Office lays plans for playoff tickets

By Darrin Cook
The University Daily

The Texas Tech athletic department ticket office has started making plans for ticket distribution if any women's NCAA basketball tournament playoff games are scheduled to be played in Lubbock.

Tech has made a bid to be one of the tournament's subregional sites, with games scheduled for March 16 and March 18. The winner of the subregional tournament will advance to the NCAA Sweet 16 round.

Tech Athletic Director Bob Bockrath said Tech has about a 100 percent chance of becoming a subregional tournament host.

"We have around the third-best game attendance for women's basketball in the country, which should allow us to host the subregional," Bockrath said.

Carol Baker, Tech assistant athletic director and ticket manager, said Tech will be notified about bid results March 12.

Bockrath said the NCAA made changes in tournament format this year, including the selection of 16 NCAA subregional tournament sites.

Subregional tournament sites will host the first and second tournament rounds, he said. Another major change included tournament ticket distribution, he said.

The NCAA will require each of the four teams participating in the subregional tournament to receive 200 court-side tickets, he said.

The host school must provide a minimum of 500 additional tickets to be divided equally among other teams who desire more tickets.

All Tech season-ticket holders are guaranteed the opportunity to purchase tournament packages, but it is not likely they will receive the seats they had during the regular season, Bockrath said.

Tech officials devised a ticket priority plan that will ensure loyal season ticket holders priority, he said.

The ticket purchase policy will follow this priority:

- Red Raider Club members, also Lady Raider season-ticket holders, based on the donor's annual level of contribution

- Lady Raider season-ticket holders, who are not Red Raider Club members, based on the number of consecutive years of Lady Raider season tickets purchased

- Red Raider Club members, who are not season-ticket holders

- Any remaining tournament packages will be sold on a first-come, first-served basis

Baker said Tech athletic officials will meet later this week to decide how tickets will be distributed to students.

"We have not decided whether or not the students will purchase tickets on an earlier day for seats only in the student section," Baker said. "The other option would allow students to buy tickets on a first-come, first-served basis."

Baker said all the games are during spring break, which will mean the majority of Tech students will be out of town.

Bockrath said the NCAA makes no distinction between students and the general public about ticket policies for playoff games.

"Of the 200 court-side tickets Tech will receive, we will set aside a portion of the tickets for Tech students," he said.

Bockrath said the NCAA does not allow discount tickets for playoff games and students will be required to pay full price.

The ticket package will cost $30. Each package will include tickets for each tournament game.

Locals offer opinions on Clinton's nominee

By Guy Priel
The University Daily

President Clinton said he refuses to back down as debates continue regarding surgeon general nominee Henry Foster.

The debate, on one level, is about whether Foster should be confirmed by the Senate after acknowledging that during his 28 years of medical practice he performed abortions, according to the Associated Press.

The real battle, however, is over whether Democrats or Republicans will dominate the abortion issue, the AP reported.

"The abortion issue will have enormous implications when it comes time for the 1996 presidential race," said Gary Walker, a local minister.

Any candidate who runs for the GOP needs to be in a position to oppose abortion rights, he said.

"Americans need to stand up for the rights of the unborn," Walker said.

He said it is hard for Americans to support a government dedicated to pro-life, like the GOP and support Foster.

• Surgeon general nominee
• 28 years of medical practice
• House currently debating about abortions Foster performed.

"The Republican Party will not be blackmailed by any special-interest group," said Sen. Arlen Specter, R-Pa., who favors abortion rights and may seek his party's nomination in 1996.

Foster's nomination created debate recently when the GOP-controlled Congress found out he had lied regarding the number of abortions he has performed during his career, the AP reported.

"I believe I can do a good job as surgeon general because I can educate the public on the important issues," Foster said.

"In 28 years, I have delivered 10,000 babies and performed less than 12 abortions," he said. "All of them were in hospital settings and were to save the life of the mothers or to end births to rape victims."

The surgeon general has an important role in educating the public on the issues of teen-age pregnancy and birth control, Foster said.

"The debate should be settled," he said. "How many abortions I have performed is immaterial to the role of surgeon general."

Mark Harmon, an associate professor of mass communications and chairman of the Lubbock Democratic Party, said popular opinion polls show the majority of Americans support the choice issues.

"The entire debate is simply a test of will and power which the Republicans are taking an extreme position on," he said.

It is not a question of qualifications, because Foster would have not been recommended if he was not qualified, Harmon said.

"Any physician with 28 years in the field is certainly qualified to serve as surgeon general," local family physician Lowell Johnson said.

The number of abortions Foster has performed is not as important as how well he can research AIDS and teen-age pregnancy, Johnson said.

"The entire debate is an attempt by the Republicans to embarrass the president," Harmon said.

He said it is discouraging to sit back and watch the debates because Foster is a good man who has a desire to focus on the larger issues of medicine.

"The Republicans have attempted to turn the matter into a single issue and avoiding the overall picture," Harmon said.

Sen. Phil Gramm, R-Texas, said pro-life and pro-family Americans will not support a party if it retreats from its traditional values, which, he says, is what the parties are in danger of doing if they approve the nomination of Foster.

"No one should be ruled out on the basis of one issue, though," he said.

The Senate is expected to vote on the issue later this week.

Group grooves into Tech

By Tara McQueen
The University Daily

Prince made it popular, and the Minneapolis Gospel Sound is bringing it to Texas Tech Saturday night.

Minneapolis Gospel Sound will perform at 8 p.m. Saturday in the University Center Allen Theatre.

"The sound and rhythm of the guitar, the actual funk and groove, create the 'Minneapolis sound,'" said Dwight Buckner, manager and saxophone player for the group.

"Prince put Minneapolis on the map, when it comes to music," he said. "It is a certain sound, no one else can do."

The 10-member group, which consists of five singers and five musicians, all have a voice in the songs they perform.

"We work with it, and whatever sounds best, we stick with it," soprano vocalist

Tammy Sparks said. "We all have good input."

Buckner said the group composes its own music and lyrics to communicate its message of hope.

"You really have to like what you are doing because the reward comes afterward," Sparks said. "Our songs have a positive message."

Sparks said when performing on college campuses, she never knows what problems are being faced by the students.

"After the performance they come up and say, 'Your songs helped me because I was going through this or that,'" Sparks said.

"It really encourages us, it gives us that much more determination to go on."

Sparks said the group's songs have a positive message.

"A lot of songs out there are negative, without an uplifting message," she said.

Buckner says the members of Minneapolis Gospel Sound is a dedicated group as member also holds a full-time job.

"We travel two to three times a year," he said. "We have a permanent gig every Sunday."

That permanent gig is "Sunday Gospel Brunch," at the Minneapolis Fine Line Music Cafe.

Located in the Minneapolis warehouse district, the Cafe operates as a night club every day but Sunday, when contemporary rhythm and blues pull the sold-out audience to its feet, Sparks said.

"People come from Europe and other American cities to hear us sing on Sunday mornings," Sparks said. "At the end we have them work off their brunch by standing and singing. They rock with us."

Tickets to the gospel performance cost $4 for students and $6 for others.

Tech sophomore dies in car accident

By Lisa Ray
The University Daily

Texas Tech sophomore Roxanne Cavazos died Saturday night in a head-on car collision on U.S. Highway 62.

Cavazos, a 21-year-old business major from Floydada, was traveling northbound toward Floydada in her two-door Mazda when the car collided with a four-door Pontiac Catalina, said Floyd County Justice of the Peace Tim Burge.

A.C. Hope, 53, was driving the southbound Pontiac when it crossed the center lane of the two-lane highway, he said.

"Two cars going 60 mph would be like a 120-mph collision," Burge said.

Burge pronounced both drivers dead at the scene.

No passengers were in either car.

Burge said neither car was equipped with air bags, and said Hope was not wearing his seat belt, but Cavazos was.

The accident occurred shortly after 7 p.m. Saturday. Department of Public Safety troopers received the accident call at 7:09 p.m. and arrived at the scene at 7:16 p.m., police officials said.

The cars collided about 200 yards south of the intersection of Farm-to-Market Road 54 and U.S. Highway 62, Burge said.

"No weather condition at all was related to the accident," Burge said. "DPS officials are investigating the possibility of alcohol or drug involvement at this time."

Race, sex should not decide job selection

Turning back the clock. That's what White House officials have said about an attempt the California Legislature is making to eliminate all legal preferences for jobs or educational programs based on race or sex.

Sens. Phil Gramm, R-Texas, and Bob Dole, R-Kan., also have voiced their concerns about U.S. affirmative action programs, and former Vice President Dan Quayle said he wanted all "quota laws" removed.

