Puerto Ricans want commonwealth

SAN JUAN, Puerto Rico (AP) - Supporters of continued commonwealth status for Puerto Rico prevailed at the polls Sunday over those who wanted statehood, turning back the strongest movement this century for full union with Washington.

"The people spoke and I will obey them," Gov. Pedro Rossello, who spearheaded the statehood campaign, said before thousands of supporters acknowledging defeat.

But he added: "This is a struggle that will go on."

With votes counted from 89 percent of the precincts — 1,582 of 1,784 — official results showed continuing commonwealth status receiving 740,892 votes, or 48.5 percent; statehood 707,314, or 46.3 percent; and independence 66,915, or 4.4 percent.

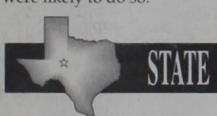

NAFTA can be saved before vote

WASHINGTON (AP) -Foes of the North American Free Trade Agreement seem a handful of votes shy of being able to kill the pact in Wednesday's House showdown, leaving President Clinton with an uphill but achievable fight to save the deal, an Associated Press survey has found.

With opponents of the agreement needing 217 votes to prevail, 203 representatives said they would vote against the measure or were likely to do so, the survey found. The figure included 178 who said they would vote "no," and 25 who said they were leaning that way.

Arrayed against them were 180 supporters of NAFTA, which would phase out tariffs and other restrictions on trade among the United States, Mexico and Canada. Of these, 165 said they would vote for the agreement and 15 said they were likely to do so.

Womb advertised on Houston board

HOUSTON (AP) - Above the highway buzz of Houston's traffic reads this billboard: "Womb for Rent! Educated, Healthy, Loving, Surrogate Mother Available."

A phone number follows for the attorney of a woman who says she got frustrated trying to get clinics to make arrangements or national newspapers to take her ad.

The woman, who wants to remain anonymous, said she hopes some prospective parents will call her lawyer so she can help an infertile couple and also meet some of her own goals, such as using part of her fee to complete a doctorate.

"It's the sheer bureaucracy they have to go through," the prospective surrogate said Saturday.

"She has a good sense of humor, and the part about 'womb for rent' shows her sense of humor, but the rest of it is serious," said attorney Roger Broach.

The resolution states that students have complained about the lengthy process of preregistration and that "the classification of seniors and juniors enrolled at Tech dictates the assumed responsibility for his or her requirements that are needed in order to graduate."

Sanchez said, "I know that a lot of other students have had a lot of difficulty with getting signatures. Our overall purpose was to make it easier for students to register."

Shirley Wittman, director of undergraduate programs for the College of Business Administration, said the policy change could affect BA students differently than the change will affect other Tech students.

"In the BA program, students are divided into lower division and upper division," she said. "Upper division students do not have to be advised, they just have to drop off their card to be signed," she said.

"However, some students could be juniors in hours but not in the upper division program yet."

Phones not the answer

Section number four is closed. Section number three is closed. Section number two is closed.

This is the death knell of phone registration — a mechanical voice counting off each class that is not

It is also the bell that most people are refusing to SANDRA PULLEY

Phone registration should be looked at as an option, not as a solution to registration problems.

Even those planning the new system have been honest about its benefits and drawbacks.

"The problem with registration is not with lines," said Admissions and Records Director Gene Medley during an interview with a University Daily reporter. "It is that not enough courses are available. And phone registration will not increase the number of courses."

Tech will always have thousands of students trying to register on one day. Phone registration will only change lines into hours of busy signals. At least with a line, students can see progress being made, but the same cannot be said for busy signals.

The telephone system also lacks the human element. The people who man the registration computers are normally helpful when a section is closed because they tell students the section option that will fit in their schedules.

With the phone, this responsibility is transferred to the student.

The Texas Tech administration can be commended for responding to students' requests by trying to provide phone registration, but as plans for this modern wonder continue, the planners should remember the human element.

Students who choose to register in person should be afforded an ample opportunity to go and get their schedules with the aid of a living being behind a computer. At other schools this "option" is often provided during the last day of registration.

While phone registration could help students if properly implemented, it is time for administrators and student leaders to focus on the cause of the registration problem — fewer and fewer classes.

If this trend continues no new registration options will help, and the death knell of Texas Tech as an institution of higher learning will start

Tech lost in the '50s

In the last thirty some-odd years, attitudes have changed with the times, at least in many places around the world far removed from Lubbock. Recent events on this campus, however, lend credibility to the argument that Tech should replace "The Matador Song" with Ronnie Milsap's "Lost in the '50s Tonight" as the new school song.

In the 1950s, flattops, poodle skirts and hula hoops RICHARD were in. Communism kept us awake at night wondering whether the little red button would accidently be pushed. And, an unmarried co-ed who became pregnant either got married or mysteriously disappeared for a while to have her baby. Check the calendar. It is now 1993. Poodle skirts are out for women — in for poodles. Flattops are only somewhat in vogue and hulas are hooped out. Clintonism has replaced communism as our primary worry-wart. Yet, many attitudes on this campus remain stuck in the '50s, as evidenced by last week's discussion of the High Riders' constitution in The University Daily.

Surely, by modern standards, many provisions of the High Riders' constitution are outdated and ill-advised, if not illegal. Indeed, as noted by attorney Deniece Jones, some provisions of the High Riders' constitution may violate Title IX in a discriminatory manner. Even if the legal avenue is not pursued, the High Riders and other organizations with similar constitutional provisions should nevertheless abandon outdated moral codes as a matter of principle.

Under the High Riders' constitution members must have positive attitudes, high moral standards and a sense of responsibility. Evidently, the organization condemns drinking, smoking and cursing in public, in addition to public displays of affection, and contained within these guidelines is an implicit prohibition against pre-marital sex.

Strictly construed and taken to the extreme, these guidelines produce predictably ludicrous results. For example, a strict interpretation suggests a simple solution to the current dilemma; any member who has violated any of the group's high standards should resign.

Since all of the prohibitions are equally weighted, a violation of any one of the rules should result in equal punishment. Let's take the group's adviser. Haven't you ever said a bad word in public? Haven't you ever held someone's hand in public?

There's another thorny issue lurking beneath these troubled waters, namely Christianity. What church today, truly Christian in nature, excommunicates a female member just because she is unmarried and pregnant? Isn't the unqualified support of that woman the proper Christian-like response?

Furthermore, Christianity denounces abortion. Yet, the High Riders' policy may unwittingly promote abortion by ostracizing its members who become pregnant. Think about it. If an unmarried member of the group becomes pregnant and deeply desires to retain full membership rights, she must not let anyone know of her pregnancy. A secretly obtained abortion certainly provides that solution.

Jennifer Arbuckle is a courageous young woman who has made an admirable, highly moral decision.

And, if the outstanding reputation of the organization has been tarnished to any degree over this incident, members should realize it is because of an outdated, hypocritical attitude reflected by the group's "constitution," not because of the actions of one of its members. After all, this is 1993.

Texas Tech has reached beyond Lubbock's city limits into the deep realms of outer space, with the help of architecture associate professor Michael Peters.

Peters was the design architect for the Science Spectrum/ Omnimax Theatre that opened last month.

Trick roping is rare around the rodeo circuit, and everyone seems to know of Chapman and what he does with his horse and ropes.

"The market for this kind of entertainment is anywhere anybody wants to be entertained," he said.

Chapman not only performs at rodeos, he also has been doing his tricks for elementary children for the horse.

Chapman, on his quest to reach the big time, is in the process of getting a Professional Rodeo Cowboy Association contract to determine what rodeos want to feature his form of entertainment.
