Delegates support one-year military rule

LAGOS, Nigeria (AP) — A panel charged with writing a new constitution voted Tuesday for another year of military rule, strengthening claims it was set up to legitimize the dictatorship of Gen. Sani Abacha.

Delegates at the Constitutional Conference organized by the military slapped each other on the back and congratulated themselves after passing a recommendation "that military rule terminates in Nigeria on Jan. 1, 1996."

On Monday, a conference committee recommended a two-year extension of military rule. The full conference's approval of a shorter extension appeared intended to deflect allegations that it is an arm of Abacha's government.

Abacha's ruling military council must approve all resolutions of the conference, which has been meeting for months.

Quayle says illness won't affect decision

INDIANAPOLIS (AP) — Dan Quayle left a hospital Tuesday and said blood clots in his lungs won't affect his decision on whether to run for president in 1996.

"To the public I would say I'm on the mend ... after four weeks I'll be back," the former vice president said after eight days in Indiana University Medical Center.

The 47-year-old Quayle is taking blood thinners to prevent new clots while his body's natural enzymes break down those in his lungs. His doctors advised him to eat fewer green vegetables because they can contribute to clots.

Such clots, called pulmonary embolisms, often strike people who are sedentary for long periods. Doctors believe plane rides probably contributed to Quayle's.

Quayle was told by his doctors to avoid strenuous activity for four weeks. He can resume a full schedule after that.

As he has for several months, Quayle said he will decide sometime after Jan. 1 whether to run for the GOP nomination for president.

TSU reported to have most violent crimes

HOUSTON (AP) — Texas Southern University had the highest number of violent crimes among Texas colleges last year, while the University of Texas at Austin and Texas A&M had the most property crimes, an FBI survey shows.

Texas Southern's campus police received 36 complaints of violent incidents in 1993, down from its state-leading total of 39 in 1992 but still above its previous two-year average of 20.

Texas campuses averaged four reported violent crimes last year, according to the survey in the FBI's Crime in the U.S. Yearbook, which is published each fall. The figures from 64 colleges and universities in Texas were voluntarily submitted to the FBI.

Violent crime includes aggravated assault, armed robbery, rape and murder. However, no murders were reported on the surveyed campus.

Cotton Bowl ticket sales on hold

BY JONATHAN HARRIS
THE UNIVERSITY DAILY

The Cotton Bowl Association suspended sales Monday for the Jan. 2 game between Tech and the University of Southern California to evaluate how many tickets are still available.

Diana Riffle, Cotton Bowl ticket manager, said the only tickets left are single-seat tickets and seats with an obstructed view.

Riffle said she believes there are about 250 single-seat tickets left for the game.

"The funny thing about that is people are still buying the tickets," she said. "They are buying the tickets just so they can get into the game."

The obstructed-view seats are behind a concrete pillar, and it will be very hard to see the game, she said.

The Cotton Bowl Association set a single-day sales record of 2,244 tickets sold Nov. 25.

Riffle said the new record is about 1,200 tickets more than the previous record. Another record was broken Nov. 28 with 1,600 tickets sold.

"We are going to have a sellout for this game," Riffle said. "Tech fans are extremely excited about this game."

The last Cotton Bowl sellout occurred in 1993 for the Texas A&M University and University of Notre Dame game.

The Tech Athletic Ticket Office suspended ticket sales Tuesday. Lena Smith, Tech ticket saleswoman, said sales were suspended because there are more applications for tickets than there are tickets.

"We have looked at other possibilities for getting tickets," Smith said. "We have contacted USC and the Cotton Bowl to see if they have extra tickets."

Riffle said USC was allotted 7,000 tickets for the game, but she said she does not believe they will sell all of their tickets. Tech should get a response from USC and the Cotton Bowl officials by Wednesday, she said.

USC officials were not able to comment about ticket sales Tuesday.

Christopher cautions Arafat

JERUSALEM (AP) — Secretary of State Warren Christopher served notice on PLO Chairman Yasser Arafat Tuesday that he must put a stop to Islamic militants' attacks on Israelis if he expects to spread Palestinian self-rule across the West Bank.

Christopher also reassured Israel's hard-pressed government that the Clinton administration considers Arafat's security pledges "absolutely fundamental" to peacemaking.

The government is in the throes of deciding whether to pull Israel's army out of Arab towns on the West Bank in the midst of a long siege of attacks on Israel soldiers and civilians.

In the same vein, Christopher urged Syrian President Hafez Assad in a 4 1/2-hour meeting in Damascus to make a public declaration denouncing murder of innocent civilians, a senior U.S. official said.

Assad said he would consider it, the official told reporters as Christopher took his latest Mideast shuttle to Israel from Syria.

Assad is believed to have told President Clinton when they met in October that he deplors terrorism, but the Syrian leader did not make such a declaration at their joint news conference in Damascus afterward.

Syria allows a number of terrorist groups in its territory and permits them to operate from bases in Syrian-controlled areas of Lebanon, said the senior official, who briefed reporters on condition of anonymity.

The American emphasis on a need for security is intended to encourage Israeli Prime Minister Yitzhak Rabin to continue to relinquish territory to former Arab foes.

Woolverton case begins

BY LINDA CARRIGER
THE UNIVERSITY DAILY

The defense will present its case in the Lawrence Dean Woolverton trial today in Judge J. Blair Cherry's district courtroom.

Woolverton has been charged with the alleged aggravated kidnapping of a female Texas Tech student.

Lubbock District Attorney Travis Ware rested the plaintiff's case at 3:48 p.m. Tuesday after hearing testimony from the victim, her roommate, a rape crisis volunteer and police officers.

The victim said that, while sitting in her Jeep, she and her roommate had briefly talked to Woolverton at a local dance club Sept. 9. The victim said she had two drinks at the club.

Woolverton followed the women to Knapp Hall, where he falsely identified himself as an undercover police officer, she said.

Her roommate testified that she went into the residence hall, and when she returned, the victim and the defendant had left in Woolverton's car.

The victim said Woolverton told her he was taking her to the police station. Instead, he took her to K.N. Klapp Park, where he allegedly took off her pants and underwear, and fondled her before he forced her to perform oral sex, she said.

Woolverton dropped her off in the Knapp Residence Hall parking lot after the alleged aggravated sexual abuse occurred, she said.

The victim went to her room and washed out her mouth, she said. Friends and family called the police.

Brenda Hutson, a volunteer for the rape crisis center, said it is a natural reaction for victims of rape to cleanse themselves after a rape.

"They should not go to the rest room, shower, brush their teeth or change clothes after it happens," she said. "They should leave everything as it is and call the police."

