Fighting erupts before peace talks

SARAJEVO, Bosnia-Herzegovina (AP) — Fierce fighting erupted in the western part of the capital Thursday in what the U.N. commander said was an apparent attempt to stake claims before the opening of peace talks in Geneva on Friday.

Bosnia's increasingly isolated government rejected a Serb proposal to use the talks to start dividing the republic into ethnic regions.

Forces of the Muslim-led government poured into Stup and Azici after Serb rebels launched a fierce attack with tank guns, artillery and mortars on the western neighborhoods.

Gen. Hussein Aly Abdel Razeq, the Egyptian commander of U.N. forces in Bosnia, said the battles appeared to be an attempt to lay territorial claims.

House approves regulation of cable

WASHINGTON (AP) — The House responded Thursday to consumer complaints about escalating cable television rates and indifferent service by voting to put the industry under government control.

Rep. Edward Markey, D-Mass., sponsor of the bill that passed 280-128, called it the most important consumer legislation Congress would face this year. President Bush said he would veto it because it "will hurt Americans by imposing a wide array of costly, burdensome and unnecessary requirements on the cable industry."

The measure now goes to the Senate, which was expected to act on it next week.

The cable industry has aggressively opposed the bill supported by such groups as the Consumer Federation of America

Post office chief pleads guilty

WASHINGTON (AP) — The highest-ranking official to be indicted in the House Post Office scandal pleaded guilty Thursday in a criminal investigation that could target members of Congress and their campaigns.

Former post office chief of staff Joanna G. O'Rourke admitted two misdemeanors: embezzlement of government property and misuse of government funds by a public officer.

Assistant U.S. Attorney Wendy Wysong told U.S. District Judge Norma Holloway Johnson that the government would have proved at trial that Ms. O'Rourke conspired to "cash large campaign and personal checks."

The prosecutor's statement made clear that the investigation is looking at possible illegalities in cashing campaign checks at the House Post Office.

Masked Rider loses job, pending appeal

Texas Tech's Masked Rider Committee met last night amid speculation about the possible release of Jason Spence from his duty as the 1992-93 Masked Rider, but earlier Thursday sources indicated Spence already had been relieved of his duties, pending an appeal process.

His dismissal resulted from a decision made by committee members Tom McGinnity and John Pipkin, sources indicated.

Jim Barlow, information specialist for Tech's News and Publications Office and spokesman for the 13-member committee, said a statement will be released today concerning the Masked Rider's future.

McGinnity said the Family Educational Rights and Privacy Act of 1974, sometimes referred to as the Buckley Amendment, would not allow him to comment on the incident. Pipkin could not be reached for comment after repeated attempts by The University Daily.

The Masked Rider and his horse, Midnight Raider, hit a field judge at the southeast corner of Jones Stadium during the Tech/Wyoming football game Saturday night.

In a phone interview from his home in Aurora, Colo., Thursday, the injured field judge, Clair Gausman, said he did not know what hit him until after regaining consciousness.

Gausman said he was at the southeast corner of the field watching the extra-point attempt after Tech's first touchdown when he was struck. He said he regained consciousness after a couple of minutes and was told he had been hit by the horse.

Gausman said he was looked at and cleared by Wyoming's and Tech's team doctors to return to the game. He experienced some pain in his right shoulder and arm, and missed about 12 minutes of the game.

Gausman said he does not anticipate taking any legal action.

