Haiti peace proposal welcomed

PORT-AU-PRINCE, Haiti (AP) — U.N. officials welcomed a peace proposal by opponents of Haiti's exiled president, but said Sunday the army and lawmakers must move faster to restore democracy or face a broadened commercial embargo.

A U.N. spokesman said the proposal by a group of lawmakers opposed to exiled President Jean-Bertrand Aristide represented a shift toward acceptance of the U.N. plan to free violence-plagued Haiti from military rule.

Still, U.N. officials were trying to assess whether the plan unveiled Saturday night would ease the current crisis, or was a delaying tactic.

The United Nations reapplied a weapons and petroleum embargo last week to pressure the military to give up power.

Clinton battles with foreign policy

WASHINGTON (AP) — While a noisy debate rages on Capitol Hill, the Clinton administration and key allies in Congress are quietly examining what went awry in foreign policy and how to fix it.

Growing unhappiness over how the administration has handled crises in Haiti, Somalia and Bosnia has led to public and private calls for the dismissal of Secretary of State Warren Christopher and Defense Secretary Les Aspin.

"It's fair for the president to bring his secretary of state and his secretary of defense in and ask if they're really handling these situations in the best way possible," said Sen. Patrick Leahy, D-Vt.

"There has to be a thoroughgoing re-evaluation of policy," said Rep. Lee Hamilton, D-Ind., chairman of the House Foreign Affairs Committee.

Hutchison aide will help prosecution

DALLAS (AP) — The second of two aides indicted along with U.S. Sen. Kay Bailey Hutchison says he will assist prosecutors in their investigation of alleged wrongdoing within the state Treasury, according to a published report.

Chris Gunter, an attorney for former Deputy Treasurer Michael Barron, says his client will cooperate with Travis County District Attorney Ronnie Earle in his probe of the Treasury under Hutchison.

"He has cooperated up to this point and intends to cooperate fully and completely," Gunter said in Sunday's editions of The Dallas Morning News.

Another indicted Hutchison aide, David Criss, said in published reports Saturday that he "won't be the scapegoat" and also would cooperate with prosecutors.

Economics, geography departments plan merger

by JENNIFER GILBERT
THE UNIVERSITY DAILY

When Texas Tech students think of geography and economics, they may not perceive a relationship between the study of geographical land characteristics and the theories of supply and demand.

However, effective Nov. 1, the departments of geography and economics will merge because of the geography department's need for stability and better efficiency, economics department Chairman and professor Lewis Hill said.

Prof says move will add stability to programs

"I think there are several reasons (for the merger)," he said. "A lot of this is speculation because no official reason is known as to why."

"A feeling was that the geography department is too small to achieve optimum efficiency," Hill said.

He said a merge with a larger department will give the geography department more security for large-scale operations. "We welcome the geography faculty," Hill said. "The four professors are all distinguished and known for their outstanding credentials with respect to research."

"I would say, in summary, the merge of the small geography department with the large economics department gives them (geography) stability and security that could not have occurred as a small department," Hill said.

He said the departments would maintain separate faculty administration and separate academic programs.

Hill also said the economics and geography courses will be listed in the schedule of classes in the same manner as they have been listed.

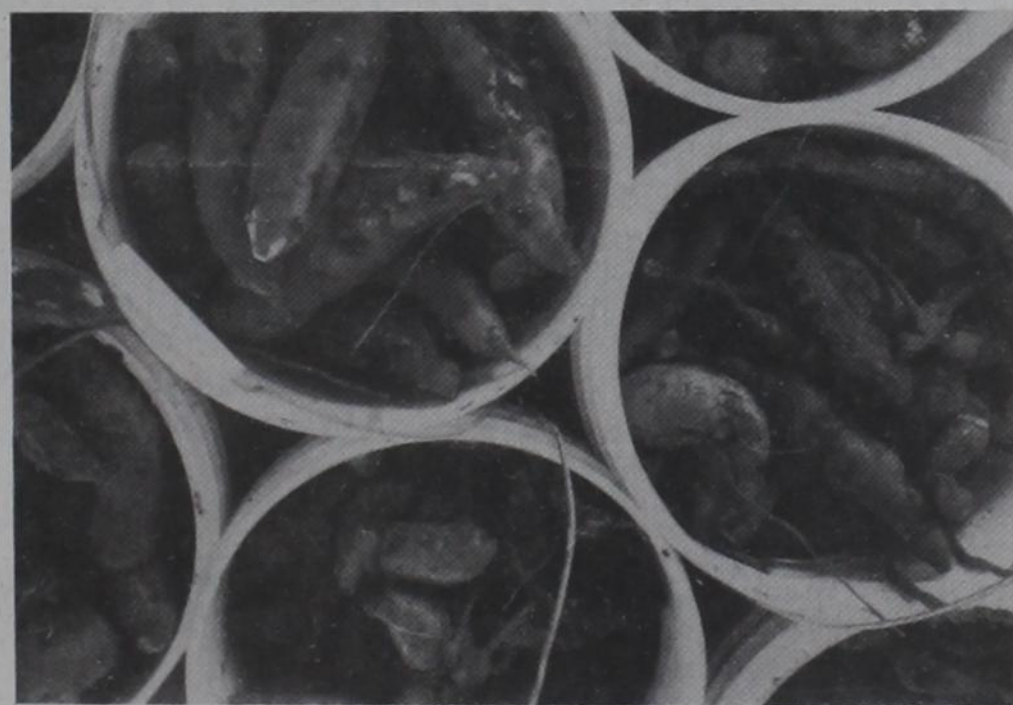

"Otis Templer from the geography department will be the associate chairman of the merged departments and will have primary control over their (geography) courses," Hill said.

"We (economics) have had close and cordial relationships with the geography department that have led to joint research and academic offerings."

Assistant geography professor Jeff Lee said small departments are vulnerable and said the merger will be better for the geography department.

Lee said there are relationships between economics and geography, including studies about how geographic characteristics affect economic decisions.

SWEET PICKINS

Harvest helps feed hungry

Deanna Passmore (above), a junior business management major from Houston, and Elise Ballard, a freshman arts and sciences undecided major from Lubbock, pick radishes. (Left) Buckets of sweet potatoes are ready to be washed and packaged for distribution to soup kitchens and needy families.

