Clinton pledges change in welfare

WASHINGTON (AP) -President Clinton pledged Tuesday to transform welfare into a "hand up, not a handout" by giving recipients training and then requiring them to work. He said he would allow governors broad freedom to experiment with welfare changes.

"Most people on welfare are yearning for another alternative, aching for the chance to move from dependence to dignity," Clinton said in a speech to the National Governors' Association. "Welfare should be a second chance, not a way of life."

Clinton broke little new ground, largely repeating, rhetoric and all, an array of campaign promises he said would "end welfare as we know it" and give dignity to families who work but still find themselves below the poverty line.

And aides said that despite Clinton's detailed campaign proposal and Tuesday speech, many critical questions about the policy were unresolved.

campaign spending

WASHINGTON (AP) - Just months after the Federal Election Commission deadlocked on campaign spending limits in a Georgia runoff election it will have to revisit the issue in the Texas Senate race.

The commission is expected Thursday to consider a request by the Democratic Senatorial Campaign Committee for clarification on campaign spending by state and national party organizations.

The FEC sets a cap on coordinated campaign expenditures by state and national parties. The spending limit in the Texas special election, set for May 1, has yet to be approved by the FEC, but is likely to be in the range of $700,000 apiece for the state and national organizations, FEC spokesman Scott Moxley said Tuesday.

House committee OKs 'Robin Hood'

AUSTIN (AP) - The House Public Education Committee approved a "Robin Hood" school funding proposal Tuesday that is basically the same as a measure blocked by Republicans in a pre-Christmas special session.

"It may be even a little bit worse," said Rep. Kent Grusendorf, R-Arlington.

He predicted House Republicans again would oppose the proposed redistribution of some local school property taxes unless they can negotiate concessions from Democratic leaders.

All three Republicans on the 11-member committee voted against the proposed constitutional amendment by Rep. Libby Linebarger, D-Manchaca, committee chairwoman. They are Grusendorf and Reps. Steve Ogden of Bryan and G.E. "Buddy" West of Odessa.

Professional networking will lead personal injury lawyer Bob Gibbins' open discussion on the benefits of the American Trial Lawyers Association at 2 p.m. today in the Texas Tech Law School, room 203.

Gibbins, invited as a guest lecturer of Tech law Professor David Cummins, served as ATLA president from July 1991-92.

He also will speak at 3 p.m. in the school's open forum reception area.

Gibbins said he hopes to relate to students the benefits the association offers by providing networking between members and by keeping members informed of seminars and public affairs.

"I want students to know that it (the association) is a personal and professional organization that they can benefit from," Gibbins said. "It will benefit me to pass on to others who have not started practicing (law) what they can accomplish by belonging to such an organization."

Gibbins said he hopes he can increase students' knowledge of the association's benefits and what the role of a trial lawyer can be. The profession often is attacked by public officials, he said.

editorial An end to the bloodshed

The Clinton administration is reviewing U.S. policy on Bosnia-Herzegovina, and its final stance should be one that excludes direct American involvement in the civil war in the former Yugoslavia.

Entering the war would be a mistake that would prove we haven't learned our lesson from history. To enter the war would be to repeat the Vietnam War in which about 47,000 Americans were killed to defend a country that did not want our military presence.

Like the Vietnamese people, Bosnian President Alija Izetbegovic has made it clear that Americans are not needed to fight the war, but arms are.

According to an Associated Press report, Izetbegovic said, "We only believe in ourselves. Why should American men come to Bosnia to fight for freedom when our men are ready to fight? But we need arms."

However, arms are not the solution, either. The goal is to end the fighting, to stop the killing, to keep a race of people alive. By sending arms to Bosnia or Croatia, the United States would only be prolonging the conflict.

Before the Clinton administration makes any decision on whether to send arms, it also must overcome the problem in deciding which country should receive the arms.

We cannot arbitrarily pick sides in a civil war. Unlike the Vietnam War, we are not fighting an evil, such as the spread of communism. Sending arms to Croatians because they do not have any cannot be justified. We simply cannot make the choice.

The solution that the Clinton administration should offer is one that involves a worldwide effort to end the war, one that comes in the form of a U.N. mandated blockade of arms into former Yugoslavia.

The sale of arms to Serbs and Bosnians can only be stopped when the United Nations enforces economic sanctions against those countries that are making a profit from the civil war.

