Japan assembles trade package

TOKYO (AP) — Under the threat of U.S. sanctions, the government decided Thursday to develop a wide-ranging package of measures to trim Japan's record trade surplus and possibly head off a trade war.

Prime Minister Morihiro Hosokawa and top trade negotiators agreed to focus on four areas — promotion of imports and foreign investment, deregulation, tougher anti-monopoly purchasing.

The decision reflects growing anxiety in Japan over U.S. threats of trade retaliation following a breakdown in talks in Washington last week on reducing the two countries' trade imbalance.

"The ball is in Japan's court," said the chief government spokesman, Masayoshi Takemura.

GOP, Richards swap more phone barbs

AUSTIN (AP) — The squabbling over Gov. Ann Richards' missing telephone records surfaced again Thursday.

Republicans complained that the governor's staff was "hiding behind bureaucratic double-talk" and not coming across with enough information about her long-distance records.

The Democratic governor's press secretary said GOP officials could see everything that exists, and those wanting to know more only needed to "read the newspapers. And maybe take notes."

Late last month, gubernatorial chief of staff John Fainter said most of the governor's office long-distance records were destroyed in August 1993.

He apologized for differing versions of events told by Richards' aides, and said the confusion was due to a misunderstanding of record-keeping rules. Fainter said the governor's office now is keeping the records for three years.

State may sue to recoup investment

DeSOTO (AP) — The chairman of the state agency that oversees the Superconducting Super Collider has been authorized to sue the federal government to recoup Texas' investment in the doomed project.

The chairman, Shelton Smith of Houston, told members of the Texas National Research Laboratory Commission on Wednesday that negotiations with the federal government are continuing with no end in sight.

The commission gave Smith the OK to sue if negotiations break down.

Talks concerning the $443 million that the state spent on the project began in October, the day after Congress killed the collider.

According to an agreement between Texas and the U.S. Energy Department, the state has a right to any assets in which it invested at least 51 percent.

Mattox munches in Hub City

by JAYSON BALES
THE UNIVERSITY DAILY

U.S. Senate candidate Jim Mattox stopped in at Stubb's Bar-B-Q restaurant in Lubbock Thursday to visit with Democratic Party supporters from the South Plains.

Mattox was campaigning in West Texas for the U.S. Senate seat held by Republican Kay Bailey Hutchison.

Mattox is running against Mike Andrews, Richard Fisher and Evelyn Lantz in the March 8 Democratic primary election.

Mattox said voters should not elect a senator on the basis of issues because issues are constantly changing.

"This race is really about the integrity and strength of the individual," he said.

Mattox said he is focusing his campaign on crime, health care, welfare reform and educating children in every aspect of life.

Mattox also said he favors a health care program very similar to the proposed plan by U.S. President Bill Clinton.

"I favor a plan that guarantees universal coverage for citizens," he said. "We are already paying for universal coverage."

Prescription drugs and full health care services for women, including abortion, are part of his plan for government health care, Mattox said.

Welfare reform should include job training, but every able person should be required to work, he said. Children also must be educated for real life experiences, Mattox said.

"Some way or another, we've

Loan paybacks minus money

■ Plan will stop cash from coming out of students' pockets

by MICHELLE ELIZARDO
THE UNIVERSITY DAILY

Students may soon be able to pay back student loans without having to pay from their own pockets.

A new community service program, AmeriCorps, allowing students to pay educational expenses through community work will be introduced to the Texas Tech community Wednesday.

Tech will be one of the four sites in Texas for a live teleconference informing the community of grant programs.

The University Center's Senate Room will host an all-day conference with the live teleconference beginning at noon.

Space is limited and the deadline to pay the $10 conference and lunch fee is Monday. Students should sign up for the conference at the UC activities office.

Texas Gov. Ann Richards Wednesday will receive an executive order to establish the program. She will also award the first four educational grants to Texans to kick off the first official AmeriCorps program.

The conference will focus on how to apply for the grant program under the AmeriCorps and the Learn and Serve America programs.

In September 1993, President Clinton signed the National and Community Service Trust Act expanding resources for and encouraging Americans of all ages and backgrounds to work with communities.

What resulted is the AmeriCorps program. "I think it is a real good start on trying to get Americans back into the idea of helping ourselves and building our communities," said Mary Donahue, assistant coordinator of UC student activities/cultural events.

All participants will be recruited and selected by locally funded programs.

AmeriCorps participants will serve either a full-time term consisting of 1,700 community hours over a 9-month to one-year period, or a part-time term consisting of 900 hours over 2 years.

Upon completing the term, the participant will receive an educational award of $4,725 for full-time service or $2,363 for part-time service.

"You could even apply to another state or city where you might want to go," said Cheryl Shubert, coordinator of UC student activities.

Shubert said the money is set aside in a trust fund, and when the service term is finished, the money goes to the designated lending institution. Donahue said the part-time option is offered because it is often difficult to go to school and work at the same time.

She said the part-time service program allows these students more time to hold a paying job in addition to their community service. The award may be used to pay past, present or future educational expenses. Students will work in a vast area of community service.

At the moment, Tech is in the planning stages of implementing the program in Lubbock.

