Wounded to be flown out of Srebrenica

SARAJEVO, Bosnia-Herzegovina (AP) — U.N. officials said that French and British helicopters would fly wounded out of besieged Srebrenica beginning Wednesday, testing a promise of safe passage from the Bosnian Serb leader.

In New York, the Serb leader, Radovan Karadzic, angrily withdrew Tuesday from peace talks on ending the war in former Yugoslavia. It was not immediately clear whether his withdrawal would affect his cooperation with the medical evacuation.

U.N. and European Community negotiators had been pushing a plan to end the conflict by dividing Bosnia into 10 semi-autonomous provinces based on ethnic and economic criteria.

Karadzic contended that the plan offered too little territory to the Serbs.

Senate Democrats back economic plan

WASHINGTON (AP) — Urged on by President Clinton, Senate Democrats defended the administration's economic package against critics of its defense cuts and new taxes Tuesday. And a panel of lawmakers approved a companion job-creating measure.

Democratic leaders turned back a Republican effort to halve the $112 billion in defense cuts Clinton has proposed as part of his five-year, $502 billion deficit reduction.

Voting for the unsuccessful measure was Senate Armed Services Committee Chairman Sam Nunn, D-Ga., a longtime Pentagon defender.

The GOP amendment was killed 58-41, despite arguments by sponsor Sen. Pete Domenici, R-N.M., who said, "I'm fearful we're cutting too fast."

"This is a relic of the past," countered Senate Budget Committee Chairman James Sasser, D-Tenn.

Sharp testifies on Capitol Hill

WASHINGTON (AP) — It's necessary to redesign government to make it leaner, Texas Comptroller John Sharp, who is advising the White House on its campaign to cut wasteful spending, told a House subcommittee.

"The best way to fix any government that has been destroyed by top-down management is to turn the place upside down and shake it, then shovel out the garbage by the truckload," Sharp told a House Government Operations subcommittee.

"You can rehash all the old ideas and do a little minor tinkering with the existing order," he said. "Or you can seize this opportunity to redesign the federal government and find a better way of doing business for the people of this country."

Texans continue cashing in on games

by KENDRA CASEY
THE UNIVERSITY DAILY

Since its initial start up, the Texas Lottery has exceeded state officials' expectations.

After nine months of lottery ticket and lotto chance sales, the games have generated more than the anticipated earnings for the lottery's first two years.

"Our most recent deposit of $53.7 million brings to $466.4 million the total amount earned by the lottery for the state's general revenue fund," State Comptroller John Sharp said in a release.

"The original lottery revenue estimate from start-up on May 29, through the close of the state's two-year budget period on August 31, was $461 million," he said.

Lottery earnings are averaging $50 million monthly, $20 million more than the comptroller's office originally estimated.

The Panhandle region, of which Lubbock is a part, has produced more than 7 million winners, paying out more than $27 million in cash prizes, said Steve Levine of the lottery office in Austin.

The lottery has paid out more than $687 million to more than 184 million winners statewide.

The Texas Lottery's most recent game, "Fiesta," was introduced earlier this month.

Lottery Director Nora Linares said

The $1 tickets are printed on recycled paper with environmentally safe inks and coatings.

"Fiesta" players can win by matching three prize amounts or two prize amounts and the word "double."

Retailers of "Fiesta" game tickets can redeem winning tickets up to $400.

The total cash prizes to be awarded through the "Fiesta" game is $38.8 million.

Board to discuss upgrade in campus bus system

by SANDRA PULLEY
THE UNIVERSITY DAILY

The Texas Tech Board of Regents will consider improvements to the campus bus system and the granting of tenure to faculty members during its committee meeting at 10:30 a.m. Thursday in the Texas Tech University Health Sciences Center, room 2B152.

If the bus accessibility project is approved, three bus turnouts will be constructed on the north side of 18th Street.

The plan also calls for the paving of bus stops and curb ramps at the nearby street intersections. Bus stop shelters may be added at these locations at a later date.

"It is a good idea to get the vehicles off the street," said Dusty Peters, a Citibus representative. "It is also safer for the students. Plus we can put up shelters to allow students to get out of the weather."

Citibus services Tech with 11 buses on two routes.

The project is part of a plan to improve the campus bus system and to provide accessibility to the system for disabled people.

Construction for the bus improvements will begin after Tech's spring commencement. The Higher Education Assistance Fund will provide $30,000 of the budget and the remaining $120,000 will come from Citibus.

Citibus is applying for money from the Federal Transit Administration to fund its portion of the project, Peters said.

"This money is part of President Bill Clinton's economic stimulus package," Peters said. "The money is available for capital purchases and construction. We knew that Tech had some projects that were ready to go with the bus system, so we are applying for a federal grant."

The board's meeting will be the first meeting with Regent Carl Noe. Noe and regents Edward Whitacre and Bernard Harris were appointed March 1 by Gov. Ann Richards.

Harris and Whitacre will not be attending the meeting.

The board's formal meeting is at 9 a.m. Friday in the Regents Suite, located in the administration building.

Other board discussion will include:

- The awarding of a natural gas contract for Tech. On May 10, 1991, the board authorized a contract with Reliance Gas Marketing Company, which will expire Aug. 31.
- Authorization for Tech President Robert Lawless to award a construction contract for partial roof replacement and repair for the Wall/Gates and Hulén/Clement residence halls.
- The $410,000 renovation of the office space in the Tech physical plant.

