Catholic leaders call for peace

LONDON (AP) — Britain must make the next move toward peace if there's to be an end to IRA killing, Northern Ireland's two leading Roman Catholic politicians said Saturday.

John Hume, a nationalist who eschews violence, and Gerry Adams, president of the pro-IRA Sinn Fein, began secret talks in April to find a compromise acceptable to London and the outlawed Irish Republican Army.

Details of their proposals have not been released, but sources in both their parties have indicated that the IRA would end its campaign against British rule if London declares it has interest in withdrawing from Ireland.

In a statement faxed to The Associated Press in London, the two politicians urged Britain to take advantage of their peace initiative.

Lockheed union considers strike

FORT WORTH (AP) — Lockheed Corp.'s largest labor union met Sunday to consider whether to accept new contract terms offered by the company or to shut down the F-16 assembly line with a strike.

Machinists District Lodge 776 had called an afternoon meeting of its 6,000 members at the Cowtown Coliseum in the Fort Worth Stockyards.

Union leaders said they would present the members with Lockheed's "best and final" offer or ask them to cast ballots on alternative actions.

Pat Lane, union president, could advise members to accept or turn down the company's proposal, extend the current contract, strike or stage a work slowdown, the Fort Worth Star-Telegram reported in its Sunday editions.

JFK spot will be commemorated as historic landmark

DALLAS (AP) — The spot in downtown Dallas where John F. Kennedy was assassinated 30 years ago is being designated as a national historic landmark.

Nellie Connally, widow of former Texas Gov. John Connally, who was seriously wounded in the Nov. 22, 1963 attack, was scheduled to make the official presentation of the plaque in midday ceremonies Monday.

The Connallys were riding in the same open-air limousine with the president and his wife when shots rang out in Dealey Plaza, on the western end of downtown Dallas.

The ceremony, open to the public, was to feature traditional American music by the Dallas Wind Symphony and gospel spirituals by a community mass choir.

Several students from Dallas public schools were to read passages from JFK's writings.

American strike creating unfriendly skies

FORT WORTH (AP) — Striking flight attendants asked American Airlines Sunday to join them in calling for a presidential emergency board to mediate their contract dispute.

The planned 11-day strike by the Association of Professional Flight Attendants, which represents 21,000 members at American, was in its fourth day Sunday.

Union President Denise Hedges

Attendants call for emergency board

said she sent a letter to American Chairman Robert Crandall asking him to join her in asking the National Mediation Board to request the emergency panel.

"With no settlement offer from you in sight and the heavy-traffic holiday period now upon us, we've decided to take the initiative and try to end the strike," Hedges said.

The mediation board had been overseeing contract negotiations between American and the union, which broke off due to differences in pay, health benefits, staffing and scheduling.

A spokesman for the mediation board said confidentiality rules prevented him from confirming or denying whether the board had received the letter or would make such a recommendation to the White House.

The White House has not created a presidential emergency board involving the airlines since the mid-1960s.

The strike, the first by flight attendants at American, is the biggest against a U.S. airline since 1989.

The company and the union have differed over the walkout's impact.

The union claims 95 percent or more of the airline's flight attendants are honoring the strike, while American contends more return to work on its flights each day.

Elderly students return to Tech classes through Seniors' Academy

by MEGAN CLARK
THE UNIVERSITY DAILY

Elderly residents of the Lubbock area can return to college life by participating in the Texas Tech Seniors' Academy.

"Besides being one of the more unique programs in higher education today, the Seniors' Academy is an example of Texas Tech's efforts to provide unequalled customer service to students and to the South Plains community," said Beverly

What: Texas Tech Seniors' Academy
Why: The program was designed for students more than 54 years old

Thompson, coordinator of Tech's Visitor's Center. "It also is an excellent opportunity for older residents to continue their learning process."

The Seniors' Academy was established to provide a continuing education program for students 55 years of age and older.

"It's a real enrichment process," Thompson said. "It helps students to pursue an interest or a subject they might not have had the chance to in the past."

Student applicants are required to fill out simplified registration forms and do not need to have taken the Scholastic Aptitude Test or other college entrance achievement tests.

"It really only takes a few minutes to fill out the registration forms," she said.

"This is done so that the elderly will not be bogged down with the registration process and will be encouraged to apply."

Since the start of the program three years ago, 75 students have participated in the program. Students attend classes for fun and for degree purposes, Thompson said.

"There are no special classes for elderly students, any class is available to them" she said.

"We ease them into the mainstream and offer them regular classes and typical college enrollment and advisement procedures."

Seniors' Academy members are also offered additional counseling and tutoring. Orientation sessions are mandatory for academy member to learn about Tech facilities and student services.

"I think this program was created to give a segment of people who had interest in returning to college the chance to without a complicated registration process," she said.

"Those who have not had the chance to take university offerings for any reason will now be able to with the help of the academy."

Area's playa lakes attract fowl crowd

Tech professor studying region's little lakes

by LESLIE WEEKS
THE UNIVERSITY DAILY

Visitors and natives to Lubbock alike may be curious about the series of perfectly circular depressions or shining bodies of water that are evident upon flying into Lubbock International Airport.

