U.N. stops sale of weapons to Liberia

UNITED NATIONS (AP) — The Security Council on Thursday authorized the use of force to cut off shipments of military supplies to rebel fighters in the war-ravaged West African nation of Liberia.

In a unanimous vote, the 15-member council approved an embargo under the same U.N. provisions used to punish Yugoslavia and Iraq. The purpose of the measure is to bolster efforts by a seven-nation West African force to defeat guerrilla leader Charles Taylor.

Tens of thousands of people have been killed or have starved to death in Liberia since Taylor invaded from Ivory Coast in December 1989.

Recycling program giving cities money

AUSTIN (AP) — The Texas Water Commission got tough on recycling Thursday. But instead of handing down a mandate, officials handed out some money.

Commission officials announced a plan dubbed "Clean Cities 2000," which will award $4 million to cities and rural communities developing recycling and composting programs.

"Obviously this program is a rarity because we're going to be giving money back," Water Commissioner Pam Reed said. "What we're announcing today is a return of millions of dollars to local governments and obviously it doesn't happen very often, and hopefully we're going to see a big return on our investment."

The commission will provide start-up funding for 30 cities to begin recycling of household and workplace trash, yard waste, used motor oil and tires, said John Hall, water commission chairman.

Clinton, Bush meet, discuss issues

WASHINGTON (AP) — President-elect Clinton swept triumphantly into the capital Wednesday and held a "terrific meeting" with President Bush, soliciting advice on more than a dozen potential global problems the Democrat could inherit.

Clinton also made a symbolic visit to a crime-plagued black business district. "I'll do my best not to get out of touch," he promised well-wishers. Thousands of people strained against police lines for a glimpse.

"I hope you'll never be disappointed," he told one supporter.

Clinton said he and Bush discussed such global tinderboxes as Russia, Bosnia and Somalia. "He was very candid," the president-elect said.

"It was a terrific meeting," Clinton said. The White House characterized the talks as "warm and informative."

Prop. 48 rule paying off at graduation time

BY SANDRA PULLEY
THE UNIVERSITY DAILY

A higher percentage of borderline high school student athletes are graduating from college because of a 1986 National Collegiate Athletic Association ruling about academic eligibility, a recent NCAA report states.

Under what is commonly known as the Proposition 48 ruling, high school students who did not have a 2.0 high school GPA in 11 required courses and a minimum score of 700 on the Scholastic Aptitude Test or a 17 on the American College Testing's Test are barred from freshman competition in NCAA athletics.

The 11 core courses include English, history, math and science classes and cannot include remedial courses.

An NCAA study compared graduation rates of borderline students who competed during their freshman year of college in 1984 and 1985 with students who were barred from freshman play because of the stricter academic requirements in 1986.

Twenty-three percent of the borderline students who competed during their freshman year graduated within five years, compared to a 30.1 percent graduation rate among students who were ineligible to play as freshmen.

"This ruling really does not affect Southwest Conference athletics," said Ron Reeger, an athletic academic program assistant. "Athletes at Tech had to have at least a 2.0 grade point average in high school core classes."

Students defined as borderline athletes by the NCAA are not eligible to play in the Southwest Conference.

Borderline students must attend a junior college before they can gain eligibility to play in the SWC, Reeger said.

Texas Tech athletic recruiters check the academic records of student athletes before accepting them into the Tech athletic program.

Incoming scholarship freshmen, scholarship transfer athletes and scholarship athletes on probation are required to attend four 45-minute study hall sessions per week.

The Student Academic Services Program provides counseling and tutoring services for the athletes. Athletes also are assigned a counselor to monitor their class progress and attendance.

"The 1986 NCAA ruling helps the universities because it produces better students," Reeger said. "Better students are better athletes."

The quality of student athletes Tech recruits has improved over the last few years, he said.