Walter Shields, a Lubbock Police Department identification detective, testified that he had matched a fingerprint on the inside door jamb of the victim's Jeep to the print of Woolverton's middle finger on his right hand.

University Police Department Sgt. Dennis Clements said Woolverton's blue Buick Oldsmobile matched the victim's description of the car she was allegedly assaulted in.

Search for new engineering dean ends

BY JONATHAN HARRIS
THE UNIVERSITY DAILY

The search for a new dean of Texas Tech's College of Engineering ended Monday with the announcement that Jorge Aunon will fill the vacated position.

Aunon is the interim dean of the College of Engineering at Colorado State University.

Aunon is replacing former College of Engineering Dean Mason Sommerville, who left Tech in May to teach at Northern Arizona University.

Margaret Lutherer, director of Tech News and Publications, said Aunon will begin his duties Feb. 1.

Vice Provost Donald Haragan said he was pleased to announce Aunon as the new dean.

"As a world-known biomedical engineer, he brings substantial expertise to Tech," Haragan said.

Aunon will bring a commitment to undergraduate education at Tech, he said.

"He will bring a commitment to teaching and advising that is keeping with our fine program in engineering at Tech," Haragan said.

Aunon received a bachelor's, master's and doctoral degree from George Washington University.

He was a professor of electrical engineering at Purdue University and a former chairman of the electrical engineering department at Colorado State. He also served as a visiting scientist at the National Institute of Pediatrics in Mexico City.

Aunon is founder and part owner in Vectronic Inc. Vectronic manufactures and produces the ECG analyzer for veterinarians. The program allows veterinarians to record, analyze and diagnose canine and feline electrocardiograms automatically.

Aunon was a Fulbright scholar in Barcelona, Spain and is among the Hispanic Americans Who's Who.

Aunon was born in Havana, Cuba in 1942. He is married and has four daughters.

Clinton selects millionaire to succeed Bentsen as Treasury secretary

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Clinton Tuesday selected Robert Rubin, who amassed a multimillion-dollar fortune on Wall Street before joining the administration, to succeed Lloyd Bentsen as Treasury secretary.

Bentsen's departure, announced Tuesday, will deprive the administration of the Cabinet officer with the most experience and respect on Capitol Hill just as Republicans are taking control of Congress for the first time in 40 years.

But the change is expected to have little impact on policy since both men are pro-business Democrats.

Bentsen said he would leave office Dec. 22.

Until Rubin is confirmed, Deputy Treasury Secretary Frank Newman will oversee day-to-day operations of the department.

Rubin, who took a $26 million pay cut to leave the investment banking firm of Goldman Sachs & Co. to join the administration, won widespread praise as a self-effacing coordinator who made sure a coherent economic strategy was developed for a president often criticized for an inability to reach timely decisions.

But it was unclear how smoothly Rubin would be able to make the transition from his behind-the-scenes role to chief economic policy spokesman for the administration, where he will have to serve as the point man in dealing with a Republican Congress intent on shrinking the size of government and cutting taxes.

Professors dedicate research to trouble-making fire ant

BY SANDY FULLER
THE UNIVERSITY DAILY

Texas Tech researchers are keeping a close eye on fire ants that have invaded most of Texas and the southern states and are slowly making their way into Arizona and California.

Tech researchers have been studying the biology and ecology of the fire ant for the past 20 years, said Harlan Thorvilson, associate professor in department of plant and soil science.

The fire ant is a medical, social and agricultural problem in Texas and across the South, he said.

"The reason to study them is that they cause quite an economic impact,"

Thorvilson said. "They sting people, livestock and wild animals."

Researchers have been focusing on several fire ant issues:

- documentation of the impact of the ant as it invades a new area and affects animals and plant life

- control measures, both chemical and biological
- the impact on wildlife such as dove, deer and quail

- the impact on electrical equipment

Tech, with Texas A&M University and the University of Texas-Austin, is the leading fire ant research center in Texas. Thorvilson said about half a million dollars a year is spent on fire ant research in Texas. Tech receives about $140,000 a year to conduct research.

Thorvilson said fire ant funding is a state line item, and the federal government frequently funds researchers to study the fire ant in its native country.

"The fire ant is a tropical ant, and they don't survive well in very cold weather," he said. "We think the fire ant came into this country by accident sometime before World War II. They originated in Brazil and Argentina and probably came in through a port in Mobile, Ala."

It is very difficult to curb the spread of fire ants, Thorvilson said.

"The fire ant is an invader," he said. "They are a perfectly adapted ant to invade a new area."

A mature colony can easily total 200,000 to 300,000 ants, he said.

The construction of their mounds causes damage to machinery.

"The mounds reach about 8-inches tall, and the bottom can extend down to many feet into the ground," he said. There are three or four species of native fire ants, but they have been in Texas for a long time, he said.

"These ants are not as serious, they make smaller mounds, and they're not as numerous," he said.

Most fire ants are found in the eastern two-thirds of Texas. In West Texas, Midland is especially infested with fire ants.

He said a few mounds survive poorly in Lubbock.

"There are even a few mounds on campus," he said. "But the landscape people keep their eye on them and use chemicals and baits to control them."

Fire ants look like regular ants, Thorvilson said.

"Fire ants are quite small," he said. "They're not big like the Harvester Ant."

The ant's uncomfortable sting is probably how it gets its name.

"The ant grabs onto the victim with its mandibles, and with its stingers on

Forget the meaning of life; where the hell is Calvin and Hobbes?

ERIC SANCHEZ

With this day being the last of the semester, graduating students might look back and ask themselves several important questions. These questions are often lofty, rhetorical, in-depth and very philosophical. They might address important, current issues of the day, social problems or economic situations. Other questions that graduating students might ask are quite simple: Will I find a job? Where am I going to work? How much money will I earn?

Even though I am not graduating anytime soon, I have one question I would like to ask. This question is so important to me that I wanted to write about it. It is more important than the Republican Party's "Contract With America," President Bill Clinton, welfare reform or the reduction of spending and cutting the deficit. This is my question:

"Where is Calvin and Hobbes? And why haven't they been in The University Daily?"

Forget term limits, line item veto and balanced budgets. This is a crisis. Republicans and Democrats on this campus are up in arms. Displaying a unique bipartisan coalition, they are united in their cause to find out where these two infamous characters are. After several hours of research, I have produced some theories on the whereabouts of Calvin and Hobbes:

Perhaps Calvin and Hobbes went to Washington, D.C., to welcome the newly elected members of the Republican Party and Speaker of the House Newt Gingrich. I suspect that even now Hobbes is feasting on the decaying carcass of the Democratic donkey. Calvin is probably starting a think tank to research the possibilities of allowing first graders the right to vote and eat dessert before dinner.

