Bosnian Serbs give in to Russia

SARAJEVO, Bosnia-Herzegovina (AP) — Nudged by their Slavic brethren in Russia, Bosnian Serbs sought to disarm NATO firepower Tuesday by agreeing to open Tuzla's airport to aid flights.

An airlift to the Muslim city in northern Bosnia like the one that's helping feed Sarajevo could provide food and humanitarian assistance to hundreds of thousands of people.

Bosnian Serb leader Radovan Karadzic made the concession following talks in Moscow with Russian Foreign Minister Andrei Kozyrev.

Washington was pleased: "I think the Russians are trying to further the peace process. I think they're trying to be helpful," said White House Press Secretary Dee Dee Myers.

NATO had threatened to open Tuzla's airport by force.

No bail granted for accused spy, wife

ALEXANDRIA, Va. (AP) — Accused spy Aldrich H. Ames' Soviet handlers told him in 1989 he had earned $2.7 million for his CIA secrets, then dangled the promise of a "beautiful piece of land" in Russia as further payoff, a government witness said Tuesday.

A federal magistrate ruled there was sufficient evidence to send the case to a grand jury. Magistrate Barry R. Poretz ordered the couple held without bail.

Poretz said there was an unacceptable risk that the couple would flee the country if allowed to post bail. He said Ames would pose a danger to the nation because he possessed valuable intelligence information.

Big Eight left in disarray over future

KANSAS CITY, Mo. (AP) — Big Eight basketball coaches, who once voted 8-0 against merging with the full Southwest Conference, can hardly agree on anything now.

Bringing half the SWC into the fold last week has everyone scratching their heads over a question-filled future for conference basketball teams.

For instance, Kansas' Roy Williams believes adding Texas, Texas Tech, Texas A&M and Baylor will make recruiting in Texas much tougher, while Oklahoma's Billy Tubbs figures just the opposite.

Johnny Orr of Iowa State does not believe the four Texas teams will enhance Big Eight basketball. But Oklahoma State coach Eddie Sutton hails the last weeks approval, as "a tremendous day for the Big Eight."

"With the addition of those four total athletic programs, I think this league will be the best conference in America," said Sutton, who coached in the SWC for 11 years while at Arkansas. "I can't see it's going to do anything but help our league."

Since talks with the SWC began, Orr has urged the Big Eight to move with caution.

Mora absent from Dean of Students' staff

Texas Tech Associate Dean of Students Joshua Al Mora no longer has a position at the Dean of Students Office as of Friday, less than a year after being recognized as an outstanding faculty member by Mortar Board.

Officials will not comment about matter

Student Affairs Robert Ewalt said they will not comment about why Mora no longer works at the Dean of Students Office because it is a personnel matter.

As associate dean of students, Mora was responsible for supervising student affairs, student conduct, leadership development and disciplinary matters.

Mora is a graduate student working toward a doctorate and has taught beginning level courses in the Spanish department, for which he received his award from Mortar Board.

Peder Christiansen, professor and chairman of the classical and modern languages and literatures department, said he found out about Mora's employment status from a secretary Tuesday morning. "I was amazed," Christiansen said.

He said Mora taught Spanish classes at Tech because he "wanted to keep his hand in teaching."

Christiansen said he advised Mora not to teach this semester so Mora could finish working toward his degree, and that while he appreciated Mora's desire to teach, he believed getting a doctorate should be Mora's first priority.

"We have not removed him from a position," Christiansen said. "I've never heard of such a discussion before."

HAPPY BIRTHDAY TO WHOM?

Student leaders, Lawless party in UC

by CHRISTY EVERETT
THE UNIVERSITY DAILY

Texas Tech President Robert Lawless and his wife, Marcy, hosted a birthday celebration for student leaders Tuesday in the University Center's Ballroom.

Representatives from more than 300 student organizations affiliated with the university and with Texas Tech University Health Sciences Center were invited to attend.

President Lawless said he usually tries to host at least three similar events a year. However, he said that because of the large number of organizations on campus, he decided to invite a member from each organization to one big birthday party so that he and Marcy could meet with more students.

"It gives us an opportunity to interact with as many of the student leaders as possible," President Lawless said. "We can show our appreciation to them for what they add to the university environment."

Mrs. Lawless said she hopes it will become an annual event to recognize student leaders.

"It gives them the chance to feel recognized for their hard work and for their role in student leadership," she said.

Happy Lane, president of the Horn/Knapp Residence Hall Student Senate and a marketing major from Lubbock, said she believes the event is a chance for student leaders to meet each other.

"I get to meet students and become more familiar with the different student organizations," she said.

It also may give President Lawless the opportunity to understand the roles of different types of organizations on campus, said Raymond Ramirez, a representative from Minorities in Agricultural and Natural Resources and Related Sciences and a senior agricultural education major from Eagle Pass.

"It allows the president to see how many organizations are out there and to get more acquainted with what is going on at Tech," he said. "I can meet people and get contacts from both student leaders and possibly the administration."

Houston wows Grammy crowd with win

Disney soundtrack, Toni Braxton, Frank Sinatra also take home honors

NEW YORK (AP) — Awards voters will always love Whitney Houston — at least this year. And the magic carpet for the music to "Aladdin" was riding high again at Tuesday night's 36th annual Grammys.

For her single "I Will Always Love You," Miss Houston took the awards for best pop female vocalist and record of the year, which she shared with producer David Foster. The album of the year Grammy went to the soundtrack to the movie, "The Bodyguard."

Before the telecast, the "Aladdin" soundtrack was responsible for four Grammys. Last year, the movie won two Academy Awards.

Peabo Bryson and Regina Belle won the award for best pop performance by a duo or group for singing, "A Whole New World (Aladdin's Theme)."

Mary Chapin Carpenter, the country singer who grew up in New Jersey, won the best female country vocal performance. Lucinda Williams' "Passionate Kisses," which Carpenter covered, received the award for best country song.

