President Clinton endorses Yeltsin

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Clinton today strongly endorsed Russian President Boris Yeltsin's handling of the showdown with rebels in the parliament building in Moscow. "I think so far they've done quite well," he said.

"I don't think that any of us should be here basically arm-chair quarterbacking the unfolding events," the president said.

"When I talked to Boris Yeltsin a few days ago I told him very strongly that I hoped that he would be able to manage this transition in ways that really promoted democracy, respected human rights and kept the peace. And he said that would be exactly his policy. And so far he has done that under very, very difficult, intense circumstances."

Clinton made his remarks in an exchange with reporters before a late-afternoon meeting with Russian Foreign Minister Andrei Victor Kozyrev.

Kozyrev, at the United Nations before traveling to Washington, said the showdown in Moscow would be resolved "without using force."

He offered the assurances of restraint after a 90-minute meeting with Secretary of State Warren Christopher to discuss the crisis in Russia and other issues. Christopher said he told Kozyrev the United States would be concerned if there was violence at the parliament in Moscow, but there was no evidence of it so far.

Hopkins enters GOP Senate race

AUSTIN (AP) — Stephen Hopkins, an unsuccessful candidate in the U.S. Senate special election in May, says he will seek the Republican Party's Senate nomination next year.

Hopkins, of Burnet, said Wednesday that he plans to challenge Sen. Kay Bailey Hutchison in the GOP primary in March 1994.

Hopkins predicted that he will be the only Republican to run against Mrs. Hutchison, adding that he plans to challenge her to debate "her stands on abortion, crime and the North American Free Trade Agreement."

Hopkins finished seventh in the 24-candidate special election field May 1 and ran fourth among Republican candidates.

He received just under 15,000 votes, or 1 percent of the total.

Hutchison, who was indicted this week by a Travis County grand jury on charges stemming from her 2 1/2-year tenure as state treasurer, topped the May special election field and won the Senate seat with 67 percent of the runoff over appointed Democratic Sen. Bob Krueger.

Calling the charges politically motivated, she has said she plans to seek re-election next year to a full, six-year Senate term.

Dallas financier Richard Fisher last week announced his candidacy for the Democratic Senate nomination.

Ultimatum set for Russian lawmakers

MOSCOW (AP) — The government gave increasingly isolated lawmakers five days to leave the parliament building or "face the consequences" Wednesday. Besieged hard-liners vowed to hold out.

The government kept up a tight cordon of razor-wire, guns and thousands of armed riot police and troops around the building.

The hard-liners showed no signs of surrendering, and the government's ultimatum threatened to paint Yeltsin into a corner of his own.

The government didn't spell out what it meant by "serious consequences," but it will be expected to do something if the lawmakers continue to hold out past Monday. Foreign Minister Andrei V. Kozyrev offered fresh assurances Wednesday that force would not be used in the showdown, but Yeltsin may ultimately have no other option.

For a second straight night, police with rubber batons clashed with hundreds of people who tried to demonstrate in support of parliament.

Protesters threw bottles at police.

One lawmaker was injured. The week-long standoff claimed its third fatality, when a traffic policeman died of injuries suffered when he was pushed in front of a car by protesters during a clash

Tuesday with police.

People seemed tired of the long political struggle that has pitted Yeltsin against parliament for 18 months.

"We're fed up," said Otto Latsis, political commentator for the newspaper Izvestia.

President Boris Yeltsin met in the Kremlin with his top advisors.

TAKE ME OUT TO THE FAIR

Fair provides excitement on South Plains

Fairgoers (right) enjoy the carousel on the midway at the South Plains Fair. The fair continues through Saturday with the rides open until midnight.

Kathleen Ruska and Georgie Mitchell (below), a counselor at the Lubbock State School, enjoy the thrill of riding the roller coaster at the fair.

Country singer Alan Jackson will perform at the fair at 7 p.m. and 9 p.m. Friday. Tickets for the performance cost $15.

Telemundo 46 will sponsor a free concert by Oscar G y Grupo Sol at 7 p.m. and 9 p.m. Saturday.

Raiders asked to show spirit

by JENNIFER GOOCH
THE UNIVERSITY DAILY

Texas Tech spirit organizations are encouraging Red Raider fans to douse themselves with spirit this weekend for the football game against Texas A&M.

"Red Raiders Black Out A&M" is the theme for the "big game" at 11 a.m. Saturday.

"The 'Big Game' weekend refers to the game between Texas Tech and A&M or Texas, whichever team is playing in Lubbock," said Tom McGinnity, assistant coordinator for student activities.

Saddle Tramps are encouraging students to help the Midnight Raiders decorate the Tech campus with black and red streamers at 9:30 p.m. tonight.

"A&M is just such a big rival with us that we hope more people will come out and join us in decorating the campus," said Saddle Tramp Kevin Barnes, a junior communication studies major from Abilene. "We need as many people to show up as possible and everyone is welcome."

