Cuban refugee killed by land mine at base

MEXICO CITY (AP) — A Cuban refugee was killed and another injured when they tripped a land mine while trying to flee the U.S. Navy base at Guantanamo Bay, Cuba, a Mexican news agency said, quoting Cuban defense forces.

The Notimex dispatch from Havana on Sunday said the Cuban was killed in a no man's land of densely sown mines that ring the American base on Cuba's remote, southeastern tip. It did not say when the incident occurred.

Prensa Latina, the Cuban government news agency, also reported a refugee had died during an escape attempt but did not say when. U.S. military officials in Washington and at Guantanamo said Monday they could not confirm the reports.

Frustration at being barred from the United States and at conditions in the camp led to protests.

Simpson's attempt to drop charges fails

LOS ANGELES (AP) — O.J. Simpson's last-ditch effort before his trial to have murder charges dismissed failed Monday when the judge rejected defense arguments that the case was based on sloppy and dishonest detective work.

Superior Court Judge Lance Ito upheld an earlier ruling by Municipal Court Judge Kathleen Kennedy-Powell that detectives acted properly when they entered Simpson's estate hours after the June 12 slayings without a search warrant and found bloody evidence. Kennedy-Powell presided over Simpson's preliminary hearing over the summer.

Simpson is charged with two counts of murder in the knifing deaths of his ex-wife Nicole Brown Simpson, 35, and her friend Ronald Goldman, 25, outside Ms. Simpson's condominium, about two miles from Simpson's estate.

Ito agreed with Kennedy-Powell that the detectives clearly were motivated by a desire to inform Simpson of the tragedy and make sure that others were not wounded or dying at his estate.

"The detectives were faced with a brutal and violent killing. They had two young children who were unattended," the judge said, who were asleep at the condo when the slayings occurred.

Attorneys ask for Cisneros documents

LUBBOCK (AP) — Attorneys for a woman suing Henry Cisneros want the U.S. Housing Secretary to produce income tax returns, payroll records and other documents.

In a request filed Monday, attorneys for Linda Medlar said they want Cisneros to produce the documents at his deposition Sept. 28.

Medlar, 45, in July sued the former San Antonio mayor for fraud and breach of contract she claims he committed by reneging on an oral promise to pay her $4,000 a month.

The Lubbock woman says Cisneros, 47, agreed to make the regular payments because her reputation and career were destroyed when news of their extramarital affair became public in 1988.

Student falsely reports assault

BY CHRISTY EVERETT AND
MEGAN CLARK
THE UNIVERSITY DAILY

A female Texas Tech student falsely reported Sunday that she was abducted from a parking lot near the music building and sexually assaulted at 2:30 a.m. Saturday, the University Police Department reported.

Margaret Lutherer, director of Tech News and Publications, said the student told the police Monday night, "I was not abducted from the parking lot adjacent to the music building, nor was I the victim of a sexual assault."

Lutherer said the university will present the case to the District Attorney's Office for an evaluation of the student's false statements.

The student reported at 2:40 a.m. Sunday that she was on her way to visit friends after returning from a local night club when she was hit on the head and abducted by two men.

Lutherer said the student reported she was hit by the passenger of a truck and abducted from campus.

She reported she was sexually assaulted before being returned to the area where she was abducted, Lutherer said. She said UPD officials still are investigating three other sexual assault incidents involving Tech students.

Lawrence Dean Woolverton, a parolee from the Texas state prison system, was charged Sept. 12 with the aggravated kidnapping and assault of a Tech student.

Lubbock police department officials also reported a female student was approached at 8:30 p.m. Sept. 9 at a gas station at 702 Ave. Q. The victim reported a male suspect grabbed her.

Another female Tech student reported she was sexually assaulted at 1:30 a.m. Sept. 5 outside the Women's Gym.

In another incident, a female Tech student told police she was abducted at 9:30 p.m. Aug. 27 from a parking lot east of Jones Stadium. She was sexually assaulted and later released in the Overton area, a police report stated.

Lutherer said UPD will continue to provide increased patrolling around campus buildings and residence halls.

"We encourage students to call the UPD for a ride anytime," she said.

"They (students) should use the blue telephones. The police will answer and they will know which phone the student is calling from."

Lutherer said students can either wait for a shuttle van ride or can request a ride from a UPD officer.

Tech News and Publications is in the process of creating a series of personal safety videos that will be available in residence halls to be checked out by students, Lutherer said.

University officials also will continue to provide personal safety seminars, she said.

Ag groups endorse Bush

BY SANDY FULLER
THE UNIVERSITY DAILY

George W. Bush said if he is elected governor, he will champion Texans' private property rights and fight against plaintiff attorneys to end frivolous lawsuits hurting the state's farmers and ranchers.

The Republican Texas gubernatorial candidate made a campaign stop in Lubbock Monday afternoon to accept the endorsement of two agricultural groups.

Joined by Texas Agriculture Commissioner Rick Perry, Bush accepted the endorsements at a news conference at Lubbock Cotton Growers Gin. Representatives from the Texas Farm Bureau and the Texas & Southwestern Cattle Raisers' Association announced their organizations' support for Bush.

"I'm delighted to get the endorsement of the Texas Farm Bureau and from the cattle raisers of Texas," he said.

"It shows that the race transcends partisan politics," Bush said. "Many, many members of the Farm Bureau are Democrats and Independents."

The Texas Farm Bureau represents about 300,000 farming families, the state's largest organization of farming families, said S.M. True, former president who spoke at the conference on behalf of the organization.

