Skinheads banned from bars

OBERHOF, Germany (AP) — The American luge athlete who was beaten by neo-Nazis says he'll come back to this winter sports center and town officials on Wednesday tried to ensure that skinheads don't deter other foreigners from coming.

The town government ordered that nightspots bar entry to skinheads to prevent a recurrence of last week's attack and said it will start stationing police on night duty.

"I can't comprehend how people can be so hateful," said an anguished Margot Weidner, tourism director for Oberhof, a community of 2,500. "These angry young men. These children."

The mountain resort also is worried about damage to its image in the sports world as it tries to bring itself up to Western standards after a checkered Communist past.

Ross Perot dared to debate NAFTA

LEXINGTON, Ky. (AP) — The White House dared Ross Perot Thursday to debate the North American Free Trade Agreement before the Nov. 17 congressional vote, a challenge Perot called "a desperate move" and quickly accepted.

President Clinton, on a NAFTA sales trip to the Midwest, dismissed anti-agreement arguments from the Texas businessman and said, "The vice president has challenged him to a debate on Larry King. Let's see if he takes it."

Perot, on Capitol Hill, quickly proposed three debates, one in Tampa on Sunday, one in Detroit next Wednesday and finally in Seattle on Nov. 15, shortly before the scheduled vote.

Skinhead trial begins in Texas

GALVESTON (AP) — Prosecutors said Thursday a 19-year-old skinhead's friendship with two other white supremacists and their common bond of secrecy and racial hate comprised a murder conspiracy in a black man's slaying.

In statements Thursday, Tarrant County assistant district attorney Marvin Collins said the actions of Christopher Brosky, an avowed white supremacist, will show he is guilty of conspiracy to murder Donald Thomas.

"Three skinheads shared a common philosophy," Collins said. "That the white race is a superior race the black race is inferior. It brought these three together in a small group."

Prosecutors say it was those shared beliefs and other commonalities that will prove Brosky was involved in a conspiracy to kill Thomas.

Brosky, convicted in March of Thomas' murder, was not the triggerman in the drive-by shooting in June 1991. His sentence by a confused Tarrant County jury was 10 years probation.

Tech provides collider input

by COLLEEN MCENDREE LOGAN

Dismantling options up for debate

About 50 scientists from Texas universities, including Alan Sill and Richard Wigmans of the Texas Tech physics department, will meet Saturday at Southern Methodist University to discuss ways to make use of the remaining Superconducting Supercollider assets.

The scientists are reacting to Congress's decision that the supercollider, located in Waxahachie, will no longer receive federal funding.

Funding for the supercollider was cut last month when the U.S. House of Representatives voted 264-159 to instruct members of a conference committee not to include the supercollider in an energy and water appropriations bill, said Keith Williams, press secretary for U.S. Rep. Larry Combest.

The scientists will discuss a proposal to the state government to create a joint industrial and university facility for science education and research. Wigmans, physics professor and possessor of the J. Fred Bucy chair at Tech, said Tech researchers could benefit if the assets of the supercollider facility are preserved.

Alan Sill, physics assistant professor, said researchers from Tech and other universities that do not have access to high technology would find this facility valuable.

"We see a wide variety of possibilities, ranging from medical applications to materials science," he said.

Wigmans said the "fantastic" computer system and electronics development labs were of primary interest to Tech researchers.

Craig Murphy, spokesman for U.S. Rep. Joe Barton, said the supercollider facility "is kind of like a college campus," and said there are several buildings and laboratories, including the building where superconducting wire is made and "the biggest refrigerator in the world."

Wigmans said, "It would be a real pity if that (the facility) would disappear."

Murphy said $2 billion already have been invested in the supercollider.

"I don't think it is going to be shut down," he said.

He said the fate of the existing assets of the supercollider has not been decided, but said there will be a plan addressing the problem by July 1.

Williams said, "They're going to spend $640 million to start shutting it down."

He said it would cost more than $1 billion to completely shut down the facility.

The scientists' proposal will be submitted to the state government, but funding from the U.S. Department of Energy and other non-state sources will be pursued, Wigmans said.

"Eventually, this institute should not be funded by the state of Texas," he said.

He said the facility eventually should depend on research grants and industry funding.

Haunting memories

Air Force ROTC honors POWs, MIAs with 24-hour vigil

by COLLEEN MCENDREE LOGAN
THE UNIVERSITY DAILY

Commencing at noon today in Texas Tech's Memorial Circle, the Tech Air Force ROTC Sabre Flight Drill Team will conduct a 24-hour vigil in remembrance of prisoners of war still listed as missing in action.

The vigil is sponsored by Tech's Lewis C. Ellis Jr. Squadron of Arnold Air Society and by Angel Flight.

"According to the National League of Families of American Prisoners and Missing in Southeast Asia, the total number of Americans still missing and unaccounted for is 2,248," said Steven Mathews, Arnold Air Society commander.

Sandra Sandoval, cadet lieutenant colonel of the Air Force ROTC, said today's noon ceremony will include a fly over by four F-111's from Cannon Air Force Base, a half-staff reveille ceremony performed by the SFDT, a 21-gun salute by the Reese Honor Guard and a speech delivered by Lt. Gen. Dr. Bernhard T. Mittlemeyer.

Mathews said Mittlemeyer will be paying homage to prisoners of war and to "those who have gone before us in all wars."

Sandoval said, "After that (the noon ceremonies), every 30 minutes there will be a changing of the guard. That will be taking place all night."

Displays and literature will be available at the vigil, Sandoval said.

"There will be several books about all the wars," he said. "There will be some pictures that were taken in Arlington National Cemetery."

She said many people visit the vigil at about 10 or 11 p.m.

Tips offered for Americans with Disabilities Act enforcement

Businesses must accommodate physically challenged

by CHRISTY EVERETT
THE UNIVERSITY DAILY

Lubbock community members will have an opportunity Saturday to receive information about correct procedures for equipping facilities for the disabled.

Builders Square, located at 3701 50th St., will be the site of a 10 a.m. seminar to help educate people about The Americans with Disabilities Act.

Regulations stipulated in the act make it a requirement for businesses and public facilities to accommodate individuals with disabilities.

Products that are available to contractors and businesses also will be discussed and displayed, said Dawn Rickman, a senior consultant in Builders Square's idea center.

"The purpose is to make homes and businesses suitable to the needs of the physically challenged," she said.

Trudy Putteet, associate dean of students at Texas Tech, said she believes there is a definite need for ADA education.

She said Lubbock community members have a natural advantage for meeting the needs of the disabled.

The Texas Rehabilitative Commission, The Independent Living Center and individual contractors have been invited to attend the event, Rickman said.

Interior design and architecture students from Tech also were invited, she said.

"It is important because everything they (architecture and interior design students) design and create will have to be universal for public facilities," Rickman said.

Ann Brown, an ADA consultant for Lubbock, will be the seminar's guest speaker and will discuss the importance of Title III of the ADA and the importance of meeting the codes. Title III concerns public accommodations and services operated by private entities.

Rickman said she believes students should become aware of the changes in the regulations.

Advising may be hassle of past

Senate recommends no advisement requirement for juniors, seniors

by JENNIFER GOOCH
THE UNIVERSITY DAILY

Texas Tech juniors and seniors may not have to get a faculty adviser's signature on pre-registration cards if a Student Senate resolution is passed.

Senate Resolution 29.17 was introduced during Thursday's senate meeting and states that students have complained about the lengthy process of pre-registration and about being required to have an adviser's signature to register.

Members of the senate's Committee on Academics recommended the policy that does not require an adviser's signature on a senior or junior pre-registration card.

The resolution also states that "the classification of seniors and juniors enrolled at Tech dictates the assumed responsibility for his or her requirements that are needed in order to graduate."

The resolution was written by Eric Sanchez and Curt Bourne.