Outside Radio City Music Hall, a group of protesters that included Kim Gordon of Sonic Youth and members of the Breeders criticized the elimination of the award for best female rock vocal.

The other awards to "Aladdin" were: best musical album for children, and best instrumental composition written for a motion picture or for television. The theme song won best song written for a motion picture or television.

The best new artist Grammy went to Toni Braxton. Winners were determined by the ballots of 6,500 voting members of the National Academy of Recording Arts and Sciences.

Just three weeks ago, Miss Houston collected eight trophies at the American Music Awards for her single, "I Will Always Love You," and the soundtrack to the movie, "The Bodyguard." The torch song written by Dolly Parton two decades ago was one of the fastest-selling tunes in music history. The movie soundtrack has sold more than 10 million copies.

Alone in the fray

Clay Abbott only Democratic candidate for DA

by JAYSON BALES
THE UNIVERSITY DAILY

With most of the attention in the Lubbock County criminal district attorney's race focused on the Republican candidates, many people may not know where Democratic candidate Clay Abbott stands.

Abbott is running unopposed for district attorney in the March 8 Democratic Party primary election.

Abbott said he is running for district attorney because he disagrees with how incumbent Travis Ware is operating the district attorney's office.

Integrity needs to be returned to the district attorney's office to gain the trust of the community, Abbott said.

"We can play fair and we can win," he said.

"Every time you walk in the courtroom as the district attorney, you should have some amount of trust from the populous."

Juvenile crime, education and reorganization in the district attorney's office are important issues in his district attorney campaign, Abbott said.

Children who commit a crime with a gun and are more than 15 years old should be treated by the law as adults, he said.

Abbott also said he teaches a criminal trial education class at the Texas Tech School of Law.

His law school teaching experience will help him be a good educator in the district attorney's of-office, Abbott said.

"The teaching experience I think makes me uniquely qualified," he said. "Education is essential."

Abbott

The felony department in the district attorney's office needs to be reorganized so felony officers can work in specialized areas to prosecute cases, Abbott said.

Reorganizing the felony department would help specialization, morale and efficiency in the district attorney's office, he said.

Focus on the Republican primary election in the district attorney's race has affected his campaign somewhat, but his focus remains on the general election, Abbott said.

Abbott said election polls indicate he will run against either Bill Sowder or Ware in the general election.

"I think my greatest chance of success would be against Ware," he said.

Abbott grew up in Lubbock and graduated from Tech's law school in 1986.

Abbott went to work in 1987 for Ware in the district attorney's office.

In 1990, he went into private law practice because he could make a better salary and he could see problems unfolding in the district attorney's office, Abbott said.

STUDENT ASSOCIATION CANDIDATE ENDORSEMENTS

President — Zach Brady

For the office of Student Association President The University Daily editorial board endorses Zach Brady.

It all boils down to experience.

As Texas Tech moves into a new era both athletically and academically, Brady is the right person for the president's job.

Since the time he was a freshman, he has been involved in student government at Texas Tech. He served on Chris Loveless' staff and served as External Vice President this year. And, he also has served on the Student Senate and the Freshman Council.

This experience more than qualifies him to be Student Association President.

He knows the ins-and-outs of how Tech operates and shows initiative in getting things done.

At a time when Tech is faced with moving into a larger, newly formed Big Eight conference and issues about tradition and student involvement on campus is paramount, his knowledge will help the student body prepare for its future.

One of the major concerns of this campaign has been Student Association awareness. Brady plans to take this a step further and make it known that student government is here for the students and works for them.

His idea of continuing the "Freshman Year Experience," introduced by the Dean of Students office will help the incoming freshmen get better acquainted with Tech and know what is going on at their university. Brady said he feels the earlier students are targeted, the more activities and organizations they will become involved in.

The Student Association President has a $300,000 budget with which to work, and Brady plans to use the $2,500 earmarked in the Mike Fietz administration for leadership development to provide leadership education for Tech students. This is something that needs to be addressed on the Tech campus. Brady said educational services such as workshops and seminars would be open to all Tech students and, most importantly, would be free of charge.

Brady's commitment to Texas Tech is something that is hard to match. With that, his experience and his knowledge, Brady is the right candidate to lead Tech into a new era.

Internal Vice President — Curt Bourne

The University Daily editorial board endorses Curt Bourne for the Student Association Internal Vice President.

The internal vice president serves as Student Senate president, and the editorial board believes Bourne is qualified for the responsibility.

Bourne has shown his dedication to the Student Senate through his term as a senator for the College of Engineering and through his position as sergeant of arms of the Student Senate as well as serving on the senate's Rules and Administration Committee.

One of the highlights of Bourne's platform is that he hopes to make student senators more accountable to their constituents through a president's roundtable in which senators would meet regularly with their college's organizational members.

The board believes accountability is necessary for proper student representation, especially given last semester's high attrition rate of senators.

With more than 20 senate members resigning or being impeached last semester because of excessive absences, Bourne said he would work to keep senators interested and involved in the Student Senate.

Bourne also said he hopes to increase senator visibility to alumni and prospective students. Senators have the ability, as campus leaders, to make a positive impact on students who are deciding where to attend college. Encouraging them to take that role more seriously could benefit the student body a great deal.

As Student Senate president, Bourne also would be responsible for appointing senators to various Student Senate committees, and the editorial board believes Bourne's experience in the senate will enable him to make intelligent choices about such appointments.

External Vice President — Jake West

Specifics.

These are what make Jake West the best candidate for Student Association External Vice President.

West is not taking on his candidacy with his head in the clouds. He has clear, precise plans for making positive changes for Texas Tech and for creating a better relationship for students within the community.

One of the pivotal issues of West's campaign is changing the city zoning codes, which prohibit more than two unrelated people from living in the same dwelling.

West already has worked with other SA and city leaders to make this plan feasible in the near future. Through an office as external vice president, he will continue to work for the changes until they are completed.