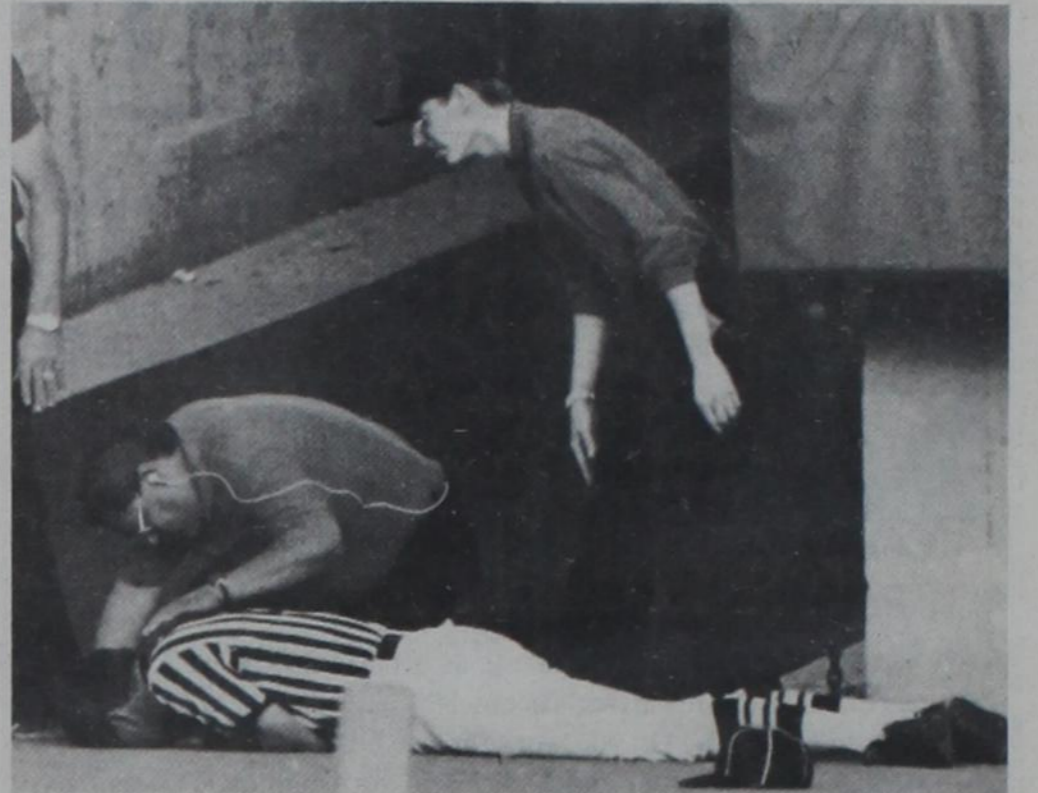

He said he feels badly for Spence and does not want to see him dismissed from his duties as the Masked Rider.

Gausman said he has not spoken with Spence and has not been contacted by any Tech officials.

Kevin Gott, Spence's personal assistant, said he has been advised by Spence and committee members not to talk to the press until a final decision is made. Gott said he does not want to jeopardize Spence's status as Masked Rider.

School no 'easy ride' for athletes

BY SANDRA PULLEY
THE UNIVERSITY DAILY

Freshmen athletes who entered Texas Tech in fall 1984 posted a 58 percent graduation rate within six years compared to Tech's overall graduation rate of 51 percent.

"It is hard to close the door and sit down and study after practice," Athletic Director T. Jones said.

"We try to keep a pulse on our students. We do everything within the NCAA and Tech rules to uphold our prime mission to help the athletes graduate."

The athletic graduation rate also includes athletes who transferred to Tech and received scholarships, but discounts athletes who left in good standing or members of the swimming team or women's softball team — athletic teams that were disbanded in 1985.

Tech's five-year graduation rate, discounting students who left in good standing is 43 percent. Forty-three percent of student athletes also graduated within five years.

Jones said Tech athletic recruiters check potential athletes' high school academic records thoroughly before accepting them into the Tech athletic program.

Incoming scholarship freshmen athletes, scholarship transfer athletes and scholarship athletes on probation are required to attend four 45-minute study hall sessions per week. Athletes who do not attend the required study halls are reprimanded by the head coach of their team.

"There is a big misconception that student athletes have it easy," said Assistant to the Athletic Director for Academic Services Cheryl Glover. "The kids have to be at study hall, go to class all morning, eat lunch, practice, try to get some studying done, go to sleep and get up and do it all over again."

The Student Academic Services Program provides counseling and tutoring services for the athletes.

Athletes are assigned a counselor to monitor their class progress and attendance. Counselors also work with the athletes and university advisers to plan class schedules around daily practices.

"We don't hold hands or babysit the athletes," Glover said. "We provide them with support and point them in the right direction," she said.

Glover said the prime goal of the Student Academic Services Program is to help athletes get their diploma, but the program also offers emotional support to athletes.

"We are one of the outlets for freshmen and transfers," she said. "If they need a pat on the back or a hug they can talk to us."

Archaeology students heading for Guadalupe Mountains

BY STEPHEN ARMOUR
THE UNIVERSITY DAILY

Texas Tech archaeology students will travel to Guadalupe Mountains National Park this weekend to participate in an archaeological dig involving the Apache Indian culture.

"We are going for a number of reasons," said Grant Hall, faculty adviser for Tech's Anthropological Society and an assistant professor of anthropology. "One is that the Guadalupe Peak is the highest elevation in the state. We've got Dr. James Goss, a professor in this department, as our tour guide. One of his specialties is the Mescalero Apache Indians."

The Apache Indians have a reservation north of the park, Hall said.

"More of the reservation was included in the park in the old days," he said. "The Indians used to come to the park to collect mescal, a type of cactus-like plant from which the tribe took its name."

Goss has worked as a consultant to the National Park Service for the past five years and has consulted on the Apache Indians in the Guadalupe Mountains area.

"We will be going to one of the trails, and I will take the group to a Mescalero Apache sacred site where they used to go on vision quests," he said. "It was part of a religious tradition. The Apache Indians considered the Guadalupe Mountains a sacred area. They believed that mountain spirits lived in the mountains."

Hall said the Apache Indians used to deprive themselves of sleep and food so they could see a vision.

"This will be the height of our hike," Hall said. "It will basically be a mobile lecture as we walk through the park. There are a lot of sites from the prehistoric Apaches there."

The adaptation of the Apache culture to the Guadalupe Mountains region will be the main topic of Goss's lecture.

"(The Apaches) were the ones who lived in the mountains and owned them until the Americans came and took the land away from them," he said.

Hall said Goss has been helping park officials establish interpretive exhibits in the park, which the group will visit after Saturday's hike.

HSC, grad school enrollment up, Tech down

BY SANDRA PULLEY
THE UNIVERSITY DAILY

Texas Tech's official enrollment after the 12th class day fell 1.7 percent from fall 1991, while the Texas Tech University Health Sciences Center and the graduate school reported marked increases.

Tech has 24,285 students enrolled compared to 24,707 last fall. Graduate school enrollment increased 5.6 percent from 3,773 students in fall 1991 to 3,985 in fall 1992.