Lone Star card latest in welfare strategies

by NY LYNN NICHOLS
THE UNIVERSITY DAILY

With all the talk about welfare reform, taxpayers may be wondering where the action is. Texans will not have to wait any longer.

State Comptroller John Sharp announced that welfare in Texas soon will be electronically delivered with the Lone Star card.

"It's virtually fraud-proof," said Kelly Fero, spokesman for the state comptroller's office.

Welfare recipients will receive Lone Star cards instead of paper food stamps, Fero said.

The card will be electronically responsive to hardware in grocery stores that operate the same as credit card verifiers.

When food is purchased, grocery store clerks will run the card through the hardware, and customers will punch in their personal identification number. The PIN is known only by the welfare recipient, Fero said. "If you steal my card, you don't know my PIN number," he said.

The PIN will drastically reduce food stamp fraud, Fero said.

"The fraud in food stamps is about $2 billion a year, nationwide," he said.

Fraud occurs when food stamps have been stolen and are used as drug money. "In the illegal drug business, food stamps are the same as cash," Fero said.

Fraud also occurs when cash is wrongfully given in exchange for food stamps.

Fero said that if a person pays, for example, $5 in food stamps for a $3.75 purchase, the cashier should give the customer $1 worth of food stamps and 25 cents in change — no bills should be given.

However, cashiers and other customers get frustrated, and cashiers sometimes give the customer the complete change. This exchange adds up in the long run, he said.

"This often happens for larger denominations," Fero said. "That's where the abuse of the system comes in."

Fero said taxpayers will save money with the Lone Star card.

"It's impossible to be positive of the accuracy (of the savings), but we'll save between $10 and $80 million a year," he said.

"The cost of this contract, which is a seven-year contract, is $300 million," Fero said.

The contract is with the Texas Department of Human Services, and Fero said the system is federally funded.

Installing the hardware in grocery stores will be paid for by the stores, not by the taxpayers, he said.

The first phase of the program is scheduled to be implemented in the Houston area in September. By 1996, the program should be statewide.

The Federal Reserve Board gave Texas a waiver Wednesday concerning a law that states losing the card will result in a $50 loss by the welfare recipient.

Houston repeals seven-year ban on South Africa investment

HOUSTON (AP) — The University of Houston's regents have cleared the way for the school to resume investment in South Africa, repealing a seven-year ban.

However, some students say the action on Wednesday is premature.

"It's my understanding that nothing has actually changed in South Africa, and I don't understand why they would do such a thing now," said Henry Bell, president of the Black Students Union.

During the late 1980s, the school was criticized by both students and faculty because of $6.4 million worth of securities investments in companies operating in South Africa.

In 1987, regents passed a resolution to liquidate the investments within two years and ban any future investments in such companies because of South Africa's apartheid policy.

But political changes in that country, led by black leader Nelson Mandela and white President F.W. de Klerk, have led to elections being scheduled for April 26-28 that will include black voters.

No Cowboy repeat for parade

DALLAS (AP) — Organizers for this year's parade to honor the Super Bowl champion Dallas Cowboys are hoping that lightning really doesn't strike twice in the same place.

Parade planners have all but turned backflips to satisfy and anticipate any problems that might arise at today's celebration in downtown Dallas — including stationing 1,300 officers to prevent a repeat performance by fans.

Nearly 75 people were arrested and about 50 people were injured after a fist-swinging, bottle-throwing fight broke out among groups of mostly youngsters who had skipped school.

After the celebration, city officials were roundly criticized for not providing adequate crowd control. The Dallas City Council, consultants, public works representatives and police officials have been planning this year's event ever since.

"I don't know of anything that has not been thought of," said Jim Chandler, a police department spokesman.

Cowboys players will ride on flatbed trucks. Heavy metal barricades will protect them from the crowds, planners say. Officers will be stationed every 32 feet along the parade route.

Tornadoes normal for West Texas spring

by LESLIE WEEKS
THE UNIVERSITY DAILY

While flowers and warm weather may symbolize spring for some people, West Texas natives may be more familiar with a darker and more dangerous sign of spring — the tornado.

"Tornadoes are fairly common," said Richard Peterson, chairman of geosciences and associate director of the Wind Engineering Research Center. "Texas is tornado alley, which is from here across to the metroplex and then north through Oklahoma and eastern Kansas."

Peterson said the source of tornado rotations is still a big question.

"It is thought that the concentration is due to an upside-down drain effect, just like in a bathtub," he said. "Even though the water looks calm, there is all kinds of swirling going around."

Peterson said swirling concentrates by going down the drain when the plug is pulled.

The air in a tornado is pulled in and up in an updraft, which is a powerful rising motion in the draft.

As the air is pulled in, the spinning motion is concentrated, Peterson said.

"Sometimes the whole thunderstorm may be rotating," he said. "If you have a wall cloud, a lower rotating area at the back of the storm, the storm probably has a good chance of producing a tornado."

Peterson said it is easier to actually see the thunderstorm's shapes and characteristics in West Texas.

"Out here you don't have as many trees and hills and hazy skies," he said. "Clues can be seen from quite a ways away."