The vegetables picked Saturday will help to fill the 1,000 food baskets that are distributed each week in the South Plains area, said Roy Riddle, the farm manager of the South Plains Food Bank.

Each fall Texas Tech students volunteer to help the food bank with the Great Sweet Potato Harvest.

The volunteers pick sweet potatoes, tomatoes, radishes, beans, turnips, mustard greens and other vegetables to help feed the hungry.

Symptoms may signal German measles

by CHRISTY EVERETT
THE UNIVERSITY DAILY

A cough, runny nose and itchy eyes may be more than just a simple cold. They also are the symptoms of rubella, or German measles.

One student from the Wall/Gates Residence Hall was diagnosed with the virus Thursday. Another student was thought to have the virus, but has not been formally diagnosed.

To help prevent an outbreak of the virus, letters were distributed to Wall/Gates Residence Hall residents.

The letter informed residents about the diagnosis of the student and explained that a $5 shot would be offered

Center develops home economics curriculum for high schools

by MEGAN CLARK
THE UNIVERSITY DAILY

Developing course materials for secondary school programs in Texas is the primary focus of Texas Tech's Home Economics Curriculum Center.

"What we do is write curriculum materials for secondary or high school programs in the field of home economics," said Marilyn Wragg, director of the curriculum center. "We do not write textbooks, but we fill in the hole for textbooks with curriculum guides and reference and student activity books."

The center creates about six publications each year, and all are in accordance with home economics programs taught in Texas. In classes where no textbooks are offered, the center provides students with reference books and with student activity books.

The center also provides job-specific course curriculum guides, reference books and student activity books. These materials are for high school students planning to enter the work force following graduation, rather than attend college.

This year, the center will produce a Skills for Life notebook that will provide supplemental materials for any high school course.

"The whole notebook deals with general life skills and will be marketed in packets," Wragg said. "The first four packets are currently available but, within the next 18 months, all packets will be on sale."

Six supplemental guides for existing curriculum guides also will be produced this year. Authors of curriculum guides and reference materials are writers with human sciences backgrounds.

"What we do is match writers with what their expertise is," Wragg said. "For example, if someone has interest and background in nutrition, we have them write for the nutrition curriculum."

The center serves 2,300 teachers statewide by making available curriculum guides to prepare them for teaching home economics-oriented classes.

"It is not mandated by the state that all home economics teachers use these resources," Wragg said. "But, we develop this information specifically for their home economics programs."

The center, although established at Tech, is privately funded by the Texas Education Agency and the Texas Higher Education Board.

"Here at the center, we are under total guidance of the TEA," Wragg said. "We've developed everything through grants the TEA and other agencies have donated, and we are lucky that Tech has provided us with this operating facility."

► Giving spirit Christmas toys being collected

by LARA CAMPBELL
THE UNIVERSITY DAILY

Christmas is a time of year associated with love, generosity and sharing.

This year thousands of American children living in poverty will go without presents from Santa Claus.

Texas Tech's Community Action Network will try to help more children have a happier Christmas this year.

Each year, organizations such as the Salvation Army and local churches try to raise money and donations.

One group of children organizations often have difficulty finding toys for are boys age 7-12.

This year, the Community Action Network will be conducting a toy drive aimed at helping boys in this age group.

In conjunction with the Salvation Army, CAN and the Spirit of Sharing Committee will host the "Toys for Boys" toy drive.

"We've worked with the Salvation Army, and in the past, we have helped with the "Dress a Doll" and "Dress a Bear" campaigns," said Michael Leitschuh, assistant coordinator of student activities. "But both of these are aimed at girls."

This is the second year CAN is working with the Salvation Army to raise toys. Leitschuh said that the "Toys for Boys" drive hopes to raise more money and gifts for boys. The drive will run from Monday through Dec. 10.

Some goals for the "Toys for Boys" drive will be to collect athletic equipment such as baseball gloves, footballs, basketballs, skateboards and other sporting goods.

"Last year we had people come forward who wanted to buy things for boys, but they didn't know what to get," said CeCi Lou, activities adviser for the University Center and project coordinator for CAN.

Lou said the Salvation Army is estimating 3,000 applications from families requesting assistance during the holiday season.

Cash donations also will be accepted and used to purchase additional equipment for boys in need. Leitschuh said CAN is asking fraternities, men's residence halls and other men's organizations to get involved in the drive.

Individuals and groups are encouraged to bring in their donations early so that the planning committee can match the toys with those who need them.

Donations will be accepted in the Students Activities office on the second floor of the UC. For more information, contact CAN at 742-3621.

Freshman orientation
SA, dean of students want input

by Mike Fietz and Jo Hutcherson

Your Student Association and the Dean of Students Office work together each summer to welcome new students to our University during summer orientation. We have been talking about the future of the orientation program and how we impact students.

We want the input of the Texas Tech student body, faculty and staff! We are all a part of the first impression that new students and their families get when they set foot on our campus for the first time. Please think back for a moment to your first impression of our university. What person, program, activity or experience stands out in your mind? Was it positive, and did it make you feel like you were a part of Texas Tech? Or, was it a negative impression, and why?

We really feel that a bonding and sense of loyalty for your university begins with your first visit to our campus. What creates and enhances loyalty? How do we introduce our many fine traditions to these new students and parents and instill in them a sense of pride in the school they have chosen?

We don't want to be imitators of other schools, yet if you experience something that really impressed you at another university we would be interested in the information as well. If you had the responsibility of welcoming people to Texas Tech and letting them know what we are all about, what would you do to accomplish that?

Please — help us enhance the image of Texas Tech University. Send your responses as letters to the editor or to Mike Fietz at the Student Association or Jo Hutcherson in the Dean of Students Office.

Your input will really be considered, and this is your opportunity to make a difference at YOUR university.

Mike Fietz is the Student Association president and Jo Hutcherson is an assistant to the Dean of Students.

Parental sense should dictate don't play in traffic

KENDRA CASEY

Ever since the first time I watched "The Wizard of Oz" I've wanted to run outside during a tornado and experience the flying sensation Dorothy and the witch and Toto must have experienced during their trip to the Emerald City.

Now, I'm sure that had I not watched the timeless classic, I'd never have dreamed up such an antic by myself. So, I've decided to petition the major networks to remove Dorothy and her sidekicks from the annual lineup, and I'm putting together protest marches in hopes of convincing video rental stores to pull the film from their libraries.