Another major issue for West is improving both the look and the distribution of publications put out by the SA, such as the Word, Moments's Notice and the Housing Guide.

West said he hopes to start distributing the Word at West

Hall, as well as outside of the University Center, where more students will have access to its coupons and information.

Under West's leadership, the Housing Guide will not only contain apartment-hunting information but student ratings of most of the apartments that cater to students.

Getting student input about maintenance problems, convenience to campus and other apartment factors will help students make a more informed choice about where to live when they move off-campus.

In addition to these projects, West will offer a professional, responsible approach to making sure the dollars that Tech students spend in the community are appreciated by area business owners.

With leadership experience in the SA and other campus organizations, West also has the know-how to implement the plans that will make life in the Hub City easier for Tech students; therefore, Jake West earns The University Daily editorial board's endorsement for External Vice President.

CARPENTER CLOSING?

To the editor:

This is in response to the letter from Mr. John Dunn regarding the closing of Carpenter Hall. Apparently Mr. Dunn is new to the Tech Housing system, otherwise he would have known that this is not the first time that Carpenter has been "closed."

When I first came to Tech as a freshman, Wells Hall (attached to Carpenter) had just been renovated into a women's hall. My fellow Carpenter/Wells residents and I dearly loved living there — as he apparently does. We Carpenter/Wells residents were a family.

In the spring of that year it was announced, just as it was a few weeks ago, that the expected enrollment was down and Carpenter/Wells would have to be shut down. Yes, we grumbled and complained, but we took it in stride and moved to other residence halls or off campus. The next fall, Carpenter was open to house the overflow of men. They, in turn, were forced to move into other halls in the spring, when Carpenter was closed again.

So, Mr. Dunn, why don't you and your buddies move over here to Doak where it's nice and quiet once more. Or, if you're not old enough to live in Doak, go to Sneed/Bledsoe — it's a little louder, but the guys that live there are the nicest bunch of guys you'll ever meet. And, when you return in the fall, keep your eyes and ears open; Carpenter may be re-opened after all — this is Housing and Dining we're dealing with here.

GOP BEHIND SWC DEMISE

To the editor:

Let's not forget the demise of the Southwest Conference was perpetuated by our scumbag Republican governor Bill Clements.

Clements was party to the massive scandal which destroyed SMU's football program and led to Arkansas' defection to the Southeastern Conference. The SWC suddenly became a one-state conference and began to unravel.

Republicans may not be very good at creation, but they certainly excel at destruction.

Next on their agenda is higher education generally, as they divert badly-needed funds through privatization.

John B. Sherrill

AROUND THE STATE...

Fort Worth Star-Telegram on the Southwest Conference:

Texas at Austin finally got what it wanted. It's a shame that it had to kill the Southwest Conference to do it. But hey, that's the way the ball bounces.

In the end, it didn't turn on forming a "super conference" of the collegiate football big shots after all. It didn't turn on moving to the Big Ten or the Pac 10, where the Longhorns might face more worthy opponents.

It turned on money, pure and simple. And maybe — just maybe — a little power politics in Austin.

Texas Tech, Texas A&M and Baylor are all part of the package that the Big Eight Conference is buying with its television money, but it is clear that the University of Texas was the sine qua non of the deal. ...

Is this what collegiate athletics has come to?

Yes, it is.

In fairness, we must also point out that the schools left behind — University of Houston, Rice, Southern Methodist and our own Texas Christian — are not exactly powerhouse teams, either on the field or at the admission gate.

They didn't field good enough teams to draw us in as fans. But we can also blame the fans who seem to have forgotten that there is something available on a college football field on a sunny fall afternoon beyond winning and losing. ...

Waco Tribune-Herald on Branch Davidians trial verdicts:

Unjustified. That's the verdict times two in the trial of 11 Branch Davidians in San Antonio. In charging the Branch Davidians of voluntary manslaughter, the jury was saying that the defendants were unjustified in firing at FBI agents. But in acquitting the defendants of murder, the jury seemed to affirm what about this tragic episode — that federal tactics were overzealous? Such questions went unanswered, and the jury seemed to say that it didn't matter. Both sides were culpable.

Self-defense wasn't in this jury's eyes.

Neither, the jury ruled, was conspiracy to kill agents a reasonable certainty. What happened was a frantic, catastrophic incident in which reason was thrown out the window just as concussion grenades were thrown in. Nobody should have died at Mount Carmel. David Koresh should have been arrested on one of his many man-about-town jaunts. The Davidians should have put their hands up in the air and told federal prosecutors to prove their weapons case.

Love for nature turns into business

by MEGAN CLARK
THE UNIVERSITY DAILY

What began as an idea at Orlando's restaurant, has evolved into a profitable business for Randy Sutherland and Curt Finger, president and artist for Vanishing World.

Sutherland and Finger visited with merchandising and design students in the College of Human Sciences Tuesday and discussed their T-shirt clothing line. Each shirt depicts an endangered species drawn by Finger and printed on natural fiber shirts.

"We've been in business about three months, minus the research and development process," Sutherland said. "We wanted to combine our concern and awareness for endangered species. Part of our proceeds go to wildlife organizations that sign on under us."

Finger has been drawing for about two years, and said his work has been entered in numerous art and apparel competitions.

"We recently came back from the Las Vegas Womens' Apparel Show and our product was received quite well," he said. "Curt also was one of 65 artists represented in an art show with over 600 entries."

Vanishing World merchandise is sold at Nature's Gifts in South Plains Mall. The shirts also are being marketed in Oregon, New York, California, and in different locations in Texas.

Endowment fund moves closer to goal

by JENNIFER GILBERT
THE UNIVERSITY DAILY

Sen. John Montford, D-Lubbock, announced that $20,000 will be donated from the Plum Foundation to the Texas Tech School of Music's Gene Hemmle Memorial Scholarship Endowment Fund.