It must be considered by Director of Admissions and Records Gene Medley, the Faculty Senate and President Robert Lawless before being enacted.

The Student Senate also passed resolutions 29.13-16 to begin the impeachment process of four senators because of absences and neglect of duty.

Jake West, chairman of the senate's Rules and Administration Committee, introduced the resolutions to begin the process of impeaching Todd Murphy, Lindsey Leeman, Booker Harrison and Chad Sargent.

"The senators can come before the committee at its meeting Nov. 16," Sanchez said.

"If we do not receive a resignation, or if they fail to come to the meeting, then at the next senate meeting the impeachments will be voted on."

Student Senate President Jay House said there must be a two-thirds majority vote to impeach the senators.

The senate also voted to send Bourne to represent the Student Senate and the university at the National Conference on Student Services Nov. 20-22 in San Francisco.

"This conference will cover everything from multiculturalism to recycling," House said.

Proliferating countries—
Americans in the dark

A.M. ROSENTHAL

Now here is a government document with a lot of potential — including the potential to make the incumbent president and his successors yearn for these safe days of Somalia, Haiti and the gulf war.

The document has to do with three words. Proliferation — as in Third-World nuclear bombs. Dual use — as in: I sell you a chemical to make fertilizer and you use it to make biological weapons, which, to tell the truth, is what I expected you to do all along, but a dollar is a dollar.

Americans don't like to think much about those three words. It certainly is not because they do not bring excitement to our lives. Iraqi President Saddam Hussein had such a fine supply line of nuclear and dual-use items from the West that he was getting close to nuclear weapon production and felt strong enough to take on the U.S. and survive, which he did.

Maybe it's all so frightening that we prefer to push it out of our minds. Anyway, some time ago I decided to become one of those people who make themselves pests about those three words, so to work. The document consists of replies to questions put by the Senate Committee on Governmental Affairs, headed by Sen. John Glenn, to R. James Woolsey, director of the CIA.

Q. (Questions compressed by me for space reasons.) Can wars be made less likely by new regional nuclear balances of terror?

A. I can think of no example where the introduction of nuclear weapons has enhanced that region's security. ...Emerging nuclear-capable states lack the strict command and control and doctrine of the superpowers.

Q. From the evidence, how effective is military force as a solution to nuclear proliferation?

A. Military force can slow nuclear weapons development programs in the short term but cannot permanently stop (them). ...Without international scrutiny, continued inspections, Iraq probably could rebuild, with available expertise, its nuclear weapons program and manufacture a device in about five to seven years.

Q. After the BNL and BCCI scandals, will U.S. intelligence concentrate more on the financial and banking aspects of proliferation?

A. Yes. ...Banks play a key role in facilitating arms-related gray-market deals.

Q. Can nuclear material be smuggled out of the former Soviet Union?

A. If the situation were to deteriorate and since nuclear materials are in so many different places, some of them could fall into the wrong hands and be exported and, potentially, without our knowledge.

Q. Where has the technology for proliferating countries come from?

A. (condensed) Some American companies have been involved but by and large to the Mideast it was a "free flow" from Europe. Some European nations have tightened control. Principal concerns now focus on China and North Korea. Beijing has consistently regarded a nuclear-armed Pakistan as a crucial regional ally and vital counterweight to India.

Q. How many nuclear weapons do India and Pakistan have?

A. India and Pakistan have the capability to assemble ... a small number ... within a very short period of time. ...The distinction between whether or not these weapons are in fact assembled or only able to be assembled within a few days is a very small distinction.

Q. About Pakistan, what would be the delivery system — the F-16s we sold them?

A. Our best judgement right now would be the F-16s.

Q. Does Egypt have a biological weapons capability?

A. Yes, a program.

Q. Are you confident we can detect the use of biological weapons?

A. No. ...

Q. How far ahead can you predict intentions and capabilities of nations with stockpiles of nuclear materials?

LETTERS

RAPE MORE OF A CRISIS THAN GIVEN CREDIT

To the editor:

The editorial "Women can have control of some rape situations," (Nov. 3) aids and abets the archaic notion that victims of sexual assault require a higher standard of personal responsibility and a higher burden of proof than do victims of other violent crimes.

The person who is burglarized because they exercised poor judgment and left their door open for their roommate who is to arrive home soon is not berated in the press nor penalized by the jury as partly responsible for their victimization. The businessperson wearing a $600 business suit and Rolex watch who is robbed at gunpoint is not questioned as to whether or not their affluent attire advertised that they were asking to be robbed.

The scenario in the editorial depicted a female meeting a male in a bar, going home with him, and in the light of day, regretting having had sexual intercourse sans a condom. Was the editorial trying to address promiscuity? or safe sex? or drinking? or what? It clearly does not address sexual assault.

The accurate meaning of the term "date rape" describes a sexual assault when the assailant is someone that the victim has been dating. The problem with the term date rape is that it implies that if the offender knows the victim in a dating relationship, then the rape is considered a lesser offense, not a sexual assault. If the relationship is a date, total stranger, spouse or parent and the actions of the assailant constitute sexual assault as defined by state statute, the crime is sexual assault, period. To say, as was stated in the editorial, that the responsibility for the assailant's actions do not "always fall solely on the shoulders of men" gives credence to the belief that in order to have a prosecutable case, sexual assault victims must risk death by resisting the attack. This jurassic mentality also supports the standard denial of "she said no but really wanted it" to become an acceptable defense at trial.

Let's apply the standards set forth in the editorial to a reverse gender situation. A male is hanging out in close proximity to the keg, meets a female he has a lot in common with, leaves with that female, retires to her apartment, and realizes when he returns home the next day that the female has stolen his wallet. Well, "men can have control of some theft situations" and should "take responsibility" for their actions because, after all, "theft is not a situation in which the responsibility can always fall solely on the shoulders of women." I would submit that this scenario defies rationality, as does the editorial's scenario concerning sexual assault.

To say that every citizen in this community must take responsibility for crime prevention and their community must take responsibility for crime prevention and their own personal safety is reasonable and sound. The belief that "women have control of some rape situations" contributes to the fact that assaults in the context of dating are rarely reported to law enforcement officials and rape crisis centers. Contrary to the editorial's claim, a 1992 study reports that more than five times as many women were raped as the number of sexual assaults that were reported to law authorities. It is believed that a large percentage of these rapes are not reported because the victims were reluctant to report because they were dating the assailant. In light of the Nov. 3 editorial would one question this reluctance?

Finally, enlightened men and women have fought for decades to educate the public about the truth about rape. Rape is not a regrettable episode of intimacy; it is not rough sex — it is the most humiliating, violent and explosive invasion of body and mind that one can experience.

A. Substantial uncertainties could harm our ability to forecast — especially beyond 10 years.

The U.S. has a list of "special countries" that cannot receive material that they could use or transmit to a third country for nuclear purpose, without special study and clearance. On Oct. 6, the administration removed 11 countries from that list. They were Argentina, Bahrain, Brazil, Chile, Kuwait, Malawi, Qatar, Saudi Arabia, South Africa, Syria and Yemen. No advance notice was given to Congress.

EMS fails
Dallas family deserves gain from loss

In a world of constant litigation about the most minor of incidents, few can argue that there is a dire need for more lawyers.

Recently, however, an incident in the Dallas area has made apparent the need for a serious lawsuit.

Troy Wells, a 23-year-old from South Dallas, died after he was ignored by paramedics who found him bleeding and urinating blood after having his wisdom teeth removed.

Wells' mother had to call 911 twice before anyone came to the house.

She could not take her son to the hospital because they had no car.

After finally arriving at the scene, the paramedics concluded that Wells' condition was not serious enough to merit a ride to the emergency room — despite the blood.

The Dallas Morning News reported Thursday that officials declined to comment about the incident because it was being investigated.

