Government tries to put nutrition back in school lunches

WASHINGTON (AP) — It can't threaten to cut allowances, suspend TV privileges, or even to hold back a gooey dessert. The government's trying to get youngsters to eat more fresh fruits and vegetables.

The Agriculture Department said Tuesday it will double the amount of fresh produce available in 25 million school lunches daily. It also plans to expand the variety. Experiments with lower-fat meats and cheeses also are in the works.

Consumer advocates applauded the decision, but said authorities need to do more, like cutting pesticide levels in foods and using promotional methods, like cafeteria videos, to "bombard" youngsters with the benefits of eating right.

The change is hardly radical, since fresh fruits and vegetables now account for only about 2 percent of the commodities supplied by the government to the school lunch programs. The Agriculture Department supplies about 17 percent of the total food needs of 92,000 schools.

STATE

Texas schools lagging, despite funding increase

WASHINGTON (AP) — Despite a 73 percent increase in public school spending in the past 20 years, Texas taxpayers aren't getting more bang for their education buck, says a new report card on American schools.

Average SAT scores in Texas dropped 4 percent from 1972 to 1993, the National Center for Education Information said in a national report prepared for the American Legislative Exchange Council and Empower America.

ALEC is a private, bipartisan group of state legislators. Empower America is a conservative think tank headed by former Education Secretary William Bennett.

"You don't spend your way to education achievement," Bennett said.

While Texas spent an average of $4,831 per pupil last year — up from the $2,797 spent 20 years ago when adjusted for inflation — the increased spending hasn't resulted in significant improvements in student performance, the study said.

The Texas trends were mirrored nationwide, where education spending was up 62 percent without corresponding increases in college entrance examination scores, high school graduation rates and 8th grade math proficiency scores.

Texas ranked 37th last year in per pupil expenditures, spending on average $4,831 per pupil compared to the $5,598 national average.

When ranked by Scholastic Aptitude Test scores, Texas was 42nd among states and the District of Columbia this year — with a combined 885 score compared to a national average of 902.

City Council approves budget

New alcohol rule passes

by JAYSON BALES
THE UNIVERSITY DAILY

Lubbock City Council members Thursday approved the city budget and tax rate for the 1993-94 fiscal year, along with a controversial ordinance allowing for the expanded sale of alcoholic beverages at city parks.

The new city budget and tax rate were approved unanimously by council members. Ordinance No. 9641, which relates to the sale and consumption of alcoholic beverages at park facilities, was debated during the meeting before being approved six votes to one.

Jimmie Steed, founder of Lubbock's chapter of Mothers Against Drunk Driving, said allowing the sale of alcohol at city parks would be a disaster.

"The last one (concert) I attended was a disaster," Steed said. "Alcohol was allowed to be brought in. Drunks were all around me."

Sharon Kohout, a member of Lubbock's Substance Abuse Prevention Partnership, said, "Turning a public park into a public bar for teens is not in the best interest of our city."

Lubbock Substance Abuse Task Force member Mark Punzo said council members were sending young people the wrong message by allowing the sale and consumption of alcoholic beverages in city parks.

"My kids saw hypocrisy," Punzo said. "They laughed (at the city council)."

Lubbock citizen Don Caldwell spoke in favor of the ordinance and said the sale of alcohol will help the city continue to expand and grow.

Lubbock Parks and Recreation Director Lee Osborn said alcohol sales will be monitored at park facilities and underage drinking will not be tolerated.

Council members also adopted a resolution allowing Langston to establish an agreement with the South Plains Broadcasting Company for a concert at Buddy Holly Park. The concert, scheduled for Sept. 18, is sponsored by radio station Z102.

The sale and consumption of alcoholic beverages will be allowed at the park.

Z102 Program Director Tom Collins said the concert at Buddy Holly Park is a separate issue from the sale and consumption of alcohol at park facilities.

The City of Lubbock is not co-sponsoring the concert, Langston said. Draft beer will be sold at the concert to legal-age drinkers and people will be allowed to purchase two beers at a time. Portions of all sales at the concert will go to Lubbock.

Davidson switches parties

by MIKE HALL
THE UNIVERSITY DAILY

Lubbock County Clerk Ann Davidson announced Thursday her intent to run for re-election, but said she is changing her affiliation to the Republican Party.

Davidson, who has served as county clerk since May 1984, said her political party change was because of the changing nature of the Democratic Party.

"Having been a conservative Democrat in the past, I find that the Democratic Party no longer coincides with my conservative views," she said. "I feel it is time for me to become affiliated with a party that is more aligned with my concept of government."

Lubbock County Republican Party Chairman Scott Mann said the Republican Party is honored to have Davidson align herself with the GOP.

"I see this as a victory, particularly with an office holder of that caliber," Mann said. "We welcome her and pledge our support to her as an incumbent Republican."

"While I did approach her concerning the switch, she had already made up her mind," he said.

Mann said he attributed Davidson's switch to the integrity of local Republican office holders and the increasingly liberal nature of the Democratic Party.

"People who consider themselves mainstream, like Ann, stand for fiscally conservative government and just can't identify with the Democratic Party nationally," Mann said. "Her philosophies have always been conservative, and the Democratic Party left her."

Mann said the Clinton administration's tax increases before budget cuts and the concentration on special interest group issues are examples of the changing nature of the Democratic Party.

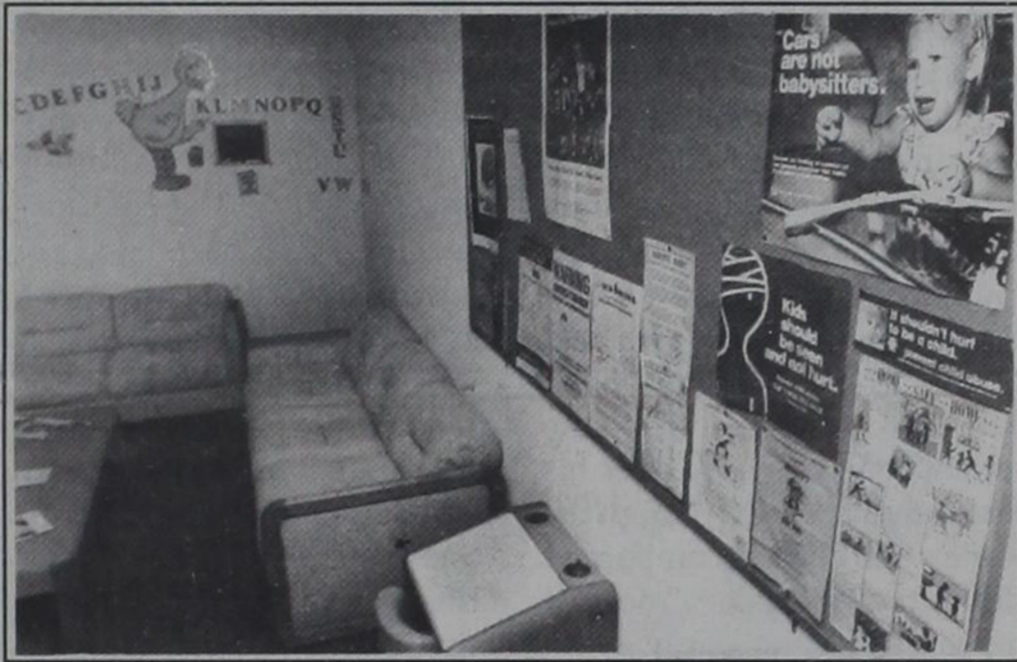

"I wouldn't be surprised to see a few more who feel like Ann continue the change-over," Mann said.

Davidson said the administration of the county clerk's office would be unaffected by the affiliation change.

