City prepares coliseum renovations

Air conditioning main improvement; repairs to begin in April

By Darrin Cook
The University Daily

Planning already is under way to refurbish the 39-year-old Lubbock Municipal Coliseum.

City officials began a coliseum-improvement agenda after a proposed Lubbock Multipurpose arena was defeated by voters Jan. 21.

Roof replacement, replacement of light fixtures and sealing areas above seating are other items included in the city's coliseum-improvement agenda, said Vickey Key, manager of the Lubbock Civic Center.

Construction is slated to begin at the end of the basketball season and will be worked around other events scheduled at the coliseum, she said.

The projected budget for the coliseum improvements is about $3.5 million, but air-conditioning improvements will cost about $1.5 million, she said.

The amount was approved during a city bond election in 1993.

Coliseum

- Coliseum renovations to begin at the end of the basketball season

- $3.5 million budget

- Improvements include: air conditioning, new roof and light fixtures

"If everything goes as planned, our target date is to begin the project this April."

Key said. "Completion of the project should come in September or October, if all the pieces fall into place."

The city of Lubbock completed the necessary paperwork and officials are waiting for project bids, she said.

Eric Williams, Tech associate vice president for facilities planning and construction, said city and Tech officials previously signed an agreement allowing the city to use the Tech tunnel system to improve the coliseum.

"The agreement allows the city of Lubbock to tie in with a tunnel to the campus chilled-water system," Williams said.

Key said replacement of the light fixtures will be done above the arena floor around the catwalk area.

Projects also will improve ceiling dripping in areas of the coliseum, she said.

The Tech athletic department may have its own ideas concerning student-section seating in the coliseum, she said.

"The Tech athletic department decides how they want the floor set up, and we set it according to what they want," Key said.

She said officials have talked about elevating student-section seats with the use of risers but did not know what the plan is at this point.

Welfare problem unsolved

WASHINGTON (AP) — The federal government must continue to provide a safety net for poor children and teen-age mothers as it cedes welfare responsibilities to the states, Health and Human Services Secretary Donna Shalala said Sunday.

But Sen. Phil Gramm of Texas, a leading Republican presidential aspirant, said the time has come for drastic action. "You can't change this mammoth system without hurting some people," he said.

The issue of who will be guaranteed protection under a revamped welfare system is at the top of the list of differences as the administration and Republicans stake out their positions on welfare reform.

Republicans emerging from a 5 1/2-hour "work session" on welfare reform with President Clinton on Saturday stressed that House GOP legislation that imposes tough restrictions on benefits is the only proposal on the table now.

But Shalala, appearing on CBS' "Face the Nation," noted that Clinton has said government should not be creating more poor American children. "That's a national issue," she said. "It's a debate about values, about how we take care of our children."

Clinton has proposed cutting off welfare benefits to recipients after two years and giving states more flexibility in setting up welfare programs. The House Republican plan goes much further, giving states block grants and allowing them to determine how to allot the funds; denying cash welfare to unmarried mothers under 18; and denying aid to legal immigrants who have not become citizens.

Shalala said the president had "serious questions about whether teen-agers who have babies should be cut off from any cash assistance."

She also took exception to the GOP proposal to cut off aid to unwed mothers until the fathers of their children are identified. Those women who play by the rules and cooperate should get transitional help, she said.

But the secretary did not totally reject the Republican plan on legal aliens.

Plan seeks tax reform

By Linda Carriger

The University Daily

This is the third in a four-part series on the U.S. House Republicans' Contract With America. The first two articles addressed welfare and legal reforms.

Taxes, the "Contract With America" states, are breaking the backbone of American society — families.

Republicans plan to mend that backbone with tax reforms, U.S. House Republicans said.

Tax credits for parents, families and senior citizens are included in their plan.

A tax credit in the American Dream Restoration Act allows parents to write off $500 for each child 18 and younger living in the home, the Republicans' contract states.

The cut applies to families who earn less than $200,000 yearly.

Republicans also have proposed a tax credit to cure the "marriage penalty" that exists in current tax codes. Under the "marriage penalty," couples pay more taxes than two single people pay.

Robert Beach, Texas Tech College Republicans president, said the penalty encourages couples to live together instead of getting married.

"If two people love each other and want to get married, they should not be penalized," Beach said. "I like rewarding good behavior, and I think the Republicans are trying to do that."

The Dream Restoration Act allows the U.S. Secretary of Treasury to give married Americans $2 billion in tax credits.

The act also sets up an American Dream Savings Account for working America.

People can place a taxable $2,000 in the account each year, the contract states.

That money cannot be taxed when it is withdrawn to pay for educational expenses, to buy a house, to pay for medical bills or to finance retirement.

Conservative group opposes AmeriCorps program

By Donald Gillilan

The University Daily

President Clinton called AmeriCorps, a college loan payback program, the new covenant during his State of the Union address Tuesday.

AmeriCorps is a community service program that allows students to pay educational expenses through community work.