Veteran reporter hired as 1993-94 University Daily editor

by KRISTIE DAVIS
THE UNIVERSITY DAILY

Texas Tech's Student Publications Committee appointed Tuesday night junior journalism major Kendra Casey as the 1993-94 University Daily editor.

"For me, working for a newspaper is the ultimate opportunity to be a part of the community, a part of politics, sports and entertainment," Casey said. "I can't imagine doing anything else."

Casey, a UD news reporter for the past two years, began working at the paper in spring 1991 as an apprentice and librarian.

"My experience writing is my best advantage because I know the kinds of problems reporters encounter. I've encountered them all, and if I haven't, the people I've worked directly with have," she said. "You have to be willing to find solutions for problems that may arise. That's something I look forward to. You have to be dedicated, and I have been dedicated since I began working for the UD."

Although she does not have experience as an editor, Casey said she believes her experience as a reporter will be more beneficial to the newspaper than an editorial position might have been.

"I know what it takes to be a reporter. I know what a news story needs," Casey said. "I want my job to be a little different than previous editors, in that I want to be more involved in the actual news process and have closer contact with the reporters."

Casey said she would like to continue the positive steps the newspaper has taken in the past few years, such as increased local coverage and the editorial board.

"I don't necessarily intend to make any big changes, just improvements," she said. "I want to contribute to the UD things I think would benefit both the paper and Texas Tech."

Casey's first duty as editor will be to hire an editorial staff to help her hire reporters and photographers.

"I want next year's staff to work as a team and make decisions as a group, from hiring to what goes on the pages every day," she said.

Casey said she wants to see an increase in the coverage of student organizations and activities.

Equity: balancing fairness and funding

by CASEY WESTENRIEDER
THE UNIVERSITY DAILY

Women's athletics have made large improvements across the United States since the passing of Title IX of the Education Amendments of 1972.

Many conferences across the nation have established committees recently to examine what the level of equal treatment among men and women is.

However, what good will a Gender Equity Committee really do?

"It will take a lot of time before the committee will do much good," said Judith Holland, the senior associate athletic director at the University of California-Los Angeles and chairwoman for the Pac-10 Conference's Gender Equity Committee.

"There's really not much the committee can do," she said. "What we have done is identify the problems and concerns and made steps to improve them."

Holland said the Pac-10 committee examined programs for equality, including championships and awards ceremonies, and found that many were equal in most aspects, except participation.

"There is no way you can have an equal participation rate in a school with a Division I football team," Holland said. "The alternative is to add a lot of women's sports. But who's going to pay for them all?"

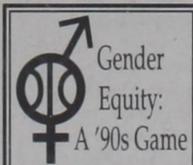

Funding, funding, funding. Money seems to be the key to equality in collegiate sports, and football is the main source of funding for any Division I school with a football team. However, it would not be fair to deprive a university's football team of revenue it has earned.

Baylor's women's basketball coach Pam Bowers said she is not looking for the same amount of funding as the men's program, just enough to produce a winner. If that's the case, what would be acceptable funding for women's programs?

"The national average is around a 70-to-30 split," Texas Tech Associate Athletic Director Jeannine McHoney said. "The Big 10 has come along and said, 'In 10 years, we would like to be at 60-to-40.' Something along that line would be a reasonable expectation to achieve in a decade. Money is just so tight right now."

If equality in collegiate sports means an average 70-to-30 division of funds, are apples really oranges? According to any credible math book, see EQUITY, page 3

Koresh continues stalemate with FBI

WACO (AP) — Doomsday cult leader David Koresh continues to reject FBI concessions, including an offer of a national radio pulpit when he surrenders to authorities who have surrounded the Branch Davidian compound for 24 days.

Koresh had until noon Tuesday to accept the FBI's offer of access to the Christian Broadcasting Network on his surrender, but the deadline passed without word from inside the Mount Carmel compound.

"He will probably not be able to get as generous a response from us (again)," FBI agent Bob Ricks said.

The agreement, which included assurances Koresh would be able to contact his followers in the McLennan County Jail, was dismissed "out of hand," during negotiations Monday, Ricks said.

Nightmare in Holden

JULIE ANN ANDRES

I have been attending one college or another for about six years now and I am more than ready for graduation in May.

Because of past experiences at two other schools, I knew that my Tech career would prove to be the one that propelled me full force into the working world.

I have also had a May 1993 graduation date set since the day I first set foot on the Texas Tech campus three years ago. I had a goal set and nothing was going to get in my way.

But Tuesday, after spending more than $300 on graduation related costs, which includes my class ring, and thousands during the last eight semesters including two summer sessions, I received one of the biggest scares of my college career. I was informed that I was one class short in my minor because of incorrect advising on my degree requirements.

I was told by a representative of the College of Arts and Sciences that I had taken care of everything for graduation, but that I still needed someone from the psychology department to approve a class that I was told would fill two slots of my degree plan.

Unfortunately, I was informed by the psychology department that the class could not be used in the second slot and that I needed to take one more course in my minor, which is psychology, before I would be able to graduate.

How could this be? I filed my degree plan last year. I filed my intent to graduate and paid the $12 fee the day before the deadline in February. Everyone knows that once you pay the fee, you have to graduate.