"I have and will continue to administer my office in a non-partisan manner," she said.

She said she wants to provide quality service to the Lubbock County citizens.

"We are constantly making changes to provide a more efficient office that can provide first-quality service," she said.

American helicopters open fire on Somalis

MOGADISHU, Somalia (AP) — American Cobra Helicopters fired on Somali women and children Thursday in what the United Nations claimed was a "last-resort" effort to keep them from killing peacekeepers.

Nearby residents said the street was littered with the bodies of as many as 100 Somalis. A U.N. spokesman said a Pakistani soldier was killed and three Americans and two Pakistanis were injured.

The peacekeepers had come under fire from heavy weapons by Somali militiamen and were trying to withdraw when women and children joined in the attack with grenades and small arms, said Maj. David Stockwell.

Stockwell, the chief U.N. military spokesman, initially said a mob of women and children was swarming over the U.N. vehicles when the helicopters fired on them with 20mm cannons.

Later, he said the women and children had joined militiamen in attacking the soldiers from behind walls lining the route of their withdrawal and were clambering over roadblocks in their way.

"The women and children were combatants," Stockwell said.

"When the helicopters came in they shot at the gunmen behind the walls, and the women and children who were actively engaged as combatants as well," Stockwell said.

"Whoever was behind the walls was shot at."

"There were some people swarming on the roadblocks, but not directly on the vehicles ... and the helicopters shot down the middle of the road to persuade people to leave," Stockwell said.

The incident was sure to fire the debate in the U.S. Congress over American involvement in Somalia and to add fuel to the arguments of some U.N. members that the United Nations has lost sight of its humanitarian mission in the country.

Stockwell blamed the attack on the forces of fugitive warlord Mohamed Farrah Aidid, wanted by the United Nations for a series of assaults that have killed 48 peacekeepers and wounded more than 175 since May.

Operators give numbers, recipes

by JENNIFER GOOCH
THE UNIVERSITY DAILY

"Texas Tech operator, may I help you?"

Donna Foust, a Tech operator for 11 years, said it is not unusual for her to say that phrase at least 750 times a day.

She said she can take 900 to 1,100 calls during one eight-hour shift on a busy day.

Tech's operators are nameless, faceless voices that most students, faculty and staff members hear at least once during their time at Tech.

"I have had all sorts of different people call me here," Foust said. "Some of the callers can really throw you for a loop."

Even freshmen that don't know how to cook have called asking, "What do I add to this?" or they ask about a recipe or something.

One part-time and eight full-time operators work in shifts 24 hours a day answering phone calls and giving out Tech phone listings.

All calls come through a computerized PBX system and each operator wears a headset to keep their hands free.

"Our whole system is computerized," Centrex Supervisor B.J. Melrath said. "We do, however, have a manual backup log in case of emergencies."

Bobbie Chancler came to Tech as an operator 26 years ago after working at General Telephone Co. in Littlefield.

"I thought when I came I'd just work for a year or so because they just needed help so badly," she said. "It's 26 years later and I'm still here."

Chancler said she frequently gets unusual calls, from hang-ups to bomb threats.

"I get a call like this and I don't know if they're serious or not," she said.

"But then I start to think about all the kids that can be hurt out there somewhere so I report it to the police."

"You'd think that after 30 years in the telephone business I could remain calm."

Joyce King, a Tech operator for 10 years, said it can be frustrating when some of her callers expect her to know everyone on campus personally.

"I had one person call one time and say, 'Oh you must know him, he's the most handsome guy on campus and all the girls are after him,'" she said.

Chancler said, "I had a little grandmother call one time and say, 'My grandson is going to school out there and I can't get anyone to answer the phone at his place.'"

Chancler, King and Foust all agreed the most frequently requested number is for the Financial Aid Office.

"Next in line has to be Admissions and Records, the Bursar's and the Dean of Students," Foust said.

Melrath said they receive their off-campus student listings from the Registrar's Office and on-campus listings from Housing and Dining Services.

Faculty and staff listings come from routine maintenance forms.

"Some callers get real mad if we don't have a listing for whoever they want to call," Chancler said. "But if a student doesn't register their number from year to year in the registrar's office or with housing, then we have no way of knowing their number."

Will Arafat make good promises?

WILLIAM SAFIRE

When Menachem Begin came down from Camp David, I asked him if he had not gone too far in accepting the phrase "legitimate rights" of Palestinian Arabs. He countered with a biblical allusion: "Has my right hand lost its cunning?"

Begin knew that the "legitimate" rate of Arabs was to self-government, control of local affairs; he doubted that the PLO would settle for autonomy but would demand sovereignty over Israel's Judea and Samaria, to him an illegitimate claim. Begin was right: The arrogant PLO rejected its chance to work out self-rule in the disputed territories.

Today's prime minister, Yitzhak Rabin, offered Palestinians a new version of step-by-step self-government. When their delegation froze, Rabin sent Shimon Peres on an end run to the PLO, whose aging and bankrupt boss was not about to make the same all-or-nothing mistake again. As a result, Gaza is to be PLO-administered, which to Israel is like giving away a permanent migraine headache. Israel also accepted a symbolic PLO presence on the West Bank in Jericho, though autonomy there does not extend to the Allenby Bridge across the Jordan.

The stunner is the mutual recognition being worked out in Norway and likely to be signed here. The Palestinians could tear themselves apart and ruin the deal, but this week Arab-Israeli relations have undergone a Mediterranean sea-change.

What we have is the prospect of a separate peace, bugaboo of Arab negotiators. Jordan's King Hussein doesn't like it because he rules the other half of the Palestinians, who will want the same kind of self-rule. Syria's Hafez al-Assad is grumpy because his thunder has been stolen by Yasir Arafat, and he no longer has an excuse to delay a Golan deal. Hamas and Hezbollah terrorists will seek to sabotage Palestinian autonomy. Our state Department is emitting ludicrous little bleats suggesting that Warren Christopher was the hero because Israel kept him uninformed of the dealings and he didn't blab. But this is not our deal; it was truly worked out "between the parties."

What bugs hard-liners most about taking the PLO as a negotiating partner is not only the memory of the slaughtered Israeli Olympic athletes or the Arabs dancing on the rooftops as Iraqi Scud missiles slammed into Tel Aviv. It is that Shimon Peres, the superdove Yossi Beilin and PLO sympathizers abroad — all of whom have caved in to Arafat years ago, when he was running terrorists and demanding a state — will now claim to have been right all along.

Having been softened by 15 years of Israeli hard line, Arafat finally appears ready to accept Begin's approach, adding the Gaza-Jericho twist. The irony is that now the Israeli doves will take political credit for the breakthrough when the pressure of time and the loss of dictator sponsors have forced the PLO to become reasonable. No wonder Likudniks are gnashing their teeth: their tough policy made this possible, and now their opponents are capitalizing on it.

Other starkers here are cautiously pessimistic. We know Arafat still plans to sit in Jerusalem as president of Palestine, not mayor of Gaza. But here's why hope should not be denied: Israeli public opinion, influenced by the PLO's ability to keep local order and to adopt democratic methods, will determine the pace and extent of territorial compromise. It galls a pro-Israeli hawk to say this, but let's hope the slippery Arafat can deliver.

Release of mental patients unwarranted, unjust

by Bob Herbert

Promises from the government are always suspect. You believe them at your peril. But some broken promises hurt more than others.

For years we have been told that the massive discharge of patients from mental institutions would not be harmful because the patients would receive the services they needed from facilities in the community.

That has been a fantasy. If you don't believe it, take a walk through the streets or the parks of New York. Or take a ride on the subway.