At 11 p.m., students can join the Saddle Tramps at Memorial Circle to wrap the Will Rogers statue and to sing the Matador song.

"If we can get as much spirit as possible built up, maybe we can lead the Red Raiders to a victory," Barnes said.

McGinnity said students are encouraged to wear red and black to school Friday.

"We want to intimidate A&M when they come to town," he said. "All we want them to see is black and red."

However, students are being asked to wear only black to the game, McGinnity said.

Raider Red and the Masked Rider will tour the campus Friday and hand out certificates to people dressed or to offices decorated in black and red.

"Around one o'clock, they will go around looking for individuals or offices showing their spirit," McGinnity said.

There also will be a pep rally at 7:30 p.m. Friday at Jones Stadium.

"We are encouraging fans to show up at 7 p.m. since parking will be a problem because of a concert in the coliseum," McGinnity said. "The football team's senior members will open the pep rally with a greeting."

A student organization banner contest will be conducted during the pep rally and the winners will be announced at 8 p.m.

"We really want people to come out and show Spike and the team they support the Raiders," McGinnity said.

Saddle Tramps will guard the Tech seal, Tech's fountains, and the Will Rogers statue starting at 11 p.m. Friday, directly after the pep rally.

"We will have three guards switching shifts every two hours until 7 a.m. Saturday morning," said Saddle Tramp pledge Quentin Harbert, a freshman animal science major from Dumas. "They will resume at 7 p.m. Saturday until 7 a.m. Sunday."

Tech player charged with weapon violation

by JAYSON BALES
THE UNIVERSITY DAILY

Donald Marshall, a senior football player for Texas Tech, was charged by the Lubbock Criminal District Attorney's office Wednesday with unlawfully carrying a weapon in his car.

Lubbock Police Department officers arrested Marshall on Sept. 19 at about 3:45 a.m. in the 5400 block of Avenue U after a call was received in reference to gunshots fired in the area of 50th Street and Avenue U, police reports stated.

Marshall reportedly was carrying a 9 mm handgun and a 9 mm luger round under the passenger side floor mat of his car. The police report stated Marshall said another person was firing a gun at him before he fired three shots back.

Other items found in Marshall's automobile included various cassette tapes, a pair of glasses and an empty plastic cup.

Marshall, a wide receiver for the Red Raiders from Grand Prairie, would not comment on the charges but said his status on the team was unchanged as of Wednesday.

"As far as I know, it is unaffected," he said.

Marshall practiced with the team Wednesday afternoon.

Marshall has caught seven passes this season for 104 yards in four games for the Red Raiders.

Regents to discuss name change, athletic director's employment contract

by JENNIFER GILBERT
THE UNIVERSITY DAILY

Texas Tech's Board of Regents will meet at 10:30 a.m. today for committee meetings focusing on financial, geographical and technical changes at the university.

The meeting will be in room 2B152 at the Texas Tech University Health Sciences Center.

The agenda includes the consideration of increased tuition for doctoral students taking hours beyond established limits, the merger and renaming of the economics and geography departments and the name change of the agronomy, horticulture and entomology department to the plant and soil science department.

Agronomy, horticulture and entomology department Chairman Dick Auld said,

"We have had trouble in the past for our department's publicity."

"We are now deeply involved in environmental issues like food safety, water quality, reducing soil erosion and reducing agricultural chemicals."

Auld said he wants students to know what the department's functions are.

"I think we have a good chance," he said. "It could be better to define the functions instead of the disciplines."

"We want to set an agenda for visibility and communication for our department," Auld said. "Agronomy means something different for everyone."

He said many students have narrow definitions of the respective programs.

"We feel like the name change could help," Auld said.

The revision of the TTUHSC mission statement also will be discussed.

"We are submitting the idea to expand the HSC mission statement to reflect the potential pharmacy school programs in Amarillo and Lubbock," said Jim Lewis, executive assistant to TTUHSC's provost.

"We also want to address border health issues."

Lewis said there are medically underserved people along the Texas and Mexico border because of factors that include a shortage of doctors and of insurance.

The board will discuss a request that was made to use a triangular parcel of Tech land located southwest of the Tech Museum.

The 4-acre area will be utilized for a Windmill Collection Project.

The approval of Athletic Director Bob Bockrath's employment contract and Tech's budget adjustments from June 1 through Aug. 31 also are on the agenda.