Perhaps tree-hugging, crystal-rubbing, chanting Mantras, holding hands and singing "Cum Ba Ya" liberals were responsible for this tragedy. But, later I found out that this was untrue. Even liberals enjoy and read Calvin and Hobbes.

Some people have suggested that the disappearance of Calvin and Hobbes is a conspiracy plot, hatched by communist sympathizers within The University Daily staff. Rumor has it that Kristie Davis and the rest of the UD editorial staff members are responsible.

I demanded that Kristie and her conspirators give me and other fans of Calvin and Hobbes an answer to this un-American, unholy, and downright awful occurrence. When I asked The UD editorial staff why Calvin and Hobbes hasn't been in the paper lately, they meekly replied, "We ran out of room."

Socialism is not four-letter word

To the editor:
We can all thank our representatives that they are not as narrow-minded nor lacking in foresight as Mr. Waller. GATT was passed as an initiative to open foreign markets to the sale of U.S. goods and services. If Waller had bothered to read the terms of the General Agreement on Tariffs and Trade he would have found that the U.S. gives up none of its sovereignty to any world-governing body. The U.S. signed the pact only after it was made clear that the elected representatives and people of the United States would have the final say in any trade policy concerning the United States. I am not deceiving you, GATT was not created to "bind the independent actions of nations" to a "new world economic order." I repeat, the people and leaders of the U.S. can at any time refuse to follow any of the dictums leveled by any world governing body. And, if necessary, I believe we have the power to resist any infringement upon our national sovereignty.

As to Waller's free market fantasy, it should be pointed out that the economy of the United States always has and still does contain many socialist elements. The care of the sick and elderly has always been a priority of the government. Currently, the government subsidizes agriculture (livestock, dairy, grains, fruits and vegetables) to the tune of billions of dollars, and a large percentage of our economy, in order to provide adequate incomes to farmers and ensure steady and reasonable prices for the American consumer. The government also rightly regulates against monopolies and abuses by big business.

Furthermore, the government requires drug and food companies to provide safe products and to be truthful in their advertising. This hardly sounds like "enslavement to government." Socialism is not "economic control of the people by the government." It is the people's control of economic elements through the government.

Finally, what are "fundamental property rights" and "God-given property rights?" If by "fundamental property rights" you mean that whoever has the power gets the property, then this is certainly our current system, just ask the Native Americans about "fundamental property rights." And I cannot find one single world religion whose god grants his/her worshipers any form of economic freedoms. Ever heard of usury?

Socialism will never enslave our great country like Communism did the Soviets or China, but Socialism can do things for us that free market Capitalism never will. Just ask the people of one of the most successful finance and banking centers in the world (Geneva, Switzerland) what they think about their socialist government. They would probably tell you that "socialism boiled down to its elements" means class equality, the elimination of poverty, universal health care and the freedom to pursue individual initiative for all people.

Tech fans should expect only the best

To the editor:

Too many people have been whining about the lack of support the Texas Tech football team has been getting for its trip to the Cotton Bowl. The fact is that the football team does have support. I haven't met a person yet who wouldn't like to see the Red Raiders win. The fans are simply disappointed in the way Tech got there. I'm not one to hide behind the truth so I must say that I'm certainly not impressed. I am surprised though. I never thought a team that lost five games in one year would go to any bowl, the Cotton Bowl especially. To know that the national championships were once decided in that stadium and to imagine that Tech will be representing the SWC after this typical Tech season is embarrassing.

I wonder how many people across the country will be tuning in to watch Texas Tech attempt to do their best or to watch USC smear Tech because the Aggies couldn't play. It's hard to say, but I will probably be doing both.

Now what about Kristie Davis. If there was anybody on this campus who has dished out their fair share of criticism it would be her. Telling us about the "mediocrity" of the football team and the SWC as a whole. On the 28th of November she had the gall to say, "Thank God the SWC is dissolving. Apparently, a conference made up of in-state schools has left us without a competitive spirit." To those who know what I'm talking about, let me tell you that Kristie is my kind of fan. Anybody with half a brain can tell she is a Tech fan through and through. She refuses to accept failure and expects nothing but the best. Maybe more people should be the same way. Maybe then our football team would play like they're capable of playing and earn the student body's support and not accept defeat. For failure breeds failure.

'Tis the season to accept homosexuality

To the editor:

The following letter contains references to individuals who take active roles in the homosexual "lifestyle." If this does not interest you, stop reading now!
The season of love and giving has arrived, and the students of Texas Tech will get to their homes to share some of the most memorable times of their lives. To add to the spirit of the season, the officers and members of the Gay, Lesbian, Bisexual Students would like to thank all of the students, faculty and community members who have supported the organization this fall. In a time of much trial and tribulation, it is often nice to know that someone is supporting your efforts. For this reason we say "THANK YOU!"

In a society that has gone so far in the past 20 years with gay and lesbian rights, we seldom have the time to reflect on the good things that have been accomplished. Obtaining the formal recognition of the organization, receiving funding for the organization and the uniting of an alliance with other organizations are just a few to mention. All of these steps have been forward. All of these events could not have happened without the support and dedication from people like you. You know who you are. You are the professors which teach us, the staff which run our offices and the leaders which run this city. Without the continuing support and dedication from you, this organization would have fallen under the pressure many years ago. In closing we would like to end with a message the organization has used for motivation during the rough times. "There will come a day when homosexuality is protected and affirmed throughout the United States. There will come a day when homosexuals will serve (openly) in the armed forces of the United States. There will come a day when the state enforces same-gender marriages. There will come a day when all negative stigma associated with homosexuality are abolished in American Society. And only when that day comes, will we truly have 'Liberty and Justice For All.'" We won't die secret deaths anymore. The world only spins forward. We will be citizens. "The time has come." You can feel it, in 100 little ways year after year. It is certain and inevitable that the next century will be a time in which it is not simply safe, but commonplace, to be openly gay.

National hotline available for runaways

BY GUY PRIEL
THE UNIVERSITY DAILY

The first nationwide runaway hotline, which was started by Gov. Dolph Biscoe 21 years ago, became the Texas Runaway Hotline in November.

"In Texas, more than 120,000 children run away each year," said Jay Smith, hotline director. "Most are not running to something, but rather, are running from overwhelming problems that often include physical and sexual abuse."

Alcohol and drug abuse are other factors involved when teen-agers run away from home, he said.