Last week the New York State Commission on Quality of Care for the Mentally Disabled cited two cases that are dramatic and tragic examples of promises unkept.

In one case, a man, 73, who had spent 35 years in state mental hospitals was discharged in 1991 despite the conclusion of his treatment team that he "did not meet discharge criteria." The man was placed in the Brentwood Adult Home on Long Island, a residential facility that has been cited repeatedly by the state for "serious recurring problems."

A report by the commission said that the home had neglected the man's personal needs and mismanaged his medication. When his head was cut in a fall in September 1991, the man was taken to a hospital. The report said:

"The physician explained to the commission staff that (the patient) was admitted not only for medical but because 'his body was completely filthy' and 'it looked as if he hadn't washed in several weeks.' The physician also indicated that (the patient) had urine all over his pants, and that even though the home's staff had accompanied him to the emergency room, it appeared that no one was really caring for him."

The man died of cardiac complications in October, less than three months after his release from the state hospital.

The second case concerned a woman who was 59 and had spent more than 40 years in state psychiatric institutions. From 1971 to 1991 she was unable to participate in most ward activities at the Manhattan Psychiatric Center because of "her inability to communicate and her impaired reality orientation."

The report said she "spent her days sitting in the dayroom sleeping, watching other patients, staring out the window, gazing around, pacing the ward and peering through keyholes."

She was discharged in October 1991 and placed in the New Queen Esther Home for Adults in Rockaway Park, another problem facility. The commission said it had been cited repeatedly by the state for "filthy and dangerous" conditions.

The former patient "deteriorated" while at New Queen Esther and began harming other residents, the commission said. A staff member at the home wrote in a logbook, "Please do something about her before she hurts someone seriously."

On Oct. 12, 1992, she did. She assaulted a frail woman, 83, during lunch at the home. The elderly woman fell and struck her head on the floor. She subsequently died of her injuries.

The former medical patient was taken away in handcuffs. After an examination she was readmitted to Manhattan Psychiatric Center.

Because of budgetary pressures, patients are being released from state institutions at an increasingly rapid rate. In fact, according to the commission's report, the rate is even greater "than during the era of deinstitutionalization."

But the same budget considerations that are forcing the discharge of patients make it impossible to provide the extensive support services they require once they get out.

"What has developed," said the commission's chairman, Clarence Sundrum, "is really a laissez-faire type of system, where the services are out there and the people who want them can go and get them."

The problem, of course, is that the most severely mentally ill individuals are the ones who are at least capable of seeking out the help they need. Sundrum said, "The rationale for releasing individual patients is that they don't need inpatient care, that they can be cared for in the community."

That rationale loses all validity if the services are inadequate or unavailable. As Sundrum put it, "If one cannot deliver the services, it seems like an act of cruelty to release the patient."

C.A.R.E. center in Thompson Hall for sexual abuse victims

by JENNIFER GILBERT
THE UNIVERSITY DAILY

Young victims of sexual abuse can seek emotional and legal help through the Child Advocacy Research and Education program located in Texas Tech's Thompson Hall.

C.A.R.E. offers forensic medical evaluations, preventative education, multidisciplinary reviews and professional medical testimony for children who may have been abused or neglected.

The center focuses on local cases of physical, mental, emotional and sexual abuse and offers help to children from birth to 18 years of age.

C.A.R.E. Center Head Nurse Lois Looney said, "We deal with 17 surrounding counties' cases and have facilities to examine cases of failure of normal growth, neglect, emotional abuse (and) sexual abuse.

"We have a waiting room for the children with toys that do not denote violence and are conducive to good, healthy playing," she said. "Many times, the children are from very chaotic homes and do not have understanding of such an environment. Many times they are overwhelmed with the toys."

Abuse victims usually represent all socio-economic levels, Looney said.

"We usually have a higher proportion of the lower classes, but it's not always that way," Looney said. "Our facilities here are the investigation stage of the legal process."

The center's most common age and gender group are girls between the ages of 2 and 9, Looney said.

"In my opinion, physical abuse is much easier to detect than sexual abuse," Looney said. "Sexual abuse usually isn't picked up until the episodes become very serious.

"Emotional abuse is extremely difficult to document and the legalities of all the abuse is long-term and tedious," Looney said.

C.A.R.E. has facilities to videotape and record physical exams and interviews between victims and Dr. Rafael Garcia, pediatric associate professor and C.A.R.E. center director.

"Many times, the children are frightened or embarrassed about their abuse," Garcia said. "The rooms for the exams are set up with intentions of relaxation and trust for the children."

Nurses and staff members need to be compassionate toward the young patients and their caretakers, Looney said.

"Sometimes, the caretaker is a parent, grandparent, foster parent, teacher or neighbor," Looney said. "We don't want the children to feel threatened or scared about the exams or interviews."

Garcia said, "We try to give an earnest attempt at the interviews. I will usually talk with the victim and the alleged perpetrator if possible. Sometimes they (alleged perpetrators) are here and most of the time, they aren't."

"The interviews also give us an opportunity to help them realize that sexual abuse is real and there are certain things to teach the children as they grow older," Garcia said.

"Parents or caretakers can teach children about 'touching rights' and where it is safe to be touched."

Garcia also said exams do not always prove that molestation has occurred.

"A lot of young children are not seriously physically injured from sexual abuse," he said. "While it's psychologically detrimental, it doesn't always leave physical signs."

Tech students lose sleep over insomnia

by CHRISTY EVERETT
THE UNIVERSITY DAILY

For some Tech students, falling asleep at night sometimes can be a challenge.

According to studies compiled in a pamphlet from The Center for Sleep Disorders, a large number of Americans have various forms of insomnia.

Chad Holub, a junior accounting major from Gordon, said he has trouble falling asleep at night because of stress at work. He is a full-time student working 25 hours a week.

Holub said he uses soft music to fall asleep because it helps him to control the stress and to relax.

Short and chronic forms of insomnia occur for several different reasons and, according to the pamphlet, more than 35 million Americans report chronic insomnia.

The pamphlet states that insomnia is caused by stress, interrupted breathing and physical ailments.

Cory Powell, a senior music education major from San Antonio, said he has had constant insomnia for the past several years.

"It is hard to fall asleep when you have too much on your mind," he said.

Powell said he received medical attention for his insomnia and said he learned ways to cope with the problems that are causing his lack of sleep.

"I have gone to several classes that deal with the problem,"

Powell said.

According to the pamphlet, factors that may add to the problem of insomnia include stimulant and alcohol use and erratic sleeping hours. Staff members at the Center for Sleep Disorders recommended that individuals who have suffered from insomnia for more than a month see a physician.

Individuals should write down habits which may be affecting their sleep, refrain from using caffeine six hours before bedtime and designate a time during the day to write down concerns.

PUBLIC HEARING EAST-WEST FREEWAY AND RAILROAD RELOCATION PUBLIC HEARING THURSDAY, OCTOBER 14, 1993 LUBBOCK MEMORIAL CIVIC CENTER - BANQUET HALL (1501 6th Street)

OPEN HOUSE AT 5:00 P.M.
 PUBLIC HEARING BEGINS AT 7:00 P.M.

PREFERRED EAST-WEST FREEWAY ROUTE AND PREFERRED ROUTE FOR RAIL RELOCATION

- Preferred East-West Freeway Route
- Preferred Rail Route
- ▨ Rail Relocation Study Area

The Texas Department of Transportation and the City of Lubbock in association with HDR, Engineering, Inc., Parkhill, Smith & Cooper, Inc., and Hicks and Company, will host an Open House and conduct a Public Hearing on Thursday, OCTOBER 14, 1993, in the Banquet Hall of the Lubbock Memorial Civic Center located at 1501.6th Street in Lubbock.

