Arafat continues PR for peace plan

CAIRO, Egypt (AP) — Yasser Arafat brought his campaign to sell the PLO-Israeli peace agreement to Egypt on Monday after receiving lukewarm support in Syria.

The agreement calls for Palestinian self-rule in the Gaza Strip and the West Bank town of Jericho — a small portion of the Arab land Israel has occupied since 1967.

Before arriving in Egypt, the only Arab country that has given wholehearted support to the plan, the PLO chief picked up endorsements for the accord from the Gulf Cooperation Council, a six-nation group lead by Saudi Arabia.

It called the accord "a first step toward reaching a just, lasting and comprehensive settlement to the Palestinian problem and the Arab-Israeli conflict."

In Syria, Arafat met for 6 1/2 hours with President Hafez Assad, who asked to study the plan more fully. The Palestine Liberation Organization took Assad's request as an expression of support, with reservations, a PLO official said in Cairo, speaking on condition of anonymity.

If Assad's backing materializes, it could help Arafat secure approval for the plan from the PLO's ruling Executive Committee. Hard-line PLO factions based in Damascus are represented in the ruling body, and Assad has influence over them, although he does not control them.

More women seeking political posts

SPRINGFIELD, Ill. (AP) — It could be the Anita Hill thing. It could be a fluke. Or it could be that women have paid their dues.

For the first time in the United States, according to two national groups, women are pursuing all of a state's five top elected posts.

In the 1994 election, women want to take over the Illinois offices of governor, treasurer, comptroller, attorney general and secretary of state. And some said privately they would consider a run for lieutenant governor.

"This is an important state to watch. Anytime you have a record number of women running ... you can change the face of government," said Pat Reilly, a spokeswoman for the National Women's Political Caucus in Washington, D.C.

Illinois was really the first state out of the gate to mark the 'Year of the Woman' in politics," she said.

Susan Carroll, senior researcher for Rutgers University's Center for the American Woman and Politics in New Jersey, cites a combination of factors, including Anita Hill's testimony at the Senate confirmation hearings for Supreme Court Justice Clarence Thomas.

"A collective click took place, and people realized that when women are not present the sensitivity of certain kinds of issues is just not likely to be there," she said.

Prison may await computer pirates as Secret Service begins crackdown

by MIKE HALL
THE UNIVERSITY DAILY

Computer hardware misuse has led to hard time for a former Texas Tech student, and government officials have warned of more investigations to come.

Secret Service Agent David Freriks said that former Tech student John Michael Mora received four months in a federal prison and two years probation after pleading guilty to a federal felony of copyright infringement.

Junior public relations major Robert Louis Simpson and former Tech student Michael John Gilbert pleaded guilty in the spring to a federal misdemeanor of copyright infringement and received two years probation and 100 hours of community service, Freriks said.

The Secret Service's investigation was initiated by reports from Tech's Academic Computing Services about the possible misuse of university mainframe computers, Freriks said.

Former Tech student sentenced to federal pen for computer misuse

"The ACS people reported Mora as having used the system to download copyrighted materials," Freriks said. "Mora admitted to us that he had used the VAX and Internet to illegally obtain copyrighted materials."

The VAX is a mainframe computer system maintained by the university for student and faculty research purposes.

Students using the VAX have access to Internet, a worldwide network of computers.

"Since he was a student, we differed federal prosecution to the University Disciplinary Committee who kicked him out of school," Freriks said. "The next day, he was doing it again with a code provided to him by Simpson."

Freriks said the investigation led to Simpson and Gilbert, who were running a computer bulletin board system called Simpson Street out of their room in Sneed Hall.

A Dec. 15 raid of the room resulted in the confiscation of Simpson's and Gilbert's computers, which contained all needed evidence for prosecution, Freriks said.

Simpson said the bulletin board system provided users with access to text files on varying subjects, public domain software and copyrighted software.

"You can get copyrighted programs from anywhere, from another BBS or people might just give it to you," Simpson said. "We didn't really consider it illegal. It was just another game to put onto the system and share."

"So it's illegal," he said. "Speeding's illegal. Everybody does it, that's how we looked at it."

Simpson said university officials are attempting to have him removed for violating Tech's Code of Student Conduct.

Freriks said investigations into misuse of Tech's computers by students are continuing.

"We are aware that there are currently individuals on campus in the process of setting these bulletin boards to illegally obtain programs and games, and we will be investigating those," he said.

"They need to understand that, if it's public domain, there's no problem passing it around. If it's copyrighted, it's like the lottery — go ahead and do it but your taking your chances."

"When they start going international and bringing all these copyrighted programs back and passing them around, they are breaking laws," Freriks said.

"I'll make no bones about, we're going to nail somebody this year and we're going to make an example out of them."

United States Attorney's Office Prosecutor Bill Matya said, "People need to realize they are stealing from someone when they use a copyrighted program and don't pay the licensing fee."

Matya, who is responsible for the prosecution of federal crime, said leniency is not given to students committing a crime.

TASP test deadline drawing closer

by MEGAN CLARK
THE UNIVERSITY DAILY

Freshman Tech students will be unable to register for their spring semester courses unless they take the Texas Academic Skills Program test by September 18 or November 13.

"I have received notification that 1,678 regular students that are enrolled in Tech this fall have not taken the TASP test," Undergraduate Admissions Assistant Director Fred Sallee said.

Students registered for nine or more hours for the fall semester must take and pass all sections of the test by the end of semester before registering for spring classes, Sallee said.

The Texas Legislature in September of 1989 mandated that all college students are required by law to take and pass the test.

The TASP test examines students' math, English and writing skills.

The test is a measure of a student's readiness to do college level work, Sallee said.

Late registration for the fall testing dates ends September 8. The test's initial cost is $26. Additional late fees may be $20 or $39 depending on the date of late registration.

Emergency registration raises the cost of the test to $65, with test materials being shipped overnight.

English TA found dead in car, police suspect suicide

by JAYSON BALES
THE UNIVERSITY DAILY

A Texas Tech teaching assistant was found dead Wednesday, and Lubbock police said they believe his death was a suicide.

LPD officials said 42-year-old Brian Walker, who taught in the English department, shot himself in the mouth with a revolver sometime between 7 p.m. Tuesday and 6:30 a.m. Wednesday.

Walker's body was discovered in his car at his parents' home at 3703 66th St. by a woman who was staying in the house while his parents were visiting Turkey.

A neighbor noticed Walker's car parked in the driveway of his parents' home about 6:30 a.m. Wednesday. About 8 a.m., the house sitter walked out to the driveway and found Walker slumped over in the front seat of his car.

LPD and Emergency Medical Service officials found Walker "cold and stiff," holding a revolver in his left hand and locked inside of his car, according to the police report. Items found on Walker included several credit cards, a pocket mirror, and assorted handwritten notes.