Peterson said students should be aware of the weather.

"They should keep an eye out and look to the back side of the storm," he said. "They can watch to see if there is a lowered cloud rotating."

Professor of civil engineering James McDonald said students need to watch television and listen to radiomedia for either announcements, watches or warnings.

"A watch is issued out of Kansas City," he said.

"It will be issued for a relatively large area when the weather conditions are favorable for the formation of severe thunderstorms or tornadoes."

McDonald said a warning is a more immediate threat.

"It is issued when a tornado is actually sighted on the ground," he said.

"Up to this point, the warnings have been based on either a sighting or the way the storm approaches on the radar," Peterson said. "Even if there is not a watch, there could still be a tornado or a thunderstorm."

Peterson said that each student should, at any given point of their normal routine, have some idea where they could take cover in case a tornado occurs.

"If students are on campus, they should go to the basement, the first floor or an interior room preferably free of outside windows," McDonald said.

"(With outside windows) There is the potential of flying debris or from the broken glass of the windows."

McDonald said if students live in an apartment complex, it is very important to get off of the second or third floors.

"The best thing they can do is to go into a first floor apartment and seek shelter in a small interior room," he said.

"Put as many walls between themselves and the outside as they can."

Peterson said travelers should try to avoid getting caught in their cars during a tornado.

"If you are out in the country where you can see everything, it may be possible to drive away from it," he said. "If you can't, take shelter in a substantial building. If that is not available, get in a culvert or under a bridge or something like that."

got to bring a new morality to young people," he said. "We've got to teach them more than reading, writing and arithmetic."

Mattox addressed crime with a 14-point plan "that deals with law enforcement across the board."

The Lubbock Professional Police Association and the Combined Law Enforcement Associations of Texas have endorsed Mattox for the senate.

CLEAT Director of Governmental Relations Mark Clark said CLEAT endorsed Mattox because of his experience and his position on crime.

"We are the largest police organization by far in the state of Texas," Clark said. "The choice is absolutely crystal clear for us."

There are about 16,000 members in CLEAT, Clark said.

Andrews and Fisher both sought the CLEAT endorsement, he said.

"They (Andrews and Fisher) are not bad people," Clark said. "They are just not qualified for the job."

Having Republicans such as Hutchison and Phil Gramm in the U.S. senate has hurt Texas, Mattox said.

Mattox also said projects such as the Supercollider and grants for universities and colleges have been lost for Texas because of Republicans occupying the U.S. senate.

"The problem is you have Democrats that control Washington, D.C., and Republicans cannot do the job," he said.

The senate race depends on the vote of the grass roots Democrats, Mattox said.

"I have been endorsed by virtually every major Democratic association in the state of Texas," he said. "In the final analysis, whether I win or lose this race will depend on grass roots Democrats."

Mass Comm Week networking opportunity

by JENNIFER GILBERT
THE UNIVERSITY DAILY

Texas Tech's Mass Communications Week is what some may call a networking opportunity, but for media professionals and students, it also is a way for "breaking new ground."

Mass Communications Week Director Tim Proodian said the event is an opportunity for students to get a glimpse of the real world.

"It's a neat experience for students to see people from the outside," he said. "It shows them how to get involved."

This year's theme is "Breaking New Ground," and Proodian said the keynote speaker and the professional panelists hopefully can give some realistic perspectives and some advice.

"We're hoping the speakers and panelists will discuss what's going on in the real world," he said.

School of Mass Communications Director Roger Saathoff said, "The week provides an opportunity for students to meet professionals from their field of study."

"It encourages our alumni and our community to share their experiences with our students," he said.

Proodian also said Mass Communications Week is a good way to network and to establish an internship or a volunteer position.

"We're also hoping the panelists can give the students an intimate setting with advice and insight," he said.

"Teachers can only educate you so far in the classroom," Proodian said. "You learn so many theories in class that students need to know

Jury still out on fat reducing product

by CHRISTY EVERETT
THE UNIVERSITY DAILY

Some people believe using a thigh reduction cream may help burn fat on the body's surface.

Skinny Dip is a product that claims the dissolution of fat will occur when the product is spread anywhere that fat accumulates on the body.

"It works anywhere there is the appearance of fat," said Rebecca Gadus, executive distributor for Skinny Dip. "It can be used on the chin, arms, hips and tummy."

The product contains aminophylline, an over-the-counter asthma medication being used to tone flabby skin.

"At first, I almost thought it was too good to be true," Gadus said. "I know that it works because I have used it."

Dr. Hartmans Lal of the pharmacology department at the University of North Texas said he believes the product may work, but said he warns that large quantities of aminophylline may cause convulsions in some people.

Joel Singer, a board certified plastic surgeon, said he believes a major side-effect caused by the product is a small rash. He said it affects about 2 percent of the consumers.

"That is just a normal reaction," Singer said. "It happens with almost any cosmetic or perfume product."

Gadus said she has used the product and is satisfied with the results.

"I am so happy with what I see in the mirror," Gadus said. "I'm even anxious for summer."

The product works in areas where it is very difficult for women to lose weight, she said.