The Open House will begin at 5:00 P.M.

During the Open House, the public will have the opportunity to ask questions about the proposed East-West Freeway project, including the proposed relocation of the Seagraves, Whiteface and Lubbock Railroad, and make written comments on the project prior to the beginning of hearing.

The Public Hearing will begin at 7:00 P.M.

The purpose of the Public Hearing is to permit the public an opportunity to review and comment on the proposed construction of a multilane, multilevel, controlled-access freeway across much of the City of Lubbock at U.S. Highway 82 and the relocation of the Seagraves, Whiteface and Lubbock Railroad to western portions of the city of Lubbock and Lubbock County.

Who are these Unitarian Universalists?

Unitarian Universalists are not bound by creed or dogma; each reserves the right to formulate his/her own religion, based upon his/her own intelligent reasoning. As a religious group, they believe the DEED to be more important than the creed. Possibly that is the reason so many outstanding humanitarians were members of the Unitarian denomination. These include Thomas Jefferson, Horace Mann, Susan B. Anthony, Emerson, Hawthorne, Longfellow, Maria Mitchell and many others. Unitarian Universalists believe that the way a person lives is the real test of his/her religion.

Tech's Army ROTC cadets rank highest in state

by MICHELLE ELIZARDO
THE UNIVERSITY DAILY

The Texas Tech Army ROTC proved they were among the best in Texas, as well as in the nation this summer.

The Tech Army ROTC attended Advance Camp in Washington, D.C., this summer to test the skills the Army has helped them develop.

Geoff Frost, a senior marketing major from Oklahoma and spokesperson for the ROTC Corps said, "Our cadets ranked higher than any others in the state, and in the top 30 percent of the nation."

To determine the ranking, the cadets went through a series of tests, which they were graded on.

"The camp puts cadets into leadership positions in platoons to determine how well we can lead and follow instructions," he said.

"And all the while, we were being tested on navigation and shooting," Frost said.

Frost earned the chance to be in an honor platoon by receiving perfect scores on navigation and shooting.

"These (leadership) positions included receiving a mission, planning, issuing and executing plans given to us," Frost said.

The camp leaders tested cadets with situations that changed on the spot, said Grant Morris, a senior history major from Plano.

"We needed to make real decisions with real answers," he said. "It is great preparation for the civil world."

Morris received a five, the highest possible score, at the end of the camp.

"We felt like we were all going to do well because ROTC at Tech prepared us well," he said.

"Our school trained us to a much higher standard than most of the other cadets there," Morris said.

"We were all expected to do well and we did."

Frost said the camp was very stressful and challenging mentally and physically, but would pay off later.

"The higher the score you get, the easier it is to get into a position you would like in the Army when college is over," he said.

"We think (ROTC) is the best college course anyone can take," Frost said.

Astronauts to make another attempt

CAPE CANAVERAL, Fla. (AP)—Five astronauts who have endured five launch delays returned to Kennedy Space Center on Thursday, confident the latest countdown will lead to liftoff.

Discovery commander Frank Culbertson Jr. and his crew will try again Sunday morning to leave on a satellite-delivery flight that's two months overdue. The countdown - their fourth - began Thursday.

"They said the second time was a charm, the third time was a charm. OK, this is the fourth time and we're ready to go," Culbertson said.

He added: "As you know, it's one for the money."

"Two for the show," his pilot said.

"Three to get ready," added another astronaut.

"And four is to GO!" shouted a fourth.

NATIONALLY RANKED OPPONENT

Nebraska enters the week of its first game with a No. 9 nationally ranking by AP and a No. 8 by USA Today/CNN. The last time Texas Tech played a Top 10-ranked team was last year when No. 5 Texas A&M won 19-17. The last time Texas Tech beat a Top 10 team was 1986 when the Red Raiders surprised No. 8 Arkansas 17-7 in Fayetteville. It's the school's only win over a Top 10 team on the road.

THE SERIES: TEXAS TECH VS. NEBRASKA

Despite regional proximity, Texas Tech and Nebraska have met only once on the gridiron. That one was a memorable battle in the 1976 Bluebonnet Bowl, with the Huskers winding up on top 27-24. Long-time observers still contend that was one of the most exciting games they have ever seen.

AGAINST THE BIG 8
 This will be Texas Tech's 37th meeting with teams currently in the Big 8 Conference, and only one other school holds a winning edge against the Raiders. That one is Oklahoma, winning the series opener last year. Here is how Texas Tech has fared against other Big 8 schools: Oklahoma State (12-8-3), Kansas (4-0), Kansas State (3-0), Iowa State (2-0), and Colorado (2-1). The overall mark is 23-11-3.

THE COACHES
 Texas Tech head coach Spike Dykes (S.F. Austin '59) enters his seventh full season with an overall mark of 36-32-1. He took over head duties two weeks before the Red Raiders' 19986 Independence Bowl game. He is 11-10 in non-Southwest Conference contests. Nebraska head coach Tom Osborn (Hastings '59) is the second-winningest active coach in Division I with a winning percentage of .806 (196-46-3) in his 21st season with the school.

SPIKE ON NEBRASKA GAME
 "They are gonna be a lot bigger, faster and stronger than the team we just played. Nebraska certainly is a Top 10 team and they have great tradition. Our guys are looking forward to playing against one of the top football programs in the country. I saw where they might have lost their running back but they'll just plug in somebody else just as good."

TECH DEFENSE
 The new 4-4 defense that Dykes put on the field for the first time Saturday night had a "new" flavor. Eight of the 11 starters were virtual newcomers to the starting role. Only Shawn Jackson, Stephen Gaines and Shawn Banks had more than one previous start under their belts coming into the game. So how did they respond? They left the field for good late in the third quarter with 14 tackles for losses or no gains while holding Pacific to 136 yards (223 overall). "It was exciting to see the defense run to the ball," said Dykes. "We made some mistakes but overall it was food for a first game." Dykes wound up starting six freshmen and sophomores, including four players from Dallas Carter.

TECH OFFENSE
 Dick Winder's offense didn't miss a beat in the opener, scoring on nine of the first 11 possessions while rolling up 530 yards before the first team left the field late in the third quarter. The final reading was 587 yards in total offense, the fifth most ever by a Red Raider unit. The balance almost was even with 282 rushing yards and 305 passing. "We executed the way you draw it up, for the most part," said Dykes. "The offensive line did a great job. They gave Robert (Hall) all the time he needed and opened holes for Bam and the other backs."

Haggard sell hits, escapes bankruptcy
 NASHVILLE, Tenn. (AP)—Country star Merle Haggard raised more than $3 million by selling 600 of his songs, enough to rescue him from bankruptcy.

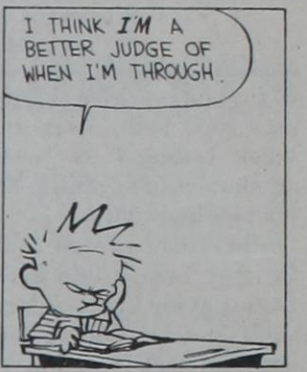

Among the songs purchased Tuesday by Sony-Tree Publishing were: "If We Make It Through December," "I Think I'll Just Stay Here and Drink," "I'm Always on a Mountain When I Fall" and "Are the Good Times Really Over."

Haggard filed for Chapter 11 bankruptcy protection last December. "We're more than clear," he said. "We were able to come out of Chapter 11 yesterday. It's a nice feeling."

IS THE BIBLE REALLY TRUE?

The Bible says that "All Scripture is inspired by God" and that "men moved by the Holy Spirit spoke from God." Manuscripts evidence, the unity of the Scriptures, and fulfilled prophecy are just a few of the areas of evidence that show us that the Bible is unique and true.