A spokesperson for the fire department said a person must be suffering from trauma-related injuries, a suspected heart attack, must have difficulty breathing or must be unconscious to be transported to a hospital by paramedics.

Although an autopsy has not been completed, medical authorities said Wells may have died from an accidental overdose of Tylenol 4 or from internal bleeding caused by penicillin.

Wells had been prescribed both medications by his doctor after having the wisdom-teeth surgery a week before the incident occurred.

Wells' mother is blaming her son's death on the paramedics that refused to transport her bleeding son.

She said they saw him urinating blood and saw his bloody bed sheets.

Records show that paramedics went to Wells' home twice Monday and were called again Tuesday.

A family friend was going to take Wells to the hospital Tuesday, but by that time, it was too late.

Wells' sister found him dead in his bedroom.

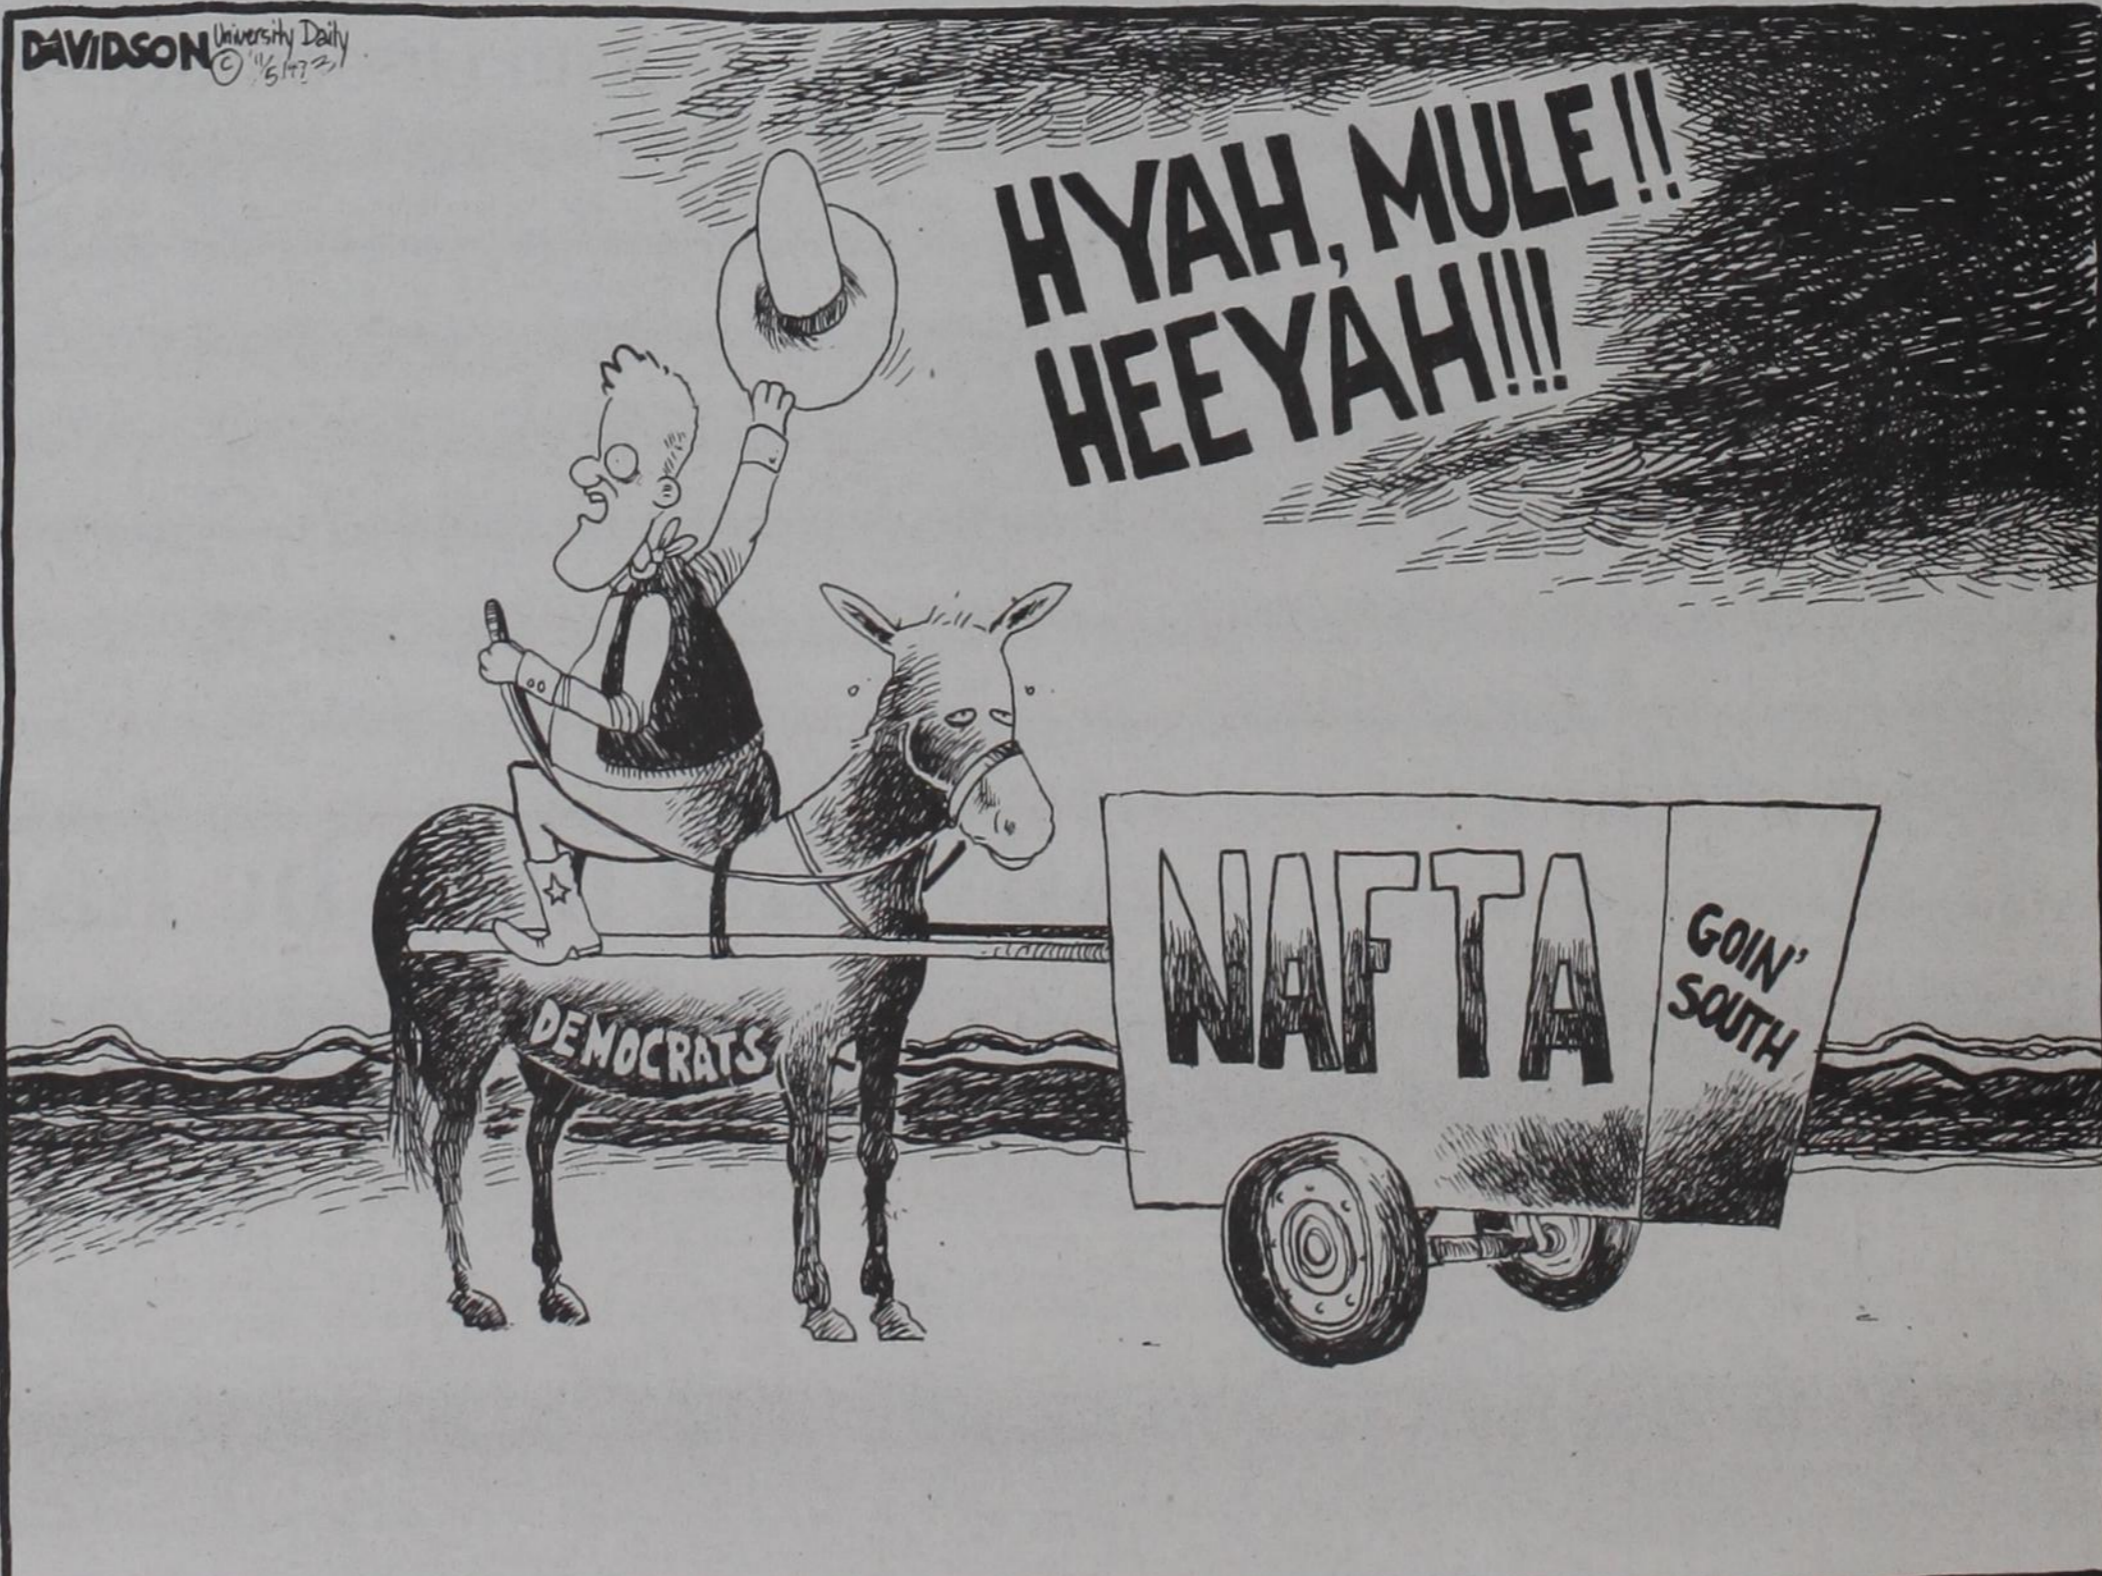

While nothing can bring back Ms. Wells' son, no one involved — the paramedics, their employers, the 911 operators — should be let off without punishment.

Someone deserves to lose a great deal of money, and the Wells' deserve to be very rich.

Smoke in building leads to evacuation

A possible fire at Texas Tech Thursday morning turned out to be a smoke problem in an air handler shaft in the human sciences building.

Tech Fire Marshal Richard Kopytkiewicz said ball bearings and brackets collapsed the air handlershaft and caused metal to grind and create smoke in the human sciences building.

"It wasn't actually a fire," he said.

The first call about the smoke was received at about 8:47 a.m., Kopytkiewicz said.

Room 169 in the human sciences building was filled with smoke, causing students to evacuate the building, he said.

The problem was controlled about six minutes after the students had evacuated the building, Kopytkiewicz said.

Repairs to the air handler shaft were to be completed by Thursday afternoon, he said.

Coming to the rescue

Firemen from Precinct 4 of the Lubbock Fire Department air out the smoke at the human sciences building Thursday morning. Students had to evacuate the building until the smoke cleared.

Seminar to focus on new global theory

■ The debate between global theory and plate tectonics theory

by LESLIE WEEKS
THE UNIVERSITY DAILY

Geophysics professor Karsten Storetvedt will present a seminar about global tectonics at 3 p.m. today at Tech's science building, room 234.

Storetvedt's new global theory is an alternative to the modern plate tectonics theory.

"The plate tectonics theory is the belief that certain continents were grouped around the South Pole for a long period of time," Storetvedt said. "However, this theory has a large number of contradictions.

"A lot of problems disappear automatically," Storetvedt said. "If you don't move the continents together, you lose a lot of the problems."