"The fund has $10,000 now and we'll be accepting donations until December 31, 1994," College of Arts and Sciences Director of Development Tim Chambers said. "We have $10,000 in our hand, but we need to raise $20,000 more to reach $50,000.

"Our goal for this year is to raise $50,000," Chambers said.

Montford said the challenge grant from the Plum Foundation is designed to match the donated amount so that the School of Music will receive double.

"The Plum Foundation is a private, non-profit charitable foundation," Montford said. "It is funded by individual contributions."

Montford said the Plum Foundation was founded in 1991 and said the foundation focuses on five areas, including health and human services, the environment, medical and scientific research, education and visual and performing arts.

The foundation was named after author P.G. Wodehouse's nickname, 'Plum.'

"We couldn't use his name so we used Plum," Montford said.

Montford is the foundation's chairman of the board of directors, and he said the foundation also donated $100,000 to the International Cultural Center.

Rain forest comes alive in UC

Couple travels U.S. sharing concern for nature, environment

by JUDY DAVIES
CONTRIBUTING WRITER

The music and beauty of the rain forest can be experienced during a McLean Mix performance at 8 p.m. today at the Texas Tech University Center's Allen Theatre.

Barton and Priscilla McLean tour the nation and perform at museums, schools and community centers.

Their idea behind replicating the rain forest came from the couple's "interest in the environmental music and their concern for the rain forest," Mrs. McLean said.

The McLean Mix premiered in 1989 at the University of Wyoming, and the couple has performed extensively throughout 40 states.

The McLeans create "fantasmic" music by using background sounds on tape and interactive electro-acoustic composition, Mrs. McLean said.

The five creative stations used for audience interaction include a synthesizer programmed with actual bird sounds the couple taped in Peru in January 1993, a synthesizer programmed with inventive sounds such as a squeaking door, a small harp-like instrument, some microphones for creative talent and a table full of ordinary household materials such as cookie cutters, bells, rattles and blocks of wood.

All the objects and instruments help create the McLean's replication of a rain forest.

Pictures presented during the McLean Mix were taken by the couple during their first trip to rain forests around the world.

"If people can experience the rain forest in a creative and pleasurable way, people can appreciate it more," Mrs. McLean said.

Admission to tonight's show is free and tickets are available at the UC Ticket Booth. For more information, call 742-3610.

Union Pacific workers strike

OMAHA, Neb. (AP)—A union representing brakemen, conductors and yardmen struck Tuesday against the Union Pacific Railroad.

It wasn't immediately known how many employees honored the work stoppage called by the United Transportation Union, the railroad said.

The railroad operates in 19 states.

Pickets were reported at Fort Worth, Texas; Little Rock, Ark., Poplar Bluff, Ark., and outside the railroad's national headquarters in Omaha.

The railroad has also sought a temporary restraining order in the United States District Court in Omaha to end the temporary work stoppage.

The union said the strike centered on a rule that requires its members to drive company-owned vehicles while staying in radio communication with engineer-only operated trains.

Railroad spokesman Alex Tice called the issue "baffling."

Tice also said he is unaware of any instance where the railroad has required the UTU-covered workers to drive company vehicles.

Investigator: 'El Guero' confessed to setting up murder

BROWNSVILLE (AP) — A house painter said he helped set up the murder of a teen-ager after a fortuneteller told him his participation would improve his marital problems, according to a confession read in court Tuesday.

Despite constant defense objections, prosecutors read to jurors the confession that Daniel "El Guero" Garza allegedly made to sheriff's detectives investigating the murder of Joey Fischer, 18.

Prosecutors are hoping that Garza's statement backs up their case that Dora Garcia Cisneros, 56, a Brownsville surgeon's wife, paid to have Fischer killed because he jilted her youngest daughter, Cristina.

Cisneros and Garza are standing trial together on capital murder and conspiracy charges.

Lt. Ernesto Flores of the Cameron County sheriff's department told jurors that Garza made the statement voluntarily in Spanish during an interrogation on March 31, 1993.

Garza, a 43-year-old painting contractor based in San Antonio, signed the statement after it was translated into English by sheriff's investigator Abel Perez Jr., Flores said.

Garza's attorney, Fred Galindo, unsuccessfully tried to exclude the statement, arguing that his client didn't understand his rights to remain silent.

The statement doesn't mention Cisneros by name.

Prosecutors allege the link between Cisneros and Garza was a 72-year-old fortuneteller and folk healer named Maria Mercedes Martinez, who advised both defendants about their personal affairs.

Garza's statement said the fortuneteller knew a woman — referred to only as "la clienta," or the client — who was looking for someone to beat up Fischer.

Students see health aspects of interior design

by MEGAN CLARK
THE UNIVERSITY DAILY

Students in Texas Tech's College of Human Sciences were offered insight into the health aspects of interior design careers during a panel discussion Tuesday.

Professional architects, engineers and planners from around the state spoke to students about the emphasis of design in hospital and health care institutions.

"When you go into a hospital for renovations, you should look at it like an interior physician," said Eric Williams, associate vice president of facilities, planning, and construction. "Identify the symptoms and the causes and make a diagnosis."

Williams and other panel members encouraged students to take in the whole concept of the hospital environment before beginning the design process. Two to three days was recommended for students to get a sense of the area being renovated.

"You need to look at how everything goes together," said D. Christian Cassidy, a representative from HKS Inc. in Dallas. "Patients need to be able to reach the bed controls comfortably and nurses need to be able to reach the cabinets."

This is how it works
Panel members discuss interior design in the health care system. The discussion was part of Human Sciences Week, which is being held at the College of Human Sciences.

Cassidy also told students to integrate some custom design with renovations or construction, including adding some creativity to the ceiling.

"The ceiling is the part of the room most people in the hospital look at while they stay," he said.

Leisa Maddoux, director of environmental and engineering services at Zale Lipshy University Hospital in Dallas, said mobility also is a critical aspect of the health care designing process.

"Movement is important from a design point of view," she said.