LPD Detective Tal English said foul play was not suspected, but said it could not be ruled out.

Justice of the Peace Tom Head said it was puzzling that Walker had left an agenda for the next several days in his car. Head said an autopsy had been performed, but he said the official report to determine the cause of death would not be ready until Thursday or Friday.

"It looks like a suicide," Head said. "But, I have to wait for the report."

Tech's English Chairman Wendell Aycocock said Walker was a graduate student and a new teaching assistant for freshman English.

He said Walker's father is a former teacher in the Tech English department.

His parents have been contacted. Walker's only other surviving family member is a sister who lives in New Orleans. Police say Walker also had a girlfriend.

Pike members raise money for MDA on Labor Day

by JENNIFER GILBERT
THE UNIVERSITY DAILY

Pi Kappa Alpha fraternity pledges and actives collected money Labor Day for the Muscular Dystrophy Association.

Pikes could be seen at the corners of 50th Street and Slide Road, 34th Street and Quaker Avenue, Fourth Street and University Avenue and 50th Street and University Avenue.

"One hundred percent of these proceeds will go toward MDA," said Burke Barclay, a junior political science major from Fort Worth. "We're looking at about $3,600."

Chris Kutach, a junior management information systems major from Dallas, said, "MDA is one of our several philanthropies, and we have 50 active pledges here today to raise as much money as possible."

Barclay said, "This is an annual event and a joint effort with Pikefest to raise money for MDA."

Pikes and KLBK-channel 13 personnel answered telephones from 10 p.m., Saturday until 1 a.m., Sunday for the Jerry Lewis' Kids Telethon.

"We raised about $10,700," Barclay said.

The events were not attempts to alter any previous bad publicity that the fraternity has received, he said.

"This is an annual thing to help those who are less fortunate than ourselves," Barclay said.

Kutach said, "The money will hopefully go to compensate for research and buy walkers and necessary equipment."

Barclay said the money raised Monday will remain local.

"We feel obligated to the community of Lubbock to return the support they have given us," he said.

Corn or flour? Keep the tradition alive — keep the tortillas flying Corn or flour?

 It is the perennial question asked by Texas Tech fans returning to another football season and another year of tortilla tossing.

Apparently, the question remained unanswered Saturday as Red Raider fans threw tortillas of both varieties in an outpouring of school spirit rarely seen in the Hub City, barring national title celebrations.

Yes, the tossing of these West Texas Frisbies is alive and well in the 1993 season after various student spirit organization tried to squelch it last year.

As tacky as this food-throwing tradition may seem, it is one of few bastions of school spirit at Tech, a school that often has abandoned signs of student unity in the past.

The Red Raiders make claim on Midnight Raider, the Masked Rider and the ringing of the victory bells as traditions, but tortilla tossing remains as a unique symbol that separates Tech from other universities, much like the 12th man tradition serves as a constant reminder of our rivals in College Station.

That's right — tortilla tossing.

For the Tech fan who leaves the game as soon as Tech is assured of victory or defeat (usually by halftime), the tortilla is the answer.

These spirit symbols can be had at any local bakery for 99 cents if they are fresh. Day-old varieties cost even less.

The tortilla is portable, disposable and not prone to theft like other spirit items.

It even provides a tasty snack for fans who get the mid-second quarter munchies.

For the enviro-nuts it is biodegradable.

And it only comes with one rule of etiquette. Don't throw tortillas on members of the opposing team or their cheerleaders because people from outside of West Texas do not appreciate the quaint charm of the tortilla.

So as the tortilla-tossing tradition begins its second year, one question remains.

Family or career — choose one; you can't have both

KENDRA CASEY

An acquaintance from my hometown recently married to presumably a suitable man with whom she shares an equal partnership in matrimony.

It is the kind of arrangement I wouldn't one day mind having myself — I think.

The day before the ceremony, (and this account is by hearsay — as it goes in small-town gossip) she put in a full day at the office, leaving little time to prep the eve of the big day.

Much to the dismay of my mother, her mother and apparently the mothers of several other daughters, she had spent a good deal of the planning time prior to her wedding working rather than picking out dresses, flowers, cakes and the proper dye for the bridesmaids' shoes.

This is where the "I think" comes in.

If it were up to me — I would have done the same thing.

Merely being of the early 20s age bracket, I already have learned that career and family don't always go hand-in-hand despite what '70s feminist teaching might have tried to impose on us.

Undoubtedly, the women who walked the picket lines and fought the ERA battle won strides for their counterparts, and men should be glad they didn't have to do it.

What would most people be without the accomplishments of not just their jobs, but the careers that highlighted their dreams when they were young?

There is nothing to be envied about a person who for whatever reason has had to choose a job that was nothing more than a means to an end — a paycheck or a clean house.

In that same light, there is nothing to be envied in having to choose between career and family.

Man or woman, it would be a difficult decision to leave your chosen career, that which oftentimes is more of a passion than a job, for a spouse or children.

Where is the reward in that in a time when the divorce rate and the chance that your child will fall victim to violence or drug abuse are soaring?

Isn't it more satisfying to know that you could do something that would make a difference in your community, or nation or world — or even to just a small group of people including yourself?

I would think so.

Then there is that nagging voice of tradition in the back of my mind that tells me "everyone finds a mate and gets married and has children and lives happily ever after."

But, that just isn't so — all the time.

The economy makes it impossible to survive on one income in the '90s.

And, the Washington social watchdogs don't help, with each political faction pleading a different case: "Women should stay home and take care of house and home;" or "Sure, you can convince your husband that you're superwoman — the same one who brings home the bacon, fries it up in a pan and never let's him forget he's a man." (While he does what? Watch the kids spill grape juice on the carpet in front of the TV on which Monday night football is playing?) Or my favorite "Two people can share the responsibilities." (Once again, it's all too ideal).

It's about picking and choosing your future — take the traditional road or the one less traveled where either money or passion has driven men and women toward career goals and away from family goals.

Every generation has a heap of social dilemma to sort through — but perhaps this particular "Generation X" will learn where the family fits — or better yet where career fits.

After all, it has been said that the fall of the family has been the demise of nations.

Football fanfare One fan's look at Tech and traditions in the stands

DEAN RICHARD

With the football team off to a roaring start Saturday night, it was easy to succumb to the temptation of abandoning the team, as many did, by leaving the game early. To fight that urge, I found myself taking notes and making comments about the pomp and circumstance surrounding the game, assigning letter grades in a professorial attempt to call attention to matters of perceived inefficiencies.

Here are the results of my one-man survey, offered in the spirit of improving school pride.

Student Body
 Enthusiasm — (C+, Complacent) It was great during the first quarter, but complacent thereafter. I know, it was only Pacific, but too many times the only one cheering was the cheerleader on the microphone.