I checked with the dean's office the first week of this semester and last semester just to make sure, to double and triple check that I was on the right track toward graduation.

I was determined not to be among the students who are prepared to graduate and then find out in the middle of their last semester that they can't because a required freshman course was overlooked. This would not happen to me.

Yeah, right.

The problem began last year when I filed my degree plan. I was told by an adviser that a statistics class required for my liberal arts degree also could be used toward my psychology minor.

"Great," I said. "Just one less class I have to pay for and suffer through." You know what they say, kill two birds with one stone. Unfortunately, the other important cliché I forgot was that if something sounds too good to be true, it probably is.

The adviser didn't know or just failed to mention that this type of course substitution does not work for minors, only for majors. If I had read the catalog from cover to cover I supposedly would have known this.

This problem had another chance to be rectified last fall. Knowing that I could use this crossover method, I had registered for the statistics class, but the wrong one.

Fortunately I checked in at the dean's office during the first week of classes just to double check my schedule to triple check to make sure that I was on the right track toward graduation. The adviser informed me that I was enrolled in the wrong stats class if I wanted it to cross over and fill two requirements. She also said that because I had been so alert and concerned about my education and upcoming graduation, I had caught the error just in time to add/drop and get into the right class.

"I sure am glad I came to double and triple check," I said. "I sure would hate to find out seven-and-a-half weeks before graduation that I wasn't going to graduate. What a relief!"

I immediately headed toward the University Center and the five-mile long add/drop line to correct the error. Somehow I got the last spot in the right class and one step closer to graduation, I thought.

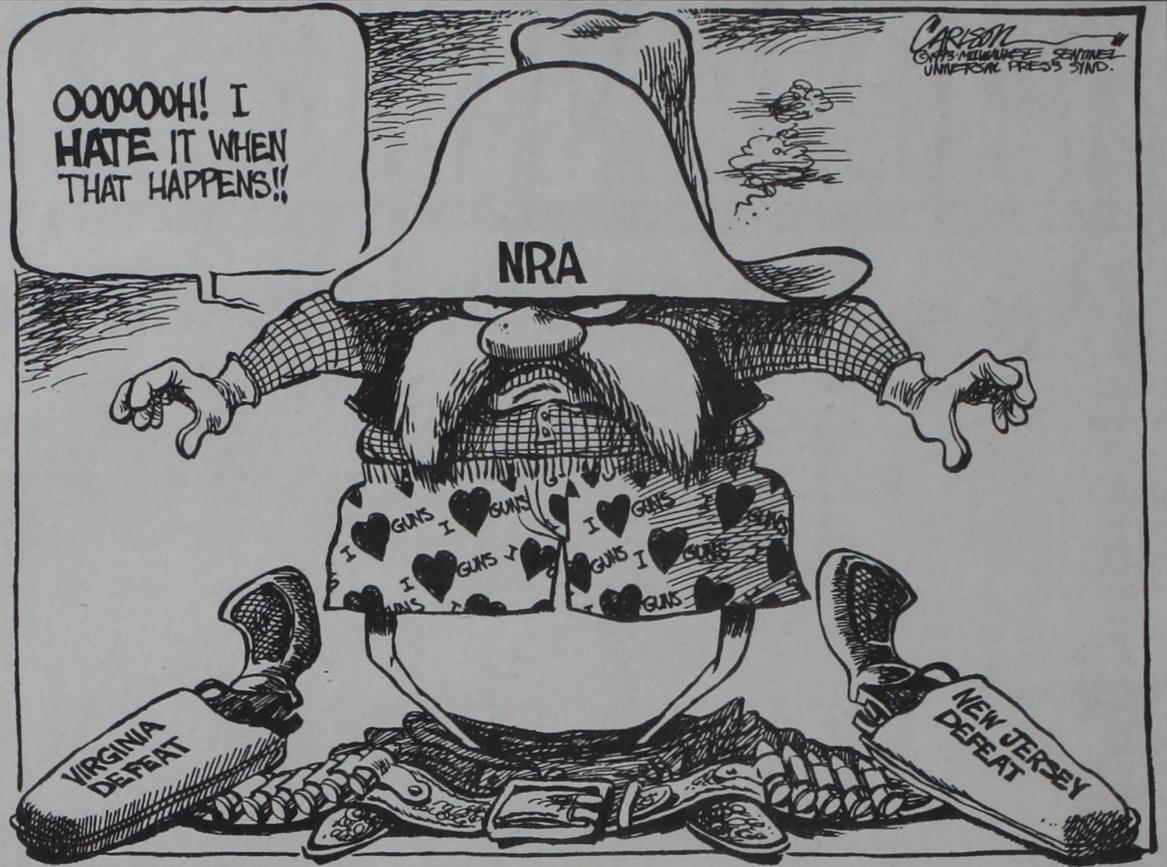

After all this trauma, I will graduate because luckily another mistake was made when my transcripts were transferred to Tech. A psychology class I took six and a half years ago at Southwest Texas State University was overlooked and counted as an elective. By the grace of the graduation god, that transferred class fit the course description of a class offered at Tech.

My future is once more safe and secure. Now all I need is a job to pay for the student loans accrued during the last three years.