"As a statewide hotline, we will be able to focus all of our energy and resources toward Texas youth," he said.

The Texas Runaway Hotline is a 24-hour telephone service answered by more than 100 volunteers and staff members who offer crisis intervention and peer counseling, he said.

"Information and referrals are available to callers who are in need of shelter, counseling, medical and legal assistance," Smith said. "We will also provide services offering free transportation home."

Runaways contacting the hotline also will be provided with a message-relay service to contact their families, he said.

"We will spend the next few months promoting the transition from a national service to a statewide service," Smith said.

There are numerous reasons why youth run away from home, he said. The reasons include physical abuse, difficulties with parents, peer pressure, school, drugs, sexual abuse, alcoholism, divorce and getting thrown out.

"Every year 1.3 million children across the country run away from home," he said. "About 5,000 of these children die from assault, illness and suicide."

Every year in Texas more than 120,000 children ages 7 to 17 run away from home, Smith said.

In September of 1973, Biscoe initiated the first toll-free, nationwide runaway hotline.

The hotline was located in Houston and named Operation Peace of Mind.

It was operated by community volunteers and provided a message-relay service to runaways and their parents, Smith said.

In August of 1979, Operation Peace of Mind was renamed the Runaway Hotline and relocated to Austin in 1983.

The experienced volunteers who work the hotline provide a number of services over the new Texas Runaway Hotline.

"After assessing callers' problems, peer counselors help them consider options, explore facts and feelings and develop sensible plans of action," Smith said.

Students considering a career in human services are invited to contact the Hotline if they are interested in volunteering.

The hotline information line is 1-800-392-3352.

Ants

Bugs cause painful reaction in victims

The sting will cause a reddened area about the size of a nickel, and in the center, a raised pustule will appear, he said.

Thorvilson said probably hundreds of thousands of people are stung each year by fire ants. One or two people a year die from the stings because of allergic reactions, he said.

Fire ants also can cause short circuits by climbing on electrical equipment, he said.

"They electrocute themselves accidentally, and when they die, they send out a chemical that causes other ants to be attracted to the site," he said.

Those ants then get electrocuted, and it builds up until the equipment malfunctions.

"It affects air conditioner units, power transformers, traffic signals, railroad crossing signs and street lights," he said.

It can be a grave safety hazard, he said.

Graduate students are working on several fire ant research projects.

Camille Landry, an entomology graduate student, is studying the use of bacteria to fight off the ants.

"There's a bacteria discovered in the 1980s that is ice nucleating," she said.

That means the bacteria raises the temperature at which an object freezes.

Ants

Researchers have been focusing on several fire ant issues:

- documentation of the impact of the ant as it invades a new area and affects animals and plant life
- control measures, both chemical and biological
- the impact on wildlife such as dove, deer and quail

"For fire ants, this bacteria is harmful to them," Landry said. "One researcher discovered that the bacteria raises the freezing point of fire ants by 13 degrees."

Gene White, an entomology graduate student, said he is looking at fungal pathogens to combat fire ants.

"(The fungal pathogen) kills insects by producing spores after landing on the insects," he said.

The pathogen occurs naturally in the environment and is a form of biological control, he said.

Researchers are studying how to package the pathogen in a pellet so it can be more easily applied to fire ants, he said.

Thorvilson said he will be presenting Tech's recent findings at the national professional meeting of the Entomological Society of America in Dallas next week.

Projects due for conference

TERRI LOWRANCE
THE UNIVERSITY DAILY

Faculty, staff and students interested in participating in the 11th Annual All-University Conference of the Advancement of Women in Higher Education will have until Feb. 13 to complete their projects.

"Beyond Difference: Individuals Together" is the theme of this year's conference, committee members said.

The Conference Steering Committee has requested papers by or about women and original art by women for a poster session.

The poster-session format has been established to encourage professional and research networks.

This is an opportunity for members of the academic community to share research papers, original art and projects of works in progress, committee members said.

Fran Kennedy, co-chairwoman for the art committee, said the conference is being sponsored by the Council for Women's Studies.

The aim of the conference is to promote work done by women, Kennedy said.

Elizabeth Michael, co-chairwoman for papers, said abstracts no more than one page, single-spaced, should be sent to her by the February deadline.

Three copies of the abstract need to be sent, one with the author's name and the other two without the name, for a blind review.

After the poster abstracts have been reviewed, contributors will be notified by March 6.

Michael can be contacted at (806) 742-2033.

Kennedy said original art of all media also is being invited for the first time this year.

Artists entering the contest should send a photograph, eight inches by 10 inches or smaller, of the art piece to Kennedy by the February deadline.

Criminals arrested for 1986 FALN leader prison escape

CHICAGO (AP) — Two of the FBI's 10 most-wanted fugitives surrendered Tuesday after nine years on the run on charges they plotted a helicopter prison break for the reputed head of the Puerto Rican separatist group FALN.

Claude Daniel Marks and Donna Jean Willmott were indicted in 1986 on conspiracy charges in the failed plot to break FALN leader Oscar Lopez out of the maximum-security federal prison at Leavenworth, Kan.

They went underground in Los Angeles in 1985 and were put on the FBI's 10 Most Wanted list in 1987.

The two had begun negotiating a surrender with authorities last winter, U.S. Attorney James Burns said.

He said both were married and kept their families in hiding with them, but the prosecutor refused to give details.

The FALN, a Spanish acronym for Armed Forces of National Liberation, claimed responsibility for more than 150 bombings from 1975 to 1984 in its campaign to win independence for Puerto Rico, a U.S. commonwealth.

Six people have been killed and more than 100 injured in FALN violence in the United States, prosecutors said.

Marks and Willmott were not members of the FALN and were never charged with its activities.

Prosecutors said four FALN members planned to use rockets, hand grenades and a helicopter in 1986 to free Lopez, who was serving a 55-year sentence for a 1981 conviction on seditious conspiracy charges.

The purported plot was foiled after it was infiltrated by the FBI.

Lopez and two others later were convicted of charges stemming from the escape attempt.

He was sentenced to an additional 15 years for masterminding the plot; his co-defendants received lesser terms.

Drugs found in dog

NEW YORK (AP) — Customs agents have found drugs in bras and boa constrictors. They've seen them laminated into surfboards and plastic clocks. They've even pulled them out of human stomachs. They were taken aback by their latest find, 5 pounds of cocaine surgically implanted in the belly of an Old English sheepdog.

The Christmas Season approaches: bells are ringing, lights are sparkling, traditional music is playing, and the world is reminded of the birth of Jesus Christ nearly 2,000 years ago. While we recognize that not everyone embraces His claims, we happily acknowledge our faith and the change He has made in our lives. We wish for you not only the joy of the season but also an opportunity of knowing the One whose birth we celebrate.

