Be sure to get the correct size in socks for children. It's just as important as the right size in shoes. For healthy, growing feet, foot specialists recommend absorbent all-cotton socks, in a size at least one-half inch longer than the child's longest toe.

MANAGEMENT NEEDED FOR SMALL GRAINS

Small grains are up and making good growth in Runnels Co., as soil moisture has been good. However, for maximum production certain management practices should be followed.

First of all, it's a must to withhold grazing until plants are completely established and well rooted. Grazing pastures before plants are 6-8 inches high can reduce total forage production by as much as 50 percent.

Since small grains do not grow much during cold weather prevalent during December, January and February, care must be used in grazing. Stocking rates should be adjusted to the amount of accumulated growth of small grain pastures.

Small grains should be grazed with livestock of high market value such as stocker calves and dairy animals. Cow-calf operations can also benefit from their use to meet protein and energy requirements of the animals. These requirements can be met by grazing for limited periods each day or by grazing every third or fourth day.

A few other guidelines for increasing benefits from small grain pastures:

1. Remove livestock during periods of wet weather.
2. Keep a supply of dry roughage available.
3. Don't overgraze during dry or cold periods as stem terminals may be destroyed.
4. Remove cattle around March 1 on acreages where grain is to be harvested.

WE HAVE THE MAN-FIT LEVIS Herman's Men's Store

If grain is to be harvested next spring additional nitrogen is usually needed as a top dress application. Such applications should be made in late January or February.

CONTROL TICKS ON CATTLE

Runnels County farmers and ranchers should begin watching their cattle for winter tick population build-ups.

Ticks are blood-sucking parasites that can cause losses to cattle through loss of blood, weakened condition, reduced feed conversion efficiency and increased susceptibility to diseases and nutritional disorders. The winter tick, as its name implies, attacks primarily during the winter months when animals are in their poorest nutritional state, thus creating an extra burden on the animals' defenses.

Effective tick control can be accomplished economically with modern spray and dip materials. Thorough coverage with the insecticidal material is necessary for best control. Dipping assures coverage, but sprays can be effectively used if careful attention is given to thoroughly wetting the hair coat to the skin.

Before purchasing and applying livestock insecticides, carefully read the label and pay particular attention to precautions and restrictions listed. Note the slaughter intervals as clearly stated on the label.

SMALL GRAIN PEST CONTROL

Insecticide usage on small grains can be a costly and sometimes unnecessary production expense in Runnels County. Therefore, proper insect damage assessment in small grains is a major management decision for the Runnels County farmer. During winter months, green bugs and spider mites are usually the major pests of small grains. These pests damage wheat, oats and other small grains by sucking juices from the plants. Greenbugs are also known to inject toxins into plants during feeding. This feeding results in a rapid green to yellow to orange change in leaf color. This color change is sometimes confused with rust diseases and again points out that there is no substitute for proper plant inspection.

THOUGH THIS may seem to be the signal for too many officials on the field, it is just an illusion caught by an alert photographer at a high school football game in Ligonier, Pa.

Spider mites are often difficult to find because of their extremely small size. Mites may also feed during dark hours and hide in the crown areas of plants. Here, again, close plant inspection and dissection are important in determining pest infestations.

Leafhoppers are sometimes seen in small grain plantings but seldom cause economic damage. These insects resemble cicadas or tree locusts in appearance, but are usually smaller than a house fly. Leafhoppers can also be recognized by their characteristic short hopping-flying habit as a person walks over small grain plantings.

After a careful evaluation of the pest situation, producers may find that chemical control is necessary. If ground equipment is used, sprayer calibration should be checked. Proper nozzle spacing, boom pressure, tractor speed, and chemical rates are important in obtaining best control. Chemical application should also be made during the warmest daylight hours. This practice often produces improved control results because of increased insect activity and resulting improved accessibility to applied insecticides.

Extension Service Publishes Cattle Feeders Handbook

COLLEGE STATION—A new Texas Cattle Feeders Handbook has just been published by the Texas Agricultural Extension Service.

This comprehensive reference book was prepared in cooperation with Extension Services of nine Great Plains States, and provides information on all aspects of commercial cattle feeding.

The new publication is composed of 50 bulletins or fact sheets, 25 of which are Texas publications and 25 from other states, notes L. A. Maddox, Extension beef cattle specialist and project coordinator.