Despite Clinton's vision of a new covenant, the New Citizenship Project, a conservative group against AmeriCorps, does not want to see the program continue.

NCP officials describe AmeriCorps as a domestic Peace Corps. The group claims AmeriCorps should not be implemented because:

- AmeriCorps will undermine healthy volunteerism. Paid volunteerism will discourage real volunteerism and will cause community organizations to become dependent on the federal government.

- AmeriCorps will cost too much. Each AmeriCorps volunteer will receive a $7,400 annual stipend, plus $9,450 toward payment of higher education debt. This does not include the program's automatic health and child care benefits.

Mark Harmon, Lubbock County Democratic Party Chairman, said what the NCP said about AmeriCorps has not been proven.

"The presence of one volunteer service will not make another suffer," Harmon said. "We learned that from the Peace Corps."

Harmon also said the figures the NCP is working with are not correct. "The figures are not correct because they assume that all service volunteers will take advantage of all the benefits AmeriCorps gives," he said.

The people who are adding in health care costs and child care programs into AmeriCorps are the ones who want to deny the public health care reform, Harmon said.

"AmeriCorps is a worthy project dating back to John F. Kennedy when he said 'Ask not what your country can do for you, but what you can do for your country,'" he said. "It's Americans helping America."

There is a pool of talented people, and the government feels those talented people can help America, he said.

"This statement that the New Citizenship Project released is a shameless attempt to malign a worthy product," Harmon said. "Only an extreme right-wing official would propose to stop AmeriCorps from continuing."

Robert Beach, president of the Tech College Republicans, said he believes AmeriCorps is a good idea.

"It teaches people how to work, and it lets people give back to the community," Beach said. "I can't disagree with Clinton all the time."

Lubbock native, musician thrust in spotlight with duo partner

By Amy Osmulski

The University Daily

Beth Wood is the voice and the guitar. Chris Smith is the rest.

The Austin-based duo, known simply as Beth and Chris, joined local artists Andy Lovering and Eric Gray for a night of acoustics at J&B Coffee Co. Saturday.

Wood, who grew up in Lubbock, attended college in North Carolina and Austin.

While in Austin, she came across an advertisement for a singer in a local band. She had taken voice and violin lessons throughout high school and decided to audition for the job.

"I had always wanted to do something like that, and well, that's where it started," Wood said. "I guess you could call it a dream come true."

Wood played with the band for two years and began learning how to play the guitar. After the band broke up, she decided to go out on her own and took fellow band member Smith along with her.

Smith, who is from Austin, said he and Wood can always find a way to put a great song together.

"I always found it easy to work with Beth," he said. "We have a lot of the same ideas, and we can hear the same things from the music."

"I guess we are on the same wavelength."

That wavelength, combined with the talent of the duo, has thrust them into the spotlight all over Texas and resulted in a tape titled "Beth & Chris."

"Beth is great," said Matt Holley, entertainment director at J&B Coffee Co. "She plays here whenever she comes through, and we always have a great turnout."

"She has a genuinely unique sound and a wonderful voice."

All of Wood's music is original, and she said her inspiration comes from people she knows and life in general.

When she is not singing, Wood, who graduated from the University of Texas at Austin with a degree in English, works as an intern at Texas Monthly.

Wood said she hopes to make her singing career a profession, but her English degree is something she can fall back on.

Balanced budget common sense rule

The amendment

The House approved it Thursday. The Senate is debating it this week. It's the Balanced Budget Amendment, and it is one of the best proposals this country has seen in years. While some are calling the House's 293-139 bipartisan endorsement of the amendment a triumph for the newly elected Republican majority, it is undoubtedly a triumph for the American people.

Setting an example

We must sit at our desks and kitchen tables and balance our own household budgets. We do this because, as our parents used to say, money doesn't grow on trees. Our budgets must balance, or we will be without things a responsible budgeter enjoys like, oh, a home, a car, food — you know, stuff like that. So why is it all these years our friend Uncle Sam has been spending money as quickly as Dave can say, "Butros-Butros Gahli." Well, friends, there is no reason for it. And, theoretically, government should pose as an example of good citizenship and a responsible America. So far, not so good, guys.

Accountability

This proposed amendment finally is going to make the government accountable for all those dollars slipping through our congressional fingers. Since the amendment would force the government to trim its current spending habits, opponents argue the amendment would lead to the cutting of such programs as Social Security.

Amendment supporters retort by saying Social Security would not be cut, but the fundamental structure of government would be restructured.

This would include such amenities as a presidential line-item veto.

American support

A June 1992 Washington Post/ABC News poll showed that 75 percent of the American people supported a balanced budget amendment.

And yet, our elected officials ignored the people and did what was best for their spending purposes and lobbyist friends.

Remember during the health-care fiasco, which most people were against, when Sen. Jay Rockefeller, D-Va., once referred to Americans as children when he said (paraphrased quote) "We don't care what the people want. They're going to get a health care plan."