Range and wildlife management professor Loren Smith has made these bodies of water, called playa lakes, a major part of his research.

Smith said the playa lakes region includes five states, covering Colorado, Kansas, Oklahoma, New Mexico and Texas.

"In that region there are about 30,000 lakes," Smith said. "Two-thirds of them, or about 20,000, lakes are in Texas."

The lakes provide the best types of habitats for ducks, geese and shore birds, Smith said.

"This is one of the major flyways, or major migration regions, for waterfowl in the United States," he said. "In the southern high plains, playas are the choice habitats for migratory birds."

Smith said the birds usually feed off the seeds and plants that grow in the playa lakes.

"Most ducks eat the seeds of the plants," he said. "Seeds will last in the soil, some of the wetland plants may survive almost 100 years."

Barnyard grass, willow smartweed, pink smartweed and dock are among the many forms of vegetation found in the playa lakes.

As a result, Smith said during the wet years, ducks are in better physical condition.

"In the wet years, there is better plant production," he said. "They (ducks) can sit in the playas and eat. Otherwise, they have to go to the fields and feed."

Smith said plants are not the only lifeforms present in the playa lakes.

"A lot of invertebrate eggs and other things can live in the soil," he said. "They can survive dry soil for a while."

Smith said while some organisms originate from the eggs present in the soil, others come in from neighboring water bodies.

"There is usually a bloom of invertebrates such as snails and insects," he said.

Smith said his research includes the process of managing playa lakes.

The process involves giving the playa lakes a small amount of water at different times of the year.

"If we make the playa soil wet, or irrigate it, we can get those plants to germinate," he said. "We can improve the habitat for ducks and non-game birds."

Because of the improved habitats, a larger number of waterfowl are present during the winter.

"We deal with a lot of different landowners (interested in playa lakes)," Smith said. "This is really compatible (to farming) and during the winter months they can lease their land for hunting."

Smith said without the playa lakes there would still be a few lakes in the area, but they could not hold as many ducks or migratory birds.

"We would have wildlife," he said. "However, we would not have near the diversity."

In the lab: trying out new genes

Texas Tech University Health Sciences Center gets grant for Alzheimer's research

by CHRISTY EVERETT
THE UNIVERSITY DAILY

The Texas Tech University Health Sciences Center received a $1.62 million grant from the Texas Department of Health to conduct genetic research about Alzheimer's disease.

"We are primarily interested in setting up a DNA bank to serve Texas scientists," said Shirley Poduslo, a professor of neurology and principal investigator for the research.

Alzheimer's disease is a progressive brain disorder that results in the loss of reasoning, memory, perception and orientation.

TTUHSC will receive $1 million for the first year of research and $625,000 for the second year.

The grant was appropriated by the Texas Legislature for TDH to support Alzheimer's research.

Poduslo said the main purpose of the research is to identify genetic links. Two tubes of blood will be taken from each of the volunteers to set up a DNA bank.

Some evidence shows that more than one family member may be affected. Research is restricted because some of the family members may have died before clinical evidence of the disease became apparent.

"There is undoubtedly a genetic link," Poduslo said.

Linkage between genes on chromosomes 21, 19 and 14 has been suggested, she said.

"Understanding the genetic mechanisms which could manifest themselves as symptoms would greatly facilitate the development of appropriate treatment and possible prevention of the disease," Poduslo said.

She said she believes knowledge of the genes will allow identification of the disease in the patients before the symptoms appear.

Poduslo said she believes the Alzheimer's research completed by TTUHSC may lead to prevention and possible treatment of the disease.

American Airlines workers selfish

KRISTIE DAVIS

In the season of giving, it is time to give the striking American Airlines flight attendants a well-deserved vacation — a very extended vacation.

People everywhere are standing in line for jobs, for food stamps and for government-processed cheese. And all the selfish, thankless AA flight attendants can think about is more money and more benefits.

Who doesn't want more money and more benefits, especially during this time of year?

There are tons of people who would love to have the job of a flight attendant. Actually, it is an ideal job for people who love to travel but could not otherwise afford to.

So, because the flight attendants believe they are not given what they think they deserve, they are going to make customers who are traveling long distances to see loved ones during the Thanksgiving holidays suffer. Flights are being canceled left and right. And because AA officials are not sure whether the required amount of attendants are going to show up, flights are being canceled only 30 minutes before their scheduled take-off.

Some attendants are showing up, only to step off the plane just minutes before take-off.

Flight attendants choosing to cross the picket line have been told to wear street clothes to work and to put their uniform on at the airport, to keep all AA tags and stickers off their belongings and to car pool with other non-striking flight attendants.

Also, AA officials are working to find ways for employees to enter airports without having to come into contact with the striking flight attendants.

Is this any way to negotiate? Obviously, AA officials truly believe they can get along without these attendants and have been doing everything they can to work around the strikers.

More power to them.

The other airlines are showing their support for AA by accepting passengers with AA tickets.

While this is a magnanimous gesture, it can make life a bit difficult for ticketed passengers who arrive late to their flight only to find their seat has been given to an AA customer.

All airline passengers have been advised to arrive at the airport earlier than normal — even for the holidays — to avoid any confusion.

It is completely intolerable what these flight attendants are doing, especially during the time they chose to do it.