Christians should believe that Bible because of what Jesus Christ said about it. He declared that the Scriptures are the word of God, and that God's word is truth.

Sir Isaac Newton said, "There are more sure marks of authenticity in the Bible than in any profane history."

Dr. Henry Morris, Director of the Institute for Creation Research, has said that "the doctrine of the inspiration of the Scriptures is thoroughly compatible with all true science and reason."

Weekend brings cowboys, celebrities to Hub City

by LARA M. CAMPBELL
THE UNIVERSITY DAILY

Cowboys have long been associated with Texas, and this week Lubbock is hosting a celebration of cowboys, Western heritage and culture.

The fifth annual National Cowboy Symposium and Celebration at the Lubbock Memorial Civic Center will offer a variety of entertainment, including Western artists and sculptors, Old West historians and folklorists and cowboy poets, musicians, authors and photographers.

"The Cowboy Symposium is built around the heritage of the Old West and the people who love the life, many of whom still live that lifestyle," said Alvin Davis, symposium organizer.

"We want people of all ages to come and learn more about the cowboy heritage and interact with the people carrying on the tradition in America and around the world. That's what really makes this event," he said.

Events are planned all day today and Saturday, and until 4 p.m. on Sunday. Exhibits will be open 9 a.m. to 9 p.m. today and Saturday.

All events are available with one pass. Prices are $5 for adults and $2.50 for children.

Saturday, five people will be honored for their contributions to cowboy culture.

The honorees are actor Barry Corbin of the TV series, "Northern Exposure," country singers Michael Martin Murphy and Patsy Montana, author Max Evans and Davis, a cowboy historian and the executive vice president and general manager of the Texas Tech Ranching Heritage Association.

The recipients were selected based on their contributions in a number of categories, including music, writing and art.

Corbin, a Texas Tech alumnus, currently stars as Maurice on "Northern Exposure." He has also appeared in the television movies "Lonesome Dove" and "The Thornbirds," and in the movie "Urban Cowboy."

Montana became the first female singer to sell one million records with her 1930's hit, "I Want to be a Cowboy's Sweetheart."

Murphy, famous for such songs as "Wildfire," narrates "The Cowboys in America," to be televised in the United States later this year.

Evans has written several western novels, including "The Rounders," which was made into a movie starring Henry Fonda and Glen Ford.

Davis, a noted historian, poet and published western writer, was honored at the 1993 National Intercollegiate Rodeo Association Championships as influential in the growth of that organization.

SWC teams try to recapture respect

LEN HAYWARD

Now that the Southwest Conference showed its true form last Saturday, a new week dawned for the league. All of the conference teams will see action, with the exception of Texas, who always seems to have time to prepare for big games.

The SWC has a better chance this week to gain some ground, and bring back some respect. Tech may have the toughest game of the week, but there are some good contests to take note of.

Tulsa (0-1) at Houston (0-1)
Noon CDT

Astrodome (60,000/artificial turf) - Houston Raycom (channel 34/Cox Cable channel 10)

The first Raycom Game of the Week may just be the best game of the week. Tulsa is coming off a tough loss against Big Ten powerhouse Iowa, and are ready for a big game against the Cougars.

The Cougars are just getting used to the fact that they have a new coach, and that they can play with teams better than them.

Houston is a talented team, while the Hurricane could be the biggest overachievers in the Midwest.

Houston has to win to save a little face with the conference, while everybody knows what Tulsa can do to an SWC team.

No. 24 Baylor (1-0) at No. 10 Colorado (1-0)
1 p.m. CDT

Folsom Field (51,748/artificial turf)
Boulder, Colo.

The last time these two teams played in Boulder, Baylor won.

Now this year the Bears have the momentum to cause some trouble for the Buffaloes, after the come-from-behind last weekend.

But once again, it comes down to the Baylor defense playing well if the Bears are going to have a chance to win.

Both offenses can put points on the board, they proved that last week, but now the Bears are ranked in the top 25 — a place they have been before but where they have faltered in the past.

Let's just hope the Bears can save some face, and get that record to 2-0 and upset the mighty Buffaloes.

No. 5 Texas A&M (1-0)
at No. 17 Oklahoma (1-0)
2:30 p.m. CDT

Memorial Stadium (75,004/artificial turf)
Norman, Okla.

ABC (channel 28/Cox Cable channel 8)
The Aggies now have the responsibility of winning this game so the skeptics don't begin to resurface.

People even criticized them after they shut out Louisiana State, but now the Aggies must beat a talented Sooners team just to maintain their spot in the polls.

Oklahoma is coming off a big win against Texas Christian last week, but the Aggies are a completely different team than the Horned Frogs.

The Sooners are much better than last year, and as a result, this may be the biggest upset of the week.

Tulane (0-1) at Rice (0-1)
4 p.m. CDT

Rice Stadium (70,000/artificial turf)
Houston

After last week's performance against Ohio State, the Owls are ready for a big win.

They can score points, and this should be an easy win for Rice. The Owls have to play well, but this team is going to upset somebody in the conference race, and their run might just start here.

Rice coach Fred Goldsmith apologized for his team's performance against the Buckeyes, but this week he may not be apologizing because this game might be a blowout in Rice's favor.

Wisconsin (1-0) at Southern Methodist (1-0)
7 p.m. CDT

Ownby Stadium (23,783)
Dallas

The Mustangs proved how good they were after they played Arkansas well in the Cotton Bowl, but a tougher test arrives this week.

The Badgers are rebuilding, but they have one of the best programs in the Big Ten. The Mustangs will probably play a good game, but they are liable to get outclassed and outmaneuvered by bigger and better Wisconsin.

New Mexico (0-1) at Texas Christian (0-1)
7 p.m. CDT

Amon Carter Stadium (46,000/natural grass)
Fort Worth

The second consecutive home game for the Horned Frogs, but the TCU fans may see another loss.

The Lobos played Brigham Young well last weekend on their way to a defeat, but TCU is poised for a big win this early in the season. This may be the best game nobody will see Saturday.

Raiders eye upset against No. 9 'Huskers

by LEN HAYWARD
THE UNIVERSITY DAILY

The stage is set, Nebraska will play Texas Tech Saturday.

The No. 9 team in the nation versus a team that garnered five votes in the latest Associated Press poll, while both are coming off big blowout wins.

But this game could come down to who can control the line of scrimmage.

Nebraska boasts one of the biggest offensive lines in the country, while Tech has one of the smaller defenses in the Southwest Conference, but maybe the quickest.

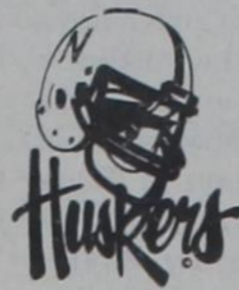

"We have to play smart football," middle linebacker Zach Thomas said. "They are big and they can move, but they are a lot like A&M. Quickness is going to help."

Saturday's game will kickoff at 1 p.m. at Memorial Stadium in Lincoln, Neb.

The Cornhuskers' offensive line averages around 295 pounds, while the biggest player on Tech's defense is 300-pound defensive tackle Stephen Gaines.

"I don't think it will be that much of a mismatch," coach Spike Dykes said. "There are some things you can do to overcome their size. Quickness is very important. It will be a critical point of the game as to how well they or us controls the line of scrimmage."

Tech's defense held Pacific to only 229 total yards, while the Raiders only gave up 95 yards rushing in the 55-7 win Saturday. Nebraska defeated North Texas by a score of 76-14 in the Cornhuskers' season opener.