Bronze memorial to expose Lubbockites to black history

Memorial to portray images of black Westerner

BY GENE VYBIRAL
THE UNIVERSITY DAILY

Black historical events motivated a group of Lubbock residents to begin a campaign to erect the Forgotten West Memorial, a national monument commemorating the contributions of black people in the early American West.

The memorial park and monument that will be built in Lubbock's "forgotten areas" also will promote economic development and bring hope to people living in those areas, said Eric Strong, assistant director in the department of student support services.

Strong said the park's cost is uncertain, but will be funded from many grants and donations. He said 4,000 pounds of bronze have been donated. "The first recorded death in Lubbock County was a black cowboy," Strong said. "As we researched we began to find out things that I never knew existed."

Strong said he is determined to expose people to black history.

"When people don't get a full picture, everybody loses," he said.

The bronze memorial will be three stories tall, the length of a football field and will portray images from the history of the black westerner, Strong said.

In 1977 a committee of Lubbock residents requested that a part of the Canyon Lakes be designated as a site for the memorial park. Strong said the committee was commended on its study of the genealogy of prominent black citizens and was encouraged to continue its research.

Gov. Ann Richards wrote in a letter to Strong, "As Texas governor, it makes me proud to see brave men and women in our great state unafraid to roll up their sleeves and take on a Texas-sized challenge. I commend your efforts, as well as the efforts of others who are assisting in this project."

Strong said the committee helped black history gain national attention in 1978 by reenacting Nolan's Lost Expedition of 1877, in which a group of black cavalymen survived four days on the South Plains by drinking the blood and urine of their dying horses.

"To me it shows just how determined they were to live," he said. "Black westerners saw it (their expeditions) as an opportunity to prove that they were human," he said. "They did an outstanding job, but they were forgotten."

"In order for people to know the part of the African-American people, they have to have pride in their history," he said.

The committee received a grant from the Lubbock City Council in 1986 that allowed Eddie Dixon, nationally known for his art on the black West, to produce an 800-pound proof model of the proposed memorial.

Dixon, described by Strong as the United States' top black western artist, will volunteer his skills when building of the memorial begins.

Before Dixon's replica was placed in the Texas Tech Museum, it was viewed by more than 40,000 people, including Alex Haley and the Rev. Jesse Jackson.

Jean Kavanagh, an assistant professor in the department of landscape architecture, said her class is working on a project this semester that allows students to make the landscape of the park's site more integrated and welcoming to people visiting the area.

"It's an important cultural recognition of the contribution of the African-

Department of Defense to release short list today

BY LYDIA GUAJARDO
THE UNIVERSITY DAILY

The Lubbock City Council discussed the possibility of Lubbock being selected as a finalist for a Department of Defense finance and accounting center Thursday.

A shortlist will be released by the Department of Defense today indicating whether or not Lubbock is one of the sites chosen.

If the city is selected as a finalist, the council must be prepared to provide incentives to the department to locate the facility in Lubbock. If located in Lubbock, the facility will create jobs and more revenue for the city.

"We must consider the risk and impact on the city," Councilman Alex "Ty" Cooke said. "It could be a real crusher if we were to lose it. We could suffer economically."

Mayor David Langston said the council needs to decide whether to keep Lubbock in contention.

"We need to be creative and work together if we are to go through with this," he said. "It would be like moving another Texas Tech into Lubbock."

Acting City Manager Bob Cass also presented the council with a formal presentation of consensus goals for 1992-93 that were discussed during an October planning session.

The goals outlined are to facilitate quality residential neighborhoods and foster neighborhood leadership; revise and define Lubbock's economic

Lubbock City Council considers bond package

BY LYDIA GUAJARDO
THE UNIVERSITY DAILY

The Lubbock City Council discussed recommendations for a $36 million capital improvement bond package from the Citizens Advisory Committee Thursday.

A tax-supported general obligation bond of about $28 million and a self-supported general obligation bond of about $8 million will be presented as a bond package election in May.