If I get the long end of the wishbone this year, one of my wishes will be that all the striking AA flight attendants spend Thanksgiving day standing in a long line at the Delta terminal trying to find a way home for the holidays.

BIBLE MISUNDERSTOOD

To the editor:

I am writing in response to Mr. Foster's editorial which was published in the Wednesday edition of The UD. Mr. Foster states "I once heard about a woman who was pregnant and didn't know who the father was. She was shacking up with a guy named Joseph about 2,000 years ago." This narrative quote makes two assumptions; the first being that Mary was a tramp and that she was living with Joseph before they were married.

Second, Mary was not "shacking up with Joseph," as was stated by Mr. Foster. Shacking up implies that a man and a woman are living together without the benefit of marriage vows. Mary was espoused to Joseph which means they were engaged to be married. Joseph was told in a dream not to fear taking Mary as his wife because the child was from God. (Matthew 1:18-20) We also find that Joseph and Mary did not have sexual relations until after Jesus was born. (Matthew 1:25) In view of these facts, it's safe to presume Mary was not a tramp nor was she shacking up with Joseph.

I fail to see relevance the story of Joseph and Mary has on the pregnancy scandal in the High Rider organization, unless the conception was immaculate.

Larry Hazelton

OFFENSIVE INTERPRETATION

To the editor:

I am greatly offended by the letter "Misrepresentation" in Wednesday's UD, which responded to the High Riders (incident).

First of all, I would like to respond to the comment made about Mary and Joseph. I was shocked to read it phrased "the woman who didn't know who the father was and was 'shacking up' with a guy named Joseph."

Two corrections need to be made. Mary and Joseph never had sex, so she was not "shacking up" with him. Second, she was made pregnant by the Holy Spirit. So, I don't see how these two situations are comparable.

Also, I am offended by the references made toward Christians. I don't feel you can generalize all Christians as people who "don't lead a good example." True, Christians are not perfect, we all sin and struggle, so we should ultimately look to Christ who is the perfect example to follow. It is true that people will fail, but Christ will never fail.

I take offense to the phrases that refer to Christians as people who "bang people upside the head with a Bible, which they know little about, just because someone told them it was the righteous thing to do." I think we can all agree that this is a harsh and unrealistic picture of a Christian. I don't think that the intent of Christians is to force anything on anybody.

I encourage anyone who is struggling with the issue of the High Riders and their stand, to take the time to talk with them personally before forming your opinion on the issue.

THE BEEF ON AG

To the editor:

I would like to shed another opinion on the subject of vegetarianism and the destruction of the environment by farmers and ranchers.

Coming from a rural background, I have first-hand knowledge of what goes on in the agriculture industries such as farming and ranching. I do not feel that being an assistant music director makes you the most qualified to talk about farming practices and eating habits. I have worked for farmers and ranchers in Central Texas and have seen that these people, whose lives depend on the land, use the most conservative and environmentally safe methods to farm and ranch. It would be unethical to destroy the environment and earth that provides life-giving necessities and money to support their families.

The second point I was confused about was how growing vegetables and plants for the world's vegetarians would help slow the damage to the environment caused by the destruction of the tropical rainforests. I agree that this is a horrible event which is occurring, but the U.S. government is doing everything possible to stop this. If you are correct about farmers misusing deadly chemicals and pesticides, wouldn't this just add more fuel to the fire? On the subject of ranchers overgrazing and causing desertification of land, this occurs only in a very small percentage and that is the owners' fault. Most ranchers are practicing conservation processes which have improved the land for wildlife and plants. It has been found that grazing is beneficial because it rids the plants of old growth so that new growth may sprout forth. In lands that have been taken over by the government and put into national reserves, the plants have grown so tall that in the winter when they die and fall over, new growth is stamped out.

As for beef cattle and their production, there is little evidence that they are hazards to the environment and their meats are hazardous to our health. Meats are leaner and healthier than they ever have been. I worked last summer as an assistant veterinarian for a large cattle operation, and I personally kept many records which proved no cattle would be sold to be slaughtered with any traces of vaccine or hormones. The media is the main cause of hysteria and fear of beef products. And as for beef being unhealthy due to cholesterol, it is now linked to be a more hereditary nature.

I recognize that you have opposite opinions as me, and that it is your right as a citizen to express them, but I do not feel that you are qualified in your accusations. I have over eight years of experience in the field of agriculture and have witnessed the hardships of the farmer and rancher that has come from people like you that probably have never even ventured into an agriculture area.

Going against tradition

Political party leaders working together

CARL TEPPER

Last Wednesday evening Hell froze over, the Pope converted to Judaism and dogs and cats across the world slept together. Maybe I'm exaggerating a little, but Republicans and Democrats did form a strong coalition to ensure that HR 3450, better known as NAFTA, passed. I am in support of the NAFTA agreement, but I don't like the idea that Republicans and Democrats will continue to work together. As a matter of fact, the whole scene annoys me. Someone isn't keeping their side of the bargain. They're supposed to be on fact-finding junkets and creating gridlock, not sipping brandies together and trading bedtime stories.