True said the group backs Bush because he is a supporter of private property rights.

"We are deeply worried about what is happening to our private property rights," True said. "If we lose the right to own and to manage our property as responsible land owners, nothing else really means anything."

He said Bush has been a supporter of private property rights from the beginning of the issue.

"His position did not change when the feds came to Texas with a plan to designate more than 800,000 acres of Central Texas as a critical habitat for the Golden-Cheek Warbler," True said. "As governor, Bush will stand tall for private-property rights."

Bush said he also will appoint state administrators who will be more

Student Health Services names Hrachovy new interim director

BY SUSAN OSBORNE
THE UNIVERSITY DAILY

The Texas Tech University Health Sciences Center named James Hrachovy, faculty family practice physician, interim director of Student Health Services.

"Overseeing day-to-day business at Student Health means ensuring specialty care for 24,000 students," Hrachovy said.

He said he specializes in family medicine.

Hrachovy, who has been at TTUHSC since April 1992, practices at the TTUHSC medical office plaza and oversees the TTUHSC resident program of family medicine.

Hrachovy said he also serves as the director to the TTUHSC sports medicine clinic.

Hrachovy attended Texas A&M University, graduating in 1961 with a bachelor's degree in zoology.

He obtained a doctorate of medicine from the University of Texas in 1965.

Hrachovy said he also served one year in the Vietnam War.

Before coming to Lubbock, Hrachovy practiced in Brenham.

As interim director of Student Health, Hrachovy oversees the various specialty care areas, such as nutrition, psychology, gynecology, dermatology, orthopedics and preventative medicine or general practice, he said.

U.S. troops land in Haiti by sea, air

PORT-AU-PRINCE, Haiti (AP) — To the cheers of jubilant slum dwellers, U.S. troops swept peacefully into Haiti by sea and air Monday to clear the way for a new democratic day in this poor, backward land.

The first GIs, dropping in by helicopter at Port-au-Prince airport, met with only cooperation from officers of the military dictatorship. Thousands of other Haitians streamed to the city harbor to greet arriving soldiers, some clambering over fences to give the Americans a personal welcome.

"We're free! We're free!" one shouted.

The euphoria was dampened by an ugly scene at the port. As American soldiers watched warily from nearby, witnesses said Haitian police, some swinging rifles and sticks, broke up a rally of hundreds of people chanting slogans in favor of exiled President Jean-Bertrand Aristide. An 8-year-old child was killed when run over by car near the late afternoon rally.

The scene could be a prelude to the days and weeks to come, making Operation Support Democracy a risky venture.

"The mission still has risks," President Clinton said at a White House news conference.

After landing at the airport, the U.S. force commander, Lt. Gen. Henry Hugh Shelton, went first to Haitian army headquarters and met with military leader Lt. Gen. Raoul Cedras to discuss arrangements for the new U.S. occupation.

Shelton later described the session as "warm and cooperative."

The two military forces must decide who is in charge of everyday security matters during the 3 1/2 weeks leading to the Oct. 15 deadline for Cedras' resignation.

Shelton said he hoped the Haitians would handle any "internal disturbances" on their own. He said it had still not been determined whether the thousands of army auxiliaries would be disbanded.

One right-wing politician, Jacquelin Montalvo said of the new agreement: "If this means the return of President Aristide, we will fight."

The American landing climaxed three years of diplomatic and economic pressure from the United Nations and military threats by the United States to restore Aristide, ousted in a military coup in September 1991.

Shortly after 9 a.m., the first wave of U.S. soldiers stormed off 10 Black Hawk helicopters at the airport, assault rifles at the ready. The camouflage-uniformed Americans were met by welcoming Haitian officers.

Earlier, two U.S. warships and a Coast Guard cutter had steamed into Port-au-Prince harbor.

HealthNet using technology to deliver developments to rural hospitals

BY SUSAN OSBORNE
THE UNIVERSITY DAILY

This story is the second part in a three-part series on HealthNet.

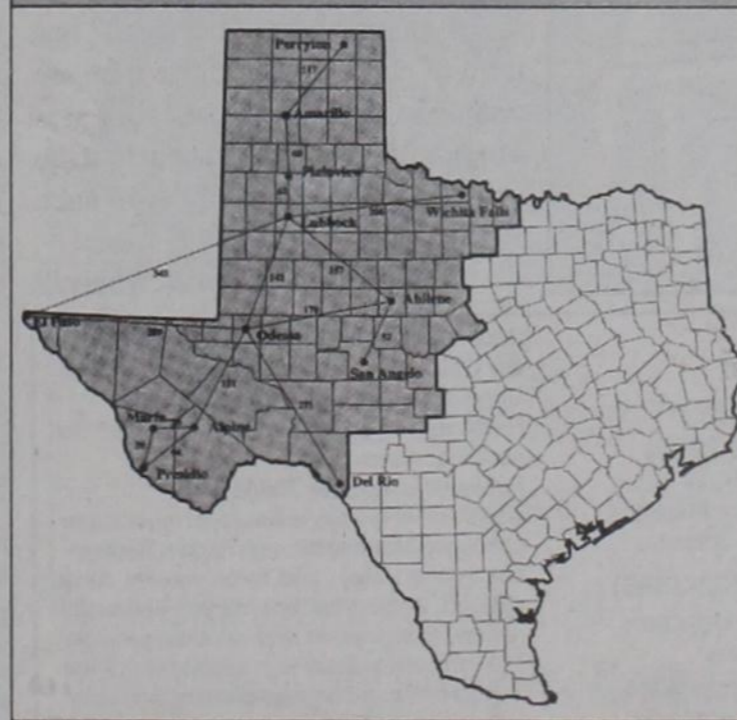

Physicians treating patients hundreds of miles away can bridge demographic gaps through the HealthNet telemedical system.

