Johnny Tucker, a 145-pound backfielder who is expert on outside running.

—Bobby Evans, 185-pound fullback, who is the Bulldogs' best ground gainer up the middle.

PROBABLE STARTERS

Coach Black re-emphasized the point that first-of-the-week picks for the starting lineups may be changed by game time.

Extra State Money Allows Extra Spraying For Boll Weevils

State agricultural agencies "found" some extra money a few days ago, and allocated several thousand dollars to the Runnels Area Boll Weevil Association for an additional battle in the current war against the boll weevil, according to C. T. Parker Jr., Runnels County Extension Agent.

The extra money was used to spray about 12,000 acres in the Runnels area to cover "hot spots" by aerial spraying. Heavily infested areas were found in the Drasco-Pumphrey communities, and around Wingle in North Runnels, and in an area north of Miles.

These areas will receive a total of four aerial sprayings, instead of the three planned for the entire area covered by the Boll Weevil Association.

The first regular spraying in the boll weevil diapause program will begin about September 10, it was stated. The applications will be made.

This is the second year of a three-year diapause program to rid the area of boll weevils. It is still too early to tell what effect the program will be on total boll weevil infestations in this area, Parker said.

Bill Walker of the Wingle community is president of the Runnels Area Boll Weevil Association.

Nutrition
The adage is: "You can lead a horse to water, but you can't make him drink."

So, too, with you and food. There is a world of choices, a multitude of good food choices to pick from. It's up to you to know what you need, and to get it.

If you don't eat the foods you need, you can expect trouble.

The results of poor nutrition: when an individual's diet is lacking in one or many essential nutrients, the consequences can be dangerous. For instance: Severe malnutrition can lower the body's defenses, enough so that death can result from common illnesses. Such malnutrition is not common in the U. S. but in developing countries, small children are badly damaged by inadequate protein and insufficient food of any kind.

Growth can be slower or limited. Children fed inadequate diets do not realize their full growth potential. Sometimes improved diet can help them catch up.

Various visible effects can occur. The skin is an indicator of good diet. Only when the body has a sufficient supply of the nutrients needed for good skin will it be smooth, soft and clear. Hair and nails will suffer in quality when diet is poor. Many invisible results are common. Blood may not be rich in oxygen. Wounds may not heal as quickly as they should. Eyes may not function properly. Fatigue may set in more quickly when the diet is poor.

What are the Essential Nutrients? The foods you eat daily should contain the following nutrients: protein, carbohydrate, fat, water, vitamins and minerals.

Getting on the right track: If you want to improve your nutrition, the first thing you need is commitment. You must give real thought and care to what you eat, at least at first.

Your first task is to form new habits. Learn to enjoy a good breakfast, if you have no appetite, don't eat so much before you go to bed and get up a little earlier. Be sure every meal contains something from each food group in the Daily Food Guide. Snack wisely, making sure the food you eat at off hours is something your body really needs.

Recreation Planners Look To the Future

AUSTIN—Many of the traditional approaches to outdoor recreation have been made obsolete by increased urbanization, changing land use, shifting attitudes and an upward spiral in population.

The intimidating array of complex problems brought about by this multitude of factors calls for an attack by a new type of assault team—the comprehensive planners.

It is their responsibility to keep up with the changes and determine the trends, and their chief weapon to defeat the ever-increasing onslaught of problems is volumes of information assimilated in banks of computers.

In Texas, comprehensive planning for outdoor recreation in the future is handled by a special division of the Texas Parks and Wildlife Department. Working to satisfy the requirements for grants from the Bureau of Outdoor Recreation's Land and Water Conservation Fund, these planners will have a significant part in molding our outdoor recreation opportunities for decades to come.

Their goal is "objective planning," that is, forecasting demand for outdoor recreation facilities based on the participation patterns and preferences of the public. This necessitates an accurate cross-section of public opinion which means thousands of on-site and at-home interviews throughout the state.

Planners point out that it is not enough to just go out and collect data. Planning efforts must be coordinated with all entities involved. They cannot succeed when the left hand does not know what the right is doing.

If all concerned — Federal, state, county, municipal and private agencies—were to conduct their own studies and proceed to plan new and expanded facilities without divulging their plans to other interests, it is likely that most outdoor recreational needs would never be met.

Agencies charged with the responsibility of providing recreational facilities cannot afford to provide the wrong facilities in light of projected trends.