Womanizing The Citadel

When one talks of The Citadel, strong military traditions come to mind. But one of those traditions has been challenged, and it's the oldest one of them all. The Citadel is a military academy, often called the "West Point of the South," but the school has failed to keep up with the times in one respect. Only men are allowed to attend the school. The number of women who attend the U.S. Military Academy has grown each year since they have been permitted, but it hasn't at The Citadel. In fact, no women have ever attended. Now someone has brought the situation to the attention of the South Carolina Supreme Court, and yes, it's a woman. She wants to attend the academy, but she has to go through the court system to do it. The Citadel is not an entirely private institution, South Carolina provides funds to the university. If it were totally private, then school officials could let in or keep out whomever they wanted to. But the fact remains, The Citadel receives funds from both the private and public sectors. The naysayers will remind you that this school is rich in tradition. The Citadel, they will tell you, has remained strong throughout the years because it has kept its tradition and remained strong. Forget about tradition. Granted, many things are best kept the way they are. However, this is an exception. Think of how many academies in the past have let in women. The Air Force Academy, the Naval Academy, Virginia Military Institute, Norwich and West Point have all accepted females into their academies. And don't forget, Texas A&M once shunned all females. No wonder they're called Aggies. Did these women actually want to enter into combat? Maybe some of them did, but the vast majority probably just wanted to get an education. The student who petitioned for admission into The Citadel received a letter of congratulations before The Citadel realized they had made a mistake by accepting a woman. Could it be that she, too, wants to join this prestigious school because it is possibly one of the best schools in South Carolina and in the United States? Or maybe, God help us all, she simply wants to receive a quality education and eventually serve her country. Anyone can distinguish the difference between men and women and can realize there are physical differences. Yet, that shouldn't restrict anyone from studying in the classroom.

PLAN MISUNDERSTOOD

To the editor:
 Dean Richard (UD Sept. 27) purports to inform us just how dreadful the Clinton Health Care plan will be. He uses the sorry plight of "Fran's Flower Shop" to illustrate the devastating effects of employer mandated insurance coverage in small businesses. This story then leads him to facile generalizations about the death of the American economy. Before we accept Mr. Richard's conclusions, we ought to examine the foundation of his argument, which turns out to be a load of sand. Mr. Richard does not bother to get his facts straight, either about the Clinton plan or his own mathematics. First, he forgets to include "Fran" herself in his insurance calculations. Second, he seems to lack the time to read any of the available summaries of the Clinton plan. Had he done so, he would have learned that the employer is responsible for 80 percent of the employee's health insurance cost (as he says), but also that such contributions are limited to 7.9 percent of payroll. This means that Fran's costs would be $12,600 to cover herself and her 10 employees, not the $33,600 of Mr. Richard's fevered imagination. Moreover, employers with low wage employees (Fran's are paid $12,000 per year in Mr. Richard's example) receive a further discount, reducing their obligation to as little as 3.5 percent of payroll (or $5,600, instead of $33,600). I suppose that it is possible that Mr. Richard is correct that the Clinton plan would spell disaster for America, but if he cannot interrupt his ideological musings long enough to read the simplest details of the legislation (and he apparently a budding attorney!), why should we worry about his imaginings?

AGGIES MISUNDERSTOOD
To the editor:
 As an A&M graduate who is now a Texas Tech student, I found Megan Clark's article on September 21 extremely distasteful. Yes, A&M has many silly and outdated traditions. Aggies make fun of this fact all the time. Everyone knows that if it is done twice, it is a tradition at A&M. The fact that Ms. Clark made fun of A&M's traditions was not offensive. It was a joke. While somewhat less than original, it's still good for a cheap laugh. What was offensive was the fact that she chose two traditions that honor Aggies who have died to ridicule. "Silver Taps" is held on the first Tuesday of every month at 10:30 (not the middle of the night) to pay respect to students who have died. I doubt the friends or families of these individuals found this very humorous. As for not walking on the grass, I realize how this could seem stupid to people, like Ms. Clark, who are less than informed about this tradition. The grass around the A&M Memorial Student Center is a living memorial to Aggies who gave their lives defending this country. Also not humorous. There are many traditions at A&M that are funny. These two, however, are not and to use them in a whimsical manner was in very poor taste.

BIKERS MISUNDERSTOOD
To the editor:
 This letter is written to the "fraternal order of the brotherhood of bikers" and in particular Mr. Craig Pruscha, who hopefully does not speak for all. Mr. Pruscha, your blatant disregard for the safety of pedestrians who you and your bicycle "strike fear into the hearts of," can only be explained by your tremendous ego. While a bicycle may give you a "free spirit" it certainly doesn't give you priority over those of us who choose to be pedestrians on this campus. As for the new enforcement of bike laws on campus, I can finally praise the UPD for something, though it didn't come soon enough to save the woman I saw get hit outside the business administration building last semester by a cyclist who apparently felt that walking his bike in from the curb "defeated his purpose of owning it." My point is this: if you choose to ride to class fine, that is your right. But, "us pedestrians" have the right of way and we do not deserve to have "terror stricken in our hearts" by egocentric bicyclists like you who can't seem to figure out what a sidewalk is. We don't like the way you ride, but we certainly are not going to skip class. And, if there's any justice left in the world, I only hope a ticket will dissuade you from riding on "our" sidewalks.