"For rural doctors, having HealthNet is like having all the specialists just down the hall, except that the hall is 300 miles long," said Richard Arnold, administrative CEO of Big Bend Regional Hospital in Alpine.

A division of Texas Tech University Health Sciences Center, HealthNet uses compressed digital video, teleradiology and other data transmission technology to deliver the latest medical developments to rural hospitals and health care facilities.

"A doctor in an outlying area like Hale or Presidio (counties) calls about

Regional HealthNet locations

Graphic By Christy Everett

a patient, and a specialist can help confirm a diagnosis and develop treatment," said Steve Cotton, director of marketing and program development at HealthNet.

The system provides for consultations not only between the physicians, but between the patient and doctor, the patient's family and other medical personnel present, Cotton said.

"There is a high level of comfort because telemedicine provides for teams between doctors at the urban and rural level," he said.

Cotton said Big Bend Regional Hospital in Alpine was the first telemedicine site made possible by HealthNet.

Since coming on line in June 1990, Big Bend Regional Hospital has made more than 350 consultations with specialists at TTUHSC through the technology of HealthNet, he said.

For rural health professionals, an initial telemedical consultation can result in knowledge for the future, said Bill McCaughan, executive director of Healthnet.

"The next time a similar situation arises, the physicians, often times, will not need the same consultation," McCaughan said.

"It can be an education process, too," he said.

Persons in rural areas needing specialists sometimes cannot face a long road trip with a medical condition, Arnold said.

"Telemedical consultations save the patient and the family long-distance travel," he said.

McCaughan said underserved areas could soon regard telemedicine as an essential form of doing business.

"There is a future for telemedicine, and it is taking hold all over the world," he said.

McCaughan said telemedicine systems exist at the University of Kansas, the University of Oklahoma and at private hospitals in Montana and Colorado.

He said an Army satellite at Tripler Army Hospital in Honolulu provides telemedicine to the South Pacific.

OU paper shows poor taste with Double T 'eulogy'

MEGAN CLARK

Texas Tech bashing has been taken to a higher level.

A column printed in the University of Oklahoma's student newspaper, The Oklahoma Daily, pokes fun at the recent passing of Tech's mascot, Double T, and ridicules the Red Raider football team and Tech students in the process.

Oklahoma Daily columnists Mark Fried and Deric Brock, in their infinite wisdom of Tech's traditions, express their sympathy for Double T's death in the form of irresponsible journalism.

What these OU boys think is funny is disgusting and tasteless. Brock and Fried begin their tribute to the memory of Double T by ridiculing the situation surrounding the mascot's death.

The columnists state they can "only hope that the death was not caused by the accidental discharge of one of those cool imaginary finger pistols Tech fans make when they get their 'guns up.'"

Brock and Fried wonder if "the Red Raider football team feels responsible for driving the horse to its grave because of repeated poor performances."

They are interested to know if Double T had been "experiencing trouble in relationships of late" or if a "suicide note was found in Double T's stall."

Brock and Fried offer OU's Owen Field as a burial place "if he has not already been sent to a glue factory."

Brock and Fried also state Texas A&M University would be willing to help with their "Horse Suicide Support Group," and they suggest "maybe next year the Schooner horses (the OU mascot) will wear black armbands in memory of their counterpart."

But the fun does not end there.

Last week, UD editor Kristie Davis received an open letter to Tech students from Brock and Fried, summarizing their column concerning Double T and welcoming Tech to the Big 12.

They also included with their letter a bottle of glue labeled Double T.

Although the Oklahoma Daily staff may be laughing their way to the presses, this column does not reflect well upon the journalism they choose to practice in their newspaper.

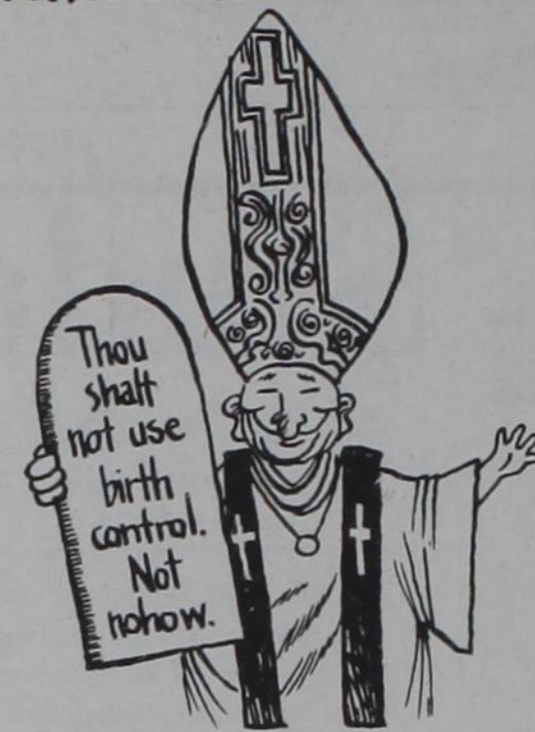

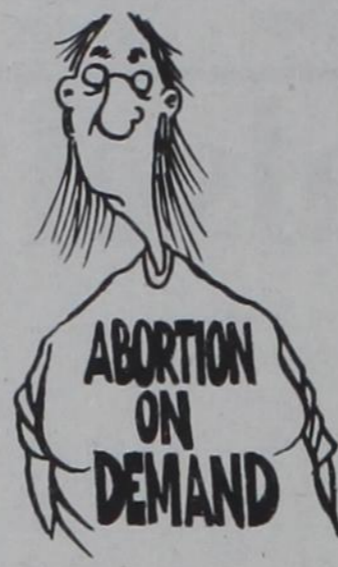

There is nothing wrong with a little friendly rivalry between schools or with being able to share an opinion about another school's mascot. But choosing to exploit the death of an honored tradition is wrong.