Clickers — (B+) Right on cue — every third down, just not loud enough.

Double "T" — (A) Cool

name for a cool horse. Too bad he can't run a full lap around the track because of all the obstructions.

Masked Rider — (A+, Awesome) Have you ever seen her riding Double "T" around campus? Very hip.

Goin' Band — (B) Geez, the halftime performance was, of course, excellent, but why couldn't the band exit the field playing the fight song?

Speaking of the fight song, it was only played nine times, once after each Tech score. That's it. The fanfare was played four times — once before each half, once after Tech's first defensive stand and once after a long pass completion. But after a Tech fumble recovery, there was no response from the band — none.

The problem with the fanfare is that it is too long and drawn out for most game situations. The fight song, on the other hand, instantly revs up the crowd — and the team.

So, why can't the band just strike up the fight song after every big play?

Also, with its current seating arrangement, the band is almost inaudible in the east stands, especially in the student section. If it is not possible to relocate the band, would it be feasible to point the instruments in different directions so that everyone behind the band can hear the music?

Overall
 Team — (B+, Bam! Bam Bam!! Bam Bam Bam!!!)
 Better get ready for the Huskers. Did you see the Nebraska score?
 We can't afford to have anymore scoreless fourth quarters.
 No more mister nice guys.
 The red jerseys looked great. It's good to be RED Raiders every now and then. Did you notice the new helmet style? No center stripe. I don't know, I kinda like that red stripe.

Scoreboard (B+) Would have been an A, but somehow "Black Attack" just seems inappropriate with the team wearing red. Otherwise, it didn't miss a tick.

Shuttle Service — (B) A welcome innovation that worked quite well, unless you needed to grab a seat in the student section. It needs to start about an hour earlier to accommodate students.

Campus Cops — (A) Did you see the officer hiking up the bleachers wearing his biking helmet? Kinda funky without the bike.

Attendance — (D, Deplorable) I still can't figure out what in the world is going on five or six Saturdays a year in Lubbock, Texas, to keep the stands from being full every game.

Bob Bockrath — (I, Incomplete) Time will tell. We'll be watching.

Well that's it.

A partial observer's subjective analysis of the first game in Tech's first modern-day Cotton Bowl season.

See y'all Oct. 2 And forget the tortillas. Bring cotton bolls — and lots of 'em.

Masked Rider gets new mount; mount gets new name

by JENNIFER GOOCH
THE UNIVERSITY DAILY

The name of Texas Tech's new mascot was revealed Saturday before Tech's first home football game, about six weeks after the horse was purchased to replace the ailing Midnight Raider.

Masked Rider Lisa Gilbreath changed reins from Midnight Raider, who served as Tech's mascot for six years, to Double "T" during a ceremony before the Tech/University of the Pacific game.

Double "T" is short for Teriyaki Tiger, the horse's pedigree name.

"Since it's really the symbol of the school and a symbol of his pedigree name, they really seemed to correlate — so we went for it," Masked Rider Committee Chairman Tom McGinnity said.

"When Lisa was going through appearances, people would offer lots of suggestions," he said. "I recorded all of them and then we went through them and narrowed it down."

McGinnity said the committee narrowed the selection to three names: Midnight Raider II, Black Bart and Double "T".

"We thought about naming it Midnight Raider II, but since it didn't come from the same ranch as MR we decided not to name it that," he said. "The horse's nickname was Black Bart, so we also thought about that. Finally, with the help of the donors, we decided on Double 'T'."

The 4-year-old black quarter horse gelding cost about $3,700 and was bought with donations from the Texas Tech University Health Sciences Center and the Department of Orthopaedic Surgery.

"The donors were a big part in deciding the name," McGinnity said. "Of course, the final decision was up to the committee. But, we really took their recommendations into consideration."

Double "T" was presented before the game to new Tech Athletic Director Bob Bockrath by Dr. Bernard Mittermeyer, vice president and provost of TTUHSC, and Dr. Eugene Dabezies, chairman of the department of orthopaedic surgery. Bockrath then presented the horse to Gilbreath.

During the ceremony, Midnight Raider officially was retired to a ranch in Gail under the care of 1991-92 Masked Rider Ralynn Key.

"MR was led onto the field by Student Association Mike Fietz," Gilbreath said. "They made a short speech about how he had served the university for six years and had to be retired because of degenerative bone disease. He was then presented to Dr. Lawless, and then he presented MR to Ralynn Key."