"Consider all the wheelchairs, carts, etc., that are used every day. There is a constant flow all day long."

Panel members said renovations in health care institutions usually occur every 10 to 15 years.

"It is important not to lose sight of your role as an artist, but your first priority should be meeting rules and regulations," said Alan Colley, a panel member and Human Sciences Advisory Board Member.

"This a rewarding, but very demanding area of design."

Phone-a-thon raises money for College of Engineering

by LESLIE WEEKS
THE UNIVERSITY DAILY

Student volunteers from Texas Tech's College of Engineering are participating in a phone-a-thon to raise funds for the college.

"It is also friend raising — making contact with people, letting them know what's going on here at Texas Tech," said Jean Ann Cantore, director of the Engineering Communications Center.

Director of Engineering Development Elizabeth Orem said the college has been doing the phone-a-thon since 1990.

"It has grown," she said. "Each year it's been more and more successful."

The phone-a-thon provides an opportunity to update information, such as phone numbers, addresses and positions about alumni.

Cantore said the phone-a-thon also allows students to make contacts with people in their majors, she said.

"They call people within their majors," Cantore said.

"It is a good way to make some money for the college and also to make friends and establish contacts."

Senior mechanical engineering major Katy Creamer said, "They (volunteers) get a little more familiar with what's out there in their departments."

"Students can see there are actually jobs in their fields," she said.

Orem said students volunteer to participate in the phone-a-thon or are chosen from those who received scholarships from the college.

Student volunteers receive 30 slips listing alumni names and numbers.

"Some call more than that, some call less," administrative assistant Genia Tillinghast said.

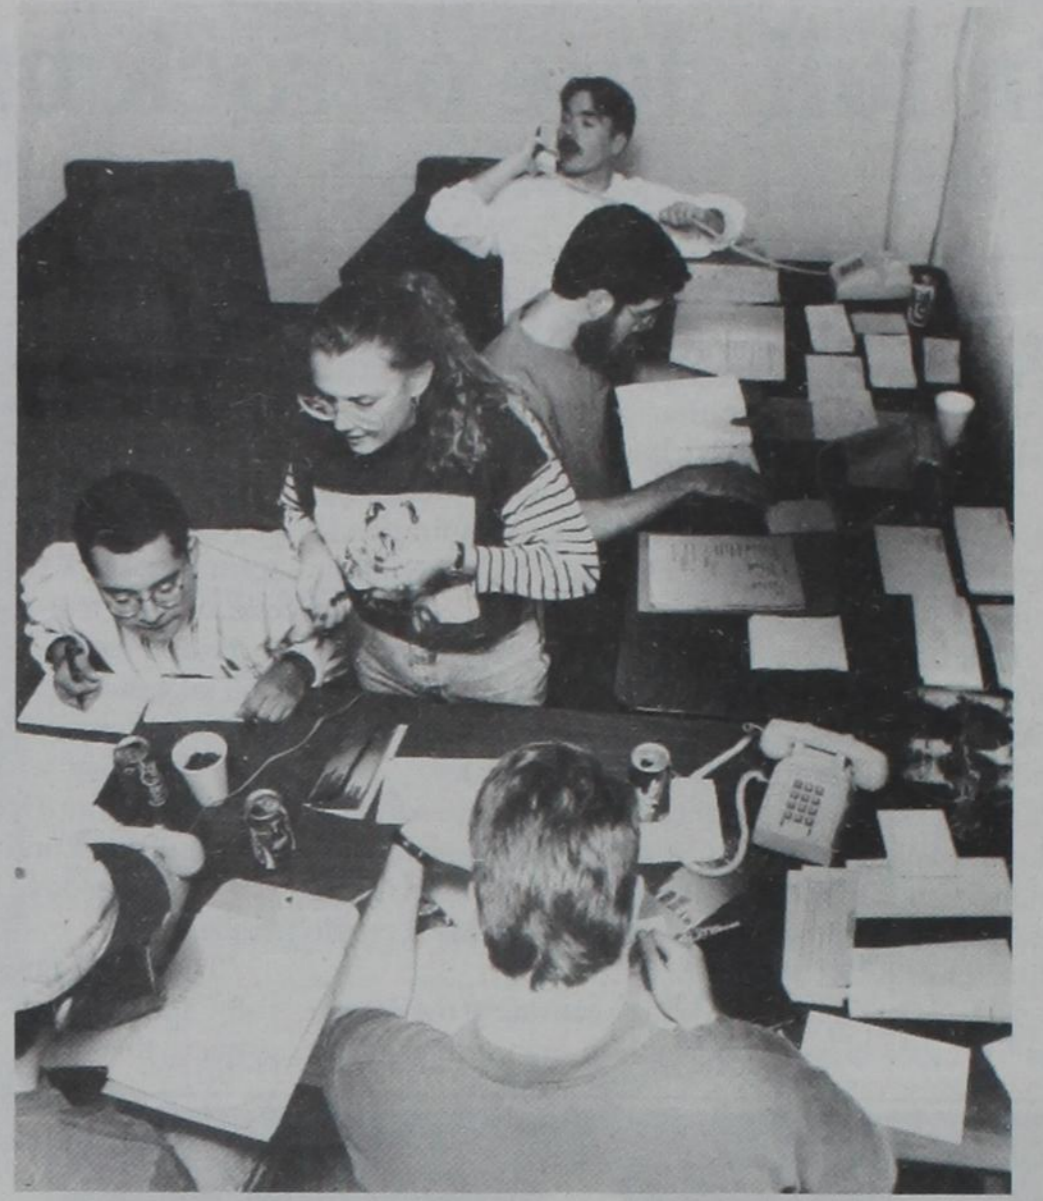

"Those that aren't home, we call again later."

Tillinghast said the phone-a-thon is a good form of public relations for the school.

"The alumni love to talk to students," she said.

Orem said students sometimes receive tips about jobs or internships.