The package contains capital improvement needs the committee suggests Lubbock complete over a five-year period. The plan includes improvements to transportation, community facilities, public health and safety and utilities.

The council must complete the bond ballot by the second city council meeting in January, scheduled for Jan. 28. The completed ballot must be submitted to the Justice Department for approval and an election will be scheduled for May.

Mayor David Langston said he is concerned about presenting the projects in a manner that convinces residents to vote in support of the bonds.

"We are going to get this on the ballot and going to get this passed," he said.

Tech-Prep gearing high school students for workforce

BY JULIE ANN ANDRES
THE UNIVERSITY DAILY

Texas A&M has funded a $5,000 planning grant to a Texas Tech researcher in an attempt to establish partnerships between educators and the business community.

Diane Miller, an associate professor of education, curriculum and instruction, received the grant from A&M's Texas Tech-Prep Professional Development Consortium.

The Tech-Prep project is designed to develop curriculums that will provide high school students with the skills needed to enter the work force.

Miller said the Tech-Prep planning project will help identify necessary competencies in young people from questionnaire responses.

The questionnaires, which were sent to local businesses, contained four categories of questions concerning mathematics, science, computer literacy and communications skills and what employers expect in potential employees.

During the Tech-Prep planning project, high-school teachers will observe skills used by employees at participating businesses, Miller said. The teachers will relate to their students how the skills are used.

"The teachers make better connections between the math, science, computers and communications

Tech's dairy barn to be honored as historical landmark

BY KRISTIE DAVIS
THE UNIVERSITY DAILY

Texas Tech's Heritage Committee will dedicate a plaque commemorating the dairy barn's status as a historical landmark at 11 a.m. Saturday in a ceremony near the dairy barn and silo.

The barn and silo were placed in the National Register of Historic Places in May after a two-year fund-raising effort to save the structures. The barn and silo and the home economics building are Tech's two oldest standing buildings.

Tech's Student Association and students initiated a campaign in 1990 to save the barn and silo from being demolished, said Aaron Johnson, a senior agriculture economics major and chairman of the Heritage Committee. Students raised about $20,000, and alumni donated about $40,000 to restore the barn and silo, which were built in 1926.

To help cover tuition costs, students milked cows in the barn, which also served as a home for many students.

Bond

Before being narrowed to the proposal package presented to the council, the committee's high priority projects for Lubbock totaled almost $79.3 million.
 The tax-supported general bond projects include installing Americans with Disabilities Act wheelchair ramps at various intersections throughout the city. The project, which could cost $12 million if ramps are installed at every intersection, has been narrowed to $1 million.
 Langston said the city must comply with the federal mandate, and suggested that the ADA ramps be eligible for certificates of obligation. The certificates would ensure the funds collected would be used for ramps despite future economic developments.
 "They (the ramps) are just the minimum necessities to get by and stay within the framework of the city," CAC Chairman J.C. Chambers said.

 The committee's second high priority project is the $1.7 million expansion of Indiana Avenue. The expansion will begin at 34th Street and will extend to 50th Street.
 A $2 million project to upgrade Lubbock communication systems is the third high priority project in the bond package.
 Lubbock's police and fire communications systems have not been updated since 1972, said Public Health and Safety Subcommittee Chairman Greg Garrison.
 The committee also requested that the council look at airport renovations that are needed in the terminals. The renovations will cost about $2.5 million and will include air conditioning and roof renovations.
 The coliseum renovation project, the package's fifth high priority project, which costs about $3.5 million includes the installation of an air condition unit, roof replacement, sealing and lighting.

 Community Facilities Subcommittee Chairwoman Mavis Miller said she believes the project is a high priority and a practical request.
 "The coliseum is not used five months of the year and we have missed out on several events due to the lack of air conditioning," she said.
 Miller also said that because the coliseum is one of the few facilities in Lubbock that generates revenue for the city in its operation, it should be considered as a high priority.
 Other priorities listed included a $4.2 million storm sewer for Quaker Avenue. Although committee members said drainage problems continue to occur in Lubbock, it is not listed as one of the highest priorities.
 The committee also recommended an addition of two branch libraries to the public library system.