"I think a number of factors have affected enrollment this semester," said Executive Vice President and Provost Don Haragan. "Tech implemented higher admission standards while the pool of high school seniors is shrinking."

Haragan said the economic depression also is causing students to live

"Tech is not focusing on quantity right now," he said. "We are focusing on quality. Enrollment will probably stay near 24,000 for a while."

Clyde Hendrick, dean of Tech's graduate school, said while undergraduate schools receive less students, the economy is forcing people to return to graduate school to further their education.

"We also think to some extent that our enrollment is up because of the extensive recruiting we have done over the past three years," Hendrick said. "Our programs have also matured and there is more interest."

TTUHSC's unofficial registration of 1,061 students put the center's enrollment over 1,000 students for the first time. TTUHSC's enrollment increased 12 percent from the fall 1991 enrollment of 946.

"It all has to do with supply and demand," said TTUHSC Registrar Vonda Somerville. "There is a demand for health care professionals and more people are looking to health care as a career option."

Somerville said the economy and two new programs are drawing students to the center.

Big Brothers, Sisters hang on to students

BY GENE VYBIRAL
THE UNIVERSITY DAILY

Texas Tech's Big Brothers/Big Sisters program aims at retaining students in the College of Agricultural Sciences.

Rory Thomas, coordinator of recruitment and placement in the college, said the purpose of the retention program is to make students feel comfortable and get them involved as soon as possible.

"The program is based on the fact that you have to take care of a student in many ways," she said. "We try to make the student feel like a part of our family as soon as possible."

The Big Brothers/Big Sisters program pairs entering freshmen with upperclassmen in the same major.

Thomas said every student entering college experiences some kind of environment change, and it is important to make them feel that they have a friend from the beginning.

Carter Smith, a senior in wildlife management, said the program helps freshmen with study habits, the courses they should take and involvement in other programs.

"I think it's a real important and worthwhile activity," he said. "It's valuable to the students and should carry on."

Each department is in charge of its own retention program, which differs in structure in some departments.

Scott Lutz, an assistant professor in the college, said the department of range and wildlife management takes a more informal approach to its program.

Instead of pairing students, the department sponsors a picnic at the beginning of the semester to allow students to meet professors and other students.

The program also provides entering freshmen with opportunities to become involved with other students and programs, Lutz said.

"We try to get the students involved," he said. "We feel like if students are involved and they know the students and professors, they will stay in the program."

Thomas said the college of agriculture is small enough that its faculty and staff can get to know students on a personal level and learn how to help them.

Association editor of publications, said Spence has made about 100 personal appearances and has raised more money than any other rider.

Bill Dean, executive director of the Ex-Students Association, said, "The general reaction of the people who are calling is concern. They feel that what happened was an accident, and it was regrettable. But, there is some concern. They are concerned this is something that might hurt the Masked Rider program."

Gustafson said many people called to cancel subscriptions with the Ex-Students Association's alumni magazine or threatened to cancel if Spence's dismissal is permanent.

If Spence is released, she said, some of Tech's alumni have said they will not give the university "a single dime."

1936 graduate leaves $100,000 in scholarships

Texas Tech received a $100,000 donation for scholarships from the estate of former student Eleanor Cresap Woodward Bryan.

Bryan, a 1936 graduate of Tech, died in January 1990.

She earned a bachelor's degree in education, and taught English and math at Carroll Thompson Junior High in Lubbock, which no longer exists.

Karen Selim, assistant vice president for development, said the donation will fund two $25,000 presidential endowed scholarships and create another for students with financial need.

"Mrs. Bryan stated in her will for a certain amount of the scholarship to go to worthy students of high academic standing, and the rest to worthy and needy students," Selim said.

All scholarships created from the donation will be named for Bryan's late husband, J. Neuel Bryan, a former Lubbock fire chief.

The scholarships will not be available until the 1993 fall semester because of the interest-earning requirements of endowments.

The donation brings Tech's total number of endowed scholarships to 538.

When a friend calls...

How to handle a suicidal acquaintance

BY MIGUEL BONILLA
THE UNIVERSITY DAILY

Someone dies at his or her own hand every 24 minutes, according to the National Center for Health Statistics.

Holly Duke, a psychology major from Odessa, was almost one of those people. She remembers a point in her life where nothing really mattered. Not even her life.

"I thought about it. I still had some pain pills from my surgery and I really thought about it," said Duke.

Duke, along with several hundreds of other people have thought about suicide and recovered. Yet, many people are not so lucky. Fortunately, there are some signs to watch for when you suspect a friend is thinking about suicide.

Raquel Contreras, assistant director of the Texas Tech Counseling Center, said the indications that someone is considering suicide are apparent.

The warning signs include:

- Subtle expressions, such as "I don't want to be here anymore,"
- Overt expressions of suicide,
- Drastic changes in their behavior; for example giving away possessions,
- Changes in usual routine,
- Changes in sleeping and eating,
- and previous suicide attempts.

Once it is evident that someone is thinking about committing suicide, it is important to listen to the individual because not everyone who feels suicidal actually wants to die, Contreras said.

"Just try to be a friend. Listen to what they have to say. Listen to their story. You could even include them in your activities," she said.