He said his opposition to traditional beliefs caused him to be unpopular with many colleagues.

"I come to class, and I destroy what people love," Storetvedt said. "Their scientific platform — their identity — is part of the science."

It can be difficult to discuss such a topic with many colleagues," Storetvedt said.

He said his belief has interfered with everything in his daily life.

"It is surprising to see how good friends from early on behave quite differently just because I happen to no longer be a faithful member of the established views," Storetvedt said. "Everything is nice and straightforward, as long as you do what you are supposed to do in the scientific community."

He said other difficulties he has dealt with include funding problems and the component of envy among colleagues.

"Everybody is struggling for big ideas," Storetvedt said. "Great ideas will give prestige in the scientific community."

Mattox wants stricter lobbyist money limits for Congress, staff members

AUSTIN (AP) — Democratic U.S. Senate candidate Jim Mattox says he favors placing strict limits on the amount of money lobbyists may spend on members of Congress and their staffs.

"As for lobbyists meeting lawmakers for lunch and picking up the tab, if you can't find a good, solid meal for $20, you're not using good sense in the first place," Mattox said Wednesday.

Mattox is a former Texas attorney general who is seeking the Democrats' nomination to challenge Republican Sen. Kay Bailey Hutchison next year.

He said he supports a bill sponsored by Rep. John Bryant, D-Dallas.

Bryant is proposing that $20 be the limit on money spent at one time, with a $50 annual cumulative limit.

Currently, there are no limits on lobby-paid gifts, meals or trips, only reporting requirements for gifts of $250 or more.

Budget process undergoing changes

by JENNIFER GOOCH
THE UNIVERSITY DAILY

Members of Texas Tech's Student Senate Budget and Finance Committee will begin the budget process during the fall semester rather than during the spring semester this year because of complaints that the process is too rushed.

"The committee wanted to give an opportunity to groups who wanted to start preparing their budget before they re-elect new officers," Budget and Finance Committee Chairwoman Kathy Wood said. "We were getting complaints that the budget process comes up too fast in the spring."

Student service fees for student organizations are allocated by the Budget and Finance Committee.

Funding request packets will be available Monday in the Student Association Office in the University Center, room 230.

"After obtaining a funding request packet, an officer or delegate from your organization must attend one of the four required workshops," Wood said. "If your organization is not counted present at any of the workshops, funding will be denied."