"The endeavor is a part of the Great Plains Cattle Feeders Committee Project. We plan to make available a wide range of technical material of higher quality than ever before. New and revised information will be mailed to subscribers from now through September 1, 1975," Maddox adds.

Co-authoring the handbook with Maddox are Dr. John Sweeten, agricultural engineer in animal waste management; and Dr. Dennis B. Herd, beef cattle specialist-nutrition.

The handbook, B-1133, includes broad segments of information on nutrition, feed preparation and storage, animal health, feedlot management, feedlot planning and equipment, figures for feeders, waste management, and a section for miscellaneous publications and information.

For additional information, contact your local county Extension agent.

PREPARING SEAFOOD FOR FREEZING

Fish may be prepared in a variety of ways for freezing: Dressed or pan-fried, steaks, and fillets. Usually, it is best to freeze fish in tightly wrapped package form, as this takes less storage space and fits a family portion for one meal at a time. Fish freeze faster in tightly wrapped packages, too.

To properly clean and dress fish, remove the scales by scraping with the dull edge of a knife. Remove the entrails by cutting the entire length of the belly from vent to head and remove all blood and kidney tissue. Then cut off the head above the collar bone.

Next, break the backbone over the edge of the cutting board or table and remove the dorsal or large back fin. This is best done by cutting the flesh along each side of the fin and pulling it out.

Wash the fish thoroughly in cold running water. It is now ready for the freezer or to be prepared into steaks.

Steaks are prepared by cutting the fish crosswise about three-fourths of an inch thick. Fillets are cut with a sharp knife from each side of the fish from head to tail. Sole perch, and flounder need not be eviscerated before filleting.

Pink shrimp that is available on the market is usually already cooked and peeled and ready to eat or freeze. In one pound of raw shrimp, the yield of cooked peeled shrimp will be about one cut, or four ounces. With a little practice, one can soon become fairly adept at peeling the shrimp.

Prepare live crab to be pickled by removing the back shell and breaking the crab in half, front to back, and shaking out viscera. Then thoroughly clean the crab under a flow of fresh water. Remove any newly forming shell (a jelly-like substance containing dark pigments). Some people prefer the flavor of crab cooked with the back on (24-25 minutes in boiling water).

After cooking, cool the crab for handling and pick the meat while warm from the body and legs. Keep the body and leg meats separate when handling and packing to prevent ruining of the red pigment.

Crabs may also be steam cooked at 212 to 214 degrees F. in your pressure cooker for 12 to 15 minutes. Boiling the crabs in water tends to remove some of the flavor, but takes less time.

Screwworm Cases High In November

Nearly 95 percent of the 2,740 screwworm cases confirmed in Texas livestock during November were in South Texas, says Dr. M. E. Meadows.

He is veterinarian in charge of the U. S. Department of Agriculture (USDA) Screwworm Eradication Program. Meadows notes that November countered an established trend. It was the first time since the program's 1962 start that November cases outnumbered October cases.

Hope had been that the week ending October 19, when 613 cases were reported in the Lone Star State, marked the year's high point for screwworm infestation. Warm, summer-like weather continued through November, smashing those hopes. November's week with highest case counts ended Nov. 16 with 839 cases. The month's case total was 486 more than October's 2,254.

Yule Shock By Unsafe Lighting

Strings of electrical lights on a tinsel Christmas tree can result in a shocking holiday experience, according to the Texas Safety Association.

Question:

Will you have enough natural gas for your home this winter?

Answer:

Yes!

Let's lay this question to rest once and for all. Lone Star Gas Company has enough natural gas reserves under contract to adequately supply our residential, commercial and other higher priority customers for many winters.

To be sure we have enough for these consumers, we will make some extensive curtailments of service to our large volume customers during extreme cold weather this winter. In fact, our contracts with large volume customers anticipate the need to curtail up to 100% of their needs during these cold periods. This allows us to assure service to residential, commercial and other higher priority customers.

We're taking major steps to make sure you have gas for the future. New gas we're buying costs more than four times the price we paid just a few years ago. This is an astonishing amount of money! But it's the price all of us must pay for a continuing supply of natural gas energy.

This winter, and in the future, natural gas from Lone Star will continue to be your best method of home heating, water heating and cooking... just as it has been for more than 40 years. But we all must remember to help conserve this precious energy fuel.

Sen. Kothmann Announces For 21st District

State Senator Glenn H. Kothmann has announced that he will be a candidate for Congress in the 21st Congressional District, the seat now held by O. C. Fisher of San Angelo, who has announced that he will not be a candidate for reelection.