Americans," she said. "It represents something really unique in this area and in this field."
 She said the project is a multi-cultural project because it should affect people from various backgrounds.
 "What the students are doing makes this monument possible in the future," Kavanagh said. "Projects that architecture and landscape architecture are doing get it (the project) out into the open to national recognition and funding."
 Kavanagh said she wants visitors of the park to be able to place themselves in the life and experiences of the people it represents.

"Landscapes are where you can encourage people to feel the way they (black westerners) felt and the lives they lived," she said.
 Robert Madigan, a senior architecture design major, worked on the project last year with two other students and has resumed his work this semester.
 Madigan said his role in the project is to design the preliminary design of the park. Some features on the model are a cultural library, an administration building, a cultural museum, an art gallery and underground parking.
 "I think the community needs to be aware of contributions by the African-Americans in the West," he said.
 If the park is built it would be the reality of a dream, Madigan said.

development plans and strategies; and identify and pursue opportunities for governmental cooperation.
 Assistant City Manager of Levelland Rick Osburn presented information to the council and requested that Lubbock become a member of the High Ground of Texas Program. The program is an organization of South Plains city officials, chamber of commerce representatives and business representatives who work to enhance the regional image.

 The organization was established in 1989 to compete more effectively in economic development activities than in the past.
 "We are fighting an image problem," Osburn said. "We are requesting the help of Lubbock and encourage you to take part in our group and become a member of the Board of Trustees."
 Osburn also said a seat is open for Lubbock to appoint a member after paying the dues required.

skills taught in the schools and what is needed in the work place," she said. "The project focuses on better preparing the work force for the year 2000 and beyond."
 Miller said many Tech-Prep initiatives have been implemented across the nation, but said Lubbock Independent School District has not become part of the movement.
 According to author Dale Tamell in his book "The Neglected Majority," 55 percent of high school students are not involved in college preparatory programs and have no direction concerning their lives.

 "We have a neglected majority of students who don't know what they want to do," Miller said. "We need to design better educational systems for this majority of students."
 She said the Tech-Prep project will give students more alternatives concerning their futures, including better careers and higher education.

WHAT IS GOD'S PLAN FOR THE FAMILY?

The family was instituted by God, and the Bible has much to say about how the family should function. The Bible says, "Wives, submit to your husbands, as is fitting in the Lord. Husbands, love your wives and do not be harsh with them. Children, obey your parents in everything, for this pleases the Lord."
 Families that depart from God's ways experience trouble and failure, but those who follow God's ways will experience success. Jesus said, "Blessed...are those who hear the word of God and obey it."

Bon Jovi release takes new twist on established sound

BY JENNIFER SANDER
THE UNIVERSITY DAILY

Bon Jovi had the right idea when it split up and band members went their own separate ways for a few years. If that is what it took to produce what should be known as the group's best album yet, then the wait to see them back in the limelight was well worth it.

The band's latest release, "Keep The Faith," symbolizes the faith the band had in order to get back together and follow a new hard rock trend, which is a softer sound.

The songs on the album are much different than any on their previous releases. The electric guitar sounds and Jon Bon Jovi's high pitched wails are still there, but there is more of a mainstream, softer tone to the music.

MUSIC REVIEW

Keep the Faith

The choice to release the tune, "Keep The Faith" was a good one.

This, along with "I'll Sleep When I'm Dead" and "Blame It On the Love of Rock 'N Roll" are three of the faster-paced tunes with upbeat, positive lyrics, rather than the melancholy, lost-love lyrics that hard rock bands are sometimes famous for.

The one thing that sets this album apart from the band's previous releases and those of other hard rock bands is the meaningful lyrics in every song.