Planners estimate the urban areas of Texas alone will need to increase outdoor recreational facilities 309 percent above the supply available in 1970 to meet the needs of Texans in 1980.

At the crux of the problem, of course, is the increasing population, and this is further complicated by the fact that the population increase is concentrated in the metropolitan areas. Six areas—Houston, Dallas, San Antonio, Fort Worth, El Paso and Austin—received more than 90 percent of the State's population growth in the past 10 years.

One of the jobs of the comprehensive planning division is to detect these trends and report them so that provisions can be made for these new types of recreation.

After studying existing facilities, recreational planners have found that much of the present deficit in recreational opportunities within the metropolitan areas could be alleviated if more intensive and efficient recreation programs were initiated.

Mr. Belew was born in Bell County, and came to the Winters area as a small boy. He is the son of the late Mr. and Mrs.

E. D. Belew. Mr. and Mrs. Belew are members of the Wingate Baptist Church.

They have nine grandchildren and four great-grandchildren.

Management Areas Are Open To Dove Hunting

AUSTIN—North Zone hunters, need a place to hunt?

Two Parks and Wildlife Department wildlife management areas are open to public dove hunting from September 1 with no restrictions on the number of hunters allowed on the areas.

The 28,183-acre Matador Area northwest of Paducah is offering dove hunting September 1-23 on a first-come, first-served basis. To help defray the cost of the hunt, a $1 fee is being charged each hunter for every day hunted.

For those who can't manage the dollar fee, hunting on the Pat Mayse Area near Paris is free.

Bermuda Pasture Pointers Offered

COLLEGE STATION — Members of the Combined Beef Cattle Pasture Forage Short Course here Aug. 20-21 learned that getting top quality and production from Coastal and Coastcross-1 Bermudas requires careful management.

W. C. McCormick, head of the Georgia Coastal Plain Experiment Station Animal Science Department, advised cattlemen with Coastal or Coastcross pastures to base their stocking rate on minimum production periods (spring and fall) rather than summer's profuse growth rate.

During dormancy, research has shown that burning the sod in late February or early March can control weeds and insects. This is followed by sod dragging to break up manure clumps and a soil test to determine fertilized needs.

The cattleman should decide whether he wants maximum per-animal or per-acre gain, or attempt to get a desirable combination, McCormick pointed out.

Surplus forage often accumulates during summer, and some form of harvesting may be necessary, he added. Surplus can be taken as medium to poor quality hay from all fields, or animals can be concentrated and excess forage harvested as medium to good quality hay from a few fields.

Stocking for periods of best grass growth might result in overgrazing during minimum growth periods. If this is the case, supplemental feeding is needed to keep animal performance up. Hay from the previous season comes in handy for this situation.

McCormick noted that forcing animals to graze stemmy, high fiber Bermuda usually decreases animal performance. But if this is done, dry cows are best. Rotational grazing does not usually improve gains or solve problems of low quality grass accumulation.

As for harvesting, McCormick recommended cutting Coastal or Coastcross Bermuda when it is 16 to 18 inches high. Make following cuttings at monthly intervals except the last, which will likely be 5 to 6 weeks of age. Dry the hay thoroughly in the swath.

Heavier fertilization is needed for haymaking, and applications more frequent. This is especially true, McCormick said, if harvested forage is for production of high quality pellets.

Experience is the only sure-fire cure for inexperience.

Public Awareness Is the Key to Conservation

AUSTIN—An increase in public awareness of Texas natural resources will be sought thru a new statewide information and education program of the Texas Parks and Wildlife Department.

In announcing the establishment of 11 district offices of the department's Information and Education Division, executive director Clayton T. Garrison explained, "We are taking our message of good conservation practices directly to the citizens of the state, by placing I&E officers in the larger cities and metropolitan areas.

"Our game wardens, park officers and biologists meet the public out in the recreation areas. What we are seeking now is a stronger influence on the public attitude where Texans live, watch TV, listen to the radio, read the newspapers and attend meetings."

Most of the district offices will be located in facilities already occupied by the Department's Law Enforcement Division. Houston, Dallas, El Paso, San Antonio, Lubbock, Beaumont, Wichita Falls, Tyler, Rockport (Corpus Christi), the Rio Grande Valley and Austin will be headquarters for the new district structure.