The workshops will be Nov. 17, Jan. 25-26 and Feb. 2. Budgets will be due by Feb. 4.

Wood said the committee gives special emphasis to organizations that bring recognition to Tech, involve recruiting activities, provide support for continuing projects; provide support for speakers, provide informational or educational events, provide support for conventions and that enhance the image of Tech.

Scholarships; awards and gifts; fund-raising projects solely beneficial to the organization; and operating expenses such as subscriptions, salaries and entry fees cannot be funded.

Politically biased material, club sports and intramurals, social events, La Ventana pages and state and national dues also cannot be funded.

The senate allocated $130,500 to student organizations for the 1993-94 academic year.

IS PORNOGRAPHY REALLY HARMFUL?

David Alexander Scott, a psychotherapist affiliated with the New York Group Psychotherapy Foundation, has said: "Pornography can lead to sexual deviancy for disturbed and normal people alike. They become desensitized by pornography. Sexual fulfillment in marriage can decrease...Users of pornography frequently lose faith in the viability of marriage...Furthermore, pornography is addictive...soft-core pornography leads to an increase in rape fantasies even in normal males...Moreover, the marketing of pornography legitimizes sexual deviance."

The Bible says, "Do not be deceived: God cannot be mocked. A man reaps what he sows. The one who sows to please his sinful nature, from that nature will reap destruction; the one who sows to please the Spirit, from the Spirit will reap eternal life."

Family ties: Weekend features game, talent show, brunch

■ Events made for family involvement, recognition

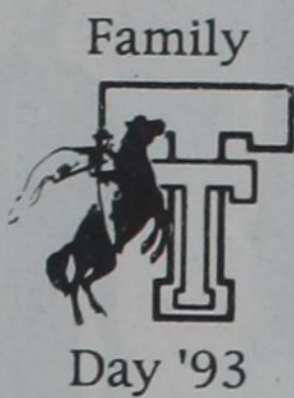

by JENNIFER GOOCH
THE UNIVERSITY DAILY

Families of Texas Tech students can attend a myriad of Family Day events this weekend, including a talent show, a brunch and a banquet.

The recognition banquet, featuring a keynote speech from Texas' Speaker of the House James "Pete" Laney, will kick off the activities at 7 p.m. today in the University Center Ballroom.

Tickets cost $10 and can be purchased at the Dads and Moms Association Office in the administration building, room 167. The banquet is open to the general public.

"Pete Laney has been a member of the Dads and Moms Association since 1984 and has a lifetime membership," said Nancy Hale, administrative secretary for the Dads and Moms Association.

Family Day '93

"His kids have all graduated from Tech."

Hale said state representatives Delwin Jones and Robert Duncan also will attend the recognition banquet.

Association representatives will present awards, including the 28th annual Spencer A. Wells Award to a faculty member for service to Tech.

"That recipient this year is Jayne Zanglein, a professor in the law school," Hale said.

"We give the award each year to someone who has provided exceptional service to Tech."

Hale said other awards presented will include the "Big Daddy" and the "Magnificent Mom" awards.

"These are member awards for a dad and a mom who have done great and wonderful things for the association," she said.

John Anderson of Tyler will be introduced as the new association president, and Joe Untermeyer of Houston as the president-elect.

Family members can meet university administrators during a Family Day brunch from 9:30 a.m. to noon Saturday before the football game against Texas Christian University.

The brunch is open to the general public, and tickets cost $6.50.

Parents with the most children at Tech and parents who traveled the greatest distance to attend Family Day activities will be awarded during a half-time ceremony.

The Family Day Talent Show, sponsored by the Dads and Moms Association and the Student Association, will be at 8:15 p.m. Saturday in the University Center's Allen Theatre.

"We have 14 acts that are very well balanced," SA External Vice President Zach Brady said.

Premiere Travel and Southwest Airlines have sponsored a trip to Las Vegas for the winner of the talent show.

Tickets for the talent show cost $3 and can be purchased at the SA office in the UC, room 230, at the Dads and Moms Association Office or at the door.

Rubella information to be held for concerned parents in the UC

Texas Tech students and parents concerned about rubella will have an opportunity Saturday to obtain more information about Tech's new regulation requiring all students to be vaccinated for the virus.

The clinic will be from 9 a.m. to 12 p.m. Saturday in the Executive Room of the University Center. The clinic was planned for Saturday because of Family Day, and because of the concern students and parents may have about the new enrollment regulation, Student Health Director Dr. Cheryl Tyler said.

A shot clinic from 8:30 a.m. to 2:30 p.m. begins today in the UC and will continue through Nov. 19. The clinic was designed to answer any questions students may have about the virus and the vaccination.

Chinese Student Association hosting cultural program

Texas Tech's Chinese Student Association will be hosting a cultural program at 3 p.m. Saturday in the Doak Residence Hall Lounge.

The cultural program is the second in a three-part series.

The program was designed to give students the opportunity to learn about other cultures, said Christina Friedl, an international student counselor.

The program will include information about the Chinese culture, a fashion show, a video and artifacts.

Food also will be served.

The series' third program is scheduled for Nov. 19.

The third program will be hosted by the Latin American Student Association.

Bear sculpture first in series of four

A bronze, short-faced bear sculpture will be unveiled during a ceremony at 9 a.m. Saturday at the Lubbock Lake Landmark State Historical Park, 2200 N. Landmark Dr.

Texas Tech President Robert Lawless, State Sen. John Montford, D-Lubbock, Andrew Sansom, executive director of the Texas Parks and Wildlife Department, and artist Lisa Perry will speak during the unveiling ceremony. The sculpture stands six feet tall, is 10 feet long and weighs about 1,500 pounds.

It is the first in a series of four sculptures that will be placed permanently at the site.

Perry was commissioned by the Lubbock Lake Site foundation because of her skill in sculpting animal anatomy.

Perry is also a resident of Fort Worth.

Lubbock Arts Festival taking submitted pieces of work

by LARA M. CAMPBELL
THE UNIVERSITY DAILY

For the past 16 years, the people of Lubbock have been able to enjoy one of the finest arts festivals in the nation.

The Lubbock Arts Festival recently was ranked 39th in the listing of the 100 Best Fine Arts Events by the national publication, "Sunshine Artist."

The festival, which will run March 25-27, is now accepting applications for those wishing to display their art.

All art work displayed at the festival will be for sale.

"(The festival) gets the community involved in the arts," said Pam Harris, secretary to executive director of the Lubbock Art Alliance

Russell Hughes.

Harris said the festival helps make the people of the South Plains more aware of the arts, and brings people together.

About 125 artists will be chosen for the Exhibits and Senior Artists areas.

Artists wishing to submit works must be at least 18 years old and all artwork must be original and handmade. No commercial dealers will be permitted to display their works.

Those submitting applications must include a $5 non-refundable application fee, a self-addressed stamped legal-size envelope with a minimum of 58 cents postage, five slides of the artist's work and a completed application form.

The Lubbock Arts Alliance also has recently chosen the directors for the festival. Directors of the 1994 festival are two Texas Tech alumni, Carol Jean and Dixon Platt.

Jean, who currently is a member of Texas Democratic Sen. John T. Montford's staff, has worked for the festival in several other leadership positions.

Platt serves as vice president and director of development at the University Medical Center.

Sponsors of the festival are the Lubbock Arts Alliance, in conjunction with Civic Lubbock.

Forms are available at the Lubbock Arts Alliance at 14th Street and Avenue K.

Artists interested in applications and information can contact the festival office at 744-2787. Applications are due by Nov. 22.

CAN helping curb West Texas hunger problem

by LARA M. CAMPBELL
THE UNIVERSITY DAILY

Each day thousands of people across America go hungry, and hundreds of those people are living on the South Plains.

Starting Monday and running through Nov. 24, the students, faculty and staff of Texas Tech will have an opportunity to help feed some of the people of West Texas.