Professor finds truth in science and Christianity

by LESLIE WEEKS
THE UNIVERSITY DAILY

Science vs. Christianity.
What some people may consider conflicting subjects is an area to which head of Texas A&M's department of mechanical engineering Walter Bradley has devoted his life.
"First and foremost I am a Christian," Bradley said. "However, I also make a living in science."
This combination was one of the topics of Bradley's speech at the Lubbock Trinity Church Wednesday.
"Out of all the credits I took and all the teachers I had, I never met a professor who was Christian," he said. "I was wondering if there was something incompatible between having a Ph.D and being a Christian," he said. "It would have meant so much to me to have one professor who was openly and unashamedly a Christian.

With this in mind, Bradley said he began to witness to students in class.
"My plan was to take a few minutes at the end of class to share a bit of Christian testimony," he said.
However, Bradley said he did not have the nerve to witness until the day of finals.
"Twenty-one days in a row I chickened out," he said. "I was not so much worried about being fired, I was worried about what the students were going to think about me."
"On the day of final exams I finally screwed up my courage and gave them my testimony," Bradley said. "It began a long journey that has continued to this day."
Bradley, who has been a professor at A&M for the past 25 years, said he feels he is in a place of service that God has provided for him.

Study finds obesity takes hardest toll on women, young

BOSTON (AP) — Science confirms what overweight people already know: Obesity can be a heavy burden, especially for the young, who face a high risk of being poor and single as they grow old.
And while life can be difficult for overweight men, hefty women seem to suffer more in terms of money and love, researchers found.
Compared with other women, those who are overweight during their teens and early 20s:
— Are 20 percent less likely to get married.
— Have household incomes that average $6,710 lower.
— Are 10 percent more apt to live in poverty.

— Average four months less schooling.
The researchers blame discrimination for the differences.
"I don't think this will come as news to obese people," said Dr. William Dietz of New England Medical Center, one of the researchers. "They are freely discriminated against."
For males, obese young men are 11 percent less likely to get married, and their family income averages $2,876 lower.
"Being fat has always meant being downwardly mobile, especially for women. Society discriminates against people of size," said Karen Stimson, director of Largesse, an organization that fights "sizism."

The study, published in Thursday's issue of the New England Journal of Medicine, was based on a random sample of 10,039 people ages 16 to 24. They were surveyed in 1980 and again in 1988.
The researchers compared the 370 most overweight people to the rest. The women in the heavy group averaged 5-foot-3 and 200 pounds; the men 5-foot-7 and 225 pounds.
The researchers estimate that more than 1 million young Americans are that big.
One important reason for overweight women's lower household incomes is that they are often unmarried. This accounts for about half their lower average family incomes.

"These data indicate that obesity may be an important determinant of economic status of women in the United States," said Dr. Steven L. Gortmaker of Harvard School of Public Health, principal author of the study.
However, Dr. David Williamson of the U.S. Centers for Disease Control and Prevention noted that the researchers studied only the most overweight young people among the general population.
The researchers contend their findings turn around a common theory about the relationship between obesity and poverty, which holds that people are often fat because they are poor.

Grand Dragon prepared for jail to protect Klan records

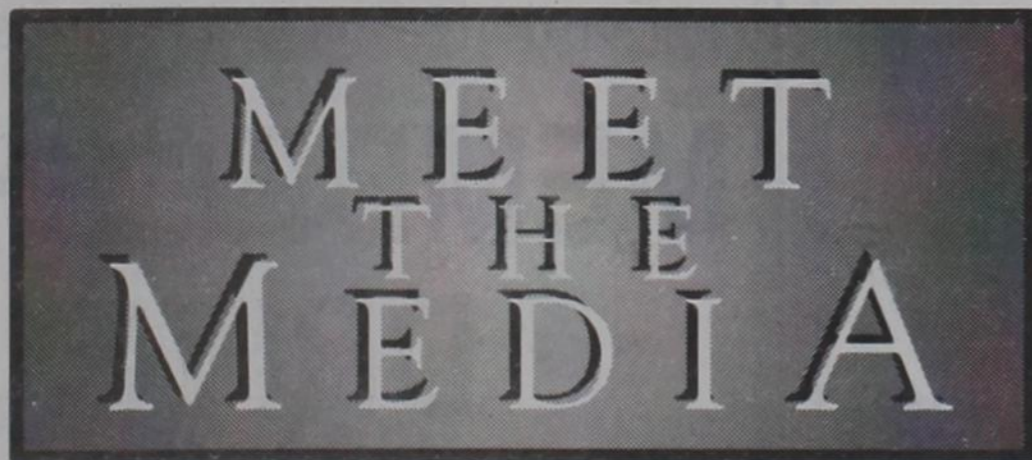

AUSTIN (AP) — A state judge ruled Wednesday that a grand dragon of the Ku Klux Klan must turn over records as part of an investigation of threats made against desegregation efforts in the all-white East Texas town of Vidor.
But Michael Lowe, grand dragon of the Texas Knights of the KKK, said he'll go to jail before he'll turn over records such as membership lists and bylaws of the Klan.
He cited his constitutional rights of free speech and against self-incrimination.