There aren't any songs that seem to be thrown in as space fillers. Each tune tells a story, most about believing in something, following your dreams and keeping faith in yourself and the world.

At first glimpse, long-time Bon Jovi fans may think the band has given up and joined the mainstream with the album backing away from its original heavy metal sound. However, the band deserves much credit for creating an album with a different sound, yet still holding on to at least a portion of the old Bon Jovi sound as well. "Keep The Faith" is definitely worth a listen and maybe even a purchase.

Second City to perform innovative type of comedy in Lubbock

BY JENNIFER SANDER
THE UNIVERSITY DAILY

Big comedy names such as Alan Alda, Dan Aykroyd, John Candy, Bill Murray and Joan Rivers may inspire Texas Tech students to attend the Second City Touring Company performance this Saturday.

The show takes place at 8 p.m. in the University Center Allen Theatre. Tickets cost $6 for Tech students and $10 for others and are available at the UC ticket booth.

These famous comedians will not perform Saturday, but they all started their careers with Second City years ago. Second City is a comedy troupe of six or seven actors or actresses performing comedy sketches by using a few props or costumes as possible. Their performances include improvisational sequences and building sketches on the spur of the moment around audience suggestions. All of the material is developed during improvisational sets after regular shows and the finished pieces become part of future performances. The original Second City company was founded in Chicago in 1959. The company has added other home companies since then.

For the second year in a row, the Second City National Touring Company is conducting a free workshop called "The Art of Improv" on Saturday at 2 p.m. The workshop will allow the first 30 students who sign up at the UC ticket booth to interact with Second City cast members to learn about improvisation, theater games and improvised scenes to get students acquainted with the basic principles of improv comedy.

Bosnian guitarist to perform at Tech

BY KAREN BENDELL
CONTRIBUTING WRITER

Lubbockites and Texas Tech students will have the opportunity to hear Uros Dojcinovich, one of the most sought after East European musical artists, at 5:30 p.m. Sunday at Hemmle Recital Hall. Playing with Dojcinovich will be James Bogle, a professor of music and the director of guitar studies at Tech. Dojcinovich and his wife Vesna have been in the United States since Oct. 23 and will be returning to Belgrade on Nov. 28, playing in Texas, Louisiana, Oklahoma and New Mexico. Although he has been away from home a lot, Dojcinovich says he enjoys his travels because of all the problems his country is having. Dojcinovich was born in 1959 in Belgrade, Yugoslavia, to a family of musicians. He began playing the guitar when he was eight years old and at 12 he played his first concert. At 15, he began receiving awards and since then, he has won numerous awards and competitions. Dojcinovich teaches full time in Belgrade at Josip Slavenski Music Conservatory when he is not playing at one of his 180 concerts a year. He has performed close to 2,000 concerts in 11 European countries in addition to Thailand, Singapore, Japan and the United States. Besides his concerts and teaching, Dojcinovich has appeared on radio and television and has been recorded on 30 compact discs.

Superman is dead

Comic book retailers prepare for onslaught seeking final Superman issue

BY BRIAN COFER
THE UNIVERSITY DAILY

Say it ain't so. After more than five decades, the man faster than a speeding locomotive, the man who can leap buildings in a single bound is dead. Comic book retailers will receive the Superman issue today where the man from Krypton meets his demise from the super villain Doomsday. "They're not saying how Superman dies," said James Ethridge, owner of the Comic Shoppe & Sports Cards at 2225 34th St. "But Doomsday does it without kryptonite. He's mean as hell." Ethridge, who had received 683 phone calls by Thursday afternoon, said he expects his business to be mobbed today by people eager to snatch up copies of the final issue. "If I had 10,000 (copies) more, I'd probably sell them too," he said. Mike Crowell, an employee of Star Books and Comics, 2014 34th St., said he expects their 1,200 copies to sell out fast. "We'll probably have a parking lot full, and a line stretched out into the street," he said.