"We look forward to this special effort as a means of educating the public before they set out to hunt, fish, camp or go boating," said Tom Browning, director of Law Enforcement. "We'd rather people know about the regulations beforehand, instead of breaking laws."

Seven of the district offices being assigned are I&E veterans, said Richard McCune, director of Information and Education Division, and the others will be drawn first from the ranks of the department and then from applicants with conservation communications experience.

The boss says that four days a week of work from us would be a vast improvement over the five-day work week.

Sweep-Type Plow Does Better Job

Ken Schrank, soil Conservation with the Runnels County Soil Conservation Service Field office, says the sweep-type plow does an excellent job of mulching sorghum stubble.

By leaving the stubble mulch on or near the soil surface, soil moisture is conserved as the mulch provides an insulation for the soil against the hot sun and drying winds. The mulch breaks up the force of raindrops when rain falls, preventing the sealing of the soil surface and allowing greater water infiltration and also provides the soil surface with protection against wind erosion, according to Schrank.

Schrank said that in addition to providing protection from wind and water erosion, the mulch improves the soil by returning organic matter to the soil which increases the water and fertility capacity of the soil as well as improving the movement of air through the soil which is essential for plant growth.

Schrank said high residue crops such as sorghums and small grains can furnish the needed amounts of mulch if the stubble is left on or near the soil surface. To assure production of sufficient amounts, the high residue crops should be fertilized. He said the fertilizer will help improve the chemical and biological condition of the soil, and supply plant food needed to improve plant growth. This will reduce soil and water the quality and quantity of the crop.

College Station — Favorable weather so far this season points to a successful Texas cotton crop that will pay farmers their highest cotton prices since 1951.

"Tight supplies and relatively strong demands, both domestic and export, indicate that the average 1973-74 cotton price to the farmer will be higher than the 1972-73 cotton price to the farmer even though mid-season demand will again be weak," says Charles Baker, marketing economist for the Texas Agricultural Extension Service.

"Early season cotton last year was heavily contracted to cover domestic mill needs for the last quarter of 1972. However, the anticipated large crop resulted in a weak mid-season market with prices unduly depressed. Domestic mills and foreign buyers sharpened demand in late 1972 and early 1973, resulting in depletion of uncommitted stocks, contracts for much of the 1973-74 crop and record prices," explains the Texas A. & M. University System specialist.

Texas, the nation's leading cotton producing state since 1880 produced 4.1 million bales in 1972 on 5,570 million acres for a total value of $535 million. The 1973 Texas crop, planted on 5,700 million acres, should produce three percent more than the 1972 total and have a value exceeding $709 million for the first time since 1962.

13,000 Rainbows Were Stocked In Texas Waters

Austin — Approximately 13,000 rainbow trout were recently stocked in five locations in Texas by the Texas Parks and Wildlife Department.

The two largest stockings were in the Guadalupe River below Canyon Dam and the Brazos River below Possum Kingdom Reservoir. These two locations got 5,000 trout apiece.

The 2,000 other fish were stocked experimentally in three other undisclosed locations. Biologists say they want to monitor the growth and survival of the fish to see if these locations will support a future put-and-take fishery.

The fish were six to 7½ inches long. Department personnel said the recently stocked trout were a bit smaller than other trout released in Texas waters and were stocked because the Heart of the Hills Fish Hatchery near Ingram had too many fish for the system there.

The hatchery has approximately 7,000 more trout which are rearing to approximately 10 inches long to be stocked in a Panhandle lake when it is completed.

Austin. — Next big political campaign shaping up is for legislative pay raises and annual legislative sessions on the November 6 election ballot.

Top four elected Texas officials launched the campaign with the cooperation of 35 citizens' organizations.

Gov. Dolph Briscoe, Atty. Gen. John Hill, Lt. Gov. Bill Hobby and House Speaker Price Daniel Jr. are united in support of Constitutional Amendment One.

The amendment would raise legislative pay from $4,800 a year (plus expenses) to $15,000 a year (plus $18 a day during sessions).

It would also provide for regular legislative sessions of 180 days during odd-numbered years and of 60 days, mainly for budgeting matters, during even-numbered years.

Austin attorney Will Davis was selected chairman of the organizational support group, with Phil Strickland of Dallas as vice chairman.

An executive committee headed by Davis and Strickland will work with the 35 cooperating associations in the campaign. (Texas Press Association is among the organizations.)