It would be a shame for children to senselessly die in a tornado accident because they watched "The Wizard of Oz."

I was fortunate enough to have parents who through child rearing steered me away from playing in tornados and stealing cars in junior high school (my friends and I contemplated the car stealing but burned the words "Happy New Year" in the street instead).

I figure, too, that had I not had such parental guidance, I at least was blessed with enough common sense to stay away from 55 mph wind tunnels — and also, to keep out of the street when cars are whipping by at the same speed.

Producers of Walt Disney's recent film "The Program," in the same light, must have believed that movie-goers would have enough sense not to imitate a scene where actors lay in the middle of the road with cars passing them on both sides.

After all, playing in traffic was a childhood taboo. And, if the parents had failed to pass on that vital message, PBS and kindergarten drilled it.

It is unfortunate that the television and movie industries have to be censored by parents who want to pawn off the responsibility of raising their children on the mass media.

Surely the onset of grief associated with the loss of a child to a senseless accident doesn't erase a parent's ability to reason — to understand that a lack of common sense and guidance, not a movie or TV show or rap song, moves children or anyone else to set fire to a house or play in traffic or murder someone.

It's the kind of censorship that, in the name of birth control, leads to the burning of books with references to sex.

Children learn deviant behavior from television, movies, books and peers, but they learn to reject it from guidance — and common sense.

To the editor:

This letter is directed to Mr. David Proctor who submitted a letter that was printed Oct. 22. I disagree with Mr. Proctor's statements concerning smoking on campus. He argued that Tech has ceded its entire outdoor portion to smokers and that nonsmokers cannot use outdoor facilities at Tech. He also states that there is no place to sit outside that is not downwind of a smoker. Mr. Proctor suggests that Tech institute regulations to ban smoking on the Tech campus entirely.

Tech has one of the largest campuses in Texas. In fact it covers about 1,839 acres. That makes for about 80.1 million square feet. Divide that by an enrollment of 24,007 students and you will find that there are over 3,300 square feet per student. Surely a nonsmoker can find some room in a space that is more than 50 feet by 50 feet where there is no smoke.

Mr. Proctor also stated that smoking has been banned in all buildings on campus. This is not correct (smoking is allowed in dorm rooms), but I am sure that a vehement nonsmoker could find a spot with no smoke in one of our 200 or so buildings. If Mr. Proctor has his wish of a totally smoke-free environment on campus, I suppose that would also cut out cars. The amounts of carbon monoxide and other noxious fumes released by cars every day must be at least 100 times the amount of smoke that smokers exhale.

Furthermore, smokers do not congregate around doorways specifically to keep nonsmokers from using Tech's facilities. Smokers usually congregate, if they congregate at all, around one door. I would suggest to Mr. Proctor that he either hold his breath for the two seconds that it takes to walk through a door or use another entrance.

As for myself, I will continue to smoke on campus whenever and wherever I choose (except in buildings, of course).

The '90s Kennedy more reminiscent of LBJ

RUSSELL BAKER

Although President Clinton has always invited us to think of him as the Jack Kennedy of the 1990s generation, the more I watch him the more he reminds me of Lyndon Johnson. Physically he is a big man, like Johnson, with bad eating habits, like Johnson, and is a prodigious energy burner, like Johnson.

Johnson, like Clinton, was minutely informed on the tiniest piece of legislation and could talk about it until you screamed for mercy.

Like Johnson, Clinton is a product of segregation-cursed Southern politics where a man with the slightest liberal temperament, especially on the race issue, had to be as cunning and often unscrupulous as a Borgia to survive.

Like Johnson, Clinton is concerned chiefly with using his office to improve the domestic state of the Union. Not since Johnson, in fact, has a President matched the intensity with which Clinton has concentrated on domestic policy.

Kennedy, by contrast, was so absorbed in foreign policy that he seemed to have no domestic policy at all until Martin Luther King and the civil rights movement provoked his splendid, but belated, Federal interventions on behalf of racial equality.

Memory of Kennedy evokes the Bay of Pigs, the Cuban missile crisis, "Ich bin ein Berliner," the beginning of nuclear-weapons controls and of escalation of war in Vietnam.

It's hard to imagine Bill Clinton breathing that air, just as it was hard after 1963 to imagine Lyndon Johnson moving at ease in it.

Well of course Johnson tried to, and it brought him to calamity in Vietnam. And so to this day few people know him as the most progressive President since Franklin Roosevelt on domestic affairs or as the most heroic champion of civil liberties for all since Abraham Lincoln, while everybody knows him as the maker of historic disaster in Vietnam.

Partly this reflects the national ignorance of history, but Johnson helped ruin his own reputation by clinging to the failed Vietnam policy long after he could have cut his losses and applied himself to what he was good at; to wit, domestic policy.

In the Somalia business, Clinton is now flirting with the same danger while sounding alarmingly like the Johnson who was so determined to prove America's steadfast will that he destroyed his own Presidency and left the country poisonously divided behind him.

Like Johnson, who was never able to articulate any persuasive reason for continuing a war that seemed destined to last forever, Clinton falls into dim abstractions when talking about why we still have soldiers in Somalia and are now sending more.

He speaks of stabilizing the situation before pulling out in March. Those who remember the Johnson years may have the queasy suspicion that he is saying he sees "light at the end of the tunnel" up there in March.

The situation to be stabilized is a tribal war. How are Pentagon arts to be applied to stabilizing tribal warfare? President Reagan sent the Marines to stabilize a tribal war in Lebanon, then brought the survivors home after the tribal warrior blew up the barracks where they had been sleeping while waiting for instructions on how to stabilize the situation.

The Clinton-Johnson parallel becomes pronounced when we reflect that both came to the Presidency with feelings of inadequacy for managing war business.

Johnson was always aware of lacking President Eisenhower's authority at the Pentagon. He didn't even have Kennedy's bitter distrust of the whole national security apparatus caused by the Bay of Pigs fiasco. So, not surprisingly, he hadn't the cheek to chart his own Vietnam policy.

Clinton faces the well-publicized hostility of a professionalized military. It would be surprising if he didn't do pretty much what the professional national-security bureaucracy advises, which usually runs as follows: Don't lose face, because loss of face betokens loss of will, and loss of will tempts enemies to go for your jugular.