The 21st Congressional District stretches from northern Bexar County to San Angelo in West Texas.

Kothmann's term in the State Senate runs through 1976 and he does not have to give up his seat to seek election to Congress. Kothmann has been elected to the Senate 2 times and was elected to the Texas House 5 times.

He is in the agriculture business in San Antonio and has various land holdings throughout southwest Texas.

Kothmann is a graduate of Texas A & M University and the Army's Command and General Staff College in Fort Leavenworth, Kansas. He is a Lieutenant Colonel in the Texas National Guard.

In making his announcement for Congress Kothmann said: "My political and business life have been tied to the 21st Congressional District ever since I became an adult."

"In addition, I have strong family ties to the district since my family originally came from the hill country and I still have many kinfolks in the area."

"I represented the Bexar County portion of the district in the State House for many years and because my livelihood has come largely from agriculture I have strong ties with the community of West Texas."

"Their problems have been my problems for many years—ever since I've been out on my own, earning my own living."

Kothmann said that there were three pressing problems concerning the Nation and District: Inflation, Ethics, and the Energy Crisis. Kothmann said: "In the last session of the Legislature I introduced the toughest ethics bill proposed by any member. Many of my recommendations were incorporated into the legislation finally passed by the Legislature."

"In these times, politicians must be cleaner than a hound's tooth. Public trust in the government can be restored only by the passage of strong ethics legislation and strict enforcement of it. I think we made progress at the state level in the last session, and now it is time for Congress to pass an enforceable code of conduct for itself."

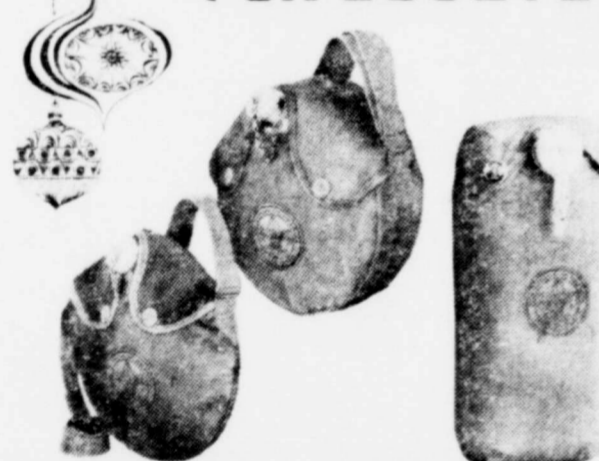

Kothmann also said that Congress should assume a leadership role in the Federal Government by being the voice of the people in Washington. He said: "Washington is far removed. Too many decisions are made by Bureaucrats and in Congress without any thought of how they are going to affect the people in this Congressional District."

"This must be reversed. It can be, if the people of the 21st District will send to Washington someone who will stand up to the Bureaucrats."

Kothmann said that he will campaign extensively in the District. "Although I also have obligations as a delegate to the State Constitutional Convention, which must come first." The Convention should be over before the primary election.

MERRILL NURSING HOME NEWS

Cheer buckets for each resident of the home were packed by the Church of Christ, for the Christmas party which was to be held Thursday night of this week.

The Rev. Bob Sanders led the group in Bible study last Wednesday morning. Margurite Mathis was at the piano, and Mrs. F. R. Anderson led the singing. Steve Gilmore, Youth Director for the Church of Christ, led the song service Sunday afternoon.

Mrs. Oscar Childers passed away Sunday night. We extend our sympathy to the family.

On Friday night, December 14, the staff and guests of the home were entertained by the administrators, Mr. and Mrs. Johnny Merrill and Mrs. L. L. Merrill. Gifts were exchanged after a dinner of ham, turkey and all the trimmings.

We tried to keep a list of all the gifts and nice things everyone has done for the home, but have it impossible. So may we take this opportunity to say thanks to everyone, and may you have a Happy Christmas.

who were to meet in special session Tuesday to settle the question, are looking to 1974 and the election; they're answerable to the people, and they know it. Even though this question of a 55-mile-an-hour speed limit is not a big deal—not really controversial, because the feds are going to come up with something anyway—the proper place to decide it is in the Legislature. It's too bad that some of the other matters which plague the people will not be brought back for closer scrutiny by the Legislature, instead of being left to the whims of agency bureaucrats.