It was that attitude that got a new Republican Congress elected.

And this Congress is listening to the people — so far. If they don't, we'll just vote them out, too.

The seven-member editorial board voted 7-0 on this issue.

Everything you wanted to know about The UD

Christy Everett

It seems every day here at The UD we receive a call from individuals who want to know who is in charge of this daily publication. The UD is an independent student newspaper. This means decisions made concerning content, the editorial page and a variety of other issues are made by the student editor. It seems to perplex some individuals that a 19-year-old is responsible for deciding whether or not Calvin or Hobbes will appear in the paper. Let me assure you that all decisions made here at The UD receive careful consideration, and we are currently working on the possible return of Calvin and Hobbes. If you are interested in having a story published, letter submitted or question answered, I am the best person to talk to. Readers have already begun to call to present ideas and concerns. We enjoy hearing input from our reading audience and welcome calls from the outside world. One of the major complaints callers seem to have is the amount of opinions found on page two. For those of you who do not know, page two is considered the opinion/editorial page. In this location, our readers have the opportunity to express their ideas, concerns and personal pet peeves. To submit a letter, either bring or mail a typed copy of the letter to room 211 in the journalism building. In order to have the letter printed, you must either bring or mail a copy of your photo identification. Letters are subject to the rules printed on page two every day. We ask that you please keep your letters from becoming a personal attack against another person. Page two also has several columnists. Opinions expressed in the columns are not necessarily the opinion of the newspaper, Tech officials or the Board of Regents. In every issue there is an editorial that expresses the opinion of the seven-member editorial board. The editorial is written by the student editors on a rotating basis. A vote is included on the bottom of the editorial that states how many voted in favor, and how many voted against the decision. Although we include factual information into the issue, the editorial is the majority OPINION of the editorial board. This does not mean it is the only opinion that exists and we welcome letters to the editor discussing the ideas we present. If you have any questions, concerns or would like an update into the current status of Calvin and Hobbes, give us a call at 742-3393. Christy Everett is a sophomore journalism major from Arlington and editor of The UD. Her column appears Monday.

Letters to the Editor

LETTERS POLICY: Letters to the editor are accepted for publication on the OPINIONS page. All letters MUST be no longer than two, typed, double-spaced pages. Unsigned letters will NOT be published. Letters must be submitted in person or by mail with picture identification and a telephone number. Letters are printed at the editor's discretion, and the editor reserves the right to edit letters for length, libelous material, spelling and vulgarity. The University Daily does not discriminate because of race, creed, national origin, age, sex, sexual preference or disability.

Sex education should be decided locally

To the Editor: The University Daily Editorial Board just can't help exposing its true colors. On Friday, The UD called for the State of Texas to write a specific sex education curriculum for every school district in Texas, thereby thumbing its nose at the long held principle of local control in education. Sex education is obviously a controversial issue with honest and thoughtful citizens on each side. This is exactly why the decision of what should be taught in the classroom should be made by parents and local school boards — NOT Austin bureaucrats. Or maybe The UD would have Jocelyn Elders write the curriculum — I understand she is looking for work.

The UD whines that most Texas high school students get only a week worth of sex ed. How long does it take to say, "Don't do it — but if you do, use a condom?" In truth, this is not a health issue, it's an ideological one. Liberals' answer to every social problem is more government, more bureaucracy, more taxes ... and less freedom of choice for individuals, families, and communities. I am always amazed that the liberals who are so quick to march for "choice" when it comes to killing unborn children are the same people who want the government to take away citizens' choice with respect to health care, affirmative action, gun control, and even sex education. Liberal Democrats created the welfare state because they think government can make better decisions than the American family. And they won-

Public Broadcasting funding important

To the Editor: I would like to respond to Chris Walter's essay in which he discusses the proposal by Congress to zero out funding for the Public Broadcasting Service (PBS). It is not the intention of Congress to end funding for PBS only; Congress plans to "zero out" funding for all public broadcasting entities, including radio. This funding is provided by the Corporation for Public Broadcasting (CPB). I plan to make my career in public radio, and if Congress makes this drastic decision, or even decides to cut funding by a percentage, I may have to change careers. I am an employee of KOHM, Lubbock's only public radio station and National Public Radio affiliate. KOHM, like a thousand stations just like it in the U.S., is very dependent on CPB funding.

Public radio (unlike public television, which is run by PBS alone) has many networks from which programming can be chosen: National Public Radio International, the WFMT Fine Arts Network, and countless regional public radio networks such as the Longhorn Radio Network here in Texas, Southwest Public Radio, California Public Radio, Minnesota Public Radio, Alaska Public Radio, and more. These networks, large and small, are united in one common cause: to provide stimulating, original, and valuable programming for the entertainment and education of its listeners. I dare say that radio would be the most adversely affected if Congress decides to alter funding for public broadcasting. However, both public radio and television have the task of filling in the gaps in programming offered by commercial television. It is the advertising dollar that dictates commercial television. In public broadcasting, der why they got spanked in the 1994 election...