The Community Action Network (CAN) will be accepting canned goods as part of the South Plains Food Bank's "U CAN Share Food Drive."

The Food Bank serves 16,000 people each day, said Sellie Shine, director of external relations for the Food Bank.

"It's (food drive) beyond estimation," Shine said. "That's our life blood. The cans we collect keep us going."

This year, CAN has set a goal to raise 50,000 pounds of food. In 1992 the Food Bank collected and used 7.4 million pounds of food.

Tech has sponsored food drives in the past, but this is the first year CAN is conducting a campuswide food drive.

"Although many groups and organizations have contributed to the Food Bank in years past, this is the first year that Tech has attempted a consolidated campuswide effort," said Michael Leitschuh, assistant coordinator of Student Activities for UC Programs.

CAN coordinators have asked that faculty and staff establish collection days in their classes and offices.

Donations will be accepted in the UC Courtyard and recorded and tallied daily.

Donations can be brought to the courtyard receiving tables from 1-4 p.m., Monday through Friday.

"It is important to bring the food during these hours so that the volunteers can record and stack the contributions. We want to give everyone credit for their participation," Leitschuh said.

The food will be counted and CAN volunteers will keep track of how much each group donates, Leitschuh said.

Those not participating with a group may donate food by dropping cans into one of the barrels that will be located in the courtyard during normal UC hours of operation.

Groups wishing to donate large amounts of food will have the opportunity to bring their donations to the UC loading dock.

The loading dock will accept donations on Nov. 12 and 19 from 2-5 p.m. The dock is located on the east side of the UC.

All of the food donated during Tech's food drive will be used to help feed families during the Christmas season.

Cosby's wife buys farm to prevent housing development

BUCKLAND, Mass. (AP)—Bill Cosby's wife bought a 365-acre dairy farm, not because she wants the freshest milk possible but to save the property from becoming a housing development.

Camille Cosby said Wednesday

she wanted to "preserve valuable farmland in the area ... and help retain the rural character of the town."

Mrs. Cosby has bought several large parcels in the northwestern Massachusetts area to preserve them as open space.

Farmer Steven Mayer's plans to subdivide Riverwind Farm when he moved his dairy operation to New Mexico sparked a scramble by local officials earlier this year to find a way to preserve the parcel.

Tech theater student aims for stars with new role

by MICHELLE ELIZARDO
THE UNIVERSITY DAILY

Many theater students hold the dream of someday reaching stardom, and Texas Tech graduate student Ira Lynne White will be well on her way.

White will be displaying her acting talents on stage in a nine-month tour of "Dream Girls," the story of the Supremes.

White, a native of Tahoka, taught theater arts, debate and speech at Lamesa High School.

White said her gospel background has been a major influence in her acting career.

"I think because of my gospel background, and because I have been singing in the church, my work, especially my singing, is more of a spiritual nature," she said.

She has been singing at church and other places since she was 5 years old. "My sister and I would go to school and have a dance step all set, and we would charge people to come and see us," White said.

Her mother, sisters, nieces and she all sang in a family group that would travel around singing gospel music. "I would not be where I am today if I had not been a gospel singer," she said.

The road that led to the "Dream Girls" role is actually short.

She was working in Oklahoma City performing the play "Showboat" when she received another acting offer.

The job was in Connecticut to perform in the musical, "Ain't Misbehavin,'" in which she played the part actress Nell Carter made famous.

Being an African-American actress, White said she had some bad experiences when she first entered theater in junior high.

"I think it is all attitudinal and left up to that person," she said. "I don't mind playing a stereotypical 'mammy' role if I can grow from it. It depends on the director and what I can get out of the role."

White said she had to work hard in "Ain't Misbehavin'" to prove herself and her talents on the show to the other cast members.

She wants her future to encompass a number of her talents, including more singing, acting and teaching.

"Right now, my goal is to be successful and do what I do well," White said.

RHIM students, faculty to spend weekend in 'Big Apple'

by MEGAN CLARK
THE UNIVERSITY DAILY

Restaurant/Hotel and Institutional Management students in Texas Tech's College of Human Sciences will receive firsthand experience in their fields of study while visiting New York this weekend.

The International Hotel/Motel and Restaurant Show is sponsored each year by the Counsel of Hotel/Restaurant and Institutional Education.

"We take about 40 people — students and faculty combined — on the trip every fall," said Charlie

Adams, associate professor of restaurant/hotel management. "It's a great learning experience for anyone that makes the trip."

Demonstration booths of stoves, lights and other utilities will be a part of the weekend's show. Education booths from colleges and universities across the nation also will be a part of the activities.

"It's a huge show," Adams said. "There will be plenty of seminars and speakers for students and faculty to listen in on. It's a wonderful opportunity."

Students who will be graduating in the spring also will have opportunities to meet with recruiters from hotel, restaurant and institutional management companies around the nation.

"There will be several seminars about resume preparation and finding a job," Adams said. "There will also be an informal reception sometime during the weekend for students and representatives from other companies to meet."

Students will be required to spend at least half a day in the booth that represents Texas Tech's RHIM program. Sightseeing also is included in weekend activities.

"We've even been able to recruit some students to Tech through the show," Adams said.

Student and faculty groups from Stephen F. Austin University and from Arkansas Tech will join the Tech group in New York.

Tech, Horned Frogs try to keep win streaks alive

Seniors to play last game at Jones Stadium

by LEN HAYWARD
THE UNIVERSITY DAILY

Game: TCU Horned Frogs vs. Texas Tech
Time: 12:07 p.m. Date: Saturday
Place: Jones Stadium
1993 Records
TCU (4-4, 2-2)
Tech (3-5, 2-2)
Radio/TV:
KFYO-AM 790
RAYCOM (Channel 34, Cox Cable Channel 10)

NICK DE LA TORRE/ THE UNIVERSITY DAILY

The importance of Saturday's game between Texas Tech and Texas Christian can only be measured by the similarity of situations for the two teams.

Both the Red Raiders (3-5, 2-2) and the Horned Frogs (4-4, 2-2) are in the midst of win streaks, with Tech winning its last two and TCU winning its last three. Both are still in the hunt for a bowl game and both have their backs against the wall in the conference race.

"Who makes the least mistakes is going to win the ball game," junior I-back Byron "Bam" Morris said. "They play hard and they play aggressive."

The Frogs and the Raiders will take on each other at 12:07 p.m. in Jones Stadium. The game will be televised by Raycom (locally on channel 34, Cox Cable Channel 10).

Tech has to win its last three games to have a chance at a bowl game, while TCU, though still in the hunt for postseason play, must play Texas and Texas A&M in the next two weeks.

The last time these two teams met, it went down to the wire with Tech winning on a last-second touchdown pass from Jason Clemmons to Lloyd Hill to take a 31-28 victory.

"That is the type of game I am looking for it to be," Morris said. "They have won three games in a row and will be ready to play."

Morris leads the conference in rushing with 1,084 yards, and is second in the nation.

Last year against TCU he had 199 yards on 24 carries.

"We got a lot of seniors on this team and we want them to go out with a win," Morris said.

The Raiders have won their last two games, including a 31-22 victory over Texas last week, but now the Raiders have to focus on stopping a hot-handed TCU team.

The Frogs beat Houston 28-10 last week in Fort Worth.

"We have to stop the run," sophomore middle linebacker Zach Thomas said before Thursday's workout. "We just have to go out and execute well and get them into their passing game. If they are passing they are out of their game."

TCU had 341 total yards against the Cougars last week with 187 of those coming on the ground. Tailback Andre Davis leads the team in rushing with 647 yards.

Quarterback Matt Knake leads the way through the air with a 59.2 completion percentage.

"We have to hold off a bit, because they do a lot of lead draws. They try to keep you off balance," Thomas said. "Knake is a good quarterback and he has done a good job."