"There are occasionally job of-

Taking donations
Students from the college of engineering ask alumni for donations in a national phone-a-thon fers given," senior mechanical engineering major David Gill said. "In a tough market, that's nice to get."

Orem said the phone-a-thon educates the callers themselves.

"We are interested in their understanding of what hard work it is to raise money," she said.

"All of these students who phone tonight will someday be donors."

Tillinghast said, "When they are not students, they will know how important it is to give money to the school. When they have helped earn it, they will appreciate it more."

Bart Van Keer, a freshman petroleum engineering major, said, "I am here under scholarship. I realize the money from that scholarship didn't just come out of nowhere."

"Somebody must have done that calling for me last year," he said.

Gill said the people he calls are generally very nice.

"People are interested in knowing what's going on in the department," he said. "They are interested in hearing what's going on at the university."

Gill said he would encourage others to participate in the event.

"It is a lot of fun to talk to people," he said. "They always have stories about when they were at Tech."

The phone-a-thon will continue through Thursday, and will occur again during the last week of March.

One Menendez lawyer wants out of retrial

LOS ANGELES (AP) — A lawyer torn between duty to her family and to Lyle Menendez asked Monday if she could bow out of the Menendez brothers' murder retrial.

A change of lawyers could delay the case.

"It's been very difficult," attorney Jill Lansing said outside court. "I had to choose between a client I care a great deal about and a family that I love."

She said her daughter, who was 2 when she joined the case, is now 6.

"I don't want to lose another year or two years of what I consider irreplaceable time with her," Lansing said. "There's a certain irony about conducting a case about parent-child relationships and not conducting your own."

Superior Court Judge Stanley Weisberg said another judge will determine appointment of defense lawyers at a hearing on March 9. He ordered lawyers back to his courtroom March 16 to discuss the trial's location and scheduling.

Lyle, 26, and his brother Erik, 23, are charged with murdering their father, Jose, and mother, Kitty, in the family's Beverly Hills mansion on Aug. 20, 1989. Prosecutors say the brothers wanted the family fortune; the brothers say they feared for their lives after years of physical and psychological abuse.

Lyle Menendez' second lawyer, Michael Burt, also filed a motion to be relieved as co-counsel. Burt, a San Francisco public defender, represents two accused serial killers and indicated he could not spend more time on the Menendez case. He was not present at Monday's hearing.

Erik's lawyer, Leslie Abramson, said she has asked for appointment to represent her client for a second time at county expense. She told Superior Court Judge Stanley Weisberg she could be ready for trial by late May.

Abramson said the Menendez family fortune is gone and the brothers must rely on the county to pay for their defense.

In the first trial, Lansing and Abramson were privately retained and paid by the Menendez family estate; their fees have not been made public.

Each defendant also was given a court-appointed lawyer at public expense because of the potential for the death penalty.

The first trial ended in a double deadlock last month, when two separate juries were unable to agree on whether the brothers murdered their parents or acted in self-defense.

Weiss and Towery said they could not be ready for trial by May.

Lubbock music scene to draw in full slate of rock bands

by LARA M. CAMPBELL
THE UNIVERSITY DAILY

The Depot's 19th Street Warehouse will bring several sounds to the Lubbock music scene this week. Dick Dale, "King of Surf Guitar," will perform his California heavy surf guitar music today with The Nose Gremlins, a Lubbock band, opening the show. "Dale is a legend," promoter Michael Patton said. "He taught so many people and was an inspiration to Jimi Hendrix and Stevie Ray Vaughn. He's a dynamic guitar player." Dale has been playing his surf music for more than 30 years. When Dale signed with Capitol Records in 1963 for a $50,000 advance, he broke the previous industry record set in 1956 by Elvis Presley. "Dick Dale has been shredding guitar picks since the mid-'50s, creating surf guitar music and pioneering amplifier technology and entertaining generations of music fans," said Rob Meadows, music director of KTXT-88.1 FM. Thursday night will mark the coming of the Austin band, Little Sister, which many are comparing to Janice Joplin. The band is promoting its live debut album "Free Love and Nickel Beer." "We have very versatile palates musically, and we turn each other on to new stuff all the time," Patrick Pike, singer/guitarist, said. "But the common ground is that we're all into old funk, like Sly, P-Funk and Maceo Parker, and we're also really passionate about soul and R&B." Pike describes the music as true rock 'n' roll. "Even the positive stuff we do, the real happy-sounding stuff, is just ball to the wall jamming; it's not lollipop feel-good stuff," Pike said. Friday night, two bands familiar with Lubbock will take the stage. Touch, a local band whose music has been described as moody and atmospheric, will perform along with Deep Blue Something, a band out of Denton. Deep Blue Something has recently released its second album, "Home." Next Tuesday, Lubbock will host Wisconsin's BoDeans. "They're progressive and they play real rock and roll," Patton said. "If you want to hear rap, don't come to this one."

Deep Blue Something

The band's fifth album, "Go Slow Down," was a year in the making. Advance tickets are available at Ralph's Records and Tapes and at University Records and CDs.

'Conference of the Birds' Lab Theatre production explores inner faith, courage

by MICHELLE ELIZARDO
THE UNIVERSITY DAILY

A combination of acting, rhythmic movement and mime will be featured in the Texas Tech Lab Theatre production, "The Conference of the Birds." The play, adapted from a poem by Farid Uddi Attar, opens Thursday and will run through the weekend with 8 p.m. performances and a 2 p.m. matinee Sunday.

"It tells us about aspects of human nature — things we get attached to and not wanting to leave the comforts of home," said Helen Noey, doctoral student and director of the play. "The 'Tales of the Arabian Nights' is similar to the flavor of the play with lessons incorporated, Noey said. "The Conference of the Birds" acts out stories through a spiritual journey taken by birds with humanistic qualities.

They travel through seven valleys in search of an unseen king. "It presents a story of birds to find their king, and in the end, they realize the king is in themselves," said Lisa Roth, a senior theater major from Plainview. It is a different show, almost like a play within a play with all the stories presented, said Amy Broome, a sophomore theater major from Lubbock.