After all of the hoopla and finally the passage of the bill in the House of Representatives, I watched the post-vote rhetoric. Congressional leaders such as Minority Whip Newt Gingrich, Speaker of the House Tom Foley and several other normally scrappy fighters were smiling, slapping each other on the back and trading Thanksgiving turkey recipes. Why does this upset me so? Because I liked the good ole' days. Although I am a card carrying Republican, I can realize the frailties of the system as a whole, and the only thing that was protecting us (the taxpayers) from them (the professional lawmakers), was their partisanship. That's right, when they were fighting amongst themselves, nothing got done and they left us alone. Thus, the beauty of gridlock.

I only hope that something will arise that straightens things out. Certainly health care, the budget or some cocktail party crack about Bill's dad will realign our beloved parties to their proper corners.

Now I realize that the little libertarian in me is showing through. "Where is the Republican Tepper?" you ask. Well first and foremost, I distrust government — conservative, liberal and whatever other label one can conceive. While our leaders do tend to have ideological ties, they are primarily concerned with their hides. A predicament that will be remedied by term limits, but that's concern for another column. Secondly, when Bill Clinton and Rush Limbaugh agree on something, I get queasy. It seems to me like some sort of conspiracy. I realize that politics makes for strange bedfellows, but what's next? Will Hillary and Rush start flirting? Maybe G. Gordon Liddy will lobby for gun control. I heard that Mikhail Gorbachev and Pat Buchanan are having an affair. Now that Ross Perot has been discredited, any day now he'll announce his candidacy for the presidency of, who knows? Maybe, Wendy's. (Dave Thomas won't be happy.) Soon no one on Melrose Place will fool around, and on 90210, Dillon is in a good mood and Brenda has stopped whining. Even the Clinton Administration will become competent.

OK, maybe I'm exaggerating again, but my doomsday prediction is that our government will turn into an aristocracy, and I will be the only one to notice — the only one to care. For Thanksgiving this year, we'll be throwing tortillas and crow, and I told you so.

No rhyme intended.

Carl Tepper is a senior political science major and a guest columnist for The University Daily.

Women's studies course topic of council discussion

by JENNIFER GILBERT
THE UNIVERSITY DAILY

Members of Texas Tech's Women's Studies Council met Friday to discuss what some may classify as feminist issues, but what the council members consider relevant and pressing concerns for the advancement of educated and modern women.

A women's studies course will be offered during the 1994 spring semester that will include the interdisciplinary study of historical gender stereotypes and the modern visibility of the professional woman.

Women Studies Program Coordinator Gwen Sorell said Tech is a member of the National Council for Research on Women and said the membership is the first from Texas.

Communication studies associate professor and Women's Studies Council member Kate Hawkins submitted a research paper to the council about reasons why female Tech employees have left their jobs.

Hawkins said the paper "struck a cord with a lot of her colleagues."

Rollins insists he fabricated original story

NEWARK, N.J. (AP) — Ed Rollins did not give Democrats the smoking gun they seek to overturn New Jersey's gubernatorial election, but they aren't done looking, the state's Democratic Party chairman said Sunday. In sworn testimony given Friday to lawyers for the Democrats, Rollins insisted he fabricated his original story: that Common reasons for leaving Tech included the under-representation of women, inadequate funding for research, little support from the Lubbock community, insensitivity to the needs of female employees and discrimination.

"It led me to believe if there are any changes that are going to be made, they need to start at the college or department level," she said.

Hawkins also said writing the research paper is what she thinks "academic freedom is all about."

Women's studies is defined as "an interdisciplinary area of study which examines the cultural construction of gender and explores the diverse experiences, contributions and perspectives of women."

The program was founded in 1981, and the courses are determined by the council and satisfy several General Education requirements.

According to the women's studies brochure, "students' career options are enhanced and expanded by their involvement in women's studies courses and programs."

$500,000 was spent to keep black ministers from preaching for Democratic Gov. Jim Florio and to have campaign workers stay home on Election Day.

"Tell them, if they don't go up to the pulpit and preach against us on Sunday, we'd be way ahead of the game," Rollins said.

PARKING PROFILE

compiled by UD news reporter
Jennifer Gooch from information provided by UPD Chief Jay Parchman

What illegal parking acts will result in only a ticket?

- Parking permits not properly installed
- What illegal parking acts can result in a ticket and a tow or boot?
  - Parking in: non-designated areas, no parking zones, service and access drives to parking lots, striped zones, handicapped spaces, 24-hour zones without proper permit, tow-away zones
  - Parking permit on vehicle other than authorized
  - Falsifying, reproducing or altering parking permits
  - Unauthorized parking in reserved parking lots
  - Parking overtime in a time limit zone
  - Parking without a valid permit
  - Parking a vehicle with any part extending across a line
  - Parking on the wrong side of the street facing oncoming traffic
  - Use of stolen or lost permit
  - Obstructing traffic, street, sidewalk, crosswalk, driveway, trash container, building entrance or exit
  - Parking on the turf, sidewalk, or non-designated parking zone
  - Abandoning vehicles on the Tech campus
  - Overdue citations
  - Parking on campus while parking privileges are suspended

tow and boot?