Seven Tech ROTC cadets employed

BY AMY OSMULSKI
THE UNIVERSITY DAILY

Seven Texas Tech Army ROTC cadets were accessed by the federal government and secured full-time employment six months before their graduation.

Tech Army ROTC members, including Brett Bassinger, Teresa Parrack, Michael Glode, Fred Huh, Wade Faulkner, Aaron Whitley and Gary Forde were among more than 4,500 cadets from around the nation who were considered for employment, said Will Shiffer, professor of military science.

Each cadet hired sent in a packet of information, including transcripts, extracurricular activities and ROTC activities, to the accession board in August, Shiffer said.

The board reviewed each packet and tried to place cadets where the Army needed them and where they wanted to go, he said.

The board mainly reviewed activities and accomplishments of the cadets while they attended Tech, Shiffer said.

"The board first places the cadets to meet the needs of the Army, and there is no guarantee a cadet will get placed where they want to," he said. "All seven of our cadets received one of their top three choices for military duty and branch."

Several of the cadets will begin drawing full pay and benefits the day after their graduation and start working with a $27,000-a-year salary, he said.

Cadets will attend an officer-basic-training course after graduation and then move on to their first permanent duty station, Shiffer said.

Whitley, a Tech Army ROTC senior cadet major, said he received his choice of active duty and, after the officer-training course, would like to go to airborne school and ranger school.

Whitley said he hopes to end up at Fort Hood.

"It has been really tough the past couple of years, but I think we are all really excited to finally get out and do what we want," Whitley said.

Forde, a Tech Army ROTC senior cadet lieutenant, said he received his choice of reserve duty with the Military Police. He will go on active duty and attend an officer-basic-training course after graduation, he said.

After active duty, he said he will contribute every weekend and two weeks a year to the Army. During the week, he will have a civilian job, he said.

Dave Egbert, assistant professor of military science, said three of the graduating cadets are Army ROTC scholarship recipients.

"About 25 percent of the students enrolled in our ROTC program are Army ROTC scholarship recipients," Egbert said. "The best thing about the scholarships is that they guarantee employment for qualified students upon graduation."

Texas Ag department suffers office closings

DALLAS (AP) — Texas will shutter almost 100 offices, taking one of the biggest hits in the Agriculture Department's announcement Tuesday that it is closing 1,070 field offices nationwide.

But it will keep 219 offices — far more than any other state.

The news received a mixed reaction in the Lone Star State, which will drop from 317 offices, a loss of 98.

Other states losing a proportionally larger number of offices are Tennessee, Virginia and Georgia, which will be hit the hardest, losing 101 of 193 offices.

The plan tendered by Agriculture Secretary Mike Espy is part of a larger streamlining effort that could cut the agency's payroll by 11,000 people and save $3.6 billion over five years.

The department says farmers will be better served by fewer locations, because service centers for commodity programs, crop insurance, loans and some conservation programs will be put under one roof. A new Consolidated Farm Service Agency will do most of the work of four.

Harold Bob Bennett, executive director of the Farm Service Agency in Texas, said the key is to focus the number of service centers that will be open.

Student Association plans pre-game party

The Tech Student Association will sponsor a pre-game party at the Depot Warehouse today prior to the Tech and East Tennessee State men's basketball game.

Free food will be available, and students will have a chance to win a trip to Las Vegas. The trip will be given away at halftime at the Red Raiders game.

The party is open to all Tech students and fans.

The party is sponsored by the SA in conjunction with the Depot Warehouse, the Red Raider Club, Sharon's Travel Shoppe and the MULTI-Pac.

Hill sentenced in abortion doctor slaying

PENSACOLA, Fla. (AP) — His usual beamed smile wiped off his face, Paul Hill listened with a bored look Tuesday as a judge sentenced him to the electric chair for blowing out the brains of an abortion doctor and his bodyguard.

"May God have mercy on your soul," Circuit Judge Frank Bell intoned.

Moments later, an abortion foe shouted that Hill's blood would be on the hands of the judge, the jury and the people of Florida.

Shackled at his feet, the 40-year-old Hill stood impassively in his drab green jail jumpsuit as Bell explained to the former minister why he had rejected the only other sentencing option, life in prison without parole. Last month a jury unanimously recommended that Hill be executed.

Bell recounted the July 29 ambush outside Pensacola abortion clinic, the second anti-abortion slaying in the Florida Panhandle city.

He said Hill paused briefly in the parking lot of the Ladies Center to contemplate the carnage before throwing down his shotgun and calmly walking off from the scene of the crime.

"The defendant was looking at what he had accomplished with pride and satisfaction," the judge said.

Mexican proposals made to clean up corruption

MEXICO CITY (AP) — President Ernesto Zedillo sent Congress a set of sweeping proposals Tuesday to clean up a corrupt judiciary, boldly moving to calm a nation rattled by assassinations, drug wars and armed rebellion.

"We Mexicans need, want, demand and merit an efficient system of justice," Zedillo announced Monday. "One of the greatest demands ... is the need for greater public security and protection of the citizenry."

The reforms, announced five days after Zedillo became president, represent a daunting challenge matched only in scope by the free-market reforms of Zedillo's predecessor,

Hill, who represented himself with a smile in the state case and a related federal trial but offered no evidence and cross-examined no witnesses, declined to speak at his sentencing.

Hill, a former minister in the Presbyterian Church in America and Orthodox Presbyterian Church, has contended he was justified in killing Dr. John Bayard Britton, 69, and retired Air Force Lt. Col. James Barrett, 74, to prevent abortions.

He wasn't allowed to make that argument to jurors in the trial, however, because abortion is legal.

Last Friday, Hill was sentenced to life in prison without parole for violating the new federal clinic-protection law in the shootings. He was the first person convicted under the law enacted earlier this year.

A federal prosecutor said the death penalty would take precedence.

Bell also sentenced Hill to 13 years and four months in prison for attempting to murder Barrett's 69-year-old wife, June, and for shooting into an occupied vehicle.

The unarmed victims were shot as they arrived at the clinic in the Barretts' pickup.

Barrett, who is also a clinic escort, was wounded and testified at Hill's trial but wasn't at the sentencing.

Austin voters approve limits for Barton Springs watershed

AUSTIN (AP) — After a court tossed out Austin's voter-passed law to protect the environmentally sensitive Barton Springs watershed, the City Council has adopted a new law designed to impose some limits.