Double T's death was an unfortunate incident and should be treated as such.

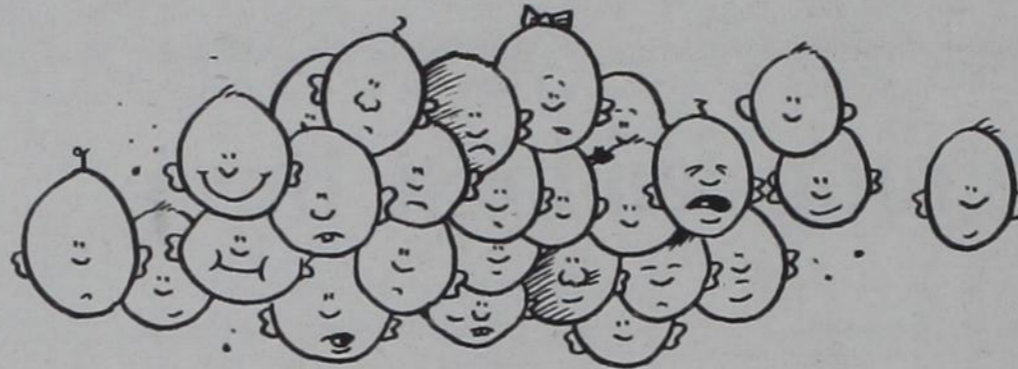

It should not have been the topic of a humorous column written by two OU students who have nothing else to use as a target for their criticism.

BY GARRY TRUDEAU

Limbaugh's no harmless little fuzzball

To the editor:
 Limbaugh's lying is so extensive that it is probably pathological. Here are a few more examples:
 Rush claim: "EIB Building." There is no such thing. Limbaugh broadcasts his radio program from the studio of WABC-AM, a station that leases space on the 17th floor of 2 Penn Plaza in Manhattan. The building is owned by Mendik Company.
 Rush claim: "EIB Network." Again, there is no such thing. Limbaugh's followers apparently do not know the difference between a network and a syndicated program.

 Rush claim: "Conservative." Limbaugh finds it necessary to proclaim a dozen times or more during each show that he is a conservative, and thus through repetition a lie turns into the truth. Anyone who does not understand the difference between conservative and fascist needs to meditate thereon.
 Rush claim: "Harmless fuzzball." Limbaugh is a serious and effective proponent of a vicious political philosophy. Hatred drips from nearly every word he utters, and hatred cannot be dismissed by calling it a joke. To openly declare himself a fascist would be politically untenable, so he is forced to rely on deception. His appeal is to those who are in on the secret and to those who lack the intellectual wherewithal to discern it.

Rush claim: "Liberal media." Mainstream media are not liberal, but represent the interests of capitalist owners. The phrase scapegoats liberals by diverting attention from the fact that many problems in U.S. society are the result of capitalist depredation. Mainstream media are largely responsible for the immense popularity of Ronald Reagan, and so is hardly liberal.

To many circles "dittohead" is a term of contempt for those who are unable to think for themselves. It is a major failing of our society that the ability to think critically is in such short supply.

Haiti invasion just political move

To the editor:
 After reading this weekend's USA Today, I've gained an even better understanding of the Haitian conflict. When American lives are at stake, I think we have an important issue at hand. I'd like to take this opportunity to share some of what I have learned about this ordeal.

Even after Bill Clinton's speech, 43 percent of Americans still disapprove of the way Clinton is handling Haiti (according to the Gallup poll). Almost one out of every two Americans disapproves of U.S. intervention in Haiti. Why is Clinton involving us in Haiti when it is obviously not in the best interest of American people? There are four reasons:

1.) According to Sen. Larry Pressler from South Dakota, "I feel our troops are being used politically. They are being sent in to help win the November elections." Clinton knows he has no real support, so he wants a "Persian Gulf War" to boost it. He is risking American lives in a foreign country to win an election. It is all a game to him with the presidency as the prize.

2.) "To uphold the credibility of U.S. commitment." Now that is a worthy cause to die for. If America would worry about its own problems and rebuild our country into the great nation it once was, we wouldn't have to worry about our "credibility."

3.) To halt brutal atrocities against democracy supporters. The Chinese students were vocal and demonstrated their support for democracy, and the United States did absolutely nothing. This is not a fight for democracy.

4.) To prevent a new exodus of Haitian refugees. Who says we have to let refugees into our country? Why not patrol our borders against illegal immigrants?

Bill Clinton wants war. NBC reported military leader Raoul Cedras offered to resign if new elections without Aristide were held now. The military regime came to power with the support of the United Nations in the form of millions of dollars. Obviously, the cause of this conflict is President Aristide. Now the United Nations (I mean the United States) wants to restore President Aristide, a militant Marxist and advocate of violent terrorism, to power. What will Bill Clinton and the United States do then?