The Raiders will have to contain a Nebraska offense that is without the services of Heisman Trophy Candidate Calvin Jones, but still racked up more than 500 yards against North Texas last week.

"They run right at you and they try to run you down," Thomas said, who had six tackles in last Saturday's game. "It is a simple offense and we can play it."

Nebraska quarterback Tommie Frazier is questionable for the game after hurting his knee in last Saturday's opener. Second-string quarterback Brook Berringer, who had two touchdowns, both of them on the ground, will likely fill in for Frazier if needed.

"We are going in with a lot of confidence," Tech defensive end Shawn Jackson said. "We just have to go in and play the way we are capable of playing. Our defense is built around speed and quickness."

Dykes said, "Their (Nebraska) forte is rushing the ball. They put body on body and say here we come. It is not much of a finesse offense, more of an execution attack."

Tech's offense is coming off a 587-yard performance against the Tigers, and Dykes said he is looking for another big game from the team.

"It is a prolific offense," Dykes said. "We have a lot of weapons, which means there is more than one way to first base. I thought our skill guys played well and our line blocked extremely well. It's worrisome to a defense and that's the beautiful part of our football team."

Tech quarterback Robert Hall is coming off a big game, completing 21 of 30 passes for 305 yards, while Byron "Bam" Morris rushed for 140 yards. It was the seventh time in Morris' career where he has rushed for more than 100 yards.

Lloyd Hill also caught six passes for 114 yards.

This week's game against Nebraska begins a string of five games where all five Tech opponents are ranked, including Baylor who snuck in at No. 24 this week.

"Certainly it will be hard the next five weeks. We will have to grow as a football team each week," Dykes said. "If you've read the book on how to coach — it says you improve more from week one to week two — I don't know how much of that is always right. It is going to take everything we got and we will have to be hitting on all the right cylinders for Nebraska."

Tech will face Georgia next week in Athens, and then return to open conference play against Baylor in Waco on Sept. 25.

Dixon uses talent for success at tradition rich Nebraska

by JAMES DAVID
THE UNIVERSITY DAILY

In college football there are very few teams that consistently have winning seasons year after year.

The Nebraska Cornhuskers are one of them.

Texas Tech will play a team Saturday that has lots of Texas talent, most notably senior split end Corey Dixon from Dallas Hillcrest. Seven players from the Lone Star made the trek to Lincoln, Neb., to play for the Cornhuskers.

Dixon, who at 5-8 and 160 pounds is among the smallest players on the Cornhusker squad, is also the fastest with a time of 4.25 in the 40.

"My size has never been a problem for me," Dixon said.

"I work hard on my strength with the weights and I'm faster than most defensive backs so defenders have a hard time catching me when I break loose."

Dixon has yet to face a Southwest Conference team. The last time Nebraska played a SWC team was in 1990, when the 'Huskers beat Baylor 13-0.

Dixon was redshirted during the 1990 season so he didn't see action but he says he is looking forward to playing his first SWC team Saturday.

Last week the 'Huskers played a Texas team, the University of North Texas, and routed them 76-14, but Dixon doesn't place Tech in the same category.

Dixon said the 'Huskers know that Texas Tech is coming off of a big win and that it won't be as easy of a game as playing UNT where Nebraska had 116 players see action.

"Texas Tech has a great offense," Dixon said. "But so do we. Our goal here at Nebraska is to score at least 40 points per game and we plan on doing so Saturday."

Playing against some of his old high school rivals is something Dixon is looking forward to.

"I feel really privileged to play a Texas team," Dixon said. "Most of the guys I played with or against in high school play in the SWC. I've played against Robert Hall and most of the guys from Carter, so it'll be really interesting," he said.

The Nebraska offense is going to be without Heisman Trophy candidate and record-setting tailback Calvin Jones due to a knee strain sustained last week and starting quarterback Tommy Frazier is questionable with a sprained ankle.

So some more pressure is going to fall on Dixon, who was the only bright spot in last year's 27-14 Orange Bowl loss to Florida State.

He caught five passes for 123 yards and one touchdown and was named Nebraska's Most Valuable Player of the Game.