Everyone keeps talking about the image the "Party in the Projects" gave Texas Tech. Well, I'm sure I wasn't the only person just a little disappointed to see Myles, our campus representative, at the press conference looking like she just stepped out of a 60-minute workout. When I think of a Homecoming Queen, I think of someone neat and dressed appropriately, not someone in a pair of wind shorts. Maybe I should file a lawsuit against her for disgracing our school. After all she was representing Texas Tech. Furthermore, was Myles the best representative of our university? Or did she, as one black student put it, win [Homecoming Queen] because all the minorities turned out to cast their vote in her direction? If there had been, say one Hispanic and one black candidate, would Myles have won? Something to think about, huh? While Myles is angry that her photo didn't fill the entire page of The UD, some of us question the manner in which this vain girl was selected. I suppose that from now on our Homecoming Queen will be the minority who looks the worst or causes the most trouble on campus. How do minority students decide who will be their candidate? This is in no way a drive to remove Myles from her beloved position, but wasn't this really the root of the problem? Weren't the minority students already upset at the university for not covering the Tech seal with Myles' extremely large head the day after the football game? All I can say is congratulations to support the former president's the three, now four students who achieved their goals of king for a day. For these students to take a stand this far into their college careers is like a woman walking to the door after being raped and then saying stop. It's too late then. As these students finish typing their resumes and ride back off into the sunset like Matt Dillon, the rest of the minority students have to stay and clean up after their horses and finish their job of taking away the First Amendment rights of others. I think we're all tired of every minority student who wants his or her name in the paper or on television calling up the press to say they've been called a racial slur. Let's move on from this incident. Myles, Taylor and Johnson have gotten enough newspaper clippings with well thought-out quotes for their college scrapbooks. They have now officially made their marks on Texas Tech. Now they're even

you. Like it or not, he IS your president, unless you decide to forsake the United States of America and try out some other country for the next four years. Good luck. You apparently enjoy your ability to exercise your rights under the First Amendment of our United States Constitution too much to move somewhere else. That's the United States Constitution, not Iraq's, Israel's China's or South Africa's.

This is the first election year since I have been old enough to vote where my candidate won. Before each and every prior election my mother and I would debate politics, and upon each defeat she would say to me, "Like it or not, he's your president too." She was right. This is a democratic society, not an anarchy. We elect our presidents by majority vote via the electoral college process. More people picked President Clinton this year. My mother told me at Christmas that, although she was a Bush supporter, that she hoped the country would rally around the new president and give him all the support he needed. Those are the words of a true American. Those are the words of someone who lived through the Great Depression. Those are the words of a registered Democrat who has voted Republican for longer than I can remember. Those are my mother's words. She was right again. As an American, I find it personally repulsive that anyone would take "pride" in denouncing the President of the United States. I wonder if you had to remove your "Support Desert Storm" sticker in order to replace it with a new one. Many American citizens did not actions in calling thousands of young American men and women to war, yet we collectively unified and supported our troops. Patriotism was at an all-time high. Flags flew endlessly. Yellow ribbons adorned streets for miles and miles. We supported our country, and by doing Could it be possible that the Pikes so, whether he was right or wrong, we supported our former president. I challenge you to take a serious look in your heart and uncover the patriotism that was apparently lost when the former president failed to be re-elected. Although I have not agreed with most of the actions from that, the official voice of the the White House in the last 12 years, I have continued to live in this country, enjoy its freedoms, pay my taxes and exercise my voice through the democratic process. Through it all, I have retained my patriotism. As a student of the Constitution, I am also a firm believer in the First Amendment. Be thankful that you are in a country that allows such expression. I acknowledge and appreciate the fact that you have a strong opinion about who should or should not be in the White House, but I question your use of the First Amendment in this particular instance. I challenge you to fly a flag instead and exercise your voice by continuing to vote for those Name withheld upon request whose ideologies match your own. Help strengthen this country through unity, not weaken it by division. While you may not wholeheartedly support the new president, don't defile your First Amendment rights by exhibiting such non-patriotic rhetoric. Be proud to be an American, don't be a sore loser.

How far do we extend protection?