Clinton summed it up in his speech saying, "the United States has agreed to lead a multinational force to carry out the will of the U.N." I always thought American troops fought for the United States of America.

Let me ask all of you, which branch of government has the power to declare war? Only the Legislative branch—Congress. Clinton is overstepping his boundaries just as George Bush did in the Persian Gulf. The goal of both of these wars is to further the United Nation's dream of a one-world government under its control. Therefore, I cannot support any president who abuses his power and does not look at the best interests of the American people.

Tech ranks second in plate program

BY JONATHAN HARRIS
THE UNIVERSITY DAILY

There are more than 1,500 cars and trucks across Texas sporting customized red double T license plates.

According to the Texas Department of Highways and Public Transportation, Tech ranks second in registered plates among the 33 public and private universities in the state's collegiate license plate program.

Tech has sold 1,506 registered plates.

Texas A&M University ranks first in registered plates, with 5,556 license plates sold.

Steve Kauffman, assistant director of Tech News and Publications, said the collegiate license plates program was authorized in 1989 by the Texas Legislature.

The program provides collegiate license plates for a $30 fee, in addition to the annual motor vehicle registration charge.

Personalized collegiate license plates also are available for $40.

"The license plate program has raised more than $100,000 in scholarships since the program began," he said.

"From each purchase or renewal of the plates, Tech gets $25 for the general scholarship fund, and the state gets the remaining $5."

Kauffman said statewide support of the Tech scholarship project has been extremely good.

The overwhelming response in sales and renewals has given Tech a strong showing, he said.

"Our current registrations have overwhelmed universities with a much larger alumni and student base," he said.

Kauffman said purchase of registered license plates is not limited to Tech alumni or students currently enrolled.

"Any registered motor vehicle owner in Texas with an interest in Tech can buy the plates and identify themselves as a supporter and a scholarship donor," he said.

Department of Public Safety statistics state Tech is followed by the University of Texas with 1,503 license plates sold.

The University of Houston has sold 729 license plates and Baylor University has sold 353 plates.

Rice University, the University of North Texas and Southern Methodist University also participate in the license plate scholarship program.

A Tech license plate may be purchased by filling out an application form and mailing it along with a $30 fee to the DPS office in Austin.

Union to address farm issues

AUSTIN (AP) — Rebecca Flores Harrington, a newly selected board member of the United Farm Workers of America, Monday said the union will intensify efforts to organize agricultural laborers in Texas.

"There are some serious problems going on in agriculture in Texas," said Flores Harrington, who has been Texas' UFW director for nearly 20 years.

She said many farm workers are battling poor working conditions, low wages and fewer job opportunities.

"We're going to organize and we're going to organize and we're going to organize, not only the workers but the community," she said.

The renewed Texas effort is part of a move by the UFW to try and rebound from last year's the death of Cesar Chavez, who led the union for its first 30 years, and the loss of numerous union contracts in recent years.

"Once you have a leader who has died, then things have to change. We don't have the driving force (Chavez) of the union any longer, so we have to drive it a different way," Harrington said.

In Texas, she said the union would concentrate on trying to improve living conditions for farm workers. The goal is to improve conditions, specifically those harvesting chilies in West Texas and South Texas.

She also said the organization will respond to the flight of farm jobs to Mexico.

She said was prompted in part by the free trade agreement between Mexico and the United States.

Opponent accuses Mauro of mishandling state funds

BY LINDA CARRIGER
THE UNIVERSITY DAILY

Democratic Texas General Land Office Commissioner Garry Mauro is mishandling state funds, his Republican opponent Marta Greytok said at a press conference Monday.

Greytok cited an article in Saturday's edition of The Dallas Morning News, stating Mauro paid a $25,000 personal loan with taxpayer's money.

"This continues a long-standing series of misdeeds on the part of the commissioner of the General Land Office," Greytok said. "He is unable to keep his personal affairs separate from his office."

The loan was designed to start a public-private pistachio farm cooperative in West Texas, the article stated.

Mauro said he took out the loan and gave the money to a private group designated to handle funds to begin the farm. Mauro said he had the understanding that the group would reimburse the loan with investments from the private sector.

"Gary Mauro invested personally in a project that he spent over $100,000 of taxpayer money starting up," Greytok said. "When the project failed, he used his campaign donations to make payments on his debt."

The land office paid $112,717.60 to an Israeli-owned firm to assess if West Texas lands could benefit from a drip irrigation system, GLO reports state.

The other $47,500 to start the project, GLO reports state, was paid by Texas Tech's International Center for Arid and Semiarid Land Studies and the University of Texas-Austin.

Greytok said Mauro's use of campaign funds to pay off the loan is a violation of the Texas Election Code.

"It's not just a matter of ethical behavior, it's a matter of law," Greytok said.

The election code states that a candidate for public office "may not convert the contributions to personal use."

Mauro said part of the loan was paid with campaign funds, because the loan was taken out to support a project associated with the GLO.

"I was perfectly legal in the way I handled that debt," Mauro said.

John Steiner, executive director of the Texas Ethics Commission, stated in the Dallas Morning News article that Mauro did nothing wrong, said Andrew Martin, general counsel for the Texas Commission.

"I understand that John Steiner is quoted as saying there isn't any violation," Martin said. "His quote stands."

Greytok said Mauro's use of campaign funds was "appalling and blatant."

"Oh well — anyone that has a debt, then, can run for office and collect campaign contributions (to pay off the debt)," she said.