"There's no way I'm turning over the records," Lowe said.
"Our constitutional rights protect us."
State District Judge John Dietz didn't immediately say when Lowe must turn over the records. Prosecutors speculate that it could be 30 days before he could be in contempt of court and possibly face jail time for not turning them over.

Tech alumni recognized for contributions, receive kudos from President Lawless

by JAYSON BALES
THE UNIVERSITY DAILY

Four Texas Tech graduates will receive the Distinguished Alumni Award Friday for bringing recognition and service to their communities and to Tech.

E.R. Brooks, Dr. Dolores Hutto Carruth, R.D. Cash and Joe A. Stanley Jr. will be honored by the university and the Ex-Students Association at 7 p.m. Friday at the Knippling Education/Conference Center at Lubbock's Methodist Hospital.

Tickets for the dinner cost $35 each and reservations should be made by 4 p.m. today.

Ex-Student Association Director Bill Dean and Tech President Robert Lawless will present the honored alumni with a plaque and a medallion. Ex-Students Association Special Events Director Peggy Pearce said.

The distinguished alumni also will be recognized before Saturday's football game between Tech and Texas A&M, she said. Brooks received an electrical engineering degree from Tech in 1961 and was named a Distinguished Engineer at the university in 1988.

Brooks is chairman, president and CEO of Central and South West Corp. in Dallas.

Carruth graduated from Tech in 1958 with a degree in psychology and earned her medical degree in 1963 at the University of Texas Southwestern Medical School in Dallas.

Carruth is a physician in Dallas, specializing in neonatology.

Cash received a degree from Tech in 1966 in industrial engineering and is the chairman, president and CEO of Questar Corp. in Salt Lake City, Utah.

Stanley graduated from Tech in 1939 with a degree in civil engineering and was named a Distinguished Engineer at Tech in 1983.

He is the former president of Continental Water Systems Inc. and Hygeia Water Co. and is now retired and lives in Lubbock.

Stanley said he is proud to be receiving the Distinguished Alumni Award.

"It was the most unexpected award I've ever received," he said. "A lot of fond memories and a sense of values were developed (at Tech)."

THE UNIVERSITY DAILY

It is almost flu season again and Texas Tech's Student Health Services is offering $7 flu vaccinations at Thompson Hall.

Influenza, commonly referred to as the flu, is a viral infection of the respiratory system that spreads by coughs and sneezes.

Dr. Cheryl Tyler, director of Student Health Services, said the symptoms of influenza are fever, coughing, sore throat, headaches and muscle aches.

"We have had a few students come in with the symptoms of influenza and there have been a number of cases in Louisiana," Tyler said.

Some people believe the flu vaccination causes influenza, but that is no longer the case, she said.

"There is no way students can get the flu from the shot," she said. "They have changed the vaccine so it is made from proteins from the outside layer of the virus."

Tyler said Thompson Hall personnel are expecting from 500 to 800 students requesting the vaccination this flu season.

The shot protects against three types of influenza, the Panama, Texas and Beijing strains.

Tyler said the content of the vaccination changes yearly depending on the strains that hit Asia, where the flu season begins several months before the United States' season.

Tyler said some people are predicting a bad flu season because of the type of strains already detected and because of how the strains have affected the people suffering from the virus.

Tyler said the main side effect of the vaccination is a general achiness in the area the injection was given.

Fever, malaise and muscle aches also may occur in some people for a few days after the shot is given, according to information from

STUDENTS MAY MISS TWO OR THREE DAYS OF CLASS AND GET BEHIND BECAUSE THEY CANNOT STUDY IF THEY COME DOWN WITH IT.

Methodist Hospital.

"Another problem is when fewer people get the flu one year they might become more susceptible to it," Tyler said.

"If a student already has the virus, then they just have to treat the symptoms with Tylenol and cold medication," she said.

Complications that can occur from influenza are bronchitis and pneumonia, she said.

Tyler said she recommends that students who have any chronic health problems, such as asthma or diabetes, get the shot because of possible complications that can arise if the flu virus is caught.

She also recommended that students get the shot because of the close contact and the likelihood of exposure on a college campus.

"Students may miss two or three days of class and get behind because they cannot study if they come down with it," Tyler said.

Students interested in the vaccination should call Student Health Services at 743-2848 to make an appointment.