Thank you Lee Ann Evans in the A&S dean's office for helping me during my time of crisis and finding that class buried in 3-year-old files. I guess two wrongs do make a right in some circumstances and I will walk in May, if I can finish this semester without any mishaps, knock on wood.

To all undergraduates getting closer to graduation: beware. Some of you may not have three years worth of transferred classes to fall back on.

Respect for the Lady Raiders

To the editor:
 We have a question. Why are the Lady Raiders getting so much attention lately? Haven't the Lady Raiders been winning this season? But all of a sudden they make front page news and have large articles in The University Daily. Is it because The University Daily is stumped on things to write on men's teams because (even though it was a valiant effort) they lost in the first round? We are all proud of the comeback and the championship effort by the men's team but please give credit where credit is due.

This is the second year in a row that the women's basketball team has won the Southwest Conference and gone on to the playoffs.

This is big publicity for Texas Tech, but we feel the respect is not there. We feel Sheryl Swoopes should call the NBA and be placed in the draft, but that will never happen.

It is sad that an individual with so much talent and love for a sport cannot progress in the world because that individual is a woman.

Women's sports have always been put on the back burner even when they are bringing in a lot of revenue.

We feel Sports Illustrated has honored Sheryl Swoopes more than Texas Tech.

One of the most admiring aspects of the Lady Raiders is that no one person takes the credit, not even Sheryl Swoopes. All of their effort is as a team and is for themselves and Texas Tech, and this is the thanks they get? We have seen more "On the Road to the Final Four" shirts for the men than we have the women.

Pardon us, but the women are the ones winning. Is that so hard to understand?

Will women's athletics ever be fully recognized by Texas Tech and

The University Daily? Will women coaches ever receive the same pay as men when they are the ones winning? And when will the day come that a victory in volleyball will be placed before football? When hell freezes over, that's when. We think that is very sad. Congratulations, Lady Raiders. We are all proud of each and every one of you. And to the administrations and The University Daily, it is about time to show women respect for all the things we do.

Dividing the Great Society

ANTHONY LEWIS

"In light of the sorry history of discrimination and its devastating impact on the lives of Negroes, bringing the Negro into the mainstream of American life should be a state interest of the highest order. To fail to do so is to ensure that America will remain forever a divided society."

-Justice Thurgood Marshall in Regents v. Bakke, 1978.

Twenty-five years ago today the Kerner Commission, appointed by President Johnson after terrible riots in Detroit and Newark the year before, made its final report. Gov. Otto Kerner and his colleagues warned:

"Our nation is moving toward two societies, one black, one white — separate and unequal."

For the anniversary, the Milton S. Eisenhower Foundation has issued a massive report on what we must do about the miseries of our urban ghettos — the miseries that exploded again last year in the Los Angeles riots.

It is a valuable report because it refuses to accept what so many Americans have come to believe: that there is nothing to be done about the poverty, decay and crime of our inner cities.

The report, written by the foundation's president, Lynn A. Curtis, concludes that the Kerner Commission's vision of two unequal Americas is "more relevant today than in 1968, and more complex, with the emergence of multiracial disparities and growing income segregation."

But it does not see this reality as a reason to give up.

"The fact is," the report says, "that we already know quite a bit about which investments work in the American inner city."

The focus of the report is on helping children and youth avoid the dead ends of ignorance and crime. It argues that a number of community-based programs in different cities have proved successful, and that it is time to apply their methods on a larger scale.

The methods include "sanctuary, extended family, mentoring ... discipline, educational innovation that motivates a youth to obtain a high school degree, job training linked to job placement ..." To spread those ideas the report proposes a national nonprofit Corporation for Youth Investment, funded by both private sources and the federal government.

Among many other proposals, one is for a National Community Development Bank.

It would encourage a network of development banks like the South Shore Bank in Chicago, which has had much success in stemming urban decay — and has been profitable.

To finance its suggestions, the report calls for a gradual rise in federal spending to a level of $15 billion a year in new money for investment in children and youth, and $15 billion for investment in inner cities themselves. Those levels, it says, should continue for 10 years.

I asked Roger Wilkins, a leading black analyst of urban problems who was sent by President Johnson to help deal with the Detroit riot in 1967, what he thought of the report. He welcomed its insistence that we must act and that we know a good deal about what to do.

"But I don't believe," Mr. Wilkins added, "that any social program in the world can do for a child what a healthy, economically steady family can do. So you have to strengthen families."

"That means focusing on job creation. You need income for families, earned income. Job training and placement should be centered on the aim of strengthening families."

If we recognize that necessity, we have to confront another contemporary reality: the decline of manufacturing industry in this country with the globalization of production.

Strengthening the family in inner cities is dependent in that sense on President Clinton's aim of rebuilding American industry to create jobs.

There is one more aspect of the Eisenhower Foundation report that must be noted. After quoting the famous Kerner conclusion about two societies, the report has very little to say directly about race.

That may reflect a political judgment.

Few white Americans want to think about remedial measures for the black heirs of centuries of discrimination.

Reagan and Bush political strategy was to arouse racial fears, and then use them as a reason to do nothing.

But a divided America, damaging to whites as to blacks, will continue until we face the issue of race.

Rodeo 'ropes and rides' way through Hub City

by BETH RASH
THE UNIVERSITY DAILY

THE RODEO WILL BE THE MOST EXCITING SHOW THIS CITY HAS SEEN IN THE LAST 12 MONTHS.