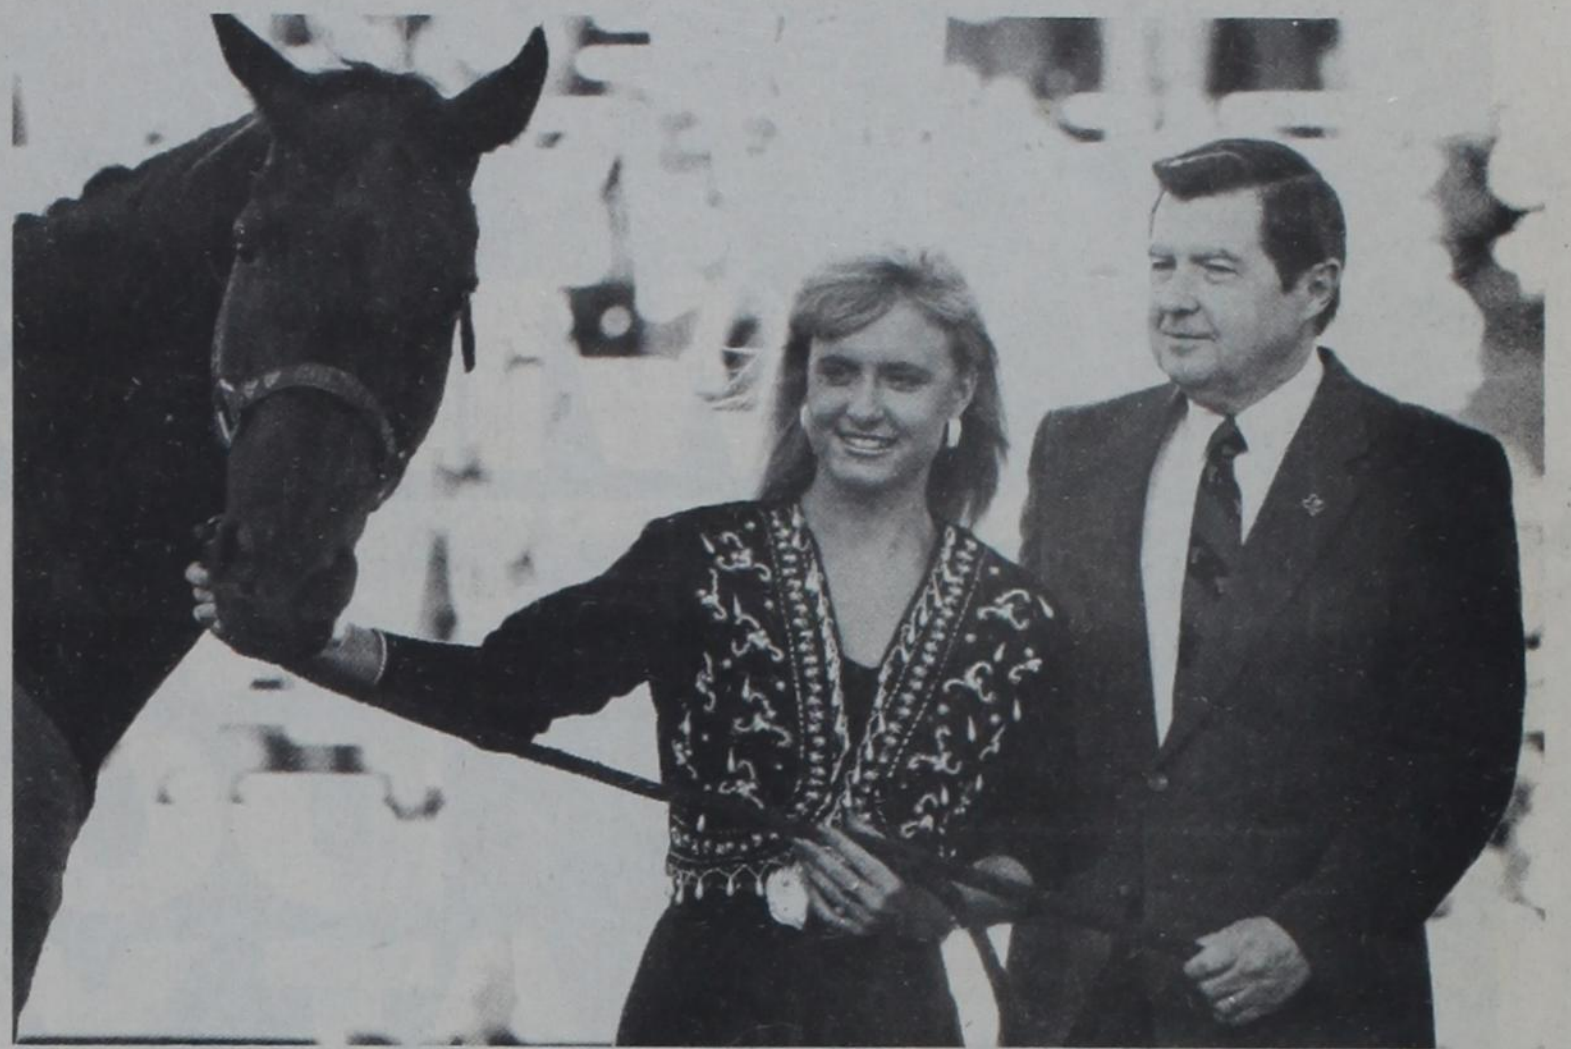

Midnight Raider received a standing ovation from Saturday's crowd when Key walked him around the football field one last time.

Masked Rider Committee member Michael Sommermeyer said during a previous interview with The University Daily, "We chose Ralynn because we knew that she'd care for the horse."

Gilbreath said Double "T" still is in training and is beginning to respond to her better.

"I can see a difference in the way he responds to me now, compared to how he did when we first got him," she said. "He still has a lot of training to go through. We've only had him for two months."

"I was cautious on the first run (during the football game), so I didn't run him as fast," Gilbreath said. "But after that, I thought I ran him full speed. I was kind of nervous, but he did real good."

New regents must participate in state training program

by MIKE HALL
THE UNIVERSITY DAILY

State mandated training programs soon will supplement Texas Tech's system of training newly appointed regents.

According to Texas Senate Bill 485, each new member of a higher education institution's governing board, such as a board of regents, will be required to attend a state training program within the first two years of service.

The state's two-day training program is required to include information sessions concerning:

- budget development and procedures,
- auditing procedures,
- enabling legislation for institutions of higher education,
- the role and authority of governing boards at an institution,
- policy development and
- ethics and conflict of interest laws.

The training is to be administered by members of the Texas Higher Education Coordinating Board, the attorney general's office, the comptroller's office, the auditor's office and the Texas Ethics Commission.

Jan Friese, the higher education coordinating board's assistant commissioner, said there has been no planning or action made concerning the bill.

"The staff is currently working to decide how the training will be structured, who will teach the sessions and when it will be held," Friese said. "This is a new initiative and we want to make sure we implement this properly so it will be a quality program."

Vice President for Administration Jim Brunjes said Tech already conducts a day-long orientation for new regents and said the state's program would be more general than Tech's.

"What the coordinating board does will be a bit more generic than our current system for training regents," he said. "We already do a sort of mini-orientation for new board members when they come on board. It is very important for them to get oriented to how an academic institution works."

"We need to inform them how the system runs, how it operates and what they are expected to do," Brunjes said.

He said Tech's orientation, which consists of a tour of the university and presentations by President Robert Lawless and the vice presidents, provides an opportunity for regents and university administrators to become acquainted.

Three regents appointed this year were Carl Noe, Edward Whitacre and Bernard Harris. Noe and Whitacre attended Tech's orientation in May. Harris is an astronaut and was in space at the time.

The newly appointed regents are subject to the state's new training law.

Dining halls offer cuisine from around the world

by MICHELLE ELIZARDO
THE UNIVERSITY DAILY

Tech dining hall cuisine might never make it into the top 10 places to eat in Lubbock, but most students think it is not half-bad.

Campus dining hall managers have tried to find ways to make dorm life and dining easier on students.

Theme-line menus are back this year, which many diners consider an advantage over dining halls at other colleges. "I'm a picky eater, and (Tech dining halls) usually have a great variety," said Amy Beckworth, a freshman theater major from Memphis.

The variety includes: a breakfast buffet at Wiggins; Oriental at Wall/Gates; Italian at Horn/Knapp; deli at Hulen/Clement; Mexican at Stangel/Murdough; and Southwest at Bledsoe/Gordon/Sneed.

Theme-lines are set up at different times. Students can Dial-A-Menu at 742-6368 to find out what is being served and the serving hour for all regular and theme-line dining halls.

"Compared to the food I have eaten at other schools, it is pretty good here," said Allison Turner, a junior music major from Kingwood.

James Burkhalter, director of housing and dining, said some students are not aware that they can eat in the dining hall of their choice.

"Some students don't know it, but they can eat in any dining hall they choose, not just the one they live in," he said.

Trish Thornberry, a freshman mass communications major from Lubbock, dines at a different dining hall than the one she lives in because, "The atmosphere in smaller halls is better and more quiet."