But White House Chief of Staff Leon Panetta said the Clinton administration will support affirmative action programs already in existence in California and other states.

He said the administration will not terminate civil rights efforts.

"We clearly oppose moving backwards," Panetta said on NBC's "Meet the Press" Sunday. "Where you have discrimination, you need to have a remedy. That includes affirmative action."

Wake up, Mr. Panetta.

This is 1995, and we all want to be considered equal.

Affirmative action was created to provide a balance between people of all ages, races, color, religions and personal attributes.

For job and educational program opportunities, affirmative action is designated to serve as a helping hand for those who consider themselves underrepresented.

But affirmative action only serves to create a rift between people of all ages, races, color, religions and personal attributes through quotas and other methods.

It offers extra incentives based only on surface values.

To provide people with equal opportunity, removing any possible extra advantages from legal preferences from job, scholarship or other educational program applications is entirely acceptable.

Selection for jobs and other career- or school-oriented opportunities based on age, skin color, sex, disability or religion does not match the ability to be chosen based on character or quality.

Unfortunate, but true.

People should qualify for job and other situations based on their individual merits, attributes, qualifications and accomplishments.

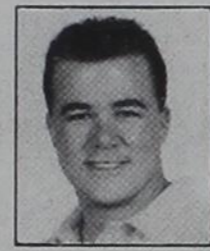

Diversity and equality has a place in each and every classroom and business place in the United States.

But to accomplish a goal, there's work to be done — and age, color, religion, sex or disability should not be an issue.

The seven-member editorial board voted 5-2 on this issue.

Minorities should not receive extra benefits

Eric Sanchez

"Oh, I forgot something very important. Be sure to check this box when you apply to Texas Tech." With a reassuring grin, the guidance counselor pointed toward a box, labeled "Hispanic."

The young man inquired, "Why?"

"It will improve your chances of being admitted," replied the counselor. "You have an average SAT score and your ACT score is slightly better." The counselor continued, with a Machiavellian smile, "Besides, every little bit helps."

There are times that a person can recall an important moment in his life. This was one I experienced almost seven years ago. Back then I didn't care that I had an advantage over my other white friends. Rules were rules. If universities had established affirmative action guidelines, so what. I didn't care. I was going to college, even though my heritage is almost as diverse as the General Assembly of the United Nations. I had a last name.

But now, I have come to see what affirmative action really is and how it affects people as a whole. "In 1965, Lyndon B. Johnson defended affirmative action by arguing that people hobbled by generations of bias could not be expected to compete equally." (U.S. News, 2/13) Given this aspect, it could be stated that all affirmative action is Jim Crow wrapped up in twentieth century liberalism. The black, Hispanic, or any other minority group are too down-trodden, or not intelligent enough to achieve merit by him/herself. We (liberals) must equalize the playing field by allowing certain groups of people access to jobs, public-sector areas like the granting of contracts, or admission to major universities and colleges.

However, it seems to me and many other Americans that government has not only leveled the playing field, but has tried to decide who will win the game.

Is it fair that a qualified applicant be denied admission or a job just because of the color of his skin? Is it fair that, "only one out of 280 black applicants to the University of Texas Law School in 1992 had a high enough score to be admitted without racial preference." (1/95 New Republic)

It seems that to many people in California, the current system is bogus. Come November 1996, California voters will face an initiative ballot that "would forbid the use of ethnicity or gender as a criterion for either discriminating against, or granting preferential treatment to, any individual or group." I can guarantee you that this issue will be one of the deciding factors in the next presidential election. If the Clinton administration does not support this measure, he would likely lose California's precious 52 electoral votes and the election. If Clinton supports the initiative, he would lose his liberal base of support in the Democratic Party.

If given the opportunity, I would probably vote to end affirmative action. My belief is that a person should be accepted in the job force or admitted to college based on his/her accomplishments and degree of success, not by the color of their skin. I know that some might criticize this maxim as a dream of euphoric ideals. But was it not ideal dreams like this one, that grasped men to form a new nation, under God, or caused another man 187 years later to state, "I have a dream that my four little children will one day live in a nation where they will not be judged by the color of their skin, but by the content of their character."

Letters to the Editor

LETTERS POLICY: Letters to the editor are accepted for publication on the OPINIONS page. All letters MUST be no longer than two, typed, double-spaced pages. Unsigned letters will NOT be published. Letters must be submitted in person or by mail with picture identification and a telephone number. Letters are printed at the editor's discretion, and the editor reserves the right to edit letters for length, libelous material, spelling and vulgarity. The University Daily does not discriminate because of race, creed, national origin, age, sex, sexual preference or disability.

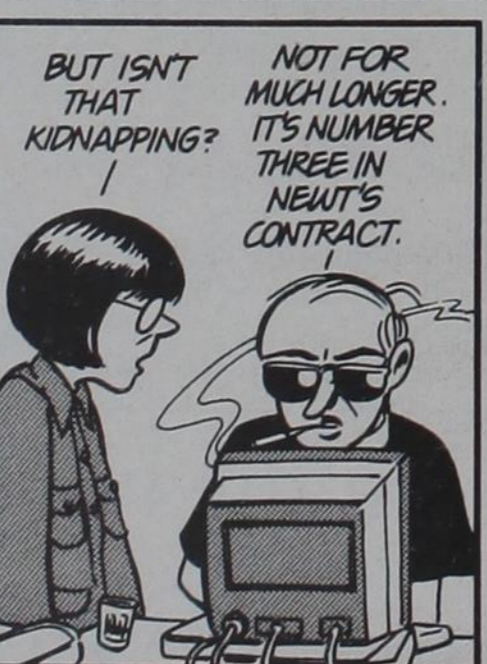

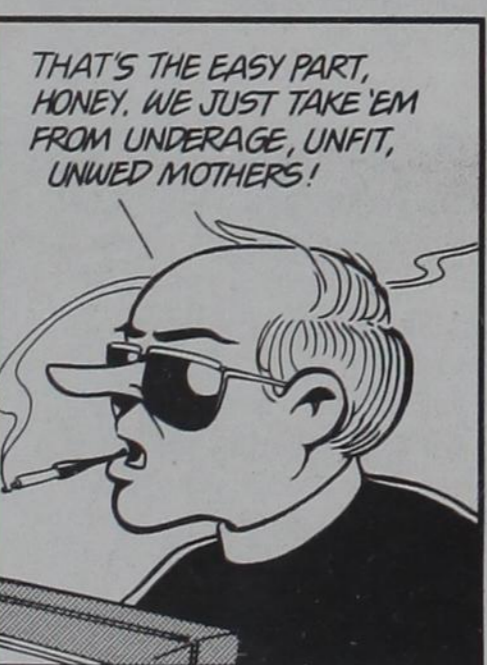

there still is one person out there thinking the way people thought back then. As well as the people who say they want equal rights then write an article crying about how the minorities are getting all the money from the government and taking all the jobs away from white Americans due to their race and not their abilities. He also says Affirmative Action does nothing to restore freedom for white Americans. It can never be over until people like the letter writer use the past as a lesson to learn. That lesson is very important if and only if we as Americans want anything to change. Maybe since the letter writer wants equality for all, like most people do, he should look closer to the events and how people thought back then and learn how to keep it from happening again. Once people understand that the past could some day become the present or future, they will start to change their ways of thinking. Learning about the past and teaching others could change what you see today as a problem and keep it from ever happening again. A lesson, I think is worth learning!

Affirmative action positive legislation

To the editor:

I know that this is going to sound familiar, but I became very upset after reading The University Daily opinion page on Feb. 10. I just can't believe the writer of the letter "Minority programs violate Constitution" (Feb. 10) actually thinks that minorities have it easier in the work place than the white community. I can only speak for myself, but as an African-American female, I have just as many problems as the next person. And if I get the job, I have to work extra hard at proving myself. While reading the article I laughed to keep from screaming. He states "Minorities are getting special loans, grants, scholarships, or jobs because of their race and not on overall ability." If that isn't a bunch of crap I don't know what is. Once again I can only speak for myself, but I had and still have to work hard at getting money from the government. Not all minorities are in need of money. Of course we would like to get it easy, but for people like me it comes after a lot of pleading and begging. Especially for school, I thought I was going to have to make up some financial problems to get a grant. It might seem like it is easier for minorities, but we have to go through the same process as the next man. If by chance we do receive the loan or grant or even job, I hope that it has nothing to do with the fact that we are minorities, but because of our need and abilities as a worker. I'm sorry that you feel minorities don't have the ability to hold some of the jobs that they have, but it's not always like that. Some of us do possess job related skills! Yes, the letter writer is right, the days of slavery and treating other races as inferior are over, but when people are out there thinking the way the letter writer is, it will never die for good. The government doesn't teach people how to think, it's all on that person. He also mentions that Affirmative Action and appropriations bills take freedom away from white Americans. He goes as far as saying that the past is the past and the lesson has been learned. If the lesson has been learned then why has nothing changed? The past can never be erased. Just because things look as though they have changed,

Fans should support Tech basketball

To the editor:

GIVE 'EM HELL BIG RED!!