Jack Chapman

Saddle up the horses and shine those boots because there is a rodeo in town. The 51st annual ABC Rodeo will run nightly Thursday through Saturday at Lubbock Municipal Coliseum. The rodeo will be "the most exciting show this city has seen in the last 12 months," said 1993 ABC ProRodeo chairman Jack Chapman.

More than 400 members of the Professional Rodeo Cowboys Association (PRCA) are the featured acts in every event from bull riding to steer wrestling and from calf roping to bull fighting.

Beutler and Gaylord Rodeo Company is providing the livestock for the shows, and Kevin Rich, a five-year professional bull fighter from Windsor, Colo., said the stock the company brings is always top notch.

"Bennie (Beutler) is one of the best stock contractors around," Rich said.

On Thursday and Friday nights, rodeo performances begin at 7:30 p.m. in the Coliseum. There will be two shows on Saturday, one at 1:30 p.m. and one at 7:30 p.m.

General admission is $7, and reserved seats are $11. Tickets are available at Boot City and Boot City Too, J. C. Penney, Lusky's Western Store, Tejas Western Outlet and from any ABC member. Besides Rich's event, the Wrangler ProRodeo Bullfighters Tour, many rodeo events are expected to be performed by such rodeo greats as 1989-92 All-Around World Champanion Cowboy Ty Murray, barrel racer Charmayne Rodman and 1992 World Champion Calf Roper Joe Beaver. Lubbock native Michael Gaffney, a top-10 bull rider, also is expected to compete. Randy Corley, two-time World Champion Rodeo Announcer, will announce each show.

"He's amazing," Chapman said about Corley. "He gets the people so worked up at the shows."

Other features of the rodeo include John Payne, who is also known in the rodeo world as The One Arm Bandit. Payne is an Oklahoma native who has spent his life working as a cowboy, but he's not like the others. Payne lost his right arm in an accident. His performance is a showcase of animals he trained himself. Rich and Chapman both said Payne's show is amazing.

"His livestock is trained to do things that are totally unnatural for them to do," Chapman said. "I don't want to give his whole show away, but at the end, all his livestock ends up on top of his trailer."

Chapman and Rich said they wanted to make certain all people understood that rodeo livestock are treated well.

Chapman said the ABC Rodeo has instituted a new rule that specifically addresses the problem of animal mistreatment.

"We started a rule called the jerk-down rule this year," Chapman said. "If a cowboy ropes a calf and makes it flip backward and land on its back, he is fined. The rule was an effort to make the events more crowd-appealing."

Chapman said the fine for cowboys who violate the new rule will be $250.

The cowboys are treated as well as the livestock they ride, rope and wrestle. The Justin Sportsmedicine Program will sponsor a sportsmedicine trailer, and sports medicine specialist Rick Foster will aid in training and medical needs of the cowboys.

"Justin is great," Rich said. "They've put me back together many times. They've put every cowboy back together. They're always the first ones on the scene, and I feel comfortable with them around."

The ABC Rodeo is produced in its entirety by members of the downtown chapter of the American Business Club. Proceeds from the event will benefit the Boys' Clubs of Lubbock and several other local charities. The rodeo is expected to generate more than $200,000 into the local economy.

Alternative Canadian band releases records despite wild partying habits

by JESSICA SMARTT
THE UNIVERSITY DAILY

In the time between getting drunk, smoking pot and avoiding work, alternative band Mystery Machine was able to make a compact disc.

The band released "Glazed," its first full length compact disc this week.

The release was produced by Dave Ogilvie, who has also worked with bands Skinny Puppy and Babes in Toyland. There are no solos throughout the entire release.

"I'm not good enough to do solos," said Shane Ward, bassist. "Besides, solos are dumb."

"They (solos) don't seem very appropriate. We're not good at playing them," said drummer Jordan Pratt.

All band members said they enjoyed working in the studio.

"You can never make a perfect record," said Ward. "You just do the best you can. Anyone who says otherwise is a liar."

While Mystery Machine was not one of the big names at Lollapalooza '92, an outdoor, traveling concert, it performed on the second stage of the concert.

"It was a free ticket to Lollapalooza," said Pratt. "It was fun to do second stage, but Soundgarden was playing at the same time. We tried to hurry so we could see them."

In addition to playing at Lollapalooza, Mystery Machine also has opened for bands such as Pearl Jam and Buffalo Tom. The band is from Chilliwack, a small town in Canada. Many of its songs center on the compensation for the lack of entertainment there.

Most of the band's spare time is spent at gravel pit parties, drinking a lot and "getting beat up by rednecks," Pratt said. He said they also invest a lot of time smoking pot. The band formed three years ago, and none of the members said they could remember how they came up with the name Mystery Machine.

"It is the name of Scooby Doo's van, but I'm not sure if it had anything to do with that," Ward said.

Like many other bands, Mystery Machine members said the reason they started the band was to make some money while avoiding having to get real jobs.

"I've been working the past three years," Pratt said. "But these (people) haven't been doing anything. I'll really be pissed if we make it famous and they never worked."

Mystery Machine members are Bean, guitarist; Luke Rogalsky, guitarist and vocalist, Pratt and Ward.

Family ties make college student feel closer to home despite distance

BETH RASH

I am the only child, the only grandchild and the only niece. However, recently I discovered something profound: I am not alone.