But despite the excitement over Superman's death, most hard-core comic book readers are taking it with a grain of salt. Edward Walker, a Texas Tech freshman engineering major from Shallowater, said most younger readers do not care either way if Superman dies. "Younger people don't read Superman," he said, adding that most readers are more interested in such new-wave characters as X-Men and Wolverine and some older ones like Spiderman. Walker also expressed doubt that Superman will stay dead. "He'll probably come back before too long," he said. Steve Odorizzi, a fireman and avid comic book fan, said he has not read Superman since he was a child. "I think it's a big gimmick," he said, referring to Superman's death. However, he said he had arranged with Ethridge to have a copy reserved. Crowell agrees that Superman's death is little more than a ploy by D.C. Comics to recapture a dwindling market share. He said that although D.C. was once the uncontested leader in the comic book market, the company's dependence on plot and lack of violence makes their stories less appealing to the average reader. "Most people are into blood and guts and gore," he said. Crowell said he expects most of their business for the final Superman issue to be from the general public, not avid comic book readers. "The average person is probably saying, 'Oh my gosh, they're going to kill Superman,' while most comic book readers are used to this," he said, noting that characters such as Iron Man have been brought back after being killed off.

'Dracula' difficult to follow

BY KRISTIE DAVIS
THE UNIVERSITY DAILY

If you want to see "Bram Stoker's Dracula" for pure enjoyment, just buy yourself a ticket. But if you want to see the movie to understand the history behind the world's most famous vampire, you're going to have to buy the book.

"Dracula" begins by explaining how the count becomes a creature of the night. From that moment on, the movie does not explain much of anything.

As expected, Anthony Hopkins gives an exceptional performance as the doctor who comes to the rescue of Dracula's victims.

He is not very sympathetic to their plight, though, as he explains to Winona Ryder and Keanu Reeves over a pot roast dinner that he is forced to "cut off her head and put a stake through her heart, then cut it out and burn it."

Gary Oldman as Dracula is, indeed, a scary creature. But as the Prince, he is charming and romantic.

MOVIE REVIEW

Bram Stoker's Dracula

Winona Ryder, Gary Oldman, Anthony Hopkins
Showing at: Movies 12
MPAA rating: R
The UD rating: 6 out of 10

At times, it is easy to feel pity for the lovesick beast as he tries to win back the love of his life (and un-death), Mina/Elizabeth, played by Ryder. In addition to its horror, "Dracula" is a touching love story of a man who goes off to war, only to return to a wife who has killed herself. "Dracula" is an enjoyable, though complex, movie that keeps moving in a million different directions. There does not seem to be just one storyline, or even just one villain. Had the movie kept to one basic idea, it would be easier to understand. Even the characters who narrate the movie keep changing.

Raiders travel to tourney looking to bolster NCAA chances

BY LEN HAYWARD THE UNIVERSITY DAILY

The Texas Tech women's volleyball team will face a familiar team in familiar surroundings this weekend. But there is a little added twist to this match.

This is the first round of the first Southwest Conference postseason volleyball tournament.

The Red Raiders are the No. 3 seed in the tournament and will face the No. 6 seed Rice Owls today at 5:30 p.m. at the University of Texas Rec Center in Austin. All matches will be carried on KJAK-FM (92.7).

"We are looking forward to playing this weekend," coach Mike Jones said earlier this week.

Tech comes into the match after a tough four-game win over the Southwest Texas State Bobcats Monday at the Rec Center.

"Hopefully we will have some carry over from last Saturday," Jones said of the three-game win over the Owls on Nov. 14. "We beat them pretty easy at their place and I am hoping we can get them (Raiders) to just play volleyball."

The Raiders enter the match today with a record of 21-6 and 7-3 in SWC play, while the Owls were shut out once again in conference with an 0-10 record.

Last year at this time the Raiders were ending their season and preparing for the NCAA tournament.