As with Johnson after Kennedy put some 17,000 soldiers into Vietnam, it was Clinton's Presidential predecessor, Bush, who put the troops into harm's way in Somalia. In both cases, two green, uncertain new Presidents were left with the problem of whether and how to get them out.

Johnson was succeeded by President Nixon, who promised he had a secret plan for getting them out. He hadn't. The promise helped him get elected though, and the war lasted four more years.

Zima's zoomin' into Hub City watering holes

JENNIFER GOOCH

A few weeks ago, I was introduced to a drink that is definitely like no other alcoholic beverage I have had before.

I am talking, of course, about Zima Clearmalt — that clear beer that you have been seeing at various watering holes around town.

Zima Clearmalt is a new alcoholic beverage processed by a new operating unit of Coors Brewing Co. It offers an alternative to alcohol drinkers in Lubbock and the surrounding southwest.

Although Zima is clear and lightly carbonated, it is not a wine cooler or a fruit-flavored beverage.

you'll be sorry."

Now, I am not a beer expert or a wine connoisseur, but I am a consumer. And, I think it is high time that the alcohol companies offer something different.

"Zima's success can be attributed, in large part, to the fact that we tapped into a real consumer need for a new mainstream adult alcoholic beverage that is ideal for all social occasions," said John Neu, Zima brand head.

I am not the only one in town that likes Zima. Restaurants and bars around Lubbock report that sales have been outstanding.

Bret Mitchell, manager of W.W. Coyote Restaurant and Bar, said the bar can usually go through about three cases of Zima in one weekend.

"It is selling really well," he said. "I have noticed that women buy it more often than men. I think it is just a good alternative to beer or hard liquor drinks."

"It doesn't have a strong alcohol taste, and it is not as harsh as beer," he said.

Mitchell said some people use Zima as a substitute for Seven-Up or soda water when mixing drinks with hard liquors.

"I have seen some people using it to mix with gin or vodka," he said.

Hooper said Mamaritas sells five to six cases of Zima each week. Prices for Zima range from $2 to $3, which is not all that more than regular beer and is certainly cheaper than mixed drinks.

But don't head out to the strip yet for Zima.

Travis Keller, assistant manager for Doc's Beer and Liquor, said liquor stores will not start selling Zima until this weekend.

"We have had a ton of people saying, 'Yeah, gimme a six-pack of Zima,' and I have to tell them that it is only offered in the bars right now," he said.

So, when you head for the bars this weekend, give Zima a try. And give your tastebuds a break.

Jennifer Gooch is a news reporter for The University Daily.

However, it resembles a lightly flavored mixed drink and it almost tastes like Seven-Up with a twang.

Some people think that Zima is just clear beer, but it's not. Clearmalt and clear beer are two distinctly different alcoholic beverages.

One of the good things about Zima is that it hardly has an alcohol taste at all. However, don't be fooled. If you think it does not have alcohol in it or that you won't suffer the consequences the next day, you're wrong.

"You can drink quite a few of them and think you aren't getting drunk," said Cheryl Hooper, manager of Mamaritas on Slide Road. "But, when you wake up the next day and have a horrible headache, Trudeau's speech is sponsored by the Center for Applied International Development Studies and the Latin American Area Studies Program.

Caviar producer nabbed with contraband eggs

SEATTLE (AP) — A false lead in a bank robbery case resulted in the conviction of a New Jersey company and its president on charges of producing more than 3,200 pounds of caviar from contraband fish eggs.

The caviar was made on 67 occasions between Oct. 22, 1985, and Dec. 7, 1990, when the annual legal harvest of sturgeon roe in Washington state was about 650 pounds.

The eggs may have come from as many as 350 female sturgeon, said Robert Turner, acting state fisheries director. Fishing for sturgeon is restricted in the Columbia River, and some have proposed that the fish be placed on the endangered species list.

Arnold Hansen-Sturm, 54, and Hansen Caviar Co. of Bergenfield, N.J., were convicted Friday of obstruction of justice and four misdemeanor violations of the Lacey Act, which makes it a federal offense to buy or sell fish products in violation of state law.

Ten days earlier, Stephen Gale Darnell, a fisherman who once lived in Stevenson, pleaded guilty to one count of conspiring with Hansen to market contraband sturgeon roe plus four Lacey Act felonies and three counts of making false statements on tax returns.

Urban designer to lecture at Tech

by LESLIE WEEKS
THE UNIVERSITY DAILY

Urban Designer Doug Kelbaugh will lecture about the urbanization of new and existing suburbs at 4:30 p.m. today in the Gallery Room of Texas Tech's architecture building.

"It (the lecture) is about new towns, suburbs and urban developments," assistant professor of architectural history Matthew Gallegos said. "He will present new ideas about how cities will be planned."

Gallegos said Kelbaugh has a very future-oriented vision of what American cities should be. "One of the main problems in

University of Washington professor has future-oriented vision, says Tech professor America today is housing," Gallegos said. "Solutions have been tried since World War II, but they have not worked well because they are economically and environmentally inviable."

Kelbaugh has a way of thinking about sites that most people are not aware of, Gallegos said.

"They (Kelbaugh's ideas) have to do with integrating people with where they work and where they live," Gallegos said. "It would really reduce automobile traffic."

Gallegos said Kelbaugh is moving away from developing bigger cities to developing smaller cities.

"He has an environmental and economic vision based on the way the American economy is now," Gallegos said.

The lecture is open to the public and is sponsored by Tech's College of Architecture.

"Anyone who is interested in American civics, culture and America in general should come," Gallegos said.

Kelbaugh is a professor at the University of Washington and an architect in a design firm.

Measles

Women taking contraceptives advised to be cautious of rubella

in the Wall/Gates Residence Hall lobby Friday.

Students who did not have the opportunity for the shot Friday can receive information by attending sessions Monday from Student Health Services officials in Thompson Hall.

"We are recommending any student who hasn't had two mumps, measles and rubella shots in their lifetime to get one," Student Health Services Associate Director Dee Jackson said.

She said if an individual is not sure if they have had a shot, they might want to consider it.

Jackson said having more than two shots will not hurt a person, but said it may increase immunity of the virus.

Gloria Atwood, head nurse for Student Health Services, said women receiving the shot are being questioned about adequate use of contraception because of the threat of birth defects if pregnancy occurs up to three months after the shot is administered.

Dr. Dwight Hood, a staff physician at Student Health Services, said the rubella virus has an incubation period of eight to 14 days.