That might not seem relevant to what I just told you about my family, but it is.

Not one single person in my family lives within 200 miles of Lubbock. It takes me six hours in the car to reach the nearest ones. But I am as close to them as I am to my best friend (who, by the way, lives in Colorado).

Thank God for Sprint long distance, because if I didn't have my family I wouldn't have the memories that will last forever, like the one about how my great-grandmother taught me how to make the sugar stick on top of sugar cookies, or how my grandmother used to give me those neat little handi-works things to wash the candy off my hands when she was driving me all over Texas every summer, or how my granddaddy took me swimming every night and let me jump off the big diving board and saved me from drowning every time.

And then there are my uncle and aunt. We used to call Uncle Jack the "skinny turkey." I don't know why, but I can tell you that for some reason it was tremendously entertaining. And Aunt Carolyn can cook one of the best Christmas dinners you ever tasted.

Mom and Daddy, of course, are the world's best, even though they sometimes seem like the world's worst, like the time Mom made me drink gallons of nasty city water when I had a kidney infection or the time Daddy left us for a week.

But then there was the time when they surprised me with a car for my 16th birthday, and all those times Daddy took me out "killing rats" with him on Saturday mornings.

Thinking about all these people and about the things we are able to talk about to each other now makes me feel content and loved.

I know some people have immense families with brothers and sisters and aunts and uncles and cousins and dogs and cats and birds and a family tree whose roots would tear up any sidewalk it chose to grow under, but I like my family. Whenever I need someone to talk to, I can call any one of them. Just the way I like it.

Raiders take doubleheader from Antelopes

by LEN HAYWARD
THE UNIVERSITY DAILY

For one game Wednesday, it looked as if the University of Nebraska-Kearney Antelopes could possibly pull an upset of Texas Tech at Dan Law Field.

But the Red Raiders relied on some clutch hitting from senior second baseman Trey Forkerway to pull away to a 6-5 win in the first game of the doubleheader. Tech came back to pound the Antelopes 18-4 in the nightcap.

With the two wins Tech improved its record to 21-7, while the Antelopes fell to 2-7 on the season.

Nebraska-Kearney pitcher Tim Anthony had shut the Raiders down for most of the seven-inning affair until the bottom of the sixth when Tech exploded for three runs.

Forkerway led off the inning with a single to left field, then freshman left fielder Clint Bryant laid down a bunt single, advancing Forkerway to third.

Anthony then walked sophomore first baseman Randy DuRoss to load the bases. Forkerway then scored on a wild pitch, while Bryant and DuRoss came during the next two at bats.

Senior shortstop George Kilford ended the inning by popping up to Antelope third baseman Mark Burton.

Tech looked to have a comfortable lead at 5-3, going into the top of the seventh.

Nebraska-Kearney did not give up, though, with shortstop Mike Asche drawing a two-out walk, with clean-up hitter Jason Atwood coming to the plate. Mike Copple was on the mound for the Raiders and gave up a two-run home run over the left field fence that tied the game at 5-5.

New Antelope pitcher Sean Cahow opened the bottom of the seventh by giving up a walk to Craig Benham. This set the stage for a Brody Gregg sacrifice bunt that advanced Benham to second, with the hot-handed Forkerway coming to the plate.

Forkerway delivered by hitting a single to center field, bringing Benham home.

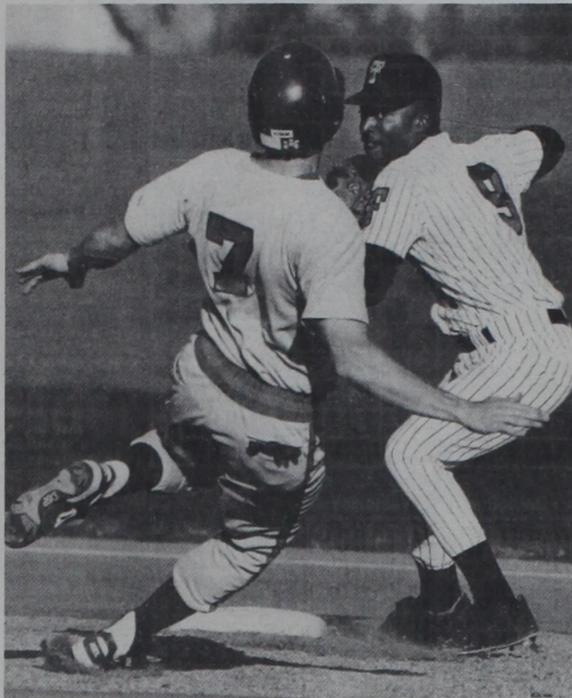

Forkerway ended the first game going three-for-four with two RBI, while in the second game went three-for-three with five RBI.

Copple picked up the win, while starter Kevin Hannah was left with no decision. The Antelopes' Cahow was tagged with the loss.

In the second game the Raiders got started early and never quit, pounding five different Nebraska-Kearney pitchers for 12 hits and 18 runs.

Jon Davis picked up the win, which was his first of the season. Davis finished with four runs on six hits in six innings of work.

The two teams will end the series today at 3:30 p.m. at Dan Law Field.

Turning the DP

Texas Tech second baseman Trey Forkerway turns a double play in the first game of the Red Raiders' doubleheader with the University of Nebraska-Kearney Antelopes Tuesday. The two teams will finish the series today at 3:30 p.m. at Dan Law Field.