This season marks the 10th anniversary of our last men's SWC championship in basketball. If you have not been to a men's game this year this is what you have been missing:

1. The Raiders have won 13 straight home games including a 9-0 season so far this year. Four more for a school record tie.
2. The Raiders are tied with Texas at 7-2 and in first place in the SWC standings.
3. Tech is averaging 100.7 points per game and winning by more than 20 points per game. The closest game this season has been a 13-point margin and we defeated TCU by 19, A&M by 26, and Baylor by 31 points.
4. The Raiders lead the SWC in slam dunks with 89 on the season.
5. The individuals on this team are some of the best to ever play at Texas Tech:

- (a) Jason Sasser has scored in double figures in 54 straight games
- (b) Lance Hughes is the sixth-leading scorer in Tech history and the all-time leader in slam dunks.
- (c) Koy Smith is the all-time leading three-point shooter
- (d) Mark Davis has had two "triple doubles" in the last two years — the only two ever in the school's history
- (e) Coach Dickey's teams have scored over 100 points 14 times.

We are heading into the Houston game on a four-game winning streak. This team is really exciting to watch, so come on out and support your Red Raiders as we shoot for the SWC championship. Our team is breaking records left and right, so let's try and break an attendance record this season!

News Briefs

Internships available

Students interested in cooperative education or internship opportunities with Walt Disney World should attend a recruiting program which has been rescheduled for 7:30 p.m. today in the Coronado/Matador Room of the University Center.

Students with questions may call the Career Planning and Placement Center at 742-2210.

Professor recovering

Sherry Ceniza, a Texas Tech assistant English professor, is listed in satisfactory condition at University Medical Center, UMC officials said.

Ceniza was involved in a car-pedestrian accident behind the English building Jan. 30.

Culture week continues

Tech International Week continues today beginning with a World Fair at 9 a.m. through 3 p.m. in the University Center Ballroom.

Students will be able to enjoy color, sights and sounds from around the globe through costumes, art and pictures.

The College of Human Sciences will present an international display of student projects at 9 a.m. through 11 a.m. in the El Centro Room of the human sciences building. Recipes and food samples will be provided by students in the department of restaurant, hotel and institutional management.

Kurt Bruder, professor and specialist in international communication, will discuss how taste reflects cultural values from 12 p.m. to 1 p.m. in room 223 of the mass communications building.

A presentation in educational change in China since the cultural revolution will be conducted from 1 p.m. to 2 p.m. in room 244 of the education building.

Study opportunities in Spain will be the focus of another seminar scheduled from 2 p.m. to 3 p.m. in room 129 of Holden Hall.

The department of classical and modern languages and literatures will present "Germinal" at 7 p.m. in the Qualia Room of the foreign language building.

Deadline for intent

Texas Tech students interested in running for Student Senate must file an intent to appear on the ballot today by 5 p.m. in room 227 of the University Center Main Office.

Workshop scheduled

The opportunities, benefits and challenges of working abroad will be the focus of a panel sponsored by the Women in Development organization.

Women faculty members participating in the discussion panel have worked in agricultural and educational projects.

Faculty members also have participated in women's economic issues in Bolivia, Turkey, China and Jordan, said Carolyn Ater, Tech associate professor of merchandising, environmental design and consumer economics.

The speakers will base their discussion on personal and professional advantages of working overseas and the problems they encountered.

Anyone interested in attending is invited and encouraged to bring questions and opinions.

Other perspectives on working overseas are welcome, Ater said.

The discussion, part of International Week activities, is slated for noon Saturday in room 129 Holden Hall.

Tech college honors Ag alumni

By Jamie McDonald

The University Daily
Three Texas Tech graduates were honored for their career accomplishments during a College of Agricultural Sciences and Natural Resources presentation Friday.

Ronald Cantrell, head of the agronomy department at Iowa State University, Guy Finstad, executive director of the Vocational Agriculture Teachers' Association of Texas, and Wyman Meinzer, freelance author and photographer, received the distinguished alumni awards.

Each alumnus was chosen for being distinguished in his profession, receiving recognition from peers, demonstrating interest in areas outside of agriculture and receiving a Tech college degree.

"It brings a sense of pride to the college because they have accomplishments," said Bryan Daniel, coordinator of student and alumni programs.

The award is an honor because the college recognizes what they have done in their profession, Daniel said.

Cantrell said receiving Tech recognition is special to him, because this is where he began his professional career.

"I think the committee nominated me because I had about nine years working internationally," Cantrell said. "To be recognized by Tech makes me feel very good. It is something that probably means more than any award I've ever received."

Meinzer said he was chosen because he diversified his career.

"I didn't just stick to one line of work," Meinzer said.

"My photography covers a wide realm of history, recreation; anything dealing outdoors."

The college paid him a tremendous compliment, he said.

"It was the ultimate compliment from people I respect very much," he said. "The people at Tech are professional people and extremely intelligent. It never entered my mind to do this. It is beautiful because I had no idea about this."

Meinzer said he now has more confidence in his work because he knows people appreciate what he does.

"I'm not any more deserving than any other individual in that college," he said.

"It's just that my work is more visible. I was able to achieve simply by my work, my passion."

Students should love what they do if they want to excel, he said.

"What you do must be a passion, something you live for," Meinzer said.

Highway may be named Bush

DALLAS (AP) — Naming part of a highway after former President George Bush has received a lukewarm response from some City Council members.

Because several members balked, the idea's sponsor agreed Monday to table the proposal to name the part of Texas 190 that will span far north Dallas after Bush.

But Dallas has a history of naming highways after former presidents from Texas, said Donna Halstead, chairwoman of the council's transportation committee, noting that the Interstate 635 loop is named for Lyndon Johnson.

"The idea is that we have one ring around the city named after one president from Texas," said Halstead.

"It makes sense that another ring around the city be named after another president."

She made the proposal during the council committee's monthly meeting.

The Texas Turnpike Authority was considering whether to build the highway as a toll road.

So Halstead suggested that the council ask the authority to name the road after the 41st president.

"I don't think you really want to get into who lived here," quipped council member Paul Fielding.

Accident

Cavazos was involved with the College Assistance Migrant Program at St. Edward's University in Austin.

"She was a very active student. She was involved in everything she could get her hands on," said Sarita Rodriguez, C.A.M.P. adviser at St. Edward's.

Cavazos later became an enrichment facilitator in the C.A.M.P. program, she said.

As a facilitator, Cavazos returned to Austin to help new students in the program, Rodriguez said. "She was just one of those students faculty remember a whole lot," Rodriguez said.

In an unrelated incident, 24-year-old Derrick Develon Ryan, of Pampa, died Sunday in a one-car rollover near Plainview.

Ryan was a December 1994 graduate of Tech.

He was a passenger in a Geo Tracker.

DPS officials said the car hit a patch of ice on Interstate 27 and rolled, throwing Ryan from the vehicle.

State legislator proposes Texas' only aerial tramway

EL PASO (AP) — A state legislator is trying to broker a deal that would once again allow the general public to ride Texas' only aerial tramway.

Rep. Pat Haggerty is pushing to have the Texas Department of Parks and Wildlife lease and operate the El Paso Aerial Tramway and use the revenue to buy land for inclusion into a state park.

"It sounds terrific," said Haggerty, R-El Paso.

Parks department executive director Andrew Sansom reportedly likes it as well.

The tramway's owner, however, is calling the idea "real premature."

"Right now it's still pie-in-the-sky. But, at least, Pat seems to be going in the right direction on it," said Richard Pearson, president of Tri-State Media, which owns the tramway.

Pearson said his company would be willing to negotiate some kind of lease with state officials.

He added that any contract would have to guarantee that Tri-State, which owns television station KTSM and two El Paso radio stations, would have access "above all others" to the company's equipment on the ridge where the tramway is located.

"It would be a favorable agreement for us and them if it all came about. And the winner would be the public, because it's the only tramway in Texas," Pearson said.