Greytok said if she is elected to the commissioner's position, she will only serve eight years in office.

Bush

Candidate addresses 'junk' lawsuits

responsive to citizens.

"The job (of governor) is to put people on the boards and commissions of Texas who are user-friendly to Texas industries," Bush said. "Every regulator in Texas better be asking this question: 'How can I help you?'"

Bush also announced he will fight the plaintiff attorneys who contribute to frivolous lawsuits.

"I'm going to take on the plaintiff attorneys of Texas," Bush said. "The frivolous and junk lawsuits clog our courts and threaten all kinds of producers and consumers in the state of Texas, including our farmers and ranchers."

Bush said he and Perry will work to ensure that Texas manufactures home-grown products.

"That's how you add value. That's how you create wealth," Bush said. "And that's how you make sure there are jobs available for any Texan that wants to work," Bush said.

"The way I envision it, the governor of Texas will help attract capital into the state of Texas and use whatever capital the state has available in the form of bonds and credit to encourage value-added processing to take place within our state," he said.

Consultant reviewing bike routes

Bicyclists can attend two public meetings this week to discuss their views on the possibility of a future bicycle transportation routes in Lubbock.

The Metropolitan Planning Organization wants to assess the need for bike routes in the city.

They are seeking public input on potential bicycle routes at a 5 p.m. meeting tonight in Room 169 of the human sciences building. They also are meeting at 7 p.m. Wednesday at the Godeke Branch Library.

"Is there enough ridership to warrant routes or bicycle lanes?" transportation planner Marsha Allen said. "We don't really know."

The city of Lubbock and the MPO are paying Andy Clarke, a consultant with the Bicycle Federation of America, $50,000 to determine the feasibility of routes.

"We want to know what encourages or discourages people from bicycling in Lubbock today," Clarke said.

"We want to hear what vision people have of their community 20 years from now."

Director

Hrachovy says changes in store for Student Health Services

handling of the patient load, Hrachovy said.

"We do not have as many doctors," he said. "We have physician extenders, such as nurse practitioners, who will take their place."

He said the change will not be reflected in accessibility of health care personnel or availability of appointments.

"The number of personnel has remained the same," he said.

Hrachovy was appointed interim director July 1 after former director Cheryl Tyler moved to St. Mary Health Care Center.

"I had an opportunity to pursue a different kind of practice," Tyler said.

Tyler became a staff physician at Student Health in October 1989. She was appointed director of Student Health in September 1990, filling that position for almost four years until her departure in July.

"While I was at Student Health, we were able to expand our services with great support from our students," she said.

Tyler said she considers her years at Student Health to be well spent.

"It was a wonderful time to be at Student Health," she said.

Campus Briefs

• Two Southeast Missouri State University Kappa Alpha Psi fraternity members pleaded guilty to involuntary manslaughter and hazing in the death of a fraternity pledge.

The two men were among 16 members charged in the hazing of five Kappa Alpha Psi pledges last February that ended in the death of one pledge.

They were sentenced to five years of probation and 500 hours of community service.

The two members agreed to testify in other cases involving the February hazing, where they say pledges were repeatedly slapped and punched by fraternity members.

• A state audit of Texas Southern University revealed alterations in student transcripts, apparently to make them eligible to particirate in athletic events. Of the 250 athlete transcripts reviewed, the report stated five contained improper alterations.

The audit said the university had no plan to control the hundreds of thousands of dollars in athletic operating losses. The report also said the officials did not follow all recommendations from an earlier state investigation into a university band.

The university responded by saying the Board of Regents has worked hard in recent years "to effect necessary changes in operations while maintaining a stable learning environment."

• A University of Texas student was stabbed at a Delta Kappa Epsilon fraternity party when he tried to quiet a disturbance.

The victim was stabbed in the chest under the left arm after he asked the suspect in the incident to leave the party.

Police arrested the suspect, but it remained unclear if he was a UT student.

The victim was taken to the hospital and is listed in good condition.

• A University of New Mexico student was raped at knife point after being abducted by two men in a van.

The student said she was grabbed by the men, pulled into the van, and tied up with duck tape.

She said the men wrapped tape around her mouth and covered her eyes with a sock.

The victim said she was taken to an alley and raped.

Judge agrees to reconsider King ruling

LOS ANGELES (AP) — A federal judge agreed Monday to reconsider his order that Rodney King pay $237,958 in legal fees to the Los Angeles Unified School District.

Judge John Davies ordered King to pay the district for "frivolously" naming it in a lawsuit seeking damages for his March 3, 1991, videotaped beating by police.

Davies agreed to reconsider after King's lawyer, Steve Lerman, said he did not attend the Aug. 11 hearing at which Davies issued the order because he had just been rehired by King and didn't know it was scheduled.

In April, a jury awarded King $3.8 million from the city but decided none of the district police officers named in his lawsuit were liable for punitive damages. Two district police officers had taken part in the pursuit of King's speeding car but not in the beating. The cash-strapped school district filed a motion earlier this year to recover legal costs, arguing the lawsuit lacked merit.

The 1992 acquittal of four Los Angeles Police Department officers on state charges of assault touched off the Los Angeles riots. Sgt. Stacey Koon and Officer Laurence Powell were later convicted in federal court of violating King's civil rights and sentenced to 30 months in prison.

Bullock recovers from operation

AUSTIN (AP) — Lt. Gov. Bob Bullock was in stable condition from heart bypass surgery and has been moved from the intensive care unit into a private room, his spokesman said.