Computer system offers access

By Jamie McDonald

The University Daily

Texas Tech's Small Business Development Center in the College of Business Administration is now a participant in an information system with a worldwide reputation.

Texas-One is an information system that accesses state, national and global information that is beneficial to small businesses across Texas, said David Riggins, associate director of the Office of Advanced Technology in the Texas Department of Commerce.

"We are targeting small businesses," he said. "Small businesses don't have the vast services that big corporations can afford. They cannot afford all commercial resources. This is free public information."

Students and faculty can access Texas-One free of charge because of accessibility to vax accounts, said Kathy Austin, director of technology at the Small Business Development Center.

"Tech is using Texas-One more than any other university in the nation because of the SBDC," she said. "If the other SBDC's were as active in telling the faculty and students, they would be using it more, too."

Riggins said Texas-One is a way to catalog Internet, a worldwide computer networking system, which makes it easier for students and faculty to use.

"It is a master library where everything is," he said. "It created a focused business library. It is high-quality information all in one spot instead of 20,000 machines in the world."

The biggest complaints concerning Internet include information organization, Austin said.

"It (the Internet) has turned into a vast poorly organized dump of information," she said. "Some is valuable and some is not. It is not current or accurate, and it is difficult to locate. It is poorly managed information."

Texas-One is a solution to these complaints, Austin said.

"Texas-One is a cutting edge approach to quality information on the Internet," she said. "It is one of the first solutions to make Internet a useful, functional tool for the commercial sector."

Riggins said Texas-One is more functional because of the standards all organizations involved in the project follow.

"We cannot be the manager of pointers to everything, so we established partnerships with others who are knowledgeable," he said. "The more organizations that agree with our standard, the better our system."

Jeremy Chesnutt: The University Daily

David Riggins and Tech graduate Kathy Austin examine the Texas-One program they designed to assist businesses.

tax credit that he wanted the Republicans to keep in mind.

The president said he wants to give a tax break to middle-class Americans who are trying to get an education or vocational training.

"If you think about it, we permit businesses to deduct their investment; we permit individuals to deduct interest on their home mortgages, but today an education is even more important to the economic well-being of our whole country than even those things are," he said.

Clinton said the educational tax credit would be paid for through government cutbacks in the energy, transportation and the housing and urban development departments.

The General Services Administration and the Office of Personnel Management also are among those to receive cutbacks.

The president also will extend a freeze on discretionary spending from 1998 to 2000.

"We intend to continue that effort to reduce the deficit and make government smaller and more efficient," said Leon Panetta, White House Chief of Staff.

"The savings we are using to pay for the tax cuts are specific and real."

Rep. Larry Combest, R-Texas, said he likes Clinton's educational tax credit, but he does not know if it will be included in the Republican bill.

"We're not going to throw out a good idea," Combest said.

"I'm sure we will work with ideas from the Democrats, but we are not going to compromise our principals."

Majority Leader Rep. Dick Armey, R-Texas, said Republicans will determine how to pay for the tax breaks after spending cuts have been made in the budget.

Center provides new information

By Lisa Ray

The University Daily

Conducting a job search and writing resumes are the focuses of information the Texas Tech Career Planning and Placement Center received from the Career Choices Center.

The center distributes career information to colleges and universities.

The six booklets are provided free to Tech as a public service of the American Honda Motor Company and Discover Card Services, according to the Career Choices Center.

The booklets are comprised of information regarding jobs targeting a specific major, information about how to write resumes or conducting a job search, said Tom Casey, assistant director of the Career Planning and Placement Center.

The six booklets are:

- General Career Guide: networking, contacting, interviewing and negotiating
- Marketing: advertising, marketing, public relations and sales
- Money and Finance: accounting, banking, consulting and investing
- Communications and Entertainment: entertainment, leisure, media, and travel
- Public Service: education, government, health care and not-for-profit
- Off The Beaten Path: entrepreneurship, interning, volunteering and working abroad

The booklets also contain information regarding salaries, insights from successfully employed individuals and references for students to contact, according to the Career Choices Center.

Each booklet provides students a free mail-in offer to receive "Where the Jobs Are," a current listing of the top 500 sales and growth companies across the United States.

Students also receive information including personal contact names, addresses and phone numbers.

The information is used for sending resumes, according to the Career Choices Center.

The two-page booklets are free and are located in 335 West Hall.

Honda has been providing information to Tech since the fall of 1993, Casey said.

They send up-dated information every year and keep it supplied throughout the year, he said.

"Corporations get their name on campus, and when the company comes on campus to conduct interviews, students will be more likely to respond to them," Casey said.

This is the first year Honda and Discover joined efforts to publish job-availability information, he said.

Research about career opportunities was done by career development directors of various universities, according to the Career Choices Center.

Texas Tech's first football victory that the bells rang for was Texas Wesleyan in 1936.