The tales help the head bird pass on the message to the other birds that they need to go on the journey and not settle for staying in their dwellings. Noey said the birds will show audience members a great deal about themselves. "The play teaches people to have more courage and faith in themselves," Broome said.

Broome says aspects of the play the audience will enjoy are the costumes, the dance-like movement and movement of mime. The appeal to most people will be the beautiful message at the end, she said. Tickets are available at the University Theatre Box Office. Tickets cost $3 for Tech students and $6 for non-students.

Strong finish crucial, Tech coach says

by JAMES DAVID THE UNIVERSITY DAILY

The Texas Tech men's basketball team begins its stretch run tonight, starting with Texas Christian at 7 p.m. today in the Lubbock Municipal Coliseum.

Waiting in the wings for Tech after Wednesday is Texas A&M. Tech head coach James Dickey says these final two regular season games are critical for the Red Raiders' momentum heading into the Southwest Conference Post-Season Classic.

"I want us to finish strong going into tournament play," Dickey said.

The Raiders have been consistent of late, winning their last four games and eight of their last 10. Tech has a 14-10 overall record and 8-4 mark in the Southwest Conference.

Saturday's 76-62 victory against Rice clinched at least a third-place regular-season finish for Tech in the SWC. The Horned Frogs are 7-17 and 3-9 in league play, but are fresh off of an 89-84 win at Oral Roberts Saturday.

The Frogs are in seventh place in the SWC standings, but TCU coach Moe Iba said he saw improvement in his club Saturday.

"The difference between Saturday night and the other times this season is that when we fell behind, we kept going inside to our big men," Iba said.

"That proved to be the difference in the ball game."

The Raiders won the first matchup between the two teams Feb. 2 in Fort Worth 71-69 on a Darwin Ham layup with 27 seconds left.

The Frogs have the third-leading scorer in the SWC in 6-9, 230-pound junior center Kurt Thomas, who is averaging 20.9 points per game to lead TCU in scoring.

In Tech's first game against TCU, Thomas scored 28 points and pulled down 15 rebounds.

"We had a difficult time defeating them last month," Dickey said. "Kurt Thomas is one of the top big men in college basketball and we'll need to play him better defensively to win."

The rest of TCU's probable starters include 6-3 sophomore guard Jentry Moore, 6-0 freshman guard Jeff Jacobs, 6-9 sophomore forward Byron Waits, and 6-6 senior forward Eric Dailey.

Red Raider notes

• Still leading the Raiders in scoring is sophomore forward Jason Sasser, who is averaging 20 points per game and 22 in SWC contests. Sasser has also been named the "Texas Tech Whataburger Player of the Week" for his performances against Oral Roberts and Rice. Sasser managed back to back double-doubles with 18 points and 10 rebounds against ORU, and 16 points and 17 rebounds at Rice.

• Tech's third-place regular season finish is its best since 1987. The 1987 team also finished above .500 in the SWC and tied for third.

• Junior guard Mark Davis has had the hot hand in the last four games, averaging 22 points and 10.3 rebounds per game.

• Davis is still leading the dunk chart with 36, followed by Darwin Ham with 31 and Lance Hughes with 21. Tech is averaging four dunks per game on the season.

TCU first order of business for Lady Raiders

by LEN HAYWARD THE UNIVERSITY DAILY

This week could be the most important week for the Texas Tech women's basketball team.

But first some business to take care of.

The No. 6 Lady Raiders will try to continue their five-game winning streak against Texas Christian at 7 p.m. today in Daniel-Meyer Coliseum in Fort Worth.

"We have all talked about the possibilities of this week," Tech head coach Marsha Sharp said earlier this week. "This is why you play the game. I think our crowd stunned TCU a little bit the last time we played them, but I don't think that will happen on their home floor."

Also on the slate this week is the final game of the season against the Texas A&M Lady Aggies Saturday. This game could determine the Southwest Conference championship.

A&M will take on Baylor in Waco tonight.

The Lubbock Municipal Coliseum is also sold out for Saturday's game.

But Wednesday's game against TCU is the first order of business, according to Sharp.

"TCU has played a lot of people in our conference really well this season," Sharp said. "It is a game that we have to be ready to play and not look forward."

The last time Tech and TCU met was on Feb. 2 in Lubbock, when Tech won 93-44. Junior forward Connie Robinson scored 19 points in the win.

The Lady Frogs enter the game with a 5-17 record and 1-11 mark in the Southwest Conference and are eighth in the standings. Tech is atop the league with a 10-2 record and 22-3 overall mark.

"They are kind of like Rice, they really don't have anything to lose," Sharp said.

Texas Christian is led by senior forward Donna Kruegar who is averaging 12.3 points and 6.3 rebounds per game.

Tech will also have a change in travel plans for this game. The Lady Raiders left Lubbock this morning and will return back tonight after the 7 p.m. game.

"I don't think it will affect us that much," sophomore forward Melinda White said of going on the one-day trip.

Lady Raider notes

• KLBK-TV, channel 13, has received the broadcast rights for Saturday's game against A&M. John Appicello will provide the play-by-play and Greg Bailey will handle color duties. The game will be shown live beginning at 3 p.m. Tipoff is scheduled for 3:10 p.m.

Also the game will be carried on a tape-delayed basis by HSE (Cox Cable channel 20). The replay is scheduled to start at midnight Saturday.

Tech officials announce new ticket policy

A new ticket policy will be in place as both Texas Tech basketball teams head into postseason play, Athletic Director Bob Bockrath announced Monday.

"The chances are very good that we could host women's first- and second-round NCAA tournament games," Bockrath said. "We wanted to have a policy in place in advance of any NCAA bid."

If Tech does host an NCAA men's or women's first- or second-round game the cost would be $10 per ticket.