Burkhalter said housing and dining tries to respond to requests from students.

"We have had some good responses from students who have wanted changes, and we try to meet as many as we can through our menu committee comprised of students," he said.

"Without student comment, we don't know if any changes need to be made. That is why there are comment cards set up at all dining halls," he said.

If any student should miss a meal in their hall, the dorms are set up to open at different times so there is usually something open, Burkhalter said.

"It's not the best food I have ever eaten, but it's all right," said Kristen Helgert, a junior triple major from Irving.

Jason Cargill, a sophomore music major from Weatherford, finds amusement in dining hall fare.

"It's always a mystery, and fun to look forward to," Cargill said.

Culture comes to UC through foreign film series

by LARA M. CAMPBELL
THE UNIVERSITY DAILY

For those wishing to go beyond the marketing frenzy that was called summer movies, Texas Tech's foreign film series may offer a refreshing change.

Texas Tech University Cultural Events will bring six foreign and independent films to the University Center this year.

The films include the true story of a German Jew fighting to hide his true identity in a Hitler youth academy, a 19-year-old Chinese girl who becomes entangled in the power struggle of becoming the favorite of her "master's" four wives and a documentary of Stephen Hawking's thoughts on how the universe originated and the progression of his life.

"(The film festival) shows different cultures to students that they might not get to see or know about otherwise," said Vicki Williamson, cultural programs assistant.

In the past, UC Programs has sponsored different movies, but this is the first year UC Cultural Activities has offered a series.

"Our goal is to educate through entertainment," Williamson said.

"Taxi Blues" will be the first film, showing Sept. 14.

It is a Russian film about a frustrated, on-the-edge taxi driver who gets involved with a flaky jazz musician.

Because they were not filmed in English, several of the films will have subtitles.

"Tilai," showing on Oct. 12, is in the Moor language and is about honor and family ties.

In this film, a young man returns home to discover that his fiancée married his father.

"One of the reasons we chose these movies is because the lifestyles are very different than what most Americans are used to seeing," Williamson said.

Other films to be shown are "A Brief History of Time," "Daughters of the Dust," "Europa, Europa" and "Raise the Red Lantern."

Chase to join ranks of late nighters with comedy-talk show

Fox re-enters late night arena with premiere

by LARA M. CAMPBELL
THE UNIVERSITY DAILY

Whoopi Goldberg, Bob Costas, Dennis Miller and Joan Rivers are among the ranks of celebrities who have tried to make it in the late night talk show jungle.

Now Chevy Chase will be swinging in to join them.

"The Chevy Chase Show" will premiere today on KJTV-34 at 10 p.m.

Chase's lineup of guests will include people from the fields of entertainment, music, sports, literature and politics.

In Lubbock, the hour-long show will take the place of "Cheers" and "Murphy Brown."

"Murphy Brown" will move to 11 p.m. and "Cheers" will no longer air.

"The Arsenio Hall Show" will move to midnight.

"We're excited about (the show) because Fox has been needing to get into late night for a while," said Dawndi Higgins, promotion coordinator at KJTV-34.

Like "The Arsenio Hall Show," Chase's show will target a young adult audience.

"As the primary viewing source of young adults, Fox is now well-positioned to promote this show to that audience," said Jamie Kellner, president of Fox Broadcasting Company.

Chase's guests for the first show will be Goldie Hawn and Whoopi Goldberg.

The show will be taped at the soon to be renamed Chevy Chase Theatre, located on Sunset Boulevard in Hollywood.

Chase will portray a variety of characters, and a standard feature of the show will be Nightly News Update segments satirizing events of the day.

Chase, a pianist, will occasionally sit in with Tom Scott and the band, as well.

A native New Yorker, Chase gained national exposure when he was hired by producer Lorne Michaels as a writer for "Saturday Night Live."

He later joined the cast and won two Emmys for his work on the show.

He also won a third Emmy for writing "The Paul Simon Special."

"From his early days at 'Saturday Night Live' through his successful film career as the star of the 'Vacation' series and his other movies, Chevy Chase is a major star whose brand of humor is perfect for the late night audience," said Lucie Salhany, chairman of Twentieth Television.

"He is a rare and gifted performer who can say more with a subtle look than most comedians can with an entire performance."

Executives at Fox said they have wanted to expand their late night programming.

"Returning to the late night arena has always been a priority for Fox," Kellner said.

"We've been looking for the right talent and show format to re-enter (late night talk shows). We think we've found both with the remarkable talent of Chevy Chase and this unique comedy-talk show," she said.

In addition to hosting his own talk show, Chase will produce and develop television and film projects with Twentieth Television for Fox.

The agreement calls for Chase to develop and produce network shows for Twentieth Television under a multi-year pact, and to star in a Twentieth Century Fox movie to be determined in the future.

Tech declaws Tigers with 55-7 victory in season opener

by LEN HAYWARD
THE UNIVERSITY DAILY

Before Saturday's game against Pacific, coach Spike Dykes said Texas Tech had to play well to win its season opener.

Tech played well and then some, rolling to a 55-7 victory over the Tigers in front of 29,164 at Jones Stadium.

The Red Raiders scored on their first three possessions, with two touchdowns and a field goal during the first quarter.

"It's nice to get a win in the first game," Dykes said. "We were apprehensive and made a few mistakes but we played well enough to overcome those mistakes."

This was Tech's most lopsided season-opening victory since 1927, when Tech defeated Panhandle 62-0.

One of the few areas where the Raiders showed a need for improvement was in the penalty department where Tech was flagged for 16 infractions for 134

Hall, Morris lead Tech offense to 587 total yards yards. But the Tech defense held the Tigers to only 229 yards total offense — 133 yards on the ground.

"It was a great defensive effort," free safety Dewayne Bryant said. "I think we got some respect back and the front four did a great job."

On Pacific's first two possessions, the Tigers could only muster up -7 total yards, with one tackle for loss and one quarterback sack.

"The defense showed a lot of hustle," Dykes said. "They played hard and got the season off to a great start."

During the first quarter the Raiders held the Tigers to just 63 total yards.

Byron "Bam" Morris, Robert Hall and Lloyd Hill led the Tech offense to 587 yards total offense, with Hall completing 20 of 30 passes for 305 yards.

Morris gained 140 yards on the ground, and he attributed his success to the play of the offensive line.

Stats, Notes page 12

"I couldn't ask for more from the offensive line," Morris said after his seventh game rushing for more than 100 yards. "We still need to get better and overcome our mistakes for next week. It was just a great overall offensive effort tonight."

Tech kicker Jon Davis began the rout with the longest field goal of his career, booting a 50-yarder with 12:29 left in the first quarter.

After Tech jumped to a quick 17-0 lead, the Tigers' came back to cut the lead to 10 after quarterback Dave Henigan ran in from three yards out making the score 17-7.