- ticket - $10 (If payment is not received within 10 calendar days, a $5 late charge is added)
- tow / boot - $40 (plus the amount of the ticket)

Vehicles impounded will be charged $6 a day (including tax) for storage, with a maximum storage fee of $130 per month

How are illegally parked cars handled?

"We generally do not initiate any impoundment from individually reserved spaces without first have a request from the permit holder of the space."

Has the price of a ticket, tow or boot increased since last year? If so, why?

Ticket - no
Tow/boot - Increased from $30 to $40 - "Our towing contracts expired and rebids were increased."

What does the money paid from tows, tickets or boots fund?

"These are revenue components to the fund which provides for the required maintenance and operations for the traffic and parking system."

What should a person do first when they realize they have been towed or booted?

The operator of the vehicle must contact the University Police Department and pay the ticket and the impoundment fee, through the traffic and parking office, before the vehicle is released

If a person arrives before the towing or booting is started, will the vehicle be impounded?

If the owner or driver of a vehicle to be impounded arrives before the impoundment has begun, the vehicle will not be impounded, but they are still issued a ticket. If the owner of driver arrives after the impoundment process has begun, the vehicle will not be impounded if the driver opts to pay the tow truck driver or UPD personnel $25 in lieu of impoundment (Sec. VIII-C).

Is there an amount of tickets, tows or boots given before stronger measures are taken?

Six violations within an academic year may result in the revocation of the individual's parking privileges for 90 days.

Cuba's role in JFK death still questioned

MIAMI (AP) — Just moments after the shots that killed President Kennedy rang out in Dallas, official eyes turned toward Miami and its conspiratorial Cuban exile community.

And on the 30th anniversary of the Nov. 22, 1963 assassination, questions about the Miami connection remain unanswered.

"After 30 years, our government has still not completed a thorough investigation," says former House Assassinations Committee investigator Gaeton Fonzi.

"So the people believe everything, and they believe nothing, and they remain as confused as ever."

Law enforcement and intelligence were clearly worried about the Miami connection on the day Kennedy was shot down.

The day after Kennedy's murder, the FBI raided the home of Miami exile militant Frank Sturgis to look for evidence.

Leigh's new biography focuses on life of JFK Jr.

NEW YORK (AP) — He's a 32-year-old lawyer who twice failed the bar. His most recent career move: Quitting his job for an extended vacation. He sports a sham-rock tattoo, and spends his free time tossing a Frisbee around Central Park.

Hey, isn't that your beer-swilling loser of a college roommate?

No — it's John F. Kennedy Jr., stupid, and biographer Wendy Leigh is betting that her book on the hunky presidential son will soon improve her personal economy.

To stack the odds in her favor, the cover of "Prince Charming:

The John F. Kennedy Jr. Story," features no author's name, no title, no publisher — only a full-color photo of young Kennedy, his power tie slightly askew, his hair and his smile just perfect.

Inside, there are some beefcake pix of a shirtless JFK Jr. turning handstands. Running. Walking. Playing softball. Roller-blading. Get the subliminal message?

This (BUY) guy (THIS) is (BOOK!) gorgeous!

While her work does cover Kennedy from his White House days to his Daryl Hannah nights, Leigh admitted the idea behind the bio didn't come from some editor bent on recording history.

"Really, what led to the book — a friend and I were gossiping about John, and she said, 'Wouldn't it be great to do a paperback named 'Hunk?'" recounted Leigh, a former BBC Television correspondent and Fleet Street veteran.

A short time later, Leigh viewed some rare footage of the 1961 John F. Kennedy inauguration and was struck by "the glamour, glitter and promise" — most of it unfulfilled due to two assassinations, Chappaquiddick and various other tragedies.

But is this guy — who prefers to keep a low profile, who avoids interviews like the plague, who worked in anonymity as a prosecutor — really a good subject for biography?

He was certainly born into Camelot, the post-assassination title bestowed on the Kennedy years and the apparent subliminal inspiration for the bio's title.

"I don't know why 'Prince Charming,'" Leigh said. "Why did I? I don't know — that's a terrible thing to say. It just seemed right in the scheme. That was the first thing that came to my mind, and I went for it."

Jazz recording artists to perform in UC's Allen Theatre

Hahn
THE FAR SIDE By GARY LARSON

UD Lifestyles

by MICHELLE ELIZARDO
THE UNIVERSITY DAILY

For anyone with a special interest in jazz music, the Texas Tech Music Department is sponsoring the Jazz Ensemble I today, featuring two well-known artists.

Guitarist Jerry Hahn and vocalist Sunny Wilkinson will be featured, along with Tech music students comprised in a jazz ensemble.

The concert will begin at 8:15 p.m. today at the University Center's Allen Theatre.

Tickets cost $4 for Tech students and $6 for others.

Tickets will be sold at the door before the concert, said Bradley Cope, publicity director for the school of music.

Jerry Hahn has taught jazz guitar for 14 years at Wichita State University.

He has been all over the world performing guitar in places such as Japan and Germany.

Hahn also was featured on the sound track for the movie, "White Men Can't Jump."

He has recorded six albums and has been featured on numerous albums, including Paul Simon's

(SUNNY'S) SENSITIVITY, INTERPRETATION AND MUSICIANSHIP CERTAINLY PUT HER IN A CLASS BY HERSELF.