The rash that accompanies the illness may begin to form as soon as 24 hours after the individual begins to feel ill, he said. The rash usually begins on the face and will extend to the entire body in about four days, Hood said. He said rubella can be caught by being exposed to respiratory droplets, sneezing and coughing.

Tech students celebrate recovery from addiction

by MEGAN CLARK
THE UNIVERSITY DAILY

Instead of trying to forget addictions and problems in the Celebration of Recovery program are cheering for the positive changes they have made in their lives.

Celebration of Recovery is a program at Texas Tech for students who are part of, or thinking about becoming a part of, a 12-step program. It offers students a chance to recover from their addictions or problems and get back into school and life.

"Basically, Celebration of Recovery is a program that gets students who are recovering from all kinds of addictions and problems into recovery programs and back into school," Student Assistant David Crosby said.

Crosby, a student in progress at the Center for Addiction, is a member of Celebration of Recovery and other 12-step programs.

"The program offers strong support for anyone in recovery," he said. "I wouldn't be doing as well in school or in my life if I wasn't a part of this."

Carl Andersen, director of the Study of Addiction, said Celebration of Recovery has proved to be an effective outlet for recovering students.

"This program is unique because it does not focus on one kind of addiction or problem," he said. "We get calls and walk-ins from students who want to be part of this program, with a wide variety of problems. We try to get them into recovery programs and attached to other recovering students."

Andersen said students involved in Celebration of Recovery form a network and help others work through the program.

"It becomes a community, almost a sub-society for the students," he said.

Each meeting begins with the serenity prayer and a pledge of confidentiality.

"Confidentiality is the fundamental principle of any 12-step program," Crosby said. "No one in a student's sorority, fraternity or classes will know."