The tramway climbs to the top of Ranger Peak on the southern ridge of the Franklin Mountains, affording riders a panoramic view of the desert southwest landscape which Haggerty described as "glorious."

For 26 years, the tramway carried 35,000 people a year to the top of the Franklins. But KTSM shut down public use of the tramway about nine years ago because of high insurance costs. The tramway is now used only by the company.

"But when you open it to the public, your maintenance goes way up and you have to be really careful," said Pearson.

Haggerty said liability insurance wouldn't be a problem for the state, which is self-insured. The representative also envisions the state contracting with private business to build a restaurant near the tramway's base.

Four men involved in Waco crash

WACO (AP) — Four men suffered minor injuries today after both wings of the small plane in which they were flying were ripped from the fuselage during an attempted landing at a foggy McGregor Airport.

The 1977 Cessna 414 was unable to land on its first attempt because of dense fog, said Laureen Chernow of the Texas Department of Public Safety.

On its second approach, the plane clipped a tree and went down in a wooded area about a half-mile north of the airport.

The DPS identified the pilot as Scotty Roy Hermann, 40, of Waco. The co-pilot was Raymond Lee Hicks Jr., 41, of Houston. The passengers were Paul Joseph Stigliano, 51, and Bobby Ray Jacobs III, 46, both of Waco.

Chernow said both wings were ripped from the fuselage, causing a fire.

Trial continues with witness cross-examination

LOS ANGELES (AP) — A large portion of the defense's cross-examination of Officer Robert Riske centered on a cup of Ben & Jerry's ice cream found melting on a banister in Nicole Brown Simpson's home. Riske said he didn't touch the ice cream, and he also didn't check the temperature of the water in Ms. Simpson's bathtub.

The defense suggests such evidence could have helped fix the time of death.

Sgt. David Rossi, watch commander at the time the bodies were found, weathered an intense cross-examination by defense attorney F. Lee Bailey, who focused on the preservation of the crime scene and police attempts to notify Simpson of his ex-wife's murder.

Astros owner discusses baseball, business

Sam W. Magee: The University Daily

The fish was this big: Houston Astros owner Drayton McLane talks to students about baseball, college and values as part of the President's Council/Honors Program speaker series.

By Jamie McDonald

The University Daily

Business and baseball may not seem to have much in common, but Houston Astros owner Drayton McLane said he has worked all of his life to be a leader of both.

McLane discussed both issues Tuesday afternoon as part of the President's Council/Honors Program speakers series in the business administration building.

Tech President Robert Lawless said McLane is a personal friend and an extraordinary individual.

"I have known him for many years," Lawless said. "He is a civic leader in every manner. He is chairman of almost everything, including McLane Groceries, McLane Foods and Astroworld. He is one of the finest and most successful people I know."

McLane said leadership is de-finer by being accountable and courageous.

"My strongest impression in business was to be responsible for something and sustain your responsibility," McLane said. "That's accountability. Courage is to do the right thing. There is more at stake when you are more successful."

While accountability and courage are important in business, the most important thing to have is values, he said.

"Values must be a basic you will ultimately come back to," he said. "Establish who you are and what is important to you in college."

McLane said his parents taught him about life and business values.

"My mother said the most important decisions are to trust in the Lord, trust in your family and who you select as friends," he said. "That is the most powerful thing she had to say to me."

He said he was fortunate to have a good relationship with his father.

"He said if you are going to be successful in business, we will have to change what we do," he said. "He sent me out to visit more modern businesses to see how they worked. I gained ideas and, most importantly, gained mentors."

McLane said he advises students to try to be uncomfortable around someone in order to change.

"I challenge you to get with someone a whole lot smarter than you and just talk about things," he said. "You must get bigger views. It gives you a bigger perspective of who you are."

He said Christopher Columbus is his greatest hero.

"He did daring, interesting things," he said. "He was a risk taker with unconventional ideas. He went against the grain."

McLane said it was unconventional for he and his family to buy the Astros, but he wanted to make a difference.

"I've never seen anything in society bring people together like athletics," he said. "It crosses all educational, economical and religious barriers. We also like challenges. The Astros have never been to a World Series."

The challenge is to make the Astros champions, he said.

"We are trying to help make the Astros champions," he said. "It is not easy because people only live up to what is expected of them."

That's where accountability comes into the baseball mess, he said. It is tough to hold others accountable, McLane said.

"(Baseball) owners are not accountable," he said. "We need to make it a more affordable sport. It is a family sport."

The cost of the tickets is related to the salary the players get, McLane said.

"Only in America — the average player made $1.2 million for the season last year," he said. "They (the owners) pay because they want to win."

McLane said baseball is the hardest of any sport.

"The hardest thing of any sport in any country is to hit a baseball," he said. "It is the natural talent of hand-eye coordination."

Even with this natural talent, hitters miss seven of 10 pitches, McLane said.

"Self-confidence is most important in baseball, not muscles, because you fail most of the time," he said.

Owners need to put some self-control in baseball, McLane said.

"The president and the Congress don't need to get involved," he said. "It needs to work itself out."

Senate reviews stricter violent crime legislation

By Donald Gillilan

The University Daily

Toughening up last year's crime bill and providing each state with the opportunity to compete for federal grants to build more prisons is the focus of the Violent Criminal Incarceration Act.

The act was passed by House legislators Friday and will now head to the Senate for review.

"Career criminals should be corrected, not coddled," said Rep. Larry Combest, R-Lubbock. Combest presided as Speaker Pro-Tem of the House for discussion of the act.

The provisions of the proposed act will:

- Shift $1 billion from non-crime programs in last year's Clinton Crime Bill to prisons
- Add an additional $1.9 billion to states for prison building grants

- Require states to use as much inmate labor as possible to build prisons
- Require states to consult local communities to plan prison building or expansion

- Compel judges to dismiss frivolous lawsuits brought on by inmates
- Prevent judges from placing arbitrary caps on prison populations

- Limit prison-building grants to states that send more offenders to prison for longer sentences or require violent offenders to serve at least 85 percent of their sentences before parole

"The bill is financially unworkable," said Glen Castlebury, public relations officer for the Texas Department of Criminal Justice. "As far as Texas prisons systems they can do it, but the taxpayers can't do that."

Craig Emmert, Tech assistant professor of political science, said it would be difficult for states to meet the requirements to qualify for extra money to build prisons.

"The point is that they have to send more offenders to prison and violent offenders have to serve at least 85 percent of their sentence before they qualify for the extra money, so they can build more prisons," Emmert said. "And if the federal courts are already telling them, 'You have to let people out because your prisons are overcrowded,' they may not meet the standards to qualify for the grants."

It is a difference in philosophy between a more liberal, or even moderate approach, from last year, to a very conservative approach this year, he said.

What the federal government is trying to do is provide block grants to the community and let people decide how to use them, said Keith Williams, Combest's press secretary.

"Each community should be able to use the money in the manner they think best protects their city," Rep. Pete Geren, D-Fort Worth, said.

The local community must set up a local commission to determine what to do with the grant, Williams said.

"The commission will be chosen by police chief, district attorney, courts and the school district," he said.

Geren said the House is working on another provision which would limit federal judges from letting inmates out early and would also from making prisons too comfortable.

Officials match funds for 82nd Street widening project

By Shannon Murphy

The University Daily

The city of Lubbock and Lubbock County officials matched funds for a portion of the proposed 82nd Street reconstruction and widening project from Frankford Avenue to U.S. Highway 62/82 Thursday morning.

The cost of the project is estimated at $4.65 million, city officials said.

The city also developed a 82nd Street reconstruction petition in cooperation with the county, Sen. John Montford's Office, D-Lubbock, Frenship Independent School District, the city of Wolforth and the Lubbock Chamber of Commerce.

The petition will be sent before the Texas Department of Transportation Strategic Priority Funds Commission March 30.

The petition will request funds from the commission to widen 82nd Street as a seven-lane roadway.

Strategic priority funds are above and beyond what the DOT Lubbock District Office receives and funds include a mixture of federal and state money, said Marsha Allen, city transportation planner, Allen said.

City officials agreed local administrators should continue to match funds for project construction, she said.

The city and county are putting forth 20 percent, for a combined total of 40 percent, of the estimated project costs, she said.

"This project ranked third in priority in the Lubbock Metropolitan Transportation Plan," Allen said.

Other projects scheduled to begin before the 82nd Street widening project include the East-West Freeway and the Indiana Avenue widening project, she said.

Both the city and the county have to find why the project is necessary, Allen said.