"This is a must thing," said Attorney General Hill. "It is a necessity that we pay the right amount for an honest day's work in a very high calling."

"Annual session in this day and time are essential for an efficient, responsible, intelligent and accountable legislative branch to properly function," said Daniel.

The statewide support organization will coordinate fund-raising and publicity activities for the campaign.

Legislators have been paid $4,800 a year since 1960. Voters defeated proposals for pay raises in 1965, 1966, 1969 and 1972.

They also rejected annual sessions of the legislature in 1969.

was immediately replaced by Mack Wallace of Athens.

On September 15, Tunnell, 47, will become vice-president of Tenneco of Houston in the company's governmental affairs department.

Wallace, 43, a former district attorney, has been serving as executive director of Governor Briscoe's Criminal Justice Council and as legal adviser to the governor. Briscoe appointed him two days after Tunnell's resignation.

Tunnell was appointed to the powerful, three-member oil, gas and transportation regulatory agency by former Gov. John Connally in 1965, succeeding Ernest O. Thompson. He was re-elected to a six-year term in 1972.

VENDING RECORDS BLOKED

Vending industry leaders blocked House Speaker Price Daniel Jr.'s effort to make public records of a 1968 legislative investigation of the industry.

Raymond B. Williams and Burnie H. Williams in their lawsuit contended release of the investigative record held by the Department of Public Safety in a confidential file would cause "ill-based stories."

Their case was set for hearing September 6.

Meanwhile, a former Austin vending machine operator claimed he made cash payoffs to a state representative, a state judge and an ex-state senator. Daniel said he is considering a new House sub-committee investigation of the coin-operated amusement machine industry.

TELEPHONE SAVINGS CLAIMED

Legislative Budget Board reportedly will save a million dollar state agencies which reportedly will save a million dollars a year.

The system, pushed by Governor Briscoe, would link all state agencies over Texas and provide a toll-free long distance service nationwide. An installation charge of $170,000, plus $350,000 a month is required for the TEX-AN communications network.

LBG advised Briscoe to be cautious he is not buying more out-of-state service than necessary. One member, Rep. W. S. Healy of Paducah, said the telephone company should be required to improve service to ordinary citizens before the state purchases TEX-AN. Present state telephone service now costs about $431,201 a month for long distance and WATS lines.

AG OPINIONS
With some exceptions, Welfare Department records on child care facility licensing are public. Attorney General Hill held, although identity of persons covered by social and health records would remain confidential.

In other recent opinions, Hill concluded:
—Fees assessed adult probationers can be used for juvenile probation at discretion of judges, although they should be used primarily for adult probation purposes.

—No member of the 63rd Legislature would be eligible to be paid appointment to the office of House administrator, having resigned from the legislature to accept it. But Rep. James D. Cole of Greenville took the job without salary.

—County commissioners can hold bond elections for buildings and acquiring books for library purposes.

APPOINTMENTS
Lorenzo D. Cole of Houston is first executive director of the Governor's office of Equal Employment Opportunity.

W. J. (Bill) Harding of Austin has been designated chief clerk of the State Board of Insurance effective September 1. Governor Briscoe appointed Kaufman County Attorney Harold D. Hollingsworth criminal district attorney for the county. He appointed James Arnold acting director of the Office of Traffic Safety.

District Judge Herman Jones of Austin will head a special fact-finding committee to inspect conditions at Austin State School.

Joe G. Moore Jr., director of the Office of Research at the University of Texas Lyndon B. Johnson School of Public Affairs, became program director of the National Commission on Water Quality September 1.

Sen. Lloyd Doggett of Austin was named by Lt. Gov. Bill Hobby to the State Legislative Library Board.

Raymond L. Prewett is head of the governor's Division of Rural Community Affairs.

800,000 NEW ADULTS
Texas picked up about 800,000 new adults overnight August 27 when a law took effect granting majority rights to 18-to-20-year-olds.

Under the new law, the young Texans can buy alcoholic beverages, enter contracts, get married without their parents' consent, and serve on juries, among other things.

A total of 249 acts of the 63rd Legislature took effect last week. Among them was reduction of the penalty for first offense possession of marijuana (up to four ounces) to a misdemeanor.

PLANNING REGIONS RE-IDENTIFIED

An executive order by the Governor redelineated state planning regions after a four-month review.