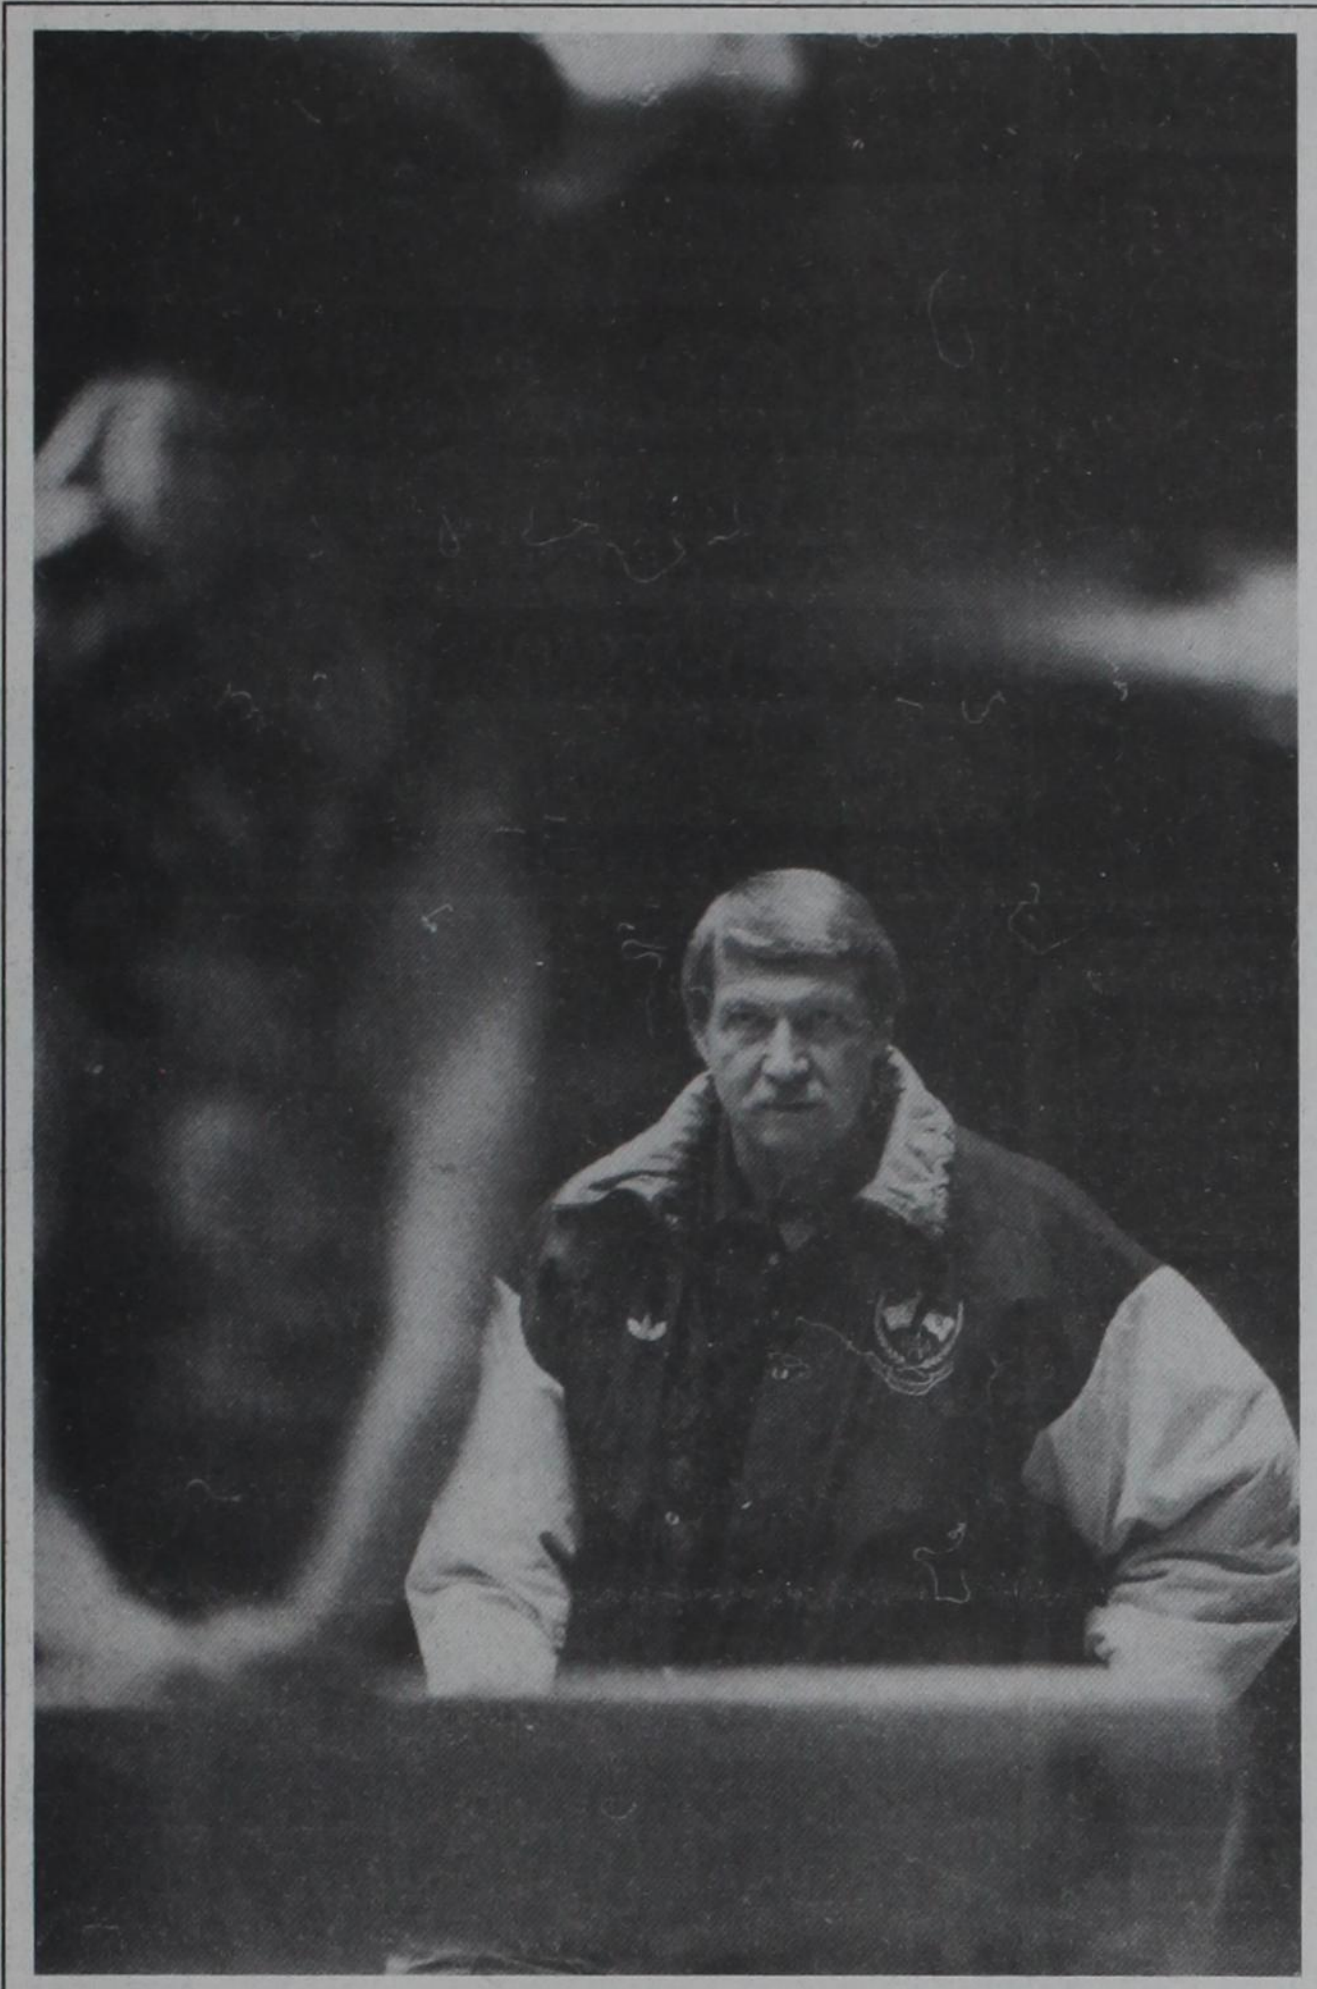

As the meeting progresses, chips are passed around marking the days, months and years of students' sobriety and freedom from problems.

Students and sponsors stand before the group and discuss their commitment to working through their problems.

Crosby said meeting attendance varies, but said usually 100 to 150 students come to the Celebration of Recovery meetings.

Fashion Week previews spring styles

NEW YORK (AP) — The big top is going up for the semi-annual media circus known as Fashion Week.

About 40 previews for Spring '94 will take place Oct. 31-Nov. 5 in a pair of 30-foot high white tents in Bryant Park and a large meeting hall in the adjacent New York Public Library on Fifth Avenue and 42nd Street. All three venues, with some 2,550 seats total, will be connected by covered walkways.

Another 25 or so runway shows are scheduled for designer showrooms or other venues. At smaller or less established houses, buyers visit by appointment with no fanfare.

Each year, New York is the final stop on the fashion express. Milan, Paris and London precede it, and those in the industry who make the circuit arrive frazzled. In seasons past, it got no better as the week wore on, what with a constant shuttling from crowded showroom to hotel ballroom to off-beat industrial space. Showtimes got backed up by traffic jams.

This season should be different. The Council of Fashion Designers of America, a non-profit organization of more than 185 American designers, set up 7th on Sixth Corp. Its intent is to create a central show space as was done in Paris with the new Louvre-Carrousel.

Plant set to perform

Rocker Robert Plant will perform at 7:30 tonight at the Lubbock Municipal Auditorium.

Opening for Plant will be the band Cry of Love.

Tickets cost $24 and will be available at the door if not sold out by show time.

Plant was lead singer of former rock band Led Zeppelin. He later formed the Honeydrippers, and now performs solo.

Cable-access show focuses on Generation X issues

by LARA M. CAMPBELL
THE UNIVERSITY DAILY

Homelessness is not something with which many Lubbockites concern themselves. To many, homelessness is something that happens only in big cities.

Daniel Light saw things a little differently. Through his television show, "Generation X," he decided to show the people of Lubbock the story of one homeless teen, along with many other issues affecting the younger generation.

"The show's main objective is to make a statement about the issues affecting the up-and-coming society of young adults, and it depicts the real problems the generation is encountering," Light said.

The show airs on public access channel 14 at 9:30 p.m. Mondays. Light said his show tests the public and pushes people's buttons.

"Basically, I like to see how much people can tolerate," he said.