Brent Pierce

first solo album.

Vocalist Sunny Wilkinson's album, "Alegria," was released in 1990 and the single, "Swing Journal," entered the Jazz Vocal Charts at number five in Japan.

She has sang with "The Count Basie Orchestra," done vocal work with the Disney Channel and sang on the soundtrack for the movie, "The Dark Man."

"Sunny is one of the most exciting jazz singers in the U.S.," said Brent Pierce of California's Fullerton College. "Her sensitivity, interpretation and musicianship certainly put her in a class by herself."

Alan D. Shinn, associate Tech music professor, will direct the concert. Hahn will be highlighted as soloist for selections on the first portion of the program, and Wilkinson later will perform numbers, including "The Very Thought of You" and "Just the Way You Look Tonight," Cope said.

Tech falls to Texas

Lady 'Horns take SWC title

by LEN HAYWARD
THE UNIVERSITY DAILY

Just when it looked like No. 1-ranked Texas was beginning to pull away from the Texas Tech women's volleyball team in the semifinals of the Southwest Conference volleyball tournament, the Red Raiders just kept fighting back.

But Texas setter Heather Pfluger used the dump to lead the Lady Longhorns past Tech in four games 15-8, 13-15, 15-6 and 15-9.

The teams were tied at 3-3 in the fourth game until Texas rattled off five straight points to take an 8-3 lead.

Tech would not die, though, as the Raiders scored three straight points capped by Texas' Jenny Warmack's kill attempt going out of bounds.

But Tech would score just three more points in the game and Texas registered its final point when freshman outside hitter Lacy Nye hit a ball out bounds to make the final score 15-9.

"I would rather have the win, but we played hard tonight," Tech coach Mike Jones said after his team dropped to 13-14 on the season. "I was very proud of what we did tonight."

The Lady 'Horns won the first game 15-8, but the Raiders rallied from a 13-9 deficit to take the second game from Texas.

The Lady 'Horns scored their 13th point when Tech middle blocker Jackie Bode hit a ball out of bounds, but Tech did not give up.

The Raiders scrapped back to within two points when UT's Angie Breitenfield hit a ball long cutting the lead to 13-11.

Tech tied the score at 13-13 when Diane Owens hit a kill through the block.

The game ended when sophomore middle blocker Jennifer Cohn hit a kill in the middle.

"It is hard to explain, you could just see it in everybody, wanting to win," sophomore outside hitter Lacy Nye said.

Nye had 10 kills in the match with 10 digs.

Cohn had 11 kills in the match, hitting .318 to lead Tech.