Gadus said her busy schedule did not allow time for exercise. She said she advises consumers to use the product in conjunction with a good diet and exercise program to receive better and faster results.

Singer said he believes the product works as a type of fitness for the surface of the skin.

"It is not an unnatural product," he said. "I think it's great to combine the use of Skinny Dip with a good diet and exercise."

Skinny Dip is not a permanent solution for the removal of fat, and discontinued use of the product will eventually lead to the weight coming back, Singer said.

"It will not become a replacement for plastic surgery, which brings permanent and drastic results," Singer said.

Betty Blanton, assistant director for recreational sports, said she believes a product used as a replacement of good exercise and eating habits will have negative health effects.

"Our bodies were made to work and use the muscles that were given to us," Blanton said. "We need to exercise and practice good eating habits to live a healthy life without disease."

Blanton said she believes people should eat right and exercise for their health. She said a product that replaces good habits will have a negative effect on the body.

"It's an easy way out," Blanton said. "If you spread on a cream and then eat junk food, you are not using the body the way it was made."

Defense tries to chip away at government's case

SAN ANTONIO (AP) — The mother of a Branch Davidian defendant described her son Thursday as a quiet, religious person whose personality is "opposite" the violence that erupted at David Koresh's prairie compound.

Another defense witness testified Denver police "blew my arm off" with the same type "flashbang" device federal agents used against the Davidians in a failed raid.

Through those and other witnesses, defense lawyers for 11 Branch Davidians continued to try to raise questions about the conduct of the Bureau of Alcohol, Tobacco and Firearms in a Feb. 28, 1993, failed raid and shootout that led to a 51-day standoff at the religious sect's compound near Waco.

Four ATF agents and six cult members were killed in the gun battle. Eleven Davidians are on trial for murder and murder conspiracy in the agents' death. They face up to life in prison if convicted.

Air freshener leads police to marijuana

COVINGTON, La. (AP) — A 21-year-old Texas man was arrested, but his mother was released, after police stopped their car and found five pounds of marijuana under the back seat.

Catarino Contreras of Combes, who was driving, took responsibility for the marijuana and said his mother did not know it was there, St. Tammany Parish Sheriff Patrick J. Canulette said.

Hesaid the deputy who stopped the Contreras' car smelled a faint odor of marijuana and a heavy odor of air freshener while he was talking to them. He got written consent to search, Canulette said.

Contreras was held in lieu of $15,000 bond on a charge of possessing the marijuana with intent to distribute it.

He told the deputy that he was driving his mother to visit his brother in Florida, where he planned to look for a job.

Omnimax film draws viewers into glacial Antarctica

by MICHELLE ELIZARDO
THE UNIVERSITY DAILY

If you think it gets bone-chilling cold in Lubbock in the dead of winter, imagine a continent with temperatures 76 degrees below zero.

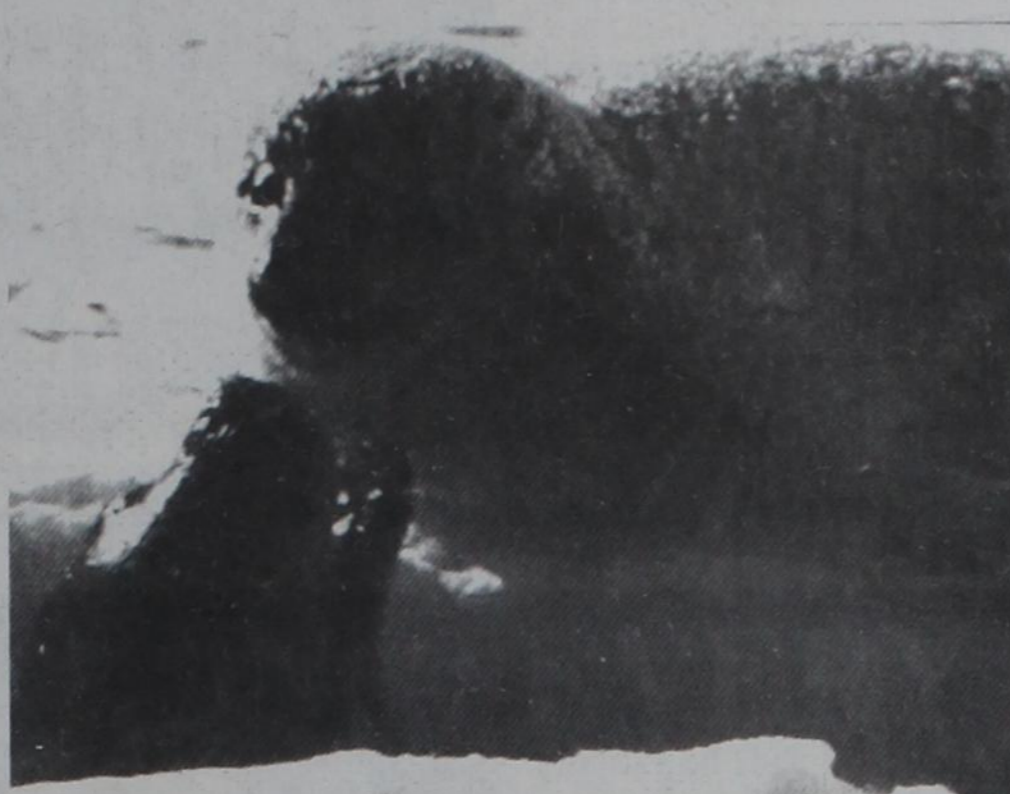

"Antarctica," a feature film about the coldest, driest and windiest continent on Earth, can be viewed at 1 p.m. today at the Omnimax theater.