"Don't be afraid to ask about suicide directly. Try to become a resource for them to call if you can.

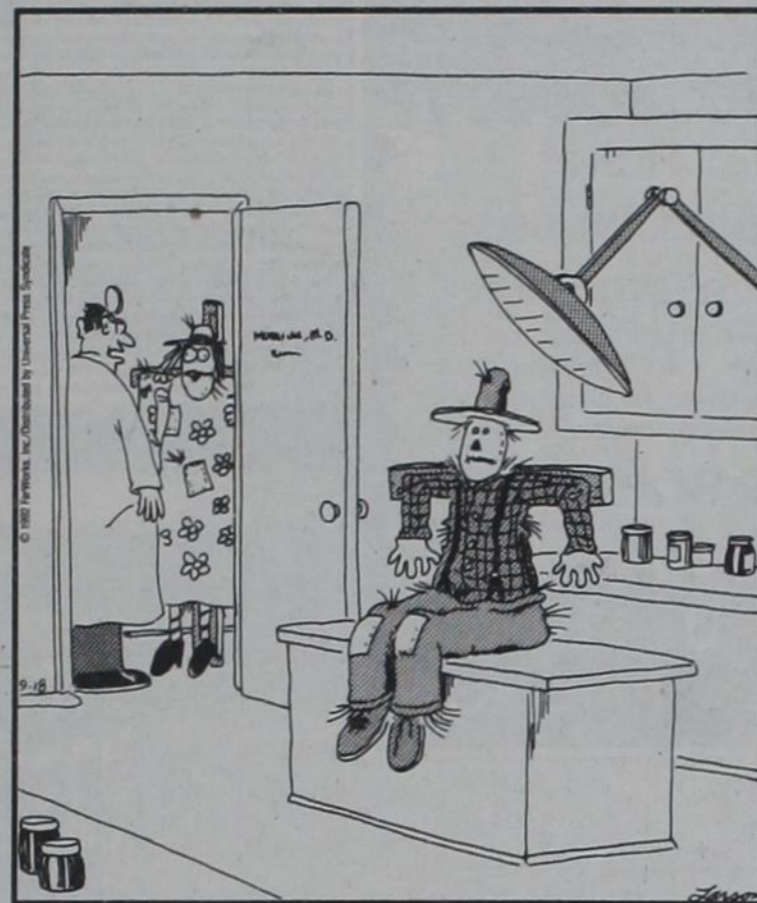

Most importantly, never agree to keep the suicide plans a secret. That's a very sadistic way of making you keep a secret. Just tell them "No, I'm not keeping this a secret. It's unfair to me."

Convincing the individual to get professional help also is an important precautionary measure, because many people are not trained in suicide prevention.

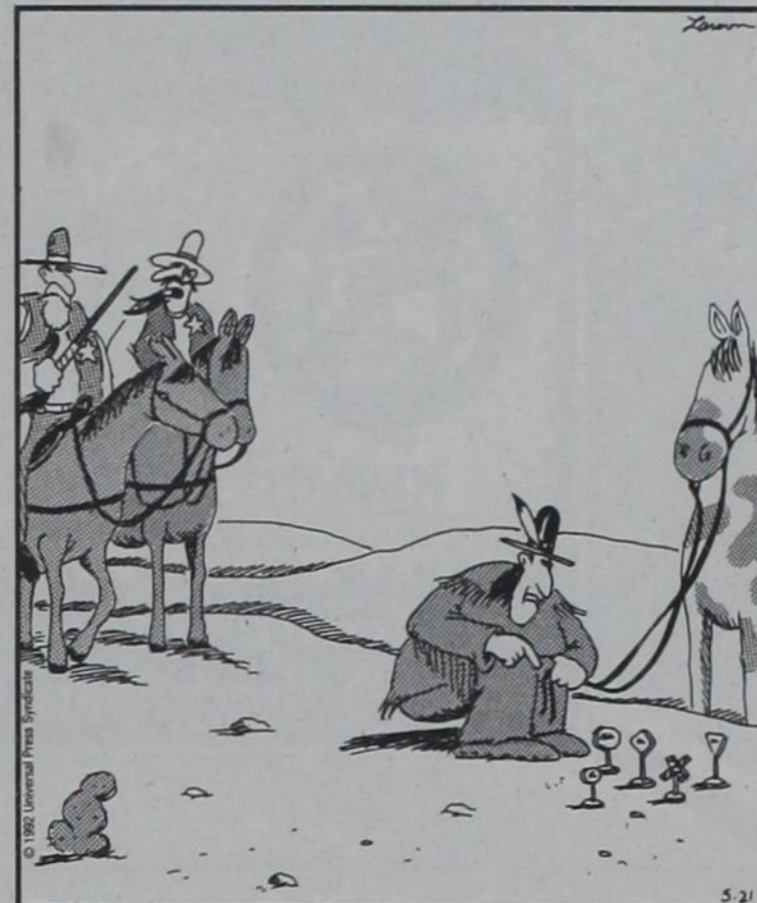

"Don't take suicidal threats lightly. Get them hooked up with resources as soon as possible," Contreras said.

Duke was fortunate enough to find a support group in time for her to realize her problem. Now she has her own advice to give those who are thinking about suicide.