Lubbock could benefit from appearance by sprint car organization

LEN HAYWARD

This weekend Lubbock will be the center of the dirt track racing world. Right now many of you are thinking, "Well here this guy goes again, talking about auto racing, nobody cares about this stuff."

Well, this is a unique situation for the city of Lubbock and the South Plains. The World of Outlaws, which I have written about before, is coming to the West Texas area for the first time Friday and Saturday night at the Hub City Speedway, southeast of Lubbock.

The World of Outlaws Copenhagen/Skoal Shootout, as it is now known, will bring more than 30 sprint cars to the area. But more importantly, the race will bring money into Lubbock and people who have never been here before.

This traveling group brings an entourage only smaller than Indy Car racing and Winston Cup Racing.

The fans come with their campers or motor homes (no, not like Arkansas fans), but many motels and hotels in the area are booked for this weekend. Also, local restaurants should expect an increase in business.

This is something that, for one weekend, will boost the Lubbock economy. OK, so it's not the Department of Defense's accounting facility. But, more than $1 million could be pumped into the Lubbock economy from this event alone.

Coupled with the ABC Rodeo also scheduled for this weekend at the Lubbock Municipal Coliseum, the Hub City will be the lucky beneficiary as far as the economy is concerned.

I'm not here to talk about the economy, though. I'm here to talk about auto racing and especially sprint cars.

These little cars are some of the more exciting in all of motor sports, but this group is different.

The Outlaws are unusual because they race for a living, and that is what makes the sport that much better.

Steve Kinser and Stevie Smith are just names to you, but to a sprint car fan they mean the best. And, the best are coming to Lubbock to race on the Hub City Speedway's three-eighths mile clay oval track.

This race officially begins the racing season for the South Plains, which will have two tracks in the local area.

Hub City and West Texas speedways both are in operation this year, and each brings exciting racing to the fans of Lubbock weekly. Hub City runs regularly on Friday nights with one two-day show monthly, while West Texas runs on Saturday nights.

The World of Outlaws show will be the premier racing event in the Lubbock area this season, and support already has been pouring in from surrounding states.

These guys travel across the country to race on the dirt tracks throughout the United States and, for one weekend, Lubbock will be the center of attention.

It sure is weird that something besides football can actually pump a lot of money into the Lubbock economy.

Tickets still are available for both races. Time trials begin at 7 p.m., Friday and Saturday, with the racing scheduled for 8 p.m.

Sports briefs

Golf team takes rain-shortened tourney in Fort Worth

The Texas Tech men's golf team started on its comeback run Tuesday by picking up a victory in the Baylor/Dr. Pepper Invitational Tuesday afternoon in Fort Worth.

Collin Stoops tied for first in the tourney with Matt McMyler from Baylor, but Stoops won the sudden death on the fourth play-off hole. Both finished the tourney with identical scores of 70. Micheal Ashy finished in third tied with Kansas' Brad Bruno, both shooting a 71.

Also finishing in the top 25 for Tech was Davis Wiley shooting 72 and Chris Anand shooting a 74.

Olajuwon scores 31 in 111-103 win over Hornets

CHARLOTTE, N.C. (AP) — Hakeem Olajuwon scored 31 points and Kenny Smith 27 as the Houston Rockets beat the Charlotte Hornets for the eighth consecutive time, 111-103 Tuesday night.

The Rockets, 12-1 against the Hornets overall and 6-1 at the Charlotte Coliseum, led by 11 points through three quarters, but Charlotte started the fourth period with a 14-4 run, closing to 86-85 on Muggsy Bogues' 20-foot jumper with 6:44 remaining.

Olajuwon then scored eight points in a 14-6 spurt that built Houston's advantage to 100-91 with 2:05 left.

ALL-U Basketball to wrap up

All University basketball opened Monday night in the men's division with four first round games. Monday's games produced the elite eight that advanced to last night's quarter final action. Last night saw top seeded Bomb Squad take on Sigma Chi Blue, a 62-59 opening round winner over the Dawgs. Club champion TSF Arsenal drew a bye and faced the 411 who advanced via a 59-48 win over FIJI A. In the lower half of the bracket, The FAB took on Technique late last night. Technique downed Chi Psi Gold 65-53 in their opening game to advance, while the FAB drew a bye in the first round of the tourney. In the other quarter final action last night, All-Greek champion KA 'A' was challenged by the Players, who had advanced by virtue of a 95-55 won over H.S.S. In the women's final four action tonight, the Used to Be's take on the Spankers while the Old Timers face the Silver Bullets. Finals for both men's and women's divisions are scheduled for tomorrow evening at the Student Rec Center.

Bookstore tourney begins next week

Basketball season is not quite over yet, as entries are being accepted for the Bookstore Basketball Tournament. There is no entry fee and the deadline is 5 p.m. Thursday. The tournament begins on Friday, with men's and women's divisions offered. Teams can consist of any combination of enrolled Tech students, faculty of staff. Only one basketball letter winner or varsity member is allowed per team. Current varsity players with collegiate eligibility remaining are ineligible for this tourney. A maximum of ten players are allowed on each team. Any roster changes must be made by 5 p.m. on Friday. Since this event is co-sponsored by the Texas Tech Bookstore the awards to each runner-up member will be $25 gift certificates to the Bookstore and each champion team member will receive a $50 certificate. For more information stop by the Rec Sports Office or call 742-3351.