"It is a beautiful, light-hearted movie with scenery you will probably never get to see in your life," said Kay Dudley, director of operations of the Omnimax/Science Spectrum.

A continent larger than the United States, Antarctica is populated with 2,500 people in the summer and fewer than 1,000 in the winter.

This is because of the 40 below zero average temperatures in the winter and the 5 degree average temperatures in the summer.

"You have the feeling of being in an airplane flying over glaciers (watching the film)," Dudley said.

Come on in...

A mother seal coaxes her baby into freezing waters for its first swim.

"It even feels cold."

The grueling task the film crew went through was worth capturing the realistic footage that could be the closest audiences will ever get to visit the "last place on Earth," said Director John Weiley.

"Working in this climate is a physical challenge that can be frustrating enough to bring tears to your eyes — tears that freeze your eyes shut," Weiley said.

It is a place where it takes some time to get used to the air.

Snowfall in Antarctica is so minimal that the interior receives less than an inch of snow a year, making it the driest continent on Earth. Scientists believe no rain has fallen for two million years, making the valleys the driest places on Earth.

"For the first time in history, people have a real sense of what it is like to explore an unknown continent where it never rains and the sun rises and sets only once a year," Weiley said.

Antarctica's ecosystem supports 35 species of birds, six species of seals, 12 species of whales and more than 200 species of fish. A wingless fly is the continent's largest permanent land-based inhabitant, according to a report from the Museum of Science and Industry.

Antarctica has 18 species of penguins scattered throughout all altitudes of the Southern Hemisphere.

The penguins usually travel in an upright position where they drop down on their bellies and push their bodies forward with their flippers and toes.

Using this "tobogganing" technique, they can outdistance any human, Weiley said.

"You can travel thousands of miles across the unforgiving desert of ice without seeing a single living thing, then be engulfed by teeming life at the edge of the sea," Weiley said. "That's Antarctica."

Top country acts to perform at annual PikeFest

by LARA M. CAMPBELL
THE UNIVERSITY DAILY

Lubbockites will have the opportunity to listen to two of country music's biggest acts this weekend, as well as support local charities.

Two Lubbock children's charities hope to benefit from this weekend's PikeFest activities. Proceeds from this weekend's performances by Sammy Kershaw and Willie Nelson will be given to the Summer Youth Campership Program and Lubbock Childcare Services, said Omar Munir, president of the Texas Tech chapter of Pi Kappa Alpha.

"I think (PikeFest) works because we're giving back to the community. Charity is the reason PikeFest was started and is by far the most important reason (for PikeFest)," said Shawn Wilson, assistant chairman for PikeFest.

Kershaw will kick off PikeFest today and Nelson will perform Saturday.

River Wind, a local country band, is the opening act for both performances.

PikeFest also offers opportunities for other campus organizations to raise money for their philanthropies, Wilson said.

Organizations can rent booths at PikeFest and conduct contests, games and other fund-raising activities for their chosen charities.

"It's not only our charities that are benefiting from PikeFest," Wilson said. "Every organization, not just Greeks, are invited."

The 1994 PikeFest has been in the planning stages since May 1993, and the musical acts were booked in November, Wilson said.

"This is also good brotherhood time," Wilson said. "The entire chapter works to put this together."

Both concerts will be at the Lubbock Memorial Civic Center.

Doors will open at 8 p.m. and the main acts will begin their performances at about 10 p.m.

Tickets cost $10 for Kershaw's show and $14 for Nelson's, and can be purchased at Dollar Western Wear.

Raiders seek to avenge earlier defeat to Longhorns

Tyler, Rencher lead potent Texas attack

by JAMES DAVID
THE UNIVERSITY DAILY

The Texas Tech men's basketball team will be trying to avenge its worst defeat this season when it faces Texas Sunday in the Lubbock Municipal Coliseum. The game is scheduled to be broadcast nationally on the ESPN2 network, beginning at 5:30 p.m.

The Red Raiders (11-10, 6-4 in the Southwest Conference) suffered a 108-79 loss to the Longhorns in Austin on Jan. 21, and from the way Texas has played since, things might not be any easier this time.

The Longhorns (17-6, 9-1 in SWC) have won 10 straight games and are off to their best SWC start since the 1991 'Horns started 11-1. Coach Tom Penders said he sees a big similarity in this year's club and the team he coached to the 1991 elite eight.

"I think we're a stronger team at this point in the season," Penders said. "We're so strong now because of the teams we have been playing."

Penders said the key to the 'Horns' continued success will be for them to peak in March.

The Longhorns are led by SWC scoring leader B.J. Tyler, a senior point guard from Port Arthur. Tyler is averaging 26 points per game in SWC play and 23.3 overall. Tyler was forced to sit out the Rice game Feb. 1 and the TCU game Feb. 5 after breaking the metacarpal bone in his left ring finger during a Jan. 29 win against Houston.