"They have him doing a little light rehabilitative work," Jim Warren said Monday.

"He's doing as good as could be expected, even better."

Bullock, 65, is in Seton Medical Center after undergoing a nearly three-hour operation Friday.

Dr. Kent Beasley said Bullock is expected to recover fully.

He said Bullock will be hospitalized from five days to 10 days after the operation.

In his first term as lieutenant governor, Bullock is the state's No. 2 elected official.

He faces Dallas lawyer Tex Lezar, a Republican, in the Nov. 8 election.

Authorities seek victims of sex offender

HOUSTON (AP) — Authorities are seeking more victims of a man who posed as a sports therapist in an attempt to befriend young boys who were later sexually abused.

Michael Joseph Siemer, 26, has been charged with four counts of sexual assault in connection with the alleged sexual assault of two teenagers.

Community service

Fair offers volunteer opportunities

BY TARA MCQUEEN
THE UNIVERSITY DAILY

Students have an opportunity to take a year off from the college grind and get paid for their efforts.

AmeriCorps is offering students the opportunity to start a volunteer program and earn money for college. It is just one of the 65 volunteer organizations that will be a part of the Community Service Fair on Wednesday.

Texas Tech's Community Action Network and the Volunteer Center of Lubbock will host the fourth annual event in the University Center courtyard from 9 a.m. to 2 p.m.

Kim Morris, a senior political science major from Sherman, is the student coordinator for volunteers.

Morris said she has a personal interest in the AmeriCorps program because she is considering applying.

"If you are a full-time volunteer for one year, you will receive a living allowance determined by the cost of living in that city, health insurance, and $4,725 toward your education at the end of your volunteer term," Morris said. "As a part-time volunteer, you receive $2,363 for 900 hours of work over a period of two to three years."

Other organizations that will be at the fair include the South Plains Food Bank, the attorney general's office, Habitat for Humanity, Parkway and Guadalupe Neighborhood Centers, the Girl Scouts, the Boy Scouts and Camp Fire.

"Camp Fire has a six-week Friday afternoon program at Bean Elementary," Morris said. "They need volunteers to teach golf, cheerleading, drill team, outdoor cooking and camping."

Rhonda Jones, office manager of Student Activities, assists in the coordination of the fair.

"This is a really good opportunity for students to get experience in their field of study, to find out if it suits them," she said. "It is a good reference on their resume, and it could also lead to a position after they graduate."

At the entrance to the fair, there will be a list of students can pick up containing information about all the organizations there, she said.

"The Museum of Texas Tech University and the Women's Protective Services will be on hand," Jones said. "The Make-A-Wish Foundation will also be accepting money from Lubbock residents to grant a wish to terminally ill children."

The Lubbock State School also will have a booth, Jones said.

"Handicapped children that live at the school need student volunteers to spend time with them — perhaps just a picnic or someone to help them train for the Special Olympics," Jones said.

Horse products popular

CHARLESTON, W.Va. (AP) — Priscilla Casteel knows good horseflesh, and when she noticed horse shampoos and conditioners made their coats shimmer, it started her mind racing.

"It made the horses' hair look so good I decided to try it," she says.

Casteel, a horse trainer in Bluefield, Va., has been using horse shampoos on herself for three years.

She's not alone. Thousands are browsing tack shops and feed stores for items earmarked for horses, but which apparently work nicely on humans as well.

At the Saddle Shop in Charleston, 90 percent of the customers looking for horse shampoos, mane conditioners and hoof strengtheners are buying for themselves.

"We've had to restock our shelves every two weeks," says Karen Shelv, an employee at the Saddle Shop.

"Customers tell me the shampoo makes their hair grow faster."

Horse products have been used by people for years. It's just now coming out of the barn.

A hoof strengthener manufactured by Barielle's of Great Neck, N.Y., costs at least $14 an ounce at upscale retailers like Neiman Marcus and Saks Fifth Avenue, notwithstanding the horse head on the label.

But not all the products have thoroughbred costs.

Rebecca Bouldin, who owns a horse farm near Peterstown, says she and her daughter use a comparable product, Mane 'n Tail's Hoofmaker, which costs about 30 cents an ounce.

"My daughter used it because her fingernails wouldn't grow," Bouldin said.

"Now she's got fingernails like claws."

Jeanne Lake, a Charles Town beautician, says she used the same hoof strengthener on her nails for six weeks. "That stuff positively works," she said.

"My nails became stronger and grew faster."

Two of Lake's clients have been using the horse conditioner and at least one believes her hair has thickened.

Until recently, Mane 'n Tail and Body Shampoo, Mane 'n Tail Conditioner and The Hoofmaker, made by Straight Arrow Inc. of Bethlehem, Pa., were the primary brands for both horses and humans.

But earlier this year, Jeri Redding, the hairstylist behind such human brands as Nexxus, Redken and Jhirmack, unveiled several products for horses, including shampoo, conditioner, hoof cream and insect repellent.

Jackson holds benefit for hometown

NEWMAN, Ga. (AP) — Alan Jackson is looking out for the folks back home.

Jackson now lives in Nashville, Tenn., but hails from Newman, a small town about 35 miles southwest of Atlanta, and on Tuesday the country music star will be the headliner at a benefit concert in Atlanta for Georgia's flood victims.

Also on the bill: Faith Hill, Doug Stone and John Berry.

"I wanted to help," Jackson said. "I still call Georgia home. I've got family and friends down there."