Poorboys: new twist on hard rock

BY JENNIFER SANDER
THE UNIVERSITY DAILY

If the sound of hard rock combined with songs of heartbreak is appealing, then the newly released album, "Pardon me," by hard rock band The Poorboys, is one to try.

This is not your typical heavy metal album with screeching guitar sounds and high pitched screams in every other song, but rather, a softer hard rock, with some extremely well-written lyrics. The most appropriate time to listen to this album is probably after a break-up, due to the fact that nine of the 12 songs are tunes dealing with bad relationships.

The songs should be new to most people in the area, since a single from the album has not yet been released in the Lubbock area.

However, several tunes on the album do have single potential, such as "No Real Emotion," "Never That Easy" and "Don't Need You Round." And of course there is a song about America and all of its success and failures in "Brand New Amerika."

It is too bad The Poorboys didn't create the sound of hard rock and heart-felt love ballads because the sound isn't much different from any other hard rock release. Still, "Pardon Me" may take awhile to catch on, but if a single can be released, it has a sure chance of becoming a success.

Princess tries to escape intrusions from press

PARIS (AP) — Princess Caroline of Monaco, trying to escape prying eyes and constant rumors, has moved her family from the rich Mediterranean principality to a secluded villa in southern France, a magazine reported Wednesday. Paris-Match ran 12 pages of pictures and text about Caroline's life in Saint-Remy de Provence, a picturesque village immortalized in paintings by Vincent van Gogh.

The cover picture showed the princess hugging 5-year-old Pierre on his way to pre-school for the first time. It said all three of her children were attending public school.

Tech competes in Ranger Challenge

BY MIGUEL BONILLA
THE UNIVERSITY DAILY

At 6 a.m. most students are still dreaming of the party last night and the hangover they will have when they wake. That is not the case with the 18-member Ranger Challenge team at Texas Tech.

The team meets bright and early at the Recreational Sports Center as part of its voluntary training for the competition soon to be faced.

John Doll, master sergeant, assistant professor in military science and trainer for the Ranger Challenge, said that this year's team is much more prepared than teams from years before. They train five days a week from 6 a.m. to 7 a.m. for physical endurance. Tuesdays they practice for water obstacles and hand grenade tossing, and Thursdays for firing rifles.

The team also practices other events as part of its training, such as the land navigation skills the team performed last weekend at Palo Duro Canyon. The Tech team competes regionally and if it does well in that contest, they go on to national competition. Even though Tech won second place in the southern competition two years ago, Doll said he feels that this year's team is better than any previous team he has trained.

"Last year the team didn't win because they were mostly freshmen, but this year they're mostly seniors so our chances are pretty good," said Doll.

The team that won the Ranger Challenge for the southern region last year was Texas A&M, which is one of the teams Doll said he plans on beating this year. The team competes in numerous categories such as grenade assault, one rope bridge, marksmanship and a physical obstacle course that includes 92 push-ups in 2 minutes, 92 sit-ups in 2 minutes, and a 2-mile run in 12 minutes.

More bang for the buck

Four ideas for stretching your entertainment dollar

BY MIGUEL BONILLA
THE UNIVERSITY DAILY

Rising costs in tuition, books, and even the cost of postage stamps can make a person think twice about shelling out 12 bucks for a movie and popcorn.

The worst part is that the movie might not even be good. But, there is an alternative. Texas Tech offers some of the best entertainment for those on a low budget.

University Center Programs
University Center Programs is offering free events this week celebrating the 16th of September, a Mexican holiday celebrating the beginning of its struggle for independence.

From noon to 1 p.m. Thursday at the UC Courtyard, St. Patrick's Ballet Folklorico will perform Mexican folk dances, and from noon to 1:30 pm, Oct. 1, at the UC Courtyard, Texana Dames, a Tejano/conjunto music band will perform.

Art Department

The art department is offering several free events to the public this year, beginning with the Faculty Exhibition, running through Sept. 30 in the Main Gallery, as well as a sculpture show and artist Carl Gombert: current works, both in the Hall Gallery until Thursday.

Currently, the S.R.O. Corridor Gallery is presenting an exhibit by Norman, Okla., artist Mark Sawrie.

Theater Department

The Texas Tech University Laboratory Theater, and the Main Stage

Theater, are offering several productions at low prices to Tech students.

They usually run for $3, but if you really want to save money you can come early before the play and sign up for a "rush," which allows students to see a play for free if any empty seats are left over at curtain time.

Music Department

If classical music fascinates you, then the music department has an unbeatable deal.

On a monthly basis, the department offers several concerts by faculty and students, free of charge. You can obtain a calendar of events from the publicity office, upstairs in the music building, or call 742-2270 for more information.

Hirt performs benefit for Andrew storm victims

LAFAYETTE, La. (AP) — Trumpeter Al Hirt will perform at a free concert next week to help victims of Hurricane Andrew.

Mayor Kenny Bowen, who attended high school with Hirt in New Orleans, helped organize the Sept. 25 concert.

Donations for the Lafayette Hurricane Relief Fund will be taken at the door, Bowen said.

"Andrew dealt a devastating blow to a wide area of our beloved Cajun country in south Louisiana," the 69-year-old Hirt said.

"The human suffering has been enormous."