Tyler's services are now back, as he came off the bench to score a team-high 27 points in the 'Horns'

113-91 rout of Baylor Tuesday.

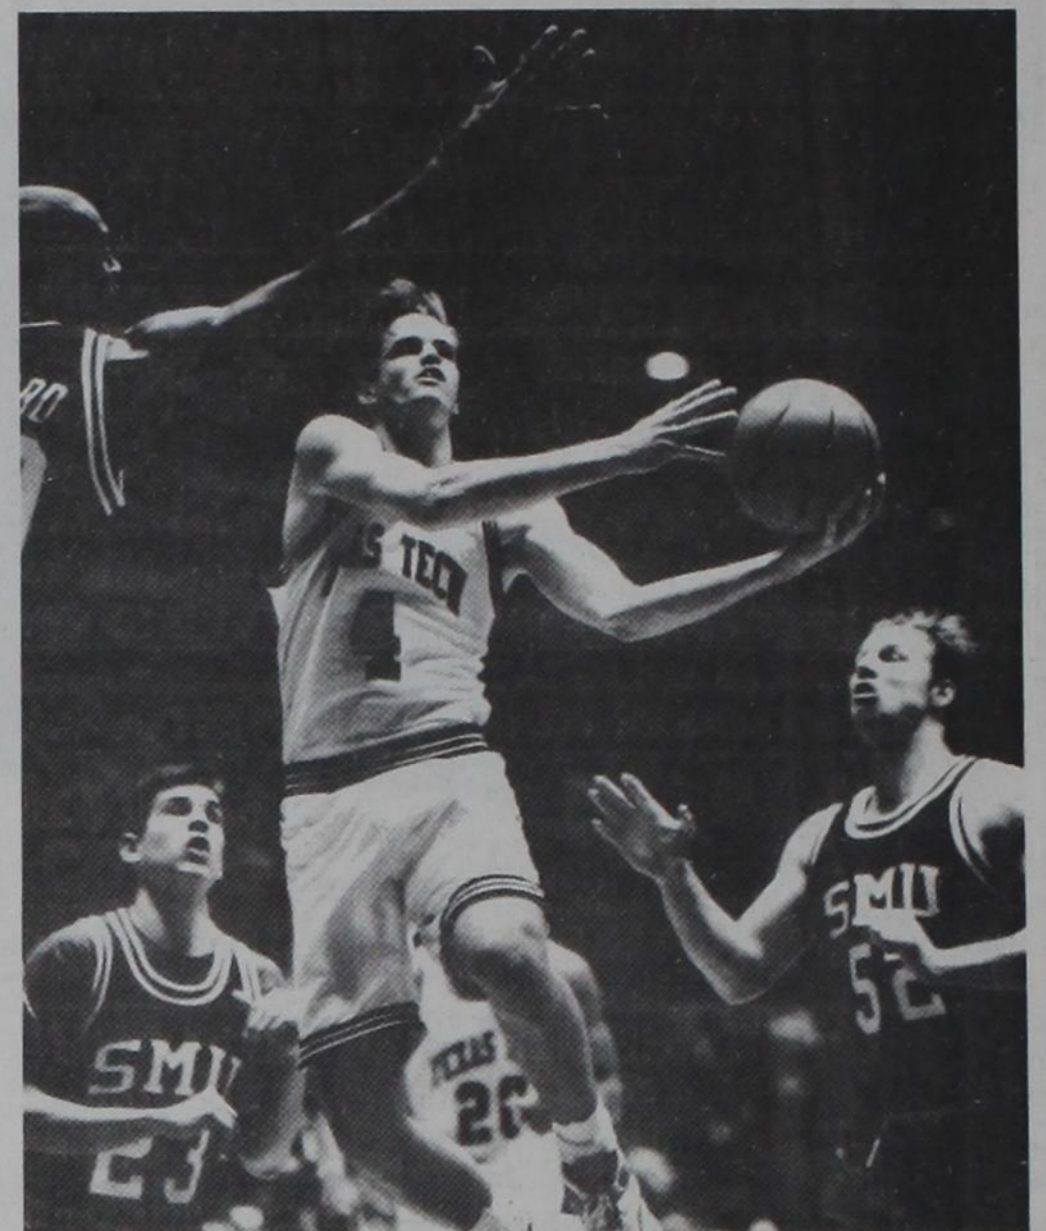

"B.J. Tyler is, without a doubt, the best point guard in college basketball," Tech head coach James Dickey said.

The rest of Texas' probable starting lineup will consist of junior guard Terrence Rencher, who is averaging 15.2 points per game, and senior center Albert Burditt, who scores 17.3 points per game. Freshman Reggie Freeman and junior Tremaine Wingfield will be the forwards.

Tech is coming off a 78-76 squeaker against SMU Wednesday which gave the Raiders sole possession of third in the conference.