The ordinance was approved in a 5-1 vote on Monday. Backers said it will limit development more than the original 1991 city law, which developers had touted, but less than the Save Our Springs initiative that had won 2-to-1 voter approval.

"We are doing the most responsible thing we can do under the circumstances, which is plugging the loopholes in the (old) ordinance and trying to make it effective immediately," said Council Member Brigid Shea.

"We are supporting these stopgap measures because the alternative is having no protection for our creeks, water supply and Barton Springs," she said.

The Save Our Springs ordinance — regulating development and storm-water runoff in the watershed which feeds Austin's popular swimming hole, Barton Springs — was placed on the ballot by citizen initiative and approved in August 1992.

Some Hays County landowners and the Circle C Land Corp., a developer, filed suit against the city, arguing that the SOS law was too strict.

On Friday, a Hays County judge agreed with what the jury in that lawsuit already decided: the law was invalid.

The city's legal position is that the SOS law remains in place while the court ruling is appealed.

But as a matter of policy until the future of SOS is clarified, Austin will regulate new development proposals under the stopgap ordinance, officials said.

For the most part, the new law is weaker than the SOS.

It restricts transfer of development rights from other areas into the Barton Springs watershed, requires that the first quarter-inch of storm-water runoff be captured by retention ponds throughout the watershed, requires developers to adopt plans promoting use of drought-tolerant landscaping and require service stations and other sites selling or storing hydrocarbons to prepare spill-control plans.

"I believe the composite (law) represents the best effort we can make and still have some certainty of its legal defense," said Mayor Bruce Todd.

Study explores binge drinking

CHICAGO (AP) — Nearly half of U.S. college students are binge drinkers who make life miserable for much of the other half, according to a survey.

"Students on campuses where there's a lot of binge drinking are affected in a number of ways — including physical assault, sexual harassment, property damage and interrupted sleep or study time," said Henry Wechsler, director of the Alcohol Studies Program at Harvard School of Public Health.

His team surveyed 17,592 students on 140 campuses nationwide last year. Findings appear in Wednesday's Journal of the American Medical Association.

Forty-four percent reported bingeing on alcohol, defined as downing five drinks in a row for men or four in a row for women on at least one occasion in the two weeks before the survey. Nineteen percent of all students were frequent bingers, defined as those who have had at least three binges during the period.

Binge drinkers were seven times as likely to have unprotected sex as a non-binge drinker, 10 times as likely to drive after drinking and 11 times as likely to fall behind in school, the survey found.

At about one-third of the schools, more than 50 percent of students were bingers.

At another third, fewer than 35 percent were bingers.

At the big drinking schools, sober students were twice as likely as those at the lowest-level schools to be insulted or humiliated; to be pushed, hit or assaulted; and to experience unwanted sexual advances from drinking students.

UC asks students to open hearts, donate toys for boys

BY CANDIDA JOHNSON
THE UNIVERSITY DAILY

Boys ages 8 to 12 may be forgotten when it comes to buying Christmas presents, at least according to Michael Leitschuh, assistant coordinator of student activities at the University Center.

Leitschuh said the UC is asking students to open their hearts and give to local youths.

The "Toys For Boys" program began last year after members of UC Activities noticed many times boys between the ages of 8 and 12 were being left out.

"Many times people don't buy toys for boys in this age group because the toys they want are more expensive," he said. "We are asking people to bring unwrapped toys to the University Center."

Leitschuh said the toys will be taken to the Salvation Army toy shop.

He said the toys need to be unwrapped so parents can see what the children are being given.

"Those wishing to participate in 'Toys For Boys' should buy gifts appropriate for boys in the 8 to 12 age group, such as sports equipment," Leitschuh said.

"One year we had someone from the Tech community donate a left-handed baseball glove.

"He said he was donating it because he knew how it felt to grow up left-handed having to use a right-handed glove."

However, Leitschuh said they will accept any toys students want to donate, including cash donations.

"Because we are with Texas Tech, we can purchase toys at an added advantage — without sales taxes," he said.

"We can go out to the toy stores and buy even more toys with the donated money."

Leitschuh said the response has been overwhelming because students were already used to participating in the "Spirit of Sharing" program.

The program consists of students and faculty members taking an unwrapped doll or bear and dressing them up for a needy child.

"Toys For Boys" is a complement to "Dress a Doll or Bear," he said.

Angel Flight, Air Society plan Dead Day eve party

BY CANDIDA JOHNSON
THE UNIVERSITY DAILY

When the Arnold Air Society and the Angel Flight Society say they are having a Dead Day Bash at On Broadway nightclub, they aren't referring to dressing up in spooky costumes or partying the night before finals.

Steven Mathews, financial manager of the Arnold Air Society, said the annual Dead Day Bash, today at 10 p.m., refers to a party on Dead Day eve.

"Last year some people got mixed up because the party is called Dead Day Bash," Mathews said.

"They assumed the party will be on Dead Day. It's not — (it is) the night before Dead Day."

Mathews said the party is a fundraiser for the Arnold Air Society and Angel Flight, both of which are national organizations with chapters across the nation.

"We receive some funding from the Student Association, but it's still not enough to pay for our trips," he said. "We use the funds to fund two trips in which all squadrons across the nation meet to conduct national business."

Entertainment will be provided by Kyle Abernathie, who will perform from 10 p.m. to about 2 a.m.

The price for the party costs $4 for those 21 and older.

For those under 21, the admission costs $5.

Burt and Loni reach settlement

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Burt Reynolds and ex-wife Loni Anderson reached a child-support settlement Tuesday after two contentious days in court, then sealed the deal with a kiss.

"We reached a decision amicably for our son's sake, who we love very, very much," Anderson told reporters following a private meeting.

The amount he agreed to pay for care of the couple's adopted 6-year-old son, Quinton, was kept private.

"Burt's been very generous to take care of our son," Anderson said.

Reynolds, pleading poverty, wanted the court to reduce his monthly $15,000 child-support payment to $7,000. The couple divorced in June after four years of marriage.

"We are very thrilled about the outcome because it's all for Quinton. That's what I wanted and it turned out," Reynolds said.

As the couple left the courthouse, Reynolds kissed Anderson on the cheek.

They later embraced in the parking lot.

Reynolds, 58, and Anderson, 48, had avoided making eye contact during the hearing.

In the divorce, Reynolds got the $4 million ranch in Florida and a $2 million waterfront mansion. Anderson, who recently appeared on the show "Nurses," got $2 million over five years to pay for her new home.

She also got $11,000 a month in alimony, although Reynolds recently asked a judge to relieve him of the payments.