Older Americans also are included in the Republican's tax-relief plans.

The Senior Citizens Equity Act includes a five-year plan to reduce taxes on Social Security benefits by 50 percent.

"Our senior citizens have taken this great nation through incredible years, and we owe them a tremendous debt of gratitude," the "Contract With America" states. Bill Clinton has said he is skeptical of the Republicans' tax plan.

In the State of the Union Address, Clinton questioned how they would pay for the plan.

"Now, any one of us can call for a tax cut, but I won't accept one that explodes the deficit or puts our recovery at risk," Clinton said.

"We ought to pay for our tax cuts fully and honestly."

Clinton also said he had another

Hawke, Delpy explore love in 'Before Sunrise'

Juan-Daniel Coronado

Train tracks flash. Beautiful, green countryside appears. A blue sky hangs overhead, and finally, a train and its passengers pass by. The viewer cannot tell where the train travels, which appropriately describes "Before Sunrise," a new film by Richard Linklater.

"Before Sunrise" tells the story of Jesse and Celine, two people who meet by chance, and through conversation, they explore intimate details of their lives. Jesse is portrayed by Ethan Hawke, the star of such movies as "Alive," "Reality Bites" and "Dead Poet's Society." Julie Delpy, last seen in "Killing Zoe," portrays Celine.

Jesse is a young American, who has just broken up with his girlfriend, and is on an art school trip in Madrid, Spain. Because of their break up, Jesse travels to Vienna, Austria, for a cheaper flight back to the U.S.

On his way to Vienna, he meets Celine on the train. Celine is a French student on her way to Paris.

After moving to another seat to distance herself from a disputing, married couple, Celine ends up in a seat across from Jesse.

Her move sparks the conversation.

After talking for hours, Jesse and Celine say their goodbyes as the train stops at Jesse's destination.

However, Jesse returns to Celine on the train. He presents her with a hypothetical situation: "Imagine

Before Sunrise

Showing at: Winchester Twin, 3411 50th St.
Rated: R

years from now when you're married to some ordinary fellow and thinking, 'What if the fellow in Vienna was the guy I should have married?'"

Thus, he convinces her to get off the train and spend the remaining hours of the day and night with him until his flight the following morning.

Jesse and Celine delve into questions, such as, "What gets you the most angry?" to "Have you ever been in love?"

Okay, so it's one of those romance, chance-of-a-lifetime relationship movies. No big whoop.

Guess again. No, the film is not what I consider to be Oscar material, but it does present a witty screenplay also written by Linklater with Kim Krizan.

The viewer gets a tour of Vienna as the characters see the sights and go "cafe/club hopping."

Hawke delivers an impressive performance as the rebellious loner who masks his insecurities with a sensitive nature and a flair for spirituality.

Furthermore, Delpy's facial expressions and non-expressions paint a canvas of emotions like those of renowned actresses Jodie Foster and Meryl Streep.

Back to the script. The anecdotal dialogue weaves the film's message of making the best out of the time "before sunrise."

A palm reader tells Jesse and Celine, "You are stardust."

Thus, people are like stars that light up the night sky — at some measure in time they may no longer be present to dazzle the heart of another. It's known as falling in love with that once-in-a-lifetime person.

I kept hoping the two men who were presenting a play about a sick cow would return to the storyline (see the movie.)

At best, "Before Sunrise" is a great "date" movie.

Seinfeld not sure series will last

(AP)—Jerry Seinfeld, whose hit sitcom is about to air its 100th episode, isn't sure how long the series will last.

"I think that even the best TV series has a healthy life of five to eight years," he said in the Feb. 4 TV Guide. "You can go longer, based on your ratings and all, but that's just milking it."

Seinfeld dismissed criticism that his show, in its sixth season, isn't as funny as it used to be, but he said the characters may be becoming too familiar to viewers.

Pressed to be more specific, he added: "Oh, I don't know. But my antennae are always up."

Roseanne has change of heart, new man

RADNOR, Pa. (AP)—Roseanne has a new mood to go with her new man.

Before her breakup with Tom Arnold, she refused to learn the names of her TV show's staff, addressing them by numbers on their T-shirts, executive producer Rob Ulin said in the Feb. 4 TV Guide.

But for this season she told him, "I will learn all your names" and I think she has. The first day on the set she hugged everybody. It was much less scary than we thought it would be."

Raiders down alumni squad 16-2

By Jared Parcel
The University Daily

The 1995 Texas Tech Red Raiders baseball team started its season in impressive fashion, downing the alumni team 16-2 Saturday at Dan Law Field.

The varsity squad scored in seven of eight innings and led 9-0 through four innings before the former Red Raiders had a runner cross the plate.

The current players jumped out to a 2-0 first-inning lead when senior right fielder Brandon Welch singled to left, scoring junior center fielder Matt Kastelic and senior first baseman Randy DuRoss.