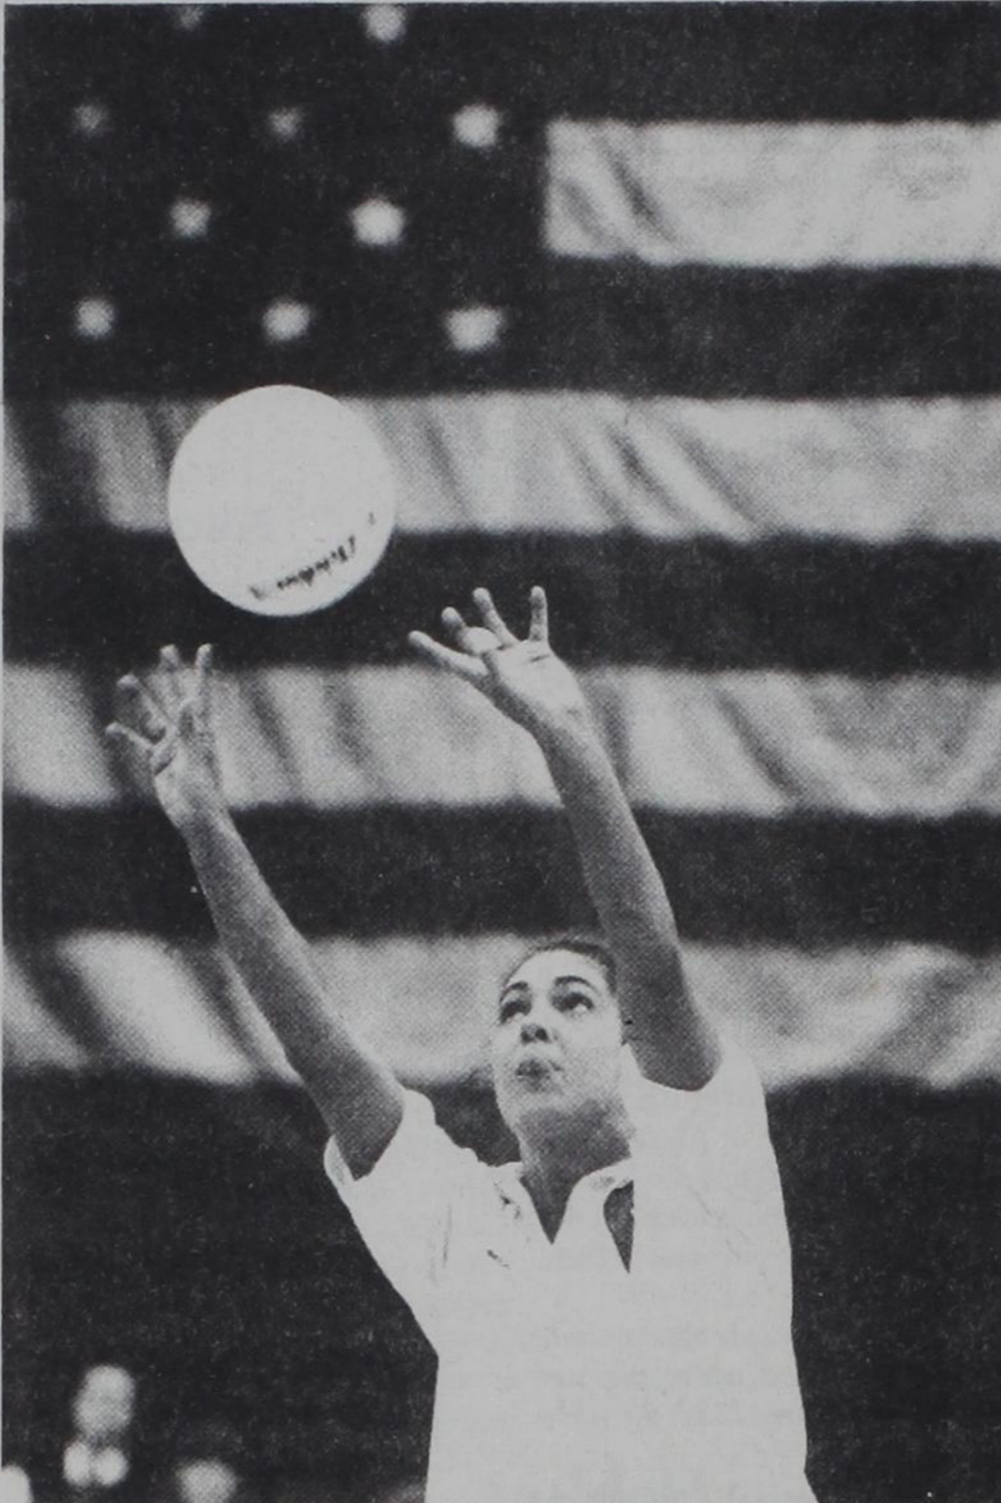

"We played well enough to cause some mistakes," Jones said. "We did a good job of blocking tonight and seeing where their hitters were."

Tech held All-American outside hitter Katy Jameyson to nine kills, along with an .074 hitting percentage.

"We did play well, but you also have to give Tech a lot of credit. They stayed with it," Texas coach Mick Haley said.

"We had trouble in the second game."

After the Raiders opened up a 5-0 lead in the first game, Texas

All-American girl

rallied for nine points, with Jameyson ending the game with a 5-0 lead in the first game, Texas went on to take the tournament title over Houston in three games.

Raiders drum Fort Sill 108-71 in exhibition game

The Texas Tech men's basketball team defeated the Fort Sill Cannoneers in an exhibition game Saturday 108-71.

Leading the way for the Red Raiders was sophomore forward Jason Sasser with 22 points and five rebounds.

Transfer Mark Davis received his first start at point guard, and was in on two assists to help the Raiders to their second consecutive victory over the Fort Sill team. Other standouts for the Raiders were junior transfer Darvin Ham, who had 17 points, and sophomore Koy Smith with 21. Junior guard Lance Hughes added 16.

The Raiders will play their second exhibition contest Wednesday against the Latvian National team at 8 p.m. in the Lubbock Municipal Coliseum.

Smith hurt in 27-14 loss to Falcons

ATLANTA (AP) — With Emmitt Smith, the Dallas Cowboys didn't lose. When they lost him Sunday, they didn't win.

A bruised right quadricep ended Smith's afternoon two minutes before halftime, and the Atlanta Falcons stopped the Cowboys' seven-game winning streak 27-14.

Atlanta's swarming defense, which shut out the Los Angeles Rams last week, blanked Dallas for nearly three quarters. Deion Sanders, one of the Falcons' best defenders, also contributed on offense by catching a 70-yard touchdown pass and high-stepping to the end zone with 3:51 left.

Even before Smith was injured, he did little. The Falcons limited him to only 1 yard on one carry and 9 yards on four catches.

The defending Super Bowl champion Cowboys (7-3) had been unbeaten since Smith came back from a two-game salary holdout to start the season. Bernie Kosar, playing his second game for injured Troy Aikman, threw TD passes late in the third and fourth quarters.

The Falcons (4-6) won for the fourth time in five games. They set the tone with the game's first possession, grinding out 73 yards in 14 plays that ate 8:48 off the clock and ended on Norm Johnson's 26-yard field goal.

The Cowboys netted only 1 yard, punted and then saw the Falcons march 60 yards in 15 more plays. Johnson capped it with a 24-yard field goal — his 24th consecutive successful kick, five shy of the league record.

Atlanta held the Cowboys to only one first down and 25 yards in the first half and yielded only 230 yards for the game, the first time Dallas failed to net at least 300 yards this season.