Dykes names Lethridge starting quarterback for SMU game

BY BRYAN ADAMS
THE UNIVERSITY DAILY

Saturday the Texas Tech football team will take on its first Southwest Conference foe, Southern Methodist, behind a new starting quarterback, Lubbock Estacado product Zebbie Lethridge.

Head coach Spike Dykes announced Monday at his weekly press conference that after three games, Tony Darden, who started the first three games, will be replaced by Lethridge.

"We'll probably start Zebbie this week," Dykes said. "He graded out a little higher than Tony this week."

Darden, a product of San Antonio Holmes High, played a majority of the first half against Oklahoma Saturday.

Against Oklahoma, Lethridge rushed for 31 yards on eight carries and threw for a two-point conversion in the third quarter. Lethridge was five of 17 with one interception for 85 yards. He was sacked twice.

In contrast, Darden rushed for 23 yards on seven carries and threw five of 10 pass attempts for completions with one interception for 87 yards. He was sacked five times.

Lethridge against Nebraska was 5-14-1 for 46 yards and one touchdown and was sacked once.

On six attempts Lethridge rushed for 62 yards.

Darden's effort against Nebraska included 3-10-0 for 64 yards and was sacked twice. Darden's rushing game included a total of four net yards on seven carries.

In the most productive game of the season for the Red Raiders, the season opening win against New Mexico, Lethridge passed for 190 yards and completed 72.7 percent of his passes. Darden's passing numbers against New Mexico were 7-13-0 for 92 yards. He was sacked once.

Rushing yards for both quarterbacks combined was zero yards on 11 carries.

Dykes said Darden would see action against the Mustangs on Saturday.

Dickey completes basketball schedule

BY JESSE MALDONADO
THE UNIVERSITY DAILY

Texas Tech men's basketball coach James Dickey finalized his team's 1994-1995 schedule last week.

The Red Raiders, who return all five starters and eight lettermen from the 17-11 team that finished third in the Southwest Conference, are scheduled to play 13 home games at the Lubbock Municipal Coliseum.

The Raiders also will venture out on the road for 13 games.

Fans will get an early look at the men's basketball team as the Raiders play a pair of exhibition games against Fort Sill and the Brazilian National team before they open the season.

The Raiders' season opener is against Houston Baptist Nov. 29 at the coliseum.

"The thing I was impressed with about this basketball team — I feel like every individual improved, and we improved as a team," Dickey said.

The non-conference road schedule for the Raiders includes games against four teams which are preseason choices in top 25 polls.

The Raiders' first road game takes them to Madison, Wis., where they will face the Wisconsin Badgers in a Dec. 3 match-up.

After that trip, Tech will face back-to-back road battles against Kentucky, Dec. 17 in Cincinnati, and at Temple in Philadelphia Dec. 20.

That game will be televised by ESPN.

"It's a very tough schedule, non-conference wise, in my opinion," Dickey said. "Plus, we have three difficult road games Wisconsin, Temple and Kentucky. But we are looking forward to the challenge and the opportunity for television exposure. It is difficult, but we want to elevate the level of our program."

Tech also plays in the Bank One

Fiesta Bowl Classic in Tucson, Ariz. The Raiders will face Penn State, and either host Arizona or Richmond in the second game.

"Certainly we have an advantage having everyone coming back, and we also have added three new players to go with our team," Dickey said. "I'm excited about this team, and I expect it to be the best basketball team since I've been here."

Southwest Conference play for Tech begins Jan. 11 when the Raiders travel to College Station to play Texas A&M. The first conference home game is Jan. 14 when the Raiders host Baylor.

A marquee home contest for the Raiders will be the Feb. 23 match-up against the defending SWC champions Texas.

That game also will be featured on ESPN.

"I see us being one of the favorites in the SWC, but you have to win it on the court," Dickey said. "Certainly, we'll be picked probably (No. 1 or 2 by most people.)"

Walk-on's goal to improve aids Tech runners

BY JARED PARCELL
THE UNIVERSITY DAILY

Four years ago, Joe Perez, a senior English major from Meadow, decided to continue his high school running career in cross country.

"This is something I've always wanted to do. I thought it was going to be over after high school," Perez said.

His moment of truth came waiting in a line at Texas Tech when he was reading the school newspaper.

"An article in The UD four years ago encouraged me (to run)," Perez said. "I was standing in line at the Financial Aid Office."

Perez, a former district and regional meet winner, tried out.

He was able to walk on to the cross country team.

Pressure is not a word in Perez's vocabulary, he said.

"I feel it is easier coming in as a walk-on because there is less pressure," Perez said. "People are not expecting much out of you until you prove yourself."

He said the best memories he has made during his Raider career have come on road trips.

"Traveling with the team and meeting people throughout the (Southwest) conference is fun," Perez said. "I've made some good, long-lasting friendships that way."

He said his best running time in 5 kilometers was around 26 minutes 30 seconds.

"It varies because not all courses are the same," Perez said.

He said his long-range goal is to go to Tech's School of Law, but he said he will not forget the team.

"I want to try to go to law school and try to get accepted here," Perez said. "I want to continue running and see where it goes from there. I want to try to work with the team if I get accepted here."

He said when he reflected on his four years, he thought of his performance last year.

"It would have to be the outdoor conference steeplechase. I was coming in as a nobody. It made me feel like I had established myself," Perez said.

He did not win the race, but he finished fourth.

"Nobody expected that high a finish, being a walk-on," he said.

Perez said his goal is to continue his improvement from last season.