The hurricane killed 10 people in Louisiana, caused an estimated $1.5 billion worth of damage in the state and destroyed or damaged more than 20,000 homes. Lafayette, about 30 miles from the coast, was spared the brunt of the storm.

Tech students participate in GOP convention

BY KENDRA CASEY
THE UNIVERSITY DAILY

When the Republican Party met in Houston last month, two Texas Tech students played a part in making the convention happen.

Jason Diviney, a junior marketing major from Freer, spent a majority of the summer, including the convention week, in Houston helping to prepare for the event.

While his job was not one of a typical political nature, Diviney worked with Facility Communications International installing more than 6,000 telephone lines to accommodate delegates, the secret service and the media.

Diviney said he worked from June through the last day of the convention and was not able to spend much time on the convention floor.

"We were really too busy to watch the convention events," Diviney said. "We worked up to the last minute, and at the end, 100 extra phone lines were ordered."

Diviney said some of the phones he helped install went behind trees for secret service and a phone for President Bush in his helicopter that required running cable in the sewers under the Astrodome.

"It's hard for people to understand what my job was. The Astrodome is as big as the University Center and library combined and we ran cable all through the building," Diviney said. "Basically our work was something people never saw."

Although his job kept him busy throughout the convention, Diviney said he did have the opportunity to see some big-name people.

"I didn't have time to meet a lot of people other than walking by and seeing them," he said.

"I saw President Reagan and Arnold Schwarzenegger, and I was in the ABC room one night and ate ice cream with Ted Koppel," he said.

Cory Weiss, a senior political science and history major from Amarillo, also attended the convention as part of what the Republican Party calls the Youth Program.

Weiss traveled to Houston for the convention in August after spending June and July in Washington, D.C., where he worked for the Points of Light Foundation and Rep. Bill Sarpalius, D-Amarillo.

"We stayed at the University of Houston for a week and made signs and posters," Weiss said.

"We were the cheerleaders at the convention."

Weiss said he attended a number of conventions in the American Spirit Pavilion portion of the convention floor, including one sponsored by Marilyn Quayle and one with President Gerald Ford and former Congressman Howard Baker.

Weiss said he also had an opportunity to attend a prayer breakfast with President Bush and Dan Quayle at the University of Houston.

Weiss, like Diviney, said the convention involved long days and more work than he expected.

He said the convention was different than how it is portrayed by the media.

"It's a lot of hard work and long days," Weiss said. "Being on the convention floor was entirely different than it is on T.V."

Weiss said because he had no access to television while staying at the University Houston, he did not know what was being broadcast about the convention or what the nation's response was to be events.

"We didn't know what anyone was saying outside," Weiss said. "We were secluded in our own little world for a week."

Newton assails business manager

RENO, Nev. (AP) — Wayne Newton, who filed for bankruptcy protection last month, blamed much of his financial woes on a former business manager.

The 50-year-old entertainer, testifying Wednesday during a creditors' meeting, said he's been targeted in some 42 lawsuits in the past eight months.

Newton said he fired Mike Moreno, his business manager of 12 years, in January after he received a letter notifying him of a $7,000 judgment against him.

He said Moreno unwittingly led him into failed gambling ventures in California and Colorado. A message left with Moreno's answering service in Las Vegas on Thursday was not immediately returned.

Newton listed debts of $20 million when he filed for bankruptcy protection on Aug. 14.

His lawyer, Gerald Gordon, told creditors that Newton hopes to retain his 52-acre estate in Las Vegas, Casa de Shenandoah, as well as the 240 acres he owns near Lake Tahoe.

Archbishop visits U.S.

TACOMA, Wash. (AP) — The archbishop of Canterbury met with members of the world's only Cambodian Episcopal Church during a stop on his 10-day tour of the United States.

"We're brothers and sisters, whatever color, whatever cultural background," the Most Rev. George Carey told parishioners Wednesday at the Holy Family of Jesus Cambodian Episcopal Church.

Most of the 100 parishioners live at a nearby housing development that houses about 850 Cambodian refugees.

He concludes his U.S. tour in New York next week.

Tech looking for revenge against Ducks

BY CHARLES LECKBEE
THE UNIVERSITY DAILY

Last year in Jones Stadium the Oregon Ducks began Texas Tech's losing spell, in which the team lost four consecutive games.

The Ducks outscored the Raiders 28-13 with their All-American free safety Eric Castle plucking a crucial fumble out of the air on the Raider 35-yard line to put the game out of reach.

The rest of the year saw the Ducks struggle as they were hampered by injuries to their offense throughout the season. Castle has been cleared to play by team doctors, but may not be 100 percent.

The Ducks were able to muster a credible offensive effort against the Raiders last year, but were unable to defeat any consistency the rest of the season. Quarterback Danny O'Neil returns from injury as the starter. Last year he performed brilliantly against Tech, hitting his first eight passes and throwing for four touchdowns, his best performance of the season.

The defense however, executed well enough to keep the games close, and figures to be the stronger unit on the team again. The Ducks are outstanding against the pass, recording 41 quarterback sacks last year.

This year Oregon has reversed its start of last season and has fallen to 0-2 with losses to Hawaii and Stanford. The Raiders will have to face a team at home that is looking for its first win.