After the current Raiders added a run in the second off right-hander Eric Newman, 1993 pitching stand-out Travis Driskill, now in the Cleveland Indians organization, took the mound in the third for the alumni squad.

Driskill allowed a double to DuRoss and an infield single to Welch, before junior third baseman Clint Bryant drilled a 3-1 offering over the right field fence.

DuRoss added another long ball in the fourth, a two-run shot to left off Rodney Steph, putting the varsity team up 9-0.

Steph, currently with the Cleveland Indians organization, recovered and struck out the next three hitters before any more damage was done.

With sophomore left-hander Jeff Peck on the mound in the fifth, the alumni scored its first run of the afternoon. Former second baseman Trey Forkerway led off with a double and scored when shortstop Saul Bustos, now with the Chicago Cubs, singled to center.

The two teams added runs in eighth inning to close out the scoring. The alumni team scored one in the top half of the frame, and the varsity team responded with two in their at-bat.

Pitching coach Frank Anderson said throwing strikes helped his staff.

"Most of our pitchers threw strikes and gave them (alumni) a chance to hit the ball," Anderson said. "We did a good job coming out of the chute. The guys did a good job of throwing it in the strike zone."

Defense was also an important part of the win, as the varsity team committed one error in the ninth when the game was out of reach.

"We did a good job defensively with only one error," Anderson said.

Senior right-hander Travis Smith, who started Saturday, was the winning pitcher. Last year's Southwest Conference "Newcomer of the Year," Ryan Nye, took the loss for the alumni team.

Sam W. Magee: The University Daily

Home: Randy DuRoss slides into home plate as the catcher for the alumni team has trouble handling the ball.

"It was a lot of fun today," Smith said. "We had never seen some of those guys, and I think they had fun, too. I felt good today, really strong pitching on two days rest."

Everyone on this year's team agreed that getting in a game before the season opening five-game road trip added to the confidence level.

"We wanted to get everything going and this was a good gauge," Smith said. "Now we realize how we can play."

They will face Arizona State Friday through Sunday and Grand Canyon Feb. 6 and 7.

One-armed man hits lucky hole in one

DELRAY BEACH, Fla. (AP) — This Cy Young doesn't pitch baseballs, but he had some pretty fair luck on the golf course with two holes-in-one in a day. And he did it with only one arm.

Young says he can't hit a golf ball like he used to. But his one-armed swing nailed two holes-in-one at Lakeview Golf Course on Saturday.

The 70-year-old Delray Beach man, who lost part of his left arm to gangrene when he was 10, teed off with a 3-iron on Saturday. His first shot soared 96 yards and went right into the cup on hole No. 1. About a dozen people witnessed the shot.

"They saw it go in before I did," Young said. "I thought it went past the hole, but everyone was hollering, 'Hole-in-one.'"

Young danced a little jig and moved on.

On hole No. 13, he did it again. This time, he hit the ball 107 yards into the cup with a 3-wood.

"People were jumping up and down and saying, 'It went in the hole, it went in the hole,'" said golfer Liz Mallott, who witnessed both aces. "We were saying it couldn't have, but it did. Uncanny. This guy is good."

Young has been playing golf for 37 years and has now hit three holes-in-one — all of them at Lakeview, an executive golf course with mostly par-3 and par-4 holes.

The double ace turned out to be costly. Young got a trophy, but golfing tradition forced him to buy two rounds of drinks for his partners after the game.

"It was worth it," he said.

Knicks shut out Suns' offense

NEW YORK (AP) — Patrick Ewing had 35 points and 15 rebounds as the New York Knicks used their physical defense to shut down the league's highest-scoring offense, beating the Phoenix Suns 107-88 Sunday.

Phoenix's total was a season low, as the Suns saw a seven-game winning streak snapped. New York also ended the Suns' team record road streak at nine victories.

San Francisco wins Super Bowl 49-26

MIAMI (AP) — Steve Young simply wanted to get out from under the shadow of Joe Montana. He did more than that Sunday, obliterating it with six touchdown passes as the San Francisco 49ers overwhelmed San Diego 49-26 to become the first team ever to win five Super Bowls.

Young's six TD passes broke the Super Bowl record of five set five years ago by Montana, who led San Francisco to its first four titles. Jerry Rice caught three of them and Ricky Watters caught two more and ran 9 yards for a third score.

"This is something you'll never forget," Rice told Young as the quarterback cradled the Vince Lombardi Trophy after the game.

Young said: "You can't describe the feeling. That's why football is the ultimate team game. When you get there, you share it with 50 other guys. It's geometric — 50 times 50 — the elation you feel."

In a Super Bowl that was everything it was supposed to be, a rout, the Niners became the 11th straight NFC team to win the NFL title. "Whatever critics he may have had, he proved tonight that he's one of the greatest quarterbacks of all time," 49ers coach George Seifert said of Young.