To the editor:

Dateline 1996 - Clinton announced today that thieves were no longer to be discriminated against in the armed forces. She observed that "in the past many served with loyalty and distinction." The president nodded. Elsewhere, Judge A.M. Oral handed down a decision allowing Sgt. Van Dal to return to his post in the Paymaster General's office. The Justice stated that because the word "thief" was not found in the Constitution and because the whole idea was founded on religious principles as well as class distinctions, he "had no other choice but to restore the man's rights." Found guilty of embezzlement, Sgt. Van Dal had been given a dishonorable discharge earlier last year. After the trial, Rob M. Blind, president of the American Thieves Kleptup, commented, "Diversity is the soul of America." Van Dal's lawyer, ACLU's A. Nomos added, "Religious fundamentalists are always trying to push their morality on others." He added, "It is now a scientific fact that all behavior is genetically controlled like skin color." When asked for a comment, an unidentified former general only groaned, "Stupidity is genetically controlled."

I'm offended

To the editor: Resuming the conversation concerning the Pikes and Fashion Board, I was absolutely shocked last week upon discovering that the racial incident that occurred last semester had gone without punishment. Is this possible? and Fashion Board hired an outside attorney to overturn the fair and representative decision handed down after a lengthy and surely costly investigation by the Dean of Students Office. The Dean of Students Office is just students of this university. The racist actions of these groups embarrassed us, the students, enough. However, to spit in the face of this institution by buying an outside party to reinstate their status weakens and undermines the entire social, moral and ethical system that this higher institution represents. If students who attend this university break the laws, be they laws concerning grades, criminal acts or racist mixers, they must be required to pay the consequences. The entire student body must unite and address this action. Pikefest might be this opportunity. Addressing the Pikes and Fashion Board, you were wrong and your attempts to take the easy way out have further diminished your status and reputation on this campus. Your action continues to be an embarrassment. I'm offended and sick, and as a white student of this university, I stand united with those you've offended. John W. Lee

The other side of the coin

To the editor: Kenneth Bobo's column in The

By ending any economic relief we provide to those countries, we as a world can bring an end to the civil war. But the sanctions have to be enforced. The United Nations can ensure that they are by positioning ships in the Mediterranean and by using surveillance equipment, such as satellites, to monitor the surrounding countries.

We as a world need to unite to bring an end to the war, but we can and should do it without the needless loss of lives.

It's the right thing to do

Lubbock has taken one more step in improving the city's criminal justice system by refusing to allow jail administrators to lower bonds without proper forms.

Errors in the prison release system by bonds have allowed coldblooded murderers to remain free on the city's streets until their trial date. Sheriff Sonny Keesee announced Tuesday that he will not allow jail administrators to permit bond reductions without proper forms. And it's about time.

One example is the release of a Lubbock man in early November. Juan Ramon Martinez Jr. had been jailed on attempted murder, retaliation and organized crime. He was released after posting a $2,500 bond on two crimes. His bond was originally set for $50,000 for two crimes.

The problem? The sheriff said jail employees were allowed to change a bond amount once notified, even by telephone, by proper authorities.

Another incident occurred recently when another Lubbock man was accused of killing his 4-year-old daughter by strangling her, placing her body in a trash bag and storing it in the trunk of his car. His bond was originally set at $100,000, but the amount was lowered one month later, thereby circumventing the judge's decision. The judge should know enough details about a case to set a fair bond, while jail administrators have no such responsibility.

At least now with Keesee's decision to tighten the grip on bond reduction, Lubbock can become, if not a safer, at least a law-abiding, place.

Judges are given the power to set bonds, which also gives them the responsibility of raising or lowering any bond for an appropriate reason. Jail administrators, who are not given such power, also are not held responsible for crimes committed by the accused who are released on an invalid lower bond.

With an error such as this, it would be interesting to know what other glitches there are in the system. Hopefully, more research and more action will be taken in situations such as the prison release system. Someone innocent always winds up paying for a criminal's actions in the end.

So kudos to Sheriff Keesee for his decision. Hopefully a careful eye will continue to watch our criminal justice system.

UD just shows how minorities use racial issues to get in the limelight. How many black students have to make formal statements to the press saying the "Party in the Projects" was wrong? For months here at Tech, students and faculty alike have been discussing the notorious "Party in the Projects." Some of us students are fed up with this nonsense - Pikes and Fashion Board for their ignorance and minorities for crying about it.

We all know why this whole incident got blown out of proportion. Sonya Myles, in an attempt to get the recognition she felt The UD had denied her after being named Homecoming Queen, thought up an ingenious way to get her name plastered all over the Tech newspaper.