There are four ways to purchase tickets for the games:

1. Season ticket-holders will have the opportunity to purchase their current seats by 5 p.m., March 14. Texas Tech sold 3,780 seats to the general public on a season-ticket basis this season.

2. A maximum of 1,000 tickets will be allotted for Texas Tech students. They may place a maximum order of two tickets per student beginning March 7. Students will be required to show a Tech I.D. in order to pick up their tickets at the Tech Ticket Office beginning at noon, March 14.

3. A maximum of 1,000 tickets will be allotted for phone orders to the general public, starting at 8:30 a.m. on March 14. Phone customers are limited to a maximum of four tickets and payment must be made by Visa or MasterCard.

4. The remainder of the tickets will go on sale to the general public on a first-come first-served basis at the Tech Ticket Office starting at 8:30 a.m., March 14 with a limit of four tickets per customer.

If Tech plays any games on the road during the tournament the tickets would be given away in a lottery. A lottery will be held from a pool of season ticket-holders and another lottery would draw from Tech students. For more information concerning the tickets call the Tech Ticket Office at 742-3341 or 1-800-800-SWC8.

Tech's Whittle captures SWC Player of Week

Thanks to striking out 16 hitters and throwing a one-hitter last week, Texas Tech pitcher Jason Whittle is the Southwest Conference Co-Player of the Week.

"I never thought that would happen to me," a shocked Whittle said Tuesday. "I don't consider myself as good as the people who get that. It is still hard for me to believe I am playing at this (Division I) level."

The Rancho Cucamonga, Calif., native has a 3-1 record and an 1.80 ERA after 30 innings for Tech. Whittle shares the honor with Texas Christian's designated hitter Jason McClure.

Women netters lose first SWC match to Rice

The Texas Tech women's tennis team lost its first match since Feb. 10 Tuesday to Rice 8-1 in the Athletic Training Center.

Tech's record is now 13-3 on the season and 1-1 in Southwest Conference play. Rice improved to 5-3 and 1-1.

"It was a lot closer than it looks," Tech head coach Kathy Vick said. "We knew Rice had a strong program and we would have to play well. I knew we had a shot, but it was a long shot."

The Raiders' only win came from the No. 1 singles player Jennifer Brennan who defeated Antonette Veloso 6-4, 6-2.

Tech's second seed, Lynne Jackson, fell to Paula Myslivecek 6-2, 6-3 while No. 3 player Christy Davis was defeated by Jackie Brown 6-2, 6-2. In doubles, the Raiders lost all three matches with Rice's Abby Daniels and Myslivecek defeating Tech's No. 1 doubles team of Brennan and Jackson 3-6, 6-3, 6-2.

Intramural March Madness

Basketball playoffs heat up this week

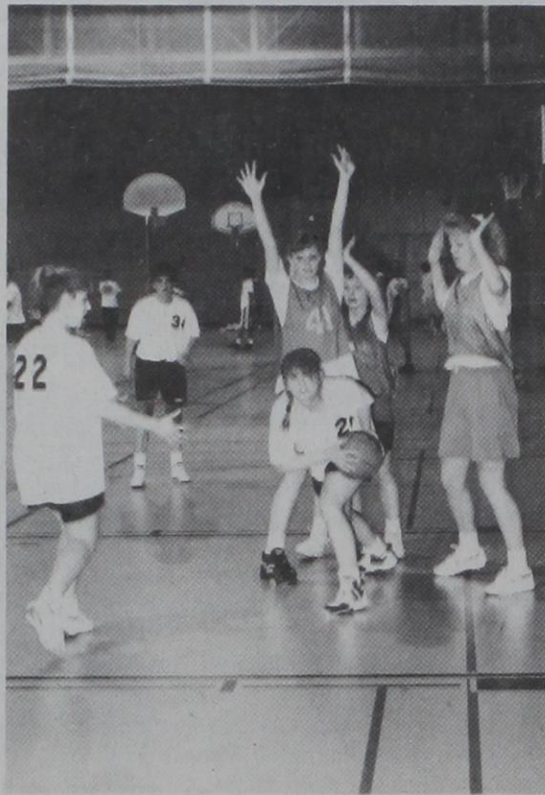

Texas Tech's version of March Madness started last week in all divisions of intramural basketball. It should be an exciting play-off picture to determine the final 16. The All-University Championships will be played the week after spring break. The All-University champion (the Fab) and the runner-up (T.S.F. Arsenal) from last year, with a different outcome. There are other teams that will be out to take the championship away from the Fab.

In the Residence Hall division the Bricklayers, Red Hots and Jayhawks have their sights on the top position.

The Greek division will be a difficult march with Chi Psi Gold, Sigma Chi Gold, Fiji and Phi Delt A trying to out maneuver each other to reach the final 16.

There will be some fierce battles in the open division with the Brew Crew and Rec All-Stars contending for the turf. The women's road to the final six will be a bumpy and rough path.

The Texans, Old Timers, Spurs and Panhandle Clique will be parading to conquer the territory. The above skirmishes will take place the week of March 6-10 in the Student Rec Center. Come and enjoy the excitement in the air and support these teams.

WHICH WAY?

Sharon Floyd of Top Ten is surrounded by Panhandle Clique defenders during their playoff game held last Thursday in the Student Rec Center. Panhandle won this game 46-24 to advance to the second round of All-U play.

You make the Call

This Week's Subject: Basketball

A Ballhandler takes a legitimate shot at their goal and the ball does not hit the rim or backboard (airball). The same ballhandler then gets the untouched rebound and proceeds to shoot again. Has an infraction occurred?

Answer:

No infraction has occurred! A legitimate shot at the goal nullifies player and team control, therefore the shooter may be the first to touch the ball.

UP HE GOES

GREG HENRY: REC SPORTS

One of The Ballers' players slices through two Posse defenders in a recent basketball playoff game. In a tightly played game The Ballers advanced with a 51-47 win.

Spring is almost here. The birds are singing. The sun is shining. So when the weekend rolls around...