Regions are Texoma State Planning Region, Heart of Texas State Planning and Middle Rio Grande State Planning Region. Karnes County was realigned from the Coastal Bend State Planning Region to the Alamo State Planning Region, and Hardin County from the Deep East Texas SPR to the South East SPR.

SHORT SNORTS

Dr. George Willeford of Austin is expected to step down as state Republican chairman in October.

American Petrofina Company of Texas announced price increases up to 15 cents a barrel for crude oil purchased from leases, as did Cosden Oil and Chemical Company.

The House Administration Committee reaffirmed a decision from Lt. Gov. Hobby and others.

Among new laws which just went into effect is one prohibiting denial of credit and loans on the basis of sex.

Bilingual application forms are available for expanded state wide food stamp program.

Passenger boardings of Texas intrastate airlines increased 13 per cent over the previous quarter.

The Governor asked President Nixon to declare Sabine County a major disaster area due to flooding.

Landlord-Tenant Bill Became Effective Sept. 1

Austin—Landlord-tenant misunderstandings about security deposits should become a problem of the past, now that there is a new state law which lays down guidelines for both parties in a rental transaction, says Texas' Attorney General John L. Hill.

The security deposit bill, by Rep. John Bigham of Temple, and another bill by Rep. Matt Garcia of San Antonio, which limits eviction procedures, were passed by the 1973 Legislature, and both became law on September 1.

They were the successful products of a consumer law package endorsed by the Texas Consumer Association, and supported by the Consumer Protection Division of the Attorney General's Office.

The Edward Rogers and Kem were guests in the O. I. Phillips home.

Visitors from Norton, Ballinger, Eden, Abilene, Colorado City and Winters have attended the Church of Christ meeting this week.

eral's Office.

And a vital ingredient to their passage was the added endorsement of the Texas Apartment Owners Association, whose members were witness to the need for an approach to rental arrangements which would be fair to lessors as well as lessees.

Although most people who have residential property for rent, and those who occupy apartments and rent houses seem to enjoy good business relationships, the State Senate Consumer Committee hearings last year revealed that consumer complaints, and some landlord fraud did exist.

Security deposits, the practice of requiring a sum from a new renter to insure against a landlord's financial loss for damage or abuse to the property, obviously was causing a lot of misunderstandings—if the Senate hearings were any indication.

Some apartment dwellers charged that their landlords had refused arbitrarily to return security deposits, when the renter was ready to move. Others complained that portions of deposits were withheld, "to cover damages." But that they were never told what the "damages" were.

The area of "lockouts" and "utility cut offs" also seemed to be an avenue of landlord-tenant discord. These practices, some tenants testified, had been employed by some property owners as means to evict unwanted tenants, and—or as methods to recover rentals owed.

One young couple claimed that their landlord not only had locked them out of their apartment, but had confiscated their furniture—including their baby's crib, and had sold it to settle a disputed balance.

Now that Rep. Garcia's House Bill 1884 has become law, landlords must use the court procedures available to them to effect an eviction.

Utility cut-offs are prohibited, except in extremely troublesome situations, and then the property owner must notify the renter by registered mail of his intent to order a cut-off at least 14 days prior to cutting off the utilities. The new law also strictly regulates the means by which a landlord can obtain a lien on personal property to satisfy nonpayment of rent.

The security deposit act, House Bill 844 by Rep. Bigham, provides the means for clear understanding on the part of both parties as to how the money may be used, and how and when it is to be refunded.

From the time a person decides to take an apartment un-project committee, or will act as a committee of the whole. Any type of committee would be quasi-official, and final authority would rest with the individual councils.

But whatever route is taken toward working with the SCS planners can be successful, and will be for the benefit of the entire county-community. Such a multi-purpose project would be desirable—in fact, necessary, because the demand for water in this area is continuing to increase, and on the surface, from information obtained from surveyors, would be entirely feasible.

Elm Creek Water Control District is the result of bi-city concern toward flooding problems and conservation of the soil and water in the area, and administration of the District has been through a board of directors made up of citizens of each of the two towns, in addition to citizens of outlying communities in the watershed area. This board has worked for the benefit of the entire area, and has been highly successful to date with promotion of the aims of the district.

It is felt that the same co-operation and results will be forthcoming in promotion of a jointly-directed multi-purpose water reservoir. The need is for everyone to work together with this end in mind.