In the three-game winning streak for the Horned Frogs, they beat Tulane 14-7 and Baylor 38-13.

Tech has 24 seniors making their last trip down the ramp to Jones Stadium, including seven starters on offense and two on defense.

"We don't have very many seniors on defense, but people like Shawn (Jackson) are our leaders," Thomas said. "We want them to finish with a good season. We know this is their last game on the home field."

Texas Tech notes

- Saturday's game will be the first for Robert Hall and Lloyd Hill to play together against TCU. Hill missed the 1990 game with an injury and Hall has missed the past two with injuries.
- The last time TCU arrived in Lubbock with a three-game winning streak in tow was in 1991. The

Arm tackle

Texas Tech I-back Byron "Bam" Morris bangs out extra yards as Texas linebacker Kevin Walter tries to bring him down in the Red Raiders' 31-22 win Saturday in Austin.

Frogs left with it increased to four after winning 30-16.

- In the last three games, the Frogs have allowed 257 yards to Tulane, 220 yards to Baylor and 352 yards to Houston. The Cougars rushed for only four yards against TCU last week.

Linksters prepare for Harvey Penick tournament

by LEN HAYWARD
THE UNIVERSITY DAILY

It has been three weeks since the Texas Tech men's golf team has played in a tournament. This weekend the Red Raiders play in what could be the most important tourney of the fall season.

The Red Raider linksters will compete in the Harvey Penick Intercollegiate in Austin today and Saturday.

"Probably one of the biggest ones we play all year," senior Michael Ashy said of this weekend's tourney. "The same teams that we will face in the (Southwest) conference are going to be there."

Play begins today with two rounds, with the opening round starting at 7:15 a.m. at the Morris Williams Golf Course.

"Of our four events in the fall, this is the biggest," coach Tommy Wilson said.

"This will be the only time other than the Southwest Conference championships that all eight conference schools are together for a tournament."

The other seven conference schools will compete, with four teams from the SWC ranked in the top 25.

Texas is ranked the highest at No. 3, while Houston is No. 9, Southern Methodist No. 17 and Texas Christian No. 22.

"It would be great (to win)," Ashy said. "We just have to not put pressure on ourselves to play well and just go out and play. There is not that big of a gap, except between us and the teams that are in the top 10."

Ashy leads the team in stroke average with a 73.6 in the two tournaments Tech has competed in this fall.

Tech won the Woodlands Intercollegiate in Houston earlier in the fall.

"Some of these teams have not won a tournament, but we have and that helps us," Ashy said.

Junior Mike Schrader and Lance Lokey also will play for Tech, with

Ashy

Schrader having the second-best scoring average on the team with a 74.8 average.

Senior Scott Friggie and sophomores Bryan Novoa and Chris Mathis will also see action for the Raiders. Also competing at the tournament will be Lamar, North Texas, Sam Houston State, Stephen F. Austin and Southwest Louisiana.

"It should be a good barometer to see how everyone stacks up for the spring," Wilson said. "Plus, all 12 teams in the field are District VI schools so it will be important for the upcoming district rankings. This tournament has a great tradition behind it because of all the things Harvey Penick has done for golf."

Women netters to take on league foes at Austin tourney

The Texas Tech women's tennis team is in Austin this weekend for the Intercollegiate Tennis Association tournament.

All Southwest Conference teams will compete, along with teams from Arkansas and Louisiana.

The Raiders are improving every week, according to coach

Kathy Vick, who said she is looking for further improvement in this tournament.

"This tournament has gotten big and plays a big part in the rankings," Vick said. "We really need to do well."

The Tech lineup for this tournament will see Jennifer Brennan, Lynne Jackson, Christy

Davis, Sheri Gilreath, Debbi Biswell and Erika Fisher in singles play.

Fisher was named the Ace of the Week, as she has an 8-1 fall record.

In doubles action, the tandems of Brennan/Jackson, Gilreath/Fisher and Davis/Renna Rhodes will compete.

Vick

The Raiders are coming off a good performance last week at the Texas Tech Quadrangular.

The Raiders defeated Northeast Louisiana and Texas-El Paso before losing to Colorado by a score of 5-4 last weekend.

Cowboys' Casillas ready for test against Giants running game

IRVING (AP)—Tony Casillas is tired of hearing how poorly the Dallas defense has performed against the run. He says the Cowboys will pass Sunday's test against the power running New York Giants with an A plus.

"I think we're still playing pretty good football," said the Cowboys tackle. "There can be no excuses on Sunday. It's time to get the job done. We're going to do it."

He acknowledged the Giants are hard to stop with their grinding, ball control offense.

"They just line up and run, run, run," he said. "It seems like they run it 75 percent of the time. I kind of like it. It's no big deal to them. They know what they are going to do and we know what they are going to do."

"It's not very pretty football. They just try to run it down your throat. They'll bring it to us. And we'll bring it to them."

Casillas lost his job early in the season but regained it because of his reputation as tough against the run. Dallas ranks 15th in the NFL against the run. Dallas has given up 43 first downs to opposing runners, which is two more than the Cowboys have gained on the ground themselves.

"We've been getting hit with big plays and we've got to stop it," defensive coordinator Butch Davis said. "The NFC East is a run division. You have to stop the run in this division or you don't get very far."

The Cowboys haven't been allowing many points but teams have broken long runs against them in almost every game.

Coach Jimmy Johnson was so concerned he ordered some live tackling this week to shake the Cowboys out of the doldrums.

"There's a lot of pressure on the defense this week," said Casillas. "It's about time we proved we are as good a defense as the one that led the NFL last year. It's time to make plays."

The Cowboys have allowed 4.3 yards per run this year and the Giants average 4.1 yards. Lewis Tillman has averaged 5.3 yards per carry.

Bowers' job could be in jeopardy after probe

WACO (AP) — Baylor women's basketball coach Pam Bowers feels in danger of losing her job after reporting possible NCAA rules violations within the men's basketball program, her attorney said Thursday.

Waco attorney LaNelle L. McNamara said Bowers and her team have become the object of scorn at Baylor since revelations that Bowers' letter to school officials set off an internal investigation.

"The gun is aimed at her, but the bullets are hitting the girls," McNamara said.

"I think she feels she's not being given a fair opportunity to defend herself."

McNamara said Bowers had not planned to discuss her letter with anyone but school officials before men's basketball coach Darrel Johnson gave a Waco reporter a copy of Bowers' whistle-blowing letter.

Bowers' Aug. 30 memo to former athletic director Grant Teaff, current athletic director Dick Ellis and compliance officer Clyde Hart contained information on 10 possible NCAA violations.

Johnson this week said the internal probe was completed with no discovery of wrongdoing.

"As far as I'm concerned, (the investigation) is over," Johnson told The Houston Post.

"We're not doing anything (illegal) and we have never, ever willfully committed any NCAA violations — minor, major, you name it."

Bowers

Johnson

"We have self-reported what we consider one secondary violation. Clyde Hart called it a secondary violation," he said.

But according to other reports, the internal probe in continuing into whether former Baylor forward Eric Dortch was improperly paid last summer. A former Bears player said Johnson arranged to provide a car and full-time pay for Dortch while both played at Baylor.

McNamara said after Johnson revealed that Bowers was the source of the allegations, Bowers broke the story.

But a news conference planned for Wednesday was canceled after James S. Netherton, vice president and chief operating officer for administrative and planning issued a memo.

"I got a memo from Netherton saying that if we went through with this that it is in violation of personnel policy with possible consequences to Pam's employment situation," McNamara said.

Bowers instead released a statement saying she was contractually bound to report any wrongdoing she observed within the athletic department.

Netherton publicly chastised Bowers for choosing "the news media as her forum for discussing her complaints involving a fellow Baylor coach."