Tech faculty members make change from 'real world' to take college job

by LESLIE WEEKS
THE UNIVERSITY DAILY

Texas Tech College of Engineering officials hired Noe Lopez-Benitez, Nancy VanCleave, Randy Burkett and Ryan Provenzano as faculty members.

Provenzano and Burkett are teaching in the engineering technology department. Both have previous industrial knowledge.

"It's always helpful to bring industrial experience to the classroom," Provenzano said. "I will correlate what is presented in the classroom to what is currently practiced in industry."

Provenzano founded and manages Caprock Manufacturing, Inc., a custom injection molding company.

"I've taught in an industry and employee training class, but this is my first venture to the academic setting," Provenzano said. "There is more work involved than one on the outside would think."

Burkett spent time in an industry setting before and after teaching at Lamar University for five years.

"In the engineering technology program, we are looking to teach students applications," Burkett said. "Having been out in industry, I will have a better feel for what they need to know."

Provenzano said he wants to make sure students are prepared and up-to-date.

"There is a difference between what may be in the textbook compared to what is really being done out there," Provenzano said.

"I would like to close that gap," he said.

Lopez-Benitez and VanCleave are instructing in the computer science department.

"I have had several years experience teaching and working with students of all different ages," said VanCleave, a former professor at Williams College.

Lopez-Benitez taught at Louisiana Tech University.

"I worked there for four years," he said. "During those years I initiated some research efforts that I am continuing here."

Lopez-Benitez said he believes that, because he is Hispanic, he will be able to help some students.

"I guess I feel that I should relate with the Hispanic population in this part of the country," he said. "I look forward to that."

Broken promise means big bucks for actress

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Actress Kim Basinger got no break in bankruptcy court from a judge's order that she pay $8.1 million for failing to appear in the film "Boxing Helena."

A Superior Court jury found in March that Basinger broke a promise to star in the movie about obsessive love.

Jazz keyboardist Corea, band bring tour to Lubbock

by LARA M. CAMPBELL
THE UNIVERSITY DAILY

A jazz sound will be emanating from the Depot's 19th Street Warehouse tonight.

The Chick Corea Elektric Band II is on tour promoting its sixth album, "Paint the World," and will go on stage at 9 p.m.

The band is boasting three new members, who have changed the composition and production techniques. Gone is the use of synthesizers, and a new organic sound is in its place.

"I simplified the electronic aspects, adding more acoustic piano with less synth," Corea said. "I wanted the music to be improvisational, using a lighter touch on the keys to add a kind of sensitivity."

Three members left the band, and the new sound was developed after the 1991 album, "Beneath The Mask."

Chick Corea Elektric Band II

"After that album, we had reached a transition period, and we all knew it was time for a change," Corea said. "It was a natural process, the right thing for everybody, a mutual agreement of free spirits who wanted to pursue their own music."

Growing up in the Northeast with the sounds of Dizzy Gillespie and Charlie Parker along with Beethoven and Mozart, Corea began studying piano at age 4.

The 52-year-old Corea began his career with trumpeter Blue Mitchell. Working with artists Herbie Mann and Mongo Santamaria had an influence on the style of Corea's music, and a Latin sound can still be detected in his works.

"My interests change and vary as the years go along, with different emphases all the time," Corea said.

"The more I play in different situations, the more possibilities I discover for what I can do. I always want to move on to the next area of interest, which is now my new Elektric Band."

Local band Phoenix just 'old guys' with love of country music

by MICHELLE ELIZARDO
THE UNIVERSITY DAILY

If anyone planning to attend the Panhandle-South Plains Fair enjoys listening to down-to-earth country music, local band Phoenix will provide just that with a free concert tonight.

Local radio station FM-101.1 (K-ONE) will sponsor an "Alan Jackson Look-A-Like Contest" followed by a free performance by Phoenix at 8 p.m. today in the Fair Park Coliseum.

"Everyone in the band has known each other all our lives, so we feel comfortable playing on stage," said Jerry Brownlow, a K-

ONE disc jockey and Phoenix bassist and vocalist.

Brownlow said the band started about a year ago, and the members are looking to record in the future.

"After my brother and I stopped playing for the Maines Brothers, we decided to get together and have some fun," he said.

"There is nothing flashy about the band. We all have our own regular jobs, but still take our music seriously," said Mark Paden, guitarist and vocalist in the band.

Paden said each member has been in different bands and has been playing music for 20-30 years.

"After all the experience we all have had, I think we bring some maturity on stage," he said.

Paden said finding a name for the band was interesting, because the members were looking for a name that did not have any West Texas attachment to it.

"One day we were looking at a map, when one of the member's sons threw a pencil and it landed on Phoenix," Brownlow said.

"We thought it was perfect because the symbol of a Phoenix rising from the ashes fit as our band that was getting together after all these years," Paden said.

The other members of the band are: Wally Moyers, guitarist; Charlie Eaton, drummer; and Randy Brownlow, pianist.