Earlier Tuesday, Reynolds listened as his accountant outlined the actor's recent financial straits.

Gregory T. Young of Little Rock, Ark., who has managed the actor's finances for three years, said Reynolds' income has dropped dramatically since cancellation of his CBS-TV series "Evening Shade" and the loss of two lucrative commercial endorsements.

Young testified that Reynolds' financial worth dropped from $7.6 million in May to a negative $2.5 million this fall, in part because of falling property values.

Superior Court Judge Robert M. Letteau questioned Young's accounting methods and asked him to calculate the actor's worth based on fair market values. Young said Reynolds had a net worth of about $5 million.

Before his accountant took the stand, Reynolds asked to make a statement to explain his sometimes combative and contradictory testimony on Monday.

"I want to apologize for not being prepared yesterday. I will be prepared in the future," Reynolds said.

Cigarette packages deceiving smokers

BETHESDA, Md. (AP) — Cigarette packages deceive smokers by listing very low tar and nicotine contents and should instead disclose the maximum amount smokers can inhale, a federal panel of tobacco experts said Tuesday.

Cigarettes also should list the carcinogens they contain, warn that certain smoking habits increase absorption of those chemicals, and add a disclaimer that "light" brands aren't really more healthful, concluded the panel convened by the National Cancer Institute.

"The health benefits of switching to low-tar and -nicotine cigarettes is minimal compared to quitting entirely," said Dr. Harold Freeman of the President's Cancer Panel, who headed the special committee. "How you smoke is much more important than what you smoke."

The panel's recommendations came at the request of the Federal Trade Commission and Congress after complaints that FTC-designed testing of cigarettes' tar and nicotine deceive smokers into thinking low-yield brands are less threatening.

The FTC pledged to review the recommendations but warned that it has jurisdiction only over false advertising of cigarettes, not health claims.

And the tobacco industry immediately noted that many of the recommendations would require congressional intervention because federal law prohibits any addition or deletion to health warnings already on cigarettes.

"Some of those recommendations might be put in place by the FTC without congressional action," responded Rep. Henry Waxman, D-Calif. "I certainly would be willing to work on legislation to make sure consumers have the full information they ought to about the dangers from cigarette smoking."

But now that Waxman's high-profile tobacco probe is about to be ended by the new Republican Congress, such legislation might fail, he acknowledged.

Industry representatives wouldn't say if they would challenge the recommendations, but said the changes could backfire.

"If the ranges of nicotine in ultra-light and light brands overlap, a smoker might move up to the higher-yield brand," suggested R.J. Reynolds spokeswoman Maura Ellis.

And the terms "light" and "ultra light" merely describe different brands' tastes, not health risks, added the Tobacco Institute's Brennan Dawson.

Band discusses heavy metal, demo tape

BY TARA ALLEN
CONTRIBUTING WRITER

For Uncle Nasty, a good time might consist of smashing a television with a sledge hammer or just playing acoustical guitar at a local bar.

Uncle Nasty is a local Lubbock band that prides itself on having a good time and making sure the crowd is entertained.

"We love playing to a crowd that isn't afraid to have a good time," guitar player Michael Adame said.

Four and a half years ago, the band played its first gig at the club, On Broadway. However, the name of the band at that time was Outlaw.

"There used to be a club named Uncle Nasty in Lubbock," Adame said. "We thought of writing a song about it. The name was better than the song, so we used it."

*WE ARE ALL A BUNCH OF ROAD-JUNKIES,
WE NEED A TOUR BUS AND A PLACE TO PLAY, AND WE'RE HAPPY.*

The band plays mostly original songs written by lead singer Chad Chesnutt and Adame. Band members said most of the originals are based on past experiences and events that are happening in the world.

Adame said although the band plays rock 'n' roll, Uncle Nasty is not a heavy metal band.

"There is a fine line between hard rock and heavy metal," he said. "We don't like being called a heavy metal band — it hurts us a lot of times."

Band members said the rest of the songs they use are cover pieces from various bands they like. They play Top-40 music and college rock.

The band is originally from and based out of Lubbock. They said they feel this is beneficial because Lubbock is a good market for bands.

"Lubbock deserves more credit than it gets," Adame said. "It has great musicians."

Uncle Nasty also books gigs outside of Lubbock. They have traveled to Midland, Amarillo, various West Texas cities and parts of New Mexico.

"We are all a bunch of road-junkies," Adame said. "We need a tour bus and a place to play, and we're happy."

Future plans for Uncle Nasty include a demo tape that will attract record labels, according to Adame.

"This demo has to be really good," he said. "We've already talked to some record companies, and they want a professional tape. We don't want to blow it."

Uncle Nasty plays every Thursday night at the Depot Warehouse. Every Sunday afternoon Adame and Chesnutt play acoustical at J. Patrick O'Malley's bar.

"We love to play and entertain," Adame said. "The best part is getting paid for something you like doing."

Judge postpones rapper's court date

NEW YORK (AP) — Tupac Shakur will have more time to recover from gunshot wounds before he faces prison for sexual assault.

State Supreme Court Justice Daniel Fitzgerald on Monday postponed a court date for the rapper to Dec. 14. Shakur's doctor said the defendant, who was shot five times in a robbery last week, should be better in about a week.

At that point, the judge will set a sentencing date and listen to arguments on whether Shakur and Charles Fuller, the rapper's co-defendant and road manager, should be allowed to remain free on $50,000 bail.

Shakur could get 2 1/2 to seven years in prison. Shakur, 23, and Fuller, 24, were convicted Thursday of sexually abusing a 20-year-old woman Shakur met in a nightclub in 1993.

BRANSON, Mo. (AP) — The Wichita Lineman is back on the job.

After calling it quits last week at the Glen Campbell Goodtime Theatre, Campbell reached a compromise

Lady Raiders hope to extend streak at UTEP

BY BRYAN ADAMS
THE UNIVERSITY DAILY

The Texas Tech women's basketball team is on the road again as it travels to El Paso to take on the Lady Miners of Texas-El Paso at 8:30 p.m. today at the Special Events Center in El Paso.

The No. 11 Lady Raiders are 6-2 on the season and 9-0 lifetime against UTEP.

UTEP is averaging 66 points a game while holding its opponents to 65 points a game.

Tech puts an average of 77 points on the board each game and limits its adversaries to 65 points.

"(UTEP) can play good enough to beat you," Tech head coach Marsha Sharp said. "When teams get the national attention for playing us, they try to beat us. There probably won't be much of a crowd there, but it ought to be a good game."

A key to the game might be who is leading at halftime.