Lady Raiders stomp 'Horns 84-40

By Bryan Adams
The University Daily

The Texas Tech women's basketball team was the hottest ticket in town Saturday as it whipped the Texas Lady Longhorns 84-40 in the Lubbock Municipal Coliseum.

A women's basketball record home crowd of 10,352 (tickets sold) watched seventh-ranked Tech hand Texas its third-worst defeat in history.

"What a great home-court advantage for us," Tech coach Marsha Sharp said. "It had so much to do with our momentum to see every seat full."

The 40 points scored by Texas was the fewest allowed by Tech in the Southwest Conference this season, and the 'Horns 22 percent shooting from the field was Texas' worst effort since it began play in 1974.

"It started on the defensive end," Sharp said. "They (Texas) never really did get on track against our zone. The other really big key to that was our ability to rebound out of the zone."

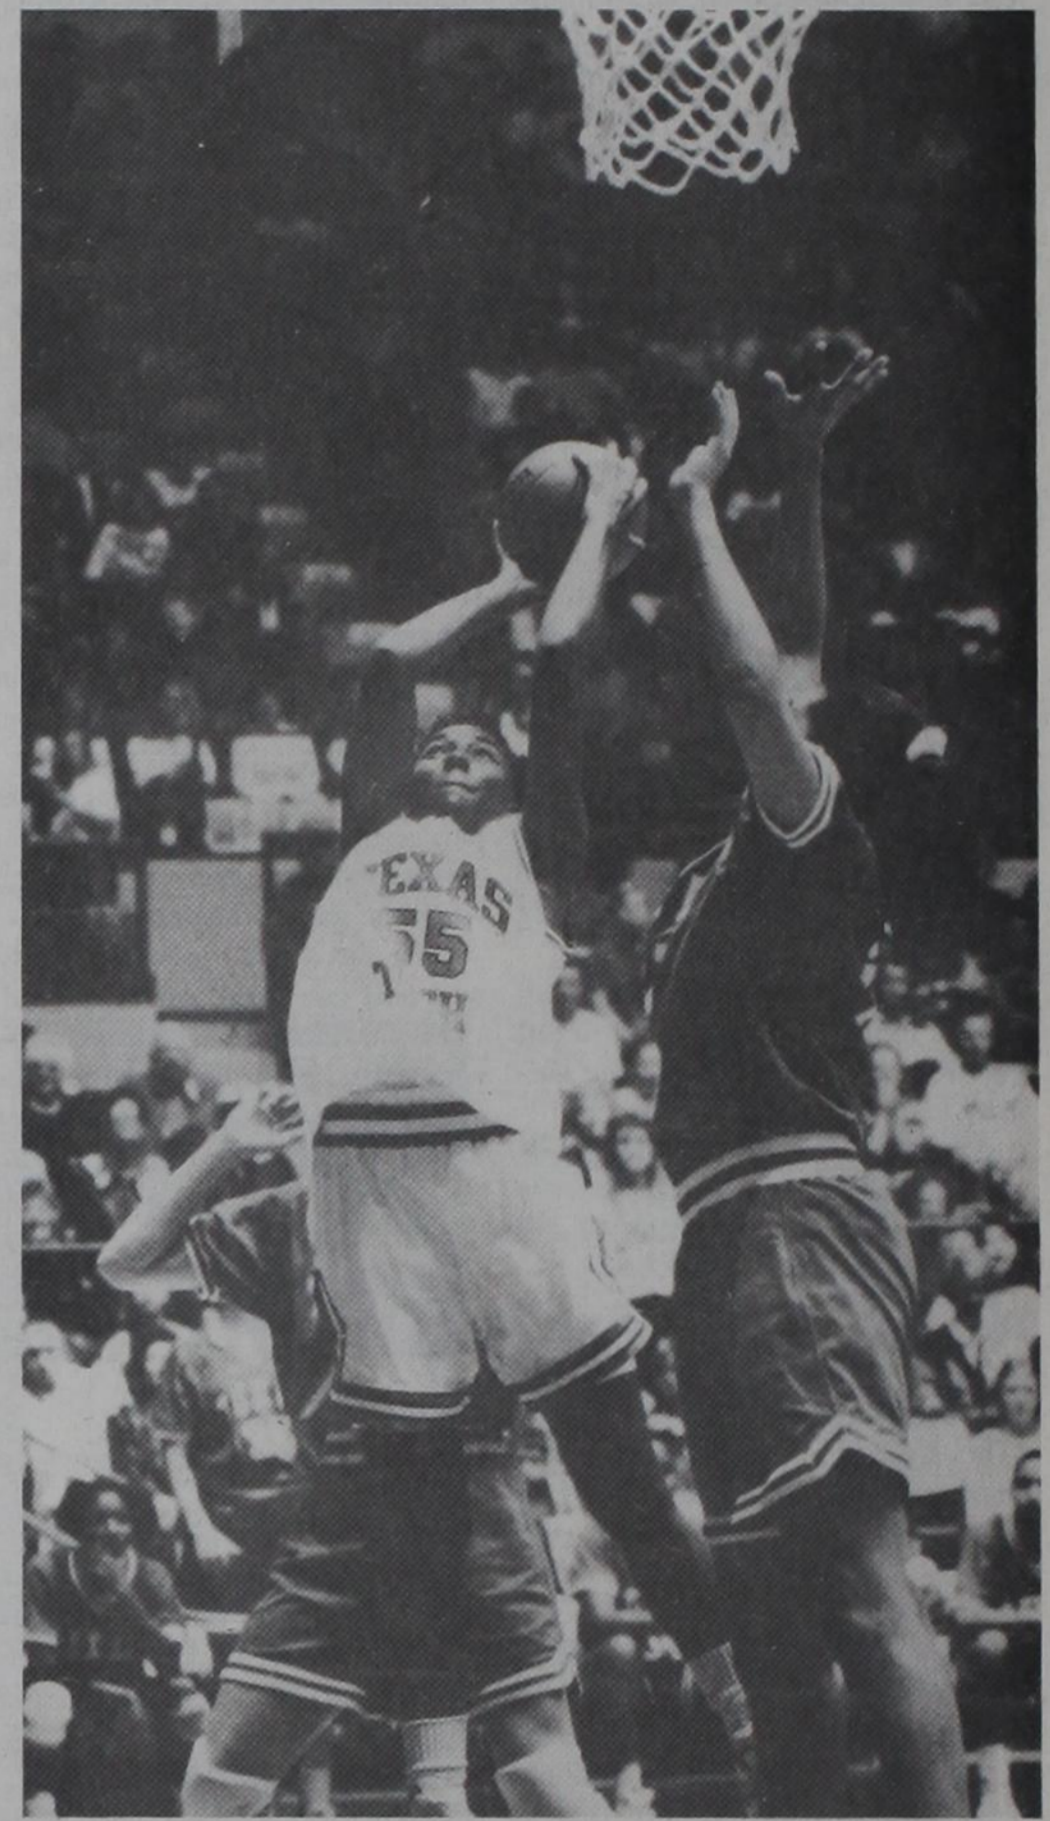

The 84 points by the Lady Raiders was the most points ever scored by Tech against Texas. Tech improved its record to 19-2 overall and 5-0 in conference play.

"We had a lot of kids that played awfully well," Sharp said. "What continues to excite me about this group of kids is that they've pretty much risen to the occasion. They have taken whatever challenge has been in front of them."

Tech shot 43.5 percent from the field, 51.7 percent in the first half. Leading the way for Tech was junior post Michi Atkins who had 19 points, 13 rebounds and three blocked shots. Senior guard Tabitha Truesdale added 16 points, nine assists and six steals.

"Each year is different, and each level of play is different," Atkins said. "As a team, I think we're doing an awesome job. I don't know of any weaknesses right now, but if there are, I'm sure Coach Sharp will let us know about it."

Penders' technical sparks 82-68 victory

By Jonathan Harris
The University Daily

AUSTIN — To many basketball coaches, a technical foul is an omen. But to Texas coach Tom Penders, a technical foul is a form of motivation for his team.