The Raiders responded in the second quarter by driving from their own 41, capped off by a seven-yard pass to Byron Myles from Hall, widening the score to 24-7.

"We wanted to get a lot of people out there making plays," Hall said. "We were just happy to play somebody else besides our defense. We executed well tonight."

Hall had three touchdown passes — the sixth time in his career he has thrown for more than 300 yards in a game.

The last score of the game came with 50 seconds left in the third quarter as Larry Starr ran the ball in from one yard out making the score 55-7.

"There a not a lot of people who are going to stop Texas Tech," Pacific coach Chuck Shelton said. "This is a pretty potent offense, but I thought we'd do a better job."

Hill only caught one pass in the first quarter but came back in the second quarter to catch five passes including one for a touchdown. Hill's only touchdown of the game came in the second quarter when he took the ball away from Tiger cornerback Duane Thomas with 2:47 left in the half. Hill's reception gave Tech a 31-7 advantage.

Sukova knocks off Navratilova

NEW YORK (AP) — The sad look in Martina Navratilova's eyes, the weak, final wave to the crowd, the disgust in her voice, all told the story U.S. Open fans hated to hear.

Suddenly, she was gone in the round of 16 Monday, beaten by Helena Sukova again at a crucial moment in her career.

This time, Sukova won 7-5, 6-4, her long arms reaching out to swat returns that Navratilova was a bit too slow to catch. Once before, Sukova was there to stop Navratilova's bid for a Grand Slam, in 1984 at the Australian Open, and end her 74-match winning streak.

Navratilova, a month shy of 37, was the oldest player in the Open and she gave it more life than anyone.

Fans packed her matches, cheered for her almost the way they cheered Jimmy Connors when he made his final charges at 39 and 40. They wanted her to win a fifth Open, show everyone she wasn't too old, too slow to do it again.

In truth, she was. She couldn't get to the net quickly enough to pick up Sukova's returns.

She couldn't volley with the agility and sharpness she had for so many years. She hit too many shots just a tad wide or long, and she couldn't put pressure on Sukova's serves.

"If I play well, I win easily. If I'm a little off it's always a struggle," Navratilova said. "There wasn't any luck for me today. She made some great shots and I didn't."

Mackovic confident Texas can overcome mistakes

AUSTIN (AP) — Texas football coach John Mackovic says he's pretty sure his team can eliminate the mistakes it made on offense during Saturday's 36-14 loss at Colorado.

A lack of qualified and healthy personnel could preclude a quick fix for a defense that yielded 530 yards, however.

The Longhorns have two weeks to work, though. Their next game is Sept. 18 at home against No. 6 Syracuse.

The Longhorns gained 508 yards at Colorado, including 347 from the arm of redshirt freshman quarterback Shea Morenz. But Morenz, making his first start for Texas, threw four interceptions and lost a fumble, accounting for five of the Longhorns' six turnovers.

"To be fair, for a redshirt freshman (starting) his first game against a very good team, I thought he did well," Mackovic said Monday. "I don't know if I could have asked him to play much better. I think he could have prevented some of those interceptions, but I don't think some other guys could have made some of those completions. Shea will improve his reads."

Morenz hit on 23 of 42 passes, one completion short of the school record set last season by Peter Gardere against Southern Methodist. Morenz's 347 yards passing were 12 fewer than Todd Dodge's Texas record set in 1985 against Rice.

Sophomore wide receivers Lovell Pinkney and Mike Adams combined for 10 receptions and 239 yards.

Cornerback Chris Hudson intercepted two passes for Colorado, returning one 21 yards for a touchdown. Mackovic said Hudson ran with the Longhorn receivers and then slipped underneath to make the interceptions, a tight brand of coverage he told Morenz about during preparations for the game. "But you are talking about a redshirt freshman quarterback," Mackovic said. "He's a guy getting thousands of pieces of information."

Texas might be without starting left tackle Troy Riemer against Syracuse. Riemer is questionable with a dislocated toe.

As for the defense, Texas had only one sack, by freshman Tony Brackens, and missed numerous tackles.

Starting middle linebacker Winfred Tubbs, a preseason all-American candidate who missed most of training camp after cutting a tendon in his wrist while opening a window, was in for 17 plays Saturday. Mackovic said Tubbs might start against Syracuse. Chris Rapp, who started in place of Tubbs, was credited with one tackle. Even if Tubbs can play more, his ability to make tackles might be restricted by a heavily wrapped splint he wears.

Oilers try to regroup after loss to Saints

HOUSTON (AP) — It was another game, another embarrassment for the Houston Oilers, who started this season as they ended last season, with a humbling loss.

Embarrassment was a word tossed around frequently in the aftermath of Sunday night's 33-21 loss to the New Orleans Saints although it lacked the drama of the Oilers' 41-38 overtime playoff defeat to Buffalo.

Oilers players retaliated with scuffles of frustration, coach Jack Pardee said Monday.

"They were frustrated and embarrassed and trying to make plays," Pardee said. "They didn't want to take it and I'm glad to see that."

If the Oilers are mad at their performance, they could turn it on themselves for coughing up five turnovers and falling victim to the aggressive New Orleans defense.

"They weren't really blitzing us, they were bringing five guys and dropping off six," Pardee said. "I'm impressed that we played hard. We just had too many mental errors on defense. They were flying to the ball."

Warren Moon was sacked three times and eventually left the game with bruised ribs in the fourth quarter. Pardee isn't sure if he'll revamp the already shuffled offensive line.

"All of those guys played well but we took turns making mistakes," Pardee said.

"I can't find a guy who didn't play well but they all made mistakes too."

That's what's been happening to the Oilers over the years, in their quest to become more than just a team that always makes the playoffs.

"That's the story with this offense," center Bruce Matthews said.

"Nobody ever really stops us. We stop ourselves. You can talk yourself into circles sometimes. The bottom line is you have to make the plays and we didn't."

Wide receiver Haywood Jeffires, who caught a touchdown pass on the Oilers' first drive, had a more drastic suggestion.

"We were horrible," he said. "We can't fire all of us because we wouldn't have a team, but they should at least fine us. The way I look at it, all the individuals, the high paid guys, didn't do a damn thing."

The Oilers' new 46 defense was taken on and conquered by Saints quarterback Wade Wilson, who was able to complete 16 of 25 passes for 206 yards. The Oilers' next task is even greater.

They play host to Montana and quarterback Joe Montana in their home opener on Sunday.

Tech ups record to 3-0 after weekend sweep of La. Tech

by TARA HEARLIHY
THE UNIVERSITY DAILY

The Texas Tech women's volleyball team used this weekend to expand on team experience.

The Red Raiders (3-0) beat Louisiana Tech in the Student Recreation Center Friday 15-13, 15-2, 15-4 and Saturday 16-14, 8-15, 15-7, and 15-5.