Tech slaughters Coogs 58-7 for sixth win

Morris sets SWC rushing record with 223 yards

by JAMES DAVID
THE UNIVERSITY DAILY

SAN ANTONIO — Texas Tech hammered Houston 58-7, which helped to bring Tech closer to a bowl berth and end one of the most dramatic turnarounds in Southwest Conference football history.

The night was filled with high emotion and expectations for the Red Raiders.

The crowd of 28,652 in the Alamodome, predominately made up Tech fans, saw Byron "Bam" Morris rush for 223 yards to break Earl Campbell's single-season rushing record by eight yards.

The Cooper native ended the season with 1,752 yards on the ground after his third consecutive game with more than 220 yards rushing.

Morris was held to 67 yards on 20 carries in the first half, and needed 216 yards to break the record held by Campbell, who set it in 1977.

"Coach Dykes and the offense lined up a heckuva job," Morris said in a jubilant locker room after his record-setting performance. Morris gave his game ball to running backs coach Rick Dykes.

"It's a great honor to break Earl Campbell's record," Morris said. "Earl was one of the greatest ever and I'm grateful for the chance to go back in and break the record."

The Raiders finished the season with a 6-5 overall record and a 5-2 mark in league play.

Houston's record fell to 1-8-1 and 1-4-1 in SWC play. The Cougars finish their next week against the Rice Owls.

Morris said Tech offensive coordinator Dick Winder pulled him out of the game after the first offense was replaced with the second team in the fourth quarter, but he knew he was short of the record.

"I asked coach Winder for a shot at the record, and he said I could have two more series to try for it," Morris said.

Dykes said he wanted to give Bam every opportunity to achieve the record, understanding how it might look to leave Morris in with the second team offense, which played most of the fourth quarter.

"I went up to (Houston) coach (Kim) Helton after the game and told him I left Bam in the game because I thought he deserved a shot at the record," Dykes said.

The game was probably the most complete game for the Raiders in a season filled with ups and downs.

WALTER GRANBERRY; THE UNIVERSITY DAILY

Record setter

Texas Tech I-back Byron "Bam" Morris on his way to breaking the SWC single-season rushing record. Morris broke the record with 223 yards on 40 carries Saturday in Tech's 58-7 win against Houston in the San Antonio Alamodome. The win was the Raiders' sixth of the season and fifth straight.

Tech quarterback Robert Hall continued to have the hot hand, picking and choosing his arsenal of receivers at will.

Hall completed 19 of 28 passes for 291 yards and two touchdowns.

One of the most spectacular plays of the game occurred on the last play of the first half.

Hall threw a 'Hail Mary' in the corner of the end zone where it was tipped from the crowd into wide receiver Tony Miller's hands upping Tech's lead to 31-0 as both teams went into the locker room.

"We wanted to make something happen before halftime and we were out of field goal range so I just threw it up," Hall said. "This was definitely our best overall game of the season."

The defense played a key part of the total effort as well.

Tech's pass rush kept the pressure on the Houston quarterbacks forcing them to throw five interceptions.

"Protection was a problem for us," Helton said. "The quarterback got hit early and threw some interceptions trying to make some plays."

Tech continued its dominance of the game until the middle of the third quarter and was up 38-0 when Dykes put the second team in on offense.

The only score for the Cougars came late in the fourth quarter, with tailback TiAndre Sanders scoring from one-yard out to keep the Raiders from posting a shutout. Raider cornerback Donny Brooks added the frosting on Tech's victory cake with a 46-yard interception for a touchdown with 49 seconds left in the game.

Dykes praised the players and coaches for hanging in through a tough season and never giving up, despite the critics.

"We've taken a lot of heat all season," Dykes said. "I'm proud of our players for not giving up, there's not one ounce of quit in any of our players."

The most likely bowl berth for the Raiders will be in the Hancock Bowl, Christmas Eve in El Paso.

Hancock Bowl officials were on hand in San Antonio to watch the game.

Lady Raiders defeat No. 2 Vanderbilt

JACKSON, Tenn. (Special) — The No. 14 Texas Tech women's basketball team has picked up where last year's national champions left off.

The Lady Raiders allowed only one point in the last 4:19 to the No. 2 Vanderbilt Lady Commodores on their way to a 74-67 win Saturday at the Inaugural Hall of Fame Tipoff Classic in Jackson, Tenn.

Tech is 1-0 on the season, with an exhibition game scheduled against the Latvian National Team at 6 p.m. Wednesday.

Vanderbilt took a 66-60 lead with 4:19 left after guard Julie Powell hit a three-pointer at the top of the key.

Tech coach Marsha Sharp then called a timeout to regroup. Tech went on a 14-1 run to take the win after the timeout.

The Lady Raiders tied the game at 67-67 with :57 left when forward Connie Robinson hit a baseline jumper. Fifteen seconds later, Tech guard Noel Johnson hit a three-pointer to give Tech the lead for good at 70-67.

Junior guard Nikki Heath hit both ends of a one-and-one with six seconds remaining to ice the win.

Robinson led Tech in scoring with 18 points, while senior forward Janice Farris added 15 points in the winning effort.

Robinson, along with three other Tech players, grabbed six rebounds. Heath and Michi Atkins also had six boards in the contest.

Atkins had 14 points, hitting 6 of 11 shots from the field.