Tech is 5-0 when it leads going into the locker room and 1-2 when they have to play catch up. In the 1990s, the Raiders have led at the half 114 of their last 155 games. Tech has won 98 percent of those games.

"I think we are talented enough to get points in a hurry," Sharp said. "I'm a little disappointed as to how we've played at times. I think consistency is our biggest problem. The only team we play that is ranked higher was Stanford. Every game from here on out will be an upset if we lose. We just have to continue to stay where we are."

Red Raiders look to bounce back against Bucs

BY JESSE MALDONADO
THE UNIVERSITY DAILY

With students concentrating on finals, the Texas Tech men's basketball team members have one more thing on their minds — another game.

Head coach James Dickey's squad will face East Tennessee State at 7 p.m. today in the Lubbock Municipal Coliseum. The Red Raiders are coming off their first loss of the season to No. 13 Wisconsin Saturday.

"We're disappointed in our performance against Wisconsin," Dickey said. "They've got a great ball club and deserved to win the game, but we didn't feel that we played very well offensively. Something you have to understand when you're on the road is you have to play above the officiating. If we play our normal game, score 84 or 85 points like we're capable of scoring, you win the ball game by 10 or 12 points."

leading shooter. Dickey said the Buc's come to the Hub City with people who can shoot three-pointers, and the key to the game will be to play aggressive defense throughout the game.

"It will be a tough test for us and (we will) see if we can bounce back," Dickey said. "Nothing will cure this sickening feeling that we have quicker than a 'W.' The key to this game is we will have to guard. We cannot give people who are great three-point shooters wide open looks."

The Raiders, so far this season, have relied on the offensive and defensive efforts of senior forward Mark Davis. In the first two games of the season, Davis has averaged a double-double. He leads the way for the Raiders averaging 21.0 points and 10 rebounds per game.

"I still think we're a good basketball team," Dickey said. "We had a chance against Wisconsin to get some national recognition, that was a winnable game."

ers and Buccaneers will be the first time both teams will go up against each other. Ironically, both teams come into tonight's match-up losing on the road.

"They're a very athletic team," Dickey said. "They're a lot like Texas. They like to press, shoot three's, and they have a bunch of guys that have high shooting percentages. It will be a difficult challenge."

The Bucs are led by senior guard/forward Robert Doggett. In the four games Tennessee has played in, Doggett has averaged 17.5 points and 4.8 rebounds per game. Defensively, Doggett also leads the Bucs with seven steals.

Another Buc who has played up to par this season is senior guard Geoff Herman.

Herman leads ETSU in three-point shooting at 61 percent, hitting 11 of 18 three-pointers in the four previous Buc games. He is averaging 16.3 points per game and is the team's second-

Tech looks for respect against No. 21 Trojans

BY BRYAN ADAMS
THE UNIVERSITY DAILY

The party is in Dallas Jan. 2, and the two teams in the Cotton Bowl are Texas Tech and No. 21 Southern California.

Texas Tech finished the season with a 6-5 record overall and 4-3 mark in the Southwest Conference. The Raiders ended the season in a five-way tie in the SWC between Baylor, Texas, Texas Christian and Rice.

Tech advanced to the Dallas classic because they have gone the longest time without going.

In fact, Tech's last appearance in the Cotton Bowl was in 1939 when they lost to St. Mary's 20-13. Since joining the conference in 1960, Tech has never represented the SWC in the Cotton Bowl.

USC, 7-3-1, finished second in the PAC-10 behind conference-winner Oregon. The Trojans are coached by John Robinson, who returned to USC after leaving the Los Angeles Rams.

In his first year back last season, Robinson guided the Trojans to a share of the PAC-10 championship and a win in the Freedom Bowl. Robinson coached at USC for seven years before the Rams and has a career record of 75-19-2.

"I think Southern Cal is a great opponent," Tech head coach Spike Dykes said. "They've got a highly visible football team with a great quarterback. They really do have a great football team."

This will be the third meeting between the two schools. USC leads the series 2-0. The Trojans won in 1978 17-9 in Los Angeles and in 1979 in Lubbock 21-7. The men of Troy's record against the SWC is 18-4-1. USC will be making its first appearance in the Cotton Bowl.

"We're excited about being in the Cotton Bowl," Dykes said. "No apologies, we're tickled to death to be there. I'm really proud of our football team for making it. We had the fifth-toughest schedule in college football. (They've) been having that bowl for a long time. They've had a system on how you get there every year. It's never deviated. There's been people who have been ineligible before.

There's been ties before. We went by the rules, and we won the games. We had to win, and we got there."

USC is led by senior quarterback Rob Johnson.

Although he missed two games this year with a sprained ankle, Johnson still managed to throw for more than 2,000 yards.

In his career at USC, he has thrown for more than 8,000 yards.

Johnson's favorite target is junior wide receiver Keyshawn Johnson, who averaged 114 yards a game and 20 yards a reception this season.

"I know he is a real good quarterback, and he's got a real good receiver," said Tech strong safety Bart Thomas. "We're just going to have to play with confidence. I know it will be a good game. They're pretty well balanced."

USC averaged 130 yards a game on the ground in 1994. Sophomore running back Shawn Walters led the Trojans this season with 89 yards a game on 179 carries.

"They got some good backs," all-American middle linebacker Zach Thomas said. "(They've) got a good quarterback who has a good passing percentage. They beat some good teams. We just want to get some respect in this game."

"We want to redeem ourselves. It can help our recruiting after this game. If we win this game, it's going to be a big deal for us next year. (We've) got great chances to win this game. We're not really thinking about our record, we're just thinking about winning this game."

Defensively, USC comes into the bowl giving up 172 yards a game on the ground and 224 yards a game through the air. Although, they'll have to perform without their defensive coordinator Don Lindsey, who was fired recently.

"We'll just prepare for (USC) like we do any other team," said freshman quarterback and SWC Newcomer of the Year Zebbie Lethridge. "Right now we don't know too much about USC."

Under pressure

JEREMY CHESNUTT; THE UNIVERSITY DAILY

Freshman quarterback Zebbie Lethridge looks for someone to pass to while Texas Christian defensive lineman Royal West applies pressure during Tech's 24-17 loss against the Horned Frogs. The Red Raiders will face 21st-ranked USC in the Cotton Bowl Jan. 2 in Dallas.

Thomas earns all-American award from UPI

Texas Tech middle linebacker Zach Thomas has been named to yet another all-American team. The junior from Pampa added a first-team UPI All-American honors to the first-team AFCA All-American honors he had earned earlier this season. Thomas, the Southwest Conference's Defensive Player of the Year, was named second-team all-America by the Football News.