"This gave us a chance to change up our players," coach Mike Jones said.

"We were able to give a lot of players time. We put people in off of the bench and they were able to still play smoothly. It was good to get our feet wet."

All but one player saw action against Louisiana Tech.

"I was very pleased with the bench. They came out and helped in key situations," Jones said.

Jones said he also was pleased with the team's overall performance during the two-match weekend.

"We were not focused at first, but we adjusted," he said. "We told them to concentrate more on themselves and not to worry. Even though we switched players out, they were able to keep their heads in the game."

Five players had career highs in the two matches against Louisiana Tech.

Senior Chris Fehrle-Zelaya, the Whataburger/Texas Tech player of the Week, had a career-best of 27 kills Saturday to tie the 1987 school record set by former Raider Becky Boxwell. She also tied the mark last Wednesday against Oklahoma.

Junior setter Ginger Carter had 65 assists in Saturday's match, which was her career high, but missed the school record by five assists.

Sophomores Diane Owens and Jennifer Cohn both had career highs in two areas.

Owens had 14 kills and 16 digs, while Cohn had 15 kills and 22 digs.

In Friday night's first game, the Raiders had three service errors in a row, but the Raiders also had eight aces in the match.

"We do have good servers," Jones said.

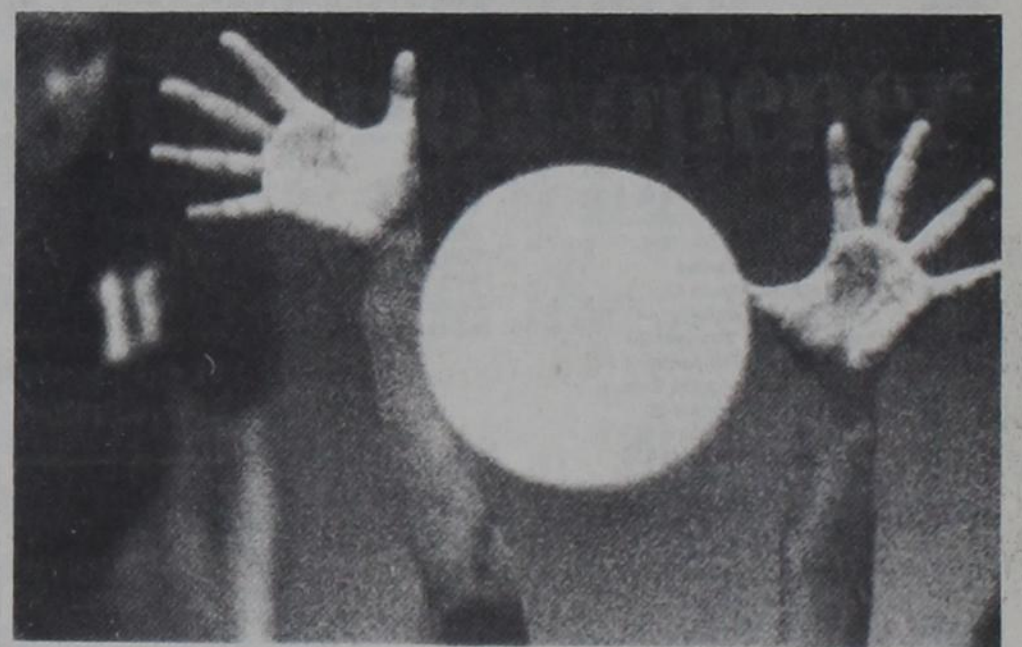

"We have to keep going despite game pressure. Our serves will have to get better."

This weekend Tech had the best and the worst amount of kills this season against Louisiana Tech.

Friday, the Raiders had 38 kills, the least amount this season, but on Saturday they had 75 kills.

Tech is seven matches away from having 500 wins. The school record is 493-286-6 starting in 1975.

Wednesday, the Raiders take on the University of Texas-Arlington in the Rec Center at 7 p.m. Then this weekend Tech will play in their first tournament of the year at the Gonzaga Tournament in Spokane, Wash.

Kirkland-Gerlich wins state award

Former Texas Tech basketball All-American Krista Kirkland-Gerlich was one of 51 state winners in the NCAA Woman of the Year award program, the NCAA announced Friday.

Kirkland-Gerlich was selected as Tech's nominee, as the 51 winners were selected from 497 total nominees across the nation.

The institutions of the 51 state winners will receive a $5,000 award from Champion sporting goods in the nominee's honor.

Kirkland-Gerlich was selected to the All-Southwest Conference team three times during her four-year career at Tech, while being named as an honorable mention All-American by the U.S. Basketball Writers Association.

A panel of national media representatives and sports people will select the 10 finalists. Institutions of the 10 finalists will receive an additional $5,000. The finalists will be recognized in November during an awards presentation in Washington, D.C., where the 1993 NCAA Woman of the Year will be announced.

Kirkland-Gerlich is the head girls basketball coach at Lockney High School, and is Tech's sixth all-time leading scorer.

Former Raider making most of chance in minors

by TARA HEARLIHY THE UNIVERSITY DAILY

On June 2, a dream came true for one of Texas Tech's former baseball players.

Last season's center fielder Mike Kinney was drafted in the 20th round in baseball's amateur draft by the Los Angeles Dodgers.

"I was pretty pleased to hear from the Dodgers," Kinney said from Great Falls, Mont., last week. "I was very nervous when I did not get drafted after the first day. The Dodgers called me that night and I was drafted on the second day. I have always wanted to play professional ball. I think anyone who has played wants to."

The Dodgers were not the only team looking at Kinney. The Cleveland Indians and the Seattle Mariners also had an interest in him.

"I heard from the Dodgers a month before the draft and then I did not hear anything from them until after the first day of the draft," Kinney said.

Kinney has been playing in the short season rookie league for the Dodgers all summer and said he has not had a problem playing in the minors.

"Using wooden bats has not been a problem," he said. "The pitching is not much different from Division I pitching. In college, you might have a team whose pitching is not as strong, but here every team has good pitching. Once you get into A and AA ball it does get harder."

Kinney has played center field and some left field for his team.

Baseball coach Larry Hays says he knew Kinney would get drafted.

"The key to Mike Kinney is his speed and his work ethic," Hays said.

"He is one of the hardest workers we have ever had. He could flat run."

Hays says that playing for Tech did help give Kinney the opportunity to play in the minors. "The fact that he did play at the college level and played in the Southwest Conference helped him," Hays said.

"The schedule that we played and the traveling we did, helped prepare him."

Kinney came to Tech hoping to play football.

"He was redshirted in baseball his freshman year and he played football for a year, but I think he could see his future was in baseball," Hays said.

After moving to Great Falls, Kinney moved in with a local family.