"We have looked at the main growth areas in the community, and this area is one of them," said City Manager Bob Cass. "There have been three fatalities on 82nd Street recently, and that is also a reason that we looked at the area. The two-lane roadway is just not adequate any longer."

City officials said if additional funds are approved by the DOT commission, a new facility could be constructed that would connect the southwest portion of Lubbock with the city of Wolforth.

The facility would provide a better facility for students attending Frenship schools, officials said.

"If the project is approved, we will go ahead with our plans, and the funds would be allocated for fiscal 1996," Allen said. "Construction could start in late 1997, pending environmental approval as well as other factors."

Life a box of Academy nominations for 'Gump'

BEVERLY HILLS, Calif. (AP) — Warner Bros. didn't want it. Paramount Pictures spent more than three years twiddling its thumbs. Oscar voters showed no hesitancy, though. "Forrest Gump" was it.

Tom Hanks' improbable march through history collected 13 Academy Award nominations Tuesday — the most for a single film since 1966's "Who's Afraid of Virginia Woolf?" and one shy of "All About Eve's" record 14 in 1950.

Voters also embraced independent Miramax Films, giving it a leading 22 nominations — as much as major studios Disney, Columbia and Universal combined.

"The studio movies are formulaic," said Harvey Weinstein, Miramax's co-chairman. "It's really, really exciting. The revolution has begun."

In another surprising decision, "Hoop Dreams" wasn't nominated in the documentary feature category, despite some of the year's best reviews.

"Forrest Gump" earned nominations for best picture, best actor for Hanks, best director for Robert Zemeckis and best supporting actor for Gary Sinise — after gathering dust for more than 5 years at Warner Bros. and spinning in movie purgatory for 3 1/2 years at Paramount.

But it came up blank in the best supporting actress category, where co-stars Sally Field and Robin Wright were contenders.

The next-closest films — "Pulp Fiction," "Bullets Over Broadway" and "The Shawshank Redemption" — had seven nominations apiece.

"Forrest Gump" was topped only by "The Lion King" as 1994's highest-grossing release with more than $300 million in domestic ticket sales.

"It's a textbook example of how word-of-mouth works," said co-producer Steve Tisch. "It's taken nine years, two studios, and a lot of world. His last Oscar nomination was for "Saturday Night Fever" 17 years ago.

"I never dreamed it would take so long to get another one," Travolta said. "I'm so delighted that I was able to be part of the game again."

Travolta will face Hanks, Morgan Freeman from "The Shawshank Redemption," Nigel Hawthorne in "The Madness of King George" and previous winner Paul Newman for "Nobody's Fool."

The best actress nominations included a performance from a movie made in 1991 — Jessica Lange in "Blue Sky."

Also nominated for best actress were Jodie Foster for "Nell," Miranda Richardson for "Tom & Viv," Winona Ryder for "Little Women" and Susan Sarandon for "The Client."

"Hoop Dreams" not only was rejected in the documentary category, but lost its bid to become the first documentary named in the best picture category.

Nominated for best supporting actor were "Pulp Fiction's" Samuel L. Jackson, "Ed Wood's" Martin Landau, "Bullets Over Broadway's" Chazz Palminteri, "Quiz Show's" Paul Scofield and "Forrest Gump's" Gary Sinise.

Dianne Wiest and Jennifer Tilly were nominated for best supporting actress for "Bullets Over Broadway," as were Rosemary Harris for "Tom & Viv," Helen Mirren in "The Madness of King George" and Uma Thurman in "Pulp Fiction." In a reference to her most dramatic scene in "Pulp Fiction," Thurman said the nomination was "like a shot of adrenaline to my heart."

Allen, Zemeckis, Quentin Tarantino ("Pulp Fiction"), Robert Redford ("Quiz Show") and Krzysztof Kieslowski ("Red") were nominated for best director.

The Oscars will be presented March 27 and televised on ABC.

Committee denies 'Dreams'

BEVERLY HILLS, Calif. (AP) — Filmmakers and critics cried foul Tuesday after "Hoop Dreams" was denied an Oscar nomination for best documentary by an Academy that has snubbed some of the most acclaimed documentaries of the past decade.

The omission of the inner-city basketball saga — following slights of "Roger and Me," "The Thin Blue Line" and "The Civil War" — raised fresh criticism that the Academy's documentary committee is out of touch.

"It's a miscarriage of justice and fairness," said TV film critic Roger Ebert. "Hoop Dreams" is obviously the best documentary America has produced in years."

"Hoop Dreams" follows Chicago high school stars Arthur Agee and William Gates for 4 1/2 years as they pursue dreams of playing pro ball. Both now are college seniors — Agee at Arkansas State, Gates at Marquette — and play for their schools.

"Hoop Dreams" was launched in 1986 as a short film about street basketball, but rapidly became more. Filmmakers Steve James, Fred Marx and Peter Gilbert followed Agee and Gates, taping more than 250 hours in gyms, classrooms and the players' homes.

It took more than two years to edit, and the final length of nearly three hours might be part of the reason it wasn't nominated, according to one member of the nominating committee.

It was nominated for an Oscar for best editing. The five nominated documentary features were "Maya Lin," "Complaints of a Dutiful Daughter," "D-Day Remembered," "Freedom on My Mind" and "A Great Day in Harlem."

"I have yet to hear of any of these movies that were nominated," said Michael Barker, whose well-reviewed Sony Classics release "Crumb" also was overlooked.

Gates, at Marquette practice Tuesday, said the news hit him almost like a basketball loss, "but it's on a different level."

"I've been playing basketball all my life and this here was a once in a lifetime opportunity," he told Milwaukee station WITI-TV. "This may never happen again for me so it's probably one of the biggest disappointments of my life that it didn't get nominated."

"Hoop Dreams" already has won the Golden Globe for best documentary, and the equivalent awards from the National Society of Film Critics and the Los Angeles Film Critics Association.

Those left out of the Oscar documentary category were particularly indignant that the chairwoman of the committee nominating films saw her own obscure documentary win a nomination. Academy officials said Freida Lee Mock was prohibited from voting for her "Maya Lin: A Strong Clear Vision," but filmmakers said the conflict was too profound.

For most categories except best picture, Academy voters are divided into branches.

Costume designers nominate costume designers, editors pick editors, and so on.

There is no documentary branch, however. Forty-seven mostly veteran Academy members — actors, producers, directors — form a committee that nominates documentary features in a secret ballot, said committee vice chairman Walter Shenson.

"We thought there were five better films," Shenson said. "... Democracy is painful — it's not always easy."

Several filmmakers said "Hoop Dreams," the cartoonist R. Crumb's movie "Crumb" and "Martha & Ethel," a biography of two nannies, should have been on the list.

Kelly in fair condition after stroke

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Gene Kelly, the acrobatic dancing star of Hollywood musicals of the 1940s and '50s, was in fair condition following a minor stroke, a spokesman said Monday.

The 82-year-old star of "Singin' in the Rain" and "An American in Paris" was admitted to Cedars-Sinai Medical Center under an assumed name on Feb. 7, said hospital spokesman Ron Wise.

"He is neurologically stable," Wise said.

"He's aware and conversational," he said.

"His doctor wants to keep him here this week to watch him."

Kelly suffered a serious stroke in July and was hospitalized for seven weeks.

"This stroke was not nearly the problem that the last one caused. This was much smaller," said Wise.

Kelly and Fred Astaire reigned as premiere movie dancers of the 1940s and 1950s. However, they danced together only twice.

Red Raiders beat West Texas A&M 10-5

By Jared Parcel
The University Daily

A five-run seventh inning, in which Texas Tech sent 11 men to the plate, lifted the Red Raiders (5-2) to a 10-5 win over West Texas A&M (0-2) Tuesday at Dan Law Field.

The win was Tech's second over the Buffaloes this season.

The two teams entered the bottom half of the seventh, tied at four, after the Buffaloes scored two runs in their half of the inning.

Five Tech walks and one hit in the inning helped the Red Raider cause.

Marcus McCain started off the walk-a-thon by being hit by losing pitcher Jason Mills (0-1, seven walks, four runs, no hits, 1 1/3 inning).

Mills continued to have control problems as he walked Logan Miller and Dax Holmstead consecutively to load the bases.

Matt Kastelic followed, popping up to shortstop Michael Ornelez. Jason Totman then walked to pick up an RBI scoring McCain.

Jason Lawson replaced Mills and could not stop the walks as he issued a free pass to Clint Bryant (0-0, one run, five walks, two RBI) for another Red Raider run.

With Tech up 6-4, Randy DuRoss singled, scoring Holmstead and Totman.