This year the Raiders still have a shot at the tournament, but a fall in the regional rankings has hurt Tech's chance for a bid and its chances of hosting a first-round match. In the latest South Region poll the Raiders fell to No. 8.

Jones said the last six matches of the season including the SWC tournament are important in getting a shot at the NCAA tournament.

"We have six matches left and we need to win four of them to keep us playing in December," he said. "Us being ranked eighth in the region, that surprised me, but that does not help our cause. The bottom line is you have to beat some people."

If the Raiders should beat the Owls today, they will face the Houston Cougars, who received a first-round bye for finishing second in the conference, at 5:30 p.m. Saturday.

Tech fell twice to Houston during the regular season and Jones said if the team wins, he hopes it can be ready to play the Cougars again.

The championship game will be played at 4 p.m. Sunday.

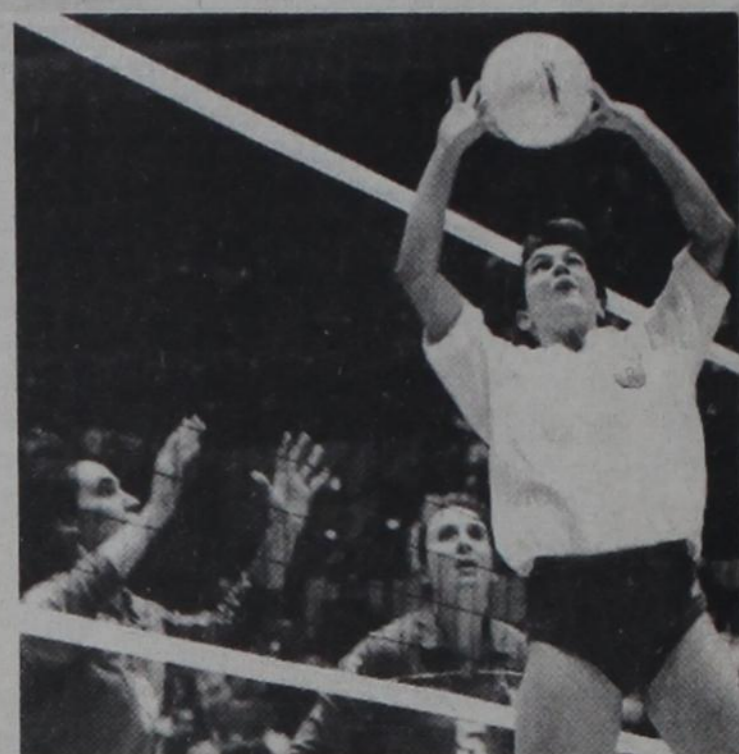

Tech volleyball notes

• Many feel that a "weak" SWC will not receive more than one — or two, at the most — bids for the NCAA Tournament.

Yet 1992 will mark the league's best record against outside competition (currently 79-33, .705). The previous best was back in 1984 (106-47, .693). Last year the SWC was 86-56 (.597) versus teams from outside the conference.

• If Houston wins its match Saturday, four SWC teams will have won 20 or more for the second straight year. Not since the first three years of the SWC (1982-83-84) has more than three teams won 20 or more matches in consecutive seasons. In those three years Texas, Houston, A&M, Tech and Rice all won 20 or more.

• Six different Raiders have recorded 200 or more digs this year: Erica Ruegg 309; Rochelle Kaaia 288, Kim Gosselin 287; Kristen Sparks 251; Chris Fehrle 234; and Ginger Carter 207.

Raiders searching to keep momentum

Tech seniors to play last game in Jones Stadium

BY CASEY WESTENRIEDER
THE UNIVERSITY DAILY

After stealing victory away from the clutches of defeat last Saturday against Texas Christian, Texas Tech is preparing for its final game of the 1992 season.

This Saturday the Red Raiders will face Houston at 2 p.m. in Jones Stadium in a confrontation that historically proves to be a high-scoring affair.