In the last meeting between the Raiders and the Longhorns, Texas played nine players and forced 26 Tech turnovers. In addition, the 'Horns shot 64 percent from the field. "No question, Texas is always a big game for us," Dickey said. "In my opinion, Texas is a top 20 ballclub. We'll have to play much better against them than we did with SMU."

Dickey said the 'Horns have the best backcourt in college basketball.

"They're deep and explosive," Dickey said. "Our guys know it's a big game for us."

Tech's Hays to experiment with different lineups

by TARA HEARLIHY
THE UNIVERSITY DAILY

After playing six road games, the Texas Tech baseball team returns to Lubbock for its first home series this weekend.

The Red Raiders (2-4) take on Howard Payne in a doubleheader at 2 p.m. today at Dan Law Field. Saturday's doubleheader will begin at 1 p.m.

Tech will continue to experiment with different players and positions in the four-game series, coach Larry Hays said.

"The difficulty for us, is we are going to play a lot of different people," Hays said.

"We'll have a couple of double-headers so we will have different lineups."

Hays said he expects a good series with Howard Payne, which holds a 2-5 mark.

"They are not at the level of the teams we have been playing, but it will be a battle for us," he said. "Howard Payne is good enough to beat us and we have to realize that. I am hoping we will approach the games like we have been, with confidence and a lot of respect."

In the games against Grand Canyon and New Mexico State, the Raiders were experimenting in the outfield.

Center fielder Brody Gregg was the leadoff hitter in the first game, but didn't last the whole game. Gregg was taken out because Gregg told Hays his leg was bothering him, Hays said.

"We really weren't prepared for Brody being hurt. We had on-the-job training. The outfield is still a question mark. We are trying to work out an outfield without him," Hays said.

Three Tech players are playing in the outfield who joined the team this spring.

Freshman Matt DuBuc was a kick returner and tailback for the Tech football team last fall.

"He hasn't played a lot lately," Hays said.

"We don't really know what we have in him because we have been around him for almost three weeks before the season. After pinch hitting, we gave him a start and (Wednesday) he had his best game offensively at center."

Ryan Nye (1-0) will start the first game for Tech. Freshman Matt Miller will start the second game.

"Every pitcher threw better their second time out. (Jason) Whittle was shaky his first time out, but he was outstanding (Wednesday)," Hays said.

"I wish we could bottle that up. I wish we could have that effort every time up."

Tech made it through the adjustment of playing another team and Hays said he is hopeful about the 18-game home stand.

Nice move

Texas Tech guard Lance Hughes moves through a crew of Southern Methodist players during the Red Raiders' 78-76 win Wednesday night in the Lubbock Municipal Coliseum.

Raider tracksters seek improvement at SWC

by JAMES DAVID
THE UNIVERSITY DAILY

The Texas Tech men's and women's track teams venture to Fort Worth this weekend to compete in the Southwest Conference Indoor Championships in Will Rogers Coliseum.

Tech will be looking to improve on last year's team standings when both squads placed eighth overall. Texas swept the men's and women's categories last season, but the Longhorns are expected to receive stiff competition from Baylor on both sides of the gender fence.

Men's head coach Corky Oglesby said the runnin' Raiders' best chance at a gold medal lies in the talents of SWC No. 1-ranked pole vaulter Tim James, who vaulted 17-4 1/2 two weeks ago. "We've got two other guys in the pole vault that can do well also," Oglesby said. "Jason Price and Jason Lavender are coming along."

Oglesby said his sprinters and distance runners should score some points for the Raider thinclads as well.

"We've got two guys that have a good chance of making the finals in the 55 meters," Oglesby said. "Dion Miller and Derrell Mitchell are both ranked pretty high."

The Tech distance runners will return an experienced crop to the conference meet.

"I think Ralph Ayyad in the mile has a good chance as well as Don Koontz," Oglesby said. "There's about 10 guys in the mile that will be battling it out for first."

Texas is losing All-Americans Steve Sisson and Steve Polonsky, both NCAA champions in the mile and 3,000 meters, so Oglesby said those races should be a little tighter this year.

Miller and Keith Black are injured and Oglesby said he really isn't sure how they will perform. He said the team has suffered numerous injuries so far in the Indoor season, and is looking to have them peak for the outdoor season.

"This indoor season has been tough on us," Oglesby said. "We're really looking forward to the outdoor."

On the women's side, shot putter Tabitha Polk is Tech's best hope for points after a 50-2 throw last week in Oklahoma City, which puts her third in the SWC.

Lady Raiders-Texas set for 'rematch of century'

by LEN HAYWARD
THE UNIVERSITY DAILY

In one day, the Texas Tech women's basketball team went from being tied for second to being tied for first.

The No. 8 Lady Raiders are now atop the Southwest Conference standings with an 8-2 conference mark along with Texas A&M, which lost its second conference game to Houston Wednesday.

But waiting in the wings for Tech will more than likely be an angry Texas Lady Longhorn team. Texas lost to Baylor 81-75 Wednesday night in Waco.

"They will come in ready to play," Tech head coach Marsha Sharp said. "Both teams are going to give you all they got."

This is the first time in the history of SWC women's basketball that the league champion will have more than two losses.