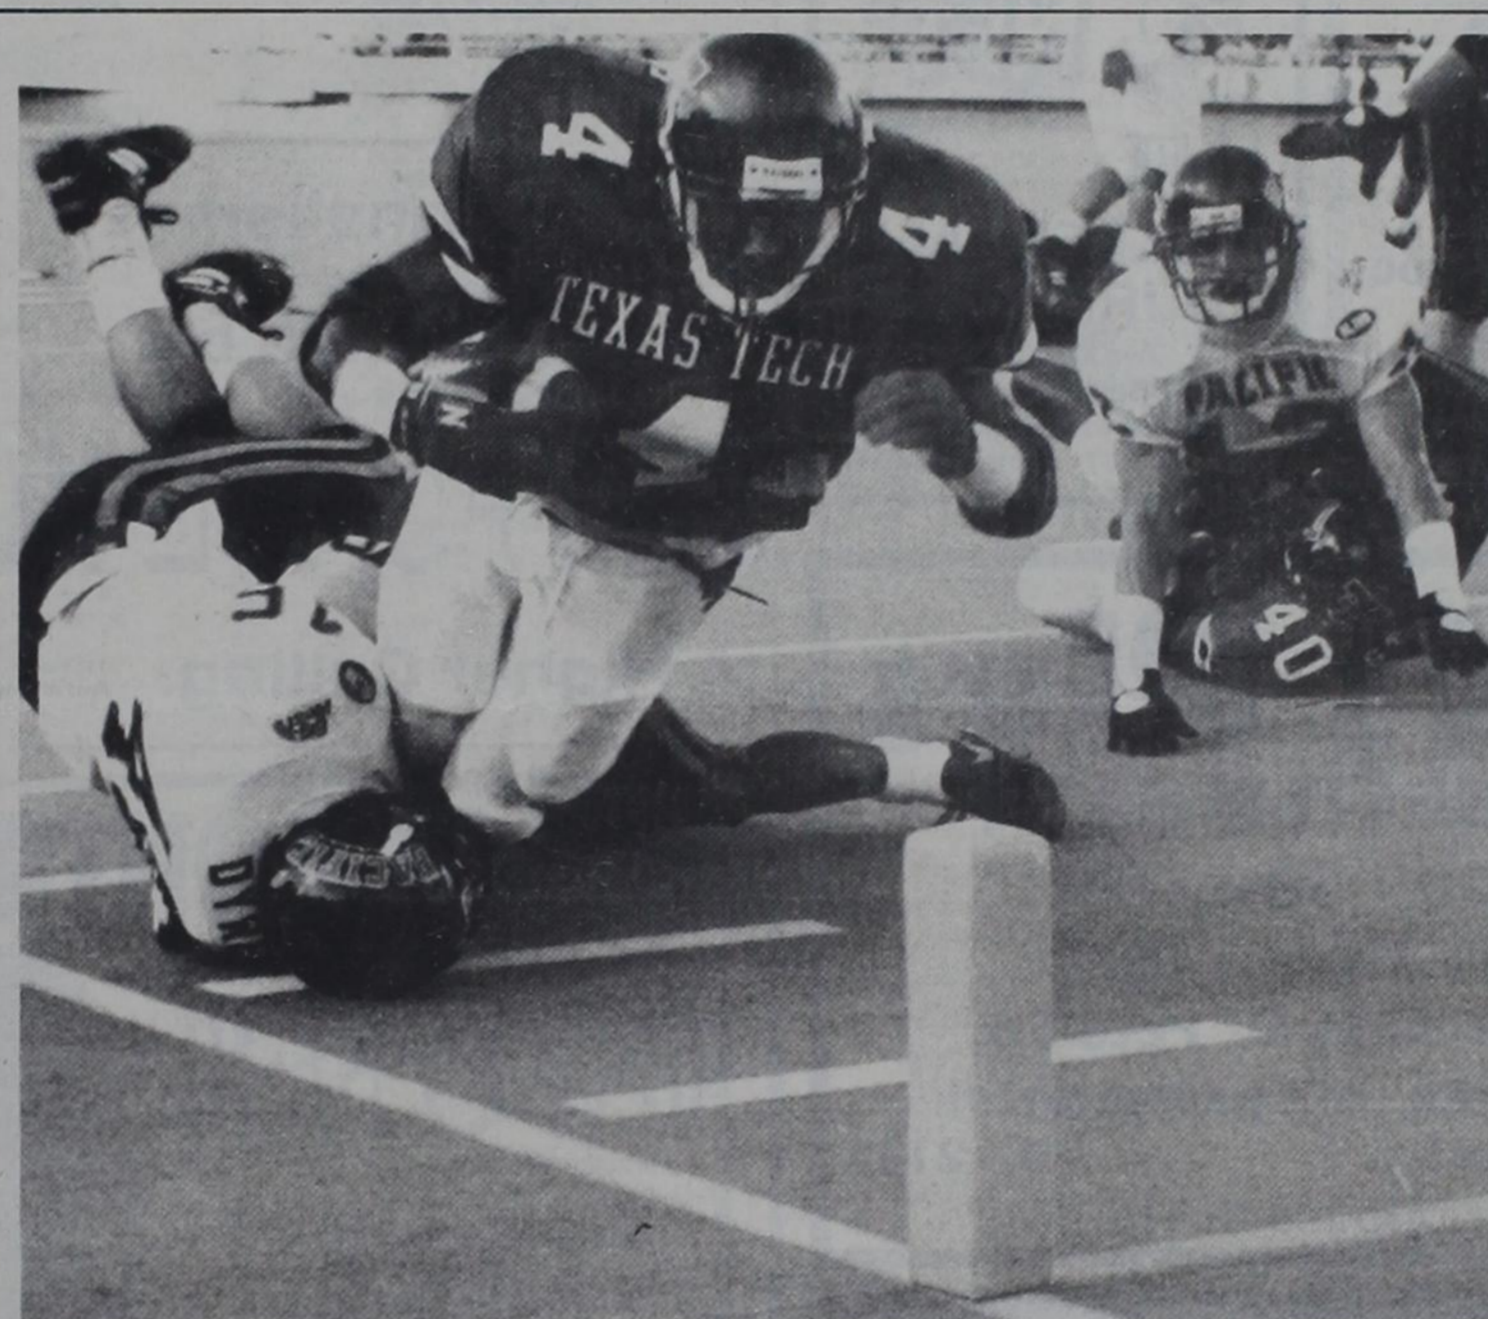

"That was definitely the high point of my career so far," Dixon said. "I would really like another shot at Florida State. I think we can play with anyone this year for the national championship."

Dixon said Frazier has been throwing in practice and might see action Saturday, but if not, he said he has the utmost of confidence in backup quarterbacks Brook Berringer and Tony Veland.

"Our offense is going to run the same with or without Calvin Jones," Dixon said. "Sure we'll miss him, but we've still got a lot of power up front to run or pass the ball."

Dixon has National Football League aspirations after his college career, but for now he is staying focused on this season.

"We want that national title," he said.

Raiders try to continue run at Gonzaga Tech prepares for long road trip; opens tourney with Oregon

by TARA HEARLIHY
THE UNIVERSITY DAILY

A plane left Thursday at 7 a.m. taking the Texas Tech women's volleyball team to Spokane, Wash., for the Gonzaga Spikeoff.

The undefeated Red Raiders (4-0) will play Oregon tonight at 7 (CDT), Weber State Saturday at 1 p.m., and Gonzaga at 9:30 p.m.

"We are real excited about going up there," sophomore outside hitter Diane Owens said. "It is somewhere where we have never been. We have been to California, but never Washington."

"I am kind of nervous," Jackie Bode, a sophomore middle blocker said. "We have to ride one of those little propeller planes for a while."

After landing in Washington, the Raiders practiced Thursday afternoon and had the evening off.

Slapper

Bode

"We wanted to be able to practice Thursday because we did not want to fly for five hours and then go play," coach Mike Jones said.

"It will be hard on Thursday because we will be tired, but it shouldn't be too bad," sophomore middle blocker Jill Slapper said after Wednesday's match against Texas-Arlington. "It will be fun because it's our first road trip. I am excited to play out of town."

Jones says he is confident in the Raiders after a 4-0 start.

"The wins will help carry us into this tournament," he said. "I think we are playing better and the wins help with our confidence. The younger players are more assured of themselves now."

Jones said he did have some information about tonight's match against Oregon.

"Oregon has a few freshmen," he said. "They are young, but they lost their best player last spring to grades. The Pac-10 is always tough and every year they seem to have a couple of top 20 teams. They have some good players and a good outside hitter. Their two setters are good, also."

The Raiders played Gonzaga early last season and won the match 15-6, 15-10 and 15-6.

"Gonzaga has about the same team, but they do have a few new players," Jones said. "They lost their best player who averaged about five kills a game and that is a big loss for them, but I am sure they have someone to replace her."

"They did not seem that strong last year," said Bode. "They may be better this year."

Next weekend the Raiders host the Sheraton Inn/Red Raider Classic against Pepperdine, Montana and Kentucky.

Kentucky was ranked No. 14 in the Volleyball Monthly poll, while Pepperdine was among others receiving votes.

Women linksters open season at Diet Coke Classic

The Texas Tech women's golf team opens the fall season today at the Diet-Coke Roadrunner Golf Classic at New Mexico State University in Las Cruces, N.M.

The 54-hole event will start today with 18 holes and continue until Sunday. Tech's starting lineup for the tournament will be juniors Tracy Thomson and Stacey Kolb; sophomores Candy Merrill and J.J. Rorie and freshman Tamara Parker. Tech finished sixth in last year's Diet-Coke Classic at the same venue.

"This will be an important tournament for us since most of the teams in the field are out of the West Region which will have an impact on the NCAA's later in the spring," coach Jeff Mitchell said.

SWC needs to improve showing against top 25 teams

JAMES DAVID

The 1993 college football campaign is but one game old and already the Southwest Conference is looking mediocre to the rest of the country.

With the exception of Texas Tech's win against Pacific and the stirring comeback by Baylor against Fresno State, the SWC once again is not living up to its pre-season hype.

Texas, Rice and Houston were humiliated on national television while our much-outed Texas A&M looked like an inflatable blow-up doll without air for most of its victory against non-hacker Louisiana State.

Meanwhile, Texas Christian was scorched by Oklahoma, and SMU blew a shot at a decent upset with Arkansas.

So, besides Baylor's upset of No. 25 ranked Fresno State which earned them a No. 24 ranking in the Associated Press poll, Tech and A&M were both expected to win, but the rest of the conference wasn't necessarily expected to blow their cookies on national TV.

I really don't know how SWC commissioner Steve Hatchell thinks the SWC is going to upgrade its image when we consistently lose against top 25 teams. Our only top 10 team, A&M, should have steamrolled over LSU in the same fashion that Tech did against Pacific.

I respect the conference's desire to move up and play top-ranked teams, because as Spike Dykes said, "You don't see many teams making much improvement by playing sisters of the poor every week."

But there's something called 'biting off more than you can chew' and Rice, Houston and TCU were definitely outclassed Saturday.

I won't even elaborate on the Longhorns, who every season are way overrated and end up disappointing even the most devout Texas fan in recent years.