"You play a team like Texas Tech, and you walk as many guys as we do, you're lucky the score's not 20-5," Buffaloes' head coach Todd Howey said after the game.

"We hung in there pretty good, I thought. We competed better tonight. I'm pleased (with our performance)."

Tech trailed 2-1 after three innings, after Ornelez hit a two-run homer to left field off Tech starter Jeff Peck (five innings, two runs, three strikeouts).

The Red Raiders came back with three runs in the sixth innings to go up 4-2.

"I think we came out and thought we could step on the field and beat them," Bryant said.

"We didn't really come to play, and it kind of showed with our performance."

Brandon Kolb (1-1) made his second appearance of the year and went the rest of the game for the win.

He went four innings, giving up three unearned runs while walking two and fanning five.

"I didn't think we gave our opponent enough respect," pitching coach Frank Anderson said.

"They came out and battled us pretty good. I didn't really think we were ready to come out and compete."

"Todd does a good job up there. We need to throw more strikes. I don't think Jeff was ready to go and I don't think our team was ready to go."

Matt Kastelic started in the designated hitter spot and went 3-for-5, scoring two runs.

He stole two bases and drove in three Tech runs.

"We came out real flat today, but we woke up just in time," Kastelic said.

"We kind of got out of our game plan. He (Issac Padilla, the WTAMU starter) was keeping us off balance, throwing a lot of curveballs and change-ups. He got us to swing through a lot of pitches."

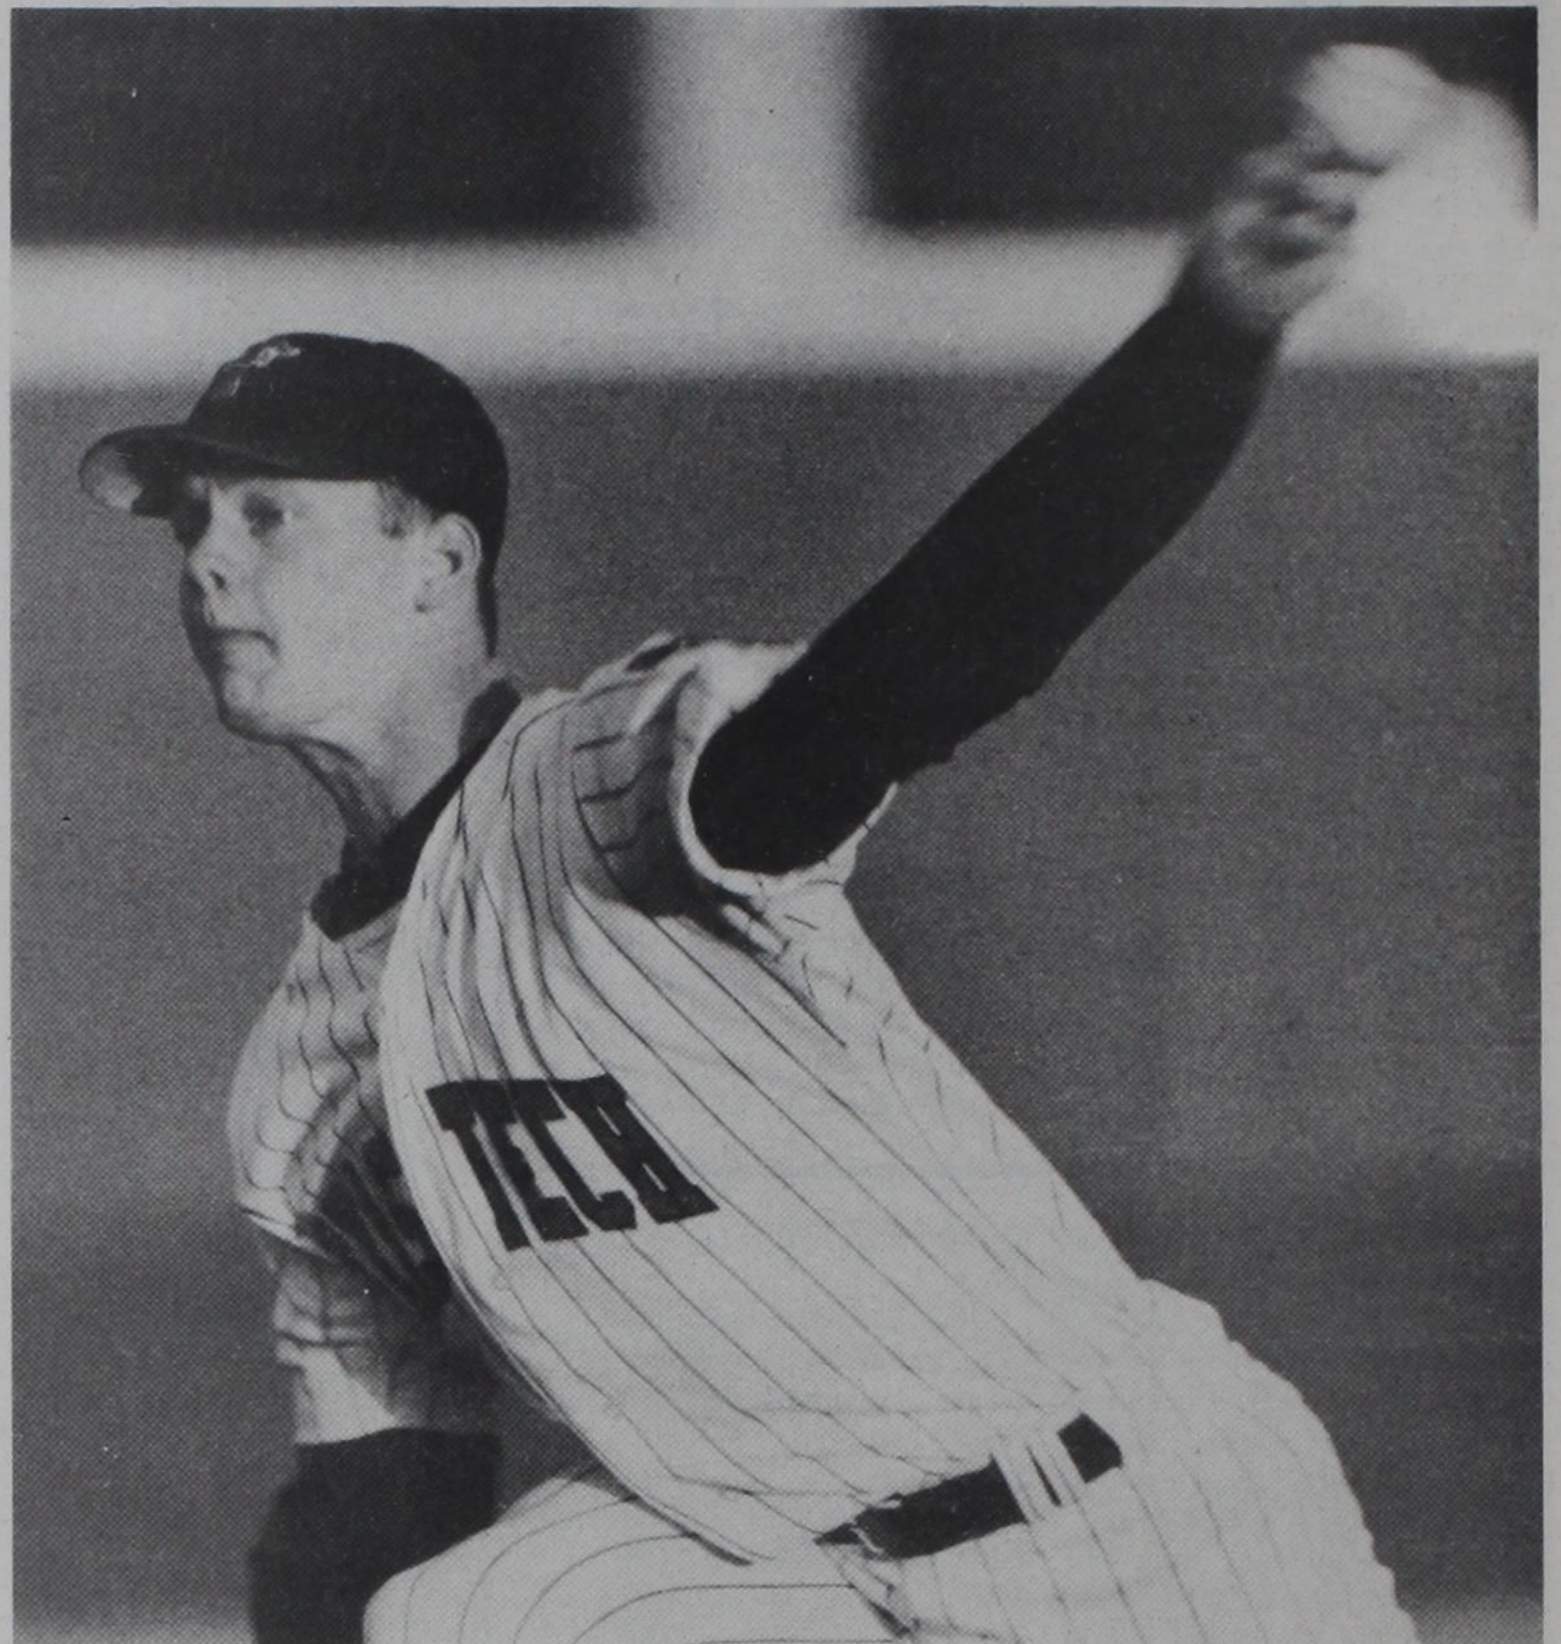

Tech coach Larry Hays said a lack of preparation hurt his team, and he took the blame.