Against Wyoming game the Tech offense roared to life to grab the victory. The Tech defense was still on its heels, allowing 32 points to a team that was nowhere near the strength of the Oklahoma team that scored 34 points.

"If we play defense like we played against Wyoming, against Oregon, we're going to lose," linebacker Mike Liscio said after the Wyoming game.

An interception late in the game by freshman Marcus Coleman was one of the few defensive highlights of a game where the execution just never seemed to be there. The Raiders were not able to put much pressure on the Cowboy quarterback, who repeatedly burned them for big gains on the ground and through the air. The offensive line played well, even in the loss to Oklahoma, and the men in the trenches are confident in their ability.

"We need to run the ball like we did against Oklahoma and Wyoming. If we do that, the passing game will be there like it always is," offensive lineman Stacy Petrich said, expressing his confidence in an offense that has developed and improved since its initial performance against Oklahoma.

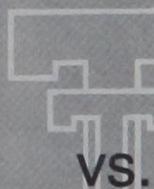

The defensive front of the Ducks is relatively young but has some experience due to the many injuries the team suffered. Jeff Cummins was moved from linebacker to defensive end and with his size and quickness, recorded four sacks last season. He has improved since then and should be hard work for the linemen assigned to him.

"Oregon has come off two consecutive losses. They're going to be hungry and they're playing at home. Our big problem is going to be not turning the ball over and attacking them where they're soft," offensive coach Dick Winder said.

Illinois, Cougars matchup highlight of SWC games

LEN HAYWARD

The Southwest Conference showed its mediocrity last week, with Texas showing some signs of getting used to the new style offense against Syracuse. The rest of the conference better watch out for the Longhorns.

Baylor was embarrassed against Colorado at home, but the offense wasn't the problem—it was the Swiss cheese defense.

The conference slate doesn't have many marquee matchups, but there could be some good games.

Utah State (0-2) at Baylor (0-2)
Floyd Casey Stadium (48,500)
Waco
1 p.m. CDT

The Bears now have a chance to redeem themselves against Utah State, which has given up 91 points in the last two games. J.J. Joe showed signs of brilliance against Colorado, but still has room to improve. The long threat was there with him and Melvin Bonner, but the experienced running game had trouble with the Buffalo defense.

The running game and the offensive line have to come to life if Baylor even has a chance at winning. The defense must work on everything, but Grant Teaff usually takes care of that. Look for the Bears to blow out Utah State, because if Baylor loses this one, then some serious work needs to be done.

Illinois (2-0) at Houston (0-1)
The Astrodome (60,000)
Houston
11 a.m. CDT

ABC (locally on channel 28)
The Cougars have had two weeks to think about their loss to Tulsa, but they go against a tough Illinois team. The Illini have won their first two games, but this game will be a litmus test for both teams. Illinois has recorded victories over Missouri and Northern Illinois, but both those teams are not your typical Division I-A powerhouses.

This should be a pass-happy game, and a long one.

Rice (0-1) at Duke (0-2)
Wallace Wade Stadium (33,941)
Durham, N.C.
6 p.m. CDT

If these teams went by SAT scores then they would go undefeated. Football doesn't directly involve SAT scores, but this one should be a pretty good game. It won't mean much, because Duke is steadily trying to rebuild after Steve Spurrier left.

The Owls have the chance to win their first game against the Blue Devils, who lost to Florida State and Vanderbilt in the first two weeks.

Texas A&M (3-0) at Missouri (0-1)
Faurot Field (62,000)
Columbia, Mo.
1 p.m. CDT

The Aggies should be 4-0 after this one. Bob Stull and R.C. Slocum know each other and Stull is looking for the chance to upset his good friend. The only way the Aggies can lose is if they play like they did in the first half against Stanford. Missouri is playing on their home field, but that should not make any difference.

Southern Methodist (1-1) at New Mexico (1-1)
University Stadium (30,646)
Albuquerque, N.M.
8:05 CDT

Both these teams have even records, but this will be the toughest challenge of the year for the Mustangs to prove their win over North Texas was no fluke.

Cowboy's center nervous about return

IRVING (AP) — Mark Stepnoski is nervous about it. The apprehensive center for the Dallas Cowboys is going to play in a football game this year for the first time this Sunday.

Will he remember the snap count? Will he remember his blocking assignments? Can he handle the beating he knows is coming?

The Phoenix Cardinals don't have any game film on Stepnoski because he was a holdout through the Cowboys training camp. He was the last Cowboy to sign and he did it just two days before the Monday night game against Washington. Dallas has used a two-week exemption for an extra roster spot while Stepnoski worked himself into playing shape. Stepnoski knows a center has to be sharp because he is the triggerman for the offense.

But Stepnoski is worried more about the physical than the mental side of the game against the Cardinals.

"Mentally it won't be that big of a deal," Stepnoski said. "I've seen the Cardinals before. It's the same defensive coordinator. The same guys. Physically, I'll have to see how far I can go."

Stepnoski was one of the reasons Emmitt Smith led the NFL in rushing last year and why Troy Aikman and Steve Beuerlein were safe passing from the pocket. The fourth-year veteran from Pittsburgh had started 36 consecutive games for Dallas before his holdout. He consistently graded out as the Cowboys top offensive lineman on a weekly basis.