"We listen to a wide array of musicians like James Taylor and, of course, Merle Haggard," Brownlow said. "Our music is an aggressive type of country, and we want the public to find out what we are all about."

"This gives a bunch of old guys a chance to play," Paden said. "We are just a local band with a love for country music."

To BE THE BEST

Musicals offer fun, entertaining side of movie industry

LARA M. CAMPBELL But thanks to the local video stores, we still have an opportunity to see some of the classic musicals.

Musicals bring a touch of Broadway to the big screen.

While recently watching the 1964 Best Picture, "My Fair Lady," a friend kept laughing every time the characters broke out in song.

True, musicals are far from realistic (I haven't seen many guys dancing and singing around the UC lately), but how much of what you see in the movies is realistic?

"Jurassic Park" and "Terminator 2" use great special effects, but are hardly true to life.

When watching a musical, you have to go into it with the knowledge that, yes, men and women are going to begin to sing in the middle of the street, and the people on that street have had wonderful lessons in choreography.

But by refusing to watch a musical simply because it's a musical, you're missing out on some of Hollywood's movie classics.

"West Side Story" and "The Sound of Music" are musicals that have produced some of America's most memorable scenes and songs.

Sometimes referred to as the modern day "Romeo and Juliet," "West Side Story" is the tale of two young lovers who come from different sides of the track.

Set in New York City, two rival gangs, the "Jets" and the "Sharks," fight their battles while Tony (a Jet) and Maria (sister of a Shark) try to bridge the gap between their two cultures.

Of course, 20 gang members performing in at first hard to imagine, but the songs are fun, entertaining and often funny.

"Officer Krupkey" and "America" are two songs you will find yourself singing for days.

"The Sound of Music," Best Picture in 1965, is by far one of the greatest movies ever made.

Starring Julie Andrews, it is the tale of the Von Trapp family and their struggle to escape Nazi Austria.

The struggle between values, faith and true love are played out in pre-World War II Europe.

"Favorite Things" is probably the most famous song that comes from the movie.

So the next time you're in the video store and can't decide what you want to watch, stroll on over to the musical section and pick up one of the classics. Trust me, you'll be pleasantly surprised.

Lara M. Campbell is a Lifestyles reporter for The University Daily.

Rhinos! SHARON M. STEINMAN: THE UNIVERSITY DAILY

Berenger (John Burton) and Daisy (Shaneye Ferrell) realize they may be the last man and woman in the world. The play, "Rhinos," will run at 8 p.m. today through Saturday and at 2 p.m. Sunday in the Tech Lab Theatre. Tickets are $6 for non-students and $3 for Tech students, and are available at the main theater or lab theater box offices.

Men linksters take Woodlands Intercollegiate

The Texas Tech men's golf team began its season in a big way with a two-stroke win over Southwestern Louisiana Wednesday at the Woodlands Intercollegiate Golf Championships at The Woodlands.

Tech finished the round with a 303, but it was enough to hold onto the win after Southwestern Louisiana shot a 297 in the second round.

The Red Raiders also finished ahead of fellow District VI opponents Southwestern Louisiana, North Texas and Sam Houston State.

Tech's win should help the Raiders later this year when bids for the NCAA regional tournament, which are determined by how each team fares against district competition, are announced.

By virtue of the tourney win, Tech is 1-0 in head-to-head competition with the District VI teams that competed in the tourney.

The Raiders opened the tournament shooting a first-round total of 294, which gave Tech a three-stroke lead over Texas-San Antonio.

Michael Ashy finished in a tie for second with Jeff Brown on USL, while Michael Schrade was right behind tied for fourth place.

Schrade was third after the first round shooting a 70, with a 77 in the second round for a total of 147.

Ashy had a two-day total of 146, with an even par 72 in the first round and 74 in the second round.

Tech's Bryan Novoa was the only other player to finish in the top 15, shooting 150 over the two days.

Scott Friggle finished in a tie at 40th place with a 156, while Lance Lokey shot a 157 for 43rd.

Women golfers finish 12th at UNM

The Texas Tech women's golf team finished its second tournament of the season with a 12th place finish at the 15th Dick McGuire Invitational in Albuquerque, N.M.

The Red Raiders finished the tournament with a three-day total of 939.

Tamara Parker was the highest finisher for Tech, shooting a 226 over the three days. Parker fired a final round of 71. Stacey Kolb finished with a 228 to tie for 21st.

Tracy Thompson shot a 240 for 57th place, while Adelia Metcalf finished at 242 for 61st.

Candy Merrill shot a 248 to finish in a tie for 71st.

TIAA-CREF on SOUND RETIREMENT INVESTING

HERE'S WHY THE SMART MONEY IN TEXAS IS GOING WITH TIAA-CREF AS IF THE FUTURE DEPENDS ON IT.