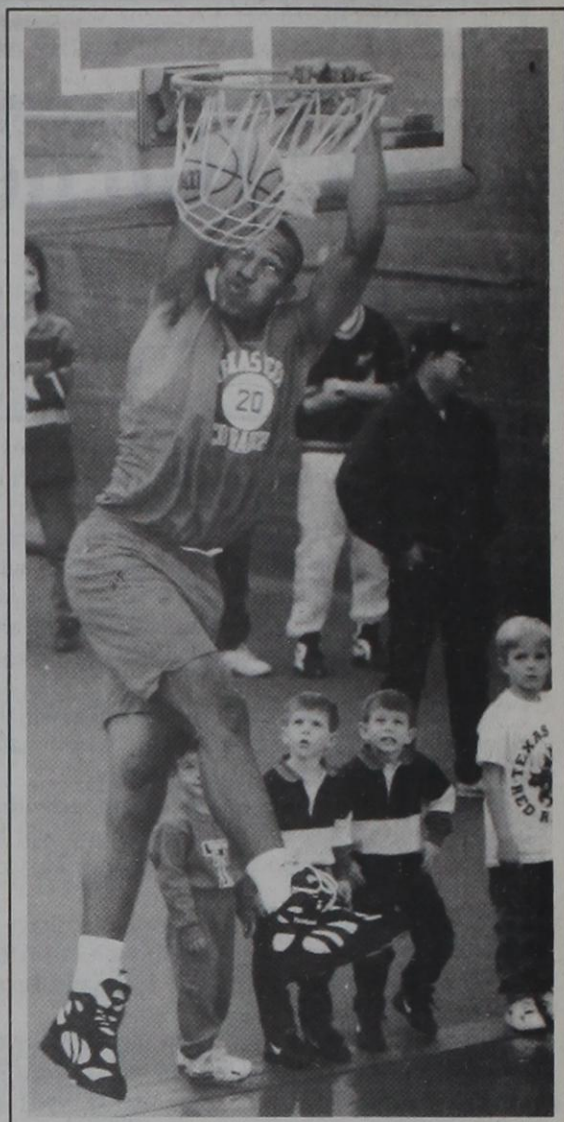

Johnson, who released Bowers' memo to a reporter, was praised Wednesday in a statement from Baylor President Herbert H. Reynolds.

School officials said both Reynolds and Hart were out of town Thursday. Ellis did not return telephone calls from The Associated Press.

Reached at their Baylor offices Thursday, both Bowers and Johnson said they had been told not to speak with the media.

"I really can't," Johnson said. "They told me not to comment."

Some news reports this week also have said one men's basketball player has already been declared academically ineligible by the school as a result of the investigation.

Slam!

SHARON M. STEINMAN: THE UNIVERSITY DAILY

Texas Tech forward Darvin Ham, a junior from Saginaw, Mich., dunks the ball at a recent Red Raider practice. The men's basketball team will have an intrasquad scrimmage at 9 a.m. Saturday in the Athletic Training Center south of Jones Stadium.

Spurs enter opener with Warriors intact

SAN ANTONIO (AP) — The competition is familiar — the San Antonio Spurs versus longtime nemesis Golden State as the teams open their NBA season Friday night.

But oh, how things change. For the first time in nearly two years the Spurs are entering a regular-season game with no players sitting out or slowed by serious injuries.

The Warriors, though, are hobbled in a big way.

Guards Tim Hardaway and Sarunas Marciulionis are out all season with knee injuries and top scorer Chris Mullin is out for six weeks with a hand injury. Top draft pick Chris Webber has a sprained ankle and is doubtful for Friday.

Still, the Spurs insist, they won't be writing off Golden State when the teams meet at the new Alamodome.

"We'll have to do our work," said Spurs coach John Lucas. "They're a very good team. They missed some players last year and did pretty good."

Very good against the Spurs. The Warriors defeated San Antonio 3-1 in 1992-93 season matchups.

"I expect real hard-fought basketball," Lucas said.

The Spurs expect Warriors point guard Avery Johnson, who played the position for San Antonio last season, to come to Texas ready to prove the Spurs lost a good thing when they refused to offer him a guaranteed contract.

"Yeah, it's a big game; everything speaks for itself," Johnson said in Thursday's San Antonio Express-News.

The Spurs are expected to rely on Eric "Sleepy" Floyd at the point. Lucas hasn't ruled out roster changes, but said he's prepared to go with the players he has for now.

This season marks a partial return to a successful Spurs lineup of the past. Forward Terry Cummings and guard Willie Anderson, back after battling injuries last season, join center David Robinson again as starters.

NBA grants Toronto expansion franchise

NEW YORK (AP) — The NBA on Thursday welcomed Toronto as an expansion team for $125 million, and delayed a decision on awarding a franchise to Vancouver.

The league also voted to suspend for as many as two games players who repeatedly are called for flagrant fouls.

Completing two days of meetings, the Board of Governors unanimously approved the NBA Expansion Committee's Sept. 30 recommendation that a Toronto group led by John Bitove Jr. be accepted as owners of the league's 28th team in the 1995-96 season.

The franchise fee of $125 million is nearly four times the $32.5 million it cost expansion teams in Miami, Orlando, Charlotte and Minnesota over a two-year period in the late 1980s.

The board postponed for up to two months a decision on whether to award a franchise to the Vancouver group led by Arthur Griffiths, but Expansion Committee chairman Jerry Colangelo termed the city's chance as excellent. Vancouver also would enter the NBA in 1995.

The NBA said the Toronto and Vancouver teams would get the sixth and seventh picks in the first round of the 1995 draft, and if Toronto comes in alone, it would get the sixth pick.

An expansion draft also will be held for the new teams, with each existing club losing one player after being allowed to protect eight players.

"We are as excited as we can get about bringing NBA basketball to Canada and Toronto," NBA commissioner David Stern said. "It's a spectacular day for our international expansion."

Stern defended the huge increase in the franchise fee, saying the league used a formula that determined that a team could be profitably operated after paying the $125 million fee.

Stern added that the NBA's "television revenues are in the area of a quarter of what they were when the last four franchises were awarded."

Bitove said the name of the team, which will play in SkyDome in its first season and in a new 22,000-seat downtown arena after that, would be decided in a contest next year.

Under the new violence rule, a player will receive a point for a Flagrant 1 foul — defined as unnecessary contact by a player against an opponent — and two points for a Flagrant 2 foul — defined as unnecessary and excessive contact.

If a player with four points commits a Flagrant 2 foul, he will be suspended for a game. If a player with five or six points is whistled for a Flagrant 2 foul, that player will be suspended for two games. A player with seven or more points committing any flagrant foul will receive a two-game suspension.

Dickey lauded by fellow coaches

Texas Tech men's basketball coach James Dickey has been selected by NCAA basketball coaches across the country as being one of the top "Up-and-Coming Coaches" according to a survey released by College Sports magazine.

The poll requested that all 110 Division I coaches name the coaches who they felt are the up-and-comers in college basketball.

Dickey was tied for fourth with California's second-year Todd Bozeman.

John Calipari of Massachusetts, Bob Higgins of Cincinnati and Randy Ayers of Ohio State were listed first, second and third, respectively, in the survey.

Dickey has compiled a record of 33-26 in two seasons at Tech, and led the Raiders to a South-west Conference Post-Season Classic Championship and a spot in the NCAA tournament last season.

Men's basketball team to hold scrimmage

The Texas Tech men's basketball team will play its first intrasquad scrimmage of the pre-season at 9 a.m. Saturday in Tech's Athletic Training Center, located just south of Jones Stadium.

Admission is free, and the scrimmage is expected to last until about 11 a.m.

The Red Raiders will return starters Lance Hughes and Jason Sasser, along with SWC Freshman of the Year Koy Smith.

Tech finished last season with an 18-12 record, while winning the SWC Post-Season Classic.