"I'm glad to win," Hays said. "You have to win games like this. We looked like a team who wasn't particular ready to play, and that was my fault. I felt like we were too concerned about the weather. We looked like a team that didn't overly respect our opponent."

"There were a lot of things we bought into that can get you beat against a good ball club. Until we learn that, when we go in against a team that puts a pitcher out there having a good day, we have a war on our hands. We did that today."

Tech travels to Albuquerque, N.M., to take on the New Mexico Lobos in a three-game weekend series starting Friday.

Tech looks to extend 13-game home win streak

By Jonathan Harris
The University Daily

Fire officials will be put on standby when two of the hottest teams in the Southwest Conference, Texas Tech and Houston, take the floor at 7 p.m. today in the Lubbock Municipal Coliseum.

After struggling through the first half of conference play, the Cougars, 7-14 overall and 4-5 in the SWC, have become one of the hottest teams in the conference. The Cougars have won four of their last five games, including wins over Texas and Rice.

The Red Raiders (13-7, 7-2) have put together a winning streak of their own. Tech has won its last four games with wins against Rice, TCU, Texas A&M and Baylor. Tech has beaten its last four opponents by an average of 20 points.

The Raiders also hope to build on their home-winning streak.

Going into tonight's game, Tech

Houston at Texas Tech

Time: 7 p.m. Date: Today

Place: Lubbock Municipal Coliseum

1994-95 records:
Tech 13-7, 7-2
Houston 7-14, 4-5

Last Meeting: Texas Tech won 84-68 Jan. 18 in Houston

Series record: Houston leads 27-19

Radio/TV: KFYO-AM 790

Last year, Tech beat the Cougars 77-68 in Lubbock, while the Cougars won 76-64 in Houston.

Tech also beat Houston 110-85 in the first round of the SWC tourney last year.

Houston is led by junior forward Tim Moore, who is averaging 20 points a game. Against Tech earlier in the season, Moore recorded a double-double, scoring 14 points and pulling down 12 rebounds.

Senior guard Chad Collins said Houston is a challenging team despite its record.

"Houston really scares me because they are probably as talented as anyone else in the league," Collins said. "They have a ton of talent, and now that they are playing together, they will be tough coming into Lubbock."

Houston is coached by Alvin Brooks. He has compiled a mark of 15-33 since taking over the reins in Houston.

has a 13-game home winning streak. The 13-game streak is the longest by a Tech team in nearly two decades. The current school record is 17, established by the 1976-1977 team.

Tech coach James Dickey said he thinks the Cougars will be tough when they come into Lubbock.

"They've won four out of their last five including four in a row," Dickey said. "We need to have a great crowd on Wednesday night, and we need keep our momentum going against Houston."

Tech beat the Cougars 84-66 in Houston earlier this season.

The win marked the first road win for the Raiders of the season. Houston leads the overall series 27-19.

Cheating out of ordinary for Daytona 500 qualifying

DAYTONA BEACH, Fla. (AP) — With a timid smile and a nervous shuffle, former Winston Cup crew chief Gary Nelson all but admits he wasn't above stretching the rules to squeeze a little more speed out of his cars.

But the man now in charge of catching rule-breakers for NASCAR had not seen anything like this.

Randy Lajoie's car had just finished a practice session last week when inspectors noticed his trunk lid wobbling as he pulled in to refuel. They asked the crew to tighten it, but became suspicious when their efforts failed.

A closer look revealed the reason: The car was equipped with a hydraulic pump enabling the driver to lower the rear spoiler below the legal limit, reducing wind resistance to allow far greater speeds.

It was an ingenious device, with a switch on the dashboard, the pump fastened next to the clutch and two lines running the length of the vehicle to the trunk lid.

"They had an electric motor that was driving the hydraulic pump to provide 2,000 pounds of hydraulic pressure to raise and lower the trunk lid," said Nelson, NASCAR's Winston Cup director. "I've never seen one that sophisticated."

Lajoie was fined $10,000, and car owner Bill Davis, $25,000.

But that was only the start of a rash of roguery caught before the season's first — and most prestigious — event, Sunday's Daytona 500.

Over the past week:

— Car owner Junior Johnson was fined a record $45,000, and Brett Bodine was barred from the first round of qualifying after inspectors found part of the intake manifold wasn't welded to the engine as required.

It allowed more air to flow through the engine, increasing horsepower.

— Joe Nemecek was fined $5,000 for cutting illegal ridges in a filter to enhance air flow, also to increase horsepower.

— Crew chief Jeff Hammond was fined $5,000 after driver Greg Sacks crashed in the Busch Clash and inspectors found 18 pounds of loose weight stashed in the cockpit to improve the car's handling.

Each of the other crew chiefs involved was slapped with a $100 fine and indefinite probation subjecting them to special spots checks.

Lady Raiders face tough test at Houston

By Bryan Adams
The University Daily

Seventh-ranked Texas Tech travels to Houston to take on the Lady Cougars at 7 p.m. today at Hofheinz Pavilion.

The Lady Raiders slipped three spots in the polls, despite beating Baylor by 52 Saturday, after dropping a game to Texas A&M last Wednesday in College Station 78-73.

This will be the first road game since the Lady Raiders lost starting forward and leading scorer Connie Robinson.

"What a roller-coaster week for us emotionally," said head coach Marsha Sharp. "I thought that there were several things about the A&M game that were really difficult for us. Obviously to lose Connie, from our basketball team's point of view, was a really difficult thing for us to deal with. I have to really commend our kids for coming back from that." Tech will try to improve on its 22-3 record overall and 8-1 record in Southwest Conference play.

Tech leads the series against Houston 24-12 and 22-5 with Sharp at the helm. Tech has beaten Houston the last 10 meetings including a 96-65 stonping earlier this season in the Lubbock Municipal Coliseum.

Houston (12-9, 6-3) is currently in third place in the conference behind Tech and A&M.

"I think one of the biggest challenges for our basketball team all year long will come (tonight)," Sharp said. "Houston hasn't lost a basketball game since we played them last. They have really played well particularly at home. They are gaining confidence every time they play." Houston has added players along the way because of players becoming academically eligible and players returning from injury. Sophomore forward Pat Luckey, a 1994 first-team All Southwest Conference selection, missed the first 12 games of the season because of grades, and junior guard Stacey Johnson settled in after missing the first five games with an injury. Luckey's second game back was against Tech earlier this season. She scored 13 points and had four rebounds. Since returning, she is averaging 24 points. Johnson is averaging 22 points and has scored more than 30 three times this season.

"They have two of the best athletes in the conference in Pat Luckey and Stacey Johnson," Sharp said. "They really will come and get after you. I really expect it to be a big-time battle down there on Wednesday. Certainly, we'll have to play very well and with a lot of emotion and a lot of intelligence to come away with a win."

Big 12 looks to name new commissioner by March 26

KANSAS CITY, Mo. (AP) — In a sharp modification of previous plans, the first commissioner of the Big 12 Conference will be chosen March 26 in Dallas and most likely announced on the spot, the chairman of the search committee said.

Officials originally intended to interview the four finalists March 22 in Kansas City and then give the presidents of the 12 schools until late April or early May to ponder their far-reaching decision.

"But why wait?" Jon Wefald, Kansas State president and head of the committee told The Associated Press on Tuesday. "It was my thinking that we should just get on with it."