Penders' Longhorns, 12-4 overall and 4-1 in Southwest Conference play, defeated Texas Tech 82-68, in front of 14,127 Texas loyalists Saturday at the Frank Erwin Center.

The Red Raiders (11-6, 3-2) took the early lead in the first half 15-11. At the 10:32 mark, Penders set a new Erwin Center record for blazer tossing while protesting an offensive foul call against senior guard Roderick Anderson.

"If that guy really drew a charge on him," Penders said of Tech junior guard Koy Smith, "he's got to be the fastest person this side of Deion Sanders to get down the floor that quick."

Penders ran and threw his jacket past the mid-court stripe.

"The crowd started to get out of the game," he said. "I told one of my assistants I was about to get a technical."

Penders said he likes to get technicals when it will help the team, usually when the other team has the ball and will only get two points from it.

Smith sank the two shots to extend the Tech lead 17-11.

The Longhorns scored the next 10 points as they went on a 22-8 run to end the first half leading 35-25.

Tech got as close as 13 points in the second half, but Texas came on again and extended its lead to a game-high 22 points at 2:42 left in the game leading 80-58.

Tech head coach James Dickey said he believed Penders has done a good job with Texas.

"I think we saw one of the best teams in the conference, and we were not one of them today," Dickey said. "Texas has a great backcourt in Roderick (Anderson) and Terrence (Rencher), and their big guys are very underrated."

Texas was able to take advantage of Tech's 29 turnovers by scoring 39 points off them. Rencher led the way for the 'Horns, scoring 28 points in many one-on-one situations.

Dickey said Rencher had a good game against Tech.

"Terrence is very good, and we allowed him to penetrate the middle too often," he said.

Tech's scoring trio of Mark Davis, Lance Hughes and Jason Sasser was mostly shut down by Texas' full-court pressure defense.