The Lady Raiders enter Saturday's 2 p.m. game at the Lubbock Municipal Coliseum with a 20-3 overall record, while Texas is 15-7 and 7-3 in the SWC. The game is a sellout and will be televised regionally on HSE.

Tech lost its first conference game to Texas 66-65 in Austin on Jan. 22 in a game billed as the "Game of the Century" by the Texas marketing department.

"The first thing is, we have to go out and get at them immediately," junior forward Nikki Heath said. "We have to work inside and outside and play our kind of basketball. We are just going to have to execute."

In the last meeting between the two teams Tech built a 13-0 lead in the opening minutes. Texas came back for the one-point win led by Erica Routt's 22 points.

"We have to have 40 minutes of intensity against Texas," Heath said. "I think some of the pressure was taken off of us after Wednesday. But pressure is nothing we haven't seen before. We have to win the rest of our games to have a chance."

Added to the picture for the Lady 'Horns is the return of senior guard Nekeshia Henderson, who was injured and did not play in the first meeting of the season between the two teams.

Henderson had 23 points in a losing effort against the Bears Wednesday night. She has played in 12 games this season, averaging 15.6 points per game.

"They have a little more depth because Henderson is back. That adds to those two guard positions," Sharp said.

The other guards for Texas are the SWC's leading three-point shooter Danielle Viglione and freshman point guard Angie Jo Ogletree. Viglione has hit 80 of 216 three-pointers this season.

"Erica Routt is pretty hot right now and we are going to have to work on Viglione," Heath said. "Their perimeter game is strong."

Lady Raider notes

- When Texas and Tech last met in Lubbock, the Lady Raiders had a 25-game home winning streak, which was the fifth best in the nation. Tech lost on Jan. 20, 1993, 76-75, but the Lady Raiders now have won 16 consecutive games in the Coliseum.

- With the win over SMU Wednesday, Tech has its 12th straight winning season, and its fifth straight 20-win season.

- Tech is leading in eight SWC statistical categories including a team field goal percentage of 49.1 percent. Other areas the team leads in are scoring defense, field goal percentage defense, three-point field goal percentage, opponents' rebounds, rebound margin, scoring margin and field goal percentage differential.

Get ready

Texas Tech's Tabitha Truesdale gets ready for a pass at a recent Lady Raider game. Truesdale scored 20 points against SMU Wednesday.

Moe makes skiing history with medal No. 2

LILLEHAMMER, Norway (AP) — After skiing sensation Tommy Moe celebrated his birthday with another medal, America's Olympians took to the ice Thursday, where Brian Boitano stumbled and the U.S. hockey team tied.

The never-say-die hockey team scored a power play goal with 28 seconds left to notch its third straight come-from-behind deadlock, 3-3 against defending silver medalist Canada.

And Boitano, making his first Olympic appearance since winning the gold in 1988, stumbled shortly after taking the ice in the figure skating competition.

Boitano's spill was one of many on a bizarre night where the three men responsible for the last six world championships and two gold medals — Boitano, Viktor Petrenko of Ukraine and Kurt Browning of Canada — all but dropped out of medal contention.

Boitano was eighth, Petrenko ninth and Browning

12th. Russia's Alexei Urmanov zipped past the big boys to capture the technical program. Elvis Stojko of Canada was second, followed by Philippe Candeloro of France. America's medal hopes rested with U.S. champion Scott Davis, 22, who was fourth.

A penalty with 42 seconds left opened the door for the Americans, who took advantage 14 seconds later when Todd Marchant scored his first goal of the Olympics. In addition to its man advantage, the U.S. pulled its goalie to play 6-on-4.

The tie clinched Canada (2-0-1) a spot in the medal round, while the Americans (0-0-3) would likely need a win over Sweden (2-0-1) on Saturday or Italy (0-3) to qualify.

"We need to prove to ourselves that we can beat somebody," U.S. coach Tim Taylor said. "I think this was more of a win than the first two ties to us, mentally. So I think this will be more a springboard to us."

Women linksters open spring season in Mexico

The No. 23 Texas Tech women's golf team will get its first test of the season this weekend facing three other top 25 teams at the Oklahoma State-Guadalajara Women's Intercollegiate in Guadalajara, Mexico.

The 54-hole tournament begins with one round Sunday and ends with two rounds on Monday.

The Red Raiders enter the spring season after two top five finishes during the fall.

"The team is excited to be going to Mexico," said Tech head coach Jeff Mitchell. "They have been practicing hard and everybody seems to be playing good. Oklahoma State and Florida are both ranked in the top 25."

Oklahoma at No. 10, Florida at No. 18 and Miami at No. 25 are the other top 25 teams competing at the 14-team tournament. Other Southwest Conference teams competing in the tournament are Baylor and Southern Methodist.

Stacey Kolb will lead the way for Tech with a 76.3 scoring average during the fall season. Candy Merrill, Tracy Thomson, Tamara Parker and April King will also compete for the Raiders.

"It will be a good test for us to see how we match up against some of the Southeastern schools," Mitchell said. "If we play well, then we should finish in the top four."

Other teams at the tournament are Lamar, Nebraska, North Texas, San Francisco, Texas-El Paso, Wichita State, and the Guadalajara Country Club