Because it does. Smart investors know that your future depends on how well your retirement system performs. TIAA-CREF has been the premier retirement system for people in education and research for some 75 years. We have enabled over 280,000 people like you to enjoy a comfortable retirement. And over 1,300,000 are now planning for the future with TIAA-CREF.

LOOK FOR SECURITY, GROWTH AND DIVERSITY.

Security—so the resources are there when it's time to retire. Growth—so you'll have enough income for the kind of retirement you want. And diversity—to help protect you against market volatility and to let you benefit from several types of investments.

HERE'S WHAT YOU GET WITH TIAA-CREF.

TIAA offers you the safety of a traditional annuity that guarantees your principal plus a specified rate of interest, and provides for additional growth through dividends. For its stability, sound investments, claims-paying ability and overall financial strength, TIAA has received the highest possible ratings from all four of the insurance industry's leading independent agencies.*

CREF's variable annuity offers opportunities for growth with five different investment accounts, each managed with the long-term perspective essential to sound retirement planning.

Raiders overcome illness for four-game victory against Owls

Tech returns to win column in SWC; prepares for weekend matches at UNT, OU

by TARA HEARLIHY
THE UNIVERSITY DAILY

The Texas Tech women's volleyball team broke its three-match losing streak Wednesday with a four game win against Rice in the Student Recreation Center.

The Red Raiders won 15-2, 11-15, 15-9 and 15-10 upping their record to 8-4 and 1-1 in Southwest Conference play. The Owls fell to 8-6 and 0-1 in league play.

"We knew we had to win and break the streak," junior setter Ginger Carter said. "We needed to get back on track."

Tech was able to overcome illness and injuries during the match.

"We seemed to be better yesterday," coach Mike Jones said. "They had stamina tonight, but I am sure they will be very tired tomorrow."

"I had no energy in the end," said Carter, who is suffering from strep throat. "We had really long rallies and it made us work hard and we didn't get much rest in between. I felt like I was running everywhere."

Senior middle blocker Erica Ruegg said, "We have been working hard and always seem tired. We are dwindling person by person and are tiring naturally. I think we will probably need a break after this weekend."

Despite the fatigue, the Raiders had 16 service aces and 12 errors. Rice had four aces and 15 errors.

"It is always good when you have more aces than errors," Jones said. "We seemed to have better control on the ball after the beginning."

Tech used the serve to rally in the second game getting six points in a row attempting to come back from a 5-14 deficit. Even after the rally the Raiders lost the game 11-15 tying the match at one game apiece.

"We served well this time," Ruegg said. "We started slow, but we picked it up too late."

Sophomore outside hitter Jackie Bode had four aces in the match.

"Jackie served well for us and had a chance to do something," Jones said.

Tech was able to contain Rice's top outside hitter Sammy Waldron who managed 14 kills despite coming out of the second game after injuring her right ankle.

"I was told in the beginning that it was my job to stop her," Ruegg said. "I knew I had to concentrate on her. I got angry in the last game so that helped."

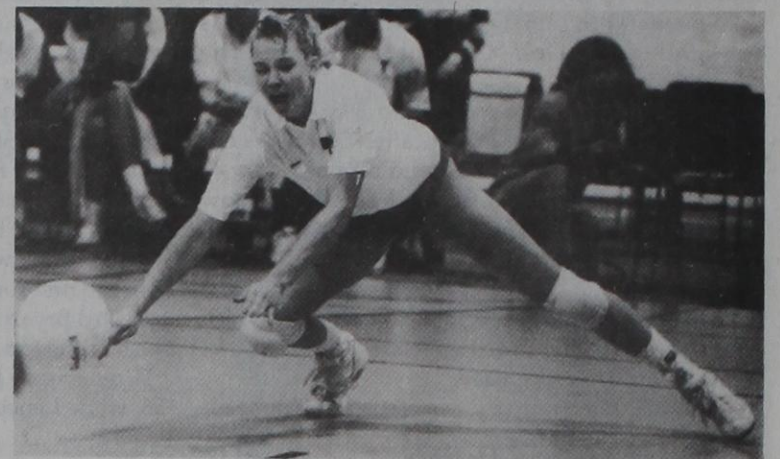

"She is a good hitter," Jones said of Waldron. "We did good against her which was a plus in our favor."

Tech begins a five-match road trip Friday night at Oklahoma. The Raiders beat the Sooners in their first match this season in five games.

"Most of us have had tests this week and we are thinking about the traveling. It can be hard to catch up and think about playing and classes," Ruegg said.

Jones said the team will focus on one game at a time.

"We have to focus on Oklahoma now," Jones said. "We have to get ready. We beat them here and I am sure they are ready to beat us there."

The Raiders then travel to North Texas for a match Saturday.

"We can't worry about the other games until then," Jones said.

After Wednesday's win, Tech is two matches away from becoming the fourth Southwest Conference school to have 500 career wins.