The last four times Tech has faced the Cougars, the two teams combined for an average of 77 points and 939 yards per game.

And it looks like more of the same this Saturday.

The Raiders, led by wide receiver Lloyd Hill and I-back Byron "Bam" Morris, are averaging 407 yards per game on total offense.

Hill, the nation's leading receiver with 74 grabs for 1,193 yards, was named to the Football News All-America Team and also named as Southwest Conference Offensive Player of the Week.

Tech enters the game with a 3-3 SWC record and 4-6 overall mark, while the Cougars are 3-6 and 1-4 in conference play.

Tech will be looking to establish its running game early and will be looking to Morris for support on the ground.

Morris had a career-high 210 yards in last week's game against the Frogs.

Houston will be looking for revenge after having lost to the Raiders 52-46 last year in the Astrodome.

Houston leads the nation in passing with 379 yards per game featuring Sherman Smith, who averages nine receptions per game, and Freddie Gilbert, who is averaging almost 14 yards per catch. The Houston offense is averaging 485 yards per game.

"Houston has another great attack," coach Spike Dikes said. "They showed what kind of football they can play against A&M. This one should be a whale of a game."

Houston lost to No. 4 Texas A&M in a close game in the Astrodome last Thursday, but racked up 582 yards in total offense against the Aggies' defense.

Defensively, the Raiders will be trying to stop Houston with outside linebacker Mike Liscio who leads the defense with 88 stops.

Liscio has broken up four passes, caused three fumbles, 13 quarterback pressures and four quarterback sacks.

In the secondary, Tracy Saul will be looking to step up his current statistics of 25 interceptions and 425 interception return yards.

Saul ranks fourth in NCAA career pickoffs.

This Saturday also will be the last game for 12 Tech seniors. Those playing in their final game are tight ends Don Hasley and Tony Hooper; offensive linemen Charlie Biggers, Stance Labaj and John Carter; defensive linemen William Ritter and John Pitts; linebackers Ben Kirkpatrick, Quincy White and Mike Liscio; and defensive backs Chris Kenney and Tracy Saul.

"It's going to be sad," Labaj said. "I don't know what I'll think until I'm there."

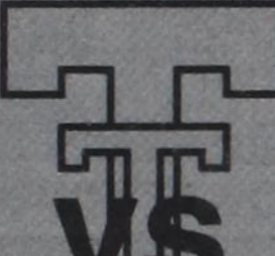

A crowd of about 35,000 is expected for Saturday's contest.

Former Aggie Smith elevated to starting lineup for matchup with Cardinals

IRVING (AP) — Dallas Cowboys coach Jimmy Johnson summoned Kevin Smith to his office this week to give him a message all rookies wait to hear: "You're starting this week kid."

The news was music to Smith's ears.

"I thought I had messed up or something," Smith said. "I didn't know what I had done wrong."

"I was surprised, but it felt good," he added. "I've had to swallow my pride and ego for a longtime. I was ready for it."

Finally, after 10 games, substitute status is over for Dallas' top pick in the 1992 draft. The Phoenix Cardinals will present Smith with his first real test.

Smith beat out veteran Issiac Holt for the starting spot. Holt has owned the starting left cornerback spot the last two years.

"I'm sure Phoenix will be testing me on Sunday," Smith said. "They test all the rookies in this league. I hope they come at me. I welcome the challenge."

Smith suffered a hamstring injury just before training camp and never fully recovered until after the regular season started.

Smith said the hiatus may have helped.

"I think it helped make me mature mentally," Smith said. "I got a chance to observe what was going on. That can help you in the NFL where everything moves fast."

Smith admitted he was a little "nervous" about the start.

"I've got a few butterflies, but I think I'll be OK," he said.

The Cowboys promoted Smith because he plays tighter man coverage than Holt.

"Kevin covered the other teams' best receivers at Texas A&M and that's what caught our eye," defensive backs coach Dave Campo said. "He's an aggressive player and that's what we like."