The conference needs to have a team that can play in our postseason classic, the Cotton Bowl, and put a touchdown on the board.

For the past three seasons, Texas once and A&M twice, they have failed to do so. A&M is overrated and the Aggies have a soft schedule this season, while Tech is playing the toughest schedule in the conference. Are back-to-back road games at Nebraska and Georgia going to help our cause?

The SWC has another shot to prove that last week's poor, sloppy performance is not indicative of the talent that plays in the SWC.

On the plus side, the conference was third in average home attendance.

While I wish Tech the best of luck, I really think they must split the Nebraska, Georgia road trip with at least one upset to stay in the hunt for a bowl game because the rest of the season isn't going to get any easier. Georgia lost last week on a last-second touchdown at home against South Carolina so don't look for them to let their guard down. Nebraska hasn't lost a game in Lincoln since September 1991 against Washington. Maybe they're due for one. (We hope).

James David is a sports reporter for The University Daily.

Dallas still loaded with talent, even without Emmitt

(AP) — Opinions about Jerry Jones appear to have come full circle. Views of Jimmy Johnson may soon follow — if the Dallas Cowboys continue to lose and Emmitt Smith remains a holdout.

An opening loss in Washington and Rice, Houston and TCU were definitely outclassed Saturday. I won't even elaborate on the Longhorns, who every season are

Analysis

Demonstrating once again that football, like any sport, is a case of "what have you done for me lately?"

Jones, of course, entered the NFL as the evil Arkansas oilman who sneaked into town in February 1989, fired the legend, Tom Landry and replaced him with Johnson, a mere college coach.

By last year, Johnson and Jones had become geniuses who turned around the Cowboys in just four years, won a Super Bowl and built a team that would dominate the NFL in the '90s.

Now, quietly, Jones is becoming the stubborn penny-pincher who won't pay the best running back in football what he deserves, jeopardizing the chances his team will become a dynasty. And Johnson is a guy who was outcoached Monday night by Richie Petitbon, whose first game as an NFL head coach was the Redskins' 35-16 opening-night victory. The grumbling extends to players.

"If this keeps up I guess the best thing would be to trade me. I guess that would be the practical thing to do," grumbled defensive tackle Tony Casillas, a good run-stopper who was kept inactive as the Redskins ran for 170 yards, more than any team gained on the ground against Dallas last year.

Casillas has one point. He lost his starting job to Leon Lett because Johnson and his coaches feel that Lett's a better pass rusher. But the Cowboys never got near Mark Rypien on Monday night, and the Redskins rushed for 170 yards, more than in any game last year.

It was the first time in Johnson's tenure, including the 1-15 season in 1989, that they registered neither a sack nor a turnover in any game.

But Johnson recognizes a possible explanation, one that holds true nearly every year and is particularly true when the champion opens in the high-profile Monday night game. Five times in the last seven years, the defending champion has opened on a Monday night and three of those five times, it's lost.

"I don't want to be an alarmist, but everybody seems to be extremely happy to wear their Super Bowl rings," Johnson said this week. "There's 27 teams out there waiting to take those rings."

Still, there's no real reason for Dallas fans to panic.

Yes, Johnson was outcoached Monday night by figuring Washington to pass when it ran and vice-versa. And he's probably a bit like his players — cocksure from last year's success and a little prone to forget that talent in the NFL is pretty even.

But it's no disgrace to lose to Petitbon, who's not your ordinary rookie coach — he spent a dozen years (and four Super Bowls) as Joe Gibbs' right-hand man. He should have been a head coach eons ago. Johnson realizes that even as he's suggesting his players are resting on their laurels.

"There's no time to panic," he says. "We lost on the road to one of the top teams in the league."

OK, things might be a little tougher than anticipated — the Redskins actually might challenge the Cowboys in the NFC East. And, off opening week, the Giants and Eagles could be troublesome.

But the Cowboys, with or without Smith, still have more talent than anyone in the division. With Emmitt, they have more than anyone in the league. And Jerry Jones is neither a genius nor an evil penny-pincher. He's simply a rich guy who owns a football team.

The NFL has 28 of those.

Howe lets Kile finish what he started for first no-hitter

HOUSTON (AP) — This time, Houston manager Art Howe allowed Darryl Kile to finish what he started.

Kile pitched six hitless innings in his major league debut on April 24, 1991, before Howe removed him from the game.

There were no such managerial decisions on Wednesday night, and Kile responded with the second no-hitter in baseball in five days with a 7-1 victory over the New York Mets.

"This whole year, it's seemed that it was going to be a special season for me," Kile said. "And every once in awhile, something special has happened."

Howe has never second-guessed himself for removing Kile in 1991.

"Actually, I'm really proud of myself for that," Howe said. "He'd thrown 90 pitches that day and I didn't want to ruin him. I think he would have blown his arm and never had the no-hitter he had today."

History had a chance to repeat Wednesday night, but Howe stayed with his star.

Howe became concerned again in the eighth inning on Wednesday after a long at-bat for the Astros.

"I was afraid he'd get cold," Howe said. "I asked (pitching coach Bob Cluck) Clucky, 'What do you think? Do you want to go ask him if he wants to get up and throw some in the bullpen.'"

Cross country teams ready for weekend meets

by JAMES DAVID
THE UNIVERSITY DAILY

The Texas Tech men's and women's cross country teams will travel to separate sites Friday to open their seasons.

The women will travel to Abilene for the Abilene Invitational and the men to Arlington for the Texas-Arlington Invitational.

Opening starters for the women will be Mandy Malouf, Louisa Tam, Tiane Younger, Julie Harrell, Vicky Laursen and Tandra Brillhart.

"This will be a good tuneup for next week's meet in San Diego," women's coach Kirk Elias said.

Sophomore track standout Jill Williams, who has a heel injury, and senior Gunilla Andersson who is coming off of racing in the European summer track season, will not compete in Saturday's meet. Andersson, who is from Sweden, has run several personal-best performances recently.

"Gunilla ran a 4:34 in the 1,500 meters and a 10:03 in the 3,000 meters this summer," Elias said. "She is also taking the MCAT next week so we're giving her a couple of weeks off to start training for cross country."

Other teams competing at ACU are Angelo State, Odessa College and Wayland Baptist.

On the men's side, Ralph Ayaad,

Quent Bearden, Bill Bush, Ben Friedman, Don Koontz, Joe Perez and Gabe Ruiz will compete for the men.

Other teams in competition at UTA include Stephen F. Austin, North Texas, Southern Methodist and Texas Christian.

"I'm looking for strong competition this year in the SWC," Elias said.

"SMU had an awesome off season in recruiting. They loaded up on foreign talent with three South Africans and two Australians," he said.

Chavez, Whitaker set for battle in Alamodome

SAN ANTONIO (AP) — Julio Cesar Chavez can appreciate Pernell Whitaker's fondness for beer, but he sure doesn't appreciate Whitaker's style of fighting.

"The thing I don't like about Whitaker is he has an ugly style," Chavez said Thursday. "He makes all his opponents look ugly."

Whitaker, a left-hander, deals in frustration. He feints and dips and spins, making the ring seem bigger than it is to his opponent.

Chavez deals in attrition. He applies pressure, takes the spring out of an opponent's legs with blasting body punches until the ring seems to be the size of a phone booth.

"I think Whitaker will come out to box me; I don't think he has guts to stand there and fight," Chavez taunts. Whitaker is not listening.

"I'm going to put on a show," said the WBC welterweight champion from Virginia Beach, Va.

"I know he will try to throw my mind off, to clown around and make me desperate," said Chavez, whose WBC super lightweight title won't be at stake Friday night in the Alamodome.