"I pay them rent every month and pay for my own food," he said. "This way I don't have to worry about a house. We're out of town a lot so most of the time I am not here."

Kinney said some of his days begin at about 3 p.m. when he arrives at the ball park for extra hitting practice. At 3:45, the team stretches and then batting practice lasts for an hour. The games begin at seven and last for about three hours.

Today, Kinney will return to Tech to begin finishing his college career.

"It was a part of my contract that they would pay for me to finish my last two semesters in the off season," Kinney said.

Kinney was not the only player to leave Tech for the minors.

The Raiders also had two other players drafted after last season.

"Travis Driskill is now playing for the Cleveland Indians and Trey Forkeway is playing in the Northern League," Hays said.

Matt Brunson, who signed for the Red Raiders earlier this year, was the Detroit Tigers first pick in the draft.

Hays said, "The most prominent player we had was Brunson from Denver who signed with the Tigers for $750,000. Matt Miller, a left-handed pitcher from Lubbock turned down something like $250,000. We had about four or five others we could have easily lost before school started."

Chang, Sampras matchup rekindles memories of first meeting

NEW YORK (AP) — Flash back 14 years: Little Pete Sampras and Michael Chang are facing each other across a net for the first time. They're about 7 years old, toting big rackets they need both hands to swing.

Chang is taller, believe it or not, and they are playing in a tournament on a school court in Poway, Calif., near San Diego.

Jump ahead to Monday: It is the U.S. Open and the tall, sturdy Sampras is beating Thomas Enqvist 6-4, 6-4, 7-6 (7-4) to set up a quarterfinal match against the diminutive but relentless Chang, who beats Wayne Ferreira 6-4, 6-3, 6-4.

"It is pretty amazing where we have come from and now where we are," Sampras says.

"He is the youngest French Open winner. I am the youngest U.S. Open winner. There are pretty interesting memories to go back to," Sampras said.

Also reaching the quarters was Alexander Volkov, a 6-2, 7-6 (7-2), 6-1 winner over Chuck Adams.

Among the women, No. 2 Arantxa Sanchez Vicario beat No. 14 Nathalie Tauziat 6-4, 6-3, and Natalia Zvereva beat the "lucky loser" from qualifying, Maria Jose Gaidano, to advance to the quarters. Chang and Sampras played each other all the way through the juniors, and then eight matches as professionals, Chang winning six of those. "When we were younger, Pete was pretty much winning the majority of

Raider defense overcomes mistakes for strong game

by JAMES DAVID
THE UNIVERSITY DAILY

If Texas Tech fans had any doubts about Tech's new defensive scheme, Saturday's performance against Pacific should alleviate some fears.

The Red Raiders turned in their best defensive performance since last season's game against Southern Methodist, giving up only 229 yards in total offense.

The only problem Pacific's offense could generate for the Raiders was short swing passes in the first half.

"They started doing it (flare passes) against the second defense, they brought us (the first-team defense) back in and we went to man-to-man coverage and were able to stop it," starting free safety Dewayne Bryant said.

Bryant said he recognized the problem and recommended to secondary coach Dean Campbell to run their new 'blitz package' against Pacific.

"Once we were able to keep the pressure on their quarterback, he was just running around for his life, looking for a place to lay down," Bryant said.

Middlelinebacker Zach Thomas said the front four of the defense dominated the line of scrimmage the entire game.

Although only three sacks were registered by the defense, the pressure on Pacific quarterback Dave Henigan was relentless and the Raiders forced him to throw the ball away numerous times.

"Our defensive line man-handled them today," Thomas said.

"They were just tearing them up. I love our new defense, it's totally different than last year. It's more of an attack defense."

"The secondary didn't really have to do much tonight," Bryant said. "All we did was sit back and cover and watch our front four chase the quarterback," he said.

Thomas said Tech's defense isn't intimidated by facing Nebraska this week.

"We can't let them (intimidate us)," he said. "People get it in their head that 'it's Nebraska' and before you know it they're running right over you."

Bryant said he wants to prove that the Tech defense can play with a top 10 team.

"Our defense showed a lot of hustle tonight," coach Spike Dykes said. "They really played hard and got our season off to a good start."

The Raiders sustained one injury in Saturday's game. Starting defensive end William Ritter sprained his left ankle and is questionable for the Nebraska game.

SWC Notes

Joe leads Bears past Bulldogs

DALLAS (AP) — Simultaneous Saturday wasn't a total bust for the Southwest Conference, thanks to Baylor quarterback J.J. Joe.

Not since Sept. 21, 1968, had every SWC team opened the season on the same day.

With five home contests, four telecasts — including fifth-ranked Texas A&M's matchup with LSU — and three games against Top 25 teams, the SWC had a shot at instantly restoring its battered national image.

It almost didn't happen. Texas A&M and Texas Tech won big as expected.

But Rice was routed by Ohio State. Houston got blown out by Southern Cal. Colorado drubbed Texas. Oklahoma routed TCU, and SMU came up short against Arkansas.

Baylor, however, came back from a 20-0 deficit to stun No. 25 Fresno State 42-39 in Waco.

Joe's 65-yard touchdown pass to Marvin Callies with 1:59 to play capped the comeback, making Chuck Reedy's coaching debut a success.

"We had worked so hard and put so much blood, sweat and tears into it that we just refused to lose," Reedy said. "I couldn't be prouder."

And the SWC couldn't be happier that at least one league underdog won.

Rice coach apologizes for poor television appearance

At Columbus, Rice coach Fred Goldsmith said he felt badly for his team after its 34-7 loss to 18th-ranked Ohio State, and for the first national TV audience to see the Owls since 1954.

"I'm real disappointed in our performance because I'm sure we bored the dickens out of that TV audience," Goldsmith said. "I feel sorry for those ESPN announcers."

It reached the point where one of the biggest roars from an Ohio Stadium crowd of 89,040 came when a squirrel ran onto the field during the fourth quarter.

They didn't even get that in Los Angeles, where Rob Johnson threw four first-half touchdowns, three to Johnnie Morton, and Southern California ruined Kim Helton's Cougars coaching debut with a 49-7 thrashing of Houston.

Giants defeat Pirates 4-1

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — Scott Sanderson pitched six shutout innings Monday in San Francisco's 4-1 victory over the Pittsburgh Pirates as the Giants returned home trying to hold on in the NL West.

The Giants widened their lead to three games over Atlanta, which was to play later Monday at Los Angeles, and sent the Pirates to their fifth straight loss.

Sanderson (3-1), who has won his last three starts with the Giants after 10 straight losses, mostly with California, retired 12 of the 13 batters after the second inning. He allowed two hits, struck out four and walked one.

Rod Beck pitched the ninth for his 41st save.

The Pirates didn't get a run until the seventh, when Al Martin doubled off Dave Burba and scored on Kevin Young's pinch-hitsingle.