I've been a student at Tech as long as Myles, and I have never heard of her standing up for her own rights, not to mention the rights of others. It's strange how all of a sudden as she applied to medical school she becomes an up and coming civil rights leader.

Cheryl Taylor made a smart move. We all expect a last-year law student to want to stick her finger in this pie. However, I wonder how Taylor's firm will feel when she goes to court for the first time and flips off the judge when she doesn't have a comeback. She flipped us all off at the press conference.

As for Black Student Association President Telea Johnson, this whole incident will work out to her advantage because she can prove she just made a mistake and that now she is a leader. Johnson, who is the reigning Miss Black Texas Tech, will be representing our university lpha Phi Alpha in a state pageant in May.

nneth Bobo mentioned the should wear their Greek letters ot be ashamed, but he doesn't on that his fraternity is the zation that has given all ity organizations a bad name. ng ago his fraternity hosted a in which a Tech football got shot. Being a black man should be more ashamed of his organization, Kappa Alpha Psi, which promotes black on black violence than of a white organization that promotes unity within its own race (unfortunately it's at the expense of others). As I read about his organization's plan to picket Pikefest, I found myself hoping they didn't start fighting among themselves during the demonstration. In my opinion the manner in which this whole incident was presented was all planned. I'm sure that there was a better way to saying let's forget it. Should something like this happen again, better minority representatives should be chosen to handle the situation instead of unreasonable, fly-by-night, want-tobe civil rights leaders seeking fame. Where are the real black student leaders?

EXCUSE US but didn't you make a New Year's resolution this year to stop smoking?

Sure, you made the resolution. And each time you tried to quit, you couldn't. How do we know? We went through it, too.

We learned from our own experience that resolutions just won't do it when it comes to kicking the nicotine habit. The problem can best be understood if you think of quitting smoking like you think of performing some sort of magic trick. Anyone can say that they're going to do a certain trick, but only the person who knows the secret behind it will actually pull it off. And that's why saying, "Abbracadabrra, I'm going to quit," just isn't enough.

What is enough is the method thousands of former smokers used, Smoke Stoppers. Methodist Hospital's Smoke Stoppers works because it's a program designed and conducted by former smokers. We know what it takes to quit; we know the secrets and we'll share them with you. You'll find the atmosphere is low-key, friendly and supportive. Through subtle changes in your awareness and the practice of positive habits, Smoke Stoppers guides you away from cigarettes.

The choice to quit always remains yours. We're there to help you quit, not force you. You'll gain the strength and positive reinforcement you need to meet your goal, from others who are quitting too, right there with you all the way.

The first session is free and without obligation. Make good on your resolution. Come to the free introductory session listed below and find out what Smoke Stoppers is all about.

According to Dickey, a win is not guaranteed against the Aggies. After the win over Houston, Dickey saw the Raiders fix a few reoccurring breakdowns. However, in the win over TCU, Dickey saw another reoccurrence of regression during the last minutes of the ball game.

"We have to take care of the ball and protect the lead," Dickey said.

"We had some situations in the TCU game where we missed some easy shots, we didn't box out at the free-throw line and overall, we didn't play defense as well as we are capable of. Against A&M, we need to fix these things."

In years past, the Raiders have not fared well at Station. Dickey said last year's game has no bearing effort, even against the Aggies. on tonight's contest.

Milwaukee Brewers president Bud Selig repeated Tuesday that a final decision wouldn't be made until Wednesday's meeting. There has been widespread speculation that Schott will be suspended for one year because of racial and ethnic slurs attributed to her.

A suspension would be the first imposed on an owner by the executive council. The council also may impose a fine of up to $250,000.

If she is suspended, Schott is expected to seeking a temporary restraining order to stop the ban, even though the Major League Agreement prohibits suits by owners against the commissioner or the executive council.

game numbers. For example, there are more Black Buck antelope in Texas 78058, or call (210) 367-5069. than there are in their native land of India. Black Buck antelope is excellent for the hunter, and the cook — it goes great on the grill and the wall. The combination is excellent. Animals such as Africa's Aoudad are thriving here, too, and it is also one of the most challenging animals in the hills. To see an Iranian Ibex standing on a cliff overlooking a deep canyon will for sure "cleanse your soul." Have you ever come face to face with a charging Russian boar? Lets talk hunting, my friend. Living in the woods Texas style. I am pumped!