The show covers a range of topics including high school dropouts, homophobia, sexuality, religion, education and politics.

The homeless story is that of a 17-year-old boy whose parents moved to Austin.

When the boy said he didn't want to go with them, Light said they gave him $50 and wished him good luck.

"The homeless youth story touched me — it was something I didn't know existed, especially here in Lubbock," Light said.

Light said he comes up with story ideas simply by keeping his ears open.

"I try to represent people in a way you wouldn't normally see (on television)," Light said.

Each episode is recorded on Light's camcorder, which he carries with him almost constantly.

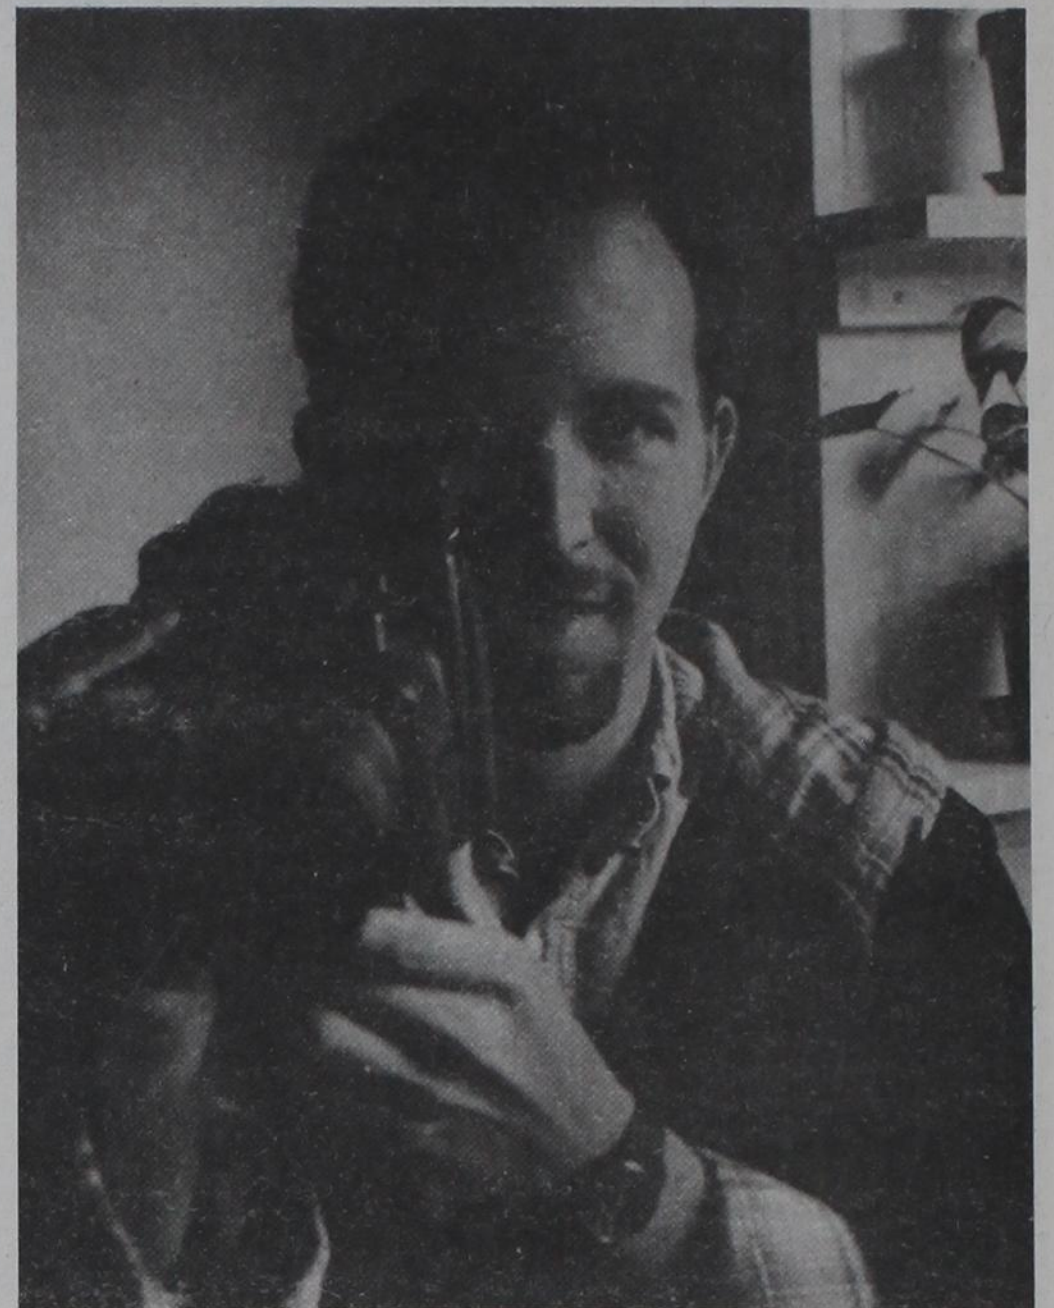

"I'm always taking my camcorder everywhere," he said. In fact, Light was once thrown out of a Fishbone concert for having his camcorder.

When the band's manager demanded the tape, the police got involved.

Because there were no signs or rules posted stating camcorders were not permitted, the police allowed Light to keep the tape of the concert.

Sometimes an episode will be recorded in one day, and sometimes it takes several weeks for Light to get enough material for an entire show.

Born and raised in Lubbock, Light is a 1991 graduate of the University of California, Los

TIAA-CREF on SOUND RETIREMENT INVESTING

HERE'S WHY THE SMART MONEY IN TEXAS IS GOING WITH TIAA-CREF AS IF THE FUTURE DEPENDS ON IT.

Because it does, Smart investors know that your future depends on how well your retirement system performs. TIAA-CREF has been the premier retirement system for people in education and research for some 75 years. We have enabled over 280,000 people like you to enjoy a comfortable retirement. And over 1,300,000 are now planning for the future with TIAA-CREF.

LOOK FOR SECURITY, GROWTH AND DIVERSITY.

Security—so the resources are there when it is time to retire. Growth—so you'll have enough income for the kind of retirement you want. And diversity—to help protect you against market volatility and to let you benefit from several types of investments.

HERE'S WHAT YOU GET WITH TIAA-CREF.