Reebok spot shot contest challenges top shooters

Texas Tech University's most accurate basketball shooters will be on hand to show off their scoring skills at the Reebok Spot Shot Contest to be held on Saturday at the Student Rec Center from 11 a.m. to 2 p.m. The Reebok Spot Shot Contest challenges students to score from six designated areas on the court in the quickest time. The top male and female competitors at each school will win a pair of Reebok basketball shoes. As a special bonus Texas Tech University has also been selected as one of only 30 schools nationwide to present the Reebok Shoe Display in addition to the Reebok Spot Shot Contest. The display gives students the opportunity to check out the latest in Reebok basketball shoes as well as a chance to win a free pair of Reebok shoes through a random drawing. Reebok Shoe Displays and Spot Shot Contest will also be organized at the 22 Schick Super Hoops Regional Tournaments. The Reebok Spot Shot Contest is sponsored by Reebok International Ltd., a support sponsor of Schick Super Hoops. Super Hoops is endorsed by both the National Basketball Association (NBA) and the National Intramural-Recreational Sports Association (NIRSA), and is managed by National Media Group, Inc. For more information about the Reebok Spot Shot Contest of The Reebok Shoe Display, contact Tom Weis at 742-3351.

All kinds of events at Aquatic Center

A Stroke Mechanics clinic will be offered on March 24 from 6-7 p.m. This clinic will give you an opportunity to view you strokes on television and improve them with help from an instructor. This workshop is free to all Recreation Center pass holders. Also this week is our annual 5,000 meter swim. The pool will be set up in long course fashion at 9 a.m. on Saturday, and lap counters will be provided for all who wish to take on this challenge. The 5,000 meter swim is free to all Recreation Center pass holders, and if desired, T-shirts may be purchased upon completion of the event. Two classes will be beginning next week, Basic Lifeguarding and Community CPR/First Aid. The Basic Lifeguarding class will be offered on Mondays and Wednesdays from March 29 to April 14 at 6 p.m. This class will certify participants to guard at pools only. Participants should be strong swimmers and able to demonstrate crawl stroke, side stroke and breast stroke. Participants must also hold current CPR and First Aid cards upon completion of the course. The Community CPR/First Aid course will be offered March 30, April 2 and April 6 from 6-10 p.m. This course will certify participants to perform CPR on infants, children and adults and train you in First Aid procedures. For more information on these and other class offerings, stop by the Aquatic Center or call 742-3896.

Enter tennis tourney

Rec Sports is now taking entries for the Spring Tennis Singles tournament at the Rec Center Room 202 through Thursday. A $5 ball fee is also required which will cover the cost of balls for the tournament. The available divisions for this tournament are Men's and Women's A and B divisions. The B divisions are for those players who are just getting started in tennis. The A divisions are for players who have played age group or high school tennis. Brackets will be available at 10 a.m. Friday and Must be picked up in person at which time each player will pay the ball fee. Play may begin as early as Friday evening. It is required that if a player has a time conflict to list that on the entry blank.

All-U basketball refs named

Recreational Sports would like to recognize the 13 students for outstanding service to the intramural basketball program named as ALL-UNIVERSITY BASKETBALL OFFICIALS.

These student officials were found by the staff to be outstanding in appearance, mechanics, rules knowledge and showed effective administration of the game.

These young people have been chosen to work the All-University Tournament this week.

injury clinic tonight

Wednesday's Free Injury Clinic hosted by Dr. Robert Yost and the Orthopedic residents from the Health Sciences Center resumes tonight at 7 p.m. in room 201 of the Student Recreation Center.

The weekly clinic allows students with athletic type injuries to have a free examination and receive advice on treatment, care and possible referral. The clinic will continue each Wednesday evening.

For further information call the Rec Sports office at 742-3351 or drop in at tonight's clinic.

ROUND IT Too Cool's Eric Bourguin round first base and heads for second during a recent intramural softball game. Too Cool won this game 20-5 over the Saddle Tramps to start league play. GREG HENRY: REC SPORTS

3-on-3 Volleyball Tournament Slated

Teams interested in the men's and women's, or co-rec 3-on-3 Volleyball tournament may pick up information sheets and registration forms now in the Rec Sports Office. Entries are due April 6-8 between 8-5. The tournament will be held on Sunday, April 18. If the number of entries warrant the tournament could extend over several days. It will be single elimination unless time permits double elimination. Any Tech student, faculty or staff member eligible for Intramural Sports may participate in this tournament. No varsity volleyball players or Tech Volleyball Club members may play on a men's or women's team, but one varsity or club member is permitted per co-rec team. Brackets will be available to be picked up on Monday, April 12.

Indoor soccer spots available

A few slots remain for men's and women's teams wishing to play Intramural Indoor Soccer this spring. To enter your team, bring a list of players' names, addresses and phone numbers to the Rec Sports Office (SRC 202) as soon as possible (preferably today). A $25 refundable forfeit fee is also required upon entry (residence hall teams can charge their fee to their hall account.) Only five players are needed to play each game, so grab a few friends and play INDOOR SOCCER! All games are played on court five of the Rec Center.