After the 12-person search committee interviews the four finalists March 22, the members will meet in Dallas four days later with the committee's final suggestions. Wefald said the presidents will be prepared to make their decision immediately following final interviews that day and introduce the new super conference's first commissioner then.

The timing and site of the announcement may fuel speculation that the job will go to Steve Hatchell, 47, commissioner of the Southwest Conference, who is former associate commissioner in the Big 8.

He and Bob Frederick, 54, athletic director at Kansas, are thought to be front-runners to head the new megaconference, which already has signed football television deals worth more than $100 million.

Also making the March 22 interviews from an original list of 32 candidates are Dan Beebe, 38, commissioner of the Ohio Valley Conference, and Patty Viverito, 42, senior associate commissioner of the Missouri Valley Conference.

"The presidents will talk to two, three or to all four on the 26th," Wefald said of the interviewing process.

"We just don't want people sitting out there not knowing anything for a month or more. There's no reason to wait. We'll have everything we need to make a decision."

The Big 12 begins play in 1996-

97 and expects to be instantly a major power on the collegiate landscape.

It will include the current Big Eight of Kansas, Kansas State, Oklahoma, Oklahoma State, Missouri, Colorado, Iowa State and Nebraska, plus — from the disintegrating SWC — Texas, Texas Tech, Texas A&M and Baylor.

Wefald said the committee still expects the Big 12 commissioner to be on the job by July 1.

The new timetable seems potentially awkward for Frederick, who is in his first year as chairman of the NCAA basketball tournament committee.

Regional finals will be decided "at four sites around the country the weekend of March 25-26, determining the Final Four."

It would be unprecedented for the committee chairman not to be supervising a regional that day, but an NCAA source said Wefald had been assured it would be possible for Frederick to absent on the 26th.

"None of the candidates will have any problem being in Dallas on that day," Wefald said.

After picking a commissioner, the Big 12 will need to locate a conference office.

The Big Eight always has been headquartered in Kansas City, but many believe Dallas, site of the SWC offices, would offer the Big 12 greater opportunities for corporate tie-ins.

Wefald declined to speculate on where the headquarters might be or how the decision would be made.

However, another source said presidents are being urged to "put it out to bid."

"What we need to do is just let it be known that the decision is to where the Big 12 headquarters ought to be located has not been made," said the source, who asked not to be named.

"Then Dallas and Kansas City can let us know what they will do for us. We might also talk to Denver, Oklahoma City, Omaha, Des Moines or St. Louis."

"It's the same thing IBM or General Motors would do under the circumstances."

Rockets trade Thorpe to Portland for Drexler

DALLAS (AP) — Clyde Drexler, who played 11 1/2 seasons with the Portland Trail Blazers, got the trade he had requested Tuesday, going to the Houston Rockets with forward Tracy Murray for forward Otis Thorpe.

The NBA champions will also give Portland the rights to 1993 second-round draft pick Marcelo Nicola.

Drexler, 32, a teammate of Rockets center Hakeem Olajuwon at the University of Houston, is Portland's all-time leader in scoring, assists, steals and rebounds.

Drexler asked for a trade before the season and made his request public in January, saying he was unhappy with the direction of the franchise.

He had already left for Houston on Tuesday night as the Blazers were preparing to play the Mavericks.

"It's something that Clyde wanted and he got what he wanted," Portland point guard Rod Strickland said. "What more could he ask for? He wasn't happy with what was going on here and he's going back home. He gives them somebody who's one of the top go-to players in the league. He's a clutch player who's really helped Houston."

The Rockets also will receive a conditional 1995 first-round draft choice.

In third place in the Midwest Division and with only the sixth best record in the Western Conference, the Rockets were looking for backcourt scoring. Their current shooting guard, Vernon Maxwell, was suspended for 10 games last week for punching a heckler.

"Obviously, we felt something needed to be done," Houston coach Rudy Tomjanovich said. "This was presented to us, and we're getting a great player. 'I would like to alter the chemistry. Sometimes it seems like we've been running against the wind.'"

After two injury-plagued seasons, Drexler has been healthy and having a strong year, averaging 22 points, 5.7 rebounds and 5.1 assists.

"I think we're going to score points a little easier," Tomjanovich said. "He creates situations much like Hakeem. He's a great passer out of the double team. I think he can make the other players better."

Olajuwon and Drexler played together two seasons on Houston's "Phi Slamma Jamma" team that went to two Final Fours.

Portland players were sad to say goodbye to the franchise leader in 11 categories, but were also happy that Drexler would be returning to his hometown.

"It was a situation where he felt he wasn't being treated properly," Blazers forward Buck Williams said. "He has a lot of basketball left. He should have been in the All-Star game, he was playing that well."

Heath earns academic honor

Texas Tech senior guard Nikki Heath was named to the College Sports Information Directors Association District VI Academic Team Tuesday.

Heath, a senior exercise and sports science major from Sweetwater, carries a 3.633 GPA. She has been named to the President's List once and the Dean's List four times.

On the court, Heath is a four-year letter winner, averaging 8.1 points per game, 5.8 rebounds per game and 2.56 assists per game this season.

Heath's name will be added to a national ballot where she has a chance to become the third Lady Raider Academic All-America

Spring Softball

Are you willing to be a part of history? Do you want to be one of those softball enthusiasts that play the most popular intramural sport at Tech and the fastest growing in the nation? Then start rounding up those friends, because Slow Pitch Softball entries are due next week, Feb. 21-23 from 8 a.m. to 5 p.m. in room 203 of the Student Recreation Center. Plan to enter early in order to secure your most favorable playing time. Instant schedules are available in the Recreational Sports Office, so pick one up and visit with your team and be an early bird at registration to ensure the day and time you want for league play. Blank rosters may be picked up in advance and filled out at home to save you time. Make sure you have your players' complete names, addresses and phone numbers in alphabetical order and bring a refundable $25 forfeit fee.

Softball Free Agents Meeting

Individuals wishing to play intramural softball but without a team on which to play, are encouraged to attend the Free Agents Meeting on Feb. 22 at 6 p.m. in SRC 205. At that meeting Rec Sports personnel will attempt to form teams of interested individuals or locate teams seeking additional players. Team captains needing an extra player or two also are encouraged to attend the meeting since players will be available at that time.

Racquetball Singles Champions

The intramural racquetball singles championships were held Friday and Saturday at the Student Recreation Center. Scott Parill won the Men's A with Reineer Scholert taking second. In Men's B, Omar Martinez defeated Kurt Shirkey for the title. Men's C saw Sean Wyatt defeat Mark Padilla to win. On the women's side, Jenna Peeler won the championship with Danielle Spriegel placing second. One hundred and thirty-three persons entered the three-day event.

Badminton Tournament Champion Named

Bings Mntono recently defeated all comers to win the Recreational Sports badminton tournament. Bings breezed through the competition in the Round Robin format without a loss. Akkarajan Vijay C. took second, Shyamrav A.V. third, and Hari Govino Tessingh fourth.

Table Tennis Doubles Tournament

Recreational Sports in cooperation with the University Center will sponsor the 1995 Table Tennis Doubles Tournament on Thursday at 7 p.m. in the UC Game room. Check-in will be at 6:30 p.m. Entries for the event may be picked up at either the SRC or the UC today through Thursday from 8 a.m. until 5 p.m. A Men's A & B, a Women's A & B, and a mixed division will be offered as dictated by entries. Division winners will receive University Intramural Champion t-shirts.

Squash Singles Tournament

Recreational Sports is sponsoring the 1995 Squash Singles Tournament beginning Feb. 20. Entries for the event will be accepted at the SRC today and Thursday from 8 a.m. to 5 p.m. Championship t-shirts will be awarded to the winners. Tournament brackets will be available by noon Friday at the Rec Center Office. Players will contact their opponents and schedule match times convenient for both.

Rec offers employment opportunities

In need of a great part-time job in the evenings that works around your schedule? Then you may want to consider becoming a softball umpire. The clinics begin Monday at 6 p.m. in room 201 of the Student Recreation Center and continue through the week. Stop by the Rec Sports Office and pick up an information sheet with complete dates, times and locations. Experience is not required. The current stipend is $6.38 per game, so take this opportunity to earn extra money when you are not playing and enjoy the game of softball from a different perspective.

Indoor triathlon begins Saturday

Try a new combination of aerobic activities in the Indoor Triathlon which will be held Saturday at 9 a.m. Participants will cycle on each machine. The distances will be totalled and the competitor with the most miles wins. There is an $8 entry fee which includes a shirt. Entries and information are available in the Fit/Well and are due Friday.