TIAA offers you the safety of a traditional annuity that guarantees your principal plus a specified rate of interest, and provides for additional growth through dividends. For its stability, sound investments, claims-paying ability and overall financial strength, TIAA has received the highest possible ratings from all four of the insurance industry's leading independent agencies.*

CREF's variable annuity offers opportunities for growth with five different investment accounts, each managed with the long-term perspective essential to sound retirement planning.

Air Force JV rushes way to 13-7 victory over Picadors

The Air Force junior varsity did not complete a pass but the Falcons rushed for 330 yards in a 13-7 win over the Texas Tech junior varsity Friday at Jones Stadium.

Air Force running back Judd Fite led both teams with 107 yards on 13 carries, and scored the only touchdown for the Falcons.

He scored on a 64-yard run in the first quarter.

The Picadors' only score came in the fourth quarter when freshman cornerback Metrick McHenry picked up a fumble and returned it 69 yards for the touchdown.

Senior kicker Bobby Buntyn hit the ensuing extra point cutting the lead to 13-7.

Buntyn also handled the punting duties for the Picadors, punting four times for a 35 yard average.

Redshirt freshman quarterback Sone Cavazos completed 8 of 18 passes for 119 yards.

Junior I-back Jeff Turner led the team in rushing with 83 yards on 24 carries.

Freshman wide receiver Field Scovell added five catches for 80 yards.

Scovell was the only Tech receiver to have more than one catch in the game for the Picadors.

Air Force kicker Randy Roberts had two field goals in the game of 22 and 49 yards.

Friday's game was the first for a Tech junior varsity team since 1984.

Tech netter duo defeats No. 1 doubles team

The Texas Tech men's doubles team of Clint Graf and Rogelio Guerrero scored a three-set victory over Arkansas' Marcus Hilpert and Bounce Williams at the Rolex Intercollegiate at Texas Christian in Fort Worth.

The Red Raider duo defeated the No. 1-ranked doubles team in the country by scores of 4-6, 6-1 and 6-4 Saturday.

Graff and Guerrero were defeated in the third round on Sunday by TCU's Stefan Figley and Dax Peterson by scores of 6-4 and 6-4.

Tech's Eric Guzman won the consolation portion of the match Sunday by defeating teammate Juan Gutierrez by scores of 6-1 and 7-5. Guzman also defeated another teammate Graf in the quarterfinals.

Raiders defeat Rice for second conference win

HOUSTON (Special) — The Texas Tech women's volleyball team returned to the win column Saturday as the Red Raiders defeated the Rice Owls in four games, 12-15, 15-7, 15-11 and 15-11, at Autry Court in Houston.

Tech held the Rice offense to a .041 hitting percentage, while the Raiders hit .104 for the match.

The Raiders also had 21 total team blocks.

With the win the Raiders improved their record to 10-10 overall and 2-5 in league play, while the Owls remained winless in Southwest Conference play with an 0-7 record and 10-12 overall mark.

Sophomore Jackie Bode led the team in kills with 10, while sophomore Jennifer Cohn had three solo blocks.

Owls outside hitter Sammy Waldron had 23 kills with a .131 hitting percentage.

Junior setter Ginger Carter had 33 assists in the victory. The win gave Tech its first conference victory since the Raiders defeated Rice on Sept. 29 in Lubbock.

Tech returns home to play the Houston Cougars at 7 p.m. Wednesday in the Lubbock Municipal Coliseum.

Women linksters take 14th at Stanford Intercollegiate

The Texas Tech women's golf team took 14th place at the Stanford Women's Intercollegiate tournament this weekend in Stanford, Calif.

The Red Raiders shot a 937 over the three-round event, 74 strokes behind winner San Jose State.

The highest finisher for Tech was Stacey Kolb, who shot a 231 and tied for 37th with one other player.

Other finishers for Tech included Tracy Thomason at 51st with a 234 and while J.J. Rorie, who shot a 236 to take 62nd.

Candy Merrill finished with a 239 in 69th, while Tamara Parker took 78th with a 241.

The tournament was the last of the fall for Tech.

Tech finished ahead of District VI opponent New Mexico State by seven strokes as it shot a 944 in the three rounds.

New Mexico was 12th in the tourney with a score of 928.

San Jose State won the tourney with three out of its five players finishing in the top five.

Moon leads Oilers past struggling Bengals 28-12

HOUSTON (AP) — After a week of controversy and national attention, the Houston Oilers should have been relieved to get back to football.

Instead, they seemed tight and had to overcome their ineptness and the boos of their fans for a 28-12 victory over the winless Cincinnati Bengals on Sunday.

All week, the Oilers took heat for their treatment of proud father David Williams, who skipped last Sunday's game to be with his wife and first-born child. The Oilers docked Williams' weekly pay check of $111,111 for missing last week's 28-14 victory over New England, but he returned to the starting lineup against the Bengals.

The Oilers (3-4) struggled through most of the game and trailed 12-7 until 1:11 left in the third quarter, when Lorenzo White scored on a 4-yard run. Warren Moon hit Haywood Jeffries with an 11-yard touchdown pass with 6:14 left. Moon, benched last week for ineffectiveness, also had a first-half TD pass to Gary Wellman.

Houston's Gary Brown scored on a 25-yard run with 1:54 remaining.

Cincinnati (0-7), winless in the Astrodome since 1984, moved to Houston's 1-yard line on the next drive.

But Jay Schroeder, subbing for injured David Klingler, was sacked on one play and Ray Childress recovered Schroeder's fumble on the next.

Rookie Doug Pelfrey missed an extra point following Schroeder's 8-yard touchdown pass to former Oiler Jeff Query in the second quarter that kept Houston ahead 7-6.

But Pelfrey made amends with 3 seconds left in the half when he kicked a career-long 53 yard field goal. That gave Cincinnati a halftime lead for the second time this season. Cincinnati led Kansas City 12-7 at the half.

Derrick Fenner's 26-yard run and Schroeder's 11-yard pass to Query put the Bengals in position for Pelfrey's go-ahead kick.

Schroeder also completed a 21-yard pass to Carl Pickens to the Oilers' 32 to set up Pelfrey's 50-yard kick, his ninth in a row, for a 12-7 edge.

The Bengals could have had a touchdown moments earlier when Wesley Carroll broke completely free in the Oilers' secondary, but was overthrown by Schroeder.