Stepnoski became the first rookie to start at center for Dallas since Robert Shaw in 1979. Stepnoski was part of the Cowboys draft class that produced Aikman, fullback Daryl Johnston, and defensive end Tony Tolbert.

Johnson hasn't given Stepnoski a clue about how much he will play. "Nothing has been said to me by my head coach," Stepnoski said. "I just hope I'm sharp. The Cardinals aren't going to roll over against us."

Raiders ready for tough Classic

Spikers looking for repeat championship in tournament

BY LEN HAYWARD
THE UNIVERSITY DAILY

In years past, the Texas Tech women's volleyball team has fared well in the Red Raider Classic. But this year, Tech will face some stiff competition on their home turf.

The Raiders begin play in the tournament today against Gonzaga University at 7 p.m. in the Lubock Municipal Coliseum. On Saturday, the 15th-ranked Raiders will face Auburn at 12:30 p.m., while the nightcap will pit Tech against No. 9 New Mexico.

"They are all good teams," coach Mike Jones said. "I am not worried how we are going to match-up right now, but we need to worry about how we are doing on our end."

Tech has had a week off before the tournament begins this weekend, and Jones said the team has done well during workouts.

"They worked really hard Tuesday and Wednesday, they went home tired," he said. "It helped us focus on some things."

The Raiders opened the season with a championship at the Oklahoma tournament and senior setter Rochelle Kaaiai said that win helped this young team.

"We proved with the young girls we can pull it together," she said.

131 assists and is second on the team in digs with 40.

"This is the most relaxed I have been," Kaaiai said of her season so far. "It is my senior year and there is less pressure. It is my last year so I need to make it a good one."

Junior middle blocker Erica Ruegg said the team hasn't thought about who is in the tournament, but has attempted to stay focused and just play.

"We haven't thought about it (the tournament) much," she said. "All the nervousness is for the coaches. We just have to play and do our jobs."

Ruegg leads the team in kills with 57, while she has a .407 hitting percentage.

Gonzaga enters the tournament with a 4-3 record after two losses last week to Boise State and Wyoming. Gonzaga coach Sean Madden said the competition will be tough this weekend.

"Not only did New Mexico beat an annual power in the University of Nebraska earlier this year, but they are an annual power themselves," Madden said. "The competition picks up a notch. Texas Tech is also very, very good."

New Mexico comes into the tournament with a 5-0 record and ranked ninth in the AVCA/Tachikara coaches poll. The Lobos opened the season with a win over perennial powerhouse Nebraska.

The Auburn Lady Tigers are 2-4 after defeating Central Michigan and Indiana this season.

Oilers GM disagrees with McDowell's claim

HOUSTON (AP) — Houston Oilers general manager Mike Holovak has disputed strong safety Bubba McDowell's contention that the Oilers failed to honor a verbal agreement involving his contract.

McDowell, an Oiler starter since his rookie season in 1989, skipped Wednesday's practice to protest what he said was the Oilers' failure to pay him.

"Reports which yesterday indicated that there was a clause in Bubba's contract which compared or equalized his contract to that of another player are false," Holovak said in a strongly worded statement released Thursday.

"I am disappointed and disturbed that any player would miss a team meeting or practice without discussing it in advance with me."

McDowell returned to practice on Thursday and said he would be ready for Sunday's game against the Kansas City Chiefs.

"I planned on coming back all along," McDowell said. "I wasn't going to be a fool and miss this game. I've come to grips with the fact that there's nothing I can do about it right now."

Dishman signed a two-year contract worth $1.5 million last week. McDowell will earn $550,000 this season and $650,000 in 1993.

McDowell signed his contract early this year but says he was promised if Dishman signed for more, the Oilers would adjust his contract.

Holovak said the Oilers only agreed to what was in the written contract that was reviewed by McDowell and his agent, David Levine.

"Many comparisons of players relative experience and ability are discussed during the course of contract negotiations," Holovak said. "Mr. Levine is a lawyer and knows well that the expressions of opinions are not part of contracts."

Holovak praised McDowell's contribution to the team but said he planned to fine the player for missing Wednesday's workout.

Oilers coach Jack Pardee was disturbed by McDowell's tactics.

"It was something that shouldn't have occurred," Pardee said. "It was good to have everybody back today and just worrying about football instead of a multitude of other problems."

McDowell said he wouldn't allow the incident to hinder his season.

Philippines stripped of Little League title

WILLIAMSPORT, Pa. (AP) — Little League Baseball stripped the Philippines of this year's World Series title Thursday night and gave the championship to Long Beach, Calif., saying the Asian team used ineligible players, a West Coast official said.

No one with Little League in Williamsport could be reached for comment, but Ron Nelson said he heard from the tournament committee at about 9:45 p.m. EDT.

Sports brief

Castle could see action against Raiders

After a week's worth of speculation, Oregon officials have confirmed that All-America candidate Eric Castle will play Saturday against Texas Tech. Castle, a senior free safety, has missed the last two games with acute mononucleosis.

"We'll take any kind of mental lift we can get," Oregon Sports Information Director Steve Hellyer said. "We haven't been playing very good defense lately."

According to Hellyer, it will be head Coach Rich Brook's and Castle's decision on how much playing time he'll get.

"He's going to see how good he feels after a couple days of practicing. He's still trying to get back his strength," Hellyer said.
